Preface

This volume contains the general laws of a permanent nature enacted by the General Assembly through the 2001 Regular Session that are within Chapters 97 through 105, and brings to date the annotations included therein.

A majority of the Session Laws are made effective upon becoming law, but a few provide for stated effective dates. If the Session Law makes no provision for an effective date, the law becomes effective under G.S. 120-20 "from and after 60 days after the adjournment of the session" in which passed.

A ready reference index is included at the back of this volume. This index is intended to give the user a quick reference to larger bodies of statutes within this volume only. For detailed research on any subject, both within this volume and the General Statutes as a whole, see the General Index to the General Statutes.

Beginning with formal opinions issued by the North Carolina Attorney General on July 1, 1969, selected opinions which construe a specific statute are cited in the annotations to that statute. For a copy of an opinion or of its headnotes, write the Attorney General, P.O. Box 629, Raleigh, N.C. 27602.

This recompiled volume has been prepared and published under the supervision of the Department of Justice of the State of North Carolina. The members of the North Carolina Bar are requested to communicate any suggestions they may have for improving the General Statutes to the Department, or to LexisNexis, Charlottesville, Virginia.

ROY COOPER
Attorney General

CASE NOTES

Constitutionality. — The North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act has been held to be constitutional by the North Carolina Supreme Court, and the Supreme Court of the United States has upheld the constitutionality of similar compensation acts. Jenkins v. American Enka Corp., 95 F.2d 755 (4th Cir. 1938).

The contention that the Workers' Compensation Act is unconstitutional on the ground that it destroys the right of trial by jury is untenable. McCune v. Rhodes-Rhyne Mfg. Co., 217 N.C. 351, 8 S.E.2d 219 (1940). See also Hagler v. Mecklenburg Hwy. Comm'n, 200 N.C. 733, 158 S.E. 383 (1931); Huffman v. Douglass Aircraft Co., 260 N.C. 308, 132 S.E.2d 614 (1963), cert. denied, 379 U.S. 850, 85 S. Ct. 93, 13 L. Ed. 2d 53, rehearing denied, 379 U.S. 925, 85 S. Ct. 279, 13 L. Ed. 2d 338 (1964).

This act is not unconstitutional in denying punitive damages for willful injuries to an employee. McCune v. Rhodes-Rhyne Mfg. Co., 217 N.C. 351, 8 S.E.2d 219 (1940).

Contention of mother of deceased employee that she was entitled under the statute of distribution to any sum receivable for the death of the deceased and that the Workers' Compensation Act, which deprived her of that right, was unconstitutional, was without merit, as compensation legislation is a valid exercise of police power. Heavner v. Town of Lincolnton, 202 N.C. 400, 162 S.E. 909, appeal dismissed, 287 U.S. 672, 53 S. Ct. 4, 77 L. Ed. 579 (1932).

This Chapter is not violative of N.C. Const., Art. I, § 18, as a taking of property without due process of law. Sneed v. Carolina Power & Light Co., 61 N.C. App. 309, 300 S.E.2d 563 (1983).

Purpose of Act. — The primary purpose of legislation of this kind is to compel industry to take care of its own wreckage. Barber v. Minges, 223 N.C. 213, 25 S.E.2d 837 (1943).

The purpose of this act is to provide compensation benefits for industrial injuries. Lewis v. W.B. Lea Tobacco Co., 260 N.C. 410, 132 S.E.2d 877 (1963).

The purpose of the Workers' Compensation Act is not only to provide a swift and certain remedy to an injured worker, but also to ensure a limited and determinate liability for employers. Barnhardt v. Yellow Cab Co., 266 N.C. 419, 146 S.E.2d 479 (1966); Taylor v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 643, 292 S.E.2d 277 (1982), modified and affirmed, 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

The underlying purpose of the Workers' Compensation Act is to provide compensation for workers who suffer disability by accident arising out of and in the course of their employment. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 234 N.C. 126, 66 S.E.2d 693 (1951).

One of the primary objects and purposes of compensation laws is to grant certain and speedy relief to injured employees, or, in case of death, to their dependents. Cabe v. Parker-Graham-Sexton, Inc., 202 N.C. 176, 162 S.E. 223 (1932).

The general purpose of the Workers' Compensation Act, in respect to compensation for disability, is to substitute, for common-law or statutory rights of action and grounds of liability, a system of money payments by way of financial relief for loss of capacity to earn wages. There is no compensation provided for physical pain or discomfort. Branham v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 223 N.C. 233, 25 S.E.2d 865 (1943).

One of the purposes of the Workers' Compensation Act is to relieve against hardship, rather than to afford full compensation for injury. The fixing of maximum and minimum awards in industry is a compromise. Kellams v. Carolina Metal Prods., Inc., 248 N.C. 199, 102 S.E.2d 841 (1958).

It is not the purpose of the Workers' Compensation Act to exculpate or absolve employers from the consequences of their negligent conduct. Tscheiller v. National Weaving Co., 214 N.C. 449, 199 S.E. 623 (1938).

The purpose of the Workers' Compensation Act is to furnish compensation for loss of earning capacity. Wilhite v. Liberty Veneer Co., 47 N.C. App. 434, 267 S.E.2d 566, rev'd on other grounds, 303 N.C. 281, 278 S.E.2d 234 (1981).

The purpose of the Workers' Compensation Act is twofold. It was enacted to provide swift and sure compensation to injured workers without the necessity of protracted litigation.

Rorie v. Holly Farms Poultry Co., 306 N.C. 706, 295 S.E.2d 458 (1982).

The Workers' Compensation Act is a compromise arrived at through the concessions of employees and employers alike. Nothing in it supports the notion that it was enacted just for the protection of careful, prudent employees, or that employees that do not stick strictly to their business are beyond its protection. By its terms, with certain exceptions the act applies to all employees who work for employers with the requisite number of employees and are injured by accident during the course of and arising from their employment; and it is not required that the employment be the sole proximate cause of the injury, it being enough that any reasonable relationship to the employment exists, or employment is a contributory cause. Bare v. Wayne Poultry Co., 70 N.C. App. 88, 318 S.E.2d 534 (1984), cert. denied, 312 N.C. 796, 325 S.E.2d 484 (1985).

The philosophy which supports the Workers' Compensation Act is that the wear and tear of human beings in modern industry should be charged to the industry, just as the wear and tear of machinery has always been charged. Vause v. Vause Farm Equip. Co., 233 N.C. 88, 63 S.E.2d 173 (1951); Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968); Porterfield v. RPC Corp., 47 N.C. App. 140, 266 S.E.2d 760 (1980).

While compensation is presumably charged to the industry, and consequently to the employer or owner of the industry, eventually it becomes a part of the fair money cost of the industrial product, to be paid for by the general public patronizing such products. Vause v. Vause Farm Equip. Co., 233 N.C. 88, 63 S.E.2d 173 (1951).

Workers' compensation laws were enacted to treat the cost of industrial accidents as a cost of production. Daniels v. Swofford, 55 N.C. App. 555, 286 S.E.2d 582 (1982).

Cost-effectiveness is not the sole goal of the Workers' Compensation Act. Grantham v. Cherry Hosp., 98 N.C. App. 34, 389 S.E.2d 822, cert. denied, 324 N.C. 138, 394 S.E.2d 454 (1990).

Applicability. — The Workers' Compensation Act deals with the incidents and risks of the contract of employment, in which is included the negligence of the employer in that relation. It has no application outside the field of industrial accident, and does not intend, by its general terms, to take away common-law or other rights which pertain to the parties as members of the general public, disconnected from the employment. Barber v. Minges, 223 N.C. 213, 25 S.E.2d 837 (1943).

Mutuality of Act. — It was the purpose of the General Assembly that both employee and employer should receive the benefits and enjoy the protection of this act. The act contemplates mutual concessions by employee and employer; for that reason, its validity has been upheld, and its policy approved. Winslow v. Carolina Conference Ass'n, 211 N.C. 571, 191 S.E. 403 (1937). See also Lee v. American Enka Corp., 212 N.C. 455, 193 S.E. 809 (1937); NLRB v. Moss Planing Mill Co., 224 F.2d 702 (4th Cir. 1955).

The Workers' Compensation Act is primarily for the protection and benefit of the employee, and he is entitled to know with certainty when his right of action accrues. Hartsell v. Thermoid Co., 249 N.C. 527, 107 S.E.2d 115 (1959).

Basis of Liability. — The Workers' Compensation Act takes into consideration certain elements of a mutual concession between the employer and employee by which the question of negligence is eliminated, and liability under the act rests upon the employer upon the condition precedent of an injury by accident occurring in the course of employment and arising out of it. Conrad v. Cook Lewis Foundry Co., 198 N.C. 723, 153 S.E. 266 (1930).

Workers' compensation laws are a statutory compromise which assure workers' compensation for injuries arising out of and in the course of employment without their having to prove negligence on the part of the employer. In exchange for the employer's loss of common law defenses, however, the employee gives up his right to common-law verdicts. In effect, tort liability was replaced with no-fault liability. Andrews v. Peters, 55 N.C. App. 124, 284 S.E.2d 748 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 395, 290 S.E.2d 364 (1982).

It is generally conceded by all courts that the various compensation acts were intended to eliminate the fault of the workman as a basis for denying recovery. In other words, a workman is entitled to recover irrespective of fault if the injury arises out of and in the course of the employment. The doctrine of horseplay, which excludes a workman from compensation, although he is not at fault, and does not engage therein, is inconsistent with the underlying philosophy of compensation acts, which are designed for the very purpose of eliminating fault as a basis for determining liability. Bare v. Wayne Poultry Co., 70 N.C. App. 88, 318 S.E.2d 534 (1984), cert. denied, 312 N.C. 796, 325 S.E.2d 484 (1985).

Compensability under the Workers' Compensation Act is not dependent upon negligence or fault of the employer. Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963).

But the act is not the equivalent of general accident or health insurance. Vause v. Vause Farm Equip. Co., 233 N.C. 88, 63 S.E.2d 173 (1951); Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963); Lewis v. W.B. Lea

Tobacco Co., 260 N.C. 410, 132 S.E.2d 877 (1963).

The legislative intent seems clear that the Workers' Compensation Act is an industrial injury act, and not an accident and health insurance act. The court should not overstep the bounds of legislative intent and by judicial legislation make the compensation act an accident and health insurance act. Lewter v. Abercrombie Enters., Inc., 240 N.C. 399, 82 S.E.2d 410 (1954).

The Workers' Compensation Act is not intended to provide general health and accident insurance, but its purpose is to provide compensation for those injuries which result from accidents which arise out of and in the course of the employment. Martin v. Georgia-Pacific Corp., 5 N.C. App. 37, 167 S.E.2d 790 (1969).

The Workers' Compensation Act is not intended to provide general health and accident insurance. To be compensable the injury must spring from the employment. Hales v. North Hills Constr. Co., 5 N.C. App. 564, 169 S.E.2d 24 (1969).

Payment of Employee's Consumer Debts as Rehabilitative Service Not Authorized.

— The Workers' Compensation Act does not authorize the Commission to order an employer to pay an employee's common consumer debts as a rehabilitative service. Grantham v. Cherry Hosp., 98 N.C. App. 34, 389 S.E.2d 822, cert. denied, 324 N.C. 138, 394 S.E.2d 454 (1990).

It is not a reasonable interpretation of the Workers' Compensation Act to classify the payment of consumer debt as a rehabilitative service. Grantham v. Cherry Hosp., 98 N.C. App. 34, 389 S.E.2d 822, cert. denied, 324 N.C. 138, 394 S.E.2d 454 (1990).

Preexisting Infirmary. — The fact that an employee is peculiarly disposed to injury because of an infirmity or disease incurred prior to his employment affords no sound basis for a reduction in the employer's liability. Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 27 N.C. App. 254, 218 S.E.2d 876 (1975), rev'd on other grounds, 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976).

The Workers' Compensation Act is to be liberally construed to effectuate the broad intent of the act to provide compensation for employees sustaining an injury arising out of and in the course of the employment, and no technical or strained construction should be given to defeat this purpose. Johnson v. Asheville Hosiery Co., 199 N.C. 38, 153 S.E. 591 (1930). See Roberts v. City Ice & Coal Co., 210 N.C. 17, 185 S.E. 438 (1936); Barbour v. State Hosp., 213 N.C. 515, 196 S.E. 812 (1938).

The provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act are to be liberally construed to effectuate the legislative intent as gathered from the act to award compensation for the injury or death of an employee arising out of and in the course of his employment, irrespective of the question of negligence. Reeves v. Parker-Graham-Sexton, Inc., 199 N.C. 236, 154 S.E. 66 (1930).

The Workers' Compensation Act must be liberally construed and liberally applied. Thomas v. Raleigh Gas. Co., 218 N.C. 429, 11 S.E.2d 297 (1940).

The Workers' Compensation Act should be liberally construed to the end that benefits should not be denied upon a technical, narrow and strict interpretation. Graham v. Wall, 220 N.C. 84, 16 S.E.2d 691 (1941); Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 231 N.C. 477, 57 S.E.2d 760 (1950); Guest v. Brenner Iron & Metal Co., 241 N.C. 448, 85 S.E.2d 596 (1955); Kellams v. Carolina Metal Prods., Inc., 248 N.C. 199, 102 S.E.2d 841 (1958); Hartley v. Holly Farms Poultry Co., 306 N.C. 706, 295 S.E.2d 458 (1982); Taylor v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 643, 292 S.E.2d 277 (1982), modified, 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983); Donnell v. Cone Mills Corp., 60 N.C. App. 338, 299 S.E.2d 436, cert. denied, 308 N.C. 190, 302 S.E.2d 243 (1983); Roper v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 65 N.C. App. 69, 308 S.E.2d 485 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 309, 312 S.E.2d 652 (1984); Harrell v. Harriet & Henderson Yarns, 314 N.C. 566, 336 S.E.2d 47 (1985); Smith v. Dacotah Cotton Mills, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 687, 230 S.E.2d 772 (1976), rev'd on other grounds, Sweatt v. Rutherford County Bd. of Educ., 237 N.C. 653, 75 S.E.2d 738 (1953).

The Workers' Compensation Act is a radical and systematic change in the common law and must be liberally construed to accomplish its purposes. Its provisions are superior to the common law in all respects where it deals with the liabilities arising out of the relationship of employer and employee. Essick v. City of Lexington, 232 N.C. 200, 60 S.E.2d 106 (1950).

The Workers' Compensation Act requires that it be liberally construed to effectuate the purpose for which it was passed, i.e., to provide compensation for injured workers. Keller v. Electric Wiring Co., 259 N.C. 222, 130 S.E.2d 342 (1963); Barnhardt v. Yellow Cab Co., 266 N.C. 419, 146 S.E.2d 479 (1963); Ashley v. Rent-A-Car Co., 271 N.C. 76, 155 S.E.2d 755 (1967); Belfield v. Weyerhaeuser Co., 77 N.C. App. 332, 335 S.E.2d 44 (1985).

In the absence of other than technical prejudice to the opposing party, the liberal spirit and policy of the Workers' Compensation Act should not be defeated or impaired by a too strict adherence to procedural niceties. Hall v. Thomason Chevrolet, Inc., 263 N.C. 569, 139 S.E.2d 857 (1965).

The Workers' Compensation Act should be liberally construed. Bailey v. North Carolina Dep't of Mental Health, 2 N.C. App. 645, 163 S.E.2d 652 (1968).

The Workers' Compensation Act was an innovating substitution of statute law in a field theretofore left entirely to the common law. Because of the radical and systematic changes in the common law, a statute so markedly remedial in nature must be liberally construed with a view to effectuating its purposes. Wilmington Shipyard, Inc. v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 6 N.C. App. 649, 171 S.E.2d 222 (1969).

Courts favor a liberal construction of the Workers' Compensation Act in favor of the claimant. Robbins v. Nicholson, 10 N.C. App. 421, 179 S.E.2d 183 (1971), rev'd on other grounds, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972); Bartlett v. Duke Univ., 17 N.C. App. 598, 195 S.E.2d 371, rev'd on other grounds, 284 N.C. 230, 200 S.E.2d 193 (1973).

The legislature has provided that the Workers' Compensation Act shall be liberally construed, but it does not permit either the commission or the courts to hurry evidence beyond the speed which its own force generates. Weidle v. Cloverdale Ford, 50 N.C. App. 555, 274 S.E.2d 263 (1981).

Courts construe the Workers' Compensation Act liberally in favor of compensability. Chandler v. Nello L. Teer Co., 53 N.C. App. 766, 281 S.E.2d 718 (1981), aff'd, 305 N.C. 292, 287 S.E.2d 890 (1982).

The provisions of the act are to be construed liberally and in favor of the employee. Dayal v. Provident Life & Accident Ins. Co., 71 N.C. App. 131, 321 S.E.2d 452 (1984).

But the rule of liberal construction cannot be extended beyond the clearly expressed language of the act. Gilmore v. Hoke County Bd. of Educ., 222 N.C. 358, 23 S.E.2d 292 (1942).

The rule of liberal construction cannot be employed to attribute to a provision of the act a meaning foreign to the plain and unmistakable words in which it is couched. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 231 N.C. 477, 57 S.E.2d 760 (1950); Hatchett v. Hitchcock Corp., 240 N.C. 591, 83 S.E.2d 539 (1954); Guest v. Brenner Iron & Metal Co., 241 N.C. 448, 85 S.E.2d 596 (1955); Watkins v. City of Wilmington, 290 N.C. 276, 225 S.E.2d 577 (1976).

Liberality in construction of the Workers' Compensation Act should not extend beyond the clearly expressed language of its provisions, and the courts may not enlarge the ordinary meaning of the terms used by the legislature or engage in any method of judicial legislation. Deese v. Southern Lawn & Tree Expert Co., 306 N.C. 275, 293 S.E.2d 140, rehearing denied, 306 N.C. 753, 303 S.E.2d 83 (1982).

Nor can the rule of liberal construction be used to apply the act to employments not within its stated scope, or not within its intent or purpose. Wilson v. Town of Mooresville, 222 N.C. 283, 22 S.E.2d 907 (1942).

The courts are without authority to enlarge the meaning of the terms used in the Workers' Compensation Act by the legislature or to extend by construction its scope and intent so as to include persons not embraced by its terms. Hayes v. Board of Trustees, 224 N.C. 11, 29 S.E.2d 137 (1944).

The doctrine of liberal construction of the Workers' Compensation Act arises out of the act itself and relates only to cases falling within the purview of the act. It cannot be invoked to determine when the act applies. Hayes v. Board of Trustees, 224 N.C. 11, 29 S.E.2d 137 (1944).

Or to Expand Liability. — The Workers' Compensation Act insures a limited and determinate liability for employers, and the court cannot legislate expanded liability under the guise of construing a statute liberally. Rorie v. Holly Farms Poultry Co., 306 N.C. 706, 295 S.E.2d 458 (1982); McDonald v. Brunswick Elec. Membership Corp., 77 N.C. App. 753, 336 S.E.2d 407 (1985).

The Workers' Compensation Act will be construed as a whole to effectuate the intent of the General Assembly. Morris v. Laughlin Chevrolet Co., 217 N.C. 428, 8 S.E.2d 484 (1940).

The various provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act are to be construed in their relations to each other as a whole to effectuate the intent of the legislature to provide compensation to an employee for injury arising out of and in the course of his employment. Rice v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 199 N.C. 154, 154 S.E. 69 (1930).

In all cases of doubt, the intent of the legislature regarding the operation or application of a particular provision is to be discerned from a consideration of the Workers' Compensation Act as a whole — its language, purposes and spirit. Deese v. Southern Law & Tree Expert Co., 306 N.C. 275, 293 S.E.2d 140, rehearing denied, 306 N.C. 753, 303 S.E.2d 83 (1982).

Choice of Law. — Where plaintiff sought and received workers' compensation benefits pursuant to the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act for an injury received in Virginia and caused by a third-party subcontractor, and, inter alia, North Carolina was the place of plaintiff's residence, the location of defendant's business, and the place of the initial hiring, North Carolina had significant interests in applying its own law based on the employment relationship and its connection with North Carolina. Braxton v. Anco Elec., Inc., 100 N.C. App. 635, 397 S.E.2d 640 (1990), aff'd, 330 N.C. 124, 409 S.E.2d 914 (1991).

Injuries resulting from horseplay initiated and participated in by a claimant have not been excluded from the Workers' Compensation Act. Bare v. Wayne Poultry Co., 70 N.C. App. 88, 318 S.E.2d 534 (1984), cert. denied, 312 N.C. 796, 325 S.E.2d 484 (1985).

Exclusive Remedy. — The Workers' Compensation Act provided the exclusive remedy for the claimants' fraud and bad faith refusal to pay or settle a valid claim, unfair and deceptive trade practices, intentional infliction of emotional distress and civil conspiracy claims against their employer and insurer. Johnson v. First Union Corp., 131 N.C. App. 142, 504 S.E.2d 808 (1998).

Act Not Exclusive Remedy for Intentional Injury by Fellow Employees. — North Carolina's Workers' Compensation Act is not the exclusive remedy for an employee intentionally injured by a fellow employee. Andrews v. Peters, 55 N.C. App. 124, 284 S.E.2d 748 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 395, 290 S.E.2d 364 (1982).

An employee was free to assert an intentional assault and battery tort action against a coemployee. The coemployee was liable when he intentionally tapped the employee behind the knees, causing her to fall and injure herself, although he allegedly did not intend or foresee the injury. Andrews v. Peters, 75 N.C. App. 252, 330 S.E.2d 638, cert. denied, 315 N.C. 182, 337 S.E.2d 65 (1985), aff'd, 318 N.C. 133, 347 S.E.2d 409 (1986).

This section did not bar plaintiff's claims for intentional and negligent infliction of emotional distress because they neither resulted from a risk to which she was exposed because of the nature of her employment nor occurred in the course of her employment. Buser v. Southern Food Serv., 73 F. Supp. 2d 556 (M.D.N.C. 1999).

Disability Compensation Agreement Constitutes Award. — A validly executed Industrial Commission Form 21 agreement ("Agreement for Compensation for Disability") constitutes an "award" under the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act. Apple v. Guilford County, 84 N.C. App. 679, 353 S.E.2d 641, rev'd on other grounds, 321 N.C. 98, 361 S.E.2d 588 (1987).

The Workers' Compensation Act makes no provision for property damage suits, and the Supreme Court has clearly distinguished the recoveries allowable in personal injury damage suits and payments received under the Workers' Compensation Act. Bowman v. Comfort Chair Co., 271 N.C. 702, 157 S.E.2d 378 (1967).

What Law Governs. — The rights of employer, employee, and insurance carrier under a workers' compensation statute are governed by the law of the state of the statute. Betts v. Southern Ry., 71 F.2d 787 (4th Cir. 1934).

Version of Statute in Effect for Determining Compensation. — Plaintiff who became partially disabled in 1973 and was compensated pursuant to the laws in effect at that time, was entitled to compensation for total disability (arising out of the same injury) under the laws in effect in 1981, when he became totally disabled. Peace v. J.P. Stevens Co., 95 N.C. App. 129, 381 S.E.2d 798 (1989).

Wrongful Death Statute Controls. — The provisions of the North Carolina wrongful death statute, § 28-173 (see now § 28A-18-2), are controlling over the provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act. Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 3 N.C. App. 139, 164 S.E.2d 535 (1968), aff'd, 277 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

Simultaneous Claims in Workers' Compensation and Civil Intentional Tort. — A plaintiff in North Carolina may now simultaneously pursue a workers' compensation claim and a civil intentional tort claim without being required to elect between them. Federal Ins. Co. v. Sanfatex, Inc., 897 F. Supp. 932 (E.D.N.C. 1995).

A plaintiff should not be allowed to recover twice for a single injury; once in workers' compensation benefits and a second time in a civil action. Federal Ins. Co. v. Sanfatex, Inc., 897 F. Supp. 932 (E.D.N.C. 1995).

Where civil action was settled for only $415,000 because plaintiff was already receiving over $700,000 in workers' compensation benefits, the threat of double recovery was negated and the combined amount of $1,197,669.09 was a single recovery. Federal

Ins. Co. v. Sanfatex, Inc., 897 F. Supp. 932 (E.D.N.C. 1995).

Employer and employee held not to come within the provisions of the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act. Pennsylvania Threshermen & Farmers' Mut. Cas. Ins. Co. v. Harrill, 106 F. Supp. 332 (W.D.N.C. 1952).

Double Coverage — Workers' Compensation and Longshoremen's Benefits. — If a valid award may be made under the Workers' Compensation Act, the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act, 33 USC §§ 901 to 950, may be dismissed from consideration, since double coverage is not intended. Rice v. Uwharrie Council Boy Scouts of Am., 263 N.C. 204, 139 S.E.2d 223 (1964).

Same — Workers' Compensation and Unemployment Benefits. — Several states allow the recovery of both workers' compensation and unemployment benefits for the same time period, in the absence of an express statutory prohibition. In North Carolina, there is no express prohibition of duplicate benefits, although a persuasive argument can be made that the General Assembly intended that there be no recovery of both workers' compensation and unemployment. Dolbow v. Holland Indus., Inc., 64 N.C. App. 695, 308 S.E.2d 335 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 308, 312 S.E.2d 651 (1984).

Adoption of per diem reimbursement rule exceeded the Commission's statutory authority to review and approve hospital charges for services rendered to patients entitled to care under the Workers' Compensation Act. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth. v. North Carolina Indus. Comm'n, 336 N.C. 200, 443 S.E.2d 716 (1994).

The Industrial Commission has exclusive jurisdiction of the rights and remedies herein afforded. Hedgepeth v. Lumbermen's Mut. Cas. Co., 209 N.C. 45, 182 S.E. 704 (1935); Thomason v. Red Bird Cab Co., 235 N.C. 602, 70 S.E.2d 706 (1952).

Ordinarily, when the pleadings in a common-law tort action disclose that the parties are subject to and bound by the provisions of this act with respect to the injury involved, dismissal is proper, for the Industrial Commission has exclusive jurisdiction in such cases. Neal v. Clary, 259 N.C. 163, 130 S.E.2d 39 (1963).

Jurisdiction in Commission Upheld. — Where the findings of fact of the Industrial Commission, supported by competent evidence, were to the effect that defendant's employee was temporarily employed in pumping water from a barge which was being loaded with logs on a navigable river, that the barge careened, and that the employee fell or jumped from the shore side of the barge and was actually killed on land as a result of the barge crushing him, and it further appeared that the barge was without means of propulsion and was at the time incapable of navigation, and that both the employee and the defendant had accepted and were amenable to this Chapter, it was held that the North Carolina Industrial Commission had jurisdiction to hear and determine the claim for compensation for the employee's death, its jurisdiction not being ousted by the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction of the United States. Johnson v. Foreman-Blades Lumber Co., 216 N.C. 123, 4 S.E.2d 334 (1939).

The strict rules applicable to ordinary civil actions are not appropriate in proceedings under the act. Conklin v. Hennis Freight Lines, 27 N.C. App. 260, 218 S.E.2d 484 (1975).

Because the Industrial Commission, pursuant to this article, has sole jurisdiction over the plaintiff-worker's allegations, after settlement, that defendants committed fraud, bad faith, unfair and deceptive trade practices, intentional infliction of emotional distress and civil conspiracy during the handling of his workers' compensation claim, the trial court properly dismissed the post-settlement claim pursuant to § 1A-1-12(b). Deem v. Treadaway & Sons Painting & Wallcovering, Inc., 142 N.C. App. 472, 543 S.E.2d 209 (2001).

Appellate Review. — Findings of fact by the Industrial Commission are conclusive on appeal if there is any competent evidence to support them, and even if there is evidence that would support contrary findings. Richards v. Town of Valdese, 92 N.C. App. 222, 374 S.E.2d 116 (1988), cert. denied, 324 N.C. 337, 378 S.E.2d 799 (1989).

Conclusions of law based on the Industrial Commission's findings are subject to review by the appellate courts. Richards v. Town of Valdese, 92 N.C. App. 222, 374 S.E.2d 116 (1988), cert. denied, 324 N.C. 337, 378 S.E.2d 799 (1989).

Effect of Superior Court's Jurisdictional Findings. — The Supreme Court would consider the superior court's findings of jurisdictional fact as binding on appeal if supported by the evidence when the question was whether the Industrial Commission or the superior court had jurisdiction over a claim. Lemmerman v. A.T. Williams Oil Co., 318 N.C. 577, 350 S.E.2d 83, rehearing denied, 318 N.C. 704, 351 S.E.2d 736 (1986).

Conflicts in the evidence are for the Industrial Commission to resolve. The only question on appeal is whether there was sufficient evidence to support the Commission's findings, not whether different findings might have been made. Bigelow v. Tire Sales Co., 12 N.C. App. 220, 182 S.E.2d 856 (1971).

Effect of Certification of Ability to Work to Employment Security Commission. — Employee's certification of himself as able to work to the Employment Security Commission does not mean that he is estopped from recovering workers' compensation benefits. His statement to the Employment Security Commission was not conclusive evidence on the question of disability, and therefore, was not binding upon the Industrial Commission. Dolbow v. Holland Indus., Inc., 64 N.C. App. 695, 308 S.E.2d 335 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 308, 312 S.E.2d 651 (1984).

Pleadings. — Unless the notice of accident required by § 97-22 and § 97-23 is so considered, the Workers' Compensation Act makes no mention of pleadings. Clark v. Gastonia Ice Cream Co., 261 N.C. 234, 134 S.E.2d 354 (1964).

Judicial Notice. — North Carolina courts will take judicial notice of a public statute of this State, which therefore need not be pleaded, and the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act is a public statute. Miller v. Roberts, 212 N.C. 126, 193 S.E. 286 (1937).

Applied in Davis v. Mecklenburg County, 214 N.C. 469, 199 S.E. 604 (1938); Gay v. Guaranteed Supply Co., 12 N.C. App. 149, 182 S.E.2d 664 (1971); Dowell v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 468 F.2d 802 (4th Cir. 1972); Benfield v. Troutman, 17 N.C. App. 572, 195 S.E.2d 75 (1973); Carter v. Frank Shelton, Inc., 62 N.C. App. 378, 303 S.E.2d 184 (1983); Wiggins v. Rufus Tart Trucking Co., 63 N.C. App. 542, 305 S.E.2d 749 (1983); Ross v. Young Supply Co., 71 N.C. App. 532, 322 S.E.2d 648 (1984); Rose v. Isenhour Brick & Tile Co., 120 N.C. App. 235, 461 S.E.2d 782 (1995).

§ 97-1.1. References to workmen's compensation.

Any reference in any act, public or local, to the "Workmen's Compensation Act," "Workmen's Compensation," or "workmen's compensation" shall be deemed to refer respectively to "Workers' Compensation Act," "Workers' Compensation" or "workers' compensation." (1979, c. 714, s. 4.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1991, c. 636, s. 3, provides: "Consistent with G.S. 97-1.1, the Revisor of Statutes is authorized to change the terms "Workmen's Compensation Act", "Workmen's Compensation" and "workmen's compensation" to "Workers' Compensation Act", "Workers' Compensation", and "workers' compensation", respectively, wherever these terms are used in the General Statutes."

§ 97-2. Definitions.

When used in this Article, unless the context otherwise requires —

- (1) Employment. — The term "employment" includes employment by the State and all political subdivisions thereof, and all public and quasi-public corporations therein and all private employments in which three or more employees are regularly employed in the same business or establishment or in which one or more employees are employed in activities which involve the use or presence of radiation, except agriculture and domestic services, unless 10 or more full-time non-seasonal agricultural workers are regularly employed by the employer and an individual sawmill and logging operator with less than 10 employees, who saws and logs less than 60 days in any six consecutive months and whose principal business is unrelated to sawmilling or logging.

- (2) Employee. — The term “employee” means every person engaged in an employment under any appointment or contract of hire or apprenticeship, express or implied, oral or written, including aliens, and also minors, whether lawfully or unlawfully employed, but excluding persons whose employment is both casual and not in the course of the trade, business, profession, or occupation of his employer, and as relating to those so employed by the State, the term “employee” shall include all officers and employees of the State, including such as are elected by the people, or by the General Assembly, or appointed by the Governor to serve on a per diem, part-time or fee basis, either with or without the confirmation of the Senate; as relating to municipal corporations and political subdivisions of the State, the term “employee” shall include all officers and employees thereof, including such as are elected by the people. The term “employee” shall include members of the North Carolina national guard while on State active duty under orders of the Governor and members of the North Carolina State Defense Militia while on State active duty under orders of the Governor. The term “employee” shall include deputy sheriffs and all persons acting in the capacity of deputy sheriffs, whether appointed by the sheriff or by the governing body of the county and whether serving on a fee basis or on a salary basis, or whether deputy sheriffs serving upon a full-time basis or a part-time basis, and including deputy sheriffs appointed to serve in an emergency, but as to those so appointed, only during the continuation of the emergency. The sheriff shall furnish to the board of county commissioners a complete list of all deputy sheriffs named or appointed by him immediately after their appointment and notify the board of commissioners of any changes made therein promptly after such changes are made. Any reference to an employee who has been injured shall, when the employee is dead, include also his legal representative, dependents, and other persons to whom compensation may be payable: Provided, further, that any employee, as herein defined, of a municipality, county, or of the State of North Carolina, while engaged in the discharge of his official duty outside the jurisdictional or territorial limits of the municipality, county, or the State of North Carolina and while acting pursuant to authorization or instruction from any superior officer, shall have the same rights under this Article as if such duty or activity were performed within the territorial boundary limits of his employer.

Every executive officer elected or appointed and empowered in accordance with the charter and bylaws of a corporation shall be considered as an employee of such corporation under this Article.

Any such executive officer of a corporation may, notwithstanding any other provision of this Article, be exempt from the coverage of the corporation's insurance contract by such corporation's specifically excluding such executive officer in such contract of insurance, and the exclusion to remove such executive officer from the coverage shall continue for the period such contract of insurance is in effect, and during such period such executive officers thus exempted from the coverage of the insurance contract shall not be employees of such corporation under this Article.

All county agricultural extension service employees who do not receive official federal appointments as employees of the United States Department of Agriculture and who are field faculty members with professional rank as designated in the memorandum of understanding between the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, North Carolina State University, A & T State University, and the boards of county commissioners shall be deemed to be employees of the State of North Carolina. All other county agricultural extension service employees paid from State or county funds shall be deemed to be employees of the county board of commissioners in the county in which the employee is employed for purposes of workers' compensation.

The term "employee" shall also include members of the Civil Air Patrol currently certified pursuant to G.S. 143B-491(a) when performing duties in the course and scope of a State-approved mission pursuant to Article 11 of Chapter 143B of the General Statutes.

"Employee" shall not include any person performing voluntary service as a ski patrolman who receives no compensation for such services other than meals or lodging or the use of ski tow or ski lift facilities or any combination thereof.

Any sole proprietor or partner of a business or any member of a limited liability company may elect to be included as an employee under the workers' compensation coverage of such business if he is actively engaged in the operation of the business and if the insurer is notified of his election to be so included. Any such sole proprietor or partner or member of a limited liability company shall, upon such election, be entitled to employee benefits and be subject to employee responsibilities prescribed in this Article.

"Employee" shall include an authorized pickup firefighter of the Division of Forest Resources of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources when that individual is engaged in emergency fire suppression activities for the Division of Forest Resources. As used in this section, "authorized pickup firefighter" means an individual who has completed required fire suppression training as a wildland firefighter and who is available as needed by the Division of Forest Resources for emergency fire suppression activities, including immediate dispatch to wildfires and standby for initial attack on fires during periods of high fire danger.

- (3) Employer. — The term "employer" means the State and all political subdivisions thereof, all public and quasi-public corporations therein, every person carrying on any employment, and the legal representative of a deceased person or the receiver or trustee of any person. The board of commissioners of each county of the State, for the purposes of this law, shall be considered as "employer" of all deputy sheriffs serving within such county, or persons serving or performing the duties of a deputy sheriff, whether such persons are appointed by the sheriff or by the board of commissioners and whether serving on a fee basis or salary basis. Each county is authorized to insure its compensation liability for deputy sheriffs to the same extent it is authorized to insure other compensation liability for employees thereof. For purposes of this Chapter, when an authorized pickup firefighter of the Division of Forest Resources of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources is engaged in emergency fire suppression activities for the Division of Forest Resources, that individual's employer is the Division of Forest Resources.
- (4) Person. — The term "person" means individual, partnership, association or corporation.

- (5) Average Weekly Wages. — “Average weekly wages” shall mean the earnings of the injured employee in the employment in which he was working at the time of the injury during the period of 52 weeks immediately preceding the date of the injury, including the subsistence allowance paid to veteran trainees by the United States government, provided the amount of said allowance shall be reported monthly by said trainee to his employer, divided by 52; but if the injured employee lost more than seven consecutive calendar days at one or more times during such period, although not in the same week, then the earnings for the remainder of such 52 weeks shall be divided by the number of weeks remaining after the time so lost has been deducted. Where the employment prior to the injury extended over a period of fewer than 52 weeks, the method of dividing the earnings during that period by the number of weeks and parts thereof during which the employee earned wages shall be followed; provided, results fair and just to both parties will be thereby obtained. Where, by reason of a shortness of time during which the employee has been in the employment of his employer or the casual nature or terms of his employment, it is impractical to compute the average weekly wages as above defined, regard shall be had to the average weekly amount which during the 52 weeks previous to the injury was being earned by a person of the same grade and character employed in the same class of employment in the same locality or community.

But where for exceptional reasons the foregoing would be unfair, either to the employer or employee, such other method of computing average weekly wages may be resorted to as will most nearly approximate the amount which the injured employee would be earning were it not for the injury.

Wherever allowances of any character made to an employee in lieu of wages are specified part of the wage contract, they shall be deemed a part of his earnings.

Where a minor employee, under the age of 18 years, sustains a permanent disability or dies leaving dependents surviving, the compensation payable for permanent disability or death shall be calculated, first, upon the average weekly wage paid to adult employees employed by the same employer at the time of the accident in a similar or like class of work which the injured minor employee would probably have been promoted to if not injured, or, second, upon a wage sufficient to yield the maximum weekly compensation benefit. Compensation for temporary total disability or for the death of a minor without dependents shall be computed upon the average weekly wage at the time of the accident, unless the total disability extends more than 52 weeks, and then the compensation may be increased in proportion to his expected earnings.

In case of disabling injury or death to a volunteer fireman; member of an organized rescue squad; an authorized pickup firefighter, as defined in subdivision (2) of this section, when that individual is engaged in emergency fire suppression activities for the Division of Forest Resources; a duly appointed and sworn member of an auxiliary police department organized pursuant to G.S. 160A-282; or senior members of the State Civil Air Patrol functioning under Article 11 of Chapter 143B of the General Statutes, under compensable circumstances, compensation payable shall be calculated upon the average weekly wage the volunteer fireman, member of an organized rescue squad, authorized pickup firefighter of the Division of Forest Resources, when that individual is engaged in emergency fire suppression, sion activities for the Division of Forest Resources, member of an auxiliary police department, or senior member of the State Civil Air Patrol was earning in the employment wherein he principally earned his livelihood as of the date of injury. Provided, however, that the minimum compensation payable to a volunteer fireman, member of an organized rescue squad, an authorized pickup firefighter of the Division of Forest Resources of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources, when that individual is engaged in emergency fire suppression activities for the Division of Forest Resources, a sworn member of an auxiliary police department organized pursuant to G.S. 160A-282, or senior members of the State Civil Air Patrol shall be sixty-six and two-thirds percent (66  $\frac{2}{3}$ %) of the maximum weekly benefit established in G.S. 97-29.

- (6) Injury. — “Injury and personal injury” shall mean only injury by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, and shall not include a disease in any form, except where it results naturally and unavoidably from the accident. With respect to back injuries, however, where injury to the back arises out of and in the course of the employment and is the direct result of a specific traumatic incident of the work assigned, “injury by accident” shall be construed to include any disabling physical injury to the back arising out of and causally related to such incident. Injury shall include breakage or damage to eyeglasses, hearing aids, dentures, or other prosthetic devices which function as part of the body; provided, however, that eyeglasses and hearing aids will not be replaced, repaired, or otherwise compensated for unless injury to them is incidental to a compensable injury.
- (7) Carrier. — The term “carrier” or “insurer” means any person or fund authorized under G.S. 97-93 to insure under this Article, and includes self-insurers.
- (8) Commission. — The term “Commission” means the North Carolina Industrial Commission, to be created under the provisions of this Article.
- (9) Disability. — The term “disability” means incapacity because of injury to earn the wages which the employee was receiving at the time of injury in the same or any other employment.
- (10) Death. — The term “death” as a basis for a right to compensation means only death resulting from an injury.
- (11) Compensation. — The term “compensation” means the money allowance payable to an employee or to his dependents as provided for in this Article, and includes funeral benefits provided herein.
- (12) Child, Grandchild, Brother, Sister. — The term “child” shall include a posthumous child, a child legally adopted prior to the injury of the employee, and a stepchild or acknowledged illegitimate child dependent upon the deceased, but does not include married children unless wholly dependent upon him. “Grandchild” means a child as above defined of a child as above defined. “Brother” and “sister” include stepbrothers and stepsisters, half brothers and half sisters, and brothers and sisters by adoption, but does not include married brothers nor married sisters unless wholly dependent on the employee. “Child,” “grandchild,” “brother,” and “sister” include only persons who at the time of the death of the deceased employee are under 18 years of age.
- (13) Parent. — The term “parent” includes stepparents and parents by adoption, parents-in-law, and any person who for more than three years prior to the death of the deceased employee stood in the place of a parent to him, if dependent on the injured employee.

- (14) Widow. — The term “widow” includes only the decedent’s wife living with or dependent for support upon him at the time of his death; or living apart for justifiable cause or by reason of his desertion at such time.
- (15) Widower. — The term “widower” includes only the decedent’s husband living with or dependent for support upon her at the time of her death or living apart for justifiable cause or by reason of her desertion at such time.
- (16) Adoption. — The term “adoption” or “adopted” means legal adoption prior to the time of the injury.
- (17) Singular. — The singular includes the plural and the masculine includes the feminine and neuter.
- (18) Hernia. — In all claims for compensation for hernia or rupture, resulting from injury by accident arising out of and in the course of the employee’s employment, it must be definitely proven to the satisfaction of the Industrial Commission:
- a. That there was an injury resulting in hernia or rupture.
  - b. That the hernia or rupture appeared suddenly.
  - c. Repealed by Session Laws 1987, c. 729, s. 2.
  - d. That the hernia or rupture immediately followed an accident.
Provided, however, a hernia shall be compensable under this Article if it arises out of and in the course of the employment and is the direct result of a specific traumatic incident of the work assigned.
  - e. That the hernia or rupture did not exist prior to the accident for which compensation is claimed.
- All hernia or rupture, inguinal, femoral or otherwise, so proven to be the result of an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of employment, shall be treated in a surgical manner by a radical operation. If death results from such operation, the death shall be considered as a result of the injury, and compensation paid in accordance with the provisions of G.S. 97-38. In nonfatal cases, if it is shown by special examination, as provided in G.S. 97-27, that the injured employee has a disability resulting after the operation, compensation for such disability shall be paid in accordance with the provisions of this Article.
- In case the injured employee refuses to undergo the radical operation for the cure of said hernia or rupture, no compensation will be allowed during the time such refusal continues. If, however, it is shown that the employee has some chronic disease, or is otherwise in such physical condition that the Commission considers it unsafe for the employee to undergo said operation, the employee shall be paid compensation in accordance with the provisions of this Article.
- (19) Medical Compensation. — The term “medical compensation” means medical, surgical, hospital, nursing, and rehabilitative services, and medicines, sick travel, and other treatment, including medical and surgical supplies, as may reasonably be required to effect a cure or give relief and for such additional time as, in the judgment of the Commission, will tend to lessen the period of disability; and any original artificial members as may reasonably be necessary at the end of the healing period and the replacement of such artificial members when reasonably necessitated by ordinary use or medical circumstances.
- (20) Health care provider. — The term “health care provider” means physician, hospital, pharmacy, chiropractor, nurse, dentist, podiatrist, physical therapist, rehabilitation specialist, psychologist, and any other person providing medical care pursuant to this Article.

- (21) Managed care organization. — The term “managed care organization” means a preferred provider organization or a health maintenance organization regulated under Chapter 58 of the General Statutes. “Managed care organization” also means a preferred provider benefit plan of an insurance company, hospital, or medical service corporation in which utilization review or quality management programs are used to manage the provision of health care services and benefits under this Chapter. ## I. IN GENERAL.

The Workers' Compensation Act is a compromise arrived at through the concessions of employees and employers alike. Nothing in it supports the notion that it was enacted just for the protection of careful, prudent employees, or that employees that do not stick strictly to their business are beyond its protection. By its terms, with certain exceptions the act applies to all employees who work for employers with the requisite number of employees and are injured by accident during the course of and arising from their employment; and it is not required that the employment be the sole proximate cause of the injury, it being enough that any reasonable relationship to the employment exists, or employment is a contributory cause. Bare v. Wayne Poultry Co., 70 N.C. App. 88, 318 S.E.2d 534 (1984), cert. denied, 312 N.C. 796, 325 S.E.2d 484 (1985).

The social policy behind the Workers' Compensation Act is twofold. First, the Act provides employees swift and certain compensation for the loss of earning capacity from accident or occupational disease arising in the course of employment. Second, the Act insures limited liability for employers. Although the Act should be liberally construed to effectuate its intent, the courts cannot judicially expand the employer's liability beyond the statutory parameters. Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986).

Liberal Construction. — The intent of the Legislature regarding the operation of a particular provision of the Workers' Compensation Act is to be discerned from a consideration of the act as a whole — its language, purposes and spirit. This spirit is one of liberal construction, whenever appropriate, so that benefits will not be denied upon mere technicalities. Brown v. Walnut Cove Volunteer Fire Dep't, 71 N.C. App. 409, 322 S.E.2d 443 (1984), aff'd, 317 N.C. 147, 343 S.E.2d 523 (1986).

Industrial Commission Sole Judge of Witnesses Reliability. — In weighing the evidence, the Industrial Commission is the sole judge of the credibility of the witnesses and the weight to be given to their testimony, and may reject a witness' testimony entirely if warranted by disbelief of that witness. Lineback v. Wake County Bd. of Comm'rs, 126 N.C. App. 678, 486 S.E.2d 252 (1997).

As to the inapplicability of state compensation laws to employment of purely admiralty cognizance, see London Guar. & Accident Co. v. Industrial Accident Comm'n, 279 U.S. 109, 49 S. Ct. 296, 73 L. Ed. 632 (1929).

Effect of Superior Court's Jurisdictional Findings. — The Supreme Court would consider the superior court's findings of jurisdictional fact as binding on appeal if supported by the evidence when the question was whether the Industrial Commission or the superior court had jurisdiction over a claim. Lemmerman v. A.T. Williams Oil Co., 318 N.C. 577, 350 S.E.2d 83, rehearing denied, 318 N.C. 704, 351 S.E.2d 736 (1986).

Claim Held Cognizable. — Claim of employee hired for other types of work, who was temporarily engaged in pumping water from a leaking and powerless barge which was being loaded with logs on the Roanoke River and was crushed by the barge and killed when the logs started rolling, the barge careened toward the channel, and the employee jumped ashore, where he and his employer had both accepted the State compensation act, was properly cognizable by the Commission. The application of the State act to such a situation did not violate the federal Constitution by interference with the uniformity of the general maritime law. Johnson v. Foreman-Blades Lumber Co., 216 N.C. 123, 4 S.E.2d 334 (1939).

Duty and Foreseeability Not at Issue. — Where plaintiff's intestate choked while eating during her lunch break at work, the fact that she was mentally retarded had no bearing with regard to plaintiffs' workers' compensation claim, as plaintiff's contention that defendant owed a higher duty of care to its employees because they were mentally retarded was an argument better suited to a negligence action where duty and foreseeability are required to be proven for the plaintiff to recover. Forsythe v. INCO, 95 N.C. App. 742, 384 S.E.2d 30 (1989).

Death Benefits. — To recover death benefits under the Workers Compensation Act a claimant bears the burden of proving that the decedent sustained a fatal injury (1) by accident, (2) arising out of his employment, and (3) during the course of his employment. Westbrooks v. Bowes, 130 N.C. App. 517, 503 S.E.2d 409 (1998).

Civil Action Allowed for Employer's Misconduct Substantially Certain to Cause Injury or Death. — When an employer intentionally engages in misconduct knowing it is substantially certain to cause serious injury or death to employees and an employee is injured or killed by that misconduct, that employee, or the personal representative of the estate in case of death, may pursue a civil action against the employer as well as a claim for workers' compensation as such misconduct is tantamount to an intentional tort, and civil actions based thereon are not barred by the exclusivity provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act. Woodson v. Rowland, 329 N.C. 330, 407 S.E.2d 222 (1991).

Election Between Remedies Not Required. — A claimant may, but is not required to, elect between a civil remedy and a remedy under the Workers' Compensation Act but, in any event, is entitled to but one recovery. Woodson v. Rowland, 329 N.C. 330, 407 S.E.2d 222 (1991).

Woodson v. Rowland Applies Retroactively. — The Supreme Court's decision in Woodson v. Rowland, 329 N.C. 330, 407 S.E.2d 222 (1991), which is annotated above, applies retroactively, even though the Woodson court was silent on whether its decision was to operate retroactively. Dunleavy v. Yates Constr. Co., 106 N.C. App. 146, 416 S.E.2d 193, cert. denied, 332 N.C. 343, 421 S.E.2d 146 (1992).

Co-employee Civil Liability. — The Workers' Compensation Act does not bar an employee from suing a co-employee for injuries caused by willful, wanton, and reckless negligence. Dunleavy v. Yates Constr. Co., 106 N.C. App. 146, 416 S.E.2d 193, cert. denied, 332 N.C. 343, 421 S.E.2d 146 (1992).

No Common-Law Action against Negligent Fellow Employee. — An employee who sustains an "injury arising out of and in the course of employment," caused by the negligence of a fellow employee who was acting within "the course of employment," as that term is used in subdivision (6) of this section, may not maintain an action at common law against the negligent employee. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

Failure to Specify Defense. — Plaintiff was not prejudiced by failure of defendants to specify the defense which they planned to use at his hearing, and whatever defense the defendants may have relied upon, the burden was on plaintiff to prove that he was injured by an accident arising out of and in the course of employment. Parker v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 78 N.C. App. 517, 337 S.E.2d 589 (1985).

Refusal to Accept Tendered Work. — Defendant's argument that the plaintiff was not disabled within the meaning of subsection (9) because they offered him employment consistent with his medical limitations (one functional arm) at no reduction in salary and that plaintiff was barred from compensation for total disability because he unjustifiably refused the tendered employment suitable to his capacity, was rejected. Bowden v. Boling Co., 110 N.C. App. 226, 429 S.E.2d 394 (1993).

When Fault of Employee Bars Recovery. — The circumstances in which fault of an employee operates to bar workers' compensation benefits are (1) when the employee's injury was proximately caused by intoxication or being under the influence of a controlled substance, or (2) when the injury was proximately caused by the employee's willful intention to injure or kill himself. Creel v. Town of Dover, 126 N.C. App. 547, 486 S.E.2d 478 (1997).

II. EMPLOYMENT, EMPLOYEES, AND EMPLOYERS.

A. In General.

An injured person is entitled to compensation under the Act only if he was an employee of the party from whom compensation is claimed at the time of his injury. Hart v. Thomasville Motors, Inc., 244 N.C. 84, 92 S.E.2d 673 (1956); Richards v. Nationwide Homes, 263 N.C. 295, 139 S.E.2d 645 (1965); Lucas v. Li'l Gen. Stores, 289 N.C. 212, 221 S.E.2d 257 (1976).

To be entitled to maintain a proceeding for compensation for personal injury under the Act, the claimant must be, in fact and in law, an employee of the alleged employer. Askew v. Leonard Tire Co., 264 N.C. 168, 141 S.E.2d 280

Employment Is Jurisdictional. — The question of whether an employer-employee relationship exists is jurisdictional. Askew v. Leonard Tire Co., 264 N.C. 168, 141 S.E.2d 280 (1965); Lucas v. Li'l Gen. Stores, 289 N.C. 212, 221 S.E.2d 257 (1976); Youngblood v. North State Ford Truck Sales, 321 N.C. 380, 364 S.E.2d 433, rehearing denied, Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963).

Because the act only applies where the employer-employee relationship exists, the question of whether it existed at the time of the accident is jurisdictional. Carter v. Frank Shelton, Inc., 62 N.C. App. 378, 303 S.E.2d 184 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 476, 312 S.E.2d 883 (1984).

And Is Thus the Initial Fact to Be Established. — Before the provisions of the act are called into play, the relation of master and servant, or employer and employee, or some appointment, must exist; this is the initial fact to be established. Hicks v. Guilford County, 267 N.C. 364, 148 S.E.2d 240 (1966).

Whether an injured person is an employee of the defendant is a matter of proof which may properly be determined in the Supreme Court. Charnock v. Reusing Light & Refrigerating Co., 202 N.C. 105, 161 S.E. 707 (1931).

Inquiry Is Mixed Question of Law and Fact. — The inquiry whether employer-employee relationship exists is a mixed question of fact and law. Askew v. Leonard Tire Co., 264 N.C. 168, 141 S.E.2d 280 (1965).

Its correct determination depends upon the answer to two questions: (1) What are the terms of the agreement, that is, what was the contract between the parties; and (2) what relationship between the parties was created by the contract, that is, was it that of master and servant or that of employer and independent contractor? The first involves a question of fact and the second is a question of law. Askew v. Leonard Tire Co., 264 N.C. 168, 141 S.E.2d 280 (1965).

Common-Law Tests Applicable. — The statutory definition of "employee" adds nothing to the common-law meaning of the term. Whether an employer-employee relationship existed at the time of the injury by accident is to be determined by the application of the ordinary common-law tests. Lucas v. Li'l Gen. Stores, 289 N.C. 212, 221 S.E.2d 257 (1976); Carter v. Frank Shelton, Inc., 62 N.C. App. 378, 303 S.E.2d 184 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 476, 312 S.E.2d 883 (1984).

Wages or Salary. — An employee is one who works for another for wages or salary, and the right to demand pay for his services from his employer would seem to be essential to his right to receive compensation under the act. Lucas v. Li'l Gen. Stores, 289 N.C. 212, 221 S.E.2d 257 (1976).

Compulsion of Legal Process. — One may be an employee, within the meaning of the Workers' Compensation Act, even if his employment is involuntary and under the compulsion of legal process. Hicks v. Guilford County, 267 N.C. 364, 148 S.E.2d 240 (1966).

Excluded Employees. — This Chapter excludes persons whose employment is casual and not in the course of the trade, business, profession or occupation of the employer, and specifically excepts from its provisions casual employees, farm laborers and domestic servants. Burnett v. Palmer-Lipe Paint Co., 216 N.C. 204, 4 S.E.2d 507 (1939).

Aliens. — This section makes clear that the General Assembly sought to include individuals like the plaintiff, who worked without the right of citizenship or a green card, under the protections of the Workers' Compensation Act. Rivera v. Trapp, 135 N.C. App. 296, 519 S.E.2d 777 (1999).

Employees Eligible to Retire. — A claimant's entitlement to a workers' compensation disability award is unrelated to either the claimant's eligibility to retire or his decision to retire. Troutman v. White & Simpson, Inc., 121 N.C. App. 48, 464 S.E.2d 481 (1995).

Full-Time Employment. — Employees who are employed in distributive education programs may not be fairly and justly classified as full-time for purposes of the Workers' Compensation Act. Mabry v. Bowers Implement Co., 48 N.C. App. 139, 269 S.E.2d 165 (1980).

Joint employment occurs when a single employee under contract with two employers, and under the simultaneous control of both, simultaneously performs services for both employers, and when the service for each employer is the same as, or is closely related to, that for the other. In such a case, both employers are liable for workers' compensation. Henderson v. Manpower of Guilford County, Inc., 70 N.C. App. 408, 319 S.E.2d 690 (1984); Anderson v. Texas Gulf, Inc., 83 N.C. App. 634, 351 S.E.2d 109 (1986).

Under some circumstances a person can be an employee of two different employers at the same time, in which event either employer or both may be liable for worker's compensation. Henderson v. Manpower of Guilford County, Inc., 70 N.C. App. 408, 319 S.E.2d 690 (1984).

Even if there is a mutual business interest between the two employers, and perhaps even some element of control, joint employment as to one employer cannot be found in the absence of a contract with that employer. Anderson v. Texas Gulf, Inc., 83 N.C. App. 634, 351 S.E.2d 109 (1986).

Stipulation as to Employment Relation- ship. — Stipulation of defendants, prior to hearing, that at the time of injury, the employment relationship existed between plaintiff and defendant employer, was binding on defendants; such a stipulation made it unnecessary for plaintiff to offer evidence of the validity or legal status of his corporate employer at the time of plaintiff's injury. Sorrell v. Sorrell's Farms & Ranches, Inc., 78 N.C. App. 415, 337 S.E.2d 595 (1985).

Because worker and owner of company were considered co-employees, owner was not individually liable to worker under the Workers' Compensation Act for injuries sustained by worker; thus worker's claims against owner were not excluded from insurer's policy coverage under general liability exclusion for workers' compensation benefits. Newton v. United States Fire Ins. Co., 98 N.C. App. 619, 391 S.E.2d 837 (1990).

Employment Shown. — Where deceased was employed and paid by defendant's driver to assist him in delivering bottled drinks, but the defendant knew of, and consented to, the arrangement between deceased and the driver, the evidence was sufficient to support a finding that deceased was an employee of defendant. Michaux v. Gate City Orange Crush Bottling Co., 205 N.C. 786, 172 S.E. 406 (1934).

Evidence was sufficient to support a finding of the Commission that deceased, the driver of a tractor-tank, was an employee of defendant oil company, a partnership, and not of a separate transportation business operated by one of the partners. Moses v. Bartholomew, 238 N.C. 714, 78 S.E.2d 923 (1953).

Where the owner of a truck drives same on a trip in interstate commerce for an interstate carrier under a trip-lease agreement providing that the carrier's I.C.C. license plates should be used and the carrier retain control and direction over the truck, an assistant driver employed by the owner-lessor is an employee of the carrier within the coverage of the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act. Further, if the owner-lessor were considered an independent contractor, but he had less than five employees and no compensation insurance coverage, the carrier would still be liable under § 97-19. McGill v. Bison Fast Freight, Inc., 245 N.C. 469, 96 S.E.2d 438 (1957).

Under the circumstances, the act of an employee in reporting to the union office in this State, accepting a referral slip, and starting upon the trip to the job constituted acceptance of an offer of employment, so that the contract of employment was made and completed in this State. Warren v. Dixon & Christopher Co., 252 N.C. 534, 114 S.E.2d 250 (1960).

Plaintiff, who sought damages for injuries intentionally inflicted by her supervisor immediately after she had orally tendered her resignation, was still an employee as a matter of law at the time of the alleged incident. Daniels v. Swofford, 55 N.C. App. 555, 286 S.E.2d 582 (1982).

Eight-year-old child who did odd jobs as needed in defendant's service station/convenience store business, including stocking cigarettes and drinks and picking up trash, was defendant's employee at the time of accident. Lemmerman v. A.T. Williams Oil Co., 318 N.C. 577, 350 S.E.2d 83, rehearing denied, 318 N.C. 704, 351 S.E.2d 736 (1986).

Evidence that for a number of years, when he was able, and when his son, who ran a roofing business, needed him, decedent provided valuable roofing skills and services for his son, that in exchange for these services, which furthered his business, his son would provide decedent with three to four hundred dollars worth of necessities per month, and that without decedent's skills and services his son would not have been able to afford to provide the three to four hundred dollars worth of necessities per month, even though apart from their business relationship, he may have wanted to help out his father, showed that there existed an implied oral contract of hire between employer-son and employee-father. Dockery v. McMillan, 85 N.C. App. 469, 355 S.E.2d 153, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 167, 358 S.E.2d 49 (1987).

Employment Not Shown. — Where an individual requested the State Game Commission to appoint the plaintiff as a deputy game warden, and after the papers had been mailed out but before they were accepted by plaintiff, he went with said individual to assist in breaking bear traps and was injured while employed in this work, the court would affirm the Commission's holding that there was no employment until after the appointment had been accepted. Birchfield v. Department of Conservation & Dev., 204 N.C. 217, 167 S.E. 855 (1933).

The liability of one to pay, and the right of another to receive, compensation depends upon some appointment or the existence of the relation of employer and employee and is to be determined by the rules governing the establishment of contracts, and no such relation existed between defendant department and game warden who was injured as a result of testifying in a criminal prosecution. Hollowell v. North Carolina Dep't of Conservation & Dev., 206 N.C. 206, 173 S.E. 603 (1934).

Decedent was not an employee within the meaning of subdivision (2) of this section where he had previously been dismissed from defendant's employment but continued to assist his wife when she succeeded him as acting manager of the store, in view of the fact that defendant's agent had no authority to allow decedent to continue working at the store and both decedent and his wife knew that defendant's agent was acting in excess of his authority in permitting decedent to continue working in the store. Lucas v. Li'l Gen. Stores, 289 N.C. 212, 221 S.E.2d 257 (1976).

Conclusions About Employer Without Findings Remanded. — Where the Deputy Commissioner concluded, without any findings, that individual was employee's employer and not company, case was remanded for findings on the question whether individual was in fact the alter ego of company, and thus was properly named as the liable employer in the action. Harrelson v. Soles, 94 N.C. App. 557, 380 S.E.2d 528 (1989).

Volunteer Fireman to Be Treated as Employees. — Because the Workers' Compensation Act provides the specific calculation for the average weekly wage to be received by volunteer fireman in subsection (5), it is implicit that volunteer firemen are to be treated as employees under the Act. Hix v. Jenkins, 118 N.C. App. 103, 453 S.E.2d 551 (1995).

B. State and Municipal Employees.

A municipal corporation is subject to the Workers' Compensation Act, even though it employs less than the minimum number of employees under this section, the legislative intent to classify municipal corporations with the State and its political subdivisions being consonant with reason and being indicated by § 97-13, which does not include municipal corporations employing less than the minimum number of employees in listing employers exempt from the act, and § 97-7, which provides that neither the State nor any municipal corporation nor any subdivision of the State nor employees of the same shall have the right to reject the provisions of the act, and it being required that these sections be construed in pari materia to determine the legislative intent. Rape v. Town of Huntersville, 214 N.C. 505, 199 S.E. 736 (1938).

An employee of the State engaged in the cultivation of food crops on lands of the State used by the State Hospital is an employee of the State within the coverage of this section and § 97-13, and his death from an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment is compensable. Barbour v. State Hosp., 213 N.C. 515, 196 S.E. 812 (1938).

CETA Employee. — Where a CETA employee would not otherwise be protected by workers' compensation insurance for a work-related injury, the state governmental unit which hired him and paid the required premiums would be estopped to deny liability therefor, as would its insurance carrier which accepted payment of those premiums. Godley v. County of Pitt, 306 N.C. 357, 293 S.E.2d 167 (1982).

Participant in the federally funded Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) qualified as an "employee" under this section.

Sutton v. Ward, 92 N.C. App. 215, 374 S.E.2d 277 (1988).

A worker employed by a city under a contract stipulating the wages to be received by the worker is an employee of the city within the meaning of this section, and the fact that the city obtains the money to pay the wages from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is immaterial on the question of the relationship between the worker and the city. Mayze v. Town of Forest City, 207 N.C. 168, 176 S.E. 270 (1934).

A juror, regularly summoned and serving, is not an employee of the county within the meaning of the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act. Hicks v. Guilford County, 267 N.C. 364, 148 S.E.2d 240 (1966).

Deputized Policeman Aiding in Arrest. — Evidence that claimant was injured while attempting to aid a policeman in serving a warrant for a breach of the peace, and that claimant had been duly deputized by the policeman to aid in making the arrest, was sufficient to support the finding of the Industrial Commission that at the time of injury claimant was an employee of defendant town under a valid appointment. Tomlinson v. Town of Norwood, 208 N.C. 716, 182 S.E. 659 (1935).

Policeman Pursuing Offender beyond Jurisdiction. — For cases decided under this section as it stood prior to the 1949 amendment adding the proviso at the end of the first paragraph of subdivision (2), see Wilson v. Town of Mooresville, 222 N.C. 283, 22 S.E.2d 907 (1942); Taylor v. Town of Wake Forest, 228 N.C. 346, 45 S.E.2d 387 (1947).

Deputy Sheriffs. — The 1939 amendment including deputy sheriffs within the meaning of the term "employee," as used in this section, is not violative of N.C. Const., Art. I, § 32 or Art. II, § 24. Towe v. Yancey County, 224 N.C. 579, 31 S.E.2d 754 (1944).

The provision of c. 277 of the Laws of 1939 that deputy sheriffs shall be deemed employees of the county for the purpose of determining the rights of the parties under the Workers' Compensation Act does not apply to accidents occurring prior to the enactment of the amendment. Clark v. Sheffield, 216 N.C. 375, 5 S.E.2d 133 (1939).

For cases dealing with deputies and decided under this section as it stood prior to the amendment, see Saunders v. Allen, 208 N.C. 189, 179 S.E. 754 (1935); Borders v. Cline, 212 N.C. 472, 193 S.E. 826 (1937); Gowens v. Alamance County, 216 N.C. 107, 3 S.E.2d 339 (1939); Clark v. Sheffield, 216 N.C. 375, 5 S.E.2d 133 (1939).

Police Officers. — Even if plaintiff's preexisting knee condition contributed to the injury, plaintiff's fall while pursuing a fleeing suspect at night was a risk attributable to his employment as a police officer for defendant and was compensable. Mills v. City of New Bern, 122 N.C. App. 283, 468 S.E.2d 587 (1996).

Teachers. — A person employed by a graded school district as teacher and director of athletics is an employee of a political subdivision of the State, and is entitled to the benefits of the compensation act under this section. Perdue v. State Bd. of Equalization, 205 N.C. 730, 172 S.E. 396 (1934).

A county board of education is the sole employer of one under contract to teach vocational agriculture in a county school, where such teacher's salary is paid in part from funds furnished as a gift to such board by the State and federal governments, and, as such sole employer, is liable, with its insurance carrier, under this Chapter for the death of such teacher from an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment. Callihan v. Board of Educ., 222 N.C. 381, 23 S.E.2d 297 (1942).

Prisoner. — A prisoner is not an employee as defined by this section. Lawson v. North Carolina State Hwy. & Pub. Works Comm'n, 248 N.C. 276, 103 S.E.2d 366 (1958). See § 97-13(c).

C. Regular Employment of Four (Now Three) or More.

Editor's Note. — Most of the annotations below were decided under this section prior to its amendment by Session Laws 1987, c. 729, s. 1, which decreased the regular employment requirement in subdivision (1) from four to three employees.

"Regularly Employed". — The term "regularly employed" connotes employment of the same number of persons throughout the period with some constancy. Patterson v. L.M. Parker & Co., 2 N.C. App. 43, 162 S.E.2d 571 (1968); Cousins v. Hood, 8 N.C. App. 309, 174 S.E.2d 297 (1970); Durham v. McLamb, 59 N.C. App. 165, 296 S.E.2d 3 (1982).

Subdivision (1) of this section does not define "regularly employed." Cousins v. Hood, 8 N.C. App. 309, 174 S.E.2d 297 (1970).

Having five (now three) or more employees is a jurisdictional prerequisite and must appear of record on appeal. Chadwick v. North Carolina Dep't of Conservation & Dev., 219 N.C. 766, 14 S.E.2d 842 (1941); Durham v. McLamb, 59 N.C. App. 165, 296 S.E.2d 3 (1982); Cain v. Guyton, 79 N.C. App. 696, 340 S.E.2d 501, aff'd, 318 N.C. 410, 348 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

If a person does not "regularly employ" five (now four) or more employees, he is not subject to and bound by the act. Cousins v. Hood, 8 N.C. App. 309, 174 S.E.2d 297 (1970).

Whether the employer had the required number of employees is a question of jurisdictional fact, and the reviewing court is required to review and consider the evidence on this matter and make an independent determination thereon. Durham v. McLamb, 59 N.C. App. 165, 296 S.E.2d 3 (1982).

Falling Below Minimum Requirement on Date of Injury. — If an employer has five (now four) or more "regularly employed" employees, the fact that he fell below the minimum requirement on the actual date of injury would not preclude coverage. Patterson v. L.M. Parker & Co., 2 N.C. App. 43, 162 S.E.2d 571 (1968).

Number of workers on the job site on the date of injury, standing alone, is not determinative of the issue. If the defendant had four or more "regularly employed" employees, the fact that he fell below the minimum requirement on the actual date of injury would not preclude coverage. Durham v. McLamb, 59 N.C. App. 165, 296 S.E.2d 3 (1982).

The plaintiff has the burden of proving that the employer regularly employed five (now three) or more employees. Cain v. Guyton, 79 N.C. App. 696, 340 S.E.2d 501, aff'd, 318 N.C. 410, 348 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

Evidence Held Sufficient to Show Minimum Number of Persons Regularly Employed. — Evidence tending to show that the employer regularly employed three persons in his general mercantile business and that for more than two months prior to the accident in suit he had employed two other persons at stated weekly wages to deliver fertilizers by truck in the operation of his mercantile business supported the finding of the Industrial Commission that the employer had five or more persons regularly employed in his business and that he was therefore subject to the Act. Hunter v. Peirson, 229 N.C. 356, 49 S.E.2d 653 (1948), decided prior to 1975 amendment.

Claimant's brother was a "regular employee" of defendant service station operator where he was employed eight days prior to the accident in question to keep one of defendant's stations open at night beyond regular hours to see if this would increase business at the station and had worked for two hours every evening during the eight days, notwithstanding the fact that he was also a full-time State employee; consequently, defendant employer, who also employed four full-time employees at his two service stations, "regularly employed" five persons and was subject to the act. Cousins v. Hood, 8 N.C. App. 309, 174 S.E.2d 297 (1970), decided prior to 1975 amendment.

Plaintiff's testimony, which was corroborated by defendant's records, held competent evidence that defendant regularly employed five (now three) or more employees during the period of plaintiff's employment with defendant and that the Commission thus had jurisdiction. Cain v. Guyton, 79 N.C. App. 696, 340 S.E.2d 501, aff'd, 318 N.C. 410, 348 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

Defendants were subject to the Industrial Commission's jurisdiction where there was evidence that defendants employed, with some constancy, at least four people for the year 1987, even though there were only three regularly employed workers on the day plaintiff was injured. Grouse v. DRB Baseball Mgt., Inc., 121 N.C. App. 376, 465 S.E.2d 568 (1996).

Evidence Insufficient. — Where the record contained no evidence that defendant "carrier" regularly employed three or more employees, no employer-employee relationship existed within the meaning of the Workers' Compensation Act. Williams v. ARL, Inc., 133 N.C. App. 625, 516 S.E.2d 187 (1999).

D. Casual Employment.

Casual Employment Defined. — Employment is casual when it is irregular, unpredictable, sporadic and brief in nature. Clark v. Waverly Mills, Inc., 12 N.C. App. 535, 183 S.E.2d 855 (1971).

When Casual Employee Is Not Entitled to Compensation. — For an employee to be excluded from benefits under the Workers' Compensation Act his employment must be casual, and in addition thereto, not in the course of the trade, business, profession or occupation of his employer. Clark v. Waverly Mills, Inc., 12 N.C. App. 535, 183 S.E.2d 855 (1971).

When Casual Employee Is Entitled to Compensation. — Section 97-13 of this Chapter, providing that the act shall not apply to casual employees, is not totally repugnant to this section, providing for compensation for an injury to an employee while "in the course of the trade, business," etc., and an employee is entitled to compensation even if the employment is casual if he is injured in the course of the trade, business, etc. Johnson v. Asheville Hosiery Co., 199 N.C. 38, 153 S.E. 591 (1930).

The restriction of this Act excluding injuries sustained in casual employment will not exclude an applicant under the provisions of the Act when he sustains injuries in the course of the general trade, business, etc., of the employer and material or expedient therein. Johnson v. Asheville Hosiery Co., 199 N.C. 38, 153 S.E. 591 (1930).

An accident is compensable if it happens in employment incident to the proper operation of a business even if the employment is casual. Boyd v. Mitchell, 48 N.C. App. 219, 268 S.E.2d 252 (1980).

Employment Held Casual. — A plaintiff's employment for a period of only two days to help prepare for an annual company picnic was strictly a chance employment for a brief period of time. It was not the sort of work that plaintiff could rely upon as a regular source of income.

There was no reasonable probability that she would be employed in future years to assist in preparing for the annual picnics. Thus, plaintiff's employment was "casual" within the meaning of subdivision (2) of this section. Clark v. Waverly Mills, Inc., 12 N.C. App. 535, 183 S.E.2d 855 (1971).

Employment Held Not Casual. — The painting of the interior of a machine room to give the employees therein a better light or for the protection of the permanent structure is not a casual employment and is one in the general course of business, and the act applies to an injury received by a worker engaged in such painting. Johnson v. Asheville Hosiery Co., 199 N.C. 38, 153 S.E. 591 (1930).

Plaintiff who had been employed full-time for three months prior to accident, and who also worked on Saturdays by choice and with the agreement of his employer, was not merely a casual employee. Murray v. Biggerstaff, 81 N.C. App. 377, 344 S.E.2d 550, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 696, 350 S.E.2d 858 (1986).

Employment continuously for five or six weeks in construction of facilities for defendant's plant may not be held to be either casual or not in the course of defendant's business. Smith v. Southern Waste Paper Co., 226 N.C. 47, 36 S.E.2d 730 (1946).

Where the evidence tended to show that the defendant operated a general mercantile business, which included the selling and delivery of commercial fertilizers, and that plaintiffs' intestates had been working for a period of more than two months at stated weekly wages in delivering the fertilizers by truck when they met with a fatal accident arising out of and in the course of their employment, it was held that decedents were not casual employees, and further, that the injury arose within the scope of the employer's regular business, and that therefore they were employees of defendant within the coverage of the Act. Hunter v. Peirson, 229 N.C. 356, 49 S.E.2d 653 (1948).

Eight-year-old child of part-time cashier who sustained an accidental injury on the premises of defendant's convenience store and service station, at which he stayed after school, and at which on some afternoons he did tasks about the place, such as carrying out the garbage, picking up trash and restocking the cigarette, candy and soft drink machines, for which he was paid a dollar or so, was at least a casual employee, whose employment was not excluded by the statute, since the work that he did was required in the operation of defendant's business. Fact that the child was too young to be lawfully employed was irrelevant. Lemmerman v. A.T. Williams Oil Co., 79 N.C. App. 642, 339 S.E.2d 820, aff'd, 318 N.C. 577, 350 S.E.2d 83 (1986).

E. Independent Contractors.

1. In General.

Act Inapplicable to Independent Contractor. — An independent contractor is not a person included within the terms of the Act, and the Industrial Commission has no jurisdiction to apply the Act to a person who is not subject to its provisions. Richards v. Nationwide Homes, 263 N.C. 295, 139 S.E.2d 645 (1965); Youngblood v. North State Ford Truck Sales, 321 N.C. 380, 364 S.E.2d 433; 322 N.C. 116, 367 S.E.2d 923 (1988), rehearing denied.

To establish that he was covered by the provisions of this Article, a worker had the burden of proving that he was either an employee of a subcontractor or the general contractor, rather than an independent subcontractor. Gordon v. West Constr. Co., 75 N.C. App. 608, 331 S.E.2d 259 (1985).

Meaning of Terms Not Changed. — Except as to public officers, the definition of "employee" contained in this section adds nothing to the common-law meaning of the term. Nor does it encroach upon or limit the common-law meaning of "independent contractor." These terms must be given their natural and ordinary meaning in their accepted legal sense. Hayes v. Board of Trustees, 224 N.C. 11, 29 S.E.2d 137 (1944). See also Hicks v. Guilford County, 267 N.C. 364, 148 S.E.2d 240 (1966).

Common-Law Tests Applicable. — The question whether one employed to perform specified work for another is to be regarded as an independent contractor or as an employee within the operation of the Act is determined by the application of the ordinary common-law tests. Hicks v. Guilford County, 267 N.C. 364, 148 S.E.2d 240 (1966); Youngblood v. North State Ford Truck Sales, 321 N.C. 380, 364 S.E.2d 433, rehearing denied, 322 N.C. 116, 367 S.E.2d 923 (1988).

Whether a person is an independent contractor or an employee within the meaning of the Act is to be determined in accordance with the common law. Scott v. Waccamaw Lumber Co., 232 N.C. 162, 59 S.E.2d 425 (1950).

In the absence of pertinent statutory definitions, whether a person is an independent contractor, or a subcontractor who is an independent contractor, or an employee within the meaning of the act is to be determined by the application of the ordinary common-law tests. Richards v. Nationwide Homes, 263 N.C. 295, 139 S.E.2d 645 (1965).

In determining whether a relationship is one of employer-independent contractor or master and servant, North Carolina applies the common law right of control test. Pinckney v. United States, 671 F. Supp. 405 (E.D.N.C. 1987).

For discussion of the test for determin- ing whether a worker is an employee or an independent contractor, see Denton v. South Mt. Pulpwood Co., 69 N.C. App. 366, 317 S.E.2d 433, cert. denied, 311 N.C. 753, 321 S.E.2d 131 (1984).

Who Is an Independent Contractor. — Generally an independent contractor is one who exercises independent employment and contracts to do a piece of work according to his own judgment and method, without being subject to his employer except as to the results of his work. Smith v. Southern Waste Paper Co., 226 N.C. 47, 36 S.E.2d 730 (1946); McCraw v. Calvine Mills, Inc., 233 N.C. 524, 64 S.E.2d 658 (1951); Millard v. Hoffman, Butler & Assocs., 29 N.C. App. 327, 224 S.E.2d 237, cert. denied, 290 N.C. 551, 226 S.E.2d 510 (1976); Youngblood v. North State Ford Truck Sales, 321 N.C. 380, 364 S.E.2d 433, rehearing denied, 322 N.C. 116, 367 S.E.2d 923 (1988).

When one undertakes to do a specific job under contract and the manner of doing it, including the employment, payment and control of the persons working with or under him, is left entirely to him, he will be regarded as an independent contractor, unless the person for whom the work is being done has retained the right to exercise control in respect to the manner in which the work is to be executed. McCraw v. Calvine Mills, Inc., 233 N.C. 524, 64 S.E.2d 658 (1951); Millard v. Hoffman, Butler & Assocs., 29 N.C. App. 327, 224 S.E.2d 237, cert. denied, 290 N.C. 551, 226 S.E.2d 510 (1976).

An independent contractor has been defined as one who exercises an independent employment, contracts to do a piece of work according to his own judgment and methods, and without being subject to his employer, except as to the result of the work, and who has the right to employ and direct the action of other workers in the prosecution of the work without interference or right of control on the part of his employer. Askew v. Leonard Tire Co., 264 N.C. 168, 141 S.E.2d 280 (1965).

Generally speaking, an independent contractor is one who undertakes to produce a given result, where in the actual execution of the work he is not under the orders or control of the person for whom he does it, and where he may use his own discretion in matters and things not specified. One who represents another only as to the results of a piece of work, and not as to the means of accomplishing it, is an independent contractor and not a servant or employee. Bryson v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 204 N.C. 664, 169 S.E. 276 (1933); Richards v. Nationwide Homes, 263 N.C. 295, 139 S.E.2d 645 (1965).

Elements of Relationship of Employer and Independent Contractor. — The elements which earmark the relationship of employer and independent contractor, are generally as follows: The person employed (a) is engaged in an independent business, calling, or occupation; (b) is to have the independent use of his skill, knowledge, or training in the execution of the work; (c) is doing a specific piece of work at a fixed price, or for a lump sum or upon a quantitative basis; (d) is not subject to discharge because he adopts one method of doing the work rather than another; (e) is not in the regular employ of the other contracting party; (f) is free to use such assistants as he thinks proper; (g) has full control over such assistants; and (h) selects his own time. The presence of no one of these indicia is controlling, nor is the presence of all required. Hayes v. Board of Trustees, 224 N.C. 11, 29 S.E.2d 137 (1944); Morse v. Curtis, 276 N.C. 371, 172 S.E.2d 495 (1970); Pinckney v. United States, 671 F. Supp. 405 (E.D.N.C. 1987).

There are many elements to be considered in determining whether a person in the execution of work for another is an employee or independent contractor, and no particular element is controlling. Askew v. Leonard Tire Co., 264 N.C. 168, 141 S.E.2d 280 (1965).

Right to Control Is Crucial. — The test is whether the party for whom the work is being done has the right to control the worker with respect to the manner or method of doing the work, as distinguished from the right merely to require certain definite results conforming to the contract. If the employer has the right of control, it is immaterial whether he actually exercises it. Scott v. Waccamaw Lumber Co., 232 N.C. 162, 59 S.E.2d 425 (1950); McCraw v. Calvine Mills, Inc., 233 N.C. 524, 64 S.E.2d 658 (1951); Hicks v. Guilford County, 267 N.C. 364, 148 S.E.2d 240 (1966); Morse v. Curtis, 276 N.C. 371, 172 S.E.2d 495 (1970). See also Hinkle v. City of Lexington, 239 N.C. 105, 79 S.E.2d 220 (1953); Millard v. Hoffman, Butler & Assocs., 29 N.C. App. 327, 224 S.E.2d 237, cert. denied, 290 N.C. 551, 226 S.E.2d 510 (1976).

The test for determining whether a relationship between parties is that of employer and employee, or that of employer and independent contractor, is whether the party for whom the work is being done has the right to control the worker with respect to the manner or method of doing work, as distinguished from the right merely to require certain definite results conforming to the contract. Alford v. Victory Cab Co., 30 N.C. App. 657, 228 S.E.2d 43 (1976).

The right of an employer to supervise and control the activities of one working under him determines to a great extent whether that one is an employee. Hunter v. Hunter Auto Co., 204 N.C. 723, 169 S.E. 648 (1933).

The dominant factor in determining whether a hired hand is an employee or an independent contractor is the employer's authority to control how the person hired accomplishes the task to be done, and if that right to control exists, it makes no difference that it is not exercised. Youngblood v. North State Ford Truck Sales, 87

N.C. App. 35, 359 S.E.2d 256 (1987), aff'd, 321 N.C. 380, 364 S.E.2d 433 (1988).

As to the distinction between an independent contractor and an employee entitled to benefits, see also Cooper v. Colonial Ice Co., 230 N.C. 43, 51 S.E.2d 889 (1949), citing Johnson v. Asheville Hosiery Co., 199 N.C. 38, 153 S.E. 591 (1930); Creswell v. Charlotte News Publishing Co., 204 N.C. 380, 168 S.E. 408 (1933); Beach v. McLean, 219 N.C. 521, 14 S.E.2d 515 (1941); Hayes v. Board of Trustees, 224 N.C. 11, 29 S.E.2d 137 (1944); Smith v. Southern Waste Paper Co., 226 N.C. 47, 36 S.E.2d 730 (1946); Creighton v. Snipes, 227 N.C. 90, 40 S.E.2d 612 (1946); Bell v. Williamston Lumber Co., 227 N.C. 173, 41 S.E.2d 281 (1947); Perley v. Ballenger Paving Co., 228 N.C. 479, 46 S.E.2d 298 (1948); Youngblood v. North State Ford Truck Sales, 321 N.C. 380, 364 S.E.2d 433, rehearing denied, 322 N.C. 116, 367 S.E.2d 923 (1988).

Question of Law. — On undisputed facts the question whether one is an independent contractor or an employee is one of law reviewable by the court. Beach v. McLean, 219 N.C. 521, 14 S.E.2d 515 (1941).

Whether the facts found by the Commission are supported by competent evidence and whether the facts found by the Commission support the legal conclusion that the injured party was an employee are reviewable by the court as questions of law. Pearson v. Peerless Flooring Co., 247 N.C. 434, 101 S.E.2d 301 (1958).

2. Individuals Held to Be Independent Contractors.

Newsboy. — A newsboy engaged in selling papers is held not to be an employee of the newspaper within the meaning of that term as used in this section, the newsboy not being on the newspaper's payroll and being without authority to solicit subscriptions and being free to select his own methods of effecting sales, although some degree of supervision was exercised by the newspaper. Creswell v. Charlotte News Publishing Co., 204 N.C. 380, 168 S.E. 408 (1933).

Hauler of Lumber. — Deceased was an independent contractor where he hauled logs for defendant at a specified rate per thousand, employed his own helpers, and worked in his own way without any direction from defendant. Bryson v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 204 N.C. 664, 169 S.E. 276 (1933).

Electrician Rebuilding Line in "Off" Hours. — Where defendant contracted with plaintiff and two other electricians to rebuild in their "off" hours a part of its electric line for a lump sum of $30.00, the defendant having the holes dug and furnishing the poles, a truck, other tools, and two helpers and requiring that certain trees be not trimmed but disclaiming any knowledge of the work and leaving it up to the electricians, and plaintiff was killed by a live wire while so engaged, and thereafter the remaining electricians secured other help and completed the job, the relationship thus created was that of independent contractor. Hayes v. Board of Trustees, 224 N.C. 11, 29 S.E.2d 137 (1944).

Scallop Shucker. — Where, among other things, plaintiff went to work for defendant employer only when she heard work was available, she received no training or instruction from defendant as to how to shuck scallops, she used her own equipment, she was paid per pound of scallops shucked, she was under minimum supervision and set her own work hours, plaintiff was an independent contractor and not an employee for the purposes of this act. Spencer v. Johnson & Johnson, Seafood, Inc., 99 N.C. App. 510, 393 S.E.2d 291 (1990).

Hauler of Sand, Gravel and Concrete. — The evidence tended to show that deceased was a licensed contract hauler, and was engaged to haul sand, gravel and concrete from defendant's bins to defendant's concrete mixer along a route selected by defendant, but that defendant had no control over the number of hours deceased worked or whether deceased drove his own truck or employed a driver, and that deceased paid for his own gas and oil and made his own repairs to his truck. Deceased was paid a stipulated sum per load and was also paid the hourly wage of truck driver employed by defendant for time lost waiting in line when the concrete mixer broke down. Deceased was killed when struck by a train at a grade crossing while hauling for defendant on the route selected. It was held that, upon the evidence, deceased was an independent contractor and not an employee within the meaning of this section, and the judgment of the superior court affirming the award of compensation by the Industrial Commission, was reversed. Perley v. Ballenger Paving Co., 228 N.C. 479, 46 S.E.2d 298 (1948).

Carpet Installer. — A carpet installer who was basically free to set his own hours and determine which days of the week he worked, who was paid on a per-yard basis through a check voucher system which defendant employer used to pay independent contractors and bills of local vendors, who filed self-employment tax with his income tax return, who had considerable leeway in the manner in which he did his job, and whose occupation required special skill and training, was an independent contractor under the Workers' Compensation Act. Ramey v. Sherwin-Williams Co., 92 N.C. App. 341, 374 S.E.2d 472 (1988).

3. Individuals Held Not to Be Independent Contractors.

Operator of Service Station. — Deceased operated a service station for defendant on a commission basis, being required to keep the place open at certain hours, being told to whom to give credit, and being under the control of the president of the defendant company. The commission's conclusion that deceased was an employee was sustained. Russell v. Western Oil Co., 206 N.C. 341, 174 S.E. 101 (1934).

Salesman. — Deceased, at the time of his fatal injury, was engaged in selling the products of defendant. Letters to him from defendant's home office were introduced in evidence, which letters contained instructions for the collection of an account which, as an exception, had been charged directly to the purchaser by defendant, as was a letter stating that defendant would fill his orders C.O.D. without deducting commissions, and at the end of the week would then figure his commissions and send him a check therefor plus any difference "to make up the $25.00 salary," and also stating that a certain sum was due for social security and asking for his social security number. It was held that the evidence, with other evidence in the case, was sufficient to support the finding of the Industrial Commission that the deceased was an employee of the defendant, and not a jobber or independent contractor. Cloninger v. Ambrosia Cake Bakery Co., 218 N.C. 26, 9 S.E.2d 615 (1940).

Salesman Conducting Training in Use of Equipment. — Although plaintiff possessed specialized skill in the use of equipment which he sold and was training others to use when he was injured, as defendant retained the right to control the details of plaintiff's work by paying him on a time basis, providing all materials and assistance which he needed, setting his hours of work, and retaining the right to discharge him at any time, an employment relationship therefore existed between plaintiff and defendant at the time of plaintiff's injury. Youngblood v. North State Ford Truck Sales, 321 N.C. 380, 364 S.E.2d 433, rehearing denied, 322 N.C. 116, 367 S.E.2d 923 (1988).

Machinist Constructing Conveyor under Contract. — Where evidence tended to show that deceased, a machinist, contracted to construct a conveyor from materials furnished by defendant and in accordance with his rough sketch, hourly wages being the basis of his pay, and the parties appeared to have treated the contract as one of employment, such evidence was sufficient to sustain the finding of the Commission that deceased was an employee and not an independent contractor. Smith v. Southern Waste Paper Co., 226 N.C. 47, 36 S.E.2d 730 (1946).

Deliveryman for Ice Company. — Deceased employee was a deliveryman for defendant ice company. Defendant furnished a horse and wagon and all necessary equipment. Each morning in season, deceased obtained a load of ice for which he was charged. It was sold at defendant's regular retail price, and deceased was credited with the amount unsold at the end of the day. These facts were held sufficient to establish an employer-employee relation upon which the award of compensation was based. Cooper v. Colonial Ice Co., 230 N.C. 43, 51 S.E.2d 889 (1949), distinguishing Creswell v. Charlotte News Publishing Co., 204 N.C. 380, 168 S.E. 408 (1933).

Director of Sawmill Operations. — Evidence tending to show that defendant lumber company operated a sawmill as a part of its general business, that it owned the sawmill, controlled the premises where the work was performed, determined the amount of work to be done, and gave directions on occasion as to the dimensions of the lumber to be sawed, and that the person directing the sawmill operations worked exclusively for the lumber company, which had the power to discharge him at any time with or without cause, was held sufficient to support a finding that the director of the sawmill operations was a supervisory employee and not an independent contractor. Scott v. Waccamaw Lumber Co., 232 N.C. 162, 59 S.E.2d 425 (1950).

Mechanic Supervising Installation Under Contract. — Where findings included the fact that the seller of materials for construction of dry kilns recommended upon purchaser's request an expert mechanic to supervise their installation under contractual agreement that such mechanic should be considered an employee of the purchaser, and that the mechanic was merely supervising installation of the kilns because the purchaser had no foreman with sufficient experience and skill to supervise the installation in accordance with the plans and specifications furnished by the seller, such findings supported the legal conclusion that the mechanic was an employee of the purchaser rather than an independent contractor. Pearson v. Peerless Flooring Co., 247 N.C. 434, 101 S.E.2d 301 (1958).

Painter. — Plaintiff in painting defendant's mill was not an independent contractor where it appeared that defendant directed plaintiff's work, hired his helpers and purchased his supplies. Johnson v. Asheville Hosiery Co., 199 N.C. 38, 153 S.E. 591 (1930).

Where plaintiff was a painter of long experience, who had consistently worked for others for fixed hourly wages, and did not hold himself out as a painting contractor, and during his long experience had only once done a painting job for a lump sum, and it was inferred that he was employed by defendant employer because of the quality of his individual work, that he was not to employ or delegate the work to others, and that he was to be paid an hourly wage for such time as he worked, it was held that he was an employee rather than an independent contractor. Askew v. Leonard Tire Co., 264 N.C. 168, 141 S.E.2d 280 (1965).

Tractor Trailer Driver. — An employment relationship existed between plaintiff/driver and defendant/truck company where defendant deducted taxes, health insurance and social security costs from driver's checks, where "Contract Driver Handbook" set out provisions exercising control of plaintiff's time and manner of performance, and where trucks were owned, insured and maintained by defendant. Barber v. Going West Transp., Inc., 134 N.C. App. 428, 517 S.E.2d 914 (1999).

The lessor-driver, under a trip-lease agreement with an interstate commerce carrier, is deemed to be an employee of the carrier, for workers' compensation purposes, while operating the equipment under the carrier's Interstate Commerce Commission authority. Smith v. Central Transp., 51 N.C. App. 316, 276 S.E.2d 751 (1981).

F. Employees of Independent Contractors and Subcontractors.

Employee of Independent Contractor Cannot Recover against Principal. — Compensation is recoverable only against the employer of the injured worker, and therefore if the worker is an employee of an independent contractor, the employer of the independent contractor cannot be held liable for compensation. Scott v. Waccamaw Lumber Co., 232 N.C. 162, 59 S.E.2d 425 (1950). But see § 97-19.

Subdivision (1) of this Section Modified by § 97-19. — As a general proposition the only private employments covered by the Workers' Compensation Act are those "in which five (now four) or more employees are regularly employed in the same business or establishment." But this general rule is subject to the exception created by § 97-19, which was manifestly enacted to protect the employees of financially irresponsible subcontractors who do not carry workers' compensation insurance, and to prevent principal contractors, immediate contractors, and subcontractors from relieving themselves of liability under the act by doing through subcontractors what they would otherwise do through the agency of direct employees. Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949).

The North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act provides compensation to an injured plaintiff only if he is an "employee" of an insured employer, in fact and in law, at the time of the injury. An exception to the general rule is that the Act creates liability for a general contractor under § 97-19. Carroll v. Daniels & Daniels Constr. Co., 327 N.C. 616, 398 S.E.2d 325 (1990).

Secondary Liability of Contractor to Employees of Subcontractor. — Where a contractor sublets a part of the contract to a subcontractor without requiring from the subcontractor a certificate that he has procured compensation insurance or has satisfied the Industrial Commission of his financial responsibility as a self-insurer under § 97-93, such contractor is properly held secondarily liable for compensation to an employee of the subcontractor, even though the contractor regularly employs less than five employees. Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949).

For cases in which claimants were held employees of independent contractors, see Beach v. McLean, 219 N.C. 521, 14 S.E.2d 515 (1941); McCraw v. Calvine Mills, Inc., 233 N.C. 524, 64 S.E.2d 658 (1951).

Agreement Changing Status of Independent Contractor to Foreman. — Defendant partners, general contractors, had sublet electrical work to one Elkins who had less than five employees, one of whom was plaintiff claimant. Elkins, having figured too low, persuaded defendants to let him go ahead under a new agreement whereby defendants were to pay for the materials and labor. There was evidence that one of the defendants was on the job "practically all the time" and that he gave instructions as to changing the location of some fixtures but not otherwise. It was held, three judges dissenting, that there was sufficient evidence to sustain the finding that Elkins became a mere foreman on this job and that plaintiff was defendants' employee. Graham v. Wall, 220 N.C. 84, 16 S.E.2d 691 (1941).

Estoppel of Carrier to Deny Employment Relationship. — Where a contractor and subcontractor had agreed that members of the subcontractor's work crew would be considered as "employees" of the contractor while working on a highway construction project, and the contractor was reimbursed by the subcontractor for wages it paid to the crew and for workers' compensation insurance premiums it paid on those wages upon the Industrial Commission's finding that a member of the subcontractor's work crew killed while working on the highway project, was in fact an employee of the subcontractor, the contractor's workers' compensation insurance carrier was estopped to deny that it was liable for a portion of the workers' compensation benefits due because of the employee's death if it accepted premiums for workers' compensation insurance on the deceased employee. Britt v. Colony Constr. Co., 35 N.C. App. 23, 240 S.E.2d 479 (1978).

Remand for Further Findings. — Where men working on lumbering jobs were injured it was contended that they were not in the employ of defendant but of independent subcontractors with whom the defendant had written agreements. The Commission found that the purported subcontractors were on the defendant's payroll (one as a superintendent) and that the injured men ate at a camp bearing defendant's name and received their pay by check direct from defendant; accordingly that the men were employees of, and entitled to compensation from, defendants. The Supreme Court remanded the cause for more specific findings of fact as to the making and performance of the alleged contract with "subcontractors" and as to the relationship of the parties, and for a separate finding of law as to who was the employer of claimants. Farmer v. Bemis Lumber Co., 217 N.C. 158, 7 S.E.2d 376 (1940); Cook v. Bemis Lumber Co., 217 N.C. 161, 7 S.E.2d 378 (1940).

While the evidence in a workers' compensation proceeding would have supported the Industrial Commission's conclusion that defendant insurer was estopped to deny that a pulpwood cutter was acting as an employee of the two defendant woodyards at the time of his death by accident while cutting pulpwood, the Commission's findings of fact were insufficient to support such conclusion, and the proceeding was therefore remanded for further findings of fact and conclusions of law based on the record. Allred v. Piedmont Woodyards, Inc., 32 N.C. App. 516, 232 S.E.2d 879 (1977).

G. Employees Lent by Employer.

Test of Employment. — Because of the statutory requirement that the employment be under an "appointment or contract of hire," the first question which must be answered in determining whether a lent employee has entered into an employment relationship with a special employer for purposes of this Act is: Did he make a contract of hire with the special employer? If this question cannot be answered "yes," the investigation is closed, and this must necessarily be so, since the employee loses certain rights along with those he gains when he strikes up a new employment relation. Collins v. James Paul Edwards, Inc., 21 N.C. App. 455, 204 S.E.2d 873, cert. denied, 285 N.C. 589, 206 S.E.2d 862 (1974).

The test for determining the liability of special employers in loaned employee cases is stated as follows: When a general employer lends an employee to a special employer, the special employer becomes liable for workers' compensation only if (a) the employee has made a contract of hire, express or implied, with the special employer; (b) the work being done is essentially that of the special employer; and (c) the special employer has a right to control the details of the work. When all three of the above conditions are satisfied in relation to both employers, both employers are liable for workers' compensation. Henderson v. Manpower of Guilford County, Inc., 70 N.C. App. 408, 319 S.E.2d 690 (1984); Anderson v. Texas Gulf, Inc., 83 N.C. App. 634, 351 S.E.2d 109 (1986).

The three-prong "special employer" test as set out in Collins v. Edwards, 21 N.C. App. 455, 204 S.E.2d 873 (1974), is used to determine whether an employee may be deemed to have joint employers for purposes of the Worker's Compensation Act. Anderson v. Demolition Dynamics, Inc., 136 N.C. App. 603, 525 S.E.2d 471 (2000).

Presumption Regarding Continuance of General Employment. — In lent employee cases, the only presumption is the continuance of the general employment, which is taken for granted as the beginning point of any lent-employee problem. To overcome this presumption, it is not unreasonable to insist upon a clear demonstration that a new temporary employer has been substituted for the old. Failing this, the general employer should remain liable. Anderson v. Texas Gulf, Inc., 83 N.C. App. 634, 351 S.E.2d 109 (1986).

Consent to New Employment Relationship Not Shown. — Where there was no evidence nor any contention that a truck driver employed by a firm and a special contractor using the firm's trucks ever expressly consented to enter into any employment relationship with each other, and certainly there was no express "appointment or contract of hire" entered into between them, the facts did not show such acceptance by the driver of control and direction by the contractor's employees over his activities as a truck driver for the original employer as to warrant the conclusion that he impliedly consented to enter into a new and special employment relationship with the contractor. Collins v. James Paul Edwards, Inc., 21 N.C. App. 455, 204 S.E.2d 873, cert. denied, 285 N.C. 589, 206 S.E.2d 862 (1974).

"Contract for Employment" Prong of the Special Employer Test. — Although decedent, after being contacted by the second company, sought permission from the owner of the first company to work at the site of the second company and allegedly "accepted that assignment" by coming to the site, these actions standing alone did not conclusively satisfy the "contract for employment" prong of the special employer test necessary for proving an employer-employee relationship. Anderson v. Demolition Dynamics, Inc., 136 N.C. App. 603, 525 S.E.2d 471 (2000).

Lessee of Truck Held Liable for Compensation for Death of Driver. — Decedent was employed by X to drive a truck owned by X, but leased to other haulers and under their control. While in the course of hauling goods for one of the lessees, decedent met his death. The lease contract had provided that X provide compensation insurance. The court, in holding the lessee liable, found that such a contract could not be binding upon the employee as he was not a party to it. Whether the lessee could recover from X the amount the lessee was required to pay was not answered by the court. Roth v. McCord, 232 N.C. 678, 62 S.E.2d 64 (1950).

H. Apprentices.

CETA Employee. — Participant in the federally funded Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) qualified as an "apprentice" under this section. Sutton v. Ward, 92 N.C. App. 215, 374 S.E.2d 277 (1988).

As a matter of law, the participants in a laboratory assistantship program were acting as "apprentices" undergoing on-the-job training and hence would be considered employees subject to the provisions of workers' compensation. Wright v. Wilson Mem. Hosp., 30 N.C. App. 91, 226 S.E.2d 225, cert. denied, 290 N.C. 668, 228 S.E.2d 459 (1976).

While plaintiff may have been a student at a technical institute, when he entered the hospital to perform respiratory therapy, his status changed to apprentice, making him subject to the Workers' Compensation Act. Ryles v. Durham Co. Hosp. Corp., 107 N.C. App. 455, 420 S.E.2d 487, cert. denied, 333 N.C. 169, 424 S.E.2d 406 (1992).

I. Agriculture.

The line of demarcation between agricultural and nonagricultural employment often becomes extremely attenuated, and the question in marginal factual situations must frequently turn upon whether the employment is a separable, commercial enterprise rather than a purely agricultural undertaking. Hinson v. Creech, 286 N.C. 156, 209 S.E.2d 471 (1974).

Departure from Agriculture. — When a farmer departs from his agricultural pursuits and clearly enters into a service business or another business remote from the direct production of agricultural products, his services cease to be "agriculture" within the meaning of subdivision (1) of this section. Hinson v. Creech, 286 N.C. 156, 209 S.E.2d 471 (1974).

The commercial processing of agricultural commodities for seed is not an agricultural activity. Murray v. Biggerstaff, 81 N.C. App. 377, 344 S.E.2d 550, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 696, 350 S.E.2d 858 (1986).

Plaintiff, who was employed to process oats, soybeans and barley through the gin process, and to do other work incidental to the ginning operation, was not a farm laborer under § 97-13(b), and the fact that plaintiff was operating a tractor in a field in which crops were eventually to be planted when he was injured, during a one-time excursion out of the ginning process and into an activity more akin to farming or agricultural labor, did not interrupt his compensation coverage. Murray v. Biggerstaff, 81 N.C. App. 377, 344 S.E.2d 550, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 696, 350 S.E.2d 858 (1986).

Employees Held Not to Be Farm Laborers. — Where employee cleaned, graded, packaged and delivered eggs, kept records and collected for eggs delivered, her duties were sufficiently removed from the normal process of agriculture to prevent her exclusion from coverage as a "farm laborer." Hinson v. Creech, 286 N.C. 156, 209 S.E.2d 471 (1974).

When employers formed a business association with a registered trade name and sought to increase the profits of the business by selling and delivering eggs over stated routes to stores, institutions and individuals, thus subjecting their employees to the daily hazards of operating a motor vehicle upon the highways to places far removed from the farm, employers' business ceased to be agriculture and became part and parcel of the activities of the marketplace. Hinson v. Creech, 286 N.C. 156, 209 S.E.2d 471 (1974).

J. Sawmills and Logging.

For case involving injury to brakeman on a train used exclusively for moving timber from defendant's land to its mill, which was treated by the court as one for negligence and in which the Workers' Compensation Act was not mentioned, see Bateman v. Brooks, 204 N.C. 176, 167 S.E. 627 (1933).

K. National Guard.

Injury During Initial Training. — Plaintiff was an employee of the State when he was injured at federal mandatory initial training, required before serving as a member of the National Guard by 10 U.S.C. 511(d) (which did not exist when the second sentence of this subsection was written), and accordingly was entitled to compensation under the Worker's Compensation Act because his injury arose out of and in the course of his employment with the National Guard. Britt v. North Carolina Dep't of Crime Control & Pub. Safety, 108 N.C. App. 777, 425 S.E.2d 11 (1993).

Weekend Drill. — Plaintiff, injured while performing his duties as a member of the National Guard on a routine weekend drill, was entitled to worker's compensation for injuries. Duncan v. North Carolina Dep't of Crime Control & Pub. Safety, 113 N.C. App. 184, 437 S.E.2d 654 (1993).

Employment Found. — Plaintiff was a private in the national guard. He was paid 50¢ per drill by the State and $1.00 per week by the federal government. Although his services were voluntary, he was required to sign an enlistment contract which subjected him to the direction and control of the State. It was held that claimant was an employee. Baker v. State, 200 N.C. 232, 156 S.E. 917 (1931), decided prior to the 1943 amendment adding the second sentence of subdivision (2).

L. Executives.

Where a corporate employer with less than the minimum number of employees procures a policy of compensation insurance, such employer is presumed to have accepted the provisions of the Act, and such policy covers its executive officers notwithstanding the premium on the policy is based on the compensation of a single nonexecutive employee and the parties intended to cover him only, unless notice of nonacceptance by the executive officers is duly filed with the Industrial Commission. Laughridge v. South Mt. Pulpwood Co., 266 N.C. 769, 147 S.E.2d 213 (1966).

Prior Law. — For cases involving executives, decided before the passage of Session Laws 1955, c. 1055, making executives employees, see Hodges v. Home Mtg. Co., 201 N.C. 701, 161 S.E. 220 (1931); Hunter v. Hunter Auto Co., 204 N.C. 723, 169 S.E. 648 (1933); Jones v. Planters' Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 206 N.C. 214, 173 S.E. 595 (1934); Nissen v. City of Winston-Salem, 206 N.C. 888, 175 S.E. 310 (1934); Rowe v. Rowe-Coward Co., 208 N.C. 484, 181 S.E. 254 (1935); Gassaway v. Gassaway & Owen, Inc., 220 N.C. 694, 18 S.E.2d 120 (1942); Pearson v. Newt Pearson, Inc., 222 N.C. 69, 21 S.E.2d 879 (1942).

M. Workers on Relief.

Person Recovering Federal Relief Held Not an Employee. — A person furnished work for the relief of himself and his family and paid with funds provided by the Federal Relief Administration is not an "employee" of the relief administrative agencies within the meaning of this section. Jackson v. North Carolina Emergency Relief Admin., 206 N.C. 274, 173 S.E. 580 (1934). See also Barnhardt v. City of Concord, 213 N.C. 364, 196 S.E. 310 (1938).

But a different result was reached when the injured party was employed by the superintendent of the water and light department of defendant town and paid from funds loaned defendant by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Mayze v. Town of Forest City, 207 N.C. 168, 176 S.E. 270 (1934).

III. AVERAGE WEEKLY WAGES.

A. In General.

The intent of the Act is to base compensation upon the normal income which the employee derived from his employment. Lovette v. Reliable Mfg. Co., 262 N.C. 288, 136 S.E.2d 685 (1964).

It seems reasonable that the legislature, having placed the economic loss caused by a worker's injury upon the employer for whom he was working at the time of the injury, would also relate the amount of that loss to the average weekly wages which that employer was paying the employee. Wallace v. Music Shop, II, Inc., 11 N.C. App. 328, 181 S.E.2d 237 (1971).

Requirements under This Section. — There is no requirement of actual disablement in the asbestosis statutes, but the Commission must make findings sufficient to support its award of plaintiff's average weekly wage. Clark v. ITT Grinnell Indus. Piping, Inc., 141 N.C. App. 417, 539 S.E.2d 369 (2000).

Results Must Be Fair and Just to Both Parties. — The dominant intent of subdivision (5) of this section is that results fair and just to both employer and employee be obtained. Joyner v. A.J. Carey Oil Co., 266 N.C. 519, 146 S.E.2d 447 (1966).

The Commission's calculation of plaintiff's average weekly wage was upheld where the Commission rejected the method used by the Moore court as unfair to the parties, relied upon plaintiff's earnings during his last year of employment, instead, and supported its decision based on the language of § 97-2. Austin v. Continental Gen. Tire, 141 N.C. App. 397, 540 S.E.2d 824 (2000), rev'd on other grounds, 354 N.C. 344, 553 S.E. 2d 680 (2001).

Earnings and Not Earning Capacity Are Basis for Award. — Under subdivision (5) of this section, "average weekly wages" of the employee "in the employment in which he was working at the time of the injury" are based on his earnings rather than his earning capacity. Liles v. Faulkner Neon & Elec. Co., 244 N.C. 653, 94 S.E.2d 790 (1956).

Compensation Is Based on "Average Weekly Wages". — Under the Workers' Compensation Act, compensation for the injury or death of an employee is based on his average weekly wages. Lovette v. Reliable Mfg. Co., 262 N.C. 288, 136 S.E.2d 685 (1964).

Without Regard for Artificial Maximum on Income Imposed on Social Security Recipient. — To compute the plaintiff's average weekly wage from a consideration of the fact that he had an artificial maximum of $1680.00 placed on his earnings because he was retired and drawing social security benefits would not only produce results unfair to the employee but would ignore the well-established principle that an injured employee's average weekly wage must be computed from his actual earnings in the employment in which he is injured rather than his earning capacity. Wallace v. Music Shop, II, Inc., 11 N.C. App. 328, 181 S.E.2d 237 (1971).

The determination of the plaintiff's 'average weekly wages' requires application of § 97-2(5) and case law and thus raises an issue of law; thus, any mistake made by either of the parties is not a basis for setting the agreement aside. Swain v. C & N Evans Trucking Co., 126 N.C. App. 332, 484 S.E.2d 845 (1997).

Subdivision (5) provides five possible methods of determining average weekly wages (the first three methods as specified in the first, second and third sentences of the first paragraph, respectively; the fourth method as specified in the second paragraph; and the fifth method, that specified for disabling injury to volunteer firemen). Barnhardt v. Yellow Cab Co., 266 N.C. 419, 146 S.E.2d 479 (1966), decided under subdivision (5) as it read in 1966.

And establishes a clear order of preference. When the first method of compensation can be used, it must be used. Hensley v. Caswell Action Comm., Inc., 296 N.C. 527, 251 S.E.2d 399 (1979).

"Results fair and just," within the meaning of the proviso to the second sentence of subdivision (5), consist of such "average weekly wages" as will most nearly approximate the amount which the injured employee would be earning were it not for the injury, in the employment in which he was working at the time of his injury. Liles v. Faulkner Neon & Elec. Co., 244 N.C. 653, 94 S.E.2d 790 (1956); Joyner v. A.J. Carey Oil Co., 266 N.C. 519, 146 S.E.2d 447 (1966); Wallace v. Music Shop, II, Inc., 11 N.C. App. 328, 181 S.E.2d 237 (1971).

It is true that all provisions of subdivision (5) must be considered in order to ascertain the legislative intent; and the dominant intent is that results fair and just to both parties be obtained. Ordinarily, whether such results will be obtained by the second method is a question of fact, and in such case a finding of fact by the Commission controls decision. However, this does not apply if the finding of fact is not supported by competent evidence or is predicated on an erroneous construction of the statute. Liles v. Faulkner Neon & Elec. Co., 244 N.C. 653, 94 S.E.2d 790 (1956).

When Special Method of Computation Employed. — When, in determining the amount to be awarded the dependents of a deceased employee, the methods of computing the "average weekly wage" enumerated in the first paragraph of subdivision (5) of this section would be unfair because of exceptional circumstances, the Industrial Commission is authorized by the second paragraph of said subdivision to use such other method of computation as would most nearly approximate the amount which the employee would be earning if living; the provisions of the second paragraph apply to all three of the methods of computation enumerated in the first paragraph, and such other method of computation may be invoked for exceptional reasons even though the employee had been constantly employed by the employer for 52 weeks prior to the time of the injury causing death. Early v. W. H. Basnight & Co., 214 N.C. 103, 198 S.E. 577 (1938). See also Liles v. Faulkner Neon & Elec. Co., 244 N.C. 653, 94 S.E.2d 790 (1956); Barnhardt v. Yellow Cab Co., 266 N.C. 419, 146 S.E.2d 479 (1966).

The words "the foregoing" in the second paragraph of subdivision (5) clearly refer to the preceding paragraph. Clark v. Burton Lines, 272 N.C. 433, 158 S.E.2d 569 (1968).

Limitation on Use of Fourth Method of Computing Average Weekly Wage. — The fourth prescribed method of computing the employee's average weekly wage may not be used unless there has been a finding that use of the second method would produce results unfair and unjust to either the employee or employer. Wallace v. Music Shop, II, Inc., 11 N.C. App. 328, 181 S.E.2d 237 (1971).

Unusually severe or totally disabling injuries are not the exceptional reasons contemplated by the fourth method of subdivision (5). Barnhardt v. Yellow Cab Co., 266 N.C. 419, 146 S.E.2d 479 (1966).

Fourth Method Sets Standard. — Fourth method of subdivision (5), while it prescribes no precise method for computing "average weekly wages," sets up a standard to which results fair and just to both parties must be related. Barnhardt v. Yellow Cab Co., 266 N.C. 419, 146 S.E.2d 479 (1966).

Average Weekly Wages Determined by Earnings in Employment in Which Injured. — Average weekly wages must ordinarily be determined by the employee's actual earnings in the employment in which he was injured during the 52 weeks, or such lesser period as he may have worked, immediately preceding his injury. Lovette v. Reliable Mfg. Co., 262 N.C. 288, 136 S.E.2d 685 (1964).

The intent of the legislature that average weekly wages determined by the fourth method be related to the employment in which the employee was injured is evidence by the fifth method, which relates only to a volunteer fireman injured "under compensable circumstances." Barnhardt v. Yellow Cab Co., 266 N.C. 419, 146 S.E.2d 479 (1966).

By computing the plaintiff's average weekly wage from his earnings from the employment in which he was injured, the employer's liability is in direct proportion to his payroll and the insurance premiums based thereon. This is fair and just. Wallace v. Music Shop, II, Inc., 11 N.C. App. 328, 181 S.E.2d 237 (1971).

Average Weekly Wages Related to Earnings Not Earning Capacity. — Nothing in the statute defining average weekly wages warranted a conclusion that plaintiff business owner was entitled to payment at the minimum rate of $30.00 per week based on a finding that his business failed to show a net profit for the fifty-two weeks preceding his injury. Under this section, average weekly wages must be related to an employee's earnings, not to his earning capacity. McAnelly v. Wilson Pallet & Crate Co., 120 N.C. App. 127, 460 S.E.2d 894 (1995).

When evaluating a disability, an employee's earning capacity must be measured by the employee's own ability to compete in the labor market, and employee ownership of a business can support a finding of earning capacity only to the extent the employee is actively involved in the personal management of that business and only to the extent that those management skills are marketable in the labor market. McGee v. Estes Express Lines, 125 N.C. App. 298, 480 S.E.2d 416 (1997).

Most Accurate Reflection. — The Industrial Commission correctly determined claimant's earning capacity as an independent contractor under the fourth method listed in subsection (5) by averaging plaintiff's net income for the years 1988 and 1989; this interpretation most accurately reflected claimant's earning capacity. Holloway v. T.A. Mebane, Inc., 111 N.C. App. 194, 431 S.E.2d 882 (1993).

Deduction of Expenses. — When an employee is paid a set price for doing a particular job, it is proper to deduct the expenses incurred in producing that revenue in calculating the average weekly wages; however, the Industrial Commission is not required to deduct the expenses if this method does not produce a fair result to the employer and employee. Craft v. Bill Clark Constr. Co., 123 N.C. App. 777, 474 S.E.2d 808 (1996).

Combining Wages from Other Employment Is Not Permitted. — When an employee who holds two separate jobs is injured in one of them, his compensation is based only upon his average weekly wages earned in the employment producing the injury. Joyner v. A.J. Carey Oil Co., 266 N.C. 519, 146 S.E.2d 447 (1966).

It would be unfair to the employer and his insurance carrier to compute the average weekly wage of an injured employee by combining his earnings from the employment where he was injured with his earnings from other employment, and thus burden the employer and his insurance carrier with a liability out of proportion to the employer's payroll and the insurance premium computed thereon. Wallace v. Music Shop, II, Inc., 11 N.C. App. 328, 181 S.E.2d 237 (1971).

Average Weekly Wages. — It is clear from its wording and the prior holdings of the North Carolina Supreme Court that this section establishes an order of preference for the calculation method to be used, and that the primary method is to calculate the total wages of the employee for the fifty-two weeks of the year prior to the date of injury and to divide that sum by fifty-two. McAninch v. Buncombe County Sch., 347 N.C. 126, 489 S.E.2d 375 (1997).

The definition of average weekly wages and the range of alternatives set forth in the five methods of computing such wages, as specified in subsection (5), do not allow the inclusion of wages or income earned in employment or work other than that in which the employee was injured. McAninch v. Buncombe County Sch., 347 N.C. 126, 489 S.E.2d 375 (1997).

Unless Employments Are Related. — The wage basis of an employee injured in one of two related employments in which he is concurrently employed should include his earnings from both employments. Most concurrent employment controversies therefore resolve themselves into the question of what employments are sufficiently related to come within the rule. Barnhardt v. Yellow Cab Co., 266 N.C. 419, 146 S.E.2d 479 (1966).

Fifth Method Is Only Exception to Exclusion of Other Earnings. — Except for the fifth method of subdivision (5), no wage-computation provision of the Workers' Compensation Act allows a consideration of any earnings except those earned in the employment in which the employee was injured. Barnhardt v. Yellow Cab Co., 266 N.C. 419, 146 S.E.2d 479 (1966).

Compensation of Volunteer Fireman. — Subdivision (5) of this section employs the term "principally" to distinguish a fireman's volunteer employment from his other, remunerative employment or employments, i.e., "the employment wherein he principally earned his livelihood." The statute insures that the injured volunteer fireman receives compensation commensurate with his proven earning ability, as demonstrated by the wages he receives for work done other than in his capacity as a volunteer fireman. Derebery v. Pitt County Fire Marshall, 318 N.C. 192, 347 S.E.2d 814 (1986).

The dictum in Barnhardt v. Yellow Cab Co., 266 N.C. 419, 146 S.E.2d 479 (1966), which suggests that subdivision (5) of this section does not permit a combination of a volunteer fireman's outside wages, is overruled. Derebery v. Pitt County Fire Marshall, 318 N.C. 192, 347 S.E.2d 814 (1986).

Where volunteer fireman, at the time he was injured, was earning $74.41 working part-time for one employer and $87.40 per week working part-time for another employer, the Commission should have considered his wages in both part-time employments to compute his average weekly wage. Derebery v. Pitt County Fire Marshall, 318 N.C. 192, 347 S.E.2d 814 (1986).

A part-time job cannot be converted into a full-time job for the purpose of compensation. Joyner v. A.J. Carey Oil Co., 266 N.C. 519, 146 S.E.2d 447 (1966).

Nor may an intermittent part-time job be treated as a continuous one for the purpose of compensation. Joyner v. A.J. Carey Oil Co., 266 N.C. 519, 146 S.E.2d 447 (1966).

Basis for Compensation for Death of Minor. — Under subdivision (5) of this section, compensation for the death of a minor employee must be based on the average weekly wage of adults employed in a similar class of work by the same employer to which decedent would probably have been promoted had he not been killed, if such method can be used, and it is only when such method cannot be used that compensation may be based upon a wage sufficient to yield the maximum weekly compensation benefit. Hensley v. Caswell Action Comm., Inc., 296 N.C. 527, 251 S.E.2d 399 (1979).

Employer's Report of Accident as Evidence of Average Wage. — While the employer's report of an accident to the Industrial Commission does not constitute a claim for compensation, a statement therein as to the employee's average weekly wage is competent upon the hearing after the filing of claim. Harris v. Asheville Contracting Co., 240 N.C. 715, 83 S.E.2d 802 (1954).

Conclusive Effect of Commission's Method of Computing Average Wage. — The Commission's method of computing the average wage is conclusive if there are any facts to support the Commission's findings. Munford v. West Constr. Co., 203 N.C. 247, 165 S.E. 696 (1932).

Ordinarily, whether the results reached in computing the claimant's average weekly wage will be fair and just to both parties is a question of fact, and in such case a finding of fact by the Commission controls the decision. Hendricks v. Hill Realty Group, Inc., 131 N.C. App. 859, 509 S.E.2d 801 (1998).

Scope of Review When Commission Finds Results of Computation "Fair and Just". — Where the North Carolina Industrial Commission made a finding that its use of the second method of computing the employee's average weekly wage produced results that were "fair and just to both sides," review was narrowed to a determination of whether the Commission's finding and conclusion in this regard was supported by the evidence. Wallace v. Music Shop, II, Inc., 11 N.C. App. 328, 181 S.E.2d 237 (1971).

Fair Labor Standards Act Inapplicable to Awards. — The Fair Labor Standards Act, 29 U.S.C. §§ 201 to 219, is not applicable to awards made pursuant to the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act. Lovette v. Reliable Mfg. Co., 262 N.C. 288, 136 S.E.2d 685 (1964).

B. Illustrative Cases.

Recently Promoted Salesman. — The Industrial Commission found upon supporting evidence that the deceased employee had been employed by defendant employer for a number of years, that he had been promoted successively from truck driver to stock clerk to salesman with increased wages from time to time, and that he had been given a raise in the last position less than three months prior to the time of injury resulting in death, part of the supporting evidence being testimony by the employee's superior that "with the business he was getting" he would have had further increases. It was held that the findings were sufficient in law to constitute "exceptional reasons" within the meaning of subdivision (5) of this section, and the employee's "average weekly wage" was properly fixed at the amount he was earning weekly at the time of the injury, it being patent that the wages he was then receiving were not temporary and uncertain, but constituted a fair basis upon which to compute the award to his dependents. Early v. Basnight & Co., 214 N.C. 103, 198 S.E. 577 (1938).

Pay Increases Within the 52 Weeks. — Plaintiff was employed practically continuously for 33 weeks prior to the injury resulting in death, but during that period his wages were twice increased. In the absence of a finding supported by evidence that the average weekly wage for the entire period of employment would be unfair, compensation should have been based thereon, and the computation of the average weekly wage on the basis of the wage during the period after the last increase in pay was not supported by the evidence. Mion v. Atlantic Marble & Tile Co., 217 N.C. 743, 9 S.E.2d 501 (1940).

Significant Increase in Commissions by Real Estate Agent. — Exceptional reasons existed to support calculation of a real estate agent's average weekly wage based on the 15 weeks of earnings prior to her death, where the agent made changes in the way that she performed her job, including purchase of a computer and increased hours worked per week, resulting in a significant increase in commissions earned over the previous year. Hendricks v. Hill Realty Group, Inc., 131 N.C. App. 859, 509 S.E.2d 801 (1998).

Award Based on Total Compensation Customarily Earned. — Claimant was employed as janitor, his compensation for such work being paid in part by the State School Commission, and was also employed in school maintenance work, his compensation for the maintenance work being paid exclusively by the municipal board of education. He was injured while engaged in duties pertaining exclusively to school maintenance work. It was held that an award computed on the basis of the total compensation customarily earned by claimant, rather than the compensation earned solely in school maintenance work, upon the Commission's finding of exceptional conditions, was proper. Casey v. Board of Educ., 219 N.C. 739, 14 S.E.2d 853 (1941).

Reduction in Wages After Sale of Plant.

— The plant in which claimant worked was sold. Before sale, claimant was a foreman. After sale, he continued to work in a lower classification and at a lower pay rate. The Supreme Court affirmed the action of the Commission in considering the wage earned as foreman in determining claimant's average weekly wage when disablement occurred before claimant had worked 52 weeks at the lower rate. Honeycutt v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 235 N.C. 471, 70 S.E.2d 426 (1952).

Reduction as a Result of Bankruptcy.

— Where, as a result of the bankruptcy of first company decedent worked at, employee's wages at second company were depressed, Industrial Commission erred by failing to consider evidence of employee's wages at first company during the 52 weeks preceding his death. Johnson v. Barnhill Contracting Co., 121 N.C. App. 55, 464 S.E.2d 313 (1995).

Compensation Provided in Contract of Employment.

— Where the employer did not contend that plaintiff's employment was casual and offered no evidence as to the amount of wages earned by others engaged in similar employment in that community during the 52 weeks previous to plaintiff's injury, the employer could not object that the commission, in view of the fact that the employee had worked for the employer less than 40 hours at the time of his injury, fixed the employee's average weekly wage in accordance with the compensation under the contract of employment at the time of the injury, there being evidence that the employee had theretofore earned wages in excess of this sum for appreciable periods in other employments of like nature. Harris v. Asheville Contracting Co., 240 N.C. 715, 83 S.E.2d 802 (1954).

College Student Employed Part-Time.

— It was improper for the Commission, in undertaking to apply the method of computing average weekly wages provided in the third sentence of subdivision (5), to determine the average weekly wages of a part-time employee to be the amount he would have earned had he been a full-time employee. Liles v. Faulkner Neon & Elec. Co., 244 N.C. 653, 94 S.E.2d 790 (1956).

In a proceeding for compensation for the death of a college student employed part-time during vacation and after school for a period of 11 weeks in which he worked from 17 1/2 to 51 hours a week, there was no factual basis for application of the method of determining average weekly wages provided in the third sentence of subdivision (5), where there was no evidence as to the average weekly amount being earned during the 52 weeks previous to decedent's injury by a person of the same grade and character employed in the same class of employment, and no evidence as to the average weekly amount a part-time worker in the same employment had earned during the 52 weeks previous to decedent's injury, while working for the particular employer or any other employer in the same locality or community. Liles v. Faulkner Neon & Elec. Co., 244 N.C. 653, 94 S.E.2d 790 (1956).

The average weekly wages of a college student working part-time for a period of 11 weeks in which he worked from 17 1/2 hours to 51 hours a week should have been computed by the method provided in the second sentence of subdivision (5) of this section, where the evidence did not warrant a finding of fact or conclusion of law that such method would not obtain results fair and just to both parties. Liles v. Faulkner Neon & Elec. Co., 244 N.C. 653, 94 S.E.2d 790 (1956).

Pulpwood Cutter. — The Industrial Commission erred in determining a pulpwood cutter's average weekly wage based on all of the proceeds of sales of pulpwood to two woodyards, where the evidence showed that the cutter was assisted in his work part of the time by his two sons and that they received part of the proceeds from the sales of pulpwood for their labor. Allred v. Piedmont Woodyards, Inc., 32 N.C. App. 516, 232 S.E.2d 879 (1977).

As to calculation of compensation for the death of pulpwood cutter who was not paid a salary or wages, but received a certain amount for each cord of pulpwood delivered to employer, where decedent owned a truck and other equipment which he used in cutting and preparing the pulpwood, see Baldwin v. Piedmont Woodyards, Inc., 58 N.C. App. 602, 293 S.E.2d 814 (1982).

Where contractor was held liable for the payment of compensation for the death of a subcontractor engaged in cutting and hauling timber, the Commission should have considered a reasonable rate of depreciation on the equipment of the subcontractor as a business expense in determining the subcontractor's earnings, or alternatively, the Commission might have considered what the subcontractor would have been required to pay someone else to perform his work, or his income as reported on tax returns from earlier years showing his own income derived from similar work. Christian v. Riddle & Mendenhall Logging, 117 N.C. App. 261, 450 S.E.2d 510 (1994).

Potentially Full-time Brick Mason. — The full Commission correctly chose the second method listed in subdivision (5) of this section to calculate plaintiff brick mason's average weekly wages, instead of the fifth method, since plaintiff, unlike a seasonal worker, could conceivably work every week, full-time for his employer; however, the Commission erred in computing plaintiff's daily wage by dividing his total earnings by the number of days worked, then multiplying this "daily wage rate" by seven for an average weekly wage, where this section does not authorize such calculation and no evidence supported a finding that plaintiff worked seven days a week. Bond v. Foster Masonry, Inc., 139 N.C. App. 123, 532 S.E.2d 583 (2000).

Distributive Education Student. — The Industrial Commission erred in determining a deceased minor employee's average weekly wage on the basis of 11 weeks during the summer when he worked full-time; the Commission should have averaged the 11 weeks of full-time with the 41 weeks of part-time employment contemplated in the minor employee's distributive education job at the undisputed hourly wage rate of $2.65 in order to reach a result fair and just to both the employee and employer. Mabry v. Bowers Implement Co., 48 N.C. App. 139, 269 S.E.2d 165 (1980).

Plaintiff farmer who was injured as a volunteer fireman should be compensated based on what he would have earned from his labor as a farmer had he not been injured. York v. Unionville Volunteer Fire Dep't, 58 N.C. App. 591, 293 S.E.2d 812 (1982).

Trailer Truck Driver. — Where trailer truck driver's job was properly classified as "seasonal," the Industrial Commission's determination of plaintiff's average weekly wage was not supported by the evidence and the matter, would be remanded for recalculation and entry of related findings. Barber v. Going West Transp., Inc., 134 N.C. App. 428, 517 S.E.2d 914 (1999).

Deductions from Farmer's Gross Income in Calculating Income. — Farm income of injured volunteer fireman who was a farmer could not be properly calculated without deducting from gross income interest on money which was borrowed to finance crop production, depreciation on equipment used to produce the crops, license fees for things used in crop production, and taxes on land used to produce crops. York v. Unionville Volunteer Fire Dep't, 58 N.C. App. 591, 293 S.E.2d 812 (1982).

Football Player. — The Court upheld the Commission's finding that a football player, who was injured in a pre-season game before being officially accepted as a player on the active roster, earned an average weekly wage of $ 1,653.85 based on a contract amount of $ 85,000 and a $ 1,000 signing bonus divided by 52 weeks. Larramore v. Richardson Sports Ltd. Partners, 141 N.C. App. 250, 540 S.E.2d 768 (2000), aff'd, 353 N.C. 520, 546 S.E.2d 87 (2001).

Manager-Trainee. — Where the plaintiff-manager-trainee's weekly wages were undisputed, the Commission was justified in calculating his wage using his actual wages and was not required to use the wage of a comparable employee. Sims v. Charmes/Arby's Roast Beef, 142 N.C. App. 154, 542 S.E.2d 277 (2001), cert. denied, 353 N.C. 729, 550 S.E.2d 782 (2001).

Lodging in Lieu of Wages. — The Commission's finding that the value of plaintiff's lodging was $ 100 per week, and that plaintiff received lodging in lieu of additional wages, was supported by substantial competent evidence. Shah v. Johnson, 140 N.C. App. 58, 535 S.E.2d 577 (2000).

Combining Earnings of Injured Claimant and Replacement Employee. — The calculation of the claimant's average weekly wage by combining his earnings during the year he was injured with the earnings of the person hired to replace him was fair to the employer and the claimant. Davis v. Taylor-Wilkes Helicopter Serv., Inc., 145 N.C. App. 1, 549 S.E.2d 580 (2001).

IV. COMPENSABLE INJURIES, GENERALLY.

The threefold conditions antecedent to the right to compensation under the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act are: (1) That claimant suffered a personal injury by accident; (2) that such injury arose in the course of the employment; and (3) that such injury arose out of the employment. Wilson v. Town of Mooresville, 222 N.C. 283, 22 S.E.2d 907 (1942); Taylor v. Town of Wake Forest, 228 N.C. 346, 45 S.E.2d 387 (1947); Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949); Matthews v. Carolina Std. Corp., 232 N.C. 229, 60 S.E.2d 93 (1950); Anderson v. Northwestern Motor Co., 233 N.C. 372, 64 S.E.2d 265 (1951); Bryan v. First Free Will Baptist Church, 267 N.C. 111, 147 S.E.2d 633 (1966); Burton v. American Nat'l Ins. Co., 10 N.C. App. 499, 179 S.E.2d 7 (1971); Loffin v. Loffin, 13 N.C. In order for the death of an employee to be compensable it must result from an injury by an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. Slade v. Willis Hosiery Mills, 209 N.C. 823, 184 S.E. 844 (1936); McGill v. Town of Lumberton, 215 N.C. 752, 3 S.E.2d 324 (1939); Ashley v. Food World, Inc., 300 N.C. 329, 266 S.E.2d 676, rehearing denied, 300 N.C. 562, 270 S.E.2d 105 (1980).

Disability as Fourth Condition. — An employee must establish a fourth essential element, that his injury caused him disability, unless it is included in the schedule of injuries made compensable by § 97-31 without regard to loss of wage-earning power. Hollman v. City of Raleigh, 273 N.C. 240, 159 S.E.2d 874 (1968); Loffin v. Loffin, 13 N.C. App. 574, 186 S.E.2d 660, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 154, 187 S.E.2d 585 (1972).

Except in the case of certain occupational diseases, compensation may not be awarded under the Act unless there is proof of a disability due to an injury, which injury was the result of an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. Rhinehart v. Roberts Super Mkt., Inc., 271 N.C. 586, 157 S.E.2d 1 (1967).

Effect of Disease. — To establish his claim for the death of decedent, plaintiff must show (1) death resulting from an injury by accident, (2) arising out of and in the course of decedent's employment by the defendant, and (3) not including a disease in any form, except where it results naturally and unavoidably from the accident. Lewter v. Abercrombie Enters., 240 N.C. 399, 82 S.E.2d 410 (1954).

Finding of Injury Required. — The fact that plaintiff sustained an injury is a critical fact upon which her right to compensation depends; thus, a specific finding of that fact is required by the Commission. Jackson v. Fayetteville Area Sys. of Transp., 78 N.C. App. 412, 337 S.E.2d 110 (1985).

More must be shown than an injury while at work to sustain a claim for compensation. Hargus v. Select Foods, Inc., 271 N.C. 369, 156 S.E.2d 737 (1967).

To be compensable the injury must spring from the employment. Lewis v. W.B. Lea Tobacco Co., 260 N.C. 410, 132 S.E.2d 877 (1963); Burton v. American Nat'l Ins. Co., 10 N.C. App. 499, 179 S.E.2d 7 (1971).

Or Have Its Origin Therein. — To be compensable an injury must spring from the employment or have its origin therein. Perry v. American Bakeries Co., 262 N.C. 272, 136

S.E.2d 643 (1964); Clark v. Burton Lines, 272 N.C. 433, 158 S.E.2d 569 (1968); Robbins v. Nicholson, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972).

Reasonable Relationship to Employment Is Sufficient. — An appellate court is justified in upholding a compensation award if the accident is fairly traceable to the employment as a contributing cause or if any reasonable relationship to employment exists. Hoffman v. Ryder Truck Lines, 306 N.C. 502, 293 S.E.2d 807 (1982).

Specific Hour of Injury Need Not Be Alleged. — While the case law interpreting the specific traumatic incident provision of subsection (6) requires the plaintiff to prove an injury at a cognizable time, this does not compel the plaintiff to allege the specific hour or day of the injury. Fish v. Steelcase, Inc., 116 N.C. App. 703, 449 S.E.2d 233 (1994), cert. denied, 339 N.C. 737, 454 S.E.2d 650 (1995).

When Death Is Compensable. — In order for a claimant to recover workers' compensation benefits for death, he must prove that death resulted from an injury (1) by accident; (2) arising out of his employment; and (3) in the course of the employment. Pickrell v. Motor Convoy, Inc., 322 N.C. 363, 368 S.E.2d 582 (1988).

Death by suicide is compensable if a work-connected injury causes insanity which in turn induces the suicide. Painter v. Mead Corp., 258 N.C. 741, 129 S.E.2d 482 (1963).

Finding that plaintiff experienced pain as a result of what occurred while performing her duties was not a sufficient finding that plaintiff sustained an injury. Jackson v. Fayetteville Area Sys. of Transp., 78 N.C. App. 412, 337 S.E.2d 110 (1985).

Back Injuries. — By amending the second sentence of subdivision (6) to say that an accident with respect to back injuries includes an injury that is the "result of a specific traumatic incident," the General Assembly intended to relax the requirement that there be some unusual circumstance that accompanied the injury; the use of the words "specific" and "incident" means that the trauma or injury must not have developed gradually but must have occurred at a cognizable time. Bradley v. E.B. Sportswear, Inc., 77 N.C. App. 450, 335 S.E.2d 52 (1985).

The General Assembly recognized the complex nature of back injuries, and did not intend to limit the definition of specific traumatic incident to an instantaneous occurrence. Richards v. Town of Valdese, 92 N.C. App. 222, 374 S.E.2d 116 (1988), cert. denied, 324 N.C. 337, 378 S.E.2d 799 (1989).

Nothing in subsection (6) precludes compensation for a back injury which occurs in the normal work routine. Fish v. Steelcase, Inc., 116 N.C. App. 703, 449 S.E.2d 233 (1994), cert. denied, 339 N.C. 737, 454 S.E.2d 650 (1995).

Mental Impairments. — As long as the resulting disability meets statutory requirements, mental impairments are compensable under the Act. Jordan v. Central Piedmont Community College, 124 N.C. App. 112, 476 S.E.2d 410 (1996).

Employee who alleged that he slipped and fell, injuring his back, while still suffering from a prior work-related injury to his ribs, did not show that employer knew its conduct was substantially certain to cause serious injury or death, since the job he was performing when he fell had been performed the same way for many years without injury, the job involved typical hazards involved with welding, he was a certified welder, falling was not a significant hazard of this particular job, and no O.S.H.A. violations were established with regard to this job. Bullins v. Abitibi-Price Corp., 124 N.C. App. 530, 477 S.E.2d 691 (1996).

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome. — Evidence that an employee of a waste company whose job was to collect and dispose of raw sewage developed chronic fatigue syndrome and other ailments after being accidentally sprayed with raw sewage and that the employee's illnesses were most probably the result of the accident supported a ruling of the North Carolina Industrial Commission awarding the employee permanent workers' compensation disability benefits. Norton v. Waste Mgt., Inc., — N.C. App. —, 552 S.E.2d 702, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 938 (2001).

Attorney's Malpractice. — Attorney's malpractice in failing to timely file a third-party tort action was not an injury under § 97-2(6) for purposes of an employer's right of subrogation. Grant Constr. Co. v. McRae, — N.C. App. —, 553 S.E.2d 89, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 947 (2001).

Expert Testimony. — Where the exact nature and probable genesis of a particular type of injury involves complicated medical questions far removed from the ordinary experience and knowledge of laymen, only an expert can give competent opinion evidence as to the cause of the injury. Click v. Pilot Freight Carriers, Inc., 300 N.C. 164, 265 S.E.2d 389 (1980).

Determination Depends on Facts of Each Case. — The question of whether compensation is recoverable under this act depends upon whether the accident complained of arises out of and in the course of the employment of the one injured, and its determination depends largely upon the facts of each particular case as matters of fact and conclusions of law. Harden v. Thomasville Furn. Co., 199 N.C. 733, 155 S.E. 728 (1930).

Common-Law Rules of Negligence Are Inapplicable. — The words "out of and in the course of the employment," used in connection with compensable injuries, are not to be construed by the rules controlling in negligent default cases at common law; an accidental injury is compensable if there is a causal relation between the employment and injury, if the injury is one which, after the event, may be seen to have had its origin in the employment, and it need not be shown that it is one which ought to have been foreseen or expected. Conrad v. Cook-Lewis Foundry Co., 198 N.C. 723, 153 S.E. 266 (1930); Ashley v. F-W Chevrolet Co., 222 N.C. 25, 21 S.E.2d 834 (1942); Lee v. F.M. Henderson & Assocs., 284 N.C. 126, 200 S.E.2d 32 (1973).

In compensation cases the Commission finds the facts. Lawrence v. Hatch Mill, 265 N.C. 329, 144 S.E.2d 3 (1965).

The findings of fact of the Commission are conclusive if supported by competent evidence in the record even if the record also contains evidence which would support a contrary finding. Blalock v. Roberts Co., 12 N.C. App. 499, 183 S.E.2d 827 (1971).

Where there is any competent evidence in support of the finding of the Industrial Commission that the accident in question arose out of and in the course of employment, the finding is conclusive on the courts upon appeal. Latham v. Southern Fish & Grocery Co., 208 N.C. 505, 181 S.E. 640 (1935).

The finding of fact of the Industrial Commission that the disease causing an employee's death resulted naturally and unavoidably from an accident is conclusive on appeal when supported by competent evidence. Doggett v. South Atl. Whse. Co., 212 N.C. 599, 194 S.E. 111 (1937).

If the Commission's findings have evidentiary support in the record, they are conclusive. Lawrence v. Hatch Mill, 265 N.C. 329, 144 S.E.2d 3 (1965).

If the findings made by the Commission are supported by competent evidence, they must be accepted as final truth. Blalock v. Roberts Co., 12 N.C. App. 499, 183 S.E.2d 827 (1971).

Whether an injury arose out of and in the course of employment is a mixed question of law and fact, and where there is evidence to support the commissioner's findings in this regard, the court is bound by those findings. Barham v. Food World, Inc., 300 N.C. 329, 266 S.E.2d 676, rehearing denied, 300 N.C. 562, 270 S.E.2d 105 (1980). See also Cole v. Guilford County, 259 N.C. 724, 131 S.E.2d 308 (1963).

When Findings Are Reviewable on Appeal. — Where there is no conflicting evidence and the Industrial Commission decides as a matter of law that there is no sufficient competent evidence that the injury to plaintiff was "by accident arising out of and in the course of employment," the question is one of law and is reviewable by the court upon appeal. Massey v. Board of Educ., 204 N.C. 193, 167 S.E. 695 (1933).

Scope of Appellate Review. — Where the evidence is such that several inferences appear equally plausible, the finding of the Industrial Commission is conclusive on appeal, and courts are not at liberty to reweigh the evidence and set aside the finding simply because other conclusions might have been reached. Rewis v. New York Life Ins. Co., 226 N.C. 325, 38 S.E.2d 97 (1946).

The determination of whether an accident arises out of and in the course of employment under this section is a mixed question of law and fact, and the appellate court may review the record to determine if the findings and conclusions are supported by sufficient evidence. Gallimore v. Marilyn's Shoes, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977); Williams v. Hydro Print, Inc., 65 N.C. App. 1, 308 S.E.2d 478 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 156, 311 S.E.2d 297 (1984).

Remand for Findings. — Where in proceedings under this Act there was no finding or adjudication in reference to the contention of the employer that the claimant's injury was occasioned by his willful intention to injure his assailant, a fellow servant, the cause would be remanded for a definite determination of the question. Conrad v. Cook-Lewis Foundry Co., 198 N.C. 723, 153 S.E. 266 (1930).

V. ACCIDENT.

Editor's Note. — Earlier cases dealing with back injuries should be read in light of the 1983 amendment to subdivision (6) of this section, which modified the definition of "injury" with respect to back injuries so as to cover "specific traumatic incidents." Caskie v. R.M. Butler & Co., 85 N.C. App. 266, 354 S.E.2d 242 (1987).

The Workers' Compensation Act does not provide compensation for all injuries, but only for injuries by accident. O'Mary v. Land Clearing Corp., 261 N.C. 508, 135 S.E.2d 193 (1964); Lawrence v. Hatch Mill, 265 N.C. 329, 144 S.E.2d 3 (1965); Hargus v. Select Foods, Inc., 271 N.C. 369, 156 S.E.2d 737 (1967).

An injury, to be compensable, must result from an accident, which is to be considered as a separate event preceding and causing the injury; the mere fact of injury does not of itself establish the fact of accident. Bigelow v. Tire Sales Co., 12 N.C. App. 220, 182 S.E.2d 856 (1971); Beamon v. Stop & Shop Grocery, 27 N.C. App. 553, 219 S.E.2d 508 (1975).

There must be an accident, followed by an injury by such accident which results in harm to the employee, before the employee may be compensated. Jackson v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 272 N.C. 697, 158 S.E.2d 865 (1968).

Absent an accident, i.e., a fortuitous event, the death or injury of an employee while performing his regular duties in the usual and customary manner is not compensable. O'Mary v. Land Clearing Corp., 261 N.C. 508, 135 S.E.2d 193 (1964); Rhinehart v. Roberts Super Mkt., Inc., 271 N.C. 586, 157 S.E.2d 1 (1967); Jackson v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 272 N.C. 697, 158 S.E.2d 865 (1968); Norris v. Kivettco, Inc., 58 N.C. App. 376, 293 S.E.2d 594 (1982).

Where the plaintiff was not injured by accident as contemplated by this section, his injury is not compensable. Gray v. Durham Transf. & Storage, Inc., 10 N.C. App. 668, 179 S.E.2d 883 (1971).

Under the Workers' Compensation Act, an injury arising out of and in the course of employment is compensable only if it is caused by an accident. Davis v. Raleigh Rental Center, 58 N.C. App. 113, 292 S.E.2d 763 (1982).

The terms "injury" and "accident," as used in the act, are not synonymous. Rhinehart v. Roberts Super Mkt., Inc., 271 N.C. 586, 157 S.E.2d 1 (1967); Russell v. Pharr Yarns, Inc., 18 N.C. App. 249, 196 S.E.2d 571 (1973); Beamon v. Stop & Shop Grocery, 27 N.C. App. 553, 219 S.E.2d 508 (1975); Reams v. Burlington Indus., 42 N.C. App. 54, 255 S.E.2d 586 (1979). But see Keller v. Electric Wiring Co., 259 N.C. 222, 130 S.E.2d 342 (1963), indicating that injury by accident and accidental injury are synonymous terms; Swindell v. Davis Boat Works, Inc., 78 N.C. App. 393, 337 S.E.2d 592 (1985); Lewter v. Abercrombie Enters., Inc., 240 N.C. 399, 82 S.E.2d 410 (1954), cert. denied and appeal dismissed.

The mere fact of injury does not of itself establish the fact of accident. Key v. Wagner Woodcraft, Inc., 33 N.C. App. 310, 235 S.E.2d 254 (1977); Reams v. Burlington Indus., 42 N.C. App. 54, 255 S.E.2d 586 (1979).

The accident must be a separate event preceding and causing the injury. Key v. Wagner Woodcraft, Inc., 33 N.C. App. 310, 235 S.E.2d 254 (1977); Searsey v. Perry M. Alexander Constr. Co., 35 N.C. App. 78, 239 S.E.2d 847, cert. denied, 294 N.C. 736, 244 S.E.2d 154 (1978); Davis v. Raleigh Rental Center, 58 N.C. App. 113, 292 S.E.2d 763 (1982).

Accident and injury are considered separate. Ordinarily, the accident must precede the injury. Harding v. Thomas & Howard Co., 256 N.C. 427, 124 S.E.2d 109 (1962); Bowles v. CTS of Asheville, Inc., 77 N.C. App. 547, 335 S.E.2d 502 (1985).

Injury and accident are separate, and there must be an accident which produces the injury before the employee can be awarded compensation. O'Mary v. Land Clearing Corp., 261 N.C. 508, 135 S.E.2d 193 (1964); Jackson v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 272 N.C. 697, 158 S.E.2d 865 (1968); Porter v. Shelby Knit, Inc., 46 N.C. App. 22, 264 S.E.2d 360 (1980); Poe v. Acme Bldrs., 69 N.C. App. 147, 316

S.E.2d 338, cert. denied, 311 N.C. 762, 321 S.E.2d 143 (1984); Jackson v. Fayetteville Area Sys. of Transp., 88 N.C. App. 123, 362 S.E.2d 569 (1987).

Which Is Unforeseen or Unusual. — An "accident" within the meaning of this Act is an unlooked for and untoward event which is not expected or designed by the injured employee. Conrad v. Cook-Lewis Foundry Co., 198 N.C. 723, 153 S.E. 266 (1930); McNeely v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 206 N.C. 568, 174 S.E. 509 (1934); Slade v. Willis Hosiery Mills, 209 N.C. 823, 184 S.E. 844 (1936); Love v. Town of Lumberton, 215 N.C. 28, 1 S.E.2d 121 (1939); Brown v. Carolina Aluminum Co., 224 N.C. 766, 32 S.E.2d 320 (1944); Edwards v. Piedmont Publishing Co., 227 N.C. 184, 41 S.E.2d 592 (1947); Gabriel v. Town of Newton, 227 N.C. 314, 42 S.E.2d 96 (1947); Hensley v. Farmers Fed'n Coop., 246 N.C. 274, 98 S.E.2d 289 (1957); Harding v. Thomas & Howard Co., 256 N.C. 427, 124 S.E.2d 109 (1962); Searsey v. Perry M. Alexander Constr. Co., 35 N.C. App. 78, 239 S.E.2d 847, cert. denied, 294 N.C. 736, 244 S.E.2d 154 (1978); Porter v. Shelby Knit, Inc., 46 N.C. App. 22, 264 S.E.2d 360 (1980); Gladson v. Piedmont Stores/Scotties Dist. Drug Store, 57 N.C. App. 579, 292 S.E.2d 18, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 556, 294 S.E.2d 370 (1982); Diaz v. United States Textile Corp., 60 N.C. App. 712, 299 S.E.2d 843, cert. denied, 308 N.C. 386, 302 S.E.2d 250 (1983); Adams v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 61 N.C. App. 258, 300 S.E.2d 455 (1983); Poe v. Acme Bldrs., 69 N.C. App. 147, 316 S.E.2d 338, cert. denied, 311 N.C. 762, 321 S.E.2d 143 (1984).

While there need be no appreciable separation in time between the accident and the resulting injury, there must be some unforeseen or unusual event other than the bodily injury itself. Rhinehart v. Roberts Super Mkt., Inc., 271 N.C. 586, 157 S.E.2d 1 (1967); Norris v. Kivettco, Inc., 58 N.C. App. 376, 293 S.E.2d 594 (1982).

An "accident" within the contemplation of this Chapter is an unusual and unexpected or fortuitous occurrence, there being no indication that the legislature intended to put upon the usual definition of this term any further refinements. Smith v. Cabarrus Creamery Co., 217 N.C. 468, 8 S.E.2d 231 (1940).

Unusualness and unexpectedness are the essence of an accident. Davis v. Raleigh Rental Center, 58 N.C. App. 113, 292 S.E.2d 763 (1982).

Or Involves a Result Produced by a Fortuitous Cause. — The term "accident" as used in the act has been defined as (1) an unlooked for and untoward event which is not expected or designed by the injured employee; (2) a result produced by a fortuitous cause. Harding v. Thomas & Howard Co., 256 N.C. 427, 124 S.E.2d 109 (1962); O'Mary v. Land Clearing

Corp., 261 N.C. 508, 135 S.E.2d 193 (1964); Rhinehart v. Roberts Super Mkt., Inc., 271 N.C. 586, 157 S.E.2d 1 (1967); Pulley v. Migrant & Seasonal Farm-Workers Ass'n, 30 N.C. App. 94, 226 S.E.2d 227 (1976); Kennedy v. Martin Marietta Chems., 34 N.C. App. 177, 237 S.E.2d 542 (1977); Reams v. Burlington Indus., 42 N.C. App. 54, 255 S.E.2d 586 (1979); Norris v. Kivettco, Inc., 58 N.C. App. 376, 293 S.E.2d 594 (1982); Bowles v. CTS of Asheville, Inc., 77 N.C. App. 547, 335 S.E.2d 502 (1985).

Injury by accident is an injury produced by a fortuitous cause. Kennedy v. Martin Marietta Chems., 34 N.C. App. 177, 237 S.E.2d 542 (1977).

The term "accident," under this Chapter, is an unlooked for and untoward event, and a result produced by a fortuitous cause. Davis v. Raleigh Rental Center, 58 N.C. App. 113, 292 S.E.2d 763 (1982).

Injuries Which Are Natural and Probable Result of Employment Are Not Compensable. — An injury, in order to be compensable, must result from an accident, and injuries which are not the result of any fortuitous occurrence, but are the natural and probable result of the employment, are not compensable. Smith v. Cabarrus Creamery Co., 217 N.C. 468, 8 S.E.2d 231 (1940).

An injury must involve more than the carrying on of the usual and customary duties in the usual way to justify an award of compensation. Davis v. Raleigh Rental Center, 58 N.C. App. 113, 292 S.E.2d 763 (1982).

No matter how great the injury, if it is caused by an event that involves both an employee's normal work routine and normal working conditions it will not be considered to have been caused by accident. Searsey v. Perry M. Alexander Constr. Co., 35 N.C. App. 78, 239 S.E.2d 847, cert. denied, 294 N.C. 736, 244 S.E.2d 154 (1978); King v. Exxon Co., 46 N.C. App. 750, 266 S.E.2d 37 (1980).

If the employee is performing his regular duties in the usual and customary manner, and is injured, there is no "accident" and the injury is not compensable. Porter v. Shelby Knit, Inc., 46 N.C. App. 22, 264 S.E.2d 360 (1980).

Accident involves the interruption of the work routine and the introduction thereby of unusual conditions likely to result in unexpected consequences. Harding v. Thomas & Howard Co., 256 N.C. 427, 124 S.E.2d 109 (1962); Pardue v. Blackburn Bros. Oil & Tire Co., 260 N.C. 413, 132 S.E.2d 747 (1963); Lawrence v. Hatch Mill, 265 N.C. 329, 144 S.E.2d 3 (1965); Gray v. Durham Transf. & Storage, Inc., 10 N.C. App. 668, 179 S.E.2d 883 (1971); Southards v. Byrd Motor Lines, 11 N.C. App. 583, 181 S.E.2d 811 (1971); Bigelow v. Tire Sales Co., 12 N.C. App. 220, 182 S.E.2d 856 (1971); Garmon v. Tridair Indus., Inc., 14 N.C. App. 574, 188 S.E.2d 523 (1972); Dunton v.

Daniel Constr. Co., 19 N.C. App. 51, 198 S.E.2d 8 (1973); Beamon v. Stop & Shop Grocery, 27 N.C. App. 553, 219 S.E.2d 508 (1975); Key v. Wagner Woodcraft, Inc., 33 N.C. App. 310, 235 S.E.2d 254 (1977); Smith v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 35 N.C. App. 105, 239 S.E.2d 845 (1978); Curtis v. Carolina Mechanical Sys., 36 N.C. App. 621, 244 S.E.2d 690 (1978); Gladson v. Piedmont Stores/Scotties Dist. Drug Store, 57 N.C. App. 579, 292 S.E.2d 18, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 556, 294 S.E.2d 370 (1982); Davis v. Raleigh Rental Center, 58 N.C. App. 113, 292 S.E.2d 763 (1982); Norris v. Kivettco, Inc., 58 N.C. App. 376, 293 S.E.2d 594 (1982); Adams v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 61 N.C. App. 258, 300 S.E.2d 455 (1983); Poe v. Acme Bldrs., 69 N.C. App. 147, 316 S.E.2d 338, cert. denied, 311 N.C. 762, 321 S.E.2d 143 (1984); Sanderson v. Northeast Constr. Co., 77 N.C. App. 117, 334 S.E.2d 392 (1985).

Willful or Criminal Assault by Third Person. — Injuries resulting from an assault are caused by "accident" when, from the employee's perspective, the assault was unexpected and was without design on her part. Hauser v. Advanced Plasti-form, Inc., 133 N.C. App. 378, 514 S.E.2d 545 (1999).

Death by Gunshot. — Industrial Commission did not err in concluding that plaintiffs were entitled to a presumption of compensability, where defendants failed to rebut the presumption that the death of an employee who died from a gunshot wound was accidental and arose out of his employment. Horton v. Powell Plumbing & Heating of N.C., Inc., 135 N.C. App. 211, 519 S.E.2d 550 (1999).

Plaintiff, who had been employed by defendant for five years in an office job before her work-related injury and who testified that she was not yet proficient in defendant's filling department, was not performing her usual work routine at the time of accidental injury on her fifth day on the production line; thus, the commission's conclusion that the plaintiff suffered an injury by accident was accordingly upheld. Church v. Baxter Travenol Labs., Inc., 104 N.C. App. 411, 409 S.E.2d 715 (1991).

Circumstances sufficient to constitute an interruption of a given work routine typically involve an undertaking by the employee of duties not usual and customary. Poe v. Acme Bldrs., 69 N.C. App. 147, 316 S.E.2d 338, cert. denied, 311 N.C. 762, 321 S.E.2d 143 (1984).

The assigning of an employee to a particular task where the work routine for the employee involves a variety of tasks does not necessarily constitute an interruption of the work. Poe v. Acme Bldrs., 69 N.C. App. 147, 316 S.E.2d 338, cert. denied, 311 N.C. 762, 321 S.E.2d 143 (1984).

An injury which occurs under normal work conditions is not considered an accident arising out of employment, and work conditions may be considered normal despite the presence of changed circumstances. Trudell v. Seven Lakes Heating & Air Conditioning Co., 55 N.C. App. 89, 284 S.E.2d 538 (1981).

An injury which occurs under normal work conditions is not considered an accident arising out of employment. Poe v. Acme Bldrs., 69 N.C. App. 147, 316 S.E.2d 338, cert. denied, 311 N.C. 762, 321 S.E.2d 143 (1984).

Once an activity, even a strenuous or otherwise unusual activity, becomes a part of the employee's normal work routine, an injury caused by such activity is not the result of an interruption of the work routine or otherwise an "injury by accident" under the Workers' Compensation Act. Bowles v. CTS of Asheville, Inc., 77 N.C. App. 547, 335 S.E.2d 502 (1985).

No matter how great the injury, if it is caused by an event that involves both an employee's normal work routine and normal working conditions it will not be considered to have been caused by an accident. Swindell v. Davis Boat Works, Inc., 78 N.C. App. 393, 337 S.E.2d 592 (1985), cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 316 N.C. 385, 342 S.E.2d 908 (1986).

The Industrial Commission's conclusion of law that plaintiff did not sustain a compensable injury was adequately supported by its finding that plaintiff's back pain was not the result of any interruption of her normal work routine, in that plaintiff was doing her usual job in her usual and customary manner, and was not the result of any specific traumatic incident, in that plaintiff had experienced back pain over an extended period of time. Causby v. Bernhardt Furn. Co., 83 N.C. App. 650, 351 S.E.2d 106 (1986).

There must be some new circumstance not a part of usual work routine in order to find that an accident has occurred. Swindell v. Davis Boat Works, Inc., 78 N.C. App. 393, 337 S.E.2d 592 (1985), cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 316 N.C. 385, 342 S.E.2d 908 (1986).

Accident Must Have Had Origin in a Risk Connected with Employment. — To be compensable, the accident need not have been foreseen or expected, but after the event it must appear to have had its origin in a risk connected with the employment, and to have flowed from that source as a rational consequence. Pittman v. Twin City Laundry & Cleaners, 61 N.C. App. 468, 300 S.E.2d 899 (1983).

An accident has a reasonable relationship to the employment when it is the result of a risk or hazard incident to the employment. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

And some risk inherent to the employment must be a contributing proximate cause of the injury and the risk must be enhanced by the employment and must be one to which the worker would not have been equally exposed apart from the employment. Pittman v. Twin City Laundry & Cleaners, 61 N.C. App. 468, 300 S.E.2d 899 (1983).

There must be competent evidence to support the inference that the accident in question resulted in the injury complained of, i.e., some evidence that the accident at least might have or could have produced the particular disability in question. Click v. Pilot Freight Carriers, Inc., 300 N.C. 164, 265 S.E.2d 389 (1980).

Death from injury by accident implies a result produced by a fortuitous cause. Slade v. Willis Hosiery Mills, 209 N.C. 823, 184 S.E. 844 (1936); Hensley v. Farmers Fed'n Coop., 246 N.C. 274, 98 S.E.2d 289 (1957); Harding v. Thomas & Howard Co., 256 N.C. 427, 124 S.E.2d 109 (1962); O'Mary v. Land Clearing Corp., 261 N.C. 508, 135 S.E.2d 193 (1964); Jackson v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 272 N.C. 697, 158 S.E.2d 865 (1968).

Physical exertion may in and of itself be the precipitating cause of an injury by accident within the meaning of this section. Hollar v. Montclair Furn. Co., 48 N.C. App. 489, 269 S.E.2d 667 (1980).

Evidence of the necessity of extreme exertion is sufficient to bring into an event causing an injury the necessary element of unusualness and unexpectedness from which accident may be inferred. Porter v. Shelby Knit, Inc., 46 N.C. App. 22, 264 S.E.2d 360 (1980).

Extra exertion by the employee, resulting in injury, may qualify as an injury by accident. Jackson v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 272 N.C. 697, 158 S.E.2d 865 (1968).

It is well-settled in this State that an extra or unusual degree of exertion by an employee while performing a job may constitute the unforeseen or unusual event or condition necessary to make any resulting injury an injury "by accident." Jackson v. Fayetteville Area Sys. of Transp., 88 N.C. App. 123, 362 S.E.2d 569 (1987).

Injury arising out of lifting objects in the ordinary course of an employee's business is not caused by accident where such activity is performed in the ordinary manner, free from confining or otherwise exceptional conditions and surroundings. Beamon v. Stop & Shop Grocery, 27 N.C. App. 553, 219 S.E.2d 508 (1975); Curtis v. Carolina Mechanical Sys., 36 N.C. App. 621, 244 S.E.2d 690 (1978).

Injury to Nurse Lifting Patient. — Where labor and delivery nurse injured herself while lifting the legs of a 263 pound woman in order to facilitate delivery, the evidence did not support the Industrial Commission's denial of compensation based on the finding that plaintiff's injuries "occurred while performing her usual employment duties in the usual way." Calderwood v. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth., 135 N.C. App. 112, 519 S.E.2d 61 (1999).

Where employee was not engaged in his routine duties in his customary fashion at the time he sustained an injury to his back, the injury was accidental and compensable. Sanderson v. Northeast Constr. Co., 77 N.C. App. 117, 334 S.E.2d 392 (1985), decision prior to the 1983 amendment to subdivision (6).

Insufficient to Show that Activity Caused No Pain in Past. — It is insufficient as a matter of law to show only that in the past a regular activity caused no pain and that the same activity now causes pain; there must be a specific fortuitous event, rather than a gradual build-up of pain, in order to show injury by accident. Bowles v. CTS of Asheville, Inc., 77 N.C. App. 547, 335 S.E.2d 502 (1985).

Damage to heart tissue clearly precipitated or caused by "overexertion" constitutes an injury by accident. Weaver v. Swedish Imports Maintenance, Inc., 61 N.C. App. 662, 301 S.E.2d 736 (1983).

Death from Heart Disease. — Ordinarily a death from heart disease is not an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, nor an occupational disease, so as to be compensable. Bellamy v. Morace Stevedoring Co., 258 N.C. 327, 128 S.E.2d 395 (1962).

Cardiac Arrhythmia. — Defendant presented sufficient evidence to rebut the presumption under Pickrell v. Motor Convoy, Inc., 322 N.C. 363, 368 S.E.2d 582 (1988), that decedent sustained an injury by accident, where the evidence indicated that there was nothing unusual about the route, the hours, or the amount or type of deliveries required of decedent on the day of his death, and that the cause of his death was cardiac arrhythmia, which was a sudden, fatal irregular heart beat, precipitated by the severe ischemic heart disease, and where the autopsy revealed no evidence of trauma. Bason v. Kraft Food Serv., Inc., 140 N.C. App. 124, 535 S.E.2d 606 (2000).

Heart Attack. — When one is carrying on his usual work in the usual way and suffers a heart attack, the injury does not arise by accident out of and in the course of employment. Jackson v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n., 272 N.C. 697, 158 S.E.2d 865 (1968).

Deaths from heart attacks which occur in the usual course of employment are not compensable. Jackson v. North Carolina State Hwy Comm'n., 272 N.C. 697, 158 S.E.2d 865 (1968).

Where an injury is caused by a heart attack, the plaintiff must show that it was precipitated by some unusual or extraordinary exertion. Dillingham v. Yeargin Constr. Co., 82 N.C. App. 684, 348 S.E.2d 143 (1986), rev'd on other grounds, 320 N.C. 499, 358 S.E.2d 380 (1987).

Evidence that the room temperature in the nuclear power plant was 85 degrees and that the worker suffered heat exhaustion while wearing a radiation suit which inhibited his body's ability to radiate heat unequivocally demonstrated that the worker was exposed to an increased risk of heat-related illness because of his employment and that the worker's subsequent cardiac arrest was a compensable "accident." Dillingham v. Yeargin Constr. Co., 320 N.C. 499, 358 S.E.2d 380, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 639, 360 S.E.2d 84 (1987).

Heart Attack Held to Be Accident. — Where decedent's heart attack followed a period of unusually high exertion which was unusual and not a normal part of his work routine, there was competent evidence to support the findings that death was an accident within the meaning of the Workers' Compensation Act. Wall v. North Hills Properties, Inc., 125 N.C. App. 357, 481 S.E.2d 303 (1997), cert. denied, 346 N.C. 289, 487 S.E.2d 573 (1997).

Death of a fireman from heart failure brought on by excitement and exhaustion in fighting a fire is not the result of an accident within the meaning of the Workers' Compensation Act, heat, smoke, excitement, and physical exertion being the ordinary and expected incidents of the employment. Neely v. City of Statesville, 212 N.C. 365, 193 S.E. 664 (1937). See also Lewter v. Abercrombie Enters., 240 N.C. 399, 82 S.E.2d 410 (1954).

Amendment to § 97-53 by Session Laws 1949, c. 1078, so as to make certain heart diseases compensable as occupational diseases when contracted by firemen was held unconstitutional in Duncan v. City of Charlotte, 234 N.C. 86, 66 S.E.2d 22 (1951) and Davis v. City of Winston-Salem, 234 N.C. 95, 66 S.E.2d 28 (1951). See 30 N.C.L. Rev. 98 (1951).

Injury While Shifting Position. — Where plaintiff, a carpenter, was hired to perform a number of tasks connected with employer's home improvement business, injury which occurred when he shifted his position while shingling a roof was deemed to have occurred under normal work conditions, and was not compensable as an injury suffered as the result of an accident. Poe v. Acme Bldrs., 69 N.C. App. 147, 316 S.E.2d 338, cert. denied, 311 N.C. 762, 321 S.E.2d 143 (1984).

Rupture of Intervertebral Disc. — To sustain an award of compensation in ruptured or slipped disc cases, the injury to be classed as arising by accident must involve more than merely carrying on the usual and customary duties in the usual way. Harding v. Thomas & Howard Co., 256 N.C. 427, 124 S.E.2d 109 (1962); Byrd v. Farmers Fed'n Coop., 260 N.C. 215, 132 S.E.2d 348 (1963); Lawrence v. Hatch Mill, 265 N.C. 329, 144 S.E.2d 3 (1965); Dunton v. Daniel Constr. Co., 19 N.C. App. 51, 198 S.E.2d 8 (1973); Pulley v. Migrant & Seasonal Farm-Workers Ass'n, 30 N.C. App. 94, 226 S.E.2d 227 (1976); Key v. Wagner Woodcraft, Inc., 33 N.C. App. 310, 235 S.E.2d 254 (1977).

An injury to the back from a herniated disc does not arise by accident if the employee at the time is merely carrying on his usual and customary duties in the usual way. Byrd v. Farmers Fed'n Coop., 260 N.C. 215, 132 S.E.2d 348 (1963).

Degenerative disc condition which is a gradual deterioration occurring over the years is excluded from the definition of "accident." Griffitts v. Thomasville Furn. Co., 65 N.C. App. 369, 309 S.E.2d 277 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 477, 312 S.E.2d 884 (1984).

Back Injury. — A back injury or hernia suffered by an employee does not arise by accident if the employee at the time was merely carrying out his usual and customary duties in the usual way. Lawrence v. Hatch Mill, 265 N.C. 329, 144 S.E.2d 3 (1965).

Back Injury Resulting from Specific Traumatic Incident at Cognizable Time. — Where a 57-year-old woman, who performed secretarial tasks for her employer, suffered back pain the day after she helped carry a heavy, unwieldy spotlight up a flight of steps while walking backwards and bending over at the waist, and where the activity was not within her normal work routine, the claimant's injury resulted from a specific traumatic incident that occurred at a cognizable time. Beam v. Floyd's Creek Baptist Church, 99 N.C. App. 767, 394 S.E.2d 191 (1990).

Specific Traumatic Incidents. — A specific traumatic incident need not involve unusual conditions or a departure from the claimant's normal work routine. Lettlely v. Trash Removal Serv., 91 N.C. App. 625, 372 S.E.2d 747 (1988).

Back injuries that occur gradually, over long periods of time, are not specific traumatic incidents; however, events which occur contemporaneously, during a cognizable time period, and which cause a back injury, do fit the definition intended by the legislature. Richards v. Town of Valdese, 92 N.C. App. 222, 374 S.E.2d 116 (1988), cert. denied, 324 N.C. 337, 378 S.E.2d 799 (1989).

A "specific traumatic incident" could occur during a "cognizable time" of two hours but in every case there must be evidence of proximate cause between the "specific traumatic incident" and the injury. Livingston v. James C. Fields & Co., 93 N.C. App. 336, 377 S.E.2d 788 (1989).

"Specific traumatic incident" amendment to subdivision (6) was intended to supplement the law related to back injuries, not to supplant it. The effect of the amendment was to eliminate the need to show an external cause or unusual conditions in order for a worker to receive compensation for a back injury. Instead, what may be shown is that the back injury arose in the course of the employment and that the injury was "the direct result of a specific traumatic incident of the work assigned." Caskie v. R.M. Butler & Co., 85 N.C.

The 1983 amendment to subdivision (6) relaxes the requirement that there be some unusual circumstance that accompanies a back injury. Richards v. Town of Valdese, 92 N.C. App. 222, 374 S.E.2d 116 (1988), cert. denied, 324 N.C. 337, 378 S.E.2d 799 (1989).

Back injuries that occur gradually, over long periods of time, are not specific traumatic incidents; however, events which occur contemporaneously, during a cognizable time period, and which cause a back injury, do fit the definition intended by the legislature. Glynn v. Pepcom Indus., Inc., 122 N.C. App. 348, 469 S.E.2d 588 (1996).

The onset of pain is not a "specific traumatic incident" that will determine whether compensation for a back injury will be allowed pursuant to the act; rather, pain is as a general rule the result of a "specific traumatic incident." Roach v. Lupoli Constr. Co., 88 N.C. App. 271, 362 S.E.2d 823 (1987).

Injury to Back Must Be Causally Related. — Even if a specific traumatic incident occurs to constitute a compensable "injury by accident" there must be a "disabling physical injury to the back arising out of and causally related to such incident." Lettlely v. Trash Removal Serv., 91 N.C. App. 625, 372 S.E.2d 747 (1988).

Back Injury and Pain Need Not Occur Simultaneously. — Just because claimant felt pain for the first time hours after he allegedly injured his back did not mean that the "specific traumatic incident" could not have occurred when he said it did. Logic dictates that injury and pain do not have to occur simultaneously for claimant to establish that he sustained a compensable injury. Roach v. Lupoli Constr. Co., 88 N.C. App. 271, 362 S.E.2d 823 (1987).

Evidence Supported Finding of Back Injury. — Based on evidence that repeated lifting of cases of cigarettes, coupled with twisting and contorting in a cramped area to reach in behind and on top of cigarette display rack, was not part of plaintiff's job routine, and the commission's finding that plaintiff had never performed as much repetitious lifting and stacking of cases on a single day as she did on the date of her back injury, under existing case law, without deciding the issue of specific traumatic incident, the commission should have concluded that plaintiff's back injury was an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of employment, thereby qualifying as a compensable injury under the first sentence of subdivision (6). Caskie v. R.M. Butler & Co., 85 N.C. App. 266, 354 S.E.2d 242 (1987).

Where volunteer fireman could point to a series of contemporaneous events which could have caused his back injury, it was error for the commission to conclude as a matter of law that employee suffered no injury as a result of a specific traumatic injury. Richards v. Town of Valdeese, 92 N.C. App. 222, 374 S.E.2d 116 (1988), cert. denied, 324 N.C. 337, 378 S.E.2d 799 (1989).

Evidence Insufficient to Find Back Injury. — Where plaintiff injured her back during her previous employment, was treated for back pain over a period of time, and the pain which plaintiff experienced during her employment with defendant was in the same area of her back that had been injured during plaintiff's prior employment, there was competent evidence to support the Commission's findings and conclusion that plaintiff's back condition was neither caused by nor aggravated by an injury, by accident or by specific traumatic incident at her new employment. Thompson v. Tyson Foods, Inc., 119 N.C. App. 411, 458 S.E.2d 746 (1995).

Employer's Knowledge of Earlier Injury Did Not Make Injury Compensable. — Finding of the Commission that plaintiff's back injury was not accidental, in that the evidence failed to disclose an interruption of plaintiff's normal work routine, which involved the regular and repetitive lifting, albeit without usage of his left hand, was supported by the evidence, despite plaintiff's argument that because his employer knew of disability certificate given him by his physician following an earlier hand injury but nonetheless assigned him duties which involved lifting heavy objects, the injury occurred as a matter of law outside his normal work routine. Pittman v. Inco, Inc., 78 N.C. App. 134, 336 S.E.2d 637 (1985), cert. denied, 315 N.C. 589, 341 S.E.2d 28 (1986).

Death by violent means is prima facie evidence of death by accident. McGill v. Town of Lumberton, 215 N.C. 752, 3 S.E.2d 324 (1939).

The burden of proving suicide is upon the party seeking to establish it. McGill v. Town of Lumberton, 215 N.C. 752, 3 S.E.2d 324 (1939).

Employee Found Dead or Injured at His Place of Employment. — Deceased was required to report to work before daylight. On the particular morning in question, he was told to return later in the day. At daylight he was found in a dying condition at the base of an unlighted platform on defendant's premises. Deceased had to cross the platform to leave the premises. It was held that there was sufficient evidence to sustain the finding that the accident arose out of deceased's employment. Morgan v. Cleveland Cloth Mills, 207 N.C. 317, 177 S.E. 165 (1934).

Where claimants' evidence tended to show that deceased was employed as chief of police of defendant municipality and that deceased died as a result of a shot from a pistol while he was in office, proof of death by violence raised a presumption of accidental death, casting the burden of going forward with the evidence upon the employer and insurance carrier to show that deceased killed himself; and claimants' evidence was sufficient to support the finding of the Industrial Commission that death resulted from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. McGill v. Town of Lumberton, 218 N.C. 586, 11 S.E.2d 873 (1940).

Evidence tending to show that deceased came to his death as a result of a pistol wound while at a place where he had a right to be in the course of his employment, without evidence that he was authorized to keep a pistol or to use it in the business of the employer, was insufficient to support an award of compensation on the ground that in the absence of a showing of suicide it would be presumed that the death resulted from an accident, since, even so, there was neither presumption nor evidence to support the necessary basis for compensation that the accident arose out of the employment. Bolling v. Belk-White Co., 228 N.C. 749, 46 S.E.2d 838 (1948).

Intentional Injurious Acts Excluded. — The qualifications that an accident cannot be expected or designed operate narrowly to exclude intentional injurious acts. Searsey v. Perry M. Alexander Constr. Co., 35 N.C. App. 78, 239 S.E.2d 847, cert. denied, 294 N.C. 736, 244 S.E.2d 154 (1978).

Injury Resulting from Fellow Employees' Negligence. — An injury suffered by an employee while engaged in his master's business within the scope of his employment proximately resulting from the negligence of fellow employees is, as to the employee, an "accident" arising out of and in the course of his employment. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

Acts of negligence of the employee do not bar compensation for an original injury arising out of and in the course of employment. Starr v. Charlotte Paper Co., 8 N.C. App. 604, 175 S.E.2d 342 (1970); Bartlett v. Duke Univ., 17 N.C. App. 598, 195 S.E.2d 371, rev'd on other grounds, 284 N.C. 230, 200 S.E.2d 193 (1973).

Injury by Accident Distinguished from Occupational Disease. — An injury by accident, as that term is ordinarily understood, is distinguished from an occupational disease in that the former rises from a definite event, the time and place of which can be fixed, while the latter develops gradually over a long period of time. Henry v. Lawrence Leather Co., 234 N.C. 126, 66 S.E.2d 693 (1951).

VI. ARISING OUT OF AND IN THE COURSE OF EMPLOYMENT.

A. In General.

"Out of and in the Course of" Construed. — An accident arises out of and in the course of the employment when it occurs while the employee is engaged in some activity or duty which he is authorized to undertake and which is calculated to further, directly or indirectly, the employer's business. Perry v. American Bakeries Co., 262 N.C. 272, 136 S.E.2d 643 (1964); Bryan v. First Free Will Baptist Church, 267 N.C. 111, 147 S.E.2d 633 (1966); Clark v. Burton Lines, 272 N.C. 433, 158 S.E.2d 569 (1968); Martin v. Georgia-Pacific Corp., 5 N.C. App. 37, 167 S.E.2d 790 (1969); Martin v. Bonclarken Ass'y, 296 N.C. 540, 251 S.E.2d 403 (1979); Long v. Asphalt Paving Co., 47 N.C. App. 564, 268 S.E.2d 1 (1980); Hoyle v. Isenhour Brick & Tile Co., 306 N.C. 248, 293 S.E.2d 196 (1982); Powers v. Lady's Funeral Home, 306 N.C. 728, 295 S.E.2d 473 (1982).

The words "out of" refer to the origin or cause of the accident. The words "in the course of" refer to the time, place, and circumstances under which an accident occurs. Ridout v. Rose's 5-10-25¢ Stores, 205 N.C. 423, 171 S.E. 642 (1933); Plemmons v. White's Serv., 213 N.C. 148, 195 S.E. 370 (1938); Wilson v. Town of Mooresville, 222 N.C. 283, 22 S.E.2d 907 (1942); Brown v. Carolina Aluminum Co., 224 N.C. 766, 32 S.E.2d 320 (1944); Taylor v. Town of Wake Forest, 228 N.C. 346, 45 S.E.2d 387 (1947); Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949); Matthews v. Carolina Std. Corp., 232 N.C. 229, 60 S.E.2d 93 (1950); Berry v. Colonial Furn. Co., 232 N.C. 303, 60 S.E.2d 97 (1950); Bell v. Dewey Bros., 236 N.C. 280, 72 S.E.2d 680 (1952); Sweatt v. Rutherford County Bd. of Educ., 237 N.C. 653, 75 S.E.2d 738 (1953); Lewter v. Abercrombie Enters., 240 N.C. 399, 82 S.E.2d 410 (1954); Zimmerman v. Elizabeth City Freezer Locker, 244 N.C. 628, 94 S.E.2d 813 (1956); Hardy v. Small, 246 N.C. 581, 99 S.E.2d 862 (1957); Sandy v. Stackhouse, Inc., 258 N.C. 194, 128 S.E.2d 218 (1962); Bass v. Mecklenburg County, 258 N.C. 226, 128 S.E.2d 570 (1962); Cole v. Guilford County, 259 N.C. 724, 131 S.E.2d 308 (1963); Bryan v. First Free Will Baptist Church, 267 N.C. 111, 147 S.E.2d 633 (1966); Clark v. Burton Lines, 272 N.C. 433, 158 S.E.2d 569 (1968); Robinson v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 13 N.C. App. 208, 185 S.E.2d 333 (1971); Enroughty v. Black Indus., Inc., 13 N.C. App. 400, 185 S.E.2d 597, cert. denied, 280 N.C. 721, 186 S.E.2d 923 (1972); Battle v. Bryant Elec. Co., 15 N.C. App. 246, 189 S.E.2d 788, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 755, 191 S.E.2d 353 (1972); Lee v. F.M. Henderson & Assocs., 17 N.C. App. 475, 195 S.E.2d 48, aff'd, 284 N.C. 126, 200 S.E.2d 32 (1973); Bartlett v. Duke Univ., 17 N.C. App. 598, 195 S.E.2d 371, rev'd on other grounds, 284 N.C. 230, 200 S.E.2d 193 (1973); Watkins v. City of Wilmington, 290 N.C. 276, 225 S.E.2d 577 (1976); Goldston v. Goldston Concrete Works, Inc., 29 N.C. App. 717, 225 S.E.2d 332, cert. denied, 290 N.C. 660, 228 S.E.2d 452 (1976);

Gallimore v. Marilyn's Shoes, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977); Barham v. Food World, Inc., 300 N.C. 329, 266 S.E.2d 676, rehearing denied, 300 N.C. 562, 270 S.E.2d 105 (1980); Hoyle v. Isenhour Brick & Tile Co., 306 N.C. 248, 293 S.E.2d 196 (1982); Pittman v. Twin City Laundry & Cleaners, 61 N.C. App. 468, 300 S.E.2d 899 (1983).

An accident occurring during the course of employment does not ipso facto arise out of it. Robbins v. Nicholson, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972); Watkins v. City of Wilmington, 290 N.C. 276, 225 S.E.2d 577 (1976); Smith v. Dacotah Cotton Mills, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 687, 230 S.E.2d 772 (1976).

As the phrases "arising out of" and "in the course of" are not synonymous; they involve two ideas and impose a double condition, both of which must be satisfied in order to bring a case within the act. Sweatt v. Rutherford County Bd. of Educ., 237 N.C. 653, 75 S.E.2d 738 (1953); Robbins v. Nicholson, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972); Battle v. Bryant Elec. Co., 15 N.C. App. 246, 189 S.E.2d 788, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 755, 191 S.E.2d 353 (1972); Gallimore v. Marilyn's Shoes, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977); Martin v. Bonclarken Ass'y, 296 N.C. 540, 251 S.E.2d 403 (1979); Barham v. Food World, Inc., 300 N.C. 329, 266 S.E.2d 676, rehearing denied, 300 N.C. 562, 270 S.E.2d 105 (1980); Brown v. Jim Brown's Serv. Station, 45 N.C. App. 255, 262 S.E.2d 700 (1980); Hoyle v. Isenhour Brick & Tile Co., 306 N.C. 248, 293 S.E.2d 196 (1982); Powers v. Lady's Funeral Home, 57 N.C. App. 25, 290 S.E.2d 720, rev'd on other grounds, 306 N.C. 728, 295 S.E.2d 473 (1982).

To be compensable under the act an injury must arise out of and be received in the course of employment. Two ideas are involved here. The words "in the course of" refer to the time, place, and circumstances surrounding the accident, while the words "arising out of" have reference to the causal connection between the injury and the employment. Davis v. North State Veneer Corp., 200 N.C. 263, 156 S.E. 859 (1931); Parrish v. Armour & Co., 200 N.C. 654, 158 S.E. 188 (1931); Walker v. Wilkins, Inc., 212 N.C. 627, 194 S.E. 89 (1937); McGill v. Town of Lumberton, 215 N.C. 752, 3 S.E.2d 324 (1939); Matthews v. Carolina Std. Corp., 232 N.C. 229, 60 S.E.2d 93 (1950); Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968); Forsythe v. INCO, 95 N.C. App. 742, 384 S.E.2d 30 (1989).

The phrase "arising out of and in the course of employment" encompasses two separate and distinct concepts — "out of" and "in the course of" — both of which must be satisfied in order for particular injuries to be compensable under the act. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968); Murray v. Biggerstaff, 81 N.C. App. 377, 344 S.E.2d 550, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 696, 350 S.E.2d 858 (1986).

The term "arising out of" refers to the origin of the injury or the causal connection of the injury to the employment, while the term "in the course of" refers to the time, place and circumstances under which the injury occurred. Schmoyer v. Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 81 N.C. App. 140, 343 S.E.2d 551, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 417, 349 S.E.2d 600 (1986).

But They Are Not Applied Entirely Independently. — In practice, the "course of employment" and "arising out of employment" tests are not, and should not be, applied entirely independently; they are both parts of a single test of work-connection, and therefore deficiencies in the strength of one factor are sometimes allowed to be made up by strengths in the other. Lee v. F.M. Henderson & Assocs., 284 N.C. 126, 200 S.E.2d 32 (1973); Watkins v. City of Wilmington, 290 N.C. 276, 225 S.E.2d 577 (1976).

Deficiencies in One Factor May Be Made Up by the Other. — Since the terms of the Workers' Compensation Act should be liberally construed in favor of compensation, deficiencies in one factor are sometimes allowed to be made up by strength in the other. Hoyle v. Isenhour Brick & Tile Co., 306 N.C. 248, 293 S.E.2d 196 (1982).

Natural Consequences of Primary Injury Arising Out of and in Course of Employment. — When the primary injury is shown to have arisen out of and in the course of employment, every natural consequence that flows from the injury likewise arises out of the employment, unless it is the result of an independent intervening cause attributable to claimant's own intentional conduct. Thus, a subsequent injury, whether an aggravation of the original injury or a new and distinct injury, is compensable if it is the direct and natural result of a compensable primary injury. Starr v. Charlotte Paper Co., 8 N.C. App. 604, 175 S.E.2d 342 (1970).

Mixed Question of Law and Fact. — Whether an injury by accident arises out of and in the course of the employment is a mixed question of law and of fact. Hardy v. Small, 246 N.C. 581, 99 S.E.2d 862 (1957); Bryan v. First Free Will Baptist Church, 267 N.C. 111, 147 S.E.2d 633 (1966); Enroughty v. Black Indus., Inc., 13 N.C. App. 400, 185 S.E.2d 597, cert. denied, 280 N.C. 721, 186 S.E.2d 923 (1972); Lee v. F.M. Henderson & Assocs., 17 N.C. App. 475, 195 S.E.2d 48, aff'd, 284 N.C. 126, 200 S.E.2d 32 (1973); Goldston v. Goldston Concrete Works, Inc., 29 N.C. App. 717, 225 S.E.2d 332, cert. denied, 290 N.C. 660, 228 S.E.2d 452 (1976); Long v. Asphalt Paving Co., 47 N.C. App. 564, 268 S.E.2d 1 (1980); Schmoyer v. Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 81 N.C. App. 140, 343 S.E.2d 551, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 417, 349 S.E.2d 600 (1986); Pittman v.

International Paper Co., 132 N.C. App. 151, 510 S.E.2d 705 (1999), cert. denied, 350 N.C. 310, 534 S.E.2d 596 (1999), aff'd, 351 N.C. 42, 519 S.E.2d 524 (1999).

Conclusive Effect of Commission's Findings. — Whether an employee sustained an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment with the defendant employer resulting in his death is a mixed question of law and fact, and the finding of the Commission as to the factual portion is conclusive if supported by any competent evidence. McManus v. Chick Haven Farms, 4 N.C. App. 177, 166 S.E.2d 526 (1969).

The issue of whether a particular accident arises out of and in the course of employment is a mixed question of fact and law, and appellate review is limited on appeal to the question of whether the findings and conclusions are supported by competent evidence. Hoyle v. Isenhour Brick & Tile Co., 306 N.C. 248, 293 S.E.2d 196 (1982).

Whether an injury arose out of and in the course of employment is a mixed question of fact and law, and where there is evidence to support the Commission's findings, the appellate court is bound by them. Hemric v. Reed & Prince Mfg. Co., 54 N.C. App. 314, 283 S.E.2d 436 (1981), cert. denied, 304 N.C. 726, 288 S.E.2d 806 (1982); Hoffman v. Ryder Truck Lines, 306 N.C. 502, 293 S.E.2d 807 (1982).

Injury While Performing Task Which Was Not Part of Job. — Where it was not a part of the plaintiff's job to clean tote tank, the tote tank was not supposed to be cleaned and the cleaning of it did not further the business of the employer, the Industrial Commission was correct in concluding that plaintiff was "not about his work" when he was overcome by fumes while cleaning the tote tank. Parker v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 78 N.C. App. 517, 337 S.E.2d 589 (1985).

Where the employer did not own or control the public street on which plaintiff was injured, where plaintiff was not performing any duties for employer at the time of the injury and was not exposed to any greater danger than that of the public generally, plaintiff did not suffer an injury arising out of and in the course of his employment. Royster v. Culp, Inc., 343 N.C. 279, 470 S.E.2d 30 (1996).

Cocktail waitress's injuries sustained when she tried to escape from a guest of the resort who had kidnapped and sexually assaulted her, arose out of and in the course of her employment, even though the attack occurred after the employee's workday ended when she stopped on a resort road to assist the guest, who she assumed had car trouble. Culpepper v. Fairfield Sapphire Valley, 93 N.C. App. 242, 377 S.E.2d 777, aff'd, 325 N.C. 702, 386 S.E.2d 174 (1989).

If employee does something which he is not specifically ordered not to do by a then present superior and the thing he does furthers the business of the employer although it is not a part of the employee's job, an injury sustained by accident while he is so performing is in the course of employment. This has been characterized as "being about his work." Parker v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 78 N.C. App. 517, 337 S.E.2d 589 (1985).

A volunteer fireman, who is injured by the negligence of a fellow volunteer fireman, at a time when both are acting in the course and scope of their duties, is barred from pursuing a negligence action against the fellow fireman. Hix v. Jenkins, 118 N.C. App. 103, 453 S.E.2d 551 (1995).

Insect Stings. — To be compensable, an insect sting must be an injury by accident which arose out of and in the course of plaintiff's employment. Minter v. Osborne Co., 127 N.C. App. 134, 487 S.E.2d 835 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 401, 494 S.E.2d 415 (1997).

The increased risk test is the appropriate test for ascertaining whether an employee's injuries from an insect sting arose out of his employment. Minter v. Osborne Co., 127 N.C. App. 134, 487 S.E.2d 835 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 401, 494 S.E.2d 415 (1997).

Where plaintiff failed to show that he was at an increased risk of being stung than a member of the general public, the sting was not an accident or an injury arising out of the employment. Minter v. Osborne Co., 127 N.C. App. 134, 487 S.E.2d 835 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 401, 494 S.E.2d 415 (1997).

B. Arising Out of.

"Arising out of" relates to the origin or cause of the accident. Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963); Robbins v. Nicholson, 10 N.C. App. 421, 179 S.E.2d 183 (1971), rev'd on other grounds, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972); Robbins v. Nicholson, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972); Battle v. Bryant Elec. Co., 15 N.C. App. 246, 189 S.E.2d 788, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 755, 191 S.E.2d 353 (1972); Strickland v. King, 32 N.C. App. 222, 231 S.E.2d 193, rev'd on other grounds, 293 N.C. 731, 239 S.E.2d 243 (1977); Powers v. Lady's Funeral Home, 57 N.C. App. 25, 290 S.E.2d 720, rev'd on other grounds, 306 N.C. 728, 295 S.E.2d 473 (1982).

The phrase "arising out of" has reference to the origin or cause of the accident. But this is not to say that the accident must have been caused by the employment. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

The term "arising out of" refers to the origin or causal connection of the accidental injury to the employment. For an accident to "arise out of" an employment, there must be some causal connection between the employment and the injury. Bare v. Wayne Poultry Co., 70 N.C. App. 88, 318 S.E.2d 534 (1984), cert. denied, 312 N.C. 796, 325 S.E.2d 484 (1985).

Rule of Causal Relation Enunciated. —

An injury to be compensable must be shown to have resulted from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. This principle has come to be known and referred to as the rule of causal relation, i.e., that injury to be compensable must spring from the employment. This rule of causal relation is the very sheet anchor of the Workers' Compensation Act. It has kept the act within the limits of its intended scope — that of providing compensation benefits for industrial injuries, rather than branching out into the field of general health insurance benefits. Duncan v. City of Charlotte, 234 N.C. 86, 66 S.E.2d 22 (1951); Perry v. American Bakeries Co., 262 N.C. 272, 136 S.E.2d 643 (1964).

The requirement that an injury to be compensable must be shown to have resulted from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment is known and referred to as the "rule of causal relation." Bryan v. First Free Will Baptist Church, 267 N.C. 111, 147 S.E.2d 633 (1966).

The rule of causal relation is the very sheet anchor of the Workers' Compensation Act, and prevents the act from being a general health and insurance benefit act. Bryan v. First Free Will Baptist Church, 267 N.C. 111, 147 S.E.2d 633 (1966).

There Must Be a Causal Connection Between Employment and Injury. —

The accident "arises out of" the employment when it occurs in the course of the employment and is the result of a risk involved therein or incident thereto, or to the conditions under which it is required to be performed. There must be some causal connection between the employment and the injury. Bolling v. Belk-White Co., 228 N.C. 749, 46 S.E.2d 838 (1948); Perry v. American Bakeries Co., 262 N.C. 272, 136 S.E.2d 643 (1964); Lee v. F.M. Henderson & Assocs., 284 N.C. 126, 200 S.E.2d 32 (1973).

An injury "arises out of" the employment when it occurs in the course of the employment and is a natural and probable consequence or incident of it, so that there is some causal relation between the accident and the performance of some service of the employment. Rewis v. New York Like Ins. Co., 226 N.C. 325, 38 S.E.2d 97 (1946); Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949); Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963); Watkins v. City of Wilmington, 290 N.C. 276, 225 S.E.2d 577 (1976).

There must be some causal relation between the employment and the injury. Bass v. Mecklenburg County, 258 N.C. 226, 128 S.E.2d 570 (1962); Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963); Harless v. Flynn, 1

N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968); Stubblefield v. Watson Elec. Constr. Co., 277 N.C. 444, 177 S.E.2d 882 (1970); Robbins v. Nicholson, 10 N.C. App. 421, 179 S.E.2d 183 (1971), rev'd on other grounds, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972); Watkins v. City of Wilmington, 290 N.C. 276, 225 S.E.2d 577 (1976); Gallimore v. Marilyn's Shoes, 30 N.C. App. 628, 228 S.E.2d 39 (1976), rev'd on other grounds, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977); Hensley v. Caswell Action Comm., Inc., 35 N.C. App. 544, 241 S.E.2d 852 (1978), rev'd on other grounds, 296 N.C. 527, 251 S.E.2d 399 (1979); Pittman v. Twin City Laundry & Cleaners, 61 N.C. App. 468, 300 S.E.2d 899 (1983).

For an accident to arise out of the employment there must be some causal connection between the injury and the employment. When an injury cannot fairly be traced to the employment as a contributing proximate cause, or if it comes from a hazard to which the employee would have been equally exposed apart from the employment, or from the hazard common to others, it does not arise out of the employment. In such a situation the fact that the injury occurred on the employer's premises is immaterial. Cole v. Guilford County, 259 N.C. 724, 131 S.E.2d 308 (1963); Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

An injury arises out of the employment when it is a natural and probable consequence or incident of the employment and a natural result of one of its risks, so that there is some causal relation between the injury and the performance of some service of the employment. Clark v. Burton Lines, 272 N.C. 433, 158 S.E.2d 569 (1968); Lee v. F.M. Henderson & Assocs., 17 N.C. App. 475, 195 S.E.2d 48, aff'd, 284 N.C. 126, 200 S.E.2d 32 (1973); Smith v. Dacotah Cotton Mills, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 687, 230 S.E.2d 772 (1976); Powers v. Lady's Funeral Home, 57 N.C. App. 25, 290 S.E.2d 720, rev'd on other grounds, 306 N.C. 728, 295 S.E.2d 473 (1982); Fortner v. J.K. Holding Co., 83 N.C. App. 101, 349 S.E.2d 296 (1986), aff'd, 319 N.C. 640, 357 S.E.2d 167 (1987).

The injury arises "out of" the employment when there is apparent to the rational mind upon consideration of all the circumstances a causal connection between the conditions under which the work is required to be performed and the resulting injury. Robbins v. Nicholson, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972); Patterson v. Gaston County, 62 N.C. App. 544, 303 S.E.2d 182, cert. denied, 309 N.C. 822, 310 S.E.2d 351 (1983).

The term "arising out of" requires an employee to demonstrate a causal connection between the injury complained of and an accident which occurred in the course of employment. Buck v. Procter & Gamble Mfg. Co., 52 N.C. App. 88, 278 S.E.2d 268 (1981).

But there is no requirement that the injury should be foreseen if it resulted from the employment, nor does the employment have to be the "sole" cause of the injury. Robbins v. Nicholson, 10 N.C. App. 421, 179 S.E.2d 183 (1971), rev'd on other grounds, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972); Gallimore v. Marilyn's Shoes, 30 N.C. App. 628, 228 S.E.2d 39 (1976), rev'd on other grounds, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977).

While there must be some causal connection between the employment and the injury, nevertheless it is sufficient if the injury is one which, after the event, may be seen to have had its origin in the employment, and it need not be shown that it is one which should have been foreseen or expected. Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949); Vause v. Vause Farm Equip. Co., 233 N.C. 88, 63 S.E.2d 173 (1951); Hinkle v. City of Lexington, 239 N.C. 105, 79 S.E.2d 220 (1953); Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963); Starr v. Charlotte Paper Co., 8 N.C. App. 604, 175 S.E.2d 342 (1970); Robbins v. Nicholson, 10 N.C. App. 421, 179 S.E.2d 183 (1971), rev'd on other grounds, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972); Goldston v. Goldston Concrete Works, Inc., 29 N.C. App. 717, 225 S.E.2d 332, cert. denied, 290 N.C. 660, 228 S.E.2d 452 (1976); Gallimore v. Marilyn's Shoes, 30 N.C. App. 628, 228 S.E.2d 39 (1976), rev'd on other grounds, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977).

The words "out of" as used in the act refer to the origin or cause of the accident and import that there must be some causal relation between the employment and the injury, but not that the injury ought to have been foreseen or expected. Guest v. Brenner Iron & Metal Co., 241 N.C. 448, 85 S.E.2d 596 (1955).

And Fact That Injury Could Not Have Been Anticipated Is Immaterial. — If it can be seen that the injury had its origin in the employment, it arises out of such employment, and the fact that it could not have been anticipated is immaterial. Conrad v. Cook-Lewis Foundry Co., 198 N.C. 723, 153 S.E. 266 (1930).

Injury Arises Out of Employment Where Reasonable Relationship Exists. — Where any reasonable relationship to employment exists, or employment is a contributory cause, the court is justified in upholding the award as "arising out of employment." Kiger v. Bahnson Serv. Co., 260 N.C. 760, 133 S.E.2d 702 (1963); Williams v. Brunswick County Bd. of Educ., 1 N.C. App. 89, 160 S.E.2d 102 (1968); Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968); Robbins v. Nicholson, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972); Bartlett v. Duke Univ., 284 N.C. 230, 200 S.E.2d 193 (1973); Brown v. Jim Brown's Serv. Station, 45 N.C. App. 255, 262 S.E.2d 700 (1980).

Injury Must Spring or Originate from Employment. — "Arising out of" has been defined to mean coming from the work the employee is to do, or out of the services he is to perform, and as a natural result of one of the risks of the employment. The injury must spring from the employment or have its origin therein. Bolling v. Belk-White Co., 228 N.C. 749, 46 S.E.2d 838 (1948); Hinkle v. City of Lexington, 239 N.C. 105, 79 S.E.2d 220 (1953); Lewter v. Abercrombie Enters., Inc., 240 N.C. 399, 82 S.E.2d 410 (1954); Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963); Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968). See Vause v. Vause Farm Equip. Co., 233 N.C. 88, 63 S.E.2d 173 (1951).

Employment Must Contribute in Some Reasonable Degree Thereto. — In order for an accident to arise out of the employment it is not required that a hazard of the employment be the sole cause of the accident, but it is sufficient if the physical aspects of the employment contribute in some reasonable degree toward bringing about or intensifying the condition which renders the employee susceptible to the accident and consequent injury. Vause v. Vause Farm Equip. Co., 233 N.C. 88, 63 S.E.2d 173 (1951).

Paid Break from Employer's Premises. — In making the determination whether an injury that occurred off the employer's premises during a scheduled break is within the scope of employment, there are several factors to consider: (1) the duration of the break period; (2) whether the employee is paid during the break period; (3) whether the employer provides a place for employees to take breaks, including vending facilities; (4) whether the employer permits off-premises breaks, or has acquiesced in such despite policies against such breaks; and (5) the proximity of the off-premises location where the employee was injured to the employment site. Shaw v. Smith & Jennings, Inc., 130 N.C. App. 442, 503 S.E.2d 113 (1998), cert. denied, 349 N.C. 363, 525 S.E.2d 175 (1998).

The Pickrell presumption that the employee's death arose out of his employment applied in a widow's action to recover death benefits, even though the medical cause of death was known to be positional asphyxia, where the employee was found dead in a one-vehicle accident while on a paid break from his employer's premises. Shaw v. Smith & Jennings, Inc., 130 N.C. App. 442, 503 S.E.2d 113 (1998), cert. denied, 349 N.C. 363, 525 S.E.2d 175 (1998).

And the Risk of Injury Must Be Incidental to Employment. — "Arising out of" means arising out of the work the employee is to do, or out of the service he is to perform. The risk must be incidental to the employment. Bell v. Dewey Bros., 236 N.C. 280, 72 S.E.2d 680 (1952); Hinkle v. City of Lexington, 239 N.C. 105, 79 S.E.2d 220 (1953); Poteete v. North State Pyrophyllite Co., 240 N.C. 561, 82 S.E.2d 693 (1954); Bryan v. First Free Will Baptist

To have its origin in the employment, an injury must come from a risk which might have been contemplated by a reasonable person familiar with the whole situation as incidental to the service when he entered employment. Bartlett v. Duke Univ., 284 N.C. 230, 200 S.E.2d 193 (1973).

Where the cause of the accident is unexplained but the accident is a natural and probable result of a risk of the employment, the finding of the Industrial Commission that the accident arose out of the employment will be sustained. Battle v. Bryant Elec. Co., 15 N.C. App. 246, 189 S.E.2d 788, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 755, 191 S.E.2d 353 (1972).

Employment Must Be a Contributing Proximate Cause to Injury. — Where an injury cannot fairly be traced to the employment as a contributing proximate cause, it does not arise out of the employment. Lewter v. Abercrombie Enters., Inc., 240 N.C. 399, 82 S.E.2d 410 (1954); Poteete v. North State Pyrophyllite Co., 240 N.C. 561, 82 S.E.2d 693 (1954); Hardy v. Small, 246 N.C. 581, 99 S.E.2d 862 (1957); Bass v. Mecklenburg County, 258 N.C. 226, 128 S.E.2d 570 (1962); Bryan v. First Free Will Baptist Church, 267 N.C. 111, 147 S.E.2d 633 (1966); Bartlett v. Duke Univ., 284 N.C. 230, 200 S.E.2d 193 (1973); Eaton v. Klopman Mills, Inc., 2 N.C. App. 363, 163 S.E.2d 17 (1968); Battle v. Bryant Elec. Co., 15 N.C. App. 246, 189 S.E.2d 788, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 755, 191 S.E.2d 353 (1972).

The test of whether an accidental injury "arises out of" the employment is whether a contributing proximate cause of the injury was a risk inherent or incidental to the employment and one to which the employee would not have been equally exposed apart from the employment. Fortner v. J.K. Holding Co., 83 N.C. App. 101, 349 S.E.2d 296 (1986), aff'd, 319 N.C. 640, 357 S.E.2d 167 (1987).

To determine whether an injury or death by accident arose out of the employment, it is necessary to examine the findings of specific crucial facts. The basic question is whether the employment was a contributing cause of the injury. Roberts v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 321 N.C. 350, 364 S.E.2d 417 (1988).

But Need Not Be the Sole Causative Force. — Where a claimant's right to recovery is based on an injury by accident, the employment need not be the sole causative force to render the injury compensable. Walston v. Burlington Indus., 49 N.C. App. 301, 271 S.E.2d 516 (1980), rev'd on other grounds, 304 N.C. 670, 285 S.E.2d 822 (1982).

As the Moving Force Can Be Something Other than Employment. — When one speaks of an event "arising out of employment," the initiative, the moving force, is something other than the employment; the employment is thought of more as a condition out of which the event arises than as the force producing the event in affirmative fashion. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

Employment Must Put Employee in Place of Accident. — For an accident to “arise out of” the employment, it is necessary that the conditions or obligations of the employment put the employee in the position or at the place where the accident occurs. Pittman v. Twin City Laundry & Cleaners, 61 N.C. App. 468, 300 S.E.2d 899 (1983).

And Subject Him to Additional Risks Incident Thereto. — Where the conditions and obligations of the employment required the claimant to be at a place where the accident occurred, subjecting him to additional risks incident thereto, the injury arose out of the employment. Powers v. Lady's Funeral Home, 306 N.C. 728, 295 S.E.2d 473 (1982).

Hazard Must Not Be Common to Public. — An accident arises out of employment when it is the result of a risk or hazard incident to the employment and is not from a hazard common to the public. Martin v. Bonclarken Ass'y, 35 N.C. App. 489, 241 S.E.2d 848, rev'd on other grounds, 293 N.C. 540, 251 S.E.2d 403 (1979).

Where an injury cannot fairly be traced to the employment as a contributing proximate cause, or comes from a hazard to which the worker would have been equally exposed apart from the employment or from a hazard common to others, it does not arise out of the employment. The causative danger must be peculiar to the work and not common to the neighborhood. It must be incidental to the character of the business and not independent of the relation of master and servant. Bryan v. Loving Co., 222 N.C. 724, 24 S.E.2d 751 (1943); Pope v. Goodson, 249 N.C. 690, 107 S.E.2d 524 (1959); Smith v. Dacotah Cotton Mills, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 687, 230 S.E.2d 772 (1976).

Occurrence on Employer's Premises Is Not Dispositive. — Even though an accident occurred on the employer's premises at a time when the employee was within the compass of his employment, this alone is insufficient to justify a finding that the injury arose out of the employment. Strickland v. King, 293 N.C. 731, 239 S.E.2d 243 (1977).

Employee Must Be Engaged in Authorized Activity in Furtherance of Employer's Business. — An accident arises out of employment when it occurs while the employee is engaged in some activity or duty which he is authorized to undertake, and which is calculated to further, indirectly or directly, the employer's business. Smith v. Central Transp., 51 N.C. App. 316, 276 S.E.2d 751 (1981).

And Must Be Acting for Employer's Benefit at Time of Accident. — Compensability of a claim basically turns upon whether or not the employee was acting for the benefit of his employer to any appreciable extent when the accident occurred. Such a determination depends largely upon the unique facts of each particular case; in close cases, the benefit of the doubt concerning this issue should be given to the employee in accordance with the established policy of liberal construction and application of the Workers' Compensation Act. Hoffman v. Ryder Truck Lines, 306 N.C. 502, 293 S.E.2d 807 (1982).

Whether an accident “arises out of the employment” is a mixed question of law and fact. Ridout v. Rose's 5-10-25¢ Stores, 205 N.C. 423, 171 S.E. 642 (1933); Matthews v. Carolina Std. Corp., 232 N.C. 229, 60 S.E.2d 93 (1950); Poteete v. North State Pyrophyllite Co., 240 N.C. 561, 82 S.E.2d 693 (1954); Alford v. Quality Chevrolet Co., 246 N.C. 214, 97 S.E.2d 869 (1957); Sandy v. Stackhouse, Inc., 258 N.C. 194, 128 S.E.2d 218 (1962); Bass v. Mecklenburg County, 258 N.C. 226, 128 S.E.2d 570 (1962); Clark v. Gastonia Ice Cream Co., 261 N.C. 234, 134 S.E.2d 354 (1964); Perry v. American Bakeries Co., 262 N.C. 272, 136 S.E.2d 643 (1964); Smith v. Dacotah Cotton Mills, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 687, 230 S.E.2d 772 (1976).

Which Must Be Determined on a Case-by-Case Basis. — The term “arising out of employment” must be interpreted in the light of the facts and circumstances of each case. Plemmons v. White's Serv., 213 N.C. 148, 195 S.E. 370 (1938); Taylor v. Town of Wake Forest, 228 N.C. 346, 45 S.E.2d 387 (1947); Berry v. Colonial Furn. Co., 232 N.C. 303, 60 S.E.2d 97 (1950); Perry v. American Bakeries Co., 262 N.C. 272, 136 S.E.2d 643 (1964); Clark v. Burton Lines, 272 N.C. 433, 158 S.E.2d 569 (1968).

Whether the injury “arose out of” the employment is to be decided on the facts of the individual case and cannot be precisely defined. Robbins v. Nicholson, 10 N.C. App. 421, 179 S.E.2d 183 (1971), rev'd on other grounds, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972); Gallimore v. Marilyn's Shoes, 30 N.C. App. 628, 228 S.E.2d 39 (1976), rev'd on other grounds, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977).

Effect of Commission's Findings. — Whether an accident arises out of the employment is a mixed question of fact and law, and the finding of the Commission is conclusive if supported by any competent evidence; otherwise, not. Watkins v. City of Wilmington, 290 N.C. 276, 225 S.E.2d 577 (1976).

Whether an accident grew out of the employment is a mixed question of law and fact which the court has the right to review on appeal. If the detailed findings of fact force a conclusion opposite that reached by the Commission, it is the duty of the court to reverse the Commission. Warren v. City of Wilmington, 43 N.C. App. 748, 259 S.E.2d 786 (1979).

C. In the Course of.

Time, Place and Circumstances. — The words “in the course of” as used in the act refer to the time, place, and circumstances under which the injury occurs. Guest v. Brenner Iron & Metal Co., 241 N.C. 448, 85 S.E.2d 596 (1955); Alford v. Quality Chevrolet Co., 246 N.C. 214, 97 S.E.2d 869 (1957); Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963); Martin v. Bonclarken Ass’y, 296 N.C. 540, 251 S.E.2d 403 (1979); Hoyle v. Isenhour Brick & Tile Co., 306 N.C. 248, 293 S.E.2d 196 (1982); Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968); Robbins v. Nicholson, 10 N.C. App. 421, 179 S.E.2d 183 (1971), rev’d on other grounds, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972); Gallimore v. Marilyn’s Shoes, 30 N.C. App. 628, 228 S.E.2d 39 (1976), rev’d on other grounds, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977); Strickland v. King, 32 N.C. App. 222, 231 S.E.2d 193, rev’d on other grounds, 293 N.C. 731, 239 S.E.2d 243 (1977); Brown v. Jim Brown’s Serv. Station, 45 N.C. App. 255, 262 S.E.2d 700 (1980); Powers v. Lady’s Funeral Home, 57 N.C. App. 25, 290 S.E.2d 720, rev’d on other grounds, 306 N.C. 728, 295 S.E.2d 473 (1982); Patterson v. Gaston County, 62 N.C. App. 544, 303 S.E.2d 182, cert. denied, 309 N.C. 822, 310 S.E.2d 351 (1983); Bare v. Wayne Poultry Co., 70 N.C. App. 88, 318 S.E.2d 534 (1984), cert. denied, 312 N.C. 796, 325 S.E.2d 484 (1985).

It is the conjunction of all three factors, time, place and circumstances, that brings a particular accident within the concept of course of employment. If, in addition to this, the accident arose out of employment, then any injury resulting therefrom is compensable under the act. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

What Time Is Covered. — With respect to time, the course of employment begins a reasonable time before actual work begins, and continues for a reasonable time after work ends, and includes intervals during the workday for rest and refreshment. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

With respect to time, the course of employment begins a reasonable time before work begins and continues for a reasonable time after work ends. Pittman v. Twin City Laundry & Cleaners, 61 N.C. App. 468, 300 S.E.2d 899 (1983).

What Place Is Covered. — With respect to place, the course of employment includes the premises of the employer. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968); Gallimore v. Marilyn’s Shoes, 30 N.C. App. 628, 228 S.E.2d 39 (1976), rev’d on other grounds, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977).

“Time and place” do not necessarily mean the regular hours of employment and on the premises of the employer. If the employee is doing work at the direction and for the benefit of the employer, the time and place of work are for the benefit of the employer and a part of the employment of the employee. This satisfies the condition of time and place although the work is done off the premises of the employer and after regular working hours. Brown v. Jim Brown’s Serv. Station, 45 N.C. App. 255, 262 S.E.2d 700 (1980).

Going to and from Work. — An employee may be in the course of his employment when he is on the way to the place of his duties, leaving the place of his duties at the end of the day, or leaving upon learning that there was no work for him to do. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

The time of employment includes the working hours as well as such reasonable time as is required to pass to and from the employer’s premises. Gallimore v. Marilyn’s Shoes, 30 N.C. App. 628, 228 S.E.2d 39 (1976), rev’d on other grounds, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977).

What Activity Is Covered. — Where the employee is engaged in activity which he is authorized to undertake and which is calculated to further, directly or indirectly, the employer’s business, the circumstances are such as to be within the course of employment. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968); Pittman v. Twin City Laundry & Cleaners, 61 N.C. App. 468, 300 S.E.2d 899 (1983).

The fact that the employee is not engaged in the actual performance of the duties of his job does not preclude an accident from being one within the course of employment. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

With respect to circumstances, injuries within the course of employment include those sustained while the employee is doing what a man so employed may reasonably do within a time which he is employed and at a place where he may reasonably be during that time to do that thing. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968); Brown v. Jim Brown’s Serv. Station, 45 N.C. App. 255, 262 S.E.2d 700 (1980).

An accident arising “in the course of” the employment is one which occurs while the employee is doing what a man so employed may reasonably do within a time during which he is employed and at a place where he may reasonably be during that time to do that thing; or one which occurs in the course of the employment and as the result of a risk involved in the employment, or incident to it, or to conditions under which it is required to be performed. Clark v. Burton Lines, 272 N.C. 433, 158 S.E.2d 569 (1968); Goldston v. Goldston Concrete Works, Inc., 29 N.C. App. 717, 225 S.E.2d 332, cert. denied, 290 N.C. 660, 228 S.E.2d 452 (1976); Hoyle v. Isenhour Brick & Tile Co., 306 N.C. 248, 293 S.E.2d 196 (1982).

The words "in the course of" the employment refer to the time, place, and circumstances of the accident, and an accident arises in the course of the employment if it occurs while the employee is engaged in a duty which he is authorized or directed to undertake or in an activity incidental thereto. Battle v. Bryant Elec. Co., 15 N.C. App. 246, 189 S.E.2d 788, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 755, 191 S.E.2d 353 (1972).

An injury occurs "in the course of" the employment when the injury occurs during the period of employment at a place where an employee's duties are calculated to take him, and under circumstances in which the employee is engaged in an activity which he is authorized to undertake and which is calculated to further, directly or indirectly, the employer's business. Fortner v. J.K. Holding Co., 83 N.C. App. 101, 349 S.E.2d 296 (1986), aff'd, 319 N.C. 640, 357 S.E.2d 167 (1987).

Injury During Hours and at Place of Employment While Engaged in Duties. — A conclusion that an injury arose in the course of the employment is required where there is evidence that it occurred during the hours of the employment and at the place of the employment while the claimant was actually engaged in the performance of the duties of the employment. Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949); Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968); Pittman v. Twin City Laundry & Cleaners, 61 N.C. App. 468, 300 S.E.2d 899 (1983).

Injury While Performing Task Which Was Not Part of Job. — Where it was not a part of the plaintiff's job to clean tote tank, the tote tank was not supposed to be cleaned and the cleaning of it did not further the business of the employer, the Industrial Commission was correct in concluding that plaintiff was "not about his work" when he was overcome by fumes while cleaning the tote tank. Parker v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 78 N.C. App. 517, 337 S.E.2d 589 (1985).

Performance of Special Errand. — Where automobile accident occurred as plaintiff was in route from worksite to a hospital in order to transport a fellow employee, even though travel was not an incident of plaintiff's employment as a roofer and construction worker, the journey was brought into the course of employment because plaintiff was performing a "special errand" that directly benefited the employer. Aaron v. New Fortis Homes, Inc., 127 N.C. App. 711, 493 S.E.2d 305 (1997).

The decedent's fatal accident occurred in the course of his employment with his employer, where the decedent was killed in a one-vehicle accident while on a paid break, there was no food or drink on the employer's premises, and the employer acquiesced in allowing employees to go off the job site to obtain refreshments.

Shaw v. Smith & Jennings, Inc., 130 N.C. App. 442, 503 S.E.2d 113 (1998), cert. denied, 349 N.C. 363, 525 S.E.2d 175 (1998).

An employee's kidnapping and murder by a former co-employee arose out of and in the course of her employment with employer, where the employee had prepared an informational sheet on unemployment benefits and she had been directed by her employer to talk to the former employee regarding his unemployment benefits. Hauser v. Advanced Plastiform, Inc., 133 N.C. App. 378, 514 S.E.2d 545 (1999).

If employee does something which he is not specifically ordered not to do by a then present superior and the thing he does furthers the business of the employer although it is not a part of the employee's job, an injury sustained by accident while he is so performing is in the course of employment. This has been characterized as "being about his work." Parker v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 78 N.C. App. 517, 337 S.E.2d 589 (1985).

Preliminary preparations by an employee, reasonably essential to the proper performance of some required task or service, are generally regarded as being within the scope of employment, and any injury suffered while in the act of preparing to do a job is compensable. Thompson v. Refrigerated Transp. Co., 32 N.C. App. 693, 236 S.E.2d 312 (1977).

In tending to his personal physical needs, an employee is indirectly benefiting his employer. Therefore, the course of employment continues when the employee goes to the wash-room, takes a smoke break, takes a break to partake of refreshment, goes on a personal errand involving temporary absence from his post of duty, or voluntarily leaves his post to assist another employee. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

Activities which an employee undertakes in pursuit of his personal comfort constitute part of the circumstances of the course of employment. Dayal v. Provident Life & Accident Ins. Co., 71 N.C. App. 131, 321 S.E.2d 452 (1984).

Mealtime is within the course of employment, even where such time is completely free for the employees. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

When an employee is required to live on the premises, either by his contract of employment or by the nature of the employment, and is continuously on call, whether or not actually on duty, the entire period of his presence on the premises pursuant to this requirement is deemed included in the course of employment. Watkins v. City of Wilmington, 290 N.C. 276, 225 S.E.2d 577 (1976).

Living in Company Housing. — Where migrant farm worker who lived in company housing was injured while taking a shower after work, although the nature of his employment arguably required that he live on the premises, at the time of his injury he was not on call, and the connection between his employment and his injury was not sufficient to establish that the injury arose out of and in the course of his employment. Jauregui v. Carolina Vegetables, 112 N.C. App. 593, 436 S.E.2d 268 (1993).

Accident While Off-Duty. — Ordinarily, when an employee is off duty the relationship of master and servant is suspended; therefore, there is no causal relation between the employment and an accident which happens during such time. Sandy v. Stackhouse, Inc., 258 N.C. 194, 128 S.E.2d 218 (1962).

Evidence Was Sufficient to Show Plaintiff's Injurious Exposure Occurred During Course of Employment. — Where the record disclosed that plaintiff did not continue earning wages after 1969, her unsuccessful attempts to work during the years 1969 to 1980, when considered in conjunction with the medical evidence, merely demonstrated her total incapacity to earn wages; thus the commission's determination that plaintiff's last injurious exposure to the hazards of her occupational disease occurred while she was employed in 1968, and its order that employer and its carrier in 1968 pay her an award under the provisions of § 97-29 in effect on October 1, 1968, would be affirmed. Gregory v. Sadie Cotton Mills, Inc., 90 N.C. App. 433, 368 S.E.2d 650, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 835, 371 S.E.2d 277 (1988).

D. Risks Incident to the Employment.

The injury must come from a risk which might have been contemplated by a reasonable person as incidental to the service when he entered the employment. Robbins v. Nicholson, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972).

When Risk Is Incidental to Employment. — A risk may be said to be incidental to the employment when it is either an ordinary risk directly connected with the employment, or an extraordinary risk which is only indirectly connected with the service owing to the special nature of the employment. Goodwin v. Bright, 202 N.C. 481, 163 S.E. 576 (1932); Robbins v. Nicholson, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972); Smith v. Dacotah Cotton Mills, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 687, 230 S.E.2d 772 (1976).

The causative danger need not have been foreseen or expected, but after the event it must appear to have had its origin in a risk connected with the employment, and to have flowed from that source as a rational consequence. Robbins v. Nicholson, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972); Bartlett v. Duke Univ., 284 N.C. 230, 200 S.E.2d 193 (1973); Patterson v. Gaston County, 62 N.C. App. 544, 303 S.E.2d 182, cert. denied, 309 N.C. 822, 310 S.E.2d 351 (1983).

But must have been peculiar to the work and not common to the neighborhood, as well as incidental to the character of the business and not independent of the relation of master and servant. Sandy v. Stackhouse, Inc., 258 N.C. 194, 128 S.E.2d 218 (1962); Robbins v. Nicholson, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972); Bartlett v. Duke Univ., 284 N.C. 230, 200 S.E.2d 193 (1973).

Injury by accident is not compensable if it results from a hazard to which the public generally is subject. Battle v. Bryant Elec. Co., 15 N.C. App. 246, 189 S.E.2d 788, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 755, 191 S.E.2d 353 (1972).

When the cause of injury is known and is independent of, unrelated to, and apart from the employment, and results from a hazard to which others are equally exposed, compensation will not be allowed. Cole v. Guilford County, 259 N.C. 724, 131 S.E.2d 308 (1963); Battle v. Bryant Elec. Co., 15 N.C. App. 246, 189 S.E.2d 788, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 755, 191 S.E.2d 353 (1972).

Injury Due to Peculiar Hazard of Employee's Location. — A causal relation exists between the accident and the employment when the duties of the employment require the employee to be in a place at which he is exposed to a risk of injury to which he would not otherwise be subject, and while there he is injured by an accident due to the peculiar hazard of that location. Stubblefield v. Watson Elec. Constr. Co., 277 N.C. 444, 177 S.E.2d 882 (1970); Hensley v. Caswell Action Comm., Inc., 35 N.C. App. 544, 241 S.E.2d 852 (1978), rev'd on other grounds, 296 N.C. 527, 251 S.E.2d 399 (1979).

Accident Caused Partly or Solely by Idiopathic Condition. — Where the accident and resultant injury arise out of both the idiopathic condition of the workman and hazards incident to the employment, the employer is liable. But not so where the idiopathic condition is the sole cause of the injury. Cole v. Guilford County, 259 N.C. 724, 131 S.E.2d 308 (1963).

Where the employment subjects a worker to a special or particular hazard from the elements, such as excessive heat or cold likely to produce sunstroke or freezing, death or disability resulting from such cause usually comes within the purview of the compensation acts; the test is whether the employment subjects the worker to a greater hazard or risk than that to which he or she otherwise would be exposed. Dillingham v. Yeargin Constr. Co., 320 N.C. 499, 358 S.E.2d 380, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 639, 360 S.E.2d 84 (1987).

Risk of Injury from Lightning. — The generally recognized rule is that where the injured employee is by reason of his employment peculiarly or specially exposed to a risk of injury from lightning, that is, one greater than other persons in the community, death or injury resulting from this source usually is compensable as an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. Pope v. Goodson, 249 N.C. 690, 107 S.E.2d 524 (1959).

VII. INJURIES WHILE ACTING FOR BENEFIT OF SELF OR THIRD PERSON.

Acts which are necessary to the health and comfort of an employee while at work, though personal to himself and not technically acts of service, such as visits to the washroom, are incidental to the employment. Rewis v. New York Life Ins. Co., 226 N.C. 325, 38 S.E.2d 97 (1946).

Activities which are undertaken for the personal comfort of the employee are considered part of the "circumstances" element of the course of employment. Spratt v. Duke Power Co., 65 N.C. App. 457, 310 S.E.2d 38 (1983).

Employees who, within the time and space limits of their employment, engage in acts which minister to personal comfort do not thereby leave the course of employment, unless the extent of the departure is so great that an intent to abandon the job temporarily may be inferred, or unless the method chosen is so unusual and unreasonable that the conduct cannot be considered an incident of the employment. Spratt v. Duke Power Co., 65 N.C. App. 457, 310 S.E.2d 38 (1983).

Acts of employee for the benefit of third persons generally preclude recovery of compensation for accidental injuries sustained during the performance of such acts, usually on the ground that they are not incidental to any service which the employee is obligated to render under his contract of employment, and the injuries therefore cannot be said to arise out of and in the course of the employment. Watkins v. City of Wilmington, 290 N.C. 276, 225 S.E.2d 577 (1976).

An injury to an employee while he is performing acts for the benefit of third persons is not compensable if the acts are performed solely for the benefit or purpose of the employee or third person. Burton v. American Nat'l Ins. Co., 10 N.C. App. 499, 179 S.E.2d 7 (1971). See also Lewis v. W.B. Lea Tobacco Co., 260 N.C. 410, 132 S.E.2d 877 (1963).

Even If Employee Was Acting with Consent of Employer. — Where an employee at the time of his injury is performing acts for his own benefit, and not connected with his employment, the injury does not arise out of his employment. This is true even if the acts are performed with the consent of the employer and the employee is on the payroll at the time. Lewis v. W.B. Lea Tobacco Co., 260 N.C. 410, 132 S.E.2d 877 (1963); Burton v. American Nat'l Ins. Co., 10 N.C. App. 499, 179 S.E.2d 7 (1971).

And Even If He Was Injured While on a

Mission for Employer. — If employee's acts are not connected with his employment but are for the benefit of himself and third persons at the time of his injury, he is not entitled to compensation, even if he is injured while he is required by his employer to be away from his home and place of regular employment for a period of time on a mission for his employer. Lewis v. W.B. Lea Tobacco Co., 260 N.C. 410, 132 S.E.2d 877 (1963); Burton v. American Nat'l Ins. Co., 10 N.C. App. 499, 179 S.E.2d 7 (1971).

Unless Employee's Acts Were of Benefit to Employer. — Whether an injury to an employee received while performing acts for the benefit of third persons arises out of the employment depends upon whether the acts of the employee are for the benefit of the employer to any appreciable extent, or whether the acts are solely for the benefit or purpose of the employee or a third person. Guest v. Brenner Iron & Metal Co., 241 N.C. 448, 85 S.E.2d 596 (1955).

An injury to an employee while he is performing acts for the benefit of third persons is not compensable unless the acts benefit the employer to an appreciable extent. Lewis v. W.B. Lea Tobacco Co., 260 N.C. 410, 132 S.E.2d 877 (1963); Hales v. North Hills Constr. Co., 5 N.C. App. 564, 169 S.E.2d 24 (1969); Burton v. American Nat'l Ins. Co., 10 N.C. App. 499, 179 S.E.2d 7 (1971); Roberts v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 321 N.C. 350, 364 S.E.2d 417 (1988).

Where competent proof exists that the employee understood, or had reasonable grounds to believe, that the act for the benefit of a third person resulting in injury was incidental to his employment, or was such as would prove beneficial to his employer's interests, or was encouraged by the employer in the performance of the act or similar acts for the purpose of creating a feeling of good will, or authorized so to do by common practice or custom, compensation may be recovered, since then a causal connection between the employment and the accident may be established. Watkins v. City of Wilmington, 290 N.C. 276, 225 S.E.2d 577 (1976).

Plaintiff, who was injured when she fell off a chair in her home while hanging plants on her porch, which plants she had been instructed by her employer to dispose of incident to the closing of employer's place of business, was not entitled to compensation. Fortner v. J.K. Holding Co., 83 N.C. App. 101, 349 S.E.2d 296 (1986), aff'd, 319 N.C. 640, 357 S.E.2d 167 (1987); Fortner v. J.K. Holding Co., 319 N.C. 640, 357 S.E.2d 167 (1987).

Employee Killed While Assisting Injured Pedestrian. — Death of employee who, while returning home from a business trip, was struck by a car and killed as he assisted an injured pedestrian who had no connection to the employee's duties or his employer's business did not arise out of the employment and thus was not compensable under the Workers' Compensation Act. Roberts v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 321 N.C. 350, 364 S.E.2d 417 (1988).

Special Errand and Dual Purpose Rule.

— Plaintiff employee, who was injured while on her way to a company gathering with her supervisor, the company president, when she was asked to run several errands for her supervisor, i.e. to go by the post office, to go by the mall to pick up pictures of her supervisor's vacation, and to turn the car around and go look at a "trailer for rent," the reasons for which gathering were to alleviate office tensions, celebrate several birthdays and cement relationships, was entitled to compensation under the special errand rule and the dual purpose rule. McBride v. Peony Corp., 84 N.C. App. 221, 352 S.E.2d 236 (1987).

As to statement and application of "dual purpose rule," see Felton v. Hospital Guild, 57 N.C. App. 33, 291 S.E.2d 158, aff'd by divided S. Ct. as law of case but without precedential value, 307 N.C. 121, 296 S.E.2d 297 (1982).

Fall While in Rest Room. — Evidence tending to show that the employee was suffering from a disease which weakened him and subjected him to frequent fainting spells, that during the course of his employment he went to the men's washroom, and while there felt faint, and in seeking fresh air, went to the open window, slipped on the tile floor, and fell through the window to his death, held sufficient to support the finding of the Industrial Commission that his death was the result of an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment. Rewis v. New York Life Ins. Co., 226 N.C. 325, 38 S.E.2d 97 (1946).

Vacation Pleasure Trip Furnished by Employer. — An accidental injury received by an employee while riding in a truck on a vacation pleasure trip does not arise out of the employment, notwithstanding the fact that the employer furnished the vacation trip as a matter of goodwill and personal relations among the employees and paid the entire expenses of the trip in accordance with its agreement entered into at the time of the employment as a part of the remuneration and inducement to its employees. Berry v. Colonial Furn. Co., 232 N.C. 303, 60 S.E.2d 97 (1950).

The fact that a pleasure trip for the benefit of the employee is without expense to the employee does not entitle him to compensation for injury received while on such trip, even if all or a portion of the expense is borne by the employer as a gesture of goodwill. Lewis v. W.B. Lea Tobacco Co., 260 N.C. 410, 132 S.E.2d 877 (1963); Burton v. American Nat'l Ins. Co., 10 N.C. App. 499, 179 S.E.2d 7 (1971).

Recreational and Social Activities. — Where, as a matter of goodwill, an employer at his own expense provides an occasion for recreation or an outing for his employees and invites them to participate, but does not require them to do so, and an employee is injured while engaged in the activities incident thereto, such injury does not arise out of the employment. Perry v. American Bakeries Co., 262 N.C. 272, 136 S.E.2d 643 (1964); Burton v. American Nat'l Ins. Co., 10 N.C. App. 499, 179 S.E.2d 7 (1971).

In determining whether employee injuries incurred at employer-sponsored recreational and social activities arise out of and in the course of the employment, several questions should be considered: (1) Did the employer in fact sponsor the event? (2) To what extent was attendance really voluntary? (3) Was there some degree of encouragement to attend evidenced by such factors as: (a) taking a record of attendance; (b) paying for the time spent; (c) requiring the employee to work if he did not attend; or (d) maintaining a known custom of attending? (4) Did the employer finance the occasion to a substantial extent? (5) Did the employees regard the activity as an employment benefit to which they were entitled as of right? (6) Did the employer benefit from the event, not merely in a vague way through better morale and good will, but through such tangible advantages as having an opportunity to make speeches and awards? Martin v. Mars Mfg. Co., 58 N.C. App. 577, 293 S.E.2d 816, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 742, 295 S.E.2d 759 (1982).

Injury at Picnic. — Attending a good-will picnic at the invitation of the employer was held not to invoke the relation of the master and servant where the employee did no work and was not paid for attendance, nor penalized for nonattendance, nor ordered to go. Barber v. Minges, 223 N.C. 213, 25 S.E.2d 837 (1943).

Plaintiff was not entitled to compensation for a broken ankle suffered while playing volleyball at an annual picnic for faculty members in the radiology department in defendant school, where it was not clear that the radiology department in fact sponsored the picnic; attendance at the picnic was voluntary; no record of attendance was taken; participants were not paid for the time spent at the picnic, nor was any employee required to work at the medical school if he did not attend; the picnic, while certainly an annual custom, was not an event that employee regarded as being a benefit to which he was entitled as a matter of right, and the radiology department did not utilize the picnic as an opportunity to give a "pep" talk or grant awards. Chilton v. Bowman Gray School of Medicine, 45 N.C. App. 13, 262 S.E.2d 347 (1980).

Injury at Christmas Party. — Evidence established a sufficient nexus between injury and employment where employee injured her ankle while dancing at an annual Christmas party sponsored and paid for by employer, where wages were paid for the time employees spent at the party and where the plant manager considered the party an employee fringe benefit, one definite purpose of which was to improve employer-employee relations, and made a 20 to 30 minute speech praising the employees for their work and presenting service awards. Martin v. Mars Mfg. Co., 58 N.C. App. 577, 293 S.E.2d 816, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 742, 295 S.E.2d 759 (1982).

Injury While Washing Personal Car. — Claimant, employed as a night watchman, was injured on the employer's premises during his hours of duty when his trouser leg was caught on the bumper of his car, causing him to fall, as he was washing his personal car for his own purposes with the implied consent of the employer. There was no causal relationship between his employment and the injury, and therefore the injury did not arise out of the employment and was not compensable. Bell v. Dewey Bros., 236 N.C. 280, 72 S.E.2d 680 (1952).

Injury While Maintaining or Traveling in Personal Airplane. — When a person owns an airplane which he maintains and keeps for his personal use as well as for use when traveling for his employer, he is not protected by workers' compensation while he is doing something to maintain the airplane and not doing anything else to promote the employer's business. The Workers' Compensation Act was not intended to cover accidents which occur while an employee is repairing his own property which he uses for himself and for his employer. Pollock v. Reeves Bros., Inc., 70 N.C. App. 199, 319 S.E.2d 286 (1984), rev'd on other grounds, 313 N.C. 287, 328 S.E.2d 282 (1985).

Where employee was killed in accident while traveling in fellow employee's airplane, where the purpose of the trip was related to employer's business, and where employees were acting in the course of their employment at the time of the accident, the accident was fairly traceable to the employment as a contributing cause and the death of employee was an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment. Pollock v. Reeves Bros., Inc., 313 N.C. 287, 328 S.E.2d 282 (1985).

Employee Assisting Another Contractor on Same Job. — Evidence to the effect that deceased employee was working under the direct supervision and instruction of his superior in attempting to make repairs on a drum that actually belonged to another contractor working on the same job and that the two contractors on prior occasions had assisted each other without charges sustained the finding that the injury arose out of and in the course of employment. Butler v. Jones Plumbing & Heating Co., 244 N.C. 525, 94 S.E.2d 556 (1956).

Voluntarily Helping Another Employee.

— Claimant was employed as a lumber piler and was instructed to stay away from the saws, but there was evidence that on the day of his injury he was instructed to leave his regular job and to perform some work in the vicinity of one of the saws, and that while waiting at the place designated he started to assist another employee, in the absence of the regular sawyer, in cutting off a board, and suffered an injury when his hand came in contact with the saw. Two men were usually required to operate the saw. The court held that the evidence was sufficient to sustain the finding of the Industrial Commission that the injury arose out of and in the course of his employment. Riddick v. Richmond Cedar Works, 227 N.C. 647, 43 S.E.2d 850 (1947).

The employee's injury arose out of and during the course of employment, where she sustained an injury when she slipped and fell in the employer's icy parking lot after she temporarily left her work station to aid her co-employee, who also was the wife of the claimant's nephew. Choate v. Sara Lee Prods., 133 N.C. App. 14, 514 S.E.2d 529 (1999), aff'd, 351 N.C. 46, 519 S.E.2d 523 (1999).

Employee off Duty and on Personal Errand. — The Commission found facts which clearly showed that the deceased employee, although temporarily assigned to work in a distant town in another state, with board and room furnished by the power company for which the emergency work was being done, was off duty and upon a personal errand, unrelated to any duty in connection with his employment when he was struck by an automobile and killed. Sandy v. Stackhouse, Inc., 258 N.C. 194, 128 S.E.2d 218 (1962).

Injury While Working on Doghouse in Employer's Shop. — Injury to plaintiff salesman's hand, sustained while he was operating a power saw in defendant employer's shop, arose out of and in the course of his employment where plaintiff was working in the shop at the specific instruction of his employer but without any specific assignment, plaintiff had previously obtained permission to work on a doghouse in the shop during working hours when he had nothing else to do, plaintiff was allowed to use scrap material of the employer to build the doghouse, and plaintiff was operating the saw at the time of the injury to cut wood for the doghouse. Lee v. F.M. Henderson & Assocs., 17 N.C. App. 475, 195 S.E.2d 48, aff'd, 284 N.C. 126, 200 S.E.2d 32 (1973).

Assistance to Dump Truck Driver. — Findings of fact by the Industrial Commission that deceased employee drove his employer's truck to the city dump to dispose of trash from the employer's plant, and that the employee was killed at the city dump while trying to help a third party operate the dump mechanism on the third party's truck were held to support the Commission's determination that deceased was not acting for the benefit of his employer to any appreciable extent and that deceased's injuries did not arise out of and in the course of his employment. Short v. Slane Hosiery Mills, 4 N.C. App. 290, 166 S.E.2d 479 (1969).

Truck driver shot by security guards while trying to stop robber did not suffer injuries arising out of and in the course of his employment. Roman v. Southland Transp. Co., 350 N.C. 549, 515 S.E.2d 214 (1999).

Hunting Trip. — Evidence that an employee customarily acted as chauffeur, cook and valet to a company official on the official's trips to his cottage at a resort and that while on such a trip he went on a hunting trip with the official's sons and was fatally injured in an automobile accident was insufficient to support a finding that the accident arose out of the employment. Lewis v. W.B. Lea Tobacco Co., 260 N.C. 410, 132 S.E.2d 877 (1963).

Group Picture. — At the suggestion of her foreman, plaintiff joined with other employees to have a group picture taken for the sole benefit of the photographer. This was done during shifts. Plaintiff was injured by the collapse of the seat prepared by the photographer. It was held that it was error for the Commission to find that the injury arose out of the employment. Beavers v. Lily Mill & Power Co., 205 N.C. 34, 169 S.E. 825 (1933).

Assistance to Third Person in Reciprocity for Aid Requested for Employer's Benefit. — An employee sent to fix flat tires went to a filling station and requested free use of its air pump, but before inflation of the tires was completed, the filling station operator asked him to help push a stalled car, and while he was doing so he was struck by another car, resulting in permanent injury. It was held that the courtesies and assistance extended by the employee were in reciprocity for the courtesy of free air requested by the employee for the employer's benefit, so that the employee had reasonable ground to apprehend that refusal to render the assistance requested of him might well have resulted in like refusal of the courtesy requested by him, and therefore the findings supported the conclusion that the accident arose out of and in the course of employment. Guest v. Brenner Iron & Metal Co., 241 N.C. 448, 85 S.E.2d 596 (1955).

VIII. INJURIES WHILE GOING TO AND FROM WORK.

A. In General.

Injury Suffered Going to or Returning from Work Is Not Generally Compensable.

— As a general rule an injury suffered by an employee while going to or returning from his work does not arise out of and in the course of his employment. Bray v. W.H. Weatherly & Co., 203 N.C. 160, 165 S.E. 332 (1932); Hardy v. Small, 246 N.C. 581, 99 S.E.2d 862 (1957); Humphrey v. Quality Cleaners & Laundry, 251 N.C. 47, 110 S.E.2d 467 (1959); Williams v. Brunswick County Bd. of Educ., 1 N.C. App. 89, 160 S.E.2d 102 (1968); Franklin v. Wilson County Bd. of Educ., 29 N.C. App. 491, 224 S.E.2d 657 (1976); Robertson v. Shepherd Constr. Co., 44 N.C. App. 335, 261 S.E.2d 16 (1979), cert. denied, 299 N.C. 545, 265 S.E.2d 405 (1980); Barham v. Food World, Inc., 300 N.C. 329, 266 S.E.2d 676, rehearing denied, 300 N.C. 562, 270 S.E.2d 105 (1980); Powers v. Lady's Funeral Home, 306 N.C. 728, 295 S.E.2d 473 (1982). See also Hunt v. State, 201 N.C. 707, 161 S.E. 203 (1931); Lassiter v. Carolina Tel. & Tel. Co., 215 N.C. 227, 1 S.E.2d 542 (1939); Schmoyer v. Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 81 N.C. App. 140, 343 S.E.2d 551, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 417, 349 S.E.2d 600 (1986).

An employee is not engaged in the prosecution of his employer's business while operating his personal car to the place where he is to perform the duties of his employment, nor while leaving his place of employment to go to his home. Ellis v. American Serv. Co., 240 N.C. 453, 82 S.E.2d 419 (1954).

The disallowance of recovery in the usual coming and going case is based, not upon the ground that the circumstances (i.e., the employee's going to or leaving work) are not within the course of employment, but upon considerations of time and place. In addition, the question of arising out of is not satisfied in many of these cases, especially where the injury is due to the hazards of the public highway, i.e., risks common to the general public. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

Unless Transportation Is Part of Employment Contract. — An injury sustained by an employee while going to or from work does not arise in the course of his employment and is not compensable unless the employer is under a contractual duty to transport employee or furnishes the means of transportation as an incident of the contract of employment. Whittington v. A.J. Schnierson & Sons, 255 N.C. 724, 122 S.E.2d 724 (1961).

An injury sustained in accidents occurring off the employer's premises while the employee is going to or returning from work is compensable when it is established that the employer, as an incident of the contract of employment, provides the means of transportation to and from the place where the work of the employment is performed. Harris v. Jack O. Farrell, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 204, 229 S.E.2d 45 (1976).

Or Unless Injury Was Due to Risk Incident to Employment. — While recovery may be denied where an injury is sustained while the employee is going to or coming from work, such denial is not upon the ground that going and coming are circumstances not within the course of employment. To the contrary, such activity is within the course of employment if the time and place requisites are satisfied, and injuries sustained while engaged therein are compensable if the injury arose out of employment, i.e., that they were due to an employment-connected risk. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

But Injury on Employer's Premises May Be Compensable. — The moment when the employee begins his work is not necessarily the moment when he gets into the employment, because a reasonable margin must be allowed him to get to the place of work if he is on the premises of the employer or on some access to the premises which the employer has provided. Hunt v. State, 201 N.C. 707, 161 S.E. 203 (1931). See also Bryan v. T.A. Loving Co., 222 N.C. 724, 24 S.E.2d 751 (1943).

Injuries sustained by an employee while going to or from the work place on premises owned or controlled by the employer are generally deemed to have arisen out of and in the course of employment. Strickland v. King, 293 N.C. 731, 239 S.E.2d 243 (1977).

Employee injured while traveling to and from his employment on the employer's premises is covered by this Chapter. Chandler v. Nello L. Teer Co., 53 N.C. App. 766, 281 S.E.2d 718 (1981), aff'd, 305 N.C. 292, 287 S.E.2d 890 (1982).

The "coming and going" rule provides that injuries which occur while an employee travels to and from work are not compensable; however, the "premises" exception applies when an employee is injured while on the employer's premises. Jennings v. Backyard Burgers, 123 N.C. App. 129, 472 S.E.2d 205 (1996).

Provided No Unreasonable Delay Is Chargeable to Employee. — Where an employee sustains injury going to or from his place of work on employer's premises or premises controlled by employer, the injury is compensable, provided no unreasonable delay is chargeable to employee. Williams v. Brunswick County Bd. of Educ., 1 N.C. App. 89, 160 S.E.2d 102 (1968).

As an exception to the general rule, known as the "going and coming rule," that injuries sustained by the employee while going to or from work are not ordinarily compensable, the great weight of authority holds that injuries sustained by an employee while going to or from his place of work upon premises owned or controlled by his employer are generally deemed to have arisen out of and in the course of employment within the act and are compensable, provided the employee's act involves no unreasonable delay. Bass v. Mecklenburg County, 258 N.C. 226, 128 S.E.2d 570 (1962); Maurer v. Salem Co., 266 N.C. 381, 146 S.E.2d 432 (1966); Gallimore v. Marilyn's Shoes, 30 N.C. App. 628, 228 S.E.2d 39 (1976), rev'd on other grounds, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977).

Parking Lot as Part of Premises. — It is usually held that an injury on a parking lot owned or maintained by the employer for his employees is an injury on the employer's premises. Maurer v. Salem Co., 266 N.C. 381, 146 S.E.2d 432 (1966); Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

Injuries sustained in automobile mishaps in company parking lots arise out of employment. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

Adjacent Premises Used as Means of Ingress and Egress. — Employment may be said to begin when the employee reaches the entrance to the employer's premises where the work is to be done; but it is clear that in some cases the rule extends to include adjacent premises used by the employee as a means of ingress and egress with the express or implied consent of the employer. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

Route Chosen By Employer Not in Course of Employment. — Plaintiff's accidental injury, which resulted from a hazardous condition on property adjacent to his employer's premises, did not arise out of and in the course of employment although defendant employer instructed the employee to use that route for ingress and egress. Jennings v. Backyard Burgers, 123 N.C. App. 129, 472 S.E.2d 205 (1996).

Special Errand Exception to General Rule. — The special errand exception to the "coming and going" rule is no more than that — an exception to the general rule that accidents occurring while the employee is in transit to and from work are not compensable. Therefore, the special errand doctrine does not transform all employees covered by the Workers' Compensation Act into absolute insurers of the safety of employees called away on some special mission. Powers v. Lady's Funeral Home, 57 N.C. App. 25, 290 S.E.2d 720, rev'd on other grounds, 306 N.C. 728, 295 S.E.2d 473 (1982).

The "special errand" exception permits coverage of the employee from "portal to portal." Powers v. Lady's Funeral Home, 306 N.C. 728, 295 S.E.2d 473 (1982).

As to statement and application of "special errand rule," see Felton v. Hospital Guild, 57 N.C. App. 33, 291 S.E.2d 158, aff'd by divided S. Ct. as law of case but without precedential value, 307 N.C. 121, 296 S.E.2d 297 (1982).

The "special errand" exception provides that an injury is in the course of the employment if it occurs while the employee is engaged in a special duty or special errand for his employer. Schmoyer v. Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 81 N.C. App. 140, 343 S.E.2d 551, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 417, 349 S.E.2d 600 (1986).

Same — Illustrative Case. — Where decedent was required, as a condition of his employment, to attend a four-week training seminar which was not offered at his regular place of employment, he was on a special errand to attend a training course at the direction of and for the benefit of his employer. Kirk v. State Dep't of Cor., 121 N.C. App. 129, 465 S.E.2d 301 (1995), review dismissed as improvidently granted, 344 N.C. 624, 476 S.E.2d 105 (1996).

Employee Held Not on Special Errand. — Evidence that church custodian, who was killed in an automobile accident late in the evening on the way from his parents' house to visit his fiancée, was planning to spend the night at the church following this visit so that despite an anticipated snowstorm he would be able to let a certain nonsupervisory volunteer into the church at 8:00 a.m. the next morning, when his work day ordinarily began, was not sufficient to establish that the custodian was on a special errand for his employer when he met his death. Schmoyer v. Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 81 N.C. App. 140, 343 S.E.2d 551, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 417, 349 S.E.2d 600 (1986).

The period of employment covers the working hours and such reasonable time as is required to pass to and from the employer's premises. Yates v. Hajoca Corp., 1 N.C. App. 553, 162 S.E.2d 119 (1968).

Injury While Returning to Jobsite at Direction of Foreman. — Where plaintiff's return to jobsite to pick up his final paycheck was at foreman's direction, even though foreman had earlier discharged plaintiff, the employment relationship was still in effect; however, plaintiff's injuries, sustained while he looked for foreman in a place other than where foreman had directed him to pick up the check, were not suffered in the course of employment. Byrd v. George W. Kane, Inc., 92 N.C. App. 490, 374 S.E.2d 480 (1988).

Accident While Driving Employer's Truck from Employee's Home to Place of Employment. — Where deceased was killed in a collision as he was driving a truck, owned and maintained by his employer, from his home to his place of employment, it was found that transportation to and from work was an incident of the employment, and that the accident arose out of and in the course of deceased's employment. Phifer v. Foremost Dairy, 200 N.C. 65, 156 S.E. 147 (1930).

Special Errand for Employer on Way to Work. — While on his way to work, plaintiff was injured in crossing the street to purchase supplies for defendant school. This was done at the request of the principal. It was held that plaintiff was employed in a special errand for his master. In such case employment begins from the time the employee leaves his home. Massey v. Board of Educ., 204 N.C. 193, 167 S.E. 695 (1933).

Injury to Police Officer on Call at All Times. — Recovery would be denied where a rural policeman on call at all times was killed in an automobile accident while driving his own car from his home to police headquarters to report for his regular working day. Davis v. Mecklenburg County, 214 N.C. 469, 199 S.E. 604 (1938).

Where the deceased was a motorcycle policeman with fixed hours of active patrol duty as well as a general obligation to make arrests at other hours when law violations came to his notice and to be "on call" at all times, his cycle was furnished by the city and he had the entire care of it, and he was privileged to keep it at home and did so and was riding home after regular hours when he was killed in a collision, the Commission properly found that his death was compensable. Smith v. City of Gastonia, 216 N.C. 517, 5 S.E.2d 540 (1939).

Policeman Killed While Returning to Work from Leave of Absence. — Where the evidence showed that a policeman was killed in an accident while returning to work from a leave of absence, the conclusion that he did not sustain injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment was sustained. McKenzie v. City of Gastonia, 222 N.C. 328, 22 S.E.2d 712 (1942).

Injury While Crossing Public Highway. — Where the evidence tended to show that plaintiff's intestate, a civilian guard of a construction company, stationed at a main gate of a marine base to direct traffic and parking about such gate and on the highway immediately adjoining, was at the time of the accident on his way to his place of employment to report for work and was killed, after alighting from a bus, on a public highway immediately in front of such main gate, as he attempted to cross the highway ahead of an oncoming car, an award was error, as deceased was not on the premises of his employer and his injury and death did not arise out of and in the course of his employment. Bryan v. T.A. Loving Co., 222 N.C. 724, 24 S.E.2d 751 (1943).

Injury During Lunch Hour. — Findings to the effect that during lunch hour the employees were free to go as they pleased, that deceased employee had stopped his work for the lunch period and, in attempting to board a truck moving within the premises of the employer, fell and was fatally injured, with further evidence that the employee had been given no order and had no duty connected either with the truck or its contents, and was acting according to his own will, was held insufficient to show affirmatively that the injury resulted from a hazard incident to the employment, and supported the ruling of the Industrial Commission that it did not arise out of the employment. Matthews v. Carolina Std. Corp., 232 N.C. 229, 60 S.E.2d 93 (1950).

An employee who was hit by a car while crossing highway to eat lunch on employer's parking lot did not sustain an injury arising out of and in the course of employment. Horn v. Sandhill Furn. Co., 245 N.C. 173, 95 S.E.2d 521 (1956).

Injury to Employee at Plant After Hours on Private Business. — Where claimant, a foreman, returned to the employer's plant after his regular working hours to attend to certain private business, but before entering upon such business he assisted with certain work of the employer, and then sat down on a wall to rest, whereupon he fell and was injured, it was held that the evidence was insufficient to sustain a finding that plaintiff's injury arose out of and in the course of his employment. Poteete v. North State Pyrophyllite Co., 240 N.C. 561, 82 S.E.2d 693 (1954).

Farm Employee Killed While Crossing Highway on Return from Barn to Home. — Where farm employee who lived on farm was killed while crossing highway when returning from barn to which he had gone to feed livestock to area of house in which he lived, the injury arose out of and in the course of his employment. Hardy v. Small, 246 N.C. 581, 99 S.E.2d 862 (1957).

Fall in Parking Lot. — Where the employer provided a parking lot on its premises next to its factory and permitted its employees to park their cars in the lot, an injury received by an employee in a fall while she was walking from her parked car on her way to the other part of the employer's premises where she actually worked was an injury arising out of and in the course of her employment within the purview of this section. Davis v. Devil Dog Mfg. Co., 249 N.C. 543, 107 S.E.2d 102 (1959).

Injury on Shopping Mall Parking Lot. — Salesperson for department store at mall shopping center who was injured after she had parked her automobile in an area in the mall parking lot designated for department store employees by the mall owners did not sustain an injury by an accident arising out of and in the course of her employment. Glassco v. Belk-Tyler Co., 69 N.C. App. 237, 316 S.E.2d 334 (1984).

Injuries on Employer's Private Road. — Injuries received by employees when their car went out of control as they were leaving work on a private road controlled and maintained by employer and leading from the area where the employees reported to work were held to have arisen out of and in the course of their employment. Robinson v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 13 N.C. App. 208, 185 S.E.2d 333 (1971).

Injury After Leaving Premises. — Where

accident occurred at a time after plaintiff had completed her regular work shift, had "clocked out" on the time clock provided by her employer for that purpose, and had left her employer's premises for the day and at a place which was not on her employer's premises and over which it had no control, the accident did not arise "in the course of" her employment. Taylor v. Albain Shirt Co., 28 N.C. App. 61, 220 S.E.2d 144 (1975), cert. denied, 289 N.C. 302, 222 S.E.2d 703 (1976).

Accident in Truck Operated by Fellow Employee. — Where the fatal accident occurred after the employees had completed their day's work at the job site, had punched out on the time clock, had left the place of their employment, and had started homeward in a truck owned and operated by a fellow employee whom they paid to transport them, the injury by accident did not arise out of and in the course of employment with defendant employer. Harris v. Jack O. Farrell, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 204, 229 S.E.2d 45 (1976).

Accident Returning from Meeting Where Going to and from Same Was Part of Duties. — Plaintiff's accident on a city street as she was returning home to write a report about a work-related meeting which she had just attended was an accident in the course of her employment where going to and from the meetings was a part of plaintiff's job duties for which she was paid the same as when actually in the office or at community meetings. Warren v. City of Wilmington, 43 N.C. App. 748, 259 S.E.2d 786 (1979).

Accident Returning from Meeting Held Not Part of Duties. — Although plaintiff's presence was required at a meeting after which his accident occurred, his travel from that meeting should not be included within the scope of his employment duties. Being required to drive one's car to a meeting is no different from being required to drive one's car to work. When plaintiff left the meeting he was not traveling to a destination required by his employer nor was he engaged in the furtherance of his employer's business. Wright v. Wake County Pub. Schs., 103 N.C. App. 282, 405 S.E.2d 228 (1991).

Fall in Loading Zone. — An injury to plaintiff grocery store employee when she slipped and fell on ice in a loading zone in front of defendant employer's store in a shopping center while she was walking to her work site after parking her car in the shopping center parking lot did not occur on her employer's premises and thus did not arise out of and in the course of her employment, where plaintiff failed to show that she was performing any duties for employer at the time of her injury or that she was exposed to any danger greater than that of the public generally. Barham v. Food World, Inc., 300 N.C. 329, 266 S.E.2d 676, rehearing denied, 300 N.C. 562, 270 S.E.2d 105 (1980).

B. Where Employer Furnishes Transportation.

Employer would not expose himself to liability for workers' compensation purposes by gratuitously furnishing transportation for his employees. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Curry, 28 N.C. App. 286, 221 S.E.2d 75, cert. denied, 289 N.C. 615, 223 S.E.2d 396 (1976).

But Employer Who Furnishes Transportation as Incident to Contract of Employment May Be Liable. — While ordinarily an employer is not liable under this Chapter for an injury suffered by an employee while going to or returning from work, the employer may be held liable when he furnishes the means of transportation as an incident to the contract of employment. Smith v. City of Gastonia, 216 N.C. 517, 5 S.E.2d 540 (1939); Robertson v. Shepherd Constr. Co., 44 N.C. App. 335, 261 S.E.2d 16 (1979), cert. denied, 299 N.C. 545, 265 S.E.2d 405 (1980).

Injuries received by an employee while traveling to or from his place of employment are usually not covered by the act unless the employer furnishes the means of transportation as an incident of the contract of employment. Strickland v. King, 293 N.C. 731, 239 S.E.2d 243 (1977).

North Carolina has long held as compensable injuries sustained by employees while on the way to or returning from work where the employer provides the means of transportation. Williams v. Brunswick County Bd. of Educ., 1 N.C. App. 89, 160 S.E.2d 102 (1968).

Injuries sustained by an employee while being transported to or from work in a conveyance furnished by his employer pursuant to an express or implied term of the contract of employment are compensable. Enroughty v. Black Indus., Inc., 13 N.C. App. 400, 185 S.E.2d 597, cert. denied, 280 N.C. 721, 186 S.E.2d 923 (1972).

When the journey to or from work is made in the employer's conveyance, the journey is in the course of employment, the reason being that the risks of the employment continue throughout the journey. Battle v. Bryant Elec. Co., 15 N.C. App. 246, 189 S.E.2d 788, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 755, 191 S.E.2d 353 (1972).

As May Employer Who Makes Allowances to Cover Cost of Transportation. — Injuries sustained in an automobile accident by employees while on their way to or from work in an automobile owned by one of them arise out of and in the course of their employment when, under the terms of the employment and as an incident to the contract of employment, allowances are made by the employer to cover the cost of such transportation. Puett v. Bahnson

Co., 231 N.C. 711, 58 S.E.2d 633 (1950). See also Phifer v. Foremost Dairy, 200 N.C. 65, 156 S.E. 147 (1930), where defendant provided deceased with a truck for use in defendant's business and in taking deceased to and from work; Edwards v. T.A. Loving Co., 203 N.C. 189, 165 S.E. 356 (1932), where deceased's contract of service provided for transportation by the employer.

An injury suffered by an employee while going to or from his work arises out of and in the course of employment when the employee, under the terms of the employment and, as an incident to the contract of employment, is paid an allowance to cover the cost of such transportation. Williams v. Brunswick County Bd. of Educ., 1 N.C. App. 89, 160 S.E.2d 102 (1968).

The test in such cases is whether the vehicle furnished by employer is one which the employees are required, or as a matter of right are permitted, to use by virtue of their contract, or whether it is furnished gratuitously for the mere accommodation of the workmen. Lassiter v. Carolina Tel. & Tel. Co., 215 N.C. 227, 1 S.E.2d 542 (1939), affirming denial of compensation where transportation was furnished gratuitously; Robertson v. Shepherd Constr. Co., 44 N.C. App. 335, 261 S.E.2d 16 (1979), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 395, 290 S.E.2d 364 (1982). See also Geiger v. Guilford College Community Volunteer Firemen's Ass'n, 668 F. Supp. 492 (M.D.N.C. 1987).

Trips to and from Lunch. — The rule that traveling to and from work on a conveyance furnished by the employer is in the course of employment is applicable to trips to and from lunch. Enroughty v. Black Indus., Inc., 13 N.C. App. 400, 185 S.E.2d 597, cert. denied, 280 N.C. 721, 186 S.E.2d 923 (1972).

Transportation Furnished in Accordance with Custom. — Where employer hired two employees to ride on truck to help driver unload, and on the last trip the driver consented to let the employees off at the place on his route nearest their homes, in accordance with established custom, and one of the employees attempted to alight before the truck had completely stopped, contrary to express orders, and fell to his mortal injury, the evidence was sufficient to sustain the finding that the accident arose out of and in the course of the employment. Latham v. Southern Fish & Grocery Co., 208 N.C. 505, 181 S.E. 640 (1935).

Riding in Another Vehicle at Direction of Employer's Foreman. — The evidence tended to show that defendant's employees were required to check in at the office in the morning, were then transported to the job, and after completion of the day's work were transported back to the office where they received instructions as to the next day's work before checking out, their working time being computed from the time of checking in until the time of checking out, that on the date in question they were carried to the job in a truck, but that the president's car was sent to bring them back because of rain, that when deceased started to get in the car there were already six persons, including the driver, in the car, that the foreman said he could crowd in the car or ride in with another employee who was driving his own car, and that deceased then rode in with the other employee, and was fatally injured in an accident occurring after they had reached the city in which defendant's place of business was maintained and while they were on their way to defendant's office to check out. The evidence was sufficient to support the finding of the Industrial Commission that death resulted from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, the general rule of nonliability for an accident occurring while an employee is being transported to or from work in a conveyance of a third person over which the employer has no control not being applicable upon the evidence. Mion v. Atlantic Marble & Tile Co., 217 N.C. 743, 9 S.E.2d 501 (1940).

Abandoning Vehicle Furnished by Employer. — Where an employer was under obligation to transport its employees from the woods where they worked to a camp, and provided for that purpose a safety car attached to its railroad train, having forbidden its employees to use the more hazardous log train, and deceased was killed in attempting to get on the log train and thus return to camp, the employee was killed as result of injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment. Archie v. Greene Bros. Lumber Co., 222 N.C. 477, 23 S.E.2d 834 (1943).

Where making a trip to a farm to load poultry and a return trip to the place of business of the employer after the poultry was loaded constituted a substantial part of the services for which claimant was employed, the transfer of claimant from the truck of the employer to his own automobile in order that he might have it so that he could return home after he made his required report at the office of his employer did not constitute a distinct departure on a personal errand disassociated from his master's business, where claimant's home was located on the most direct route between the farm and the plant, and where when the collision occurred claimant was proceeding on this direct route to the place of business of his employer. Brewer v. Powers Trucking Co., 256 N.C. 175, 123 S.E.2d 608 (1962).

Abandonment of Employment. — Findings to the effect that the deceased employee was furnished a car for transportation to and from his work, that he quit work about 7:00 P.M., met a friend for dinner, took repeated drinks throughout the evening, made several trips, on one of which he drove approximately 100 miles per hour, in search of a girl to join the party, and some five hours thereafter started for home in the employer's car, and was killed in a wreck occurring on the direct route from the employer's place of business to the employee's home, held to show an abandonment of employment rather than a deviation from it, and therefore the accident did not arise in the course of the employment. Alford v. Quality Chevrolet Co., 246 N.C. 214, 97 S.E.2d 869 (1957).

Isolated Instance of Permission to Drive Company Truck Home. — Where deceased employee had permission to drive company truck home the day of the accident, the permission given the deceased on this single, isolated occasion would not make the operation of the pickup truck an incident of his contract of employment. Robertson v. Shepherd Constr. Co., 44 N.C. App. 335, 261 S.E.2d 16 (1979), cert. denied, 299 N.C. 545, 265 S.E.2d 405 (1980).

IX. INJURIES WHERE EMPLOYMENT ENTAILS TRAVELING.

Employees whose work entails travel away from the employer's premises are held to be within the course of their employment continuously during the trip, except when a distinct departure on a personal errand is shown, in the majority of jurisdictions. Brewer v. Powers Trucking Co., 256 N.C. 175, 123 S.E.2d 608 (1962); Kiger v. Bahnson Serv. Co., 260 N.C. 760, 133 S.E.2d 702 (1963); Clark v. Burton Lines, 272 N.C. 433, 158 S.E.2d 569 (1968); Martin v. Georgia-Pacific Corp., 5 N.C. App. 37, 167 S.E.2d 790 (1969); Smith v. Central Transp., 51 N.C. App. 316, 276 S.E.2d 751 (1981); Chandler v. Nello L. Teer Co., 53 N.C. App. 766, 281 S.E.2d 718 (1981), aff'd, 305 N.C. 292, 287 S.E.2d 890 (1982).

When travel is contemplated as part of the work, the rule is that the employment includes not only the actual doing of the work, but also a reasonable margin of time and space necessary to be used in passing to and from the place where the work is to be done, when the latter is expressly or impliedly included in the terms of the employment. Alford v. Quality Chevrolet Co., 246 N.C. 214, 97 S.E.2d 869 (1957); Yates v. Hajoca Corp., 1 N.C. App. 553, 162 S.E.2d 119 (1968).

As a general rule, accidents sustained while an employee is going to and from work are not within the course of the employment. However, where travel is contemplated as a part of the work, accident in travel is compensable. This exception is often referred to as the "traveling salesman's exception" to the going and coming rule. Ross v. Young Supply Co., 71 N.C. App. 532, 322 S.E.2d 648 (1984).

An employee whose work entails travel away from the employer's premises acts within the course of his employment continuously during the trip, unless there is proof of distinct or total departure on a personal errand. Hobgood v. Anchor Motor Freight, 68 N.C. App. 783, 316 S.E.2d 86 (1984).

Injuries arising out of the necessity of sleeping in hotels or eating in restaurants away from home are usually held compensable. Martin v. Georgia-Pacific Corp., 5 N.C. App. 37, 167 S.E.2d 790 (1969); Smith v. Central Transp., 51 N.C. App. 316, 276 S.E.2d 751 (1981).

When a traveling man slips in the street or is struck by an automobile between his hotel and a restaurant, the injury has been held compensable, even though the accident occurred on a Sunday evening, or involved an extended trip occasioned by employee's wish to eat at a particular restaurant. Martin v. Georgia-Pacific Corp., 5 N.C. App. 37, 167 S.E.2d 790 (1969).

Necessary Business Trip Combining Simultaneous Private Purpose. — If the work of the employee creates the necessity for travel, such is in the course of his employment, even though he is serving at same time some purpose of his own. Bee v. Yates Aluminum Window Co., 46 N.C. App. 96, 264 S.E.2d 368 (1980).

Trip Made Primarily for Personal or Social Reasons. — Injuries received while on a trip being made primarily for personal or social reasons and not in performance of duty are not compensable, even if the employer is incidentally benefited by the trip. Ridout v. Rose's 5-10-25¢ Stores, 205 N.C. 423, 171 S.E. 642 (1933), in which deceased went with another to visit the other's girlfriend and while on the visit stopped to get certain goods for his employer.

Continuity Between Employment and Travel. — If it be conceded the course of employment included the travel home, then certainly there must be reasonable continuity between the employment and the travel. Alford v. Quality Chevrolet Co., 246 N.C. 214, 97 S.E.2d 869 (1957); Yates v. Hajoca Corp., 1 N.C. App. 553, 162 S.E.2d 119 (1968).

Injury to Salesman on Weekend Trip. — Evidence that plaintiff, a traveling salesman, used his employer's car for a weekend trip and was injured in a wreck in returning was held to support the finding of the Industrial Commission that the accident did not arise out of and in the course of the employment, notwithstanding that the injured employee, at the destination of the trip, met and conversed with a representative of the employer, without appointment or direction of the employer, primarily in regard to a personal matter. Porter v. Noland Co., 215 N.C. 724, 2 S.E.2d 853 (1939).

Fishing Trip. — Injury to a Boy Scout executive by accident while on a fishing trip on the high seas while attending an executive's conference arose out of and in the course of his employment when the executive was directed to attend the conference with all expenses paid by Boy Scout council, and the council prepared an agenda of recreational projects, including deep sea fishing, and impliedly required each executive to select one of the projects as an aid to his advancement and better qualifications to carry on his work in scouting. Rice v. Uwharrie Council Boy Scouts of Am., 263 N.C. 204, 139 S.E.2d 223 (1964).

Choking on Food in Restaurant. — There was no causal relationship between decedent's employment and his choking on a piece of meat when his day's work was over and, business engagements scheduled for the morrow, he was having a leisurely evening meal at a public restaurant with an old friend whom the trip had enabled him to visit. Bartlett v. Duke Univ., 284 N.C. 230, 200 S.E.2d 193 (1973).

Employee Sent to Africa by Employer. — Where employer sent employees on a business trip to an isolated part of Africa and provided employees with sleeping, eating and recreational facilities within various company project areas, while they were within the project areas the employees were continuously in an employment situation and were protected by this Chapter. Chandler v. Nello L. Teer Co., 53 N.C. App. 766, 281 S.E.2d 718 (1981), aff'd, 305 N.C. 292, 287 S.E.2d 890 (1982).

Employee sent to Africa by employer to work on road project, who went on a personal detour to visit a nearby sugar plantation but was back within the confines of the road project when accident occurred, returning to his place of employment and the sleeping accommodations provided, was entitled to compensation under this Chapter. Chandler v. Nello L. Teer Co., 53 N.C. App. 766, 281 S.E.2d 718 (1981), aff'd, 305 N.C. 292, 287 S.E.2d 890 (1982).

X. ASSAULTS AND FIGHTS.

Assault as Accident When Unexpected. — Although an assault is an intentional act, it may be an accident within the meaning of the act when it is unexpected and without design on the part of the employee who suffers from it. Robbins v. Nicholson, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972).

An assault is an "accident" within the meaning of the Workers' Compensation Act when from the point of view of the worker who suffers from it, it is unexpected and without design on his part, although intentionally caused by another. Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949); Gallimore v. Marilyn's Shoes, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977).

An unexpected assault may be considered as an accident despite its characterization as an intentional act. Daniels v. Swofford, 55 N.C. App. 555, 286 S.E.2d 582 (1982).

And When Arising Out of Work. — Where men are working together at the same work, disagreements may be expected to arise about the work, the manner of doing it, the use of tools, interference with one another, and many other details which may be trifling or important. Infirmary of temper, or worse, may be expected, and occasionally blows and fighting. When the disagreement arises out of the work in which two men are engaged, and as a result of it one injures the other, it may be inferred that the injury arose out of employment. Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949).

Where a worker is injured by a fellow employee because of a dispute about the manner of doing the work he is employed to do, the accident to the injured worker grows out of the employment and is compensable. Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949).

The danger which causes the assault must be peculiar to the work and not common to the neighborhood. It must be incidental to the character of the business and not independent of the relation of master and servant. It need not have been foreseen or expected, but after the event it must appear to have had its origin in a risk connected with the employment and to have flowed from that source as a rational consequence. Gallimore v. Marilyn's Shoes, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977).

Where the assault upon the employee grows out of a motive foreign to the employment relationship, the necessary connection between the injury and the employment is not present and no compensation for the injury is proper. Gallimore v. Marilyn's Shoes, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977).

Assault by Third Person. — The mere fact that injury is the result of the willful or criminal assault of a third person does not prevent the injury from being accidental. Gallimore v. Marilyn's Shoes, 30 N.C. App. 628, 228 S.E.2d 39 (1976), rev'd on other grounds, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977).

Assault by Fellow Servant. — The mere fact that the injury is the result of a willful and criminal assault of a fellow servant does not of itself prevent the injury from being accidental. Conrad v. Cook-Lewis Foundry Co., 198 N.C. 723, 153 S.E. 266 (1930).

If one employee assaults another solely from anger, hatred, revenge, or vindictiveness, not growing out of or as an incident to the employment, the injury is to be attributed to the voluntary act of the assailant, and not as an incident of the employment. But if the assault is incidental to some duty of the employment, the injuries suffered thereby may properly be said to arise out of the employment. Ashley v. F-W Chevrolet Co., 222 N.C. 25, 21 S.E.2d 834 (1942), wherein finding held to sustain award.

No Compensation Where Cause of Assault Is Personal. — When the moving cause of an assault upon an employee by a third person is personal, or the circumstances surrounding the assault furnish no basis for a reasonable inference that the nature of the employment created the risk of such an attack, the injury is not compensable. This is true even though the employee was engaged in the performance of his duties at the time, for even though the employment may have provided a convenient opportunity for the attack it was not the cause. Robbins v. Nicholson, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972).

Injury is not compensable when it is inflicted in an assault upon an employee by an outsider as the result of a personal relationship between them, so that the attack was not created by and not reasonably related to the employment; to be compensable, the assault must have had such a connection with the employment that it can be found logically that the nature of the employment created the risk of the attack. Hemric v. Reed & Prince Mfg. Co., 54 N.C. App. 314, 283 S.E.2d 436 (1981), cert. denied, 304 N.C. 726, 288 S.E.2d 806 (1982).

Killing as Result of Personal Enmity Alone. — In order for compensation to be recovered for the death of an employee under this act it is required that the injury causing death result from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, as a proximate cause, and where compensation is sought for the killing of one employee by another for purely personal and unrelated grounds, or when one was employed at night and the other by day, and the killing at night was a result of personal enmity alone, and these facts are found by the Commission and approved by the trial judge, the judgment denying the right of compensation will be affirmed on appeal. Harden v. Thomasville Furn. Co., 199 N.C. 733, 155 S.E. 728 (1930).

The risk of murder by a jealous spouse is not one which a rational mind would anticipate as an incident of the employment of both sexes in a business or industry. The possibility that an employee's spouse will become jealous of an associate, with or without cause, is a hazard common to the neighborhood; it is independent of the relation of master and servant and is not a risk arising out of the nature of the employment. Robbins v. Nicholson, 281 N.C. 234, 188 S.E.2d 350 (1972).

Employer's Knowledge of Threats Irrelevant. — Where an employee is injured in the course of employment by an outsider because of hate, jealousy, or revenge based on a personal relationship, the fact that the employer has knowledge of prior threats of death or bodily harm does not result in the injury's arising out of the employment; to allow compensation under such circumstances would have the practical effect of placing on the employer the duty of yielding to such threats of violence and terminating the employment of any worker so threatened, which would saddle the employer with a grossly unfair burden and the employee, in many cases, with an unjust job termination. Hemric v. Reed & Prince Mfg. Co., 54 N.C. App. 314, 283 S.E.2d 436 (1981), cert. denied, 304 N.C. 726, 288 S.E.2d 806 (1982).

Shooting by Assistant. — Where in a proceeding under this Act the evidence tended to show that the employee was a moulder in the employer's foundry, and that he struck his assistant with a shovel after the assistant had spoken words to him which he deemed insulting, whereupon the assistant left the employment and returned and shot the claimant while he was doing his work, causing permanent injury, the evidence was sufficient to bring the case within the intent and meaning of the terms "injury by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment." Conrad v. Cook-Lewis Foundry Co., 198 N.C. 723, 153 S.E. 266 (1930).

Shooting of Night Watchman. — Even though one be engaged in duties involving peculiar risks, one may not recover for any injury not arising out of those risks. Harden v. Thomasville Furn. Co., 199 N.C. 733, 155 S.E. 728 (1930), where a night watchman was shot by a fellow employee because of a domestic affair.

Deceased was a night watchman. While in a small store on defendant's premises which was operated by a third person, he was shot by one who attempted to rob the store. It was held that the injury bore no relation to deceased's employment. Smith v. Newman Mach. Co., 206 N.C. 97, 172 S.E. 880 (1932).

Employee Shot by Hunter. — Plaintiff was shot in the eye by a hunter while he was working on his employer's truck. The injury did not result from a cause peculiar to the employment in which plaintiff was engaged. Whitley v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 201 N.C. 539, 160 S.E. 827 (1931); Bain v. Travora Mfg. Co., 203 N.C. 466, 166 S.E. 301 (1932).

Murder by Robber. — Deceased was required to report at defendant's mill before the other employees. It was known that many hoboes slept near the boiler room where he worked. He was murdered by a robber while he was engaged in his duties and before any other employees reported for work. It was held that the injury arose out of the employment. Goodwin v. Bright, 202 N.C. 481, 163 S.E. 576 (1932). See also West v. East Coast Fertilizer Co., 201 N.C. 556, 160 S.E. 765 (1931), where deceased, a night watchman, was killed by a robber.

Assault upon Employee Collecting Accounts. — Where there was evidence that it was employee's duty to collect accounts of his employer for goods sold upon the installment plan and that the employee endeavored to collect an account from a debtor and was struck by another also owing an account to the employer, the injury resulting in death, the evidence was sufficient to sustain a finding by the Industrial Commission that the injury was the result of an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, and such a finding of fact was conclusive and binding. Winberry v. Farley Stores, 204 N.C. 79, 167 S.E. 475 (1933).

Game Warden Killed by Person Against Whom He Testified in Criminal Action. — Where decedent, a game warden, was killed by a person against whom he had testified in a criminal action for violation of the game law, the court held that the injury did not arise out of and in the course of employment. Hollowell v. North Carolina Dep't of Conservation & Dev., 206 N.C. 206, 173 S.E. 603 (1934).

Fall Suffered While Running from Assailant. — A fellow employee, who was drunk at the time, ran plaintiff away from his work. Plaintiff returned, only to run again when he saw his assailant approaching. Plaintiff's foreman was present. In leaving the second time, plaintiff fell and broke his leg. The Commission's award of compensation was affirmed. The injury had its origin in plaintiff's employment. It was immaterial that it was unexpected. Wilson v. Boyd & Goforth, 207 N.C. 344, 177 S.E. 178 (1934).

Employee in Moving Vehicle Struck by Flying Object. — Where a deliveryman was driving a truck in the course of his employment and, while passing a group of boys playing baseball, a baseball struck the windshield and a piece of glass from the windshield struck him in the eye, resulting in serious injury, it was held that the injury resulted from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, within the meaning of this section. Perkins v. Sprott, 207 N.C. 462, 177 S.E. 404 (1934), distinguishing Whitley v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 201 N.C. 539, 160 S.E. 827 (1931) and Bain v. Travora Mfg. Co., 203 N.C. 466, 166 S.E. 301 (1932), apparently on the ground that in those cases the plaintiff was struck by a bullet, whereas here, the glass and not the ball directly injured plaintiff.

Dispute over Matters Foreign to Employment. — Evidence tending to show that a night watchman employed to watch over one section of a highway under construction came over to a night watchman employed to watch over another section thereof, and engaged in an altercation relating to matters foreign to the employment, and that one of them killed the other as a result thereof, was sufficient to support the finding of the Industrial Commission that the deceased's death was not the result of an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, and therefore such finding was conclusive on the courts. McNeill v. C.A. Ragland Constr. Co., 216 N.C. 744, 6 S.E.2d 491 (1940).

As to assault by foreman in discharging employee, see McCune v. Rhodes-Rhyne Mfg. Co., 217 N.C. 351, 8 S.E.2d 219 (1940).

Assault Arising from Dispute over Work.

— Where the evidence disclosed that two employees had no personal contacts outside of the employment, and there was evidence that the dispute between them arose over the work they were performing for their common employer, the evidence was sufficient to sustain the finding by the Industrial Commission that an assault made by the one upon the other arose out of the employment. Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949).

Where there was friction and enmity between two employees, growing out of criticism of the work of one of them by the other and complaint thereof to the employer, and the employee whose work was criticized assaulted his fellow worker from anger and revenge over such criticism, which resulted in the death of the one assaulted, such death occurred from an accident in the course of the employment. Hegler v. Cannon Mills Co., 224 N.C. 669, 31 S.E.2d 918 (1944).

Shooting of three employees by mentally disturbed coemployee while they were at work in locker plant arose out of and in the course of employment though shooting was "triggered" by a draft board incident, where shooter stated that reason for shooting was resentment of "domination" by coemployees. Zimmerman v. Elizabeth City Freezer Locker, 244 N.C. 628, 94 S.E.2d 813 (1956).

Shooting by Boyfriend of Coworker. — Injuries received by plaintiff at place of employment when the boyfriend of a coworker shot both plaintiff and coworker did not arise out of his employment, where the assault resulted from the personal relationship between the coworker and her boyfriend and was not created by or reasonably related to the employment, notwithstanding the fact that plaintiff was present in the office in which the shooting occurred because he had been instructed to keep a record of coworker's hours. Hemric v. Reed & Prince Mfg. Co., 54 N.C. App. 314, 283 S.E.2d 436 (1981), cert. denied, 304 N.C. 726, 288 S.E.2d 806 (1982).

XI. HORSEPLAY.

Horseplay as Risk Assumed by Employer. — The act contemplates the gathering together of workers of varying characteristics, and the risks and hazards of such close contact, including joking and pranks by the workers, are incidents to the business and grow out of it and are ordinary risks assumed by the employer under the act. Chambers v. Union Oil

Co., 199 N.C. 28, 153 S.E. 594 (1930). See also Wilson v. Town of Mooresville, 222 N.C. 283, 22 S.E.2d 907 (1942).

Injuries resulting from horseplay initiated and participated in by a claimant have not been excluded from the Workers' Compensation Act by the decision of the State Supreme Court in Chambers v. Union Oil Co., 199 N.C. 28, 153 S.E. 594 (1930). Bare v. Wayne Poultry Co., 70 N.C. App. 88, 318 S.E.2d 534 (1984), cert. denied, 312 N.C. 796, 325 S.E.2d 484 (1985).

Where Injured Employee Did Not Participate in Horseplay He May Recover. —

Where the injured employee does not participate in the sportive acts of his fellow employee, the injury is compensable. Chambers v. Union Oil Co., 199 N.C. 28, 153 S.E. 594 (1930), where claimant was accidentally shot by the discharge of a gun, which a fellow truck driver carried in his truck, while he was putting oil in his own truck, commented on in 9 N.C.L. Rev. 105 (1931).

If an employee is injured as a result of the horseplay of a fellow worker, the injured employee is not precluded from recovering his damages under this act if he did not participate therein. Chambers v. Union Oil Co., 199 N.C. 28, 153 S.E. 594 (1930).

Injuries occurring after the employee has ceased his horseplay and returned to work are compensable. Michaux v. Gate City Orange Crush Bottling Co., 205 N.C. 786, 172 S.E. 406 (1934), affirming award of compensation to deceased, who was killed in trying to catch his employer's truck, which had left him while he was wrestling with a stranger.

Thrill seeking which bears no conceivable relation to accomplishing the job for which the employee was hired moves the employee from the scope of his employment. Hoyle v. Isenhour Brick & Tile Co., 306 N.C. 248, 293 S.E.2d 196 (1982).

Back Injury Caused by Fellow Employee. — Plaintiff employee, who was injured when he told co-worker who was sitting on a box of cloth in employer's dyeing department that he was going to turn him over onto the floor, upon which co-employee got up and grabbed the front of plaintiff's belt and jerked him, causing an injury to plaintiff's back which eventually resulted in plaintiff having a disc removed from his back by surgery, sustained his injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment as a result of horseplay, and was entitled to compensation. McGraw v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 84 N.C. App. 307, 352 S.E.2d 435 (1987).

Death by Drowning — Held Compensable. — The death of a 14-year-old employee of a sanitary district by drowning while he was attempting to wade across a reservoir to complete his work of cutting weeds on the side arose out of and in the course of his employment, although he had received general instructions at an earlier time not to go into the water, where the place at which he stepped into the water was shallow and the danger was not obvious, and decedent's actions were thus not so extreme as to break the causal connection between his employment and his death. Hensley v. Caswell Action Comm., Inc., 296 N.C. 527, 251 S.E.2d 399 (1979).

Same — Held Not Compensable. — The death of a 15-year-old laborer by drowning while swimming in a lake on his employer's premises during his lunch hour when the life-guard was not on duty did not arise out of and in the course of his employment where all the evidence showed that deceased was acting in contravention of specific instructions from his employer and that he was engaged in an independent recreational activity totally unrelated to his work of cutting grass. Martin v. Bonclarken Ass'y, 296 N.C. 540, 251 S.E.2d 403 (1979).

XII. DEVIATION, DEPARTURE, AND ABANDONMENT.

Employee Need Not Be in Exact Spot Designated by Employer. — The Workers' Compensation Act must be liberally construed, and the term "out of the employment" will not preclude recovery for an accident occurring while an employee is not in the exact spot designated by the employer if the employee is at the place he is required to be in the performance of his duties. Howell v. Standard Ice & Fuel Co., 226 N.C. 730, 40 S.E.2d 197 (1946).

Performance of Forbidden Task. — Where an employee is employed solely for a particular job, such as operating a chain saw, and is positively forbidden to perform another job connected with the work, such as operating a tractor, and injury received while performing the forbidden task does not arise out of a hazard of the employment, and is not compensable. Taylor v. Dixon, 251 N.C. 304, 111 S.E.2d 181 (1959).

Violation of Orders. — Disobedience of a direct and specific order by a then present superior breaks the causal relation between the employment and the resulting injury. Conversely, when there is a rule or a prior order and the employee is faced with the choice of remaining idle in compliance with the rule or order or continuing to further his employer's business in contravention of it, no superior being present, the employer who would reap the benefits of the employee's acts if successfully completed should bear the burden of injury resulting from such acts. Under such circumstances, engaging in an activity which is outside the narrow confines of the employee's job description, but which is reasonably related to the accomplishment of the task for which the employee was hired, does not ordinarily constitute a departure from the scope of employment. Hoyle v. Isenhour Brick & Tile Co., 306 N.C. 248, 293 S.E.2d 196 (1982).

Emergency. — Deceased slept on employer's premises. On the night of the accident, some machinery had broken and deceased voluntarily went after a foreman who could fix it. No one had requested deceased to do this, although the evidence showed that he expected to receive pay for his time. He was killed by a passing car while on his way to get the foreman. It was held that the breakdown of machinery could not be classified as sufficient emergency to justify recovery. Davis v. North State Veneer Corp., 200 N.C. 263, 156 S.E. 859 (1931).

Salesman Going Out of His Way to Buy Cigars. — The injured employee was a salesman and collector who was furnished with a car and who had no fixed hours of employment. One evening, while on his way to make a business visit, he deviated less than a mile to buy some cigars, which he regarded as expedient to the purpose of his visit. While going from the drugstore, he was injured. Compensation award was affirmed; the accident arose out of and in the course of the employment. Parrish v. Armour & Co., 200 N.C. 654, 158 S.E. 188 (1931).

Attempt to Get a Job for a Friend. — Claimant was an employee in defendant's mill. Her work ceased at 11 o'clock one day, but she was not permitted to leave until 11:30. During this interval she was injured as she returned from downstairs to see about getting a friend a job. It was held that plaintiff's mission was "not such a departure from the employer's business . . . that it was not in the course of the employment." Bellamy v. Great Falls Mfg. Co., 200 N.C. 676, 158 S.E. 246 (1931).

Return to Employment after Deviation. — After working steadily for 15 hours, claimant stopped to eat and get a haircut. He then returned to his employer's truck. He was injured in taking the truck to defendant's place of business. It was held that the temporary deviation from the course of duty was not an abandonment. Furthermore, the accident occurred after the employee had resumed his work. Jackson v. Dairymen's Creamery, 202 N.C. 196, 162 S.E. 359 (1932).

Evidence that claimant was not sure that the mill in which he was employed would be operated on the day in question and that he rode to work with another employee, requesting his son to follow in his car to drive him home in case the mill was not operated, and that upon getting to work and ascertaining that the mill would be operated, he put his lunch in the room where he worked and went to a platform at the front of the mill to tell his son not to wait for him, and that he there slipped on ice and fell to his injury, was sufficient to support the finding that the injury resulted from an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment. Gordon v. Thomasville Chair Co., 205 N.C. 739, 172 S.E. 485 (1934).

Accidental Discharge of Gun. — Deceased, a delivery boy, went to employer's store-room after groceries. He stopped by a private bedroom and was killed by the accidental discharge of a gun which he had found in the room. The evidence was held sufficient to support the Commission's finding that the accident did not arise out of and in the course of the employment. Smith v. S.E. Hauser & Co., 206 N.C. 562, 174 S.E. 455 (1934).

Acting at Request of Superior. — Recovery was denied where deceased was killed while attending a furniture market at the request of his superior. It was shown that the deceased was invited to attend, not for the purpose of learning anything helpful to his work, but to enable him to have a pleasure trip. Hilderbrand v. McDowell Furn. Co., 212 N.C. 100, 193 S.E. 294 (1937).

When plaintiff injured his arm in raising a window to obtain a bottle of milk which he had purchased from defendant's confectionery wagon and set aside to cool, recovery was allowed, the court saying that plaintiff's conduct did not constitute such a deviation as to deprive him of the benefits of the act. Pickard v. E.M. Holt Plaid Mills, 213 N.C. 28, 195 S.E. 28 (1938).

Drowning After Violation of Orders. — Recovery was denied where a painter dropped his brush in a river and in violation of the foreman's orders went in after it and was drowned. Morrow v. State Hwy. & Pub. Works Comm'n, 214 N.C. 835, 199 S.E. 265 (1938).

Fall After Resting on Plank. — The findings of fact of the Industrial Commission, supported by the evidence, were to the effect that deceased employee was a night watchman, that his duties were to make periodic inspection and to attend the furnaces and to get up steam, that on the night in question he procured his son to help him, that he instructed his son to do certain of his duties in the boiler room, that he placed a small box and plank on a walkway eight or nine feet high, with one end of the plank resting on the box, and lay down on the plank, that his son called him in time to make a periodic inspection some 30 minutes later, and that in getting up from his recumbent position, while his son was engaged in the performance of the employee's active duties in the boiler room, the employee fell from the walkway and was fatally injured. The facts did not compel the conclusion, as a matter of law, that at the time of injury the employee had not deviated from or abandoned his employment, and therefore the award of the Industrial Commission denying compensation was upheld. Stallcup v. Carolina Wood Turning Co., 217 N.C. 302, 7 S.E.2d 550 (1940).

Riding Conveyor. — Deceased was killed in rising from basement to ground floor on a mechanical crate conveyor. Steps were provided by the employer, and none of the employees rode the conveyor when the foreman was around. It was held that the denial of compensation was proper in that deceased stepped aside from the sphere of his employment in getting on the conveyor. Teague v. Atlantic Co., 213 N.C. 546, 196 S.E. 875 (1938).

The fact that deceased was not actually engaged in the performance of his duties as watchman at the time he was pushed over and injured unintentionally by a fellow employee in a hurry did not perforce defeat his claim for compensation under this Act, where both employees had checked in for work and were on the premises and where they had a right to be. Brown v. Carolina Aluminum Co., 224 N.C. 766, 32 S.E.2d 320 (1944).

Selection of More Hazardous Route. — The evidence tended to show that claimant, in the performance of his duty to go to a guard tower outside of a high wire fence, elected to climb over the fence rather than go around by the gate, which would require approximately 200 yards of travel, and was injured when he jumped from the top of the fence to avoid falling therefrom. It was held that the evidence sustained the award of compensation, and the contention that claimant climbed the fence for his own convenience rather than as a part of his duties was untenable, since the mere fact that an employee selected the more hazardous route in the performance of his duties does not defeat recovery. Hartley v. North Carolina Prison Dep't, 258 N.C. 287, 128 S.E.2d 598 (1962).

Injury On the Way to Move Truck. — Where plaintiff (mayor of town) set out on bike to move an improperly parked city truck, but first stopped at his place of business and consumed an alcoholic beverage, then resumed his errand and was subsequently injured in a bicycle accident, his injury arose out of and in the course of his employment. Creel v. Town of Dover, 126 N.C. App. 547, 486 S.E.2d 478 (1997).

Effect of Intoxication. — The relevant question in determining whether intoxication operates to bar benefits to a claimant under the Act is not whether the claimant was intoxicated at the time of the accident, but whether the claimant's intoxication was more probably than not a cause in fact of the accident. Creel v. Town of Dover, 126 N.C. App. 547, 486 S.E.2d 478 (1997).

XIII. AGGRAVATION OF EXISTING CONDITION OR INFIRMITY.

Injury Aggravating Preexisting Infirmary or Disease Is Compensable. — When an employee afflicted with a preexisting disease or infirmity suffers a personal injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, and such injury materially accelerates or aggravates the preexisting disease or infirmity and thus proximately contributes to the death or disability of the employee, the injury is compensable even if it would not have caused death or disability to a normal person. Anderson v. Northwestern Motor Co., 233 N.C. 372, 64 S.E.2d 265 (1951).

If the employee by reason of constitutional infirmities is predisposed to sustain injuries while engaged in labor, nevertheless the leniency and humanity of the law permit him to recover compensation if the physical aspects of the employment contribute in some reasonable degree to bring about or intensify the condition which renders him susceptible to such accident and consequent injury. Moore v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 47 N.C. App. 744, 269 S.E.2d 159, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 401, 274 S.E.2d 226 (1980); Walston v. Burlington Indus., 49 N.C. App. 301, 271 S.E.2d 516 (1980), rev'd on other grounds, 304 N.C. 670, 285 S.E.2d 822 (1982); Hansel v. Sherman Textiles, 304 N.C. 44, 283 S.E.2d 101 (1981).

Employment Need Not Be Sole Causative Force. — In workers' compensation actions the rule of causation is that where the right to recover is based on injury by accident, the employment need not be the sole causative force to render an injury compensable. Hansel v. Sherman Textiles, 304 N.C. 44, 283 S.E.2d 101 (1981); Kendrick v. City of Greensboro, 80 N.C. App. 183, 341 S.E.2d 122, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 335, 346 S.E.2d 500 (1986).

Where the accident and resultant injury arise out of both the idiopathic condition of the worker and hazards incident to the employment, the employer is liable. But not so where the idiopathic condition is the sole cause of the injury. Norris v. Kivettco, Inc., 58 N.C. App. 376, 293 S.E.2d 594 (1982).

Relative Contributions of Accident and Preexisting Condition Not Weighed. — An employer accepts an employee as he is, and if a compensable injury precipitates a latent physical condition, such as heart disease, cancer, back weakness, or the like, the entire disability is compensable; no attempt is made to weigh the relative contribution of the accident and the preexisting condition. Anderson v. A.M. Smyre Mfg. Co., 54 N.C. App. 337, 283 S.E.2d 433 (1981).

Aggravation of Heart Condition. — Findings to the effect that employee suffered an injury arising out of and in the course of the employment, which injury aggravated a preexisting heart condition and caused death, would support an award for compensation and burial expenses. Wyatt v. Sharp, 239 N.C. 655, 80 S.E.2d 762 (1954).

Evidence Held Insufficient to Show Death as Natural Result of Accident. — Deceased broke his leg from a fall on the job. He was then 65 and had arteriosclerosis, arthritis, and heart trouble. While laid up he suffered with a bladder ailment which two attending physicians thought was caused or aggravated by his inactivity in bed. Over seven months later he died from the heart ailment and arthritis, which a different attending physician thought possibly or even probably would have been aggravated by a bladder condition such as reported by the physicians who first looked after him but of which the witness had no knowledge. This physician thought the accident to have been only a remote cause of his death. It was held that the evidence was insufficient to support the Commission's finding that deceased died while totally disabled from the accident and as a natural result of it. Gilmore v. Hoke County Bd. of Educ., 222 N.C. 358, 23 S.E.2d 292 (1942).

Injury Caused by Previous Compensable Injury. — Plaintiff's compensable spinal injury which caused permanent paralysis of his legs was a proximate cause of burns received by plaintiff on the lower portions of his body when a cigarette he had been smoking set the clothing on his bed on fire. Plaintiff suffered the burns because of a loss of feeling and sensitivity in the lower portions of his body as a result of the original compensable accident, and the act of leaving the cigarette where it could set fire to the bedclothing was insufficient to break the chain of causation between the original injury and the burns sustained. Starr v. Charlotte Paper Co., 8 N.C. App. 604, 175 S.E.2d 342 (1970).

Back Injury Following Previous Back Surgery. — Under the evidence the Commission could determine that plaintiff's work-related back injury and the surgery which followed contributed to his disability in a reasonable degree, regardless of the fact that he had two previous laminectomies, and that, as a result, plaintiff was entitled to compensation. Kendrick v. City of Greensboro, 80 N.C. App. 183, 341 S.E.2d 122, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 335, 346 S.E.2d 500 (1986).

Compensation for Entire Resulting Disability. — When a preexisting, nondisabling, non-job-related condition is aggravated or accelerated by an accidental injury arising out of and in the course of employment or by an occupational disease so that disability results, then the employer must compensate the employee for the entire resulting disability, even though it would not have disabled a normal person to that extent. In such a case, where an injury has aggravated an existing condition and thus proximately caused the incapacity, the relative contributions of the accident and the preexisting condition will not be weighed. Wilder v. Barbour Boat Works, 84 N.C. App. 188, 352 S.E.2d 690 (1987).

XIV. INJURY FROM DISEASE.

Section 97-52 et seq. Constitute Implied Amendment to This Section. — The Occupational Disease Act, § 97-52 et seq., constitutes an implied amendment to this section. Under that act, specified occupational diseases are compensable. In adopting this amendment, the legislature was not making provision for compensation for injuries by accident as that term is ordinarily understood. Provision for that type of injury had already been made in the original act. It was considering those diseases the causative origin of which is occupational and designating those which are to be deemed within the new and extended definition of "injury by accident" which it was then providing. Henry v. Lawrence Leather Co., 234 N.C. 126, 66 S.E.2d 693 (1951).

But Compensation for Disease Resulting from Accident Is Not Precluded by § 97-52 et seq. — Section 97-52, providing that only the occupational diseases therein specified should be compensable, relates only to occupational diseases, which are those resulting from long and continued exposure to risks and conditions inherent and usual in the nature of the employment, and this section does not preclude compensation for a disease not inherent in or incident to the nature of the employment when it results from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. MacRae v. Unemployment Comp. Comm'n, 217 N.C. 769, 9 S.E.2d 595 (1940).

And the employer is responsible for any disease resulting naturally and unavoidably from an accident. Williams v. Thompson, 200 N.C. 463, 157 S.E. 430 (1931), where plaintiff injured his eye and later unavoidably contracted gonorrhea ophthalmia in the injured organ; Clark v. Carolina Cotton & Woolen Mills, 204 N.C. 529, 168 S.E. 816 (1933), in which evidence was sufficient to support the finding that plaintiff's fall resulted in myelitis. See also Anderson v. Century Data Sys., Inc., 71 N.C. App. 540, 322 S.E.2d 638 (1984). And see 10 N.C.L. Rev. 407 (1932).

Apportionment Between Incapacitating Disease and Other Factors Not Proper. — Where an industrial disease renders an employee actually incapacitated to earn any wages, the employer may not ask that a portion of the disability be charged to the employee's advanced age and poor learning on the grounds that if it were not for these factors he might still retain some earning capacity. Anderson v. A.M. Smyre Mfg. Co., 54 N.C. App. 337, 283 S.E.2d 433 (1981).

Ordinarily, heart disease is not an injury and death therefrom is not ordinarily compensable. West v. North Carolina Dep't of Conservation & Dev., 229 N.C. 232, 49 S.E.2d 398 (1948); Duncan v. City of Charlotte, 234 N.C. 86, 66 S.E.2d 22 (1951); Lewter v. Abercrombie Enters., Inc., 240 N.C. 399, 82 S.E.2d 410 (1954).

In heart cases the decisions require a showing that the exertion was in some way unusual or extraordinary. Lewter v. Abercrombie Enters., Inc., 240 N.C. 399, 82 S.E.2d 410 (1954).

Dilatation of the Heart Due to Unusual Exertion. — A policeman 56 years of age, who was in good health and without any physical defect or disease, arrested a young man, who, because of intoxication, violently and viciously resisted, and after the officer subdued him and transported him to the jail, the officer and another had to carry the prisoner up three flights of stairs because the elevator was out of order. The officer collapsed with acute dilatation of the heart due to the unusual exertion. This injury to the heart muscle was chronic and progressive and the policeman suffered a fatal heart attack some 10 months thereafter. It was held that the evidence warranted the conclusion that the injury to the heart resulted not from inherent weakness or disease but from an unusual and unexpected happening, and that therefore death resulted from an accident within the meaning of this section. Gabriel v. Town of Newton, 227 N.C. 314, 42 S.E.2d 96 (1947). See Lewter v. Abercrombie Enters., Inc., 240 N.C. 399, 82 S.E.2d 410 (1954).

Coronary Occlusion. — Evidence that plaintiff suffered a coronary occlusion while rolling a heavy rope net in the course of his employment, with medical expert testimony that the exercise could not be the cause of the condition, although the attack might have been accelerated or precipitated by the exertion, was insufficient to sustain a finding that the coronary occlusion and resulting myocardial infarction arose out of and in the course of the employment. Bellamy v. Morace Stevedoring Co., 258 N.C. 327, 128 S.E.2d 395 (1962).

Accident and Exposure as Contributing to Death from Acute Nephritis. — The evidence before the Industrial Commission tended to show that the deceased employee, for whose death compensation was sought, had been in exceptionally good health up to the time of the accident, that he fell from a platform, breaking his leg, and lay where he fell for about half an hour, exposed to the cool weather, that he was then discovered and carried into the office, where he had to wait some two hours for medical attention. There was expert testimony to the effect that the exposure was a contributing factor causing acute nephritis resulting in death, and that the accident and exposure accelerated the employee's death. It was held that the evidence was sufficient to support the finding of the Industrial Commission that the disease resulted naturally and unavoidably from the accident. Doggett v. South Atl. Whse. Co., 212 N.C. 599, 194 S.E. 111 (1937).

Hemorrhagic Pachymeningitis Resulting from Blow to Head. — Plaintiff, while about his employer's business, was struck on the back of the head by hides which he was jerking from hooks about 10 feet from the floor, and had to stop work for a very short time. As a result of the blow plaintiff contracted hemorrhagic pachymeningitis which caused his total disability. This was held to be an injury by accident, arising out of and in the course of his employment within this section. Eller v. Lawrence Leather Co., 222 N.C. 23, 21 S.E.2d 809 (1942), petition for rehearing allowed and judgment modified on other grounds, 222 N.C. 604, 24 S.E.2d 244 (1943).

Gonorrhea Ophthalmia Resulting from Accident. — Plaintiff, a truck driver, sustained an injury to his eye while cleaning a carburetor. The injury irritated his eye and resulted in ulcer. Seven days after the accident the plaintiff was treated by a doctor, who gave the plaintiff some lotion to use. He visited the doctor three times. Then gonorrhea ophthalmia showed up, which was on the thirteenth day after the accident. As a result of the infection the plaintiff lost one eye and suffered a partial loss of use in the other eye. Compensation was allowed. Williams v. Thompson, 200 N.C. 463, 157 S.E. 430 (1931). See 8 N.C.L. Rev. 421 (1930).

Contraction of Tuberculosis from Co-worker. — Tuberculosis contracted from exposure to the cough of one actively infected who was seated in close proximity at work is not an occupational disease, but may be found to have resulted naturally and avoidably from an accident. MacRae v. Unemployment Comp. Comm'n, 217 N.C. 769, 9 S.E.2d 595 (1940). And see 10 N.C.L. Rev. 407 (1932).

Employee Contracting Pneumonia. — Where an employee got wet in washing certain machines, although furnished with special clothes, and while removing ashes, was in the sunshine and open air, and the sudden change in temperature caused him to contract pneumonia, from which he died, it was held that the death was not the result of an accidental injury. Slade v. Willis Hosiery Mills, 209 N.C. 823, 184 S.E. 844 (1936).

Asbestosis. — In an action brought at common law on the ground that, due to defendant's negligence over a period of months, plaintiff had contracted pulmonary asbestosis, the court held that since defendant was negligent, plaintiff's injury was not incidental to his employment and, furthermore, was not deprived of its accidental character by the mere fact of its requiring several months to develop. Accordingly, recovery was denied plaintiff in his suit at common law because the injury was declared to be covered by the act. McNeely v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 206 N.C. 568, 174 S.E. 509 (1934). See also Johnson v. Hughes & S. Dairies, Inc., 207 N.C. 544, 177 S.E. 632 (1935).

Where claimant worked in an asbestos plant for six or seven years, and a dust removing system was not installed until about a year before claimant's discharge, at which time a medical examination disclosed that he was suffering from asbestosis, the evidence showed that the injury was the result of an occupational disease not compensable under the act prior to its amendment by Laws 1935, c. 123. Swink v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 210 N.C. 303, 186 S.E. 258 (1936). See §§ 97-52 and 97-76.

Silicosis. — The clear intent of § 97-61.6 to provide compensation for death occurring within 350 weeks from the date of last exposure to silicosis if the employee was at the time of death receiving compensation for disablement due to silicosis, even though the death does not result from silicosis, must be given effect, notwithstanding subdivisions (6) and (10) of this section and § 97-52, since the specific provisions relating to silicosis, which were enacted because of the peculiar course of the disease, must be construed as an exception to the general tenor of the compensation act to provide compensation for death only if it results from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. Davis v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 259 N.C. 672, 131 S.E.2d 335 (1963).

Phlebitis, Arthritis and Severe Body Pain Resulting from Primary Injury. — The complications of phlebitis, arthritis and severe body pain, whether the complications were considered subsequent injuries or diseases, were compensable under the act where they were the natural and unavoidable result of the primary injury to plaintiff's hip and upper leg. Roper v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 65 N.C. App. 69, 308 S.E.2d 485 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 309, 312 S.E.2d 652 (1984).

XV. HERNIA.

Editor's Note. — The cases annotated under this analysis line were decided prior to the 1987 amendment to subdivision (18) of this section, which deleted paragraph c thereof, regarding accompaniment of the hernia with pain, and added the second sentence of paragraph d thereof.

Subdivision (18) of this section is given a liberal construction, with primary consideration being given to compensation for the in- jured employee. McMahan v. Hickey's Supermarket, 24 N.C. App. 113, 210 S.E.2d 214 (1974).

Legislative Use of the Term. — The medical condition known as "hernia" is not specifically defined in either the Worker's Compensation Act or in the case law. Although the Court of Appeals has declined to define the term hernia, it has noted that the legislature's use of the term hernia in conjunction with the word rupture in the statute, "hernia or rupture," seems to indicate that something less than full extension through the organ wall is contemplated. Pernell v. Piedmont Circuits, 104 N.C. App. 289, 409 S.E.2d 618 (1991), cert. denied, 330 N.C. 613, 412 S.E.2d 87 (1992).

Failure to Prove Any Element of Subdivision (18) Nullifies Claim. — Failure to prove the existence of any one of the five elements of subdivision (18) of this section nullifies plaintiff's claim. Lutes v. Export Leaf Tobacco Co., 19 N.C. App. 380, 198 S.E.2d 746 (1973).

To recover compensation for a hernia, a plaintiff must prove the existence of each of the five elements of subdivision (18). The absence of any one of them will result in the denial of compensation. Long v. Morganton Dyeing & Finishing Co., 84 N.C. App. 81, 351 S.E.2d 767, rev'd on other grounds, 321 N.C. 82, 361 S.E.2d 575 (1987).

This section, in effect, defines what constitutes a causal connection for purposes of hernia injury, and when any one of the section's elements is not proven, a causal connection does not exist. This is true even if the Commission is otherwise convinced that the hernia was caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of employment. Long v. Morganton Dyeing & Finishing Co., 84 N.C. App. 81, 351 S.E.2d 767, rev'd on other grounds, 321 N.C. 82, 361 S.E.2d 575 (1987).

Hernia Must Result from Accident. — In every case it must definitely appear that the hernia resulted immediately from an accident. Ussery v. Erlanger Cotton Mills, 201 N.C. 688, 161 S.E. 307 (1931).

Unusual Conditions Required. — In cases involving back injury or hernia, the elements constituting accident are the interruption of the routine of work and the introduction thereby of unusual conditions likely to result in unexpected consequences. Pardue v. Blackburn Bros. Oil & Tire Co., 260 N.C. 413, 132 S.E.2d 747 (1963).

This section requires an interruption of the usual work routine or the introduction of some new circumstance not a part of the usual work routine before a compensable injury arises in a hernia case. Gray v. Durham Transf. & Storage, Inc., 10 N.C. App. 668, 179 S.E.2d 883 (1971).

A back injury or hernia suffered by an employee does not arise by accident if the employee at the time was merely carrying out his usual and customary duties in the usual way. Faires v. McDevitt & St. Co., 251 N.C. 194, 110 S.E.2d 898 (1959); Pardue v. Blackburn Bros. Oil & Tire Co., 260 N.C. 413, 132 S.E.2d 747 (1963); Gray v. Durham Transf. & Storage, Inc., 10 N.C. App. 668, 179 S.E.2d 883 (1971); Southards v. Byrd Motor Lines, 11 N.C. App. 583, 181 S.E.2d 811 (1971); Beamon v. Stop & Shop Grocery, 27 N.C. App. 553, 219 S.E.2d 508 (1975); Curtis v. Carolina Mechanical Sys., 36 N.C. App. 621, 244 S.E.2d 690 (1978).

As to requirement of unusual circumstances or exertion, see Moore v. Engineering & Sales Co., 214 N.C. 424, 199 S.E. 605 (1938).

Onset of Pain. — The pain that prior to the 1987 amendment to this section had to accompany an injury resulting in a hernia to render the injury compensable under former paragraph (18)c did not have to occur simultaneously with the sustaining of the injury. Long v. Morganton Dyeing & Finishing Co., 321 N.C. 82, 361 S.E.2d 575 (1987).

Hernia Not Discovered Until Some Days After Commencement of Pain. — It is sufficient for the Commission to find the facts required under this section and award compensation if the pain immediately followed the accident, even if the hernia was not discovered until diagnosis by a physician some days thereafter. Ussery v. Erlanger Cotton Mills, 201 N.C. 688, 161 S.E. 307 (1931).

Findings of Commission Binding on Appeal. — Where the Commission finds and concludes that there was no causal connection between "accident" and hernia, the findings of the Commission when supported by any competent evidence are binding on appeal. Lutes v. Export Leaf Tobacco Co., 19 N.C. App. 380, 198 S.E.2d 746 (1973).

Sudden Appearance of Lesion and Enlargement of Inguinal Ring. — Plaintiff was a plumbing foreman. He had been instructed to lay off his workmen and to finish a job with one other employee. In helping the other employee lift a heavy pipe, he felt a pain in his abdomen. He consulted a physician who found an enlargement of the left inguinal ring and a bulge but no protrusion. The doctor strapped plaintiff and gave him a truss. Eighteen days later an actual hernia was found. An award granting compensation for hernia was affirmed, the court saying that the accident consisted of the plaintiff's having to do unusual work and that the lesion and enlargement of the inguinal ring, from which the fully developed hernia naturally comes, did result immediately. Moore v. Engineering & Sales Co., 214 N.C. 424, 199 S.E. 605 (1938).

Evidence Held to Justify Finding Compensable Hernia. — Claimant's injury resulted from an accident within the contemplation of the act and the evidence justified the Industrial Commission in finding that hernia appeared "suddenly" within the meaning of this section. Moore v. Engineering & Sales Co., 214 N.C. 424, 199 S.E. 605 (1938).

Claimant, in delivering milk to a cafe, had to lift a box of chipped ice from the storage box. On this occasion he felt a sharp abdominal pain as he lifted and "he got sick," but after a short rest, he worked till noon, when he reported that he had strained his side and went home. Hernia appeared a few days later. The employer contended that the injury was not caused by accident but only by the doing of regular work in the regular way. It was held that the sudden and unexpected rupture was not a natural and probable consequence of the work, but an accidental injury and compensable. Smith v. Cabarrus Creamery Co., 217 N.C. 468, 8 S.E.2d 231 (1940).

Evidence held sufficient to sustain the finding of the Industrial Commission that the hernia was compensable under subdivision (18) of this section. Rice v. Thomasville Chair Co., 238 N.C. 121, 76 S.E.2d 311 (1953).

Evidence tending to show that the employee was a carpenter and customarily did the work of a carpenter, that in removing concrete forms carpenters usually "stripped" the forms and laborers lifted and removed them, that on the occasion in question other carpenters and helpers had been withdrawn from the job, that the lifting of the forms was usually and customarily done by two men, and that while the employee was attempting to lift one of the forms by himself, requiring extreme exertion and strain in a confined and difficult place of work, he felt a sharp pain which continued until he had received medical treatment for the hernia, was sufficient to support a finding of the Industrial Commission that the employee suffered an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, resulting in the hernia. Faires v. McDewitt & St. Co., 251 N.C. 194, 110 S.E.2d 898 (1959).

Evidence Held Not to Show Compensable Hernia. — Where the evidence showed that a hernia occurred while the employee was performing his work in the customary and usual manner, and there was no evidence of any unusual condition or any slipping or falling by the employee, there was no evidence to justify a finding that the hernia resulted from an accident, and an award of compensation would be reversed. Hensley v. Farmers Fed'n Coop., 246 N.C. 274, 98 S.E.2d 289 (1957); Holt v. Cannon Mills Co., 249 N.C. 215, 105 S.E.2d 614 (1958).

The mere fact that plaintiff was handling a different commodity than usual, without more, and that the weather was hot, were not enough to satisfy the requirement of an "interruption of the work routine and the introduction of unusual conditions likely to result in unpredicted consequences." Nor was the mere fact that plaintiff was in a hurry. Southards v. Byrd Motor Lines, 11 N.C. App. 583, 181 S.E.2d 811 (1971).

XVI. ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.

A. Falls.

A fall itself is usually regarded as a compensable accident. Cole v. Guilford County, 259 N.C. 724, 131 S.E.2d 308 (1963); Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963); Hollar v. Montclair Furn. Co., 48 N.C. App. 489, 269 S.E.2d 667 (1980).

There is a clear line of distinction in fall cases, which holds that: (1) where the injury is clearly attributable to an idiopathic condition of the employee, with no other factors intervening or operating to cause or contribute to the injury, no award should be made; (2) where the injury is associated with any risk attributable to the employment, compensation should be allowed, even though the employee may have suffered from an idiopathic condition which precipitated or contributed to the injury. Hollar v. Montclair Furn. Co., 48 N.C. App. 489, 269 S.E.2d 667 (1980).

When Fall Constitutes Compensable Accident. — It has been held that a fall is an accident, and where it is not shown to have resulted from the employee's physical infirmity or from external force unconnected with the employment, it may be found by the Commission to arise out of the employment. No affirmative evidence as to what caused the fall is necessary to support the finding. Here the employee, reaching up to a rack in the course of her work, lost her balance and fell. Robbins v. Bossong Hosiery Mills, 220 N.C. 246, 17 S.E.2d 20 (1941), involving an employee who lost her balance and fell while reaching up to a rack in the course of her work, and distinguishing cases of heart failure, dizzy spells, etc.

The rule that compensation will be awarded in unexplained-fall cases is applied in North Carolina. Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963).

The effects of a fall are compensable if the fall results from an idiopathic cause and the employment has placed the employee in a position which increases the dangerous effects of the fall. Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963).

When Injury From Fall Is Not Compensable. — If a fall and the resultant injury arise solely from an idiopathic cause, or a cause independent of the employment, the injury is not compensable. Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963).

The fall itself is the unusual, unforeseen occurrence which is the accident. Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963).

Hence, Evidence of Unusual Occurrence Is Unnecessary. — To prove an accident in industrial injury cases, it is not essential that there be evidence of any unusual or untoward condition or occurrence causing a fall which produces injury. Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963).

Slipping on Fruit. — Plaintiff got into his car to leave defendant's plant. A night watchman beckoned to him, and in getting out of the car to learn what the watchman wanted, plaintiff slipped on a fruit peeling. Recovery was denied, the court saying, "When an injury cannot fairly be traced to the employment as a contributing proximate cause or comes from a hazard to which the worker would have been equally exposed apart from the employment, or from a hazard common to others, it does not arise out of the employment." Lockey v. Cohen, Goldman & Co., 213 N.C. 356, 196 S.E. 342 (1938).

Circumstances Permitting Inference That Fall Arose Out of and in Course of Employment. — Employee was suffering from a disease which subjected him to fainting spells. While in the men's washroom he called to a person in an adjacent booth, "Please help me to the window, I am about to faint." The floor was of tile and very slick when wet. It was washed each morning. The employee was afterwards found on the roof of the adjacent building, directly beneath the open windows. The circumstances permit the inference that employee slipped and fell to his death. Rewis v. New York Life Ins. Co., 226 N.C. 325, 38 S.E.2d 97 (1946). See also DeVine v. Dave Steel Co., 227 N.C. 684, 44 S.E.2d 77 (1947), where the employee was subject to fainting spells, but it was not shown that the fatal fall resulted from such a spell.

Injuries sustained in a fall in which the employee's leg unexplainedly gave way were held to be attributable solely to the employee's idiopathic condition, and thus recovery was denied. Cole v. Guilford County, 259 N.C. 724, 131 S.E.2d 308 (1963).

Injury Caused by Epileptic Seizure. — The evidence tended to show that plaintiff employee was subject to epileptic fits, that while driving the employer's truck in the course of his employment he felt a seizure approaching, stopped the truck on the side of the road, opened the door and lay down on the seat of the truck with his head on the seat opposite the steering wheel and his feet hanging out of the truck, that he immediately suffered an epileptic seizure causing him to lose consciousness, and that when he "came to" his body was on the outside of the truck and his hands on the steering wheel. The expert medical testimony was to the effect that the employee had suffered broken bones caused by the fall from the seat of the truck and that the fall resulted from the epileptic seizure. It was held that the evidence disclosed that the sole cause of the employee's moving from a position of safety to his injury was the epileptic seizure, and therefore the fall was independent of, unrelated to, and apart from the employment, and the evidence could not support a finding of the Industrial Commission that the injury resulted from an accident arising out of the employment. Vause v. Vause Farm Equip. Co., 233 N.C. 88, 63 S.E.2d 173 (1951).

Injury in Public Street During Fatigue Break. — Claimant's injury by accident did not arise out of her employment where claimant left her employer's premises during a fatigue break and walked down a public street to where oil tanks for the use of defendant employer were being buried in the street and there stumbled over a cement block and fell in the street, injuring her hip and back. Smith v. Dacotah Cotton Mills, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 687, 230 S.E.2d 772 (1976).

Unexplained Injury Where Performance of Duties Was Only Active Force Involved. — Where the cause of plaintiff's fall was unknown, but the only active force involved was plaintiff's exertion in the performance of his duties, the court gave effect to the liberal intent of the law by finding the accident to have arisen out of plaintiff's employment. Slizewski v. Int'l Seafood, Inc., 46 N.C. App. 228, 264 S.E.2d 810 (1980).

Findings supported the conclusion that death was not accelerated or aggravated by the injury; there was ample evidence presented and findings made regarding the rupture of decedent's aneurysm prior to the collision, and although there was evidence that the windshield of the car in which decedent was traveling was broken, there was no evidence nor finding that the cause of the break was contact with decedent's head. Strickland v. Central Serv. Motor Co., 94 N.C. App. 79, 379 S.E.2d 645, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 276, 384 S.E.2d 530 (1989).

Conversion Hysteria. — The Commission's finding that accidental fall in which employee was involved did not cause plaintiff's subsequent paralysis, but that his condition represented "conversion hysteria" due to unresolved emotional conflicts was supported by the evidence, and the fact that employee's fall was a "precipitating" or "triggering" event for his conversion disorder did not, without more, establish causation. Brewington v. Rigsbee Auto Parts, 69 N.C. App. 168, 316 S.E.2d 336 (1984).

B. Storm and Weather-Related Injuries.

Where the employment subjects a worker to a special or particular hazard from the elements, such as excessive heat or cold, likely to produce sunstroke or freezing, death or disability resulting from such cause usually comes within the purview of the compensation acts. On the other hand, where the employee is not by reason of his work peculiarly exposed to injury by sunstroke or freezing, such injuries are not ordinarily compensable. The test is whether the employment subjects the worker to a greater hazard or risk than that to which he otherwise would be exposed. Fields v. Tompkins-Johnston Plumbing Co., 224 N.C. 841, 32 S.E.2d 623 (1945).

Where a bus driver was compelled to change a tire on defendant's bus during very cold weather and he contracted pneumonia, the Commission's ruling denying recovery was affirmed. Carter v. Carolina Coach Co., 208 N.C. 849, 182 S.E. 493 (1935).

Tornado. — Claimant was in the plant of his employer when it was struck by a tornado and was injured as a result of the partial collapse of the building. It was held that the accident resulting in the injury did not arise out of the employment, there being no causal relation between the employment and the accident. Walker v. Wilkins, 212 N.C. 627, 194 S.E. 89 (1937); Marsh v. Bennett College for Women, 212 N.C. 662, 194 S.E. 303 (1937).

Death from Bite of Mad Dog. — Where intestate died of hydrophobia resulting from a dog bite received by him while engaged in his duties as attendant in a filling station, it was held that claimant was not entitled to compensation for the employee's death, since there was no causal connection between the employment and the bite of a dog running at large, and the accident was not from a risk incidental to the employment. Plemmons v. White's Serv., 213 N.C. 148, 195 S.E. 370 (1938).

Heat Exhaustion or Sunstroke. — Determination of the Industrial Commission that employee's death resulting from heat exhaustion or sunstroke was an injury which arose out of and in course of employment was supported by the evidence, where such evidence showed that the general outside temperature was 104° Fahrenheit, and employee's work required that he be in close proximity to melted lead which increased the temperature in the partly finished building where employee was working on day of his death. Fields v. Tompkins-Johnston Plumbing Co., 224 N.C. 841, 32 S.E.2d 623 (1945).

Lightning. — Where a carpenter, caught in a storm while working, went to a nearby house under construction by his employer to get out of the rain and, while standing near a window talking with his employer and wearing wet clothes, including a carpenter's nail apron with nails therein, was killed by lightning, all damage to the clothes and marks on the body being from the waist down, with the nail apron knocked off, a hole burned in it, and a majority of the nails in it fused, the evidence was sufficient to support the conclusion that the circumstances of the carpenter's employment peculiarly exposed him to the risk of injury from lightning greater than that of others in the community, and to sustain an award of compensation. Pope v. Goodson, 249 N.C. 690, 107 S.E.2d 524 (1959).

C. Street and Highway Accidents.

When Highway Accidents Are Compensable. — An injury caused by a highway accident is compensable if the employee at the time of the accident is acting in the course of his employment and in the performance of some duty incident thereto. Hardy v. Small, 246 N.C. 581, 99 S.E.2d 862 (1957), involving a farm employee killed while crossing highway on return from barn.

Injury Occurring on Highway Close to Employer's Premises. — North Carolina has allowed compensation where the injury occurred on the highway close to employer's premises and the employee was using the only means of ingress and egress to and from the work he was to perform, saying that the hazards of that route become the hazards of the employment. Williams v. Brunswick County Bd. of Educ., 1 N.C. App. 89, 160 S.E.2d 102 (1968).

Cemetery Keeper Crossing Street on Way to Funeral Home. — When as an incident of his employment as cemetery keeper and in the performance of a duty connected therewith, as shown by the established custom, the decedent crossed the street en route to a funeral home, the hazard of the journey could properly be regarded as within the scope of the Workers' Compensation Act. Hinkle v. City of Lexington, 239 N.C. 105, 79 S.E.2d 220 (1953).

Cemetery Caretaker Making Rounds of Funeral Homes. — Where a cemetery caretaker employed by the city, who had no telephone, regularly and daily made rounds of the funeral homes at night to determine what graves needed to be dug the next day, injury sustained by him when he was hit by an automobile while engaged in making these rounds was compensable. The employer was said to have consented to the making of the trip because of the established custom of the caretaker. Williams v. Brunswick County Bd. of Educ., 1 N.C. App. 89, 160 S.E.2d 102 (1968).

Off-Premises Accident Hours After Work. — Recovery would be denied for injury sustained in a highway accident, away from the premises, some five hours after the employee left work. Harless v. Flynn, 1 N.C. App. 448, 162 S.E.2d 47 (1968).

Teacher Killed in Accident at End of School Day. — In an action to recover death benefits for the death of a school teacher which occurred when she backed her car, at the end of the school day, into the path of a truck, evidence and findings that the deceased was required as part of her duties to visit students in their homes after school hours, and that she was also required from time to time to purchase incidental supplies at retail stores for use in her class, along with related evidence and findings, presented nothing more than a scenario of what the deceased might do on a given day, and was not sufficient to support a finding that the deceased was performing one of the duties of her employment at the time of the accident. Franklin v. Wilson County Bd. of Educ., 29 N.C. App. 491, 224 S.E.2d 657 (1976).

Injury on Employer-Owned Road. — Plaintiffs were not injured by accident arising out of and in the course of their employment when they were injured in a collision between two automobiles driven by fellow employees while they were leaving work on a two mile long private road maintained by the employer to provide ingress to and egress from the employer's plant where defendants, in driving plaintiffs home pursuant to a private arrangement, were not performing assigned duties for their employer; the accident occurred one and one-half miles from the employer's plant and parking lot on a road which was designed and constructed like a public highway; and the risks which the employees were exposed to on the private road were not materially different from those encountered on a public highway. Strickland v. King, 293 N.C. 731, 239 S.E.2d 243 (1977).

D. Miscellaneous Cases.

Editor's Note. — Earlier cases dealing with back injuries should be read in light of the 1983 amendment to subdivision (6) of this section, which modified the definition of "injury" with respect to back injuries so as to cover "specific traumatic incidents." Caskie v. R.M. Butler & Co., 85 N.C. App. 266, 354 S.E.2d 242 (1987).

Employee Drowned in Attempt to Extricate Car from Employer's Millrace. — Where deceased, whose duty it was to keep his employer's millrace clean, was drowned in an attempt to extricate a car and its occupants that had plunged into the water, there was sufficient evidence to support a finding that the accident arose out of and in the course of the employment. Southern v. Morehead Cotton Mills Co., 200 N.C. 165, 156 S.E. 861 (1931).

Inhaling Carbon Monoxide Gas. — Deceased died as a result of carbon monoxide gas inhaled by him during the course of one night. It was held that it was error for the Industrial Commission to refuse compensation on the grounds that death resulted from an occupational disease rather than an accident. Cabe v. Parker-Graham-Sexton, Inc., 202 N.C. 176, 162 S.E. 223 (1932).

Arrest Outside Scope of Employment of Jailer. — Deceased, who was employed by the sheriff as his deputy and by the county commissioners as jailer, met his death in attempting to arrest an individual who had just shot his own wife at a house two doors from the rear of the jail. The Commission was of the opinion that death resulted from accident arising out of and in the course of employment either as deputy sheriff or as jailer or as "deputy-sheriff jailer." The statute did not then treat deputies as employees of the county and the Supreme Court remanded the case for a finding specifically on whether the accident was in the course of deceased's employment as jailer. Gowens v. Alamance County, 214 N.C. 18, 197 S.E. 538 (1938). The Commission then found that question in the affirmative, but was later overruled on the ground that the attempted arrest was clearly "outside the scope of his employment as jailer".

Injury Produced by Inhaling Asbestos Dust. — The word "accident" within the meaning of this act should be construed in its wide and practical sense to give effect to the intent of the act, and an injury produced by inhaling asbestos dust for a period of five months is an accidental injury within the terms of this section, the test being not the amount of time taken to produce the injury but whether it was produced by unexpected and unforeseen, and therefore, accidental means. McNeeley v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 206 N.C. 568, 174 S.E. 509 (1934). As to compensation for occupational diseases, see §§ 97-52 to 97-76.

Infection After Getting Lime Dust in Eye. — Plaintiff, an employee at defendant's water company, got lime dust in his eye as he was dumping lime into a feeder. This had happened many times before, but this time his eye became infected. Recovery was allowed. Lover v. Town of Lumberton, 215 N.C. 28, 1 S.E.2d 121 (1939).

Loss of Sight Subsequent to Splashing of Fuel in Eye. — Employee who suffered a loss of sight in his left eye incident to a hemorrhagic central retinal vein occlusion subsequent to an accidental splashing of fuel in the eye could be awarded compensation if the Commission found that the burning and itching occasioned by the fuel-splashing caused employee, through a natural reflex, to vigorously rub his eyes and that the rubbing caused, aggravated, accelerated, or precipitated the hemorrhagic vein occlusion, even if the employee were to have a predisposition toward developing this condition. To deny compensation, the Commission would have to find and conclude that the vigorous rubbing did not significantly cause, aggravate, accelerate, or precipitate the occlusion. Jackson v. L.G. DeWitt Trucking Co., 82 N.C. App. 208, 346 S.E.2d 160 (1986).

Residence. — Where the claimant was employed to drive a delivery truck and to do janitorial work both in the employer's place of business and at the employer's home, and was injured while mowing the lawn at the employer's residence, the injury was not compensable and was not covered by a compensation insurance policy which provided coverage solely in connection with the employer's business having a definite location. Burnett v. Palmer-Lipe Paint Co., 216 N.C. 204, 4 S.E.2d 507 (1939).

Temporary Sickness and Blindness. — The Industrial Commission found, upon supporting evidence, that claimant became temporarily sick and blind while performing usual manual labor in the usual manner, that his condition improved and he went back to work and that shortly thereafter he again suffered a similar disability. The findings support the conclusion that the injury did not result from an accident arising out of and in the course of claimant's employment within the purview of this Chapter. Buchanan v. State Hwy. & Pub. Works Comm'n, 217 N.C. 173, 7 S.E.2d 382 (1940).

Infection Following Cut. — Where the claimant, while working in an upholstering plant, discovered that an upholstering tack had gone through his shoe and cut his toe, and subsequently infection set in, the Commission's finding that the injury arose out of and in the course of the employment was conclusive. Kearns v. Biltwell Chair & Furn. Co., 222 N.C. 438, 23 S.E.2d 310 (1942).

Rupture of Disc. — The evidence tended to show that employee lifted a plate weighing 40 or 50 pounds in the regular and usual course of his employment, and while handing it to the pressman with his body in a twisted position, felt a sharp pain. Expert testimony was introduced to the effect that the employee had ruptured an intervertebral disc and that the lifting of the weight in the manner described was sufficient to have produced the injury. Plaintiff employee admitted that on two different occasions, several years previously, when he arose from a sitting position he had a catch in his back. It was held that the evidence was sufficient to support the finding of the Industrial Commission that the injury resulted from an accident. Edwards v. Piedmont Publishing Co., 227 N.C. 184, 41 S.E.2d 592 (1947).

Evidence that while digging a ditch 12 inches wide by 14 inches deep, claimant came upon a rock some 24 inches long and 12 inches wide, weighing 50 to 100 pounds, that claimant dug around the rock, bent down to pick it up, and, as he twisted to heave it out of the ditch felt a catch in his back, together with expert testimony that the rupture of claimant's spinal disc was caused by the lifting episode and that lifting from such a twisted and cramped position multiplied the intensity of the stress upon the vertebrae, was sufficient to sustain the Commission's findings that the injury resulted from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. Keller v. Electric Wiring Co., 259 N.C. 222, 130 S.E.2d 342 (1963).

The evidence was sufficient to support the commission's conclusion that the ruptured disc suffered by the claimant was an injury by accident where the evidence showed that the claimant was not carrying out his usual and customary duties, and that the circumstances involved an interruption of the work routine and the introduction thereby of unusual conditions likely to result in unexpected consequences. Key v. Wagner Woodcraft, Inc., 33 N.C. App. 310, 235 S.E.2d 254 (1977).

The Industrial Commission properly determined that plaintiff suffered an injury by "accident" where the evidence supported findings by the commission that plaintiff, in the course of her duties as a knitter, was pulling a rod out of a roll of cloth; this activity was a part of plaintiff's regular and customary job; on this occasion, the withdrawal of the rod was more difficult than usual because the roll of cloth was "extra tight"; and the extraordinary effort plaintiff exerted in her attempt to withdraw the rod injured her back, causing a ruptured intervertebral disc. Porter v. Shelby Knit, Inc., 46 N.C. App. 22, 264 S.E.2d 360 (1980).

The Industrial Commission erred in awarding plaintiff compensation for a herniated intervertebral disc in the absence of expert medical testimony tending to establish a causal relationship between plaintiff's work-related accident and the injury for which compensation was sought. Click v. Pilot Freight Carriers, Inc., 300 N.C. 164, 265 S.E.2d 389 (1980).

Highway Patrolman Using Airplane to Search for Escaped Convict. — Two highway patrolmen were killed while in an airplane searching for an escaped convict. The award of the commissioner granting compensation was reversed by the full Commission, and reinstated on appeal to the superior court. The Supreme Court affirmed the award. The case turned on the question of the authority of the patrolmen to attempt to apprehend the fugitive. The court found such authority, and held that the use of an airplane was not a novel or unusual method of carrying out such a purpose. Galloway v. Department of Motor Vehicles, 231 N.C. 447, 57 S.E.2d 799 (1950).

Death from Coronary Occlusion After Making Arrest. — A game warden arrested several men, one of whom offered slight resistance. Later that day, the warden died of a coronary occlusion. It was held that mere resistance of arrest by one who is being taken into custody by an officer does not constitute an accident; it may be considered as one of his duties. Also, heart disease is not an occupational disease. West v. North Carolina Dep't of Conservation & Dev., 229 N.C. 232, 49 S.E.2d 398 (1948), distinguishing Gabriel v. Town of Newton, 227 N.C. 314, 42 S.E.2d 96 (1947). See Lewter v. Abercrombie Enters., Inc., 240 N.C. 399, 82 S.E.2d 410 (1954).

Electric Shock. — The record disclosed competent evidence sufficient to support the Industrial Commission in finding that death was caused by electric shock by accident arising out of and in the course of employment. Blalock v. City of Durham, 244 N.C. 208, 92 S.E.2d 758 (1956).

Injury Sustained While Taking Medical Test. — An injury sustained by an employee while taking a medical test or examination, which test or examination was required by law in order for the employee to continue to hold her job, did not constitute an accident arising out of and in the course of her employment within the meaning of this section. King v. Arthur, 245 N.C. 599, 96 S.E.2d 846 (1957).

Death of Policeman Held Compensable. Andrews v. Town of Princeville, 245 N.C. 669, 97 S.E.2d 110 (1957).

Lifting of 175 Pound Cabinet. — Evidence that claimant received an injury while attempting, alone, to elevate and hold a 175 pound cabinet in place while another worker secured it to the wall, and that three men were usually assigned to the installation of such cabinets on the construction job, was sufficient to sustain a finding that claimant suffered a compensable injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment. Davis v. Summitt, 259 N.C. 57, 129 S.E.2d 588 (1963).

Death from Coronary Thrombosis. — Where the evidence does not disclose that the employee was doing work essentially different from that which had been customarily performed by him over the years, his death as a result of a coronary thrombosis is not the result of an accident within the meaning of the act. Ferrell v. Montgomery & Aldridge Sales Co., 262 N.C. 76, 136 S.E.2d 227 (1964).

Seed Processor Bush Hogging for Employer on Saturday. — Plaintiff, who worked on Saturdays by choice and with the agreement of his employer, and whose primary duties involved processing soybeans, oats and barley through the gin, but who, on the Saturday of his accident, when the gin was not in operation, was instructed by his employer to "bush hog" in the area around the gin and in a field leased by his employer, which job was related to his employer's business, sustained an injury by accident which arose out of and in the course of his employment. Murray v. Biggerstaff, 81 N.C. App. 377, 344 S.E.2d 550, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 696, 350 S.E.2d 858 (1986).

Injury to Minister Moving from Parsonage. — Where claimant, who was employed as a minister by defendant church and was furnished a parsonage as part of his remuneration, agreed for the benefit of the church to move out of the parsonage two weeks before the termination of his employment in order that repairs might be made, and while he was moving his stove from the parsonage he suffered a back injury, the injury could not be traced to his employment as minister, since the evidence plainly showed that his injury arose out of the performance of an act personal to himself and his family. Bryan v. First Free Will Baptist Church, 267 N.C. 111, 147 S.E.2d 633 (1966).

Back Injury. — Evidence tending to show that an employee, while engaged in moving cases of soup in the ordinary manner and free from confining or otherwise exceptional conditions and surroundings, suffered a back injury which was accentuated by a congenital condition, was insufficient to support a finding that the injury resulted from an accident within the purview of the act. Rhinehart v. Roberts Super Mkt., Inc., 271 N.C. 586, 157 S.E.2d 1 (1967).

There was no accident when a painter moved from a squatting position to a standing position and experienced pain in his lower back. Hewett v. Constructor's Supply Co., 29 N.C. App. 395, 224 S.E.2d 297, cert. denied, 290 N.C. 550, 226 S.E.2d 510 (1976).

Plaintiff's cleaning of an oil breather cap from a co-employee's car during his lunch period was a reasonable activity and the risk inherent in such activity was a risk of the employment giving rise to compensation because of injury sustained in cleaning the cap. Watkins v. City of Wilmington, 28 N.C. App. 553, 221 S.E.2d 910, aff'd, 290 N.C. 276, 225 S.E.2d 577 (1976).

Injuries to Trucker Preparing Truck for Job. — Injuries to an owner-operator of a truck leased to an Interstate Commerce Commission franchise holder arose out of and in the course of employment where the plaintiff accepted the offer of a job driving from Greensboro to San Francisco, a part of the duties of the employment was to present the tractor-trailer in condition to make the trip, and plaintiff was injured while preparing the truck. Thompson v. Refrigerated Transp. Co., 32 N.C. App. 693, 236 S.E.2d 312 (1977).

Injuries to Truck Driver on Route. — Findings of commission that heart attack suffered by truck driver while driving his route was not the result of an accident or occupational disease caused by stress, equipment, and long hours upheld. Dye v. Shippers Freight Lines, 118 N.C. App. 280, 454 S.E.2d 845 (1995).

Nurse Turning Obese Patient. — Plaintiff's injury suffered during the course of her employment was not the result of an accident within the meaning of subdivision (6) of this section where the injury occurred while plaintiff nurse was turning an unconscious, obese patient, where turning patients was part of plaintiff's job, and where there was no evidence that the hospital room and its condition were any different than those in which plaintiff was used to working and where the patient, although obese, did not present an exceptional condition to plaintiff. Artis v. North Carolina Baptist Hosps., 44 N.C. App. 64, 259 S.E.2d 789 (1979).

Heart Attack After Chasing Suspect. — Where it was clear from the evidence that acute myocardial infarction suffered by plaintiff deputy sheriff occurred suddenly and immediately after the foot chase of a suspect, and that it was the overexertion experienced during the foot chase that caused the injury to his heart, it was not necessary for plaintiff to show that the overexertion which was the cause of his injury occurred while he was engaged in some unusual activity, since it was the extent and nature of the exertion that classified the resulting injury to the plaintiff's heart as an injury by accident within the meaning of this section. King v. Forsyth County, 45 N.C. App. 467, 263 S.E.2d 283, cert. denied, 300 N.C. 374, 267 S.E.2d 676 (1980).

Rupture of Aneurysm. — Under the evidence, the Industrial Commission properly determined that the death of a traveling mechanic from the rupture of a congenital aneurysm in the left carotid artery did not result from an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment. King v. Exxon Co., 46 N.C. App. 750, 266 S.E.2d 37 (1980).

Subarachnoid Hemorrhage. — Where the evidence indicated that decedent died from a subarachnoid hemorrhage, which is not a compensable cause, the presumption of compensability was not applicable and the Commission did not err by not applying it. Gilbert v. Entenmann's, Inc., 113 N.C. App. 619, 440 S.E.2d 115 (1994).

Filling in for Absent Employee. — Evidence was sufficient to support a finding by the Industrial Commission that there was no interruption of plaintiff's work routine or the introduction of some new circumstance not a part of the usual work routine, the fact that plaintiff was filling in for absent employees and therefore engaged in a greater volume of lifting than was her ordinarily assigned task not rendering her performance at the time of the injury other than a part of the usual work routine. Dyer v. Mack Foster Poultry & Livestock, Inc., 50 N.C. App. 291, 273 S.E.2d 321 (1981).

Lifting Object Heavier Than Usual. — Where plaintiff's work routine, the lifting of lighter crates, was interrupted by introduction of a crate heavier than expected and heavier than usual, the Commission was warranted in concluding as a matter of law that plaintiff suffered an injury "by accident." Gladson v. Piedmont Stores/Scotties Disct. Drug Store, 57

N.C. App. 579, 292 S.E.2d 18, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 556, 294 S.E.2d 370 (1982).

Injury During Regularly Scheduled Rest Break. — Plaintiff's injury arose out of and in the course of his employment, that is, had its origin in an employment-connected risk as opposed to one common to the public at large, where he was locked inside the plant yard which was enclosed with a high chain link fence with a large crowd of fellow employees as was customary during a regularly scheduled rest break, the railroad track over which he tripped and injured his knee was an integral part of the equipment of the plant, and it ran directly through the area in which he took his relaxation breaks, and permission from the plant supervisor was necessary in order for an employee to leave the plant premises during these scheduled rest breaks. Williams v. Hydro Print, Inc., 65 N.C. App. 1, 308 S.E.2d 478 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 156, 311 S.E.2d 297 (1984).

Injury Incident to New Job. — Employee who ruptured a tendon as he was twisting and jerking hose off a mandrel incident to a new job in the curved hose department of employer, to which he had been assigned when, to avoid being laid off, he exercised his contractual right to displace another employee in a different department with less union seniority, and who had spent two days observing the new job and two days and a few hours doing the new job, was entitled to compensation for an injury arising by accident. Gunter v. Dayco Corp., 317 N.C. 670, 346 S.E.2d 395 (1986).

Unexplained Death. — Where the undisputed evidence indicated that decedent died while acting in the scope of his employment, and no evidence indicated that he died other than by accident, under these circumstances decedent's widow may rely on a presumption that decedent's death occurred via a work related cause, thereby making the death compensable even though the cause of death was unknown. Pickrell v. Motor Convoy, Inc., 322 N.C. 363, 368 S.E.2d 582 (1988).

Claimant, mother of a 34-year-old cablevision lineman who was found dead at the base of a utility pole by two co-workers, was not entitled to benefits, where the examining pathologist attributed the probable cause of her son's death to marked atherosclerotic coronary artery disease, although he noted that the possibility of a low voltage injury could not be completely excluded, and she was not entitled to a presumption that, upon an unexplained death, there was an inference the death arose out of the employment and was compensable, nor to a presumption that close cases should be decided to the employee's benefit. Gilbert v. B & S Contractors, 81 N.C. App. 110, 343 S.E.2d 609 (1986).

Heart Attack After Tugging on Tarp. — Commission properly concluded that a tractor-trailer driver's heart attack was not the result of an accident arising out of and in the course of employment, where the driver's frustration and physical exertion in tugging on a tarp was not the precipitating cause of the heart attack. Cody v. Snider Lumber Co., 328 N.C. 67, 399 S.E.2d 104 (1991).

For additional cases in which compensation was not awarded, see Plyler v. Charlotte Country Club, 214 N.C. 453, 199 S.E. 622 (1938); Thornton v. J.A. Richardson Co., 258 N.C. 207, 128 S.E.2d 256 (1962); Lawrence v. Hatch Mill, 265 N.C. 329, 144 S.E.2d 3 (1965).

XVII. DISABILITY.

To obtain an award of compensation an employee must establish that his injury caused him disability, unless it is included in the schedule of injuries made compensable by § 97-31 without regard to loss of wage-earning power. Anderson v. Northwestern Motor Co., 233 N.C. 372, 64 S.E.2d 265 (1951).

To support a conclusion of disability, the Commission must find: (1) That the plaintiff was incapable after his injury of earning the same wages he earned before his injury in the same employment, (2) that the plaintiff was incapable after his injury of earning the same wages he earned before his injury in any other employment and (3) that the plaintiff's incapacity to earn was caused by his injury. Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986); Gregory v. Sadie Cotton Mills, Inc., 90 N.C. App. 433, 368 S.E.2d 650, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 835, 371 S.E.2d 277 (1988).

To establish disability a claimant must prove: (1) he was incapable of earning the same wages in the same employment, (2) he was incapable of earning the same wages in any other employment, and (3) his incapacity to earn was caused by the injury. Arrington v. Texfi Indus., 123 N.C. App. 476, 473 S.E.2d 403 (1996).

Disability is the event of being incapacitated from the performance of normal labor. Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 27 N.C. App. 254, 218 S.E.2d 876 (1975), rev'd on other grounds, 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 335 (1976).

But disability is more than mere physical injury and is markedly different from technical or functional disability. Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 27 N.C. App. 254, 218 S.E.2d 876 (1975), rev'd on other grounds, 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 335 (1976).

Ability to Carry Out "Normal Life Functions" Not Determinative. — Physicians' estimates of plaintiff's disability, which referred only to the degree of loss of use of her nervous system and to the impairment of her ability to carry out "total life functions," were insufficient to support the commission's finding that plaintiff was entitled to compensation for permanent partial disability or loss of use of her back and not to benefits for total incapacity to work, since a person may be wholly incapable of working and earning wages even though her ability to carry out normal life functions has not been wholly destroyed and even though she has not lost 100 percent use of her nervous system. Little v. Anson County Schools Food Serv., 295 N.C. 527, 246 S.E.2d 743 (1978).

Under the act, disability refers not to physical infirmity but to a diminished capacity to earn money. Anderson v. Northwestern Motor Co., 233 N.C. 372, 64 S.E.2d 265 (1951); Hall v. Thomason Chevrolet, Inc., 263 N.C. 569, 139 S.E.2d 857 (1965); Burton v. Peter W. Blum & Son, 270 N.C. 695, 155 S.E.2d 71 (1967); Ashley v. Rent-A-Car Co., 271 N.C. 76, 155 S.E.2d 755 (1967); Morgan v. Thomasville Furn. Indus., 2 N.C. App. 126, 162 S.E.2d 619 (1968); Snead v. Sandhurst Mills, Inc., 8 N.C. App. 447, 174 S.E.2d 699 (1970); Willis v. Reidsville Drapery Plant, 29 N.C. App. 386, 224 S.E.2d 287 (1976); Little v. Anson County Schools Food Serv., 33 N.C. App. 742, 236 S.E.2d 801 (1977), rev'd on other grounds, 295 N.C. 527, 246 S.E.2d 743 (1978); Wood v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 297 N.C. 636, 256 S.E.2d 692 (1979); Lucas v. Burlington Indus., 57 N.C. App. 366, 291 S.E.2d 360; Priddy v. Cone Mills Corp., 58 N.C. App. 720, 294 S.E.2d 743 (1982); Fleming v. K-Mart Corp., 67 N.C. App. 669, 313 S.E.2d 890 (1984), aff'd, 312 N.C. 538, 324 S.E.2d 214 (1985); Grant v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 77 N.C. App. 241, 335 S.E.2d 327 (1985); Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

Disability is defined in terms of a diminution in earning power. Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 27 N.C. App. 254, 218 S.E.2d 876 (1975), rev'd on other grounds, 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 335 (1976).

As used in the Workers' Compensation Act, "disability" specifically relates to incapacity to earn wages. Fleming v. K-Mart Corp., 67 N.C. App. 669, 313 S.E.2d 890 (1984), aff'd, 312 N.C. 538, 324 S.E.2d 214 (1985).

"Disability" under this Chapter means an impairment in the employee's wage-earning capacity because of injury, not merely a physical impairment. Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 78 N.C. App. 373, 337 S.E.2d 106 (1985), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986).

Fact that claimant may be capable of doing sedentary work does not establish that she is not disabled. Disability under the Workers' Compensation Act is not to be equated with physical infirmity. Other factors tending to show the unemployability of the worker, such as age, education and experience, may be considered. McCubbins v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 79 N.C. App. 409, 339 S.E.2d 497, cert. denied, 316 N.C. 732, 345 S.E.2d 389 (1986).

An occupationally injured or diseased worker who is employable at wages equal to those earned before the injury or disease was incurred is not disabled. Bridges v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 90 N.C. App. 397, 368 S.E.2d 388, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 171, 373 S.E.2d 104 (1988).

In order to receive disability compensation under the Worker's Compensation Act, the mere fact of an on the job injury is not sufficient; the injury must have impaired the worker's earning capacity. Brown v. S & N Communications, Inc., 124 N.C. App. 320, 477 S.E.2d 197 (1996).

Award Not Based on Capacity to Earn Is Erroneous. — An award of compensation based upon a finding as to the amount the claimant had earned since the date on which total permanent disability had ceased, rather than upon his capacity or ability to earn, is erroneous. Hill v. DuBose, 237 N.C. 501, 75 S.E.2d 401 (1953).

The test for disability is whether and to what extent earning capacity is impaired, not the fact or extent of physical impairment. Robinson v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 619, 292 S.E.2d 144 (1982); Heffner v. Cone Mills Corp., 83 N.C. App. 84, 349 S.E.2d 70 (1986).

Entitlement to compensation under this Chapter is rooted in and must be measured by plaintiff's capacity or incapacity to earn wages. Mills v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 53 N.C. App. 341, 280 S.E.2d 802, cert. denied, 304 N.C. 196, 285 S.E.2d 100 (1981).

Loss of Earning Power Is Criterion. — The disability of an employee is to be measured by his capacity or incapacity to earn the wages he was receiving at the time of the injury. Loss of earning capacity is the criterion. If there is no loss of earning capacity, there is no disability within the meaning of the act. Dail v. Kellex Corp., 233 N.C. 446, 64 S.E.2d 438 (1951); Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 69 N.C. App. 263, 317 S.E.2d 120, modified on other grounds, 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986), modified on other grounds, 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

Loss of earning capacity is the criterion. Compensation must be based upon loss of wage-earning power rather than the amount actually received. It was intended by this section to provide compensation only for loss of earning capacity. Hill v. DuBose, 234 N.C. 446, 67 S.E.2d 371 (1951); Ashley v. Rent-A-Car Co., 271 N.C. 76, 155 S.E.2d 755 (1967).

The Commission's finding of fact that "due to plaintiff's accepted compensable carpal tunnel syndrome superimposed on fibromyalgia, [she] is unable to earn wages" was not supported by competent evidence; although evidence a plaintiff suffers from pain as a result of her compensable injury may be competent evidence to support a conclusion the plaintiff is disabled, the evidence must show that pain renders the plaintiff incapable of work in any employment. Demery v. Perdue Farms, Inc., 143 N.C. App. 259, 545 S.E.2d 485 (2001), aff'd, — N.C. —, 554 S.E.2d 337 (2001).

Disability is measured by the capacity or incapacity of employee to earn the wages he was receiving at the time of the injury, by the same or any other employment. And the fact that the same wages are paid by the employer because of long service does not alter the rule. Branham v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 223 N.C. 233, 25 S.E.2d 865 (1943); Dail v. Kellex Corp., 233 N.C. 446, 64 S.E.2d 438 (1951); Hill v. DuBose, 234 N.C. 446, 67 S.E.2d 371 (1951).

Statement in Branham v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 223 N.C. 233, 25 S.E.2d 865 (1943), which is noted above, that there is no disability if the employee is receiving the same wages in the same or other employment is correct only so long as the employment reflects the employee's ability to earn wages in the competitive market. Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

The term "disability," as used in the Workers' Compensation Act, means incapacity because of injury to earn, in the same or any other employment, the wages which the employee was receiving at the time of injury. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971); Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 27 N.C. App. 254, 218 S.E.2d 876 (1975), rev'd on other grounds, 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976); Porter v. Shelby Knit, Inc., 46 N.C. App. 22, 264 S.E.2d 360 (1980).

In order for the Commission to award disability compensation, the plaintiff must prove and the Commission must find: (1) That he was incapable of earning the same wages he had earned before his injury in the same employment, (2) that he was incapable of earning the same wages he had earned before his injury in any other employment, and (3) that his incapacity was caused by his injury or occupational disease. Heffner v. Cone Mills Corp., 83 N.C. App. 84, 349 S.E.2d 70 (1986); Taylor v. Margaret R. Pardee Mem. Hosp., 83 N.C. App. 385, 350 S.E.2d 148 (1986), cert. denied, 319 N.C. 410, 354 S.E.2d 729 (1987).

Under the Workers' Compensation Act, disability is defined by a diminished capacity to earn wages, not by physical infirmity; however, the fact that an employee is capable of performing employment tendered by the employer is not, as a matter of law, an indication of plaintiff's ability to earn wages. Saums v. Raleigh Community Hosp., 346 N.C. 760, 487 S.E.2d 746 (1997).

In order to prove disability the burden is on the employee to show that he is unable to earn the same wages he had earned before the injury, either in the same employment or in other employment. The employee may meet this burden in one of four ways: (1) the production of medical evidence that he is physically or mentally, as a consequence of the work related injury, incapable of work in any employment; (2) the production of evidence that he is capable of some work, but that he has, after a reasonable effort on his part, been unsuccessful in his effort to obtain employment; (3) the production of evidence that he is capable of some work but that it would be futile because of preexisting conditions. i.e. age, inexperience, lack of education, to seek other employment; or (4) the production of evidence that he has obtained other employment at a wage less than that earned prior to the injury. Russell v. Lowes Prod. Distrib., 108 N.C. App. 762, 425 S.E.2d 454 (1993).

Award of Disability Benefits Appropriate Remedy. — Where the full Commission found that defendants had not presented convincing evidence that defendant-store had offered or obtained employment for plaintiff consistent with her limitations, and where plaintiff met the burden of showing injury to her wage earning capacity, the full Commission was correct in finding that the disability continued, and ongoing award of disability benefits was the appropriate remedy. Simmons v. Kroger Co., 117 N.C. App. 440, 451 S.E.2d 12 (1994).

Plaintiff, after having shown credible evidence of diligent efforts to find employment, was entitled to receive compensation benefits where his inability to earn the same wages was caused in part by unavailability of area jobs consistent with his physical limitations. Fletcher v. Dana Corp., 119 N.C. App. 491, 459 S.E.2d 31 (1995), cert. denied, 342 N.C. 191, 463 S.E.2d 235 (1995).

And Not by Employer's Willingness to Pay. — Capacity to earn the same wages, and not the particular employer's policy or willingness to pay wages for an undetermined time, is the test of disability. Ashley v. Rent-A-Car Co., 271 N.C. 76, 155 S.E.2d 755 (1967).

The Workers' Compensation Act does not permit an employer to avoid its duty to pay compensation by offering an injured employee employment which the employee under normally prevailing market conditions could find nowhere else and which the employer could terminate at will or for reasons beyond its control. Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

When a person has been offered, but has not accepted, employment after an accident, and the proffered employment does not accurately reflect the person's ability to compete with others for wages, it cannot be considered evidence of earning capacity. Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

Supply room position offered to employee by employer, which was so modified because of employee's medical condition that the position would not be offered in the competitive job market, could not be considered as evidence of employee's ability to earn wages. Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

But there is no "disability" if the employee is receiving the same wages in the same or any other employment. The fact that "in the same" employment he is not required to perform all the physical work therefore required of him can make no difference. Even so, if this is not "the same employment," then it clearly comes within the term "other employment." To remove the employment from one classification necessarily shifts it to the other. Furthermore, there is no language used in this section or in any other part of the statute which even suggests that "other employment" must be with a different employer. Branham v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 223 N.C. 233, 25 S.E.2d 865 (1943).

Receipt of Same Wages After Injury Creates Rebuttable Presumption. — Receipt of the same wages after injury should create no stronger presumption that disability has ended than the presumption which arises on an employee's returning to work. In both instances a rebuttable presumption of fact arises. Ashley v. Rent-A-Car Co., 271 N.C. 76, 155 S.E.2d 755 (1967).

If an award is made by the Industrial Commission, payable during disability, there is a presumption that disability lasts until the employee returns to work, and likewise a presumption that disability ends when the employee returns to work at wages equal to those he was receiving at the time his injury occurred. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

But Is Not Conclusive Proof That No "Disability" Exists. — The amount of wages received by the employee after his injury should be strong evidence of his capacity or incapacity to earn wages, but receipt of wages in the amount received before the injury cannot be conclusive proof that no "disability" exists. Ashley v. Rent-A-Car Co., 271 N.C. 76, 155 S.E.2d 755 (1967).

Disability Not Presumed Where Payments Not Shown to be Payable During Disability. — Presumption that disability continued until plaintiff returned to work did not apply, where parties stipulated plaintiff sustained injury arising out of and in the course of her employment, and parties stipulated Form 21 and Form 26 agreements were approved in which defendant admitted plaintiff was paid for compensation "for temporary total disability for a period not specifically identified in the record", but the record did not include the forms or reveal whether payments made by defendant were payable during disability. Hoyle v. Carolina Associated Mills, 122 N.C. App. 462, 470 S.E.2d 357 (1996).

Employer Given Benefit of Any Wages Earned After Injury. — Subdivision (9) of this section is drawn so as to give the employer the benefit of wages which plaintiff, after his injury, is able to earn from any other source. Barnhardt v. Yellow Cab Co., 266 N.C. 419, 146 S.E.2d 479 (1966).

How Disability Measured for Second Compensable Injury. — While, in the ordinary case, "disability" can be measured in terms of percentage, in those cases where the claimant has a preexisting "disability" to the same part of the body which is affected by a subsequent compensable injury, "disability" must be measured in terms of capacity to earn wages. Ridenhour v. Fisher Transp. Corp., 50 N.C. App. 126, 272 S.E.2d 889 (1980).

It is insufficient for claimant to show that he has obtained no other employment since his retirement. He must prove that he is unable to earn wages in other employment. Hundley v. Fieldcrest Mills, 58 N.C. App. 184, 292 S.E.2d 766 (1982).

The Workers' Compensation Act does not ensure an employee any particular employment; subdivision (9) of this section speaks of incapacity to earn wages "in the same or any other employment." Lucas v. Burlington Indus., 57 N.C. App. 366, 291 S.E.2d 360.

Capacity of Particular Employee Must Be Considered. — In determining disability, the Commission is not allowed to consider whether the average employee with plaintiff's injury is capable of working and earning wages. The question is whether this particular employee has such a capacity. Lucas v. Burlington Indus., 57 N.C. App. 366, 291 S.E.2d 360.

Where an employee's efforts to obtain employment would be futile because of age, inexperience, lack of education or other preexisting factors, the employee should not be precluded from compensation for failing to engage in the meaningless exercise of seeking a job which does not exist. Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

The Commission must decide the disability issue based on the particular characteristics of the individual employee. This necessitates a consideration of the employee's age, work experience, training, education and any other factors which might affect his ability to earn wages. Heffner v. Cone Mills Corp., 83 N.C. App. 84, 349 S.E.2d 70 (1986).

Before it can be determined that a plaintiff is employable and can earn wages, it must be established, not merely that jobs are available or that the average job seeker can get one, but that plaintiff can obtain a job taking into account his specific limitations. Bridges v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 90 N.C. App. 397, 368 S.E.2d 388, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 171, 373 S.E.2d 104 (1988).

Individual, intellectual and vocational considerations may be taken into account on the issue of disability. Calloway v. Mills, 78 N.C. App. 702, 338 S.E.2d 548 (1986).

Preexisting Conditions. — If preexisting conditions such as an employee's age, education and work experience are such that an injury causes him a greater degree of incapacity for work than the same injury would cause some other person, the employee must be compensated for the incapacity which he or she suffers, and not for the degree of disability which would be suffered by someone with superior education or work experience or who is younger or in better health. Little v. Anson County Schools Food Serv., 295 N.C. 527, 246 S.E.2d 743 (1978).

Plaintiff may prove his wage-earning impairment by evidence of preexisting conditions such as his age, education and work experience which are such that an injury causes him a greater degree of incapacity for work than the same injury would cause some other person. Hundley v. Fieldcrest Mills, 58 N.C. App. 184, 292 S.E.2d 766 (1982).

Total and Partial Disability Compared. — If plaintiff is unable to work and earn any wages, he is totally disabled. If he is able to work and earn some wages, but less than he was receiving at the time of his injury, he is partially disabled. Robinson v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 619, 292 S.E.2d 144 (1982).

Definition Not Applicable to Cases of Asbestosis or Silicosis. — The definition of "disability" contained in this section is not applicable to cases of disablement from asbestosis or silicosis. "Disability" resulting from asbestosis or silicosis means the event of becoming actually incapacitated from performing normal labor in the last occupation in which remuneratively employed. Thus, one actually incapacitated by asbestosis or silicosis is entitled to compensation under § 97-29 even though he may be earning the same or greater wages in a different employment. Honeycutt v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 235 N.C. 471, 70 S.E.2d 426 (1952). See §§ 97-54, 97-55.

Definition Read into § 97-38. — The definition of the word "disability" as it is defined in subdivision (9) of this section must be read into § 97-38 in lieu of the word "disability" therein. Burton v. Peter W. Blum & Son, 270 N.C. 695, 155 S.E.2d 71 (1967).

The determination of whether a disability exists is a conclusion of law, which must be based upon findings of fact supported by competent evidence. Hilliard v. Apex Cabinet Co., 305 N.C. 593, 290 S.E.2d 682 (1982);

Hundley v. Fieldcrest Mills, 58 N.C. App. 184, 292 S.E.2d 766 (1982); Grant v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 77 N.C. App. 241, 335 S.E.2d 327 (1985).

Findings Required to Support Conclusion of Disability. — In order to support a conclusion of disability, the Industrial Commission must find: (1) that plaintiff was incapable after his injury of earning the same wages he had earned before his injury in the same employment, (2) that plaintiff was incapable after his injury of earning the same wages he had earned before his injury in any other employment, and (3) that this incapacity to earn was caused by plaintiff's injury. Hilliard v. Apex Cabinet Co., 305 N.C. 593, 290 S.E.2d 682 (1982); Hundley v. Fieldcrest Mills, 58 N.C. App. 184, 292 S.E.2d 766 (1982); Priddy v. Cone Mills Corp., 58 N.C. App. 720, 294 S.E.2d 743 (1982); Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 69 N.C. App. 263, 317 S.E.2d 120, modified on other grounds, 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986); Grant v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 77 N.C. App. 241, 335 S.E.2d 327 (1985); Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 78 N.C. App. 373, 337 S.E.2d 106 (1985), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986).

Inability to Earn Wages Earned Before Injury Must Be Shown. — Before the plaintiff may receive compensation, he must show that he is not capable of earning the same wages he had earned before his injury. Merely showing that plaintiff is not earning the same wages after his injury than before is insufficient. Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 78 N.C. App. 373, 337 S.E.2d 106 (1985), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986).

Employee Able to Do Other Work Not Entitled to Compensation. — Where the uncontradicted medical testimony indicated that plaintiff, a 46 year old man with an eighth grade education who was unable to read a newspaper or spell, suffered from a mild case of employment-related chronic obstructive lung disease, with a 20 to 30 percent lung impairment, but that plaintiff was capable of work involving a clean environment, moderate activity and anything requiring manual dexterity, plaintiff was not entitled to compensation under this Chapter. Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 78 N.C. App. 373, 337 S.E.2d 106 (1985), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986).

When Search for Work Need Not Be Shown. — While in order to prove disability, an injured employee must prove that he is unable to work and not merely that he unsuccessfully sought work, the converse is not true. In order to prove disability, the employee need not prove that he unsuccessfully sought employment if the employee proves that he is unable to obtain employment. Peoples v. Cone

Mills Corp., 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

Claimant Unable to Earn Wages in Any Job for Which Qualified Is Totally, Not Partially, Disabled. — The Commission erred as a matter of law by awarding claimant compensation for partial disability when it found as fact that plaintiff was incapable of earning wages in any employment for which plaintiff was qualified. Based on the Commission's findings, plaintiff was totally disabled within the meaning of § 97-29. Carothers v. Ti-Caro, 83 N.C. App. 301, 350 S.E.2d 95 (1986).

Where a plaintiff, due to an occupational disease, is fully incapacitated to earn wages at employment which is the only work he is qualified to do by reason of such factors as age and education, he is totally incapacitated. Carothers v. Ti-Caro, 83 N.C. App. 301, 350 S.E.2d 95 (1986).

Uncontroverted evidence established that plaintiff, whom the court found to be 59 years old and to have a third-grade education, was totally disabled, where although the impairment rating of his left leg was only 45%, the evidence showed plaintiff to be totally and permanently unable to earn the wages he was receiving at the time of his injury. Wilder v. Barbour Boat Works, 84 N.C. App. 188, 352 S.E.2d 690 (1987).

Receipt of Higher Wages for Unsatisfactory Work. — It was not error for the Commission to conclude that employee was permanently partially disabled even though the evidence showed that he had worked in the packing room at a wage higher than he had ever before earned after his impairing lung disease was diagnosed, where the Commission found without exception that he performed unsatisfactorily at this job in the packing department, and where the evidence demonstrated that although he was capable of performing less skilled jobs at the mill, which he did for more than 30 years, he had difficulty in a position requiring greater skills. Calloway v. Mills, 78 N.C. App. 702, 338 S.E.2d 548 (1986).

In determining the extent to which an occupational disease affects an employee's wage-earning ability in another position, the line of inquiry must center on that particular individual's earning capacity and not that of a different individual. Thomas v. Hanes Printables, 91 N.C. App. 45, 370 S.E.2d 419 (1988).

Although the practice of comparing earnings before and after an injury is not the proper method to exhibit diminished earning capacity, it is a valid factor which deserves consideration. Thomas v. Hanes Printables, 91 N.C. App. 45, 370 S.E.2d 419 (1988).

Wages received by claimant after his injury are strong but not conclusive evidence of his ability to earn for purposes of determining whether he is disabled within the meaning of subdivision (9) of this section. Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986).

Inability to Earn Same Wages Due to Occupational Disease and Not Merely Lack of Skill. — While it was correct that plaintiff's inability to earn the same wages as in her former employment was not due to a physical incapacity per se, the transfer of positions which resulted in a diminished earning capacity was necessitated by a compensable injury; therefore, plaintiff's inability to earn the same wages in other jobs was due to her occupational disease and not merely to her lack of skill in the job as the Industrial Commission found, and the commission's conclusion of law that plaintiff was not entitled to benefits for partial disability because she was capable of earning the same wages she earned before contracting the occupational disease, was not supported by the findings of fact. Thomas v. Hanes Printables, 91 N.C. App. 45, 370 S.E.2d 419 (1988).

Evidence that plaintiff held "temporary" jobs was not sufficient to rebut the presumption of disability created by the Industrial Commission-approved Form 21 agreement. Davis v. Embree-Reed, Inc., 135 N.C. App. 80, 519 S.E.2d 763 (1999), cert. denied, 351 N.C. 102, 541 S.E.2d 143 (1999).

Evidence Supported Determination of Total and Permanent Disability to Employee's Legs. — The evidence was sufficient to support the Industrial Commission's determination that plaintiff was totally and permanently disabled by reason of extensive burns sustained on both legs when he set fire to his trousers while using an electric welder's torch. Martin v. Bahnson Serv. Co., 17 N.C. App. 359, 194 S.E.2d 223, cert. denied, 283 N.C. 257, 195 S.E.2d 690 (1973).

Skin Condition Caused by Sensitivity to Chemicals Used in Work Held Not a Disability. — A hair stylist was not entitled to disability compensation payments where her skin condition, caused by her sensitivity to chemicals used in her work, had completely cleared up within one month of her terminating her employment. While it might be true that her skin disease could recur if she returned to her previous job, there was no evidence of any continuing disability as a result of a disease contracted in the course of employment. She was not entitled to compensation for her susceptibility to the skin disease. Sebastian v. Mona Watkins Hair Styling, 40 N.C. App. 30, 251 S.E.2d 872, cert. denied, 297 N.C. 301, 254 S.E.2d 921 (1979).

Award Limited to Loss of Use of Back Held Insufficient. — Where physicians indicated that an injury to the plaintiff's spinal cord resulted in weakness in all of her extremities and numbness or loss of sensation throughout her body, and the doctors further testified that she suffered diminished mobility and had difficulty with position sense and with recognition of things in her hands when objects were placed in her hands, the Commission could not limit the plaintiff to an award under § 97-31(23) for loss of use of the back. Little v. Anson County Schools Food Serv., 295 N.C. 527, 246 S.E.2d 743 (1978).

Disability Is Presumed to Continue Until Employee Returns to Work. — Once the disability is proven, there is a presumption that it continues until the employee returns to work at wages equal to those he was receiving at the time his injury occurred. Watson v. Winston-Salem Transit Auth., 92 N.C. App. 473, 374 S.E.2d 483 (1988).

Plaintiff's Temporary Total Disability Was Presumed to Continue Until She Returned to Work. — Where plaintiff was "ready, willing, and able" to return to work, but her employer declined to honor plaintiff's request to return due to her injuries, there was a presumption that plaintiff's temporary total disability continued until she returned to work, and Commission's finding of maximum medical improvement was not the equivalent of the end of plaintiff's disability; therefore, on remand plaintiff was entitled to a determination of the extent of her disability for the period of time she was not allowed to work. Watson v. Winston-Salem Transit Auth., 92 N.C. App. 473, 374 S.E.2d 483 (1988).

Evidence of Temporary Total Disability Held Sufficient. — The Court upheld the Commission's finding that the plaintiff had suffered a specific traumatic injury and its consequent award of temporary total disability compensation where the defendants failed to meet their burden of establishing that "suitable jobs [we]re available to plaintiff." Webb v. Power Circuit, Inc., 141 N.C. App. 507, 540 S.E.2d 790 (2000), cert. denied, 353 N.C. 398, 548 S.E.2d 159 (2001).

Employee's Earning Capacity Negated His Proof of Temporary Total Disability. — The Commission's finding that plaintiff employee failed to sustain his burden of proving temporary total disability was supported by competent evidence which showed that the plaintiff earned income from three private businesses throughout the time he received temporary disability payments from defendants. Sims v. Charmes/Arby's Roast Beef, 142 N.C. App. 154, 542 S.E.2d 277 (2001), cert. denied, 353 N.C. 729, 550 S.E.2d 782 (2001).

Evidence That Claimant No Longer Disabled. — Evidence that claimant was released by his doctor to return to work and that he worked as a self-employed painter and then as a truck driver, earning more than he had while employed with defendant, was sufficient to support the conclusion that he was no longer entitled to temporary total disability payments. Snead v. Carolina Pre-Cast Concrete, Inc., 129 N.C. App. 331, 499 S.E.2d 470 (1998), cert. denied, 348 N.C. 501, 510 S.E.2d 656 (1998).

Effect of Retirement. — Because disability measures an employee's present ability to earn wages, and is unrelated to a decision to withdraw from the labor force by retirement, the Commission may not deny disability benefits because the claimant retired, where there is evidence of diminished earning capacity caused by an occupational disease. Heffner v. Cone Mills Corp., 83 N.C. App. 84, 349 S.E.2d 70 (1986).

Evidence of Employee's Inability to Earn Wages Held Sufficient. — Testimony of two doctors and a vocational rehabilitation counselor was amply competent to support the Commission's finding that employee had no capacity to earn wages in either the same or any other employment up to the date of a hearing before a deputy commissioner. Kennedy v. Duke Univ. Medical Center, 101 N.C. App. 24, 398 S.E.2d 677 (1990).

Evidence of Partial Disability Held Sufficient. — Evidence held sufficient to support the finding that plaintiff was partially incapable of engaging in gainful employment by byssinosis and chronic obstructive lung disease as a result of 29 years of smoking and exposure to cotton dust and that his occupational disease, combined with his age, limited education and work experience, limited his ability to earn wages. Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986).

Claimant Must Show Disability Work-Related. — Where evidence supported the Industrial Commission's finding that plaintiff failed to establish his present disability was caused by a work-related injury, the commission's decision would not be disturbed on appeal and plaintiff was entitled to compensation only for his temporary total disability. Lettley v. Trash Removal Serv., 91 N.C. App. 625, 372 S.E.2d 747 (1988).

Plaintiff did not meet her burden of showing she sustained a disability as a consequence of her injury where there was competent evidence in the record to show that plaintiff was released to return to work without restrictions four days after her injury, and that she was capable of earning her regular wages and performing her regular duties. Fuller v. Motel 6, 136 N.C. App. 727, 526 S.E.2d 480 (2000).

Plaintiff Carried Initial Burden of Showing That She Was Disabled. — Where the record indicated that plaintiff began to receive temporary total disability payments in May 1984, the payments continued until November 1984, on November 21, 1984 her treating physician reported that she could return to work "as her comfort permits," there was no "light" work available for plaintiff nor would her employer allow her to return to work to perform her old duties, and though not in the record, the briefs indicated and the opinion and award make reference to the fact that plaintiff had signed a statement in which it was recited that she had reached maximum medical improvement on November 22, 1984, plaintiff carried her initial burden of showing she was disabled. Watson v. Winston-Salem Transit Auth., 92 N.C. App. 473, 374 S.E.2d 483 (1988).

Presumption of Disability Created. — In a general sense, it is true an injured employee has the burden of showing he is incapable of earning the same wages he previously earned, either in the same or any other employment; however, upon execution of a Form 21 agreement, and subsequent approval by the Commission, the employee enjoys a presumption of disability. King v. Yeargin Constr. Co., 124 N.C. App. 396, 476 S.E.2d 898 (1996).

The approval of a Form 21 by the Industrial Commission relieves the employee of his initial burden of proving a disability; further, once an agreement is approved, the employee receives the benefit of the presumption that he is totally disabled. Brown v. S & N Communications, Inc., 124 N.C. App. 320, 477 S.E.2d 197 (1996).

Constructive Refusal to Accept Suitable Employment. — For misconduct that causes a claimant to be discharged from employment to amount to "constructive refusal" to accept suitable employment that renders him ineligible for worker's compensation, the misconduct need not occur during working hours or at the workplace, and it need not amount to a crime, but it must have been conduct for which a nondisabled employee ordinarily would have been terminated. Williams v. Pee Dee Elec. Membership Corp., 130 N.C. App. 298, 502 S.E.2d 645 (1998).

Evidence of Incapacity to Earn Wages Held Sufficient. — Where defendant failed to come forward with rebuttal evidence, the Industrial Commission did not err in finding that the medical evidence, plaintiff's complaints of chronic leg and back pain related during each visit to her physicians, and plaintiff's continuing pain treatment and doctor visits as of the hearing date provided competent evidence supporting a determination that plaintiff was incapable of earning the same wages from defendant or another employer as a result of lumbosacral strain. Barber v. Going West Transp., Inc., 134 N.C. App. 428, 517 S.E.2d 914 (1999).

XVIII. BURDEN OF PROOF AND EVIDENCE.

Burden of Proof Is on Claimant. — The person claiming the benefit of compensation has the burden of showing that the injury complained of resulted from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 231 N.C. 477, 57 S.E.2d 760 (1950); Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963); O'Mary v. Land Clearing Corp., 261 N.C. 508, 135 S.E.2d 193 (1964); Lucas v. Li'l Gen. Stores, 289 N.C. 212, 221 S.E.2d 257 (1976); Franklin v. Wilson County Bd. of Educ., 29 N.C. App. 491, 224 S.E.2d 657 (1976); Smith v. Dacotah Cotton Mills, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 687, 230 S.E.2d 772 (1976).

One who seeks to avail himself of the act must come within its terms and must be held to prove that he is in a class embraced in the act. Hayes v. Board of Trustees, 224 N.C. 11, 29 S.E.2d 137 (1944); Richards v. Nationwide Homes, 263 N.C. 295, 139 S.E.2d 645 (1965).

Claimant in a proceeding under the Workers' Compensation Act has the burden of proving that his claim is compensable under the act. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 231 N.C. 477, 57 S.E.2d 760 (1950). See also Davis v. Raleigh Rental Center, 58 N.C. App. 113, 292 S.E.2d 763 (1982).

The burden of proving each and every element of compensability is upon the plaintiff. Harvey v. Raleigh Police Dep't, 96 N.C. App. 28, 384 S.E.2d 549, cert. denied, 326 N.C. 706, 388 S.E.2d 454 (1989).

Claimant Has Burden of Proving Employer-Employee Relationship. — In order to bring himself within the coverage of the Workers' Compensation Act, the claimant has the burden of proving that the employer-employee relationship existed. Lloyd v. Jenkins Context Co., 46 N.C. App. 817, 266 S.E.2d 35 (1980); Durham v. McLamb, 59 N.C. App. 165, 296 S.E.2d 3 (1982); Doud v. K & G Janitorial Servs., 69 N.C. App. 205, 316 S.E.2d 664, cert. denied, 312 N.C. 492, 322 S.E.2d 492 (1984).

Burden of Proving Disability. — In workers' compensation cases, a claimant ordinarily has the burden of proving both the existence of his disability and its degree. Hilliard v. Apex Cabinet Co., 305 N.C. 593, 290 S.E.2d 682 (1982); Hundley v. Fieldcrest Mills, 58 N.C. App. 184, 292 S.E.2d 766 (1982); Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986); Taylor v. Margaret R. Pardee Mem. Hosp., 83 N.C. App. 385, 350 S.E.2d 148 (1986), cert. denied, 319 N.C. 410, 354 S.E.2d 729 (1987).

In order to receive disability compensation, the burden is on the claimant to prove that his illness has impaired his capacity to work and the extent of this impairment. Priddy v. Cone Mills Corp., 58 N.C. App. 720, 294 S.E.2d 743 (1982).

The burden of proof of showing a disability is on the plaintiff. Donnell v. Cone Mills Corp., 60 N.C. App. 338, 299 S.E.2d 436, cert. denied, 308 N.C. 190, 302 S.E.2d 243 (1983).

Employee to Establish Disability Before Employer Can Be Required to Prove the Availability of Suitable Employment. —

The Industrial Commission erred in placing the initial burden on the defendants/employers to prove the availability of suitable employment at pre-injury wages without first requiring plaintiff/injured illegal alien employee to establish the existence and extent of his disability. Before defendants could be required to prove the availability of suitable employment, plaintiff had to first come forward with evidence to show that his earning capacity was diminished as a result of his on-the-job injury. Olivares-Juarez v. Showell Farms, 138 N.C. App. 663, 532 S.E.2d 198 (2000).

Evidence of Effort to Find Other Employment. — An injured employee seeking an award of total disability under this section who is unemployed, medically able to work, and possesses no preexisting limitations which would render him unemployable, must produce evidence of reasonable effort to find other employment. Russell v. Lowes Prod. Distrib., 108 N.C. App. 762, 425 S.E.2d 454 (1993).

Claimant Must Show Disability Work-Related. — Where evidence supported the Industrial Commission's finding that plaintiff failed to establish his present disability was caused by a work-related injury, the Commission's decision would not be disturbed on appeal and plaintiff was entitled to compensation only for his temporary total disability. Lettley v. Trash Removal Serv., 91 N.C. App. 625, 372 S.E.2d 747 (1988).

Whether an employee is disabled is a question of law which must be based on findings of fact supported by competent evidence. Heffner v. Cone Mills Corp., 83 N.C. App. 84, 349 S.E.2d 70 (1986).

Plaintiff Carried Initial Burden of Showing That She Was Disabled. — Where the record indicated that plaintiff began to receive temporary total disability payments in May 1984, the payments continued until November 1984, on November 21, 1984 her treating physician reported that she could return to work "as her comfort permits," there was no "light" work available for plaintiff nor would her employer allow her to return to work to perform her old duties, and though not in the record, the briefs indicated and the opinion and award make reference to the fact that plaintiff had signed a statement in which it was recited that she had reached maximum medical improvement on November 22, 1984, plaintiff carried her initial burden of showing she was disabled. Watson v. Winston-Salem Transit Auth., 92 N.C. App. 473, 374 S.E.2d 483 (1988).

Burden of Proof that Claimant Unsuitable for Employment Due to Characteristics Peculiar to Him. — The burden of proof rests upon the claimant to prove the existence of his disability and its extent, and relevant to these issues is evidence that the claimant may be unsuited for particular employment due to characteristics peculiar to him. Tyndall v. Walter Kidde Co., 102 N.C. App. 726, 403 S.E.2d 548, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 505, 407 S.E.2d 553 (1991).

Including Inability to Earn Pre-Injury Wages. — Industrial Commission misapplied the law by erroneously placing the initial burden on defendant to prove plaintiff's capacity to earn pre-injury wages in other employment before plaintiff had met her burden of proof regarding pre-injury wages, in support of a showing of "disability" under this section, as laid out in Hilliard v. Apex Cabinet Co., 305 N.C. 593, 595, 290 S.E.2d 682, 683 (1982). Copley v. PPG Indus., Inc., 133 N.C. App. 631, 516 S.E.2d 184 (1999).

In the compensation cases holding medical testimony unnecessary to make a prima facie case of causation, the distinguishing features are an uncomplicated situation, the immediate appearance of symptoms, the prompt reporting of the occurrence by the worker to his supervisor and consultation with a physician, and the fact that the plaintiff was theretofore in good health and free from any disability of the kind involved. A further relevant factor is the absence of expert testimony that the alleged precipitating event could not have been the cause of the injury. Slizewski v. International Seafood, Inc., 46 N.C. App. 228, 264 S.E.2d 810 (1980).

Hearsay. — It must not only appear by competent evidence that the injury was received in the course of the employment, but also that it arose out of the employment as well. Hearsay evidence is not competent to establish either fact. Plyler v. Charlotte Country Club, 214 N.C. 453, 199 S.E. 622 (1938).

Where no objection is made before the hearing commissioner to the introduction of hearsay evidence, the objection must be treated as waived and the evidence may be considered. The principle on which hearsay evidence is excluded by rules of evidence relates to its competency, not to its relevancy. Maley v. Thomasville Furn. Co., 214 N.C. 589, 200 S.E. 438 (1938).

The Commission is the sole judge of the credibility and weight to be given the testimony; it may accept or reject all of the testimony of a witness, or it may accept a part and reject a part. Blalock v. Roberts Co., 12 N.C. App. 499, 183 S.E.2d 827 (1971).

The Commission has the duty and authority to resolve conflicts in the testimony of a witness or witnesses. Blalock v. Roberts Co., 12 N.C. App. 499, 183 S.E.2d 827 (1971).

Commission's Factual Determinations Binding Upon Court. — Whether a plaintiff was injured by accident and had a reasonable excuse for not giving the employer timely notice were factual issues that depended entirely upon her credibility. Since the Commission found, as its prerogative as fact finder permitted, that plaintiff's testimony was not credible, that determination was binding upon the Court of Appeals. Elliot v. A.O. Smith Corp., 103 N.C. App. 523, 405 S.E.2d 799 (1991).

Sufficiency of Evidence Is Question of Law. — The question whether the evidence is sufficient to support the findings is one of law to be determined by the courts. Lawrence v. Hatch Mill, 265 N.C. 329, 144 S.E.2d 3 (1965).

Proof That Employee Was at Place of Employment Doing Usual Work Is Insufficient. — It must be kept in mind that while an accident arising out of an employment usually occurs in the course of it, it does not necessarily or invariably do so. Nor does an accident which occurs in the course of an employment necessarily or inevitably arise out of it. Therefore proof that an employee was at his place of employment and was doing his usual work at the time of the injury, without more, is insufficient to support an award of compensation. Sweatt v. Rutherford County Bd. of Educ., 237 N.C. 653, 75 S.E.2d 738 (1953).

But Evidence Explaining Exact Cause of Accident Need Not Be Offered. — It is not necessary for a plaintiff to offer evidence explaining the exact cause of the accident. Battle v. Bryant Elec. Co., 15 N.C. App. 246, 189 S.E.2d 788, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 755, 191 S.E.2d 353 (1972).

Award Where Cause of Injury Not Explained. — Where an employee, while about his work, suffers an injury in the ordinary course of employment, the cause of which is not explained, but which is a natural and probable result of a risk thereof, and the Commission finds from the evidence that the injury arose out of the employment, an award will be sustained. Vause v. Vause Farm Equip. Co., 233 N.C. 88, 63 S.E.2d 173 (1951); Poteete v. North State Pyrophyllite Co., 240 N.C. 561, 82 S.E.2d 693 (1954); Cole v. Guilford County, 259 N.C. 724, 131 S.E.2d 308 (1963); Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963).

When an accident occurs in the course of employment, and there is no affirmative evidence that arose from a cause independent of the employment, an award will be sustained. Taylor v. Twin City Club, 260 N.C. 435, 132 S.E.2d 865 (1963).

Insufficient Evidence of Earning Capacity. — There was no competent evidence to support the Commission's findings that plaintiff was capable of earning $12.00 per hour, that other suitable jobs for which plaintiff was qualified were available, that any other positions for which plaintiff was qualified would pay $12.00 per hour, that plaintiff would be able to secure such a position, and that plaintiff's ability to obtain a temporary position paying $12.00 per hour meant that plaintiff, when permanently employed, would receive $12.00 per hour. Daughtry v. Metric Constr. Co., 115 N.C. App. 354, 446 S.E.2d 590, cert. denied, 338 N.C. 515, 452 S.E.2d 808 (1994).

Plaintiff met his burden of proving present earning capacity where he produced evidence that he had obtained employment as a driver at a wage less than that earned as a brick mason prior to the injury. Bond v. Foster Masonry, Inc., 139 N.C. App. 123, 532 S.E.2d 583 (2000).

Presumption of Continuing Disability. — The employer may not rebut the presumption of continuing disability by showing that the employee is capable of earning pre-injury wages in a temporary position or by creating a position within the employer's own company that is not ordinarily in the competitive job market, because such positions do not accurately reflect the employee's capacity to earn wages. Stamey v. North Carolina Self-Insurance Guar. Ass'n, 131 N.C. App. 662, 507 S.E.2d 596 (1998).

The employer failed to rebut the presumption of continuing disability with medical evidence or with evidence that the claimant was capable of obtaining a suitable job in the competitive marketplace, where the claimant temporarily and unsuccessfully returned to work, the modified roller picker position offered to claimant was temporary, there was no evidence that this position was a real position that existed in the marketplace and was not "made" work, and the only medical evidence supported the claimant's claims of shoulder pain. Stamey v. North Carolina Self-Insurance Guar. Ass'n, 131 N.C. App. 662, 507 S.E.2d 596 (1998).

Presumption of Reduction in Earning Capacity Rebutted. — Where claimant presented no evidence contesting the availability of other jobs or her suitability for those jobs and furthermore presented no evidence that she sought employment at any of these places, employer offered sufficient evidence to rebut the presumption that claimant sustained a reduction in her earning capacity. Tyndall v. Walter Kidde Co., 102 N.C. App. 726, 403 S.E.2d 548, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 505, 407 S.E.2d 553 (1991).

Termination of Benefits. — Absent waiver, in order to terminate an employee's benefits after execution of a Form 21 agreement, the employer must request a hearing at which it bears the burden of showing the employee is no longer disabled. King v. Yeargin Constr. Co., 124 N.C. App. 396, 476 S.E.2d 898 (1996).

An employer may rebut the continuing presumption of total disability either by showing the employee's capacity to earn the same wages as before the injury or by showing the employee's capacity to earn lesser wages than before the injury. Brown v. S & N Communications, Inc., 124 N.C. App. 320, 477 S.E.2d 197 (1996).

Medical Treatment — The claimant's medical care constituted "medical treatment" under subdivision (19) of this section, even though the employer contended that the claimant was not referred to some of his doctors by specialists, where the employee was referred to a specialist by his family doctor, and each subsequent visit to a physician was on the basis of a valid medical referral. Sanders v. Broyhill Furn. Indus., 131 N.C. App. 383, 507 S.E.2d 568 (1998).

Remand to Show Continued Disability. — Where Commission's determination that defendant who suffered back injury was credible was not supported by sufficient evidence, and there was competent evidence regarding business ownership and management by defendant, case would be remanded for plaintiff to show that he continued to be disabled. Deese v. Champion Int'l Corp., 133 N.C. App. 278, 515 S.E.2d 239 (1999), cet. granted, 350 N.C. 828 (1999).

XIX. COMPENSATION.

"Compensation," means money relief afforded according to a scale established and for the persons designated in this Chapter. Ivey v. North Carolina Prison Dep't, 252 N.C. 615, 114 S.E.2d 812 (1960); Bowman v. Comfort Chair Co., 271 N.C. 702, 157 S.E.2d 378 (1967).

And Involves More Than Burial Expenses. — The definition of compensation in this section includes burial expenses, but it takes the whole to constitute compensation and not one of its parts. Compensation for wrongful death involves more than the burial of the body. Ivey v. North Carolina Prison Dep't, 252 N.C. 615, 114 S.E.2d 812 (1960).

Types of Compensation. — The Workers' Compensation Act provides primarily for four types of compensation to be paid to employees covered by the act. They are: (1) Compensation for disability, dependent as to amount upon whether the injury produces a permanent total, a permanent partial, a total temporary or a partial temporary incapacity; (2) Compensation in stipulated amounts for loss of some part of the body such as a finger or toe, a leg or arm; (3) Compensation for death; and (4) Compensation for bodily disfigurement. Branham v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 223 N.C. 233, 25 S.E.2d 865 (1943).

Presumption of Compensability When Employee Dies within Scope of Employment and Cause Is Unknown. — The Court of Appeals erred in holding that a presumption of compensability does not apply when an employee dies within the course and scope of employment and the cause of death is unknown. Pickrell v. Motor Convoy, Inc., 322 N.C. 363, 368 S.E.2d 582 (1988).

Where claimant is entitled to rely on the presumption of compensability, the defendant must come forward with some evidence that death occurred as a result of a noncompensable cause; otherwise, the claimant prevails. In the presence of evidence that death was not compensable, the presumption disappears. In that event, the Industrial Commission should find the facts based on all the evidence adduced, taking into account its credibility, and drawing such reasonable inferences from the credible evidence as may be permissible, the burden of persuasion remaining with the claimant. Pickrell v. Motor Convoy, Inc., 322 N.C. 363, 368 S.E.2d 582 (1988).

Plaintiff was entitled to rely on a presumption of compensability, where the undisputed evidence indicated that plaintiff's decedent died while acting within the course and scope of his employment, and no evidence indicated decedent died other than by accident. Pickrell v. Motor Convoy, Inc., 322 N.C. 363, 368 S.E.2d 582 (1988).

Payment of medical or hospital expenses constitutes no part of compensation to an employee or his dependents under the provisions of the act. Whitted v. Palmer-Bee Co., 228 N.C. 447, 46 S.E.2d 109 (1948). See Thompson v. Virginia & C.S.R.R., 216 N.C. 554, 6 S.E.2d 38 (1939); Morris v. Laughlin Chevrolet Co., 217 N.C. 428, 8 S.E.2d 484 (1940).

Compensation must be based upon the loss of wage earning power rather than the amount actually received. Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986).

Calculation Based on Wages at Time of Diagnosis. — Plaintiff who was diagnosed with silicosis was entitled to compensation calculated based on his average weekly wage at the time he was diagnosed, not at the time of his last exposure or at the time he was "removed from the industry". Moore v. Standard Mineral Co., 122 N.C. App. 375, 469 S.E.2d 594 (1996).

A finding of maximum medical improvement is not the equivalent of a finding that the employee is able to earn the same wage earned prior to injury; the maximum medical improvement finding is solely the prerequisite to determination of the amount of any permanent disability for purposes of § 97-31. Watson v. Winston-Salem Transit Auth., 92 N.C. App. 473, 374 S.E.2d 483 (1988).

Claimant Entitled to Benefits For Expenses Arising Out of Cesarean Section. — Workers' Compensation claimant was entitled to benefits for expenses arising out of cesarean section surgery in light of evidence that claimant's weakened back, which necessitated the surgery, was solely the result of an initial compensable injury; claimant's pregnancy was not an independent intervening cause attributable to claimant's own intentional conduct even though the pregnancy occurred subsequent to the compensable injury. English v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 98 N.C. App. 466, 391 S.E.2d 499 (1990).

A permanently and totally disabled employee is entitled to receive compensation under § 97-29. This is true even though no single injury of claimant resulted in total and permanent disability, so long as the combined effect of all of the injuries caused permanent and total disability. Fleming v. K-Mart Corp., 312 N.C. 538, 324 S.E.2d 214 (1985).

Partially Disabled Employee Held Entitled to Difference Between Wage Paid by Employer and Wage Received Thereafter. — Where the evidence tended to show that plaintiff was permanently partially disabled by reason of occupational disease and that after failing to obtain employment in the cotton textile industry in which he had been employed for 29 years, the plaintiff made an earnest and highly commendable search for other employment, and was able to obtain a permanent job with a restaurant at the minimum wage but was released from that employment only because business conditions resulted in the restaurant going out of business, the Commission was required to enter an award setting the plaintiff's compensation at two-thirds of the difference between his average wage of $196.91 a week while working for the defendant and the minimum wage of $134.00 a week which he received thereafter, an award of $41.94 per week, not to exceed 300 weeks. Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986).

Offsetting Sickness and Disability Plan Payments Against Compensation. — Since the wage payments under employee Sickness and Disability Plan belonged to claimant, using them to offset employer's obligations to pay her compensation for other weeks is not authorized by § 97-42 and would be confiscatory if it was. But though the wage payments were hers, offsetting them against compensation awarded her for the same weeks is authorized for two reasons: First, no compensation is due claimant for the weeks that her wages were paid because disability under the Workers' Compensation Act is based upon decreased earnings, and she had sustained no wage loss; and second, the claimant cannot collect workers' compensation for the weeks that her wages were paid because of the policy against employees receiving duplicating payments at the employers' expense. Evans v. AT & T Technologies, 103 N.C. App. 45, 404 S.E.2d 183, rev'd, 332 N.C. 78, 418 S.E.2d 503 (1992).

XX. CHILD, GRANDCHILD, ETC.

Effect of Subdivision (12) on § 97-40. — The doctrine of pari materia does not apply and the provisions of § 97-40 should not be construed with the provisions of subdivision (12) of this section. Stevenson v. City of Durham, 281 N.C. 300, 188 S.E.2d 281 (1972).

The imposition of the restrictions of dependency and age contained in subdivision (12) of this section upon § 97-40 would result in a narrow and technical interpretation of the act. Stevenson v. City of Durham, 281 N.C. 300, 188 S.E.2d 281 (1972).

The dependency which this statute recognizes as the basis of the right of the child to compensation grows out of the relationship, which in itself imposes upon the father the duty to support the child, and confers upon the child the right to support by its father. The status of the child, social or legal, is immaterial. Lippard v. Southeastern Express Co., 207 N.C. 507, 177 S.E. 801 (1935); Hewett v. Garrett, 274 N.C. 356, 163 S.E.2d 372 (1968).

Illegitimate Child. — Subdivision (12) of this section recognizes a distinction between actual and legal dependency. A legal dependence is sufficient, and the law fixes that type of responsibility on the father of an illegitimate child. Hewett v. Garrett, 274 N.C. 356, 163 S.E.2d 372 (1968).

The philosophy of the common law, which denied an illegitimate child any rights, legal or social, as against its father, and imposed no duty upon the father with respect to the child, is discarded by this statute. Hewett v. Garrett, 274 N.C. 356, 163 S.E.2d 372 (1968).

When an illegitimate child qualifies as a child, this status, for compensation purposes, continues until the child becomes 18 years of age or unless she marries before reaching that age. Hewett v. Garrett, 274 N.C. 356, 163 S.E.2d 372 (1968).

To qualify for survivor's benefits under the act, an illegitimate child must be acknowledged in sufficient fashion by the father. Tucker v. City of Clinton, 120 N.C. App. 776, 463 S.E.2d 806 (1995).

Posthumous Illegitimate Child. — Deceased supported a housekeeper who bore him a posthumous illegitimate child. The Supreme Court reversed the Commission's opinion that the child was not a dependent. Lippard v. Southeastern Express Co., 207 N.C. 507, 177 S.E. 801 (1935).

How Child Acknowledged. — The word "acknowledged," referring to illegitimate children under this section, is not a term of art requiring a formal declaration before an authorized official; in regard to paternity actions, the term "acknowledgment" generally has been held to mean the recognition of a parental relation, either by written agreement, verbal declarations or statements, by the life, acts, and conduct of the parties, or any other satisfactory evidence that the relation was recognized and admitted. Carpenter v. Hawley, 53 N.C. App. 715, 281 S.E.2d 783, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 304 N.C. 587, 289 S.E.2d 564 (1981).

The wholly dependent provision of subdivision (12) applies only in case of married children. It does not apply to acknowledged illegitimate children or other children who are unmarried and who are under 18. Hewett v. Garrett, 274 N.C. 356, 163 S.E.2d 372 (1968).

Married children must be "wholly" dependent. Winstead v. Derreberry, 73 N.C. App. 35, 326 S.E.2d 66 (1985).

Stepchildren. — Stepchildren must be substantially dependent upon the deceased employee. This result is derived from the wording of the various dependency tests employed by the act. Winstead v. Derreberry, 73 N.C. App. 35, 326 S.E.2d 66 (1985).

The substantial dependency standard is a question of fact to be determined under the facts of each case, the burden of proof being on the stepchild under the evidentiary standards normally employed in workers' compensation cases. The factors to be considered are the actual amount and consistency of the support derived by the stepchild from (1) the deceased stepparent, (2) the natural parent married to the stepparent, (3) the estranged natural parent, whether such support is voluntary or required by law, (4) the income of the stepchild, and (5) any other funds regularly received for the support of the stepchild. Winstead v. Derreberry, 73 N.C. App. 35, 326 S.E.2d 66 (1985).

Person over 18 Not Considered a Child.

— Subdivision (12) of this section defines a person over 18 at the time of his father's death as not a child. Stevenson v. City of Durham, 12 N.C. App. 632, 184 S.E.2d 411 (1971), rev'd on other grounds, 281 N.C. 300, 188 S.E.2d 281 (1972).

Legal Adoption Incomplete. — Where adoption proceedings had begun but were not finalized, the minor plaintiff was not a child legally adopted prior to the injury of the employee. Lennon v. Cumberland County, 119 N.C. App. 319, 458 S.E.2d 240 (1995).

XXI. WIDOW AND WIDOWER.

Presumption of Dependency. — By statute, a widow is conclusively presumed to be wholly dependent for support upon the deceased employee, and shall receive benefits under the Workers' Compensation Act. Rogers v. University Motor Inn, 103 N.C. App. 456, 405 S.E.2d 770 (1991).

To qualify as the "widow" under the act, the surviving wife must have been living with husband at time of death; if not, it must have been for justifiable cause or by reason of his desertion at such time. Jones v. Service Roofing & Sheet Metal Co., 63 N.C. App. 772, 306 S.E.2d 460 (1983).

"Justifiable Cause" for Living Separate and Apart. — A husband and wife are not living separate and apart for "justifiable cause" if they are living separate and apart as a result of a mutual agreement evidenced by a legally executed separation agreement. Bass v. Mooresville Mills, 11 N.C. App. 631, 182 S.E.2d 246 (1971); Sloop v. Williams Exxon Serv., 24 N.C. App. 129, 210 S.E.2d 111 (1974).

If a separation agreement is in full force and effect at the time of the employee's death, the employee and his wife are, as a matter of law, living separate and apart by mutual consent, which is not "justifiable cause" within the meaning of this section. Bass v. Mooresville Mills, 11 N.C. App. 631, 182 S.E.2d 246 (1971).

While "justifiable cause" is usually equated to some form of marital misconduct, it would also seem to be applicable where the separation is not intended by the parties to be permanent, the temporary living apart being merely for reasons of convenience. Bass v. Mooresville Mills, 11 N.C. App. 631, 182 S.E.2d 246 (1971).

There is authority in other jurisdictions to the effect that "justifiable cause," as that term is employed in statutory provisions similar to subdivision (14) of this section, may not be interpreted as applicable to separations by mutual consent. Bass v. Mooresville Mills, 11 N.C. App. 631, 182 S.E.2d 246 (1971); Sloop v. Williams Exxon Serv., 24 N.C. App. 129, 210 S.E.2d 111 (1974).

There is no specific formula for the definition of "justifiable cause" under the statute. A court must consider the complexity and history of the particular relationship in order to determine whether the marital partners were separated for justifiable cause in the months before the death of a recipient of benefits. Rogers v. University Motor Inn, 103 N.C. App. 456, 405 S.E.2d 770 (1991).

Adultery. — A wife's adulterous affair did not bar her from qualifying as her husband's widow under subdivision (14) of this section and § 97-39. Rogers v. University Motor Inn, 103 N.C. App. 456, 405 S.E.2d 770 (1991).

It is not within the authority of courts to create an exception to subdivision (14) of this section and § 97-39 based upon adultery by a spouse. To find that the legislature intended such an exception, it must be apparent in the statute. Rogers v. University Motor Inn, 103 N.C. App. 456, 405 S.E.2d 770 (1991).

Surrender of Right to Support. — There is no reason why a separated wife who has surrendered all right to look to the husband for support while he is living should, upon his death, receive benefits that are intended to replace in part the support which the husband was providing, or should have been providing. Bass v. Mooresville Mills, 11 N.C. App. 631, 182 S.E.2d 246 (1971); Sloop v. Williams Exxon Serv., 24 N.C. App. 129, 210 S.E.2d 111 (1974).

Right to Compensation if Living Apart for Mutual Convenience. — If the living apart of the husband and wife is merely for the mutual convenience or the joint advantage of the parties and the obligation of the husband to support her is recognized, the right of the wife to compensation exists as though they were living together. Bass v. Mooresville Mills, 11 N.C. App. 631, 182 S.E.2d 246 (1971).

A second or subsequent marriage is presumed legal until the contrary is proven, and the burden of the issue is upon a plaintiff who attempts to establish a property right which is dependent upon the invalidity of such a marriage. The plaintiff cannot recover because of the failure of defendant to carry the burden. Kearney v. Thomas, 225 N.C. 156, 33 S.E.2d 871 (1945); Ivory v. Greer Bros., 45 N.C. App. 455, 263 S.E.2d 290 (1980).

Whether Presumption of Subsequent Marriage's Validity Is Overcome Is Question of Fact. — The question of whether the first wife of a deceased employee had overcome the presumption of the validity of a subsequent marriage was a question of fact for the commission. Ivory v. Greer Bros., 45 N.C. App. 455, 263 S.E.2d 290 (1980).

Divorce and Remarriage in Another State. — On the conflict of laws question where there has been a divorce and remarriage in another state, and a subsequent controversy develops as to which is the "widow," see Rice v. Rice, 336 U.S. 674, 69 S. Ct. 751, 93 L. Ed. 957 (1949). And see 28 N.C.L. Rev. 265 (1950).

§ 97-3. Presumption that all employers and employees have come under provisions of Article.

From and after January 1, 1975, every employer and employee, as hereinbefore defined and except as herein stated, shall be presumed to have accepted the provisions of this Article respectively to pay and accept compensation for personal injury or death by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment and shall be bound thereby. (1929, c. 120, s. 4; 1973, c. 1291, s. 1.)

CASE NOTES

Presumption of Acceptance of Act. — Under the Workers' Compensation Act, every employer and employee, except as therein stated, is presumed to have accepted the provisions of the act and to pay and accept compensation for personal injury or death as therein set forth. Pilley v. Greenville Cotton Mills, 201 N.C. 426, 160 S.E. 479 (1931); Miller v. Roberts, 212 N.C. 126, 193 S.E. 286 (1937). See also Lee v. American Enka Corp., 212 N.C. 455, 193 S.E. 809 (1937).

Presumption Prevents Court from Exercising Jurisdiction. — A claim in which the plaintiff/employee alleges only that he sustained injuries due to defendant/employer's negligence while he was performing duties within the course and scope of his employment is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission and cannot be heard by the court without further evidence that the employer refuses to accept the provisions of this Act. Reece v. Forga, 138 N.C. App. 703, 531 S.E.2d 881 (2000).

An allegation that the employee had not accepted the provisions of the act is immaterial, for the reason that this section provides in substance that every employer and employee coming within the purview of the act is presumed to have accepted the provisions thereof. Hanks v. Southern Pub. Util. Co., 204 N.C. 155, 167 S.E. 560 (1933).

But Allegation That Employers Were Not Operating Under Act Was Not Demurrable. — The plaintiff instituted a common-law action, alleging that the defendants were not operating under the Workers' Compensation Act. It was held that a demurrer to plaintiff's complaint should have been overruled because the above allegation laid the foundation for proof to rebut the presumption of acceptance of the act. Calahan v. Roberts, 208 N.C. 768, 182 S.E. 657 (1935).

And it was not necessary to allege facts showing defendant's nonacceptance of the act. Cooke v. Gillis, 218 N.C. 726, 12 S.E.2d 250 (1940).

When Presumption Not Operative. — Where the evidence does not show that the employer has regularly in service the requisite number of employees in the same business within this State, the presumption under this section is not operative. Dependents of Thompson v. Johnson Funeral Home, 205 N.C. 801, 172 S.E. 500 (1924).

Rebuttal of Presumption. — Notwithstanding the presumption contained in this section, there are provisions in the act whereby employers, as well as employees, may except themselves from the operation thereof, and the presumption of acceptance may be rebutted by proof of nonacceptance. Calahan v. Roberts, 208 N.C. 768, 182 S.E. 657 (1935).

Action Against Third Party. — In the absence of evidence that the employee or the employer had given notice of nonacceptance of the act, it must be presumed that both employee and employer are bound by the provisions of the act. However, where an employee was injured by the negligence of a third-party tort-feasor and filed no claim for compensation against the employer but instead instituted a common-law action against the third party, it was held that since the employee filed no claim against his employer under the act, he waived his rights thereunder and could proceed directly against the third party, and the provisions of the act provided no defense against such suit to the third party. Ward v. Bowles, 228 N.C. 273, 45 S.E.2d 354 (1947).

An infant employee is bound by the terms of the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act regardless of his age. Lineberry v. Mebane, 219 N.C. 257, 13 S.E.2d 429 (1941).

In general, doctrines of waiver and estoppel do not apply in workers' compensation cases and they may not be invoked to defeat rights granted or to avoid burdens imposed thereunder. Ashe v. Barnes, 255 N.C. 310, 121 S.E.2d 549 (1961).

Ordinarily, the parties may not by agreement or conduct extend the provisions of this Chapter, but continued and definite recognition of the relationship of employer and employee, based on knowledge of the work performed, and acceptance of the benefits of that status, may work an estoppel after loss. Pearson v. Newt Pearson, Inc., 222 N.C. 69, 21 S.E.2d 879 (1942).

Applied in McNeely v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 206 N.C. 568, 174 S.E. 509 (1934); Arp v. Wood & Co., 207 N.C. 41, 175 S.E. 719 (1934); *Lee v. ## § 97-5. Presumption as to contract of service.

Every contract of service between any employer and employee covered by this Article, written or implied, now in operation or made or implied prior to July 1, 1929, shall, after that date, be presumed to continue, subject to the provisions of this Article; and every such contract made subsequent to that date shall be presumed to have been made subject to the provisions of this Article. (1929, c. 120, s. 6; 1973, c. 1291, s. 3.)

§ 97-6. No special contract can relieve an employer of obligations.

No contract or agreement, written or implied, no rule, regulation, or other device shall in any manner operate to relieve an employer in whole or in part, of any obligation created by this Article, except as herein otherwise expressly provided. (1929, c. 120, s. 7.)

CASE NOTES

An employer is not permitted to escape his liability or obligations under this Article through the use of a special contract or agreement if the elements required for coverage of the injured individual would otherwise exist. Hoffman v. Ryder Truck Lines, 306 N.C.

502, 293 S.E.2d 807 (1982).

This section invalidated attempt by an Arkansas trucking company/employer to relieve itself of responsibility under the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act and to limit employee's right to compensation in any state other than Arkansas. Perkins v. Arkansas Trucking Servs., Inc., 134 N.C. App. 490, 518 S.E.2d 36 (1999). But see Perkins v. Arkansas Trucking Servs., 351 N.C. 634, 528 S.E.2d 902 (2000).

Contract Between Two Employers That One Shall Carry Compensation Insurance.

— Where two employers make a contract that one of them should carry compensation insurance on employees, the other is not relieved of liability under the act. Roth v. McCord, 232 N.C. 678, 62 S.E.2d 64 (1950).

Liability to Employee Suffering from Preexisting Infirmary. — An employee who becomes disabled as the result of an accident while at work is not to be deprived of benefits because of any preexisting infirmity. And this liability of the employer cannot be waived or released or diminished by any agreement of the employee. NLRB v. Cranston Print Works Co., 258 F.2d 206 (4th Cir. 1958).

Delegation of Authority. — A corporation, having been given a franchise for the operation of motor trucks on the highway as a carrier of goods in interstate commerce, cannot evade its responsibility by delegating its authority to others. Watkins v. Murrow, 253 N.C. 652, 118 S.E.2d 5 (1961).

Leases. — An employer may not, by leasing the truck of one not authorized to transport goods in interstate commerce and causing its operation under its own franchise and license plates for interstate transportation, avoid legal responsibility therefor. Watkins v. Murrow, 253 N.C. 652, 118 S.E.2d 5 (1961).

Employer May Make Provisions for Injured Employee Beyond Workers' Compensation Benefits.

— There is nothing in the act that prohibits an employer from making special provisions for an injured employee beyond those benefits which the employee is entitled to receive under the provisions of the act. Ashe v. Barnes, 255 N.C. 310, 121 S.E.2d 549 (1961).

But He May Not Substitute Accident Insurance Policy for Such Benefits. — There is no provision in the law which authorizes an employer subject to the act to substitute an accident policy in lieu of compensation and other benefits required by the act. Ashe v. Barnes, 255 N.C. 310, 121 S.E.2d 549 (1961).

Employer May Not Provide Substitute Benefits. — This section proscribes a plan permitting a rejection of benefits. The language of the statute is unequivocal; employers may not provide benefits in lieu of paying workers' compensation. Estes v. North Carolina State

Univ., 89 N.C. App. 55, 365 S.E.2d 160 (1988).

Nor May Employee Elect Substitute Benefits. — The act contains no exception for cases where the employee, pursuant to a choice provided by the employer, elects to receive other benefits in lieu of workers' compensation benefits. Estes v. North Carolina State Univ., 89 N.C. App. 55, 365 S.E.2d 160 (1988).

State May Not Substitute Accumulated Sick and Vacation Leave for Workers' Compensation.

— This section and § 97-7 prohibit the State from paying accumulated sick and vacation leave as a substitute for workers' compensation. Estes v. North Carolina State Univ., 89 N.C. App. 55, 365 S.E.2d 160 (1988).

Employee Accepting Policy Does Not Exempt Himself from Compensation Act.

— Where an employee elected to accept the insurance policy provided for him by his employer, he did not elect thereby to exempt himself from the provisions of the act. Ashe v. Barnes, 255 N.C. 310, 121 S.E.2d 549 (1961).

Nor Is He Estopped to Claim Compensation by Accepting Benefits Under Policy.

— Where an employee accepted benefits under an insurance policy, he did not thereby estop himself from claiming under the provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act. Ashe v. Barnes, 255 N.C. 310, 121 S.E.2d 549 (1961).

Employer was not entitled to use accumulated sick and vacation leave to offset its obligations as determined by the Industrial Commission. Under this section and § 97-7, employers, including the State, are prohibited from providing benefits in lieu of paying workers' compensation. Estes v. North Carolina State Univ., 102 N.C. App. 52, 401 S.E.2d 384 (1991).

Employer May Not Skirt Jurisdiction.

— Plaintiff's principal place of employment was within North Carolina. Plaintiff was assigned to operate a tractor-trailer in an area consisting of twelve to thirteen southern states but no state, standing alone, had the same degree of significant contacts to plaintiff's employment as North Carolina. Furthermore, the "Policies, Procedures and Agreement" form signed by plaintiff upon being hired was an invalid attempt to limit plaintiff's rights to those enumerated under Arkansas workers' compensation law as well as a violation of this section. Perkins v. Arkansas Trucking Servs., 351 N.C. 634, 528 S.E.2d 902 (2000).

§ 97-7. State or subdivision and employees thereof.

Neither the State nor any municipal corporation within the State, nor any political subdivision thereof, nor any employee of the State or of any such corporation or subdivision, shall have the right to reject the provisions of this Article relative to payment and acceptance of compensation, and the provisions of G.S. 97-100(j) shall not apply to them: Provided, that all such corporations or subdivisions are hereby authorized to self-insure or purchase insurance to secure its liability under this Article and to include thereunder the liability of such subordinate governmental agencies as the county board of health, the school board, and other political and quasi-political subdivisions supported in whole or in part by the municipal corporation or political subdivision of the State. Each municipality is authorized to make appropriations for these purposes and to fund them by levy of property taxes pursuant to G.S. 153A-149 and G.S. 160A-209 and by the allocation of other revenues whose use is not otherwise restricted by law. ### CASE NOTES

State May Not Provide Substitute Benefits. — While the state, like any other employer, may provide additional benefits to its injured workers, it may not substitute those benefits for workers' compensation. Estes v. North Carolina State Univ., 89 N.C. App. 55, 365 S.E.2d 160 (1988).

Such as Accumulated Sick and Vacation Leave. — This section and § 97-6 prohibit the state from paying accumulated sick and vacation leave as a substitute for workers' compensation. Estes v. North Carolina State Univ., 89 N.C. App. 55, 365 S.E.2d 160 (1988).

Employer was not entitled to use accumulated sick and vacation leave to offset its obligations as determined by the Industrial Commission. ## § 97-9. Employer to secure payment of compensation.

Every employer subject to the compensation provisions of this Article shall secure the payment of compensation to his employees in the manner herein-after provided; and while such security remains in force, he or those conducting his business shall only be liable to any employee for personal injury or death by accident to the extent and in the manner herein specified. ### CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — For additional cases relating to rights and remedies against employer, see the case notes under § 97-10.1.

This section manifests the legislative intent that the liability of the employer is to be limited to the compensation payable by him on account of the injury or death of his employee. Hunsucker v. High Point Bending & Chair Co., 237 N.C. 559, 75 S.E.2d 768 (1953).

When certain specified conditions are complied with, this section limits the liability of an employer for personal injury or death by accident of his employees as provided in the Workers' Compensation Act. Gibbs v. Carolina Power & Light Co., 265 N.C. 459, 144 S.E.2d 393 (1965).

Act Provides Sole Remedy Against Employer and Those Conducting His Business. — Under the act, where an employee's injury or death is compensable, the sole remedy against the employer and "those conducting his business" is that provided by its terms. Weaver v. Bennett, 259 N.C. 16, 129 S.E.2d 610 (1963).

Act Provides Exclusive Remedy. — Defendant principal contractor was plaintiff's statutory employer and the workers' compensation benefits available to plaintiff through defendant's workers' compensation carrier constituted plaintiff's exclusive remedy against defendant for plaintiff's injuries. Rich v. R.L. Casey, Inc., 118 N.C. App. 156, 454 S.E.2d 666 (1995).

Civil Action Allowed for Employer's Misconduct Substantially Certain to Cause Injury or Death. — When an employer intentionally engages in misconduct knowing it is substantially certain to cause serious injury or death to employees and an employee is injured or killed by that misconduct, that employee, or the personal representative of the estate in case of death, may pursue a civil action against the employer as well as a claim for workers' compensation as such misconduct is tantamount to an intentional tort, and civil actions based thereon are not barred by the exclusivity provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act. Woodson v. Rowland, 329 N.C. 330, 407 S.E.2d 222 (1991).

Effect of Release Agreement on Employee's Remedies. — Once a plaintiff signs a release agreement to settle a workers' compensation claim that plaintiff is not automatically precluded from recovering pursuant to Woodson v. Rowland, 329 N.C. 33, 407 S.E.2d 222 (1991), and does not automatically admit the injury was solely accidental to the exclusion of a claim against an employer for tortious conduct. Owens v. W.K. Deal Printing, Inc., 113 N.C. App. 324, 438 S.E.2d 440 (1994), rev'd on other grounds, 339 N.C. 603, 453 S.E.2d 160 (1995).

Election Between Remedies Not Required. — A claimant may, but is not required to, elect between a civil remedy and a remedy under the Workers' Compensation Act but, in any event, is entitled to but one recovery. Woodson v. Rowland, 329 N.C. 330, 407 S.E.2d 222 (1991).

Woodson v. Rowland Applies Retroactively. — The Supreme Court's decision in Woodson v. Rowland, 329 N.C. 330, 407 S.E.2d 222 (1991), which is annotated above, applies retroactively, even though the Woodson court was silent on whether its decision was to operate retroactively. Dunleavy v. Yates Constr. Co., 106 N.C. App. 146, 416 S.E.2d 193, cert. denied, 332 N.C. 343, 421 S.E.2d 146 (1992).

Evidence Insufficient for Exception to Apply. — Where there was no evidence that defendant was aware, prior to employee's death, of a high probability that his equipment would fail, plaintiff failed to forecast evidence sufficient to create a genuine issue of material fact regarding defendant's liability under the Woodson v. Rowland, 329 N.C. 330, 407 S.E.2d 222 (1991), exception to the exclusivity provisions of the Worker's Compensation Act. Mickles v. Duke Power Co., 342 N.C. 103, 463 S.E.2d 206 (1995).

Employer was not liable for intentional misconduct, where the cart that caused the employee's injury had been used for many years previously without causing an injury, and there was no evidence that alleged defects in the cart violated state or federal workplace safety regulations or industry safety standards, or that the employer was aware of and refused to implement relevant safety measures. Wiggins v. Pelikan, Inc., 132 N.C. App. 752, 513 S.E.2d 829 (1999).

Woodson v. Rowland Elements Existed. — The allegations of misconduct, particularly the directing of the plaintiffs to work on a billboard after notice of its dangerous condition, were sufficient to support a reasonable inference that each of the four elements of a claim existed under Woodson v. Rowland, 329 N.C. 330, 407 S.E.2d 222 (1991). Pastva v. Naegele Outdoor Adv., 121 N.C. App. 656, 468 S.E.2d 491 (1996).

Action Under Woodson v. Rowland. — In order for a plaintiff to maintain an action based on Woodson v. Rowland, 329 N.C. 330, 407 S.E.2d 222 (1991), plaintiff must establish that employer knew its conduct was substantially certain to cause serious injury or death to the employee. Rose v. Isenhour Brick & Tile Co., 344 N.C. 153, 472 S.E.2d 774 (1996).

Where employee failed to forecast evidence demonstrating that employer knew its conduct in failing to provide safety training, safety manuals, and violating industry standards by having inexperienced workers in close proximity to cranes was substantially certain to result in serious injury or death, summary judgment was properly granted for employer. Tinch v. Video Indus. Servs., Inc., 129 N.C. App. 69, 497 S.E.2d 295 (1998).

Meaning of "Substantial Certainty" of the Consequences of Misconduct. — When deciding whether an employer acted with "substantial certainty" of the consequences of its conduct, factors to consider may include: whether the risk existed in the workplace for a long time without causing substantial injury; whether the risk was created by a defective instrumentality with a high probability of causing the harm; whether there was evidence the employer, prior to the accident, attempted to remedy the risk that caused the harm; whether the employer's conduct that created the risk violated state or federal work safety regulations; whether the employer created a risk by failing to adhere to an industry practice, even though there was no violation of a state or federal safety regulation; and whether the employer offered safety training in the context of the risk causing the harm. Wiggins v. Pelikan, Inc., 132 N.C. App. 752, 513 S.E.2d 829 (1999).

Although a violation of state and federal regulations — is an important factor in determining whether the employer's conduct can be found to have been substantially certain to cause injury or death, such violation, without more, is insufficient evidence of the employer's state of mind to make out a case of liability for intentional misconduct. Wiggins v. Pelikan, Inc., 132 N.C. App. 752, 513 S.E.2d 829 (1999).

Co-employee Civil Liability. — The Workers' Compensation Act does not bar an employee from suing a co-employee for injuries caused by willful, wanton, and reckless negligence. Dunleavy v. Yates Constr. Co., 106 N.C. App. 146, 416 S.E.2d 193, cert. denied, 332 N.C. 343, 421 S.E.2d 146 (1992).

Meaning of "Those Conducting His Business". — The phrase, "those conducting his business," which appears in this section, should be given a liberal construction. One must be deemed to be conducting his employer's business, within the meaning of this section, whenever he, himself, is acting within the course of his employment, as that term is used in the act. It is not necessary, in order to bring an employee within the protection of this statute, to show that his act was such as would have been imputed to the employer at common law. Altman v. Sanders, 267 N.C. 158, 148 S.E.2d 21 (1966).

The phrase "those conducting his business" includes fellow employees. Andrews v. Peters, 55 N.C. App. 124, 284 S.E.2d 748 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 395, 290 S.E.2d 364 (1982).

Superiors of an injured employee are within the immunity of this section when their orders, upon which alleged liability is predicated, are given in the conduct of the employer's business, and such supervisory employees are improperly made additional parties defendant upon the motion of the original defendant in an action by the personal representative of a deceased employee against the third-person tortfeasor. Essick v. City of Lexington, 232 N.C. 200, 60 S.E.2d 106 (1950).

As Are Fellow Employees. — By reading this section in conjunction with § 97-10.1, fellow employees are excluded from common-law liability. Andrews v. Peters, 55 N.C. App. 124, 284 S.E.2d 748 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 395, 290 S.E.2d 364 (1982).

A rationale supporting coemployee immunity is that immunity from common-law suit for ordinary negligence is part of that which an employee receives for forfeiting his own right to bring a negligence action. Furthermore, since negligence connotes unconscious inadvertence, allowing injured workers to sue coemployees would not reduce injuries caused by ordinary negligence. The same cannot be said in cases involving intentional torts. Pleasant v. Johnson, 312 N.C. 710, 325 S.E.2d 244 (1985).

Employee Is Deprived of Certain Common-Law Rights. — The Workers' Compensation Act provides compensation for an employee who sustains an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment without regard to whether his injury was caused by negligence attributable to the employer, but the act also deprives the employee of certain rights which he had at common law. Hicks v. Guilford County, 267 N.C. 364, 148 S.E.2d 240 (1966).

This section prevents an employee from suing a negligent fellow employee. Strickland v. King, 32 N.C. App. 222, 231 S.E.2d 193, rev'd on other grounds, 293 N.C. 731, 239 S.E.2d 243 (1977).

This section relieves an employee from liability for negligence resulting in injury to a fellow employee when the employees and employer are subject to the act and the injury arises out of and in the course of the employment. Stanley v. Brown, 261 N.C. 243, 134 S.E.2d 321 (1964).

Where the employer maintains insurance coverage, as specified in this section, an employee who is subject to the provisions of the act and who sustains an injury arising out of and in the course of his or her own employment cannot maintain an action at common law against another employee whose negligence, while conducting the employer's business, was the proximate cause of the injury. Altman v. Sanders, 267 N.C. 158, 148 S.E.2d 21 (1966).

An officer or agent of a corporation who is acting within the scope of his authority for and on behalf of the corporation, and whose acts are such as to render the corporation liable therefor, is among those conducting the business of the corporation, within the purview of this section, and is entitled to the immunity it gives. Warner v. Leder, 234 N.C. 727, 69 S.E.2d 6 (1951), overruled to extent it barred action for willful, wanton, and reckless negligence in Pleasant v. Johnson, 312 N.C. 710, 325 S.E.2d 244 (1985), overruled on other grounds,, commented on in 30 N.C.L. Rev. 474 (1952).

The protection of this section against suit by an injured employee extends to officers of the corporate employer whose acts are such as to render the corporate employer liable therefor. Lewis v. Barnhill, 267 N.C. 457, 148 S.E.2d 536 (1966).

Protection Does Not Extend to Independent Contractors. — The protection of this section against suit by an injured employee does not extend to independent contractors performing work pursuant to their contracts with the employer of the injured person. Lewis v. Barnhill, 267 N.C. 457, 148 S.E.2d 536 (1966).

Nor to Physician Treating Employees Sent to Him by Plant Manager. — Where a physician is carrying on an independent practice of medicine or surgery, he is not "conducting the business" of an industrial corporation merely because the manager of the plant sends to him, for examination and treatment, those who, from time to time, sustain injuries in the plant. Under these circumstances, this section does not deprive the employee of his common-law right to sue a physician or surgeon who, in the course of such examination or treatment, is negligent and thereby aggravates the original injury. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966).

Lending Employee May Relieve Employer of Liability for His Negligence. — An employer may lend or otherwise furnish his employee to another person so as to be relieved from liability for an injury caused by the negligence of the employee in performing work for the other person. It is equally true that an employer may, for a consideration or otherwise, direct his employee to go upon the premises of another and there perform work, to be designated by such other person, without severing the employment relation between the general employer and the employee. Lewis v. Barnhill, 267 N.C. 457, 148 S.E.2d 536 (1966).

Test Is Right to Control Manner of Doing Work. — The crucial test in determining whether a servant furnished by one person to another becomes the employee of the person to whom he is loaned is whether he passes under the latter's right of control with regard not only to the work to be done but also as to the manner of performing it. Lewis v. Barnhill, 267 N.C. 457, 148 S.E.2d 536 (1966).

Original Employment Is Presumed to Continue. — Where one is engaged in the business of renting out trucks, automobiles, cranes, or any other machine, and furnishes a driver or operator as part of the hiring, there is a factual presumption that the operator remains in the employ of his original master, and unless that presumption is overcome by evidence that the borrowing employer in fact assumes control of the employee's manner of performing the work, the servant remains in the service of his original employer. Lewis v. Barnhill, 267 N.C. 457, 148 S.E.2d 536 (1966).

Joint employment occurs when a single employee, under contracts with two employers, simultaneously performs the work of both under the control of both. In such a case, both employers are liable for workers' compensation. Leggette v. J.D. McCotter, Inc., 265 N.C. 617, 144 S.E.2d 849 (1965).

The operator of equipment may be held the employee of both the general employer and the special employer with regard to liability under the act when the general employer leases the equipment to a special employer who directs the work being performed and who has the power of terminating the employment at the work site but no power to terminate the general overall employment. Leggette v. J.D. McCotter, Inc., 265 N.C. 617, 144 S.E.2d 849 (1965), upholding the finding of the Industrial Commission that at the time of the injury the operator was in the dual employment of both the general and special employers, and that the award for compensation should be split between them and their insurance carriers.

One may be the servant or agent of another and acting within the course of his employment so as to make such employer or principal liable, under the doctrine of respondeat superior, for injuries proximately caused by his negligence, and at the same time be also in the course of his employment by another employer within the meaning of the act. Altman v. Sanders, 267 N.C. 158, 148 S.E.2d 21 (1966).

Intentional assault by an employer removes the employer from his common-law immunity; in such a case, the employee must choose between suing his employer at common law or accepting compensation. Andrews v. Peters, 55 N.C. App. 124, 284 S.E.2d 748 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 395, 290 S.E.2d 364 (1982).

Where the employer is guilty of a felonious or willful assault on an employee he cannot relegate him to the compensation act for recovery. Daniels v. Swofford, 55 N.C. App. 555, 286 S.E.2d 582 (1982).

A coemployee is liable for willful, wanton and reckless negligence. Pleasant v. Johnson, 312 N.C. 710, 325 S.E.2d 244 (1985).

The Workers' Compensation Act does not provide the exclusive remedy where an employee is injured in the course of his employment by the willful, wanton and reckless conduct of a coemployee. An employee may bring an action against the coemployee for injuries received as a result of such conduct. Pleasant v. Johnson, 312 N.C. 710, 325 S.E.2d 244 (1985).

And assaultive behavior removes a coemployee from his immunity to common-law actions. Andrews v. Peters, 55 N.C. App. 124, 284 S.E.2d 748 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 395, 290 S.E.2d 364 (1982).

While the Workers' Compensation Act precludes plaintiff from asserting a cause of action against corporate employer for alleged assault of a supervisory employee, the act does not preclude her from pursuing recovery from the assaultive employee. Daniels v. Swofford, 55 N.C. App. 555, 286 S.E.2d 582 (1982).

Where the evidence supported only a finding of ordinary negligence on the part of coemployees, plaintiff was barred from bringing an action against them and against employer under the theory of respondeat superior and was limited to recovery under the Workers' Compensation Act. Abernathy v. Consolidated Freightways Corp., 321 N.C. 236, 362 S.E.2d 559 (1987).

Third Person Aggravating Injury May Be Sued. — There is no basis in the act for making a distinction between the right to sue a third person who, by negligence, causes the original injury and the right to sue a third person who, by negligence, causes an aggravation of it. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966).

As to liability of insurance carrier as a third party, see Smith v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 449 F. Supp. 928 (M.D.N.C. 1978), aff'd, 598 F.2d 616 (4th Cir. 1979).

Fellow Employee Driving Automobile in Employer's Business. — Two employees, traveling in an automobile in the discharge of the employer's business, had a collision with another vehicle. In an action by the employee passenger against the owner and driver of such other vehicle, the employee driver was improperly joined as an additional defendant on motion of the original defendant for the purpose of contribution as a joint tortfeasor, since the employee driver was immune from liability under the provisions of this section. Bass v. Ingold, 232 N.C. 295, 60 S.E.2d 114 (1950).

Where plaintiff was injured in the course and scope of his employment while riding in an automobile driven by defendant, a fellow employee of plaintiff, who at the time was carrying plaintiff to his home in the conduct of his employer's business and pursuant to authority and direction given him by his employer, plaintiff could not hold defendant liable in an action at law for negligence, since defendant was a person conducting the business of his employer within the purview of the immunity provision of this section. Burgess v. Gibbs, 262 N.C. 462, 137 S.E.2d 806 (1964).

Vehicle of Fellow Employee Striking Plaintiff in Parking Lot. — Where the employer furnished a parking lot for his employees and plaintiff employee, after parking her car and while walking to the plant to report for work, was struck by a vehicle operated by another employee who was then backing into a parking space preparatory to reporting for work, the accident arose in the course of the employment, precluding an action at common law by either employee against the other. Altman v. Sanders, 267 N.C. 158, 148 S.E.2d 21 (1966).

Employee of Independent Contractor. — Evidence was sufficient to be submitted to the jury and sustain its determination that the contractor was an independent contractor and that the crane operator was his employee and not an employee of the builder. Lewis v. Barnhill, 267 N.C. 457, 148 S.E.2d 536 (1966).

Wife's Immunity Not Extended to Husband. — By reason of the fact that an employee was within the course of her employment at the time of the alleged injury to the plaintiff, this section threw about her a cloak of immunity from suit on account of such injury even if it was caused by her negligence in the operation of automobile. This section did not, however, extend this immunity to her husband, if it was established that she was driving the automobile as his agent and within the course of such employment. Altman v. Sanders, 267 N.C. 158, 148 S.E.2d 21 (1966).

Where a judgment in favor of a defendant, the employee or agent of her husband, did not rest upon the ground that she was not negligent, but rested upon the ground that this section made her personally immune from suit on account of her negligence because, at the time of her negligent act or omission, she was in the course of her employment by a company, it was error to dismiss the action as against her husband since this statutory immunity had no connection with her employment by her husband to drive his automobile. He was acting, through her, in the driving of the automobile, if she was operating it with his consent and pursuant to the family purpose for which he maintained the automobile. It was as if he were personally present driving the vehicle in the same manner. Obviously, if he had brought his wife to her work, and had driven as she was alleged to have done, the act would not have made him immune to suit by the plaintiff, for he was not conducting the company's business. He was equally subject to suit when, by the fiction of the law, he so drove by and through his wife as his agent. Though she, his agent or employee, was immune to suit by the plaintiff, he was not. Altman v. Sanders, 267 N.C. 158, 148 S.E.2d 21 (1966).

Evidence held insufficient to prove employer engaged in conduct that was willful, wanton, or reckless where employee was injured from manually cleaning a machine which lacked a safety guard. Regan v. Amerimark Bldg. Prods., Inc., 127 N.C. App. 225, 489 S.E.2d 421 (1997), aff'd, 347 N.C. App. 665, 496 S.E.2d 378 (1998).

Applied in McNair v. Ward, 240 N.C. 330, 82 S.E.2d 85 (1954); Nance v. Parks, 266 N.C. 206, 146 S.E.2d 24 (1966); Fender v. GE Co., 380 F.2d 150 (4th Cir. 1967).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Several of the cases annotated below were decided under former § 97-10.

For additional cases relating to rights and remedies against employer and coemployee, see the case notes under § 97-9.

This section is not arbitrary legislation unrelated to the valid objective of compensating injured employees or their dependents. Carpenter v. Hawley, 53 N.C. App. 715, 281 S.E.2d 783, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 304 N.C. 587, 289 S.E.2d 564 (1981).

As It Contemplates Mutual Concessions. — The Workers' Compensation Act contemplates mutual concessions by employee and employer; for that reason, its validity has been upheld, and its policy approved. Horney v. Meredith Swimming Pool Co., 267 N.C. 521, 148 S.E.2d 554 (1966).

Under the Workers' Compensation Act, the master, in exchange for limited liability, was willing to pay on some claims in the future where in the past there had been no liability at all. Horney v. Meredith Swimming Pool Co., 267 N.C. 521, 148 S.E.2d 554 (1966).

This section is designed to carry out the purpose of the Workers' Compensation Act, which is to provide limited benefits to an employee for an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, and for certain occupational diseases, regardless of negligence or other fault on the part of the employer, and on the other hand, to limit the liability of the employer so as to protect him against the possibility of a much larger judgment, such as was possible at common law when negligence by the employer was found. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966).

This section implements the purpose of the act, which is to provide certain limited benefits to an injured employee regardless of negligence on the part of the employer, and simultaneously to deprive the employee of certain rights he had at the common law. Brown v. Motor Inns of Carolina, Inc., 47 N.C. App. 115, 266 S.E.2d 848 (1980).

Section Not Applicable to Injury Occurring Prior to June 20, 1959. — This section and § 97-10.2 do not apply to an injury which occurred prior to June 20, 1959, the effective date thereof. Swaney v. George Newton Constr. Co., 5 N.C. App. 520, 169 S.E.2d 90 (1969).

Employee's Rights and Remedies Hereunder Are Exclusive. — Where the employer and the employee are subject to and have complied with the provisions of the act, the rights and remedies therein granted to the employee exclude all other rights and remedies in his favor against the employer. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966); Brown v. Motor Inns of Carolina, Inc., 47 N.C. App. 115, 266 S.E.2d 848 (1980).

Where the allegations and evidence in an action for damages at common law show that the injury in suit was caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of plaintiff's employment, defendant's motion of nonsuit will be granted, as plaintiff's remedy under this act is exclusive of all other remedies. McNeely v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 206 N.C. 568, 174 S.E. 509 (1934). See also Miller v. Roberts, 212 N.C. 126, 193 S.E. 286 (1937); Lee v. American Enka Corp., 212 N.C. 455, 193 S.E. 809 (1937); Tscheiller v. National Weaving Co., 214 N.C. 449, 199 S.E. 623 (1938); Champion v. Vance County Bd. of Health, 221 N.C. 96, 19 S.E.2d 239 (1942).

Where both the plaintiff and the defendant are subject to the provisions of the act they are bound thereby, and the rights and remedies therein granted are exclusive, and the contention that since the act does not provide for the award of punitive damages, plaintiff has not waived his right to trial by jury for the ascertainment thereof, is untenable. McCune v. Rhodes-Rhyne Mfg. Co., 217 N.C. 351, 8 S.E.2d 219 (1940).

Even where a complaint alleges willful and wanton negligence and prays for punitive damages, the remedies under the act are exclusive. McAllister v. Cone Mills Corp., 88 N.C. App. 577, 364 S.E.2d 186 (1988).

This section applied to bar alternative actions for relief by a participant in the federally funded Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) program against the county, as employer, and a fellow employee. Sutton v. Ward, 92 N.C. App. 215, 374 S.E.2d 277 (1988).

Defendant principal contractor was plaintiff's statutory employer and the workers' compensation benefits available to plaintiff through defendant's workers' compensation carrier constituted plaintiff's exclusive remedy against defendant for plaintiff's injuries. Rich v. R.L. Casey, Inc., 118 N.C. App. 156, 454 S.E.2d 666 (1995).

Where the plaintiff was permanently injured while working on a silage harvesting machine operated by the Department of Correction, and he filed a claim with the Industrial Commission under the Tort Claims Act, his claim was properly dismissed on the grounds that workers' compensation was plaintiff's exclusive remedy. Richardson v. State Dep't of Cor., 118 N.C. App. 704, 457 S.E.2d 325 (1995), cert. granted, — N.C. —, 461 S.E.2d 772 (1995), aff'd, 345 N.C. 128, 478 S.E.2d 501 (1996).

Where defendant failed to meet its summary judgment burden of showing that decedent was a joint employee of both defendant and the wrecking company, defendant failed to establish that plaintiff's claim was barred by the affirmative defense of the exclusivity provisions of the Act. Anderson v. Demolition Dynamics, Inc., 136 N.C. App. 603, 525 S.E.2d 471 (2000).

An employee cannot elect to pursue an alternate avenue of recovery, but is required to proceed under the act with respect to compensable injuries. McAllister v. Cone Mills Corp., 88 N.C. App. 577, 364 S.E.2d 186 (1988).

Where a prisoner who suffered accidental death arising out of and in the course of the employment to which he had been assigned, his dependents or next of kin were entitled to specific benefits under this Act; therefore, inmate's mother could not maintain a wrongful death action against defendants under the Tort Claims Act. Blackmon v. North Carolina Dep't of Cors., 118 N.C. App. 666, 457 S.E.2d 306 (1995), aff'd, 343 N.C. 259, 470 S.E.2d 8 (1996).

Civil Action Allowed for Employer's Misconduct Substantially Certain to Cause Injury or Death. — When an employer intentionally engages in misconduct knowing it is substantially certain to cause serious injury or death to employees and an employee is injured or killed by that misconduct, that employee, or the personal representative of the estate in case of death, may pursue a civil action against the employer as well as a claim for workers' compensation as such misconduct is tantamount to an intentional tort, and civil actions based thereon are not barred by the exclusivity provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act. Woodson v. Rowland, 329 N.C. 330, 407 S.E.2d 222 (1991).

"Substantial Certainty" Defined. — A "substantial certainty" is more than a possibility or substantial probability of serious injury but is less than actual certainty. Wiggins v. Pelikan, Inc., 132 N.C. App. 752, 513 S.E.2d 829 (1999).

Evidence of Employer's Intentional Misconduct. — When deciding whether an employer acted with "substantial certainty" of the consequences of its conduct, factors to consider may include: whether the risk existed in the workplace for a long time without causing substantial injury; whether the risk was created by a defective instrumentality with a high probability of causing the harm; whether there was evidence the employer, prior to the accident, attempted to remedy the risk that caused the harm; whether the employer's conduct that created the risk violated state or federal work safety regulations; whether the employer created a risk by failing to adhere to an industry practice, even though there was no violation of a state or federal safety regulation; and whether the employer offered safety training in the context of the risk causing the harm. Wiggins v. Pelikan, Inc., 132 N.C. App. 752, 513 S.E.2d 829 (1999).

Election Between Remedies Not Required. — A claimant may, but is not required to, elect between a civil remedy and a remedy under the Workers' Compensation Act but, in any event, is entitled to but one recovery. Woodson v. Rowland, 329 N.C. 330, 407 S.E.2d 222 (1991).

Action Under Woodson v. Rowland. — The plaintiff's claim, that the defendant delayed in responding to requests to raise her computer monitor, knowing that the delay would cause serious injury, and that as a result plaintiff's neck pain increased and her range of motion diminished, did not rise to the level of a claim under Woodson v. Rowland, 329 N.C. 330, 407 S.E.2d 222 (1991) or death. Keith v. U.S. Airways, Inc., 994 F. Supp. 692 (M.D.N.C. 1998).

Woodson v. Rowland* Applies Retroactively. — The Supreme Court's decision in Woodson v. Rowland, 329 N.C. 330, 407 S.E.2d 222 (1991), which is annotated above, applies retroactively, even though the Woodson court was silent on whether its decision was to operate retroactively. Dunleavy v. Yates Constr. Co., 106 N.C. App. 146, 416 S.E.2d 193, cert. denied, 332 N.C. 343, 421 S.E.2d 146 (1992).

Evidence Insufficient for Exception to Apply. — Where there was no evidence that defendant was aware, prior to employee's death, of a high probability that his equipment would fail, plaintiff failed to forecast evidence sufficient to create a genuine issue of material fact regarding defendant's liability under the Woodson v. Rowland, 329 N.C. 330, 407 S.E.2d 222 (1991), exception to the exclusivity provisions of the Worker's Compensation Act. Mickles v. Duke Power Co., 342 N.C. 103, 463 S.E.2d 206 (1995).

Employer was not liable for intentional misconduct, where the cart that caused the employee's injury had been used for many years previously without causing an injury, and there was no evidence that alleged defects in the cart violated state or federal workplace safety regulations or industry safety standards, or that the employer was aware of and refused to implement relevant safety measures. Wiggins v. Pelikan, Inc., 132 N.C. App. 752, 513 S.E.2d 829 (1999).

Although a violation of state and federal regulations is an important factor in determining whether the employer's conduct can be found to have been substantially certain to cause injury or death, such violation, without more, is insufficient evidence of the employer's state of mind to make out a case of liability for intentional misconduct. Wiggins v. Pelikan, Inc., 132 N.C. App. 752, 513 S.E.2d 829 (1999).

Co-employee Civil Liability. — The Workers' Compensation Act does not bar an employee from suing a co-employee for injuries caused by willful, wanton, or reckless negligence. Dunleavy v. Yates Constr. Co., 106 N.C. App. 146, 416 S.E.2d 193, cert. denied, 332 N.C. 343, 421 S.E.2d 146 (1992).

A volunteer fireman, who is injured by the negligence of a fellow volunteer fireman, at a time when both are acting in the course and scope of their duties, is barred from pursuing a negligence action against the fellow fireman. Hix v. Jenkins, 118 N.C. App. 103, 453 S.E.2d 551 (1995).

Prisoners. — Workers' compensation is the exclusive remedy for prisoners injured while working on prison jobs. Richardson v. North Carolina Dep't of Cor., 345 N.C. 128, 478 S.E.2d 501 (1996).

Assault by Fellow Employee. — An intentional assault in the work place by a fellow employee or third party is an accident that occurs in the course of employment, but does not arise out of the employment unless a job-related motivation or some other causal relation between the job and the assault exists. Wake County Hosp. Sys. v. Safety Nat'l Cas. Corp., 127 N.C. App. 33, 487 S.E.2d 789 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 410, 494 S.E.2d 600 (1997).

Where the evidence showed that a hospital social worker was abducted from the employee parking lot, she was assaulted and killed on an adjacent street, she was carrying work materials, and the assailant was a co-employee, her death was compensable under the Workers' Compensation Act. Wake County Hosp. Sys. v. Safety Nat'l Cas. Corp., 127 N.C. App. 33, 487 S.E.2d 789 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 410, 494 S.E.2d 600 (1997).

Where Employee's Claim for Compensation Is Denied. — Plaintiff and his employer were bound by the provisions of the act. Plaintiff's injury occurred while he was allowed by his employer to use certain machinery for his own personal ends. Compensation was denied since the accident did not arise out of and in the course of the employment. Thereafter plaintiff sued, alleging negligence on the part of the employer. But it was held that, conceding that the evidence established negligence of defendant employer, the act barred all other rights and remedies of employee except those provided in the act. Francis v. Carolina Wood Turning Co., 208 N.C. 517, 181 S.E. 628 (1935). See analysis and criticism of this case in 14 N.C.L. Rev. 199 (1936). In accord, see Tscheiller v. National Weaving Co., 214 N.C. 449, 199 S.E. 623 (1938).

In an action brought at common law, the complaint alleged that the Commission had held that the plaintiff's injury did not arise out of and in the course of his employment. The defendant demurred. It was held that the rights conferred under the act excluded the employee from bringing an action against his employer at common law. Pilley v. Greenville

The plaintiff was denied an award by the Industrial Commission on the ground that he was not injured "by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment." He did not appeal but brought a new action against his employer in the superior court alleging that his injuries were due to the employer's negligence. No recovery. Rights of an employee against his employer under this section are exclusive and no distinction is recognized by the act between injuries arising from accident and those due to the employer's negligence. Conrad v. Cook-Lewis Foundry Co., 198 N.C. 723, 153 S.E. 266 (1930).

This section applies only to proceedings against the employer, and so against his insurance carrier. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966).

And Is Inapplicable Where Employment Relation Does Not Exist. — The act relates to the rights and liabilities of employee and employer by reason of injuries and disabilities arising out of and in the course of the employment relation. Where that relation does not exist, the act has no application. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966); Brown v. Motor Inns of Carolina, Inc., 47 N.C. App. 115, 266 S.E.2d 848 (1980).

It Deprives Employee of Certain Common-Law Rights. — The act provides compensation for an employee who sustains an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment without regard to whether his injury was caused by negligence attributable to the employer, but the act also deprives the employee of certain rights which he had at the common law. Hicks v. Guilford County, 267 N.C. 364, 148 S.E.2d 240 (1966).

But Not Rights Disconnected from Employment. — The act does not take away any common-law right of the employee, even as against the employer, provided the right be one which is disconnected with the employment and pertains to the employee, not as an employee but as a member of the public. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966).

Thus Surrender of Right of Action Is Not Absolute. — Expressions in this section and in § 97-10.2 regarding the surrender of the right to maintain common-law or statutory actions against the employer are not absolute — not words of universal import, making no contact with time, place or circumstance. They must be construed within the framework of the act, and as qualified by its subject and purposes. Barber v. Minges, 223 N.C. 213, 25 S.E.2d 837 (1943).

And Does Not Extend to Claim Against Employer Disconnected with Employment. — An employee was killed by an explosion on a motorboat on a Sunday fishing trip organized and conducted by the employer's agent. The employee was not required to go, nor was he paid for the time spent, but his expenses were paid. His widow and administratrix brought an action for wrongful death against the employer alleging negligence of the agent. Defendant moved to dismiss on the ground that the Industrial Commission had sole jurisdiction of an employee's claims against his employer under the exclusive remedy provision of this section. It was held, two justices dissenting, that the jurisdiction of the Commission does not extend to claims arising against an employer when "disconnected with the employment." Barber v. Minges, 223 N.C. 213, 25 S.E.2d 837 (1943).

Action Against Employer for Intentional Conduct Is Not Barred. — The Workers' Compensation Act does not bar a common law action by an employee against his employer for the intentional conduct of the employer. Hogan v. Forsyth Country Club Co., 79 N.C. App. 483, 340 S.E.2d 116, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 334, 346 S.E.2d 140, 346 S.E.2d 141 (1986); Ridenhour v. Concord Screen Printers, Inc., 40 F. Supp. 2d 598 (M.D.N.C. 1999).

Actions for intentional infliction of mental and emotional distress are not barred by this section. Hogan v. Forsyth Country Club Co., 79 N.C. App. 483, 340 S.E.2d 116, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 334, 346 S.E.2d 140, 346 S.E.2d 141 (1986); Ridenhour v. Concord Screen Printers, Inc., 40 F. Supp. 2d 598 (M.D.N.C. 1999).

Intentional assault by an employer removes the employer from his common-law immunity and the employee must choose between suing his employer at common law or accepting compensation. Andrews v. Peters, 55 N.C. App. 124, 284 S.E.2d 748 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 395, 290 S.E.2d 364 (1982).

Where the employer is guilty of a felonious or willful assault on an employee he cannot relegate him to the compensation act for recovery. Daniels v. Swofford, 55 N.C. App. 555, 286 S.E.2d 582 (1982).

Fellow Employees Are Excluded from Common-Law Liability. — By reading § 97-9 in conjunction with this section, fellow employees are excluded from common-law liability. Andrews v. Peters, 55 N.C. App. 124, 284 S.E.2d 748 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 395, 290 S.E.2d 364 (1982).

A rationale supporting coemployee immunity is that immunity from common-law suit for ordinary negligence is part of that which an employee receives for forfeiting his own right to bring a negligence action. Furthermore, since negligence connotes unconscious inadvertence, allowing injured workers to sue coemployees would not reduce injuries caused by ordinary negligence. The same cannot be said in cases involving intentional torts. Pleasant v. Johnson, 312 N.C. 710, 325 S.E.2d 244 (1985).

But the Workers' Compensation Act does not insulate a coemployee from his willful, wanton and reckless negligence. An injured worker in such situations may receive benefits under the act and also maintain a common-law action against the coemployee. Pleasant v. Johnson, 312 N.C. 710, 325 S.E.2d 244 (1985).

Willful, Wanton and Reckless Negligence. — When an employee's injury is covered by the Workers' Compensation Act, the right to bring an independent negligence action against the employer is barred by the existence of the workers' compensation remedy. Since the Act's coverage extends to injuries resulting from an employer's willful, wanton and reckless negligence, there was no issue regarding an election of remedies in this action. Stack v. Mecklenburg County, 86 N.C. App. 550, 359 S.E.2d 16, cert. denied, 321 N.C. 121, 361 S.E.2d 597 (1987).

Where the evidence supported only a finding of ordinary negligence on the part of coemployees, plaintiff was barred from bringing an action against them and against employer under the theory of respondeat superior and was limited to recovery under the Workers' Compensation Act. Abernathy v. Consolidated Freightways Corp., 321 N.C. 236, 362 S.E.2d 559 (1987).

Assaultive behavior removes a coemployee from his immunity to common-law actions. Andrews v. Peters, 55 N.C. App. 124, 284 S.E.2d 748 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 395, 290 S.E.2d 364 (1982).

North Carolina's Workers' Compensation Act is not the exclusive remedy for an employee intentionally injured by a fellow employee. Andrews v. Peters, 55 N.C. App. 124, 284 S.E.2d 748 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 395, 290 S.E.2d 364 (1982).

Assaultive behavior by a coemployee limits the employee's immunity under this Chapter. Such misconduct is outside the realm of industrial accidents which workers' compensation laws were designed to exclusively cover. Daniels v. Swofford, 55 N.C. App. 555, 286 S.E.2d 582 (1982).

Mental and Emotional Distress. — Where plaintiff alleged that she suffered "mental and emotional distress" as a result of intentional tortious acts by defendant, her complaint alleged a common law action against defendant's employer for its intentional conduct, and plaintiff sought recovery for damages which were not compensable under the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act; therefore, plaintiff's claim is not barred by the provisions of the Act. Brown v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 93 N.C. App. 431, 378 S.E.2d 232 (1989).

Negligence and Emotional Distress from Sexual Harassment. — Plaintiff's claim that employer negligently retained managerial employee, and that she suffered severe mental and emotional distress resulting from managerial employee's sexual harassment, was not barred by the exclusive remedies provision of the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act. Harrison v. Edison Bros. Apparel Stores, Inc., 724 F. Supp. 1185 (M.D.N.C. 1989), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 924 F.2d 530 (4th Cir. 1991).

Sexual Harassment by Coemployee. — Although the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act eliminated negligence as a basis of recovery against an employer, the act covers only those injuries which arise out of and in the course of employment. Emotional injury allegedly suffered by plaintiff, resulting from coemployee's sexual harassment, was not a natural and probable consequence or incident of the employment so as to bar her claim for negligence against employer in retaining the coemployee in a supervisory position after having actual notice of his proclivity to engage in sexually offensive conduct. Hogan v. Forsyth Country Club Co., 79 N.C. App. 483, 340 S.E.2d 116, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 334, 346 S.E.2d 140, 346 S.E.2d 141 (1986).

Student Performing Respiratory Therapy at Hospital Gained Apprentice Status.

— While plaintiff may have been a student at technical institute, when he entered the hospital to perform respiratory therapy, his status changed to apprentice, making him subject to the Workers' Compensation Act. Ryles v. Durham Co. Hosp. Corp., 107 N.C. App. 455, 420 S.E.2d 487, cert. denied, 333 N.C. 169, 424 S.E.2d 406 (1992).

Section Not Applicable to Action Brought by Independent Contractor.

— When it appears in a common-law action to recover for injuries that the Commission has held that the plaintiff was an independent contractor and not an employee, an action will lie against the defendant for negligence, as this section has no application to actions instituted by independent contractors. Odum v. National Oil Co., 213 N.C. 478, 196 S.E. 823 (1938). See also Barnhardt v. City of Concord, 213 N.C. 364, 196 S.E. 310 (1938).

Nor to Liability of Physician Treating Employee. — This section has no relation to the liability of an attending physician or surgeon for negligence in the treatment of an injured employee. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966).

Or to Patron of Employer's Business Such as Shareholder or Member. — The immunity granted by this section does not extend to an independent contractor, or to the employees of such independent contractor, engaged in work upon the premises of the employer of the injured plaintiff. It would surely follow that immunity would not extend to a mere patron of the employer's business, even though such patron be also a stockholder, or otherwise a member, of the corporation which owns the business and employs the injured plaintiff. McWilliams v. Parham, 269 N.C. 162, 152 S.E.2d 117 (1967).

Allegations that defendant was enjoying the privileges of membership in playing on a golf course, even if such allegations were construed to mean that defendant was a member and stockholder of the club, did not show that defendant was an employer of a caddy of preceding players, and did not show that defendant was "conducting" the business of the club, and therefore such defendant was not entitled to allege the defense of immunity under the act in an action by the caddy to recover for injuries resulting when struck by a ball driven by defendant. McWilliams v. Parham, 269 N.C. 162, 152 S.E.2d 117 (1967).

Liability based on negligence was eliminated by the Workers' Compensation Act. Horney v. Meredith Swimming Pool Co., 267 N.C. 521, 148 S.E.2d 554 (1966).

Hence, Separate Tort Action Against Employer Is Barred. — When plaintiff has been compensated by the payment of workers' compensation benefits, she cannot maintain a separate action against her employer for additional compensation. Having already selected one avenue of recovery, plaintiff is precluded from maintaining a tort action. Freeman v. SCM Corp., 66 N.C. App. 341, 311 S.E.2d 75, modified and aff'd, 311 N.C. 294, 316 S.E.2d 81 (1984).

The monetary benefit afforded to plaintiff by § 97-13(c) entitled her to compensation and this section applied to bar plaintiff's wrongful death action under the Tort Claims Act. Blackmon v. N.C. Dept. Of Correction, 343 N.C. 259, 470 S.E.2d 8 (1996).

Joint employer status does not provide an injured plaintiff-employee with two recoveries; rather, it merely provides two potential sources of recovery. Thus, where a temporary employee was injured at work and was compensated by temporary agency's insurance carrier, this section prevented him from recovering in a civil action against the employer. Poe v. Atlas-Soundelier/American Trading & Prod. Corp., 132 N.C. App. 472, 512 S.E.2d 760 (1999).

Even for Gross Negligence. — Even though plaintiff may have been injured by defendant's gross negligence, rather than by accident, where she has been compensated by workers' compensation benefits, she is still precluded from maintaining an action against defendant. Freeman v. SCM Corp., 66 N.C. App. 341, 311 S.E.2d 75, modified and aff'd, 311 N.C. 294, 316 S.E.2d 81 (1984).

Action for Loss of Consortium Not Maintainable. — This section is clear and unambiguous and requires the result that plaintiff cannot maintain an action for loss of consortium resulting from injuries to plaintiff's spouse when those injuries are compensable under the Workers' Compensation Act. Sneed v. Carolina Power & Light Co., 61 N.C. App. 309, 300 S.E.2d 563 (1983).

Statutes Authorizing Recovery for Negligent Death Rendered Ineffective. — The philosophy of workers' compensation is that when employer and employee accept the terms of the act their relations become contractual, and other statutes authorizing recovery for negligent death become ineffective. Horney v. Meredith Swimming Pool Co., 267 N.C. 521, 148 S.E.2d 554 (1966).

Wrongful Death Action Precluded. — An award by the Industrial Commission to the widow of an employee excludes all other rights and remedies, and the administrator of the employee may not maintain an action against the employer for wrongful death, and the fact that the injury resulted from negligence in the violation by the employer of a criminal statute does not alter this result. Bright v. N.B. & C. Motor Lines, 212 N.C. 384, 193 S.E. 391 (1937).

Since the Workers' Compensation Act by its terms repeals all inconsistent legislation, the rights and remedies thereby given are substituted for those theretofore provided by the Death Act. The result is that where an employee contracts to work under the act, the damages to be paid by the employer in case of death are limited by that act, and an action cannot be maintained in disregard of that act. Horney v. Meredith Swimming Pool Co., 267 N.C. 521, 148 S.E.2d 554 (1966).

Under the Workers' Compensation Act a certain liability is imposed for death, and that liability is exclusive. No other responsibility is left which springs from the occurrence upon which liability rests — death — and the effect of the compensation as a satisfaction of all other claims is in no way limited or impaired by the circumstances or the identity of the persons to whom it is paid or because in a given case no one survives to take advantage of the statute. Horney v. Meredith Swimming Pool Co., 267 N.C. 521, 148 S.E.2d 554 (1966).

If an employee's action would be barred by the Workers' Compensation Act, then a wrongful death action brought by the employee's representative is also barred. McAllister v. Cone Mills Corp., 88 N.C. App. 577, 364 S.E.2d 186 (1988).

Where deceased was a prisoner who suffered "accidental death arising out of and in the course of the employment to which he had been assigned," his dependents or next of kin were statutorily "entitled" to specific benefits under the exclusive remedy provisions of this section, and could not maintain a wrongful death action against defendants under the Tort Claims Act. Blackmon v. North Carolina Dep't of Cors., 118 N.C. App. 666, 457 S.E.2d 306 (1995), aff'd, 343 N.C. 259, 470 S.E.2d 8 (1996).

Right Under Death by Wrongful Act

Statute of Another State — Not Affected. — The acceptance of compensation under this act cannot affect the right to pursue a remedy against a third person under the wrongful death statute of another state, unless there is something in the law of the other state which so provides. Betts v. Southern Ry., 71 F.2d 787 (4th Cir. 1934).

Same — When Assignment of Such Claim Is Governed by Law of This State. — The assignment of the right of recovery against a third person under the wrongful death statute of one state as the result of acceptance by the beneficiary of compensation from the employer under the Workers' Compensation Act of this State, in the absence of any provision to the contrary in the law of the state of the injury, is governed by the law of this State. Betts v. Southern Ry., 71 F.2d 787 (4th Cir. 1934).

A worker for a company providing civilian mess services to the United States Army may bring an action against the federal government under the Federal Tort Claims Act, since the exclusivity provision of this section does not apply, the United States being neither a joint employer nor statutory employer of worker. Pinckney v. United States, 671 F. Supp. 405 (E.D.N.C. 1987).

Allegations Sufficient to Withstand Motion to Dismiss. — Allegations of employee who suffered serious injuries when his arm and body were caught in paint machine, for which emergency switches were inoperable, were held sufficient to withstand a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim. Regan v. Amerimark Bldg. Prods., Inc., 118 N.C. App. 328, 454 S.E.2d 849 (1995).

Dismissal or Nonsuit Upheld. — Plaintiff contracted tuberculosis in working with chemicals in defendant's plant. In a common-law action it was alleged that the disease was caused by inherently dangerous working conditions. Both plaintiff and defendant had accepted the act. Judgment dismissing the action was held proper. Lee v. American Enka Corp., 212 N.C. 455, 193 S.E. 809 (1937). See also Jenkins v. American Enka Corp., 95 F.2d 755 (4th Cir. 1938), where plaintiff instituted an action at common law alleging that he had contracted a disease as a result of improper working conditions negligently permitted by defendant. Murphy v. American Enka Corp., 213 N.C. 218, 195 S.E. 536 (1938).

Where, in a suit by a student nurse to recover damages for injuries sustained while being transported by the hospital which employed her, the plaintiff judicially admitted that her employment was within the coverage of the Workers' Compensation Act except as to number of employees regularly employed and the uncontradicted evidence showed that more than five employees were regularly employed, a nonsuit was properly granted. Powers v.

Robeson County Mem. Hosp., 242 N.C. 290, 87 S.E.2d 510 (1955).

Summary Judgment Appropriate. — In an action by employee against employer seeking compensatory and punitive damages for accident that occurred at work, the trial court did not err in granting defendant's motion for summary judgment, because no genuine issue of material fact existed as to whether defendant engaged in intentional misconduct knowing this conduct was substantially certain to cause death or serious injury to plaintiff. Vaughan v. J.P. Taylor Co., 114 N.C. App. 651, 442 S.E.2d 538 (1994), cert. denied, 336 N.C. 615, 447 S.E.2d 413 (1994).

All of plaintiff's claims, except for his claim for intentional infliction of emotional distress, were subject to the exclusivity provision of this section, where the suit arose on account of a video tape prepared by defendants, purporting to demonstrate the functions of plaintiff's job, which caused plaintiff's doctor to change his opinion that plaintiff's condition was job-related. Groves v. Travelers Ins. Co., 139 N.C. App. 795, 535 S.E.2d 105 (2000).

Applied in Burgess v. Gibbs, 262 N.C. 462, 137 S.E.2d 806 (1964); Fender v. GE Co., 260 F. Supp. 75 (W.D.N.C. 1966); Fender v. GE Co., 380 F.2d 150 (4th Cir. 1967); *Wright v. Wilson Mem. ### § 97-10.2. Rights under Article not affected by liability of third party; rights and remedies against third parties.

(a) The right to compensation and other benefits under this Article for disability, disfigurement, or death shall not be affected by the fact that the injury or death was caused under circumstances creating a liability in some person other than the employer to pay damages therefor, such person herein-after being referred to as the "third party." The respective rights and interests of the employee-beneficiary under this Article, the employer, and the employer's insurance carrier, if any, in respect of the common-law cause of action against such third party and the damages recovered shall be as set forth in this section.

(b) The employee, or his personal representative if he be dead, shall have the exclusive right to proceed to enforce the liability of the third party by appropriate proceedings if such proceedings are instituted not later than 12 months after the date of injury or death, whichever is later. During said 12-month period, and at any time thereafter if summons is issued against the third party during said 12-month period, the employee or his personal representative shall have the right to settle with the third party and to give a valid and complete release of all claims to the third party by reason of such injury or death, subject to the provisions of (h) below.

(c) If settlement is not made and summons is not issued within said 12-month period, and if employer shall have filed with the Industrial Commission a written admission of liability for the benefits provided by this Chapter, then either the employee or the employer shall have the right to proceed to enforce the liability of the third party by appropriate proceedings; either shall have the right to settle with the third party and to give a valid and complete release of all claims to the third party by reason of such injury or death, subject to the provisions of (h) below. Provided that 60 days before the expiration of the period fixed by the applicable statute of limitations if neither the employee nor the employer shall have settled with or instituted proceedings against the third party, all such rights shall revert to the employee or his personal representative.

(d) The person in whom the right to bring such proceeding or make settlement is vested shall, during the continuation thereof, also have the exclusive right to make settlement with the third party and the release of the person having the right shall fully acquit and discharge the third party except as provided by (h) below. A proceeding so instituted by the person having the right shall be brought in the name of the employee or his personal representative and the employer or the insurance carrier shall not be a necessary or proper party thereto. If the employee or his personal representative shall refuse to cooperate with the employer by being the party plaintiff, then the action shall be brought in the name of the employer and the employee or his personal representative shall be made a party plaintiff or party defendant by order of court.

(e) The amount of compensation and other benefits paid or payable on account of such injury or death shall be admissible in evidence in any proceeding against the third party. In the event that said amount of compensation and other benefits is introduced in such a proceeding the court shall instruct the jury that said amount will be deducted by the court from any amount of damages awarded to the plaintiff. If the third party defending such proceeding, by answer duly served on the employer, sufficiently alleges that actionable negligence of the employer joined and concurred with the negligence of the third party in producing the injury or death, then an issue shall be submitted to the jury in such case as to whether actionable negligence of employer joined and concurred with the negligence of the third party in producing the injury or death. The employer shall have the right to appear, to be represented, to introduce evidence, to cross-examine adverse witnesses, and to argue to the jury as to this issue as fully as though he were a party although not named or joined as a party to the proceeding. Such issue shall be the last of the issues submitted to the jury. If the verdict shall be that actionable negligence of the employer did join and concur with that of the third party in producing the injury or death, then the court shall reduce the damages awarded by the jury against the third party by the amount which the employer would otherwise be entitled to receive therefrom by way of subrogation hereunder and the entire amount recovered, after such reduction, shall belong to the employee or his personal representative free of any claim by the employer and the third party shall have no further right by way of contribution or otherwise against the employer, except any right which may exist by reason of an express contract of indemnity between the employer and the third party, which was entered into prior to the injury to the employee. In the event that the court becomes aware that there is an express contract of indemnity between the employer and the third party the court may in the interest of justice exclude the employer from the trial of the claim against the third party and may meet the issue of the actionable negligence of the employer to the jury in a separate hearing.

(f)(1) If the employer has filed a written admission of liability for benefits under this Chapter with, or if an award final in nature in favor of the employee has been entered by the Industrial Commission, then any amount obtained by any person by settlement with, judgment against, or otherwise from the third party by reason of such injury or death shall be disbursed by order of the Industrial Commission for the following purposes and in the following order of priority:

- a. First to the payment of actual court costs taxed by judgment and/or reasonable expenses incurred by the employee in the litigation of the third-party claim.
- b. Second to the payment of the fee of the attorney representing the person making settlement or obtaining judgment, and except for the fee on the subrogation interest of the employer such fee shall not be subject to the provisions of G.S. 97-90 but shall not exceed one third of the amount obtained or recovered of the third party.
- c. Third to the reimbursement of the employer for all benefits by way of compensation or medical compensation expense paid or to be paid by the employer under award of the Industrial Commission.
- d. Fourth to the payment of any amount remaining to the employee or his personal representative.

(2) The attorney fee paid under (f)(1) shall be paid by the employee and the employer in direct proportion to the amount each shall receive under (f)(1)c and (f)(1)d hereof and shall be deducted from such payments when distribution is made.

(g) The insurance carrier affording coverage to the employer under this Chapter shall be subrogated to all rights and liabilities of the employer hereunder but this shall not be construed as conferring any other or further rights upon such insurance carrier than those herein conferred upon the employer, anything in the policy of insurance to the contrary notwithstanding.

(h) In any proceeding against or settlement with the third party, every party to the claim for compensation shall have a lien to the extent of his interest under (f) hereof upon any payment made by the third party by reason of such injury or death, whether paid in settlement, in satisfaction of judgment, as consideration for covenant not to sue, or otherwise and such lien may be enforced against any person receiving such funds. Neither the employee or his personal representative nor the employer shall make any settlement with or accept any payment from the third party without the written consent of the other and no release to or agreement with the third party shall be valid or enforceable for any purpose unless both employer and employee or his personal representative join therein; provided, that this sentence shall not apply:

(1) If the employer is made whole for all benefits paid or to be paid by him under this Chapter less attorney's fees as provided by (f)(1) and (2) hereof and the release to or agreement with the third party is executed by the employee; or

(2) If either party follows the provisions of subsection (j) of this section.

(i) Institution of proceedings against or settlement with the third party, or acceptance of benefits under this Chapter, shall not in any way or manner affect any other remedy which any party to the claim for compensation may have except as otherwise specifically provided in this Chapter, and the exercise of one remedy shall not in any way or manner be held to constitute an election of remedies so as to bar the other.

(j) Notwithstanding any other subsection in this section, in the event that a judgment is obtained by the employee in an action against a third party, or in the event that a settlement has been agreed upon by the employee and the third party, either party may apply to the resident superior court judge of the county in which the cause of action arose, where the injured employee resides or the presiding judge before whom the cause of action is pending, to determine the subrogation amount. After notice to the employer and the insurance carrier, after an opportunity to be heard by all interested parties, and with or without the consent of the employer, the judge shall determine, in his discretion, the amount, if any, of the employer's lien, whether based on accrued or prospective workers' compensation benefits, and the amount of cost of the third-party litigation to be shared between the employee and employer. The judge shall consider the anticipated amount of prospective compensation the employer or workers' compensation carrier is likely to pay to the employee in the future, the net recovery to plaintiff, the likelihood of the plaintiff prevailing at trial or on appeal, the need for finality in the litigation, and any other factors the court deems just and reasonable, in determining the appropriate amount of the employer's lien. If the matter is pending in the federal district court such determination may be made by a federal district court judge of that division. ## I. IN GENERAL.

Legislative History. — For case reviewing the legislative history of this section, see Hogan v. Johnson Motor Lines, 38 N.C. App. 288, 248 S.E.2d 61 (1978), cert. denied, 296 N.C. 411, 251 S.E.2d 469 (1979).

Legislative Intent. — Subsection (j) allows plaintiff double recovery at expense of employer or carrier, in discretion of superior court judge. Since language is clear and unambiguous, the legislature intended this possible result. Allen v. Rupard, 100 N.C. App. 490, 397 S.E.2d 330 (1990), appeal withdrawn, 328 N.C. 328, 404 S.E.2d 864 (1992), citing Pollard v. Smith, 90 N.C. App. 585, 369 S.E.2d 84 (1988), rev'd on other grounds, 324 N.C. 424, 378 S.E.2d 771 (1989).

Absent extenuating circumstances, the Worker's Compensation Act in general and this section specifically were never intended to provide the employee with a windfall of a recovery from both the employer and the third-party tortfeasor. Radzisz v. Harley Davidson of Metrolina, Inc., 346 N.C. 84, 484 S.E.2d 566 (1997).

Subsection (j) Held Constitutional. — Subsection (j) of this section does not violate "Law of the Land" clause of N.C. Const., Art. I, § 19, and is not unconstitutionally vague. Allen v. Rupard, 100 N.C. App. 490, 397 S.E.2d 330 (1990), appeal withdrawn, 328 N.C. 328, 404 S.E.2d 864 (1992).

Discretion given trial court by subsection (j) of this section does not violate United States or North Carolina Constitution. Allen v. Rupard, 100 N.C. App. 490, 397 S.E.2d 330 (1990), appeal withdrawn, 328 N.C. 328, 404 S.E.2d 864 (1992).

This section is not unconstitutionally vague or violative of due process. In re Biddix, 138 N.C. App. 500, 530 S.E.2d 70 (2000), cert. denied, 352 N.C. 674, 545 S.E.2d 418 (2000).

Purpose of Section. — Manifestly, the statute was designed primarily to secure prompt and reasonable compensation for an employee, and at the same time to permit an employer or his insurance carrier, who has made a settlement with the employee, to recover the amount so paid from a third party causing the injury to such employee. The statute was not designed as a city of refuge for a negligent third party. Brown v. Southern Ry., 204 N.C. 668, 169 S.E. 419 (1933).

Section Does Not Apply to Injuries Occurring Prior to June 20, 1959. — This section and § 97-10.1 do not apply to an injury which occurred prior to June 20, 1959, the effective date of those statutes. Swaney v. George Newton Constr. Co., 5 N.C. App. 520, 169 S.E.2d 90 (1969).

Choice of Law. — Pursuant to this section it is sound public policy of North Carolina to provide for a right of action on behalf of an injured employee against a third party tortfeasor (even a fellow subcontractor) and even though the injured employee applied for and received workers' compensation benefits. Virginia law which violated this policy was not applied even though injury occurred in Virginia. Braxton v. Anco Elec., Inc., 100 N.C. App. 635, 397 S.E.2d 640 (1990), aff'd, 330 N.C. 124, 409 S.E.2d 914 (1991).

Where plaintiff sought and received workers' compensation benefits pursuant to the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act for an injury received in Virginia and caused by a third-party subcontractor, and, inter alia, North Carolina was the place of plaintiff's residence, the location of defendant's business, and the place of the initial hiring, North Carolina had significant interests in applying its own law based on the employment relationship and its connection with North Carolina. Braxton v. Anco Elec., Inc., 100 N.C. App. 635, 397 S.E.2d 640 (1990), aff'd, 330 N.C. 124, 409 S.E.2d 914 (1991).

Where all the parties were North Carolina citizens; the plaintiff's contract of employment and the contracts giving rise to the workers' compensation coverage were signed in North Carolina; and the plaintiff was receiving benefits under our workers' compensation statute, North Carolina's interests in implementing the protections afforded by its statute were paramount. An employee's temporary presence in Virginia so as to carry out his employment contract did not strip him of the rights he otherwise enjoyed under the North Carolina workers' compensation statute with regard to the breadth of North Carolina's exclusive remedy bar on common law actions in tort. Braxton v. Anco Elec., Inc., 330 N.C. 124, 409 S.E.2d 914 (1991).

sation benefits. In contrast, Virginia law prohibits a similar right of action. Braxton v. Anco Elec., Inc., 100 N.C. App. 635, 397 S.E.2d 640 (1990), aff'd, 330 N.C. 124, 409 S.E.2d 914 (1991).

This section applies only to persons who are strangers to the employment and negligently cause an injury. Andrews v. Peters, 55 N.C. App. 124, 284 S.E.2d 748 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 395, 290 S.E.2d 364 (1982).

And Is Inapplicable to Negligent Employee. — This section, which provides for actions against "some person other than the employer," has been held inapplicable to the negligent employee. Andrews v. Peters, 55 N.C. App. 124, 284 S.E.2d 748 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 395, 290 S.E.2d 364 (1982).

The enactment of subsection (e) of this section evidences a strong public policy in North Carolina of prohibiting a negligent employer from recouping any workers' compensation benefits paid to an injured employee. Geiger v. Guilford College Community Volunteer Firemen's Ass'n, 668 F. Supp. 492 (M.D.N.C. 1987).

Subsection (e) represents a codification of the holding in *Brown v. Southern Ry., 204 N.C. 668, 169 S.E. 419 (1933). Geiger v. Guilford College Community Volunteer Firemen's Ass'n, 668 F. Supp. 492 (M.D.N.C. 1987).

Subsection (e) delineates the rights between parties who are jointly liable for a tort: the employer under workers' compensation law and the third party under traditional tort law. Geiger v. Guilford College Community Volunteer Firemen's Ass'n, 668 F. Supp. 492 (M.D.N.C. 1987).

The provisions of subsection (e) govern in all actions by a plaintiff employee against a third party as a matter of North Carolina law, even where plaintiff has recovered workers' compensation under the workers' compensation laws of another state. Geiger v. Guilford College Community Volunteer Firemen's Ass'n, 668 F. Supp. 492 (M.D.N.C. 1987).

The doctrine of governmental immunity is inapplicable where a defendant alleges a municipality's negligence under subsection (e). Jackson v. Howell's Motor Freight, Inc., 126 N.C. App. 476, 485 S.E.2d 895 (1997), review denied, 347 N.C. 267, 493 S.E.2d 456 (1997).

Employee of Subcontractor May Maintain Action Against Main Contractor. — An employee of a subcontractor is not precluded by the Workers' Compensation Act from maintaining an action at common law against the main contractor for injuries resulting from alleged negligence on the part of the main contractor, since the action is not against plaintiff's employer but against a third person. Cathey v. Southeastern Constr. Co., 218 N.C. 525, 11 S.E.2d 571 (1940); Tipton v. Barge, 243 F.2d 531 (4th Cir. 1957). See also Sayles v. Loftis, 217

N.C. 674, 9 S.E.2d 393 (1940), which held a principal contractor liable at common law as a third person for negligent injuries to employees of a subcontractor. And see § 97-19, which enlarges the compensation responsibility of a principal contractor to the employees of subcontractors.

No Conflict Between Subsection (f)(1)c and Former § 28-173. — There is no conflict in the language in § 28-173 (see now § 28A-18-2), which prohibits use of the wrongful death recovery to pay a debt of the decedent, and the language in subsection (f)(1)c of this section, which directs that a portion of the recovery be applied to the reimbursement of the employer for benefits paid under award of the Industrial Commission. Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 3 N.C. App. 139, 164 S.E.2d 535 (1968), aff'd, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

The Workers' Compensation Act does not create two causes of action, one for the employee's estate and the other for the employer and insurance carrier. The right to bring action for damages for wrongful death is conferred by former § 28-173 (see now § 28A-18-2). The act merely governs the respective rights of the employee's estate, the employer and the insurance carrier to maintain an action for damages against third parties. Groce v. Rapidair, Inc., 305 F. Supp. 1238 (W.D.N.C. 1969).

Verdict to Be for Full Amount of Damages. — This section clearly contemplates that the action against the third party is to be tried on its merits as an action in tort, and that any verdict of the jury adverse to the third party is to declare the full amount of damages suffered by the employee on account of his injury, notwithstanding any award of payment of compensation to him under the provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act. Lovette v. Lloyd, 236 N.C. 663, 73 S.E.2d 886 (1953).

Trial court did not err in limiting interest allowed plaintiff to the interest on the amount of the jury award as reduced pursuant to this section. Absher v. Vannoy-Lankford Plumbing Co., 78 N.C. App. 620, 337 S.E.2d 877 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 730, 345 S.E.2d 385 (1986).

Amount of Judgment. — Giving the statute its plain meaning requires the court to read the term "judgment" to mean just that, and to reject the argument that the court should look only at the insurance "proceeds" that a party is to receive, as opposed to the entire judgment, in determining the applicability of this section. Hieb v. Lowery, 121 N.C. App. 33, 464 S.E.2d 308 (1995), aff'd, 344 N.C. 403, 474 S.E.2d 323 (1996).

Appeal from Reduced Award. — Plaintiff was not a "party aggrieved" by judgment entered in superior court reducing her ultimate recovery to the difference between jury award and workers' compensation award pursuant to this section, so as to permit her appeal from such recovery. Absher v. Vannoy-Lankford Plumbing Co., 78 N.C. App. 620, 337 S.E.2d 877 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 730, 345 S.E.2d 385 (1986).

Evidence of out-of-state worker's compensation payments is admissible in actions against third parties. Frugard v. Pritchard, 338 N.C. 508, 450 S.E.2d 744 (1994).

Interaction with Tort Claims Act. — Where the plaintiff was permanently injured while working on a silage harvesting machine operated by the Department of Correction, and he filed a claim with the Industrial Commission under the Tort Claims Act, his claim was properly dismissed on the grounds that workers' compensation was plaintiff's exclusive remedy. Richardson v. State Dep't of Cor., 118 N.C. App. 704, 457 S.E.2d 325 (1995), cert. granted, — N.C. —, 461 S.E.2d 772 (1995), aff'd, 345 N.C. 128, 478 S.E.2d 501 (1996).

Employers May Not Recover Benefits Paid. — The employer was not entitled to a lien on the settlement proceeds in order to recoup the payments which it made to the employee although it was free from culpability with respect to the accident in which employee was injured. In re Biddix, 138 N.C. App. 500, 530 S.E.2d 70 (2000), cert. denied, 352 N.C. 674, 545 S.E.2d 418 (2000).

Attorney's malpractice in failing to timely file a third-party tort action was not an injury under § 97-2(6) for purposes of an employer's right of subrogation and the employer, therefore, had no subrogation rights under § 97-10.2(h) with respect to the proceeds of the employee's legal malpractice claim. Grant Constr. Co. v. McRae, — N.C. App. —, 553 S.E.2d 89, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 947 (2001).

The superior court's determination that the lien be reduced in its entirety was factually supported and a proper, constitutional exercise of its discretion. The court made findings with respect to the extent of the employee's injuries—her ongoing pain and suffering, her medical expenses as paid by the employer, her compensation for temporary disability, as well as the amount of the settlement and the fact that the third party tortfeasor had no additional assets from which she could recover—and concluded that the amount of the settlement inadequately compensated plaintiff for her injuries. In re Biddix, 138 N.C. App. 500, 530 S.E.2d 70 (2000), cert. denied, 352 N.C. 674, 545 S.E.2d 418 (2000).

Trial court had jurisdiction to determine amount of a workers' compensation lien and to distribute the third party recovery pursuant to this section, where the insurer was a "third party" in that plaintiff's injury was "caused under circumstances creating a liability in some person . . . to pay damages therefor," and where a settlement, albeit contested by the employer, existed between plaintiff and the third party, the insurer. Levasseur v. Lowery, 139 N.C. App. 235, 533 S.E.2d 511 (2000), cert. denied, in part, 352 N.C. 675, 545 S.E.2d 426 (2000), aff'd, 353 N.C. 358, 543 S.E.2d 476 (2001).

Employers Limited to Recovery of Benefits Paid. — The full provisions of this section reveal a statutory scheme whereby employers are limited to recovery of benefits they have paid to an employee. M.B. Haynes Corp. v. Strand Electro Controls, Inc., 127 N.C. App. 177, 487 S.E.2d 819 (1997).

II. RESPECTIVE LIABILITY OF THIRD PARTY, EMPLOYER AND CARRIER.

Section Governs Rights to Sue Third Persons. — This section governs the respective rights of the employee, the employer, and the employer's insurance carrier to maintain actions for damages against third parties; that is, persons other than the employer and those conducting his business. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966).

Third Party Responsible for Total Pecuniary Loss. — The third party whose negligence caused the death may be held responsible for the total pecuniary loss to the estate. Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

Action against Third Party Does Not Abate upon Making of Award Under the Act. — Where an award is made under the act after an action at law has been begun by the employee's representative against the third party, such an action does not abate. Phifer v. Berry, 202 N.C. 388, 163 S.E. 119 (1932).

No Cause of Action to Recover Increased Insurance Costs. — An employer whose workers' compensation insurance premiums have risen as the result of an employee's injury by a third party may not maintain a cause of action against the third party to recover its increased insurance costs. M.B. Haynes Corp. v. Strand Electro Controls, Inc., 127 N.C. App. 177, 487 S.E.2d 819 (1997).

Subsection (j) of this section must be read in pari materia with the rest of this section, and the legislature intended that the procedure for settling a case, as described in other parts of this section, be followed when settling a matter pursuant to subsection (j). Pollard v. Smith, 324 N.C. 424, 378 S.E.2d 771 (1989).

As the employer is not a joint tortfeasor, and thus an acceptance of an award against said employer for compensation would not discharge a third person whose negligence had contributed to the injury or death of the employee. Betts v. Southern Ry., 71 F.2d 787 (4th Cir. 1934).

Where deceased is killed as a result of the concurring negligence of his employer and a third party, the employer is not a joint tortfeasor who may be made a party defendant at the instance of the negligent third party. Brown v. Southern Ry., 202 N.C. 256, 162 S.E. 613 (1932); Essick v. City of Lexington, 232 N.C. 200, 60 S.E.2d 106 (1950).

Nor May Third Person Hold Employer for Contribution or Indemnity. — Third party, who was sued for damages for negligently inflicting a compensable injury upon an employee, could not hold the employer liable for contribution under the statute embodied in former § 1-240 (see now § 1B-1) or for indemnity under the doctrine of primary and secondary liability, even when the injury was the result of the joint or concurrent negligence of the employer and the third person. Lovette v. Lloyd, 236 N.C. 663, 73 S.E.2d 886 (1953); Johnson v. United States, 133 F. Supp. 613 (E.D.N.C. 1955).

Since it relieves the employer of liability to his injured employee as a tortfeasor, the Workers' Compensation Act abrogates both the statutory right of a negligent third party to claim contribution from a negligent employer in equal fault, and the common-law right of a passively negligent third party to demand indemnity from an actively negligent employer. And this construction of the act is not invalidated by the mere circumstance that such construction may occasion hardship or injustice to a passively negligent third party. Hunsucker v. High Point Bending & Chair Co., 237 N.C. 559, 75 S.E.2d 768 (1953).

Unless There Is Express Contract of Indemnity Between Third Person and Employer. — If there is an express contract of indemnity between third party and employer providing against loss to third party arising from the negligence of the employer, the third party if sued for damages by the employee may bring in the employer for contribution or indemnity. Johnson v. United States, 133 F. Supp. 613 (E.D.N.C. 1955).

The Workers' Compensation Act provides that a third party shall have no right (other than to assert the joint or concurring negligence of the employer) "by way of contribution or otherwise against the employer, except any right which may exist by reason of an express contract of indemnity between the employer and the third party, which was entered into prior to the injury to the employee." Gibbs v. Carolina Power & Light Co., 265 N.C. 459, 144 S.E.2d 393 (1965).

This section recognizes the right of third parties to provide by contract with employers for indemnity against liability to employees for the consequences of their negligence and to enforce the contracts. Gibbs v. Carolina Power & Light Co., 265 N.C. 459, 144 S.E.2d 393 (1965).

Rights and Liabilities of Third Person Not Affected. — The insurance carrier who has paid compensation to an injured employee for which the employer was liable under this Chapter may maintain an action against a third person upon allegations that the negligence of such third person caused the injury, but the rights and liabilities of such third person are in nowise affected by the Chapter. Hinson v. Davis, 220 N.C. 380, 17 S.E.2d 348 (1941).

But This Act Does Reduce Tort Liability of Passively Negligent Third Person. — There is no substance in the proposition that the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act confers no right whatever upon the passively negligent third party. It reduces his liability in tort for the injury to the employee by the amount of the workers' compensation received by the employee from the actively negligent employer or his insurance carrier. Hunsucker v. High Point Bending & Chair Co., 237 N.C. 559, 75 S.E.2d 768 (1953).

As to the liability of insurance carrier of employer as third party, see Smith v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 449 F. Supp. 928 (M.D.N.C. 1978), aff'd, 598 F.2d 616 (4th Cir. 1979).

Industrial Commission Has Exclusive Original Jurisdiction to Determine Right to Subrogation. — The Declaratory Judgment Act may not be used to determine whether or not the employer's insurance carrier is entitled to the right of subrogation against the funds received from the third-party tortfeasor, under the provisions of this section, since the Industrial Commission has the exclusive original jurisdiction to determine the question. Cox v. Pitt County Transp. Co., 259 N.C. 38, 129 S.E.2d 589 (1963).

This statutory provision does not provide for a direct action against the negligent employer nor does it allow for the recovery of direct damages from the employer. Jackson v. Howell's Motor Freight, Inc., 126 N.C. App. 476, 485 S.E.2d 895 (1997), review denied, 347 N.C. 267, 493 S.E.2d 456 (1997).

The doctrine of governmental immunity is inapplicable where a defendant alleges a municipality's negligence under subsection (e). Jackson v. Howell's Motor Freight, Inc., 126 N.C. App. 476, 485 S.E.2d 895 (1997), review denied, 347 N.C. 267, 493 S.E.2d 456 (1997).

Evidence of out-of-state worker's compensation payments is admissible in actions against third parties. Frugard v. Pritchard, 338 N.C. 508, 450 S.E.2d 744 (1994).

Effect of Contributory Negligence of Injured Employee. — The contributory negligence of the injured employee cannot be made the basis of an independent plea in bar of the right of the employer to recover over against the original and primary wrongdoer. Poindexter v. Johnson Motor Lines, 235 N.C. 286, 69 S.E.2d 495 (1952).

Any alleged negligence of such employee who has received, or whose estate has received, compensation from the employer under the act, must be pleaded, if at all, as a bar to the whole action, without reference to any rights of the employer to share in the recovery. Poindexter v. Johnson Motor Lines, 235 N.C. 286, 69 S.E.2d 495 (1952).

Contributory negligence of the injured employee constitutes a complete defense to an action against a third-person tortfeasor, and may be pleaded and proved by such third person irrespective of whether the action is instituted by the employer, the insurance carrier, or the employee. Lovette v. Lloyd, 236 N.C. 663, 73 S.E.2d 886 (1953).

Effect of Compromise and Settlement by Widow with Employer in Her Capacity as Administratrix. — The widow of a deceased employee, in her capacity as administratrix, executed a compromise and settlement with the employer on a common-law claim for wrongful death under the mistaken belief that the Workers' Compensation Act was not applicable. It was held that the compromise and settlement barred the widow in her capacity as a dependent from recovery under the act. McGill v. Bison Fast Freight, Inc., 245 N.C. 469, 96 S.E.2d 438 (1957).

But the compromise and settlement did not bar claim under the act of the deceased's child under 18 years of age without guardian, since the administratrix had no authority to act for the dependent child except in respect of claims or causes of action vested in the administratrix as such. However, the child's recovery under the act should be diminished to the extent of the benefits ultimately received by the child from the compromise and settlement. McGill v. Bison Fast Freight, Inc., 245 N.C. 469, 96 S.E.2d 438 (1957).

Allegations Failing to Show Contract by Employer and Carrier Not to Sue. — An action was instituted by the administrator of a deceased employee against a third-party tortfeasor. Compensation had been paid for the employee's death under the Workers' Compensation Act. Defendant alleged in its answer that in the collision causing the death of plaintiff's intestate, other persons were killed or injured, that the other actions growing out of the collision were compromised, and that in the settlement defendant made a substantial contribution upon the assurance of the attorneys for the employer and insurance carrier that they would recommend that this action not be instituted. It was held that the allegations failed to show a contract by the employer or the insurance carrier not to sue, or that the attorneys did not make the promised recommendation in good faith; and the allegations were properly stricken upon motion in the administrator's action. Penny v. Stone, 228 N.C. 295, 45 S.E.2d 362 (1947).

Employer is not relieved of liability by insurer's insolvency after recovery against third person. Roberts v. City Ice & Fuel Co., 210 N.C. 17, 185 S.E. 438 (1936).

Effect of Contributory Negligence of Employer. — When the employee or his estate has been satisfied, and the employer seeks to recover the amount paid by him from a third party, such third party may raise as a defense that the employer's negligence caused the employee's death. Leonard v. Johns-Manville Sales Corp., 309 N.C. 91, 305 S.E.2d 528 (1983).

If the defense of contributory negligence of the employer was not recognized, an employer could by his own negligence participate in the killing or injuring of the worker, pay for it, and then wash his hands of his own wrong, merely because he brought a suit against a third party who also contributed to the injury or death. Leonard v. Johns-Manville Sales Corp., 309 N.C. 91, 305 S.E.2d 528 (1983).

The liability of an automobile insurer, who was also the workers' compensation carrier, for underinsured motorist benefits had to be reduced by the amount of workers' compensation benefits after reduction of the amount received from the tort-feasor's liability insurer. Manning v. Fletcher, 102 N.C. App. 392, 402 S.E.2d 648 (1991), aff'd, 331 N.C. 114, 413 S.E.2d 798 (1992).

The mandatory nature of workers' compensation insurance carrier's lien on a recovery from the third-party tort-feasor is not altered by the discretionary authority of the trial judge to apportion the recovery between the employee and the insurance carrier, if that recovery is inadequate to satisfy the insurance carrier's lien. Manning v. Fletcher, 102 N.C. App. 392, 402 S.E.2d 648 (1991), aff'd, 331 N.C. 114, 413 S.E.2d 798 (1992).

The workers' compensation carrier for plaintiffs had a subrogation lien on the uninsured motorist policy proceeds paid to plaintiff employee who was injured in an automobile accident occurring while within the scope of employment. Bailey v. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 112 N.C. App. 47, 434 S.E.2d 625 (1993), overruled on other grounds, McMillian v. North Carolina Farm Bureau Mut. Ins. Co., 347 N.C. 560, 495 S.E.2d 352 (1998).

III. PARTIES AND PROCEDURE.

This section provides a negligent defendant with recourse against an also negligent employer by allowing defendant to: (1) allege that the employer's negligence concurred in producing plaintiff's injury and, (2) seek a reduction in damages as provided in the statute. Jackson v. Howell's Motor Freight, Inc., 126 N.C. App. 476, 485 S.E.2d 895 (1997), review denied, 347 N.C. 267, 493 S.E.2d 456 (1997).

Action Prosecuted in Behalf of Any Person Entitled to Share in Recovery. — A necessary implication of the statutory requirement respecting the disbursement of the recovery is that the action against the third party is prosecuted in behalf of any person entitled to claim a share in the recovery, regardless of whether he is a party to the action. Lovette v. Lloyd, 236 N.C. 663, 73 S.E.2d 886 (1953).

Ownership of Policy Irrelevant. — Under this section the distinction between an underinsured motorist policy purchased by the employee and one covering the employee but purchased by his spouse while a resident of the same household is unimportant. Creed v. R.G. Swaim & Son, 123 N.C. App. 124, 472 S.E.2d 213 (1996).

Joinder of Employer or Carrier in Action Against Third Person. — Whether the employer or insurance carrier who has paid compensation may proceed in the action which has been instituted against a third person by an injured employee or his personal representative, or must institute a new and independent action, is a question of procedure, and under the law of this State it is proper to proceed in the action which has been instituted. Betts v. Southern Ry., 71 F.2d 787 (4th Cir. 1934).

As to appealability of order joining employer and insurance carrier, see Lovette v. Lloyd, 236 N.C. 663, 73 S.E.2d 886 (1953).

Defendant Not Entitled to Joinder of Employer and Insurance Carrier. — In an action instituted by the employee against the third person tortfeasor, defendant was not entitled to the joinder of the employer and the insurance carrier. Lovette v. Lloyd, 236 N.C. 663, 73 S.E.2d 886 (1953).

Employer Cannot Be Made Party Defendant. — The remedy under the act is exclusive, and an employer is relieved of all further liability for injury to or death of an employee, and where the administrator of a deceased employee brings an action against third persons for the employee's wrongful death, the motion of the defendants that the deceased's employer be made a party as a joint tortfeasor with them should be denied. Brown v. Southern Ry., 202 N.C. 256, 162 S.E. 613 (1932).

Court May Not Join Unnecessary Additional Parties. — Where the plaintiff is the party authorized by this section to maintain the action against the tortfeasor, he is entitled to prosecute same to final judgment, and the court may not interfere with this privilege by the joinder of wholly unnecessary additional parties. Lovette v. Lloyd, 236 N.C. 663, 73 S.E.2d 886 (1953).

Employee is to have the exclusive privilege to prosecute his action to a final conclusion without the presence of either the employer or the insurance carrier unless extraordinary circumstances require their joinder. Gibbs v. Carolina Power & Light Co., 265 N.C. 459, 144 S.E.2d 393 (1965).

An action by an employee against a third party shall not be encumbered by including as parties, plaintiff or defendant, the employer or insurance carrier, nor by bringing in irrelevant causes of action. Gibbs v. Carolina Power & Light Co., 265 N.C. 459, 144 S.E.2d 393 (1965).

Employer's Right of Subrogation Not Forfeited by Failure to Participate in Trial and Appeal of Wrongful Death Action. — Employer, by its failure to participate in the trial and appeal of a wrongful death action brought by the administratrix of the estate of the deceased employee, did not forfeit its subrogation right to be reimbursed out of the recovery from the third party whose negligence caused the death, since, the suit having been brought within one year from the employee's death, his personal representative had exclusive control of the proceedings against the negligent third party. Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

As to employee filing counterclaim in action by third person, see Rowe v. Rowe-Coward Co., 208 N.C. 484, 181 S.E. 254 (1935).

Action by Insurance Carrier Instituted After Action by Employee. — Where it appeared that an injured employee's action against third-person tortfeasor was instituted prior to the institution of an action by the compensation insurance carrier against the tortfeasor, defendant's plea in abatement in the employee's action on the ground of the pendency of a prior action could not be sustained. Thompson v. Virginia & C.S.R.R., 216 N.C. 554, 6 S.E.2d 38 (1939), commented on in 18 N.C.L. Rev. 375 (1940).

Recovery by Employee's Administrator Bars Action by Employer or Carrier. —

Where the employee's administrator has recovered and collected a judgment at law against third persons for the employee's death, the employer and carrier cannot, in their own name, sue the defendants under the subrogation provisions of this section. Suits for wrongful death must be brought in the name of the personal representative, and the employee's administrator having collected, there remains no cause to which the employer or carrier can be subrogated. Whitehead & Anderson, Inc. v. Branch, 220 N.C. 507, 17 S.E.2d 637 (1941).

Action Not Governed by Code of Civil Procedure. — An action in behalf of an injured employee against a third-person tortfeasor is governed by this section and not by the Code of Civil Procedure. Lovette v. Lloyd, 236 N.C. 663, 73 S.E.2d 886 (1953).

Insofar as the provisions of this section are in conflict with or supersede any of the rules of civil procedure, an action against a third party by an employee or employer to recover for injury to employee caused by the alleged negligence of the third party is governed by the provisions of the act and not by the Code of Civil Procedure. Gibbs v. Carolina Power & Light Co., 265 N.C. 459, 144 S.E.2d 393 (1965).

As to action for wrongful death against third person, see Betts v. Southern Ry., 71 F.2d 787 (4th Cir. 1934); Mack v. Marshall Field & Co., 217 N.C. 55, 6 S.E.2d 889 (1940); Sayles v. Loftis, 217 N.C. 674, 9 S.E.2d 393 (1940); Taylor v. Hunt, 245 N.C. 212, 95 S.E.2d 589 (1956).

For cases holding that evidence of compensation payments was inadmissible in action by employee against third party, decided prior to the 1983 amendment to this section, see Penny v. Stone, 228 N.C. 295, 45 S.E.2d 362 (1947); Lovette v. Lloyd, 236 N.C. 663, 73 S.E.2d 886 (1953); Redding v. Braddy, 258 N.C. 154, 128 S.E.2d 147 (1962); *Spivey v. Right of Employer and Carrier to Trial by Jury — Preserved by Subsection (e). — Subsection (e) of this section preserves the employer/carrier's right to trial by jury, providing that it has been demanded by a party in the pleadings and not waived by all the parties. Williams v. International Paper Co., 89 N.C. App. 256, 365 S.E.2d 724 (1988), modified on other grounds, 324 N.C. 567, 380 S.E.2d 510 (1989).

Same — Effect of Settlement of Claim Against Third Parties. —

In enacting subsection (j) of this section, the legislature did not contemplate and intend to deprive the employer/carrier of its right to trial by jury by virtue of the settlement of the plaintiff's claim against third party defendants. Williams v. International Paper Co., 89 N.C. App. 256, 365 S.E.2d 724 (1988), modified on other grounds, 324 N.C. 567, 380 S.E.2d 510 (1989).

Under § 1A-1, Rule 38(d), absent a showing that employer/carrier consented to elimination of requested jury trial on the issue of employer negligence, it could not be deemed waived. Although the two original parties to the action had reached a settlement, there still remained the issue of employer negligence to be determined. Williams v. International Paper Co., 89 N.C. App. 256, 365 S.E.2d 724 (1988), modified on other grounds, 324 N.C. 567, 380 S.E.2d 510 (1989).

Subsection (j) must be read in pari materia with the rest of this section; other parts of the section provide a procedure for settling a case and the legislature did not intend this procedure to be ignored when settling a case pursuant to subsection (j). Pollard v. Smith, 324 N.C. 424, 378 S.E.2d 771 (1989).

Settlement reached by employee and third parties without the written consent of employer was void since employer did not give its written consent to the settlement between employee and the third parties; subsection (j) of this section does not supersede subsection (h) of this section and subsection (j) should be read in pari materia with the other provisions of the statute. Williams ex rel. Heidgerd v. International Paper Co., 324 N.C. 567, 380 S.E.2d 510 (1989).

Trial court erred in concluding that employer did not have a lien on UIM benefits recovered by plaintiff from insurer; plaintiff's private settlement with the insurer, which allowed the insurance carrier to reduce the arbitration award by the amount of the employer's workers' compensation lien, did not extinguish his employer's workers' compensation lien, and the trial court was obligated to make findings and conclusions in support of its reasoned disbursement choice to provide meaningful review on appeal. Levasseur v. Lowery, 139 N.C. App. 235, 533 S.E.2d 511 (2000), cert. denied, in part, 352 N.C. 675, 545 S.E.2d 426 (2000), aff'd, 353 N.C. 358, 543 S.E.2d 476 (2001).

The workers' compensation benefits received by plaintiff under Virginia's Workers' Compensation Act should have been allowed into evidence pursuant to subsection (e) in plaintiff's third party personal injury action. Frugard v. Pritchard, 112 N.C. App. 84, 434 S.E.2d 620 (1993), rev'd on other grounds, 338 N.C. 508, 450 S.E.2d 744 (1994), cert. granted, 335 N.C. 554, 441 S.E.2d 113 (1994).

Employer Entitled to Jury Trial. — In a tort action brought by an injured employee against third parties who alleged that the employer was jointly and concurrently liable for the employee's injuries, the employer was entitled to a jury trial on the issue of employer negligence under subsection (e) of this section; there had been no showing that the employer consented to a waiver or withdrawal of the initial demand by third parties and employee for a jury trial since the settlement between the employee and third parties, to which the employer was not a party, neither extinguished the employer's right to trial by jury nor did it settle the issue of the employer's negligence. Williams ex rel. Heidgerd v. International Paper Co., 324 N.C. 567, 380 S.E.2d 510 (1989).

Defendants Waived Entitlement to Lien. — Where by the explicit terms of an agreement between plaintiff and third party tortfeasor — to the making of which defendants stipulated their consent — lifetime monthly payments from third party to plaintiff were plainly proceeds of the structured settlement reached in that third party action, and federal district court, after reviewing the settlement agreement and hearing extensive argument from all parties, including counsel for defendants' employer and insurer, found that defendants had agreed to waive any lien which they had as to the proceeds from this settlement and recovery, the facts fully supported the commission's determination that defendants, by virtue of their waiver, were not entitled to a lien in the lifetime monthly payments due plaintiff from the third party action. Turner v. CECO Corp., 98 N.C. App. 366, 390 S.E.2d 685 (1990).

Retroactive Application. — The trial court's application of the amended version of this section deprived employer and insurer of vested rights under lien and, thus, was unconstitutionally retroactive. Fogleman v. D & J Equip. Rental, Inc., 111 N.C. App. 228, 431 S.E.2d 849, cert. denied, 335 N.C. 172, 436 S.E.2d 374 (1993).

IV. DISBURSEMENT OF PROCEEDS.

Constitutionality of Subdivision (f)(2).

— The provision in subdivision (f)(2) of this section, which directs that the attorney fee incurred by the party who effects recovery against a third-party tortfeasor be apportioned between and paid by the employee and employer in proportion to the amount which each receives from the recovery, is constitutional. It does not unjustifiably impair the freedom of the employer and its carrier to negotiate a contract on their own for representation by attorneys of their choice in the prosecution and settlement of their subrogation rights against a third-party tortfeasor. Hogan v. Johnson Motor Lines, 38 N.C. App. 288, 248 S.E.2d 61 (1978), cert.

Legislative Intent. — It is clear from the provisions of subsection (j) that it was and is the intent of the legislature that non-negligent employers are to be reimbursed for those amounts they pay to employees who are injured by the negligence of third parties, and that employees are not intended to receive double recoveries. Johnson v. Southern Indus. Constructors, Inc., 347 N.C. 530, 495 S.E.2d 356 (1998).

Evidence of Liability Insurance. — In suit regarding automobile accident, evidence of defendant's liability insurance coverage should not have been introduced just because evidence of plaintiff's recovery in workers' compensation was introduced pursuant to subsection (e). Anderson v. Hollifield, 123 N.C. App. 426, 473 S.E.2d 399 (1996), rev'd on other grounds, 345 N.C. 480, 480 S.E.2d 661 (1997).

Coverage by Same Entity Not Required. — In order to have amounts payable under underinsured motorist coverage reduced by amounts paid under workers' compensation coverage, § 20-279.21(e) does not require that the same entity provide both coverages. Brantley v. Starling, 336 N.C. 567, 444 S.E.2d 170 (1994).

Jurisdiction over Distribution with Court or Commission. — Under this section, the distribution of proceeds received from a tortfeasor between an injured employee and an employer entitled to reimbursement can be decided in some instances by either the Industrial Commission or the trial court. Buckner v. City of Asheville, 113 N.C. App. 354, 438 S.E.2d 467, cert. denied, 336 N.C. 602, 447 S.E.2d 385 (1994).

The Industrial Commission, not the superior court, had exclusive jurisdiction over distribution of the proceeds recovered from third party tortfeasor where third party judgment exceeded the subrogation claim of the worker's compensation insurance carrier even if the actual proceeds of the judgment were insufficient to compensate the subrogation claim. Hieb v. Howell's Child Care Ctr., Inc., 123 N.C. App. 61, 472 S.E.2d 208 (1996).

Although the Industrial Commission, not the superior court, had exclusive jurisdiction to disburse third party proceeds, the Commission did not have the authority to stay a superior court order, even if the order was in error. Hieb v. Howell's Child Care Ctr., Inc., 123 N.C. App. 61, 472 S.E.2d 208 (1996).

Where there had been no settlement, nor had a judgment been obtained, which was insufficient to compensate the subrogation claim of workers' compensation insurance carrier, the trial court lacked authority to direct disbursement of judgment proceeds under this section and the case would be remanded to the Industrial Commission. Hieb v. Lowery, 134 N.C.

App. 1, 516 S.E.2d 621 (1999).

Subdivision (f)(1)(c) Construed in Pari Materia with § 97-25. — Subdivision (f)(1)(c) and § 97-25 relate to the same subject matter and must be construed in pari materia. Roberts v. ABR Assocs., 101 N.C. App. 135, 398 S.E.2d 917 (1990).

The distribution of any recovery is a matter for the Industrial Commission under subsection (f) of this section. Spivey v. Babcock & Wilcox Co., 264 N.C. 387, 141 S.E.2d 808 (1965); Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

Limitation on Commission; Authority. — The authority of the Industrial Commission to distribute the proceeds of the employer-employee settlement with the tortfeasor is governed by subsection (f) which does not have the authority to make a distribution pursuant to subsection (j). Buckner v. City of Asheville, 113 N.C. App. 354, 438 S.E.2d 467, cert. denied, 336 N.C. 602, 447 S.E.2d 385 (1994).

Findings of Fact Required to Be Made by Commission. — The commission must make findings of fact regarding the benefits provided for the treatment of an injured employee for which an employer is entitled to reimbursement. Buckner v. City of Asheville, 113 N.C. App. 354, 438 S.E.2d 467, cert. denied, 336 N.C. 602, 447 S.E.2d 385 (1994).

Subsection (f) provides adequate protection against double recovery by the injured employee on account of aggravation of his original injury through the physician's negligence. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966).

Reimbursement Under Subdivision (f)(1)(c). — The party claiming a right to reimbursement under subsection (f)(1)(c), i.e., the employer or its insurance carrier, must show, pursuant to § 97-25, (1) that the treatment provided was in the form of medical treatment, surgical treatment, hospital treatment, nursing services, medicines, sick travel, rehabilitation services, or other treatment including medical and surgical supplies, and (2) that the treatment provided was reasonably required for at least one of three purposes, namely, to effect a cure, give relief, or lessen the period of the plaintiff's disability. Roberts v. ABR Assocs., 101 N.C. App. 135, 398 S.E.2d 917 (1990).

Proceeds of any settlement or judgment must be disbursed according to the provisions of the act. Cox v. Pitt County Transp. Co., 259 N.C. 38, 129 S.E.2d 589 (1963); Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 3 N.C. App. 139, 164 S.E.2d 535 (1968), aff'd, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

Since the passage of the Workers' Compensation Act, the Supreme Court has held that recovery from a responsible third party must be distributed by the Industrial Commission according to the order of priority set out in the act. Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

Recovery by Employer of His Underinsured Motorist Benefits. — The employer's underinsured motorist benefits received in an action against the tortfeasor are subject to a subrogation claim by an employer who has paid workers' compensation benefits to its employee. Buckner v. City of Asheville, 113 N.C. App. 354, 438 S.E.2d 467, cert. denied, 336 N.C. 602, 447 S.E.2d 385 (1994).

Recovery by Personal Representative. — The net recovery from the responsible third party (except that which must be returned to the subrogee for its outlay) goes to the personal representative under subsection (f)(1)d. Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

For case where petitioners, who were not the administrators, lacked standing to appeal Industrial Commission's order of distribution, see Montgomery v. Bryant Supply Co., 91 N.C. App. 734, 373 S.E.2d 299 (1988), cert. denied, 324 N.C. 248, 377 S.E.2d 755 (1989).

Employer's Lien Against Settlement. — Subsection (j) permits a party to have a superior court judge determine the subrogation amount that an employer is entitled to in the event that a settlement has been agreed upon by the employee and the third party and the judge shall determine the amount, if any, of the employer's lien. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Johnson, 128 N.C. App. 520, 495 S.E.2d 388 (1998).

Amounts Paid as Compensation Constitute a Lien on Wrongful Death Action Recovery. — Under the provisions of this section, the amounts paid by an employer and the employer's insurance carrier as compensation or other benefits to a decedent under the Workers' Compensation Act for disability, disfigurement, or death caused under circumstances creating a liability in some person other than the employer to pay damages therefor constitute a lien on the amount recovered in a wrongful death action; and this is a lawful claim against the estate. Long v. Coble, 11 N.C. App. 624, 182 S.E.2d 234, cert. denied, 279 N.C. 395, 183 S.E.2d 246 (1971).

Lien on Underinsured Motorist Benefits. — Industrial Commission properly concluded that workers' compensation carrier had a lien on the proceeds of plaintiff's underinsured motorist benefits. Creed v. R.G. Swaim & Son, 123 N.C. App. 124, 472 S.E.2d 213 (1996).

Amounts Obtained "by Settlement with, Judgment," etc. — Cash payment and value of remainder interest in real estate conveyed to widow for the death of her husband-employee by shooting constitute amounts obtained by her "by settlement with, judgment against, or otherwise" from the third party tortfeasor by reason of her husband's death so as to subject such amounts to the disbursement authority of the Industrial Commission under subsection (f). Nivens v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., 24 N.C. App. 473, 211 S.E.2d 505, cert. denied, 286 N.C. 723, 213 S.E.2d 722 (1975).

Authority to Order Employer to Pay Attorney's Fees. — This section does not confer any authority upon the district court to order an employer to pay attorney's fees. This action is within the exclusive province of the Industrial Commission. Westmoreland v. Safe Bus, Inc., 20 N.C. App. 632, 202 S.E.2d 605 (1974).

Illegal Agreement Between Employee's Dependents and Employer for Distribution of Recovery. — In an action by the administrator of a deceased employee against the third-party tortfeasor, allegations in defendant's answer of an illegal agreement between the dependents and the employer for the distribution of the fund are properly stricken on motion, since the administrator is an official of the court under duty to make disbursement of any recovery in conformity with statute, and could not be bound by the terms of the agreement alleged. Penny v. Stone, 228 N.C. 295, 45 S.E.2d 362 (1947).

Attorney's Fees Improperly Disbursed. — Trial court properly ruled that any determination with respect to the payment of counsel fees in a workers' compensation lien case must be made by the Industrial Commission and that court's disbursement of attorney's fees had therefore not been proper. Hieb v. Lowery, 134 N.C. App. 1, 516 S.E.2d 621 (1999).

Employer's insurance company can be subrogated for the amount of workers' compensation paid by it to the employee Manning v. Fletcher, 91 N.C. App. 393, 371 S.E.2d 770 (1988), rev'd on other grounds, 324 N.C. 513, 379 S.E.2d 854 (1989).

Amount and Distribution of Recovery in Action by Insurance Carrier. — When an action is maintained by the insurance carrier against the third-person tortfeasor causing the injury, the tortfeasor is liable for the amount ascertained by the jury as sufficient to compensate the employee for the injuries sustained, which the statute prescribes shall be first applied to the actual court costs, then to the payment of attorneys' fees, then to the reimbursement of the insurance carrier for money paid by it under the award, and any amount remaining to the injured employee, and an instruction on the issue of damages that defendant would be liable for such sum as would reimburse the insurance carrier and would fairly compensate the injured employee is error. Rogers v. Southeastern Constr. Co., 214 N.C. 269, 199 S.E. 41 (1938).

This statute clearly provides for a different standard for disbursement when the case is before the superior court than that for cases before the Industrial Commission. When the General Assembly added subsection (j), it made no reference to subsection (f). Pollard v. Smith, 90 N.C. App. 585, 369 S.E.2d 84 (1988), rev'd on other grounds, 324 N.C. 424, 378 S.E.2d 771 (1989).

Trial Court to Enter Judgment Safeguarding Rights of Persons Entitled to Share in Recovery. — In the event of a verdict for the plaintiff in the action against third party, the trial court, sitting without a jury, is to determine the amount of compensation paid or payable to the injured employee under the act on the basis either of a stipulation of the interested persons or of evidence submitted to it, and after so doing is to enter a judgment safeguarding the rights of any person entitled to share in the recovery, regardless of whether or not such person is a party to the action. Lovette v. Lloyd, 236 N.C. 663, 73 S.E.2d 886 (1953).

Distribution of Wrongful Death Settlement Following Disapproval of Compensation Agreement. — Where the Industrial Commission disapproved an agreement for compensation for death only because the employee's widow was a minor and the death benefits had been miscalculated, but the employer's admission of liability was not disapproved, the Commission had jurisdiction to issue an order for the distribution of a wrongful death settlement made before the Commission finally approved the compensation agreement. Williams v. Insurance Repair Specialists of N.C., Inc., 32 N.C. App. 235, 232 S.E.2d 5, cert. denied, 292 N.C. 735, 235 S.E.2d 789 (1977).

Distribution of Wrongful Death Settlement Despite Liability Carrier's Possible Loss. — Where an employee's death arose out of and in the course of his employment, the employer filed with the Industrial Commission a written admission of liability, the compensation insurance carrier notified the third-party tortfeasor's liability insurance carrier that a compensation settlement was in process and that it would expect its lien upon any settlement of a wrongful death claim by the liability carrier, the liability carrier settled the wrongful death claim for $55,000.00 and paid that amount to the deceased employee's administrator, and the Industrial Commission later approved a workers' compensation settlement awarding $28,500.00 to the widow, the Industrial Commission thereafter had authority under this section to issue an order of distribution of the $55,000.00 wrongful death settlement, including a requirement that the liability carrier pay $28,500.00 to the compensation carrier in settlement of its subrogation interest, notwithstanding that the widow may have spent her entire distributive share of the wrongful death settlement and all of the workers' compensation benefits paid to her and the liability carrier might be unable to recoup any of the amount previously paid from the widow or the decedent's administrator. Williams v. Insurance Repair Specialists of N.C., Inc., 32 N.C. App. 235, 232 S.E.2d 5, cert. denied, 292 N.C. 735, 235 S.E.2d 789 (1977).

Distribution of Sum Collected by Plaintiff from Third Party. — Where defendant employer had not previously made any payments to plaintiff, the Commission should have directed it to pay plaintiff the compensation he was entitled to under § 97-61.5. Then, following the distribution scheme set out in subdivision (f)(1), the sum collected by plaintiff from the third-party recovery should have been used first to pay court costs; secondly, to pay plaintiff's attorneys' fee; thirdly, to reimburse defendant for the compensation it paid to plaintiff, less defendant's proportionate share of plaintiff's attorneys' fees incurred in achieving the third-party recovery; and finally, the remainder of the third-party recovery should have been disbursed to the employee. Davis v. Weyerhaeuser Co., 96 N.C. App. 584, 386 S.E.2d 740 (1989).

Payment of Prejudgment Interest to Employee Not Double Recovery. — An award to the employee of the entire amount of prejudgment interest on his jury verdict against a third party, less the amount paid to the employer and insurer to satisfy their subrogation lien, did not constitute a double recovery. Bartell v. Sawyer, 132 N.C. App. 484, 512 S.E.2d 93 (1999).

Calculation of Prejudgment Interest. — Prejudgment interest on a workers' compensation claimant's recovery in a third-party action is to be calculated based on the amount of money claimant is entitled to receive once an employer's subrogation lien for workers' compensation benefits has been satisfied. Bartell v. Sawyer, 132 N.C. App. 484, 512 S.E.2d 93 (1999).

Employer and Insurer Not Entitled to Share of Prejudgment Interest. — The employer and insurer were entitled to recover out of the proceeds of the employee's third party action the amount of all benefits paid to the employee, but not to any of the prejudgment interest awarded. Bartell v. Sawyer, 132 N.C. App. 484, 512 S.E.2d 93 (1999).

Reimbursement. — This section mandates that the payor of benefits be reimbursed with duplicative amounts received by plaintiff employee from a civil suit. Radzisz v. Harley Davidson of Metrolina, Inc., 123 N.C. App. 602, 473 S.E.2d 655 (1996), aff'd, 346 N.C. 84, 484 S.E.2d 566 (1997).

Reimbursement of Employer and Insurer from Recovery in Action by Employee's Personal Representative. — Where the suit was instituted by the personal representative of the deceased, and the employer and its insurance carrier have taken no action except to file an affidavit of interest, this in itself would not have prevented them from being reimbursed from the recovery. Essick v. City of Lexington, 233 N.C. 600, 65 S.E.2d 220 (1951).

Amount and Reasonableness of Attorneys' Fees. — Under paragraph (f)(1)b of this section, the attorneys' fee taken from the employee's share may not exceed one-third of the amount recovered, but it is not otherwise subject to the reasonableness requirement of § 97-90(c); the attorneys' fee on the subrogation interest of the employer (or its carrier) is subject to the reasonableness requirement of § 97-90(c) and may not exceed one-third of the amount recovered from the third party. Hardy v. Brantley Constr. Co., 87 N.C. App. 562, 361 S.E.2d 748 (1987), rev'd on other grounds, 322 N.C. 106, 366 S.E.2d 485 (1988).

Subrogation or Lien Interest. — The Industrial Commission erred in concluding that defendant employer and insurance company were not entitled to a subrogation interest or lien interest against the proceeds received by plaintiff employee in settlement of a civil action. Radzisz v. Harley Davidson of Metrolina, Inc., 123 N.C. App. 602, 473 S.E.2d 655 (1996), aff'd, 346 N.C. 84, 484 S.E.2d 566 (1997).

Subrogation of Carrier to Employer's Right to Payment upon Employee Reimbursement. — This section provides for the subrogation of the workers' compensation insurance carrier to the employer's right, upon reimbursement of the employee, to any payment, including uninsured/underinsured motorist insurance proceeds, made to the employee by or on behalf of a third party as a result of the employee's injury. Ohio Cas. Group v. Owens, 99 N.C. App. 131, 392 S.E.2d 647 (1990), review denied, 327 N.C. 483, 396 S.E.2d 614 (1990), overruled by McMillian v. North Carolina Farm Bureau Mut. Ins. Co., 347 N.C. 560, 495 S.E.2d 352 (1998).

Subsection (j) is independent from the other subsections in this section, and the Superior Court has discretionary authority to determine the lien amount. Wiggins v. Bushranger Fence Co., 126 N.C. App. 74, 483 S.E.2d 450 (1997), cert. denied, 346 N.C. 556, 488 S.E.2d 825 (1997).

No Condition Precedent for Subrogation Rights. — The provisions of this statute cannot logically be construed as requiring establishment of a condition precedent in the nature of a written admission or a final award before a payor of workers' compensation benefits obtains subrogation rights. Radzisz v. Harley Davidson of Metrolina, Inc., 123 N.C. App. 602, 473 S.E.2d 655 (1996), aff'd, 346 N.C. 84, 484 S.E.2d 566 (1997).

Trial Court Did Not Have to Follow Distribution Priority in Subsection (f). — In distributing settlement under subsection (j) of this section, trial court did not have to follow the distribution priority set forth in subsection (f) of this section. Allen v. Rupard, 100 N.C. App. 490, 397 S.E.2d 330 (1990), appeal withdrawn, 328 N.C. 328, 404 S.E.2d 864 (1992).

Trial Court Must Make Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law. — The trial court, in considering request for disbursement under subsection (j) of this section, must enter order with findings of fact and conclusions of law sufficient to provide for meaningful appellate review. Allen v. Rupard, 100 N.C. App. 490, 397 S.E.2d 330 (1990), appeal withdrawn, 328 N.C. 328, 404 S.E.2d 864 (1992).

Equal Division of Proceeds Proper Exercise of Trial Court's Discretion. — Trial court did not abuse its discretion in determining that it was fair, equitable and just for injured party and insurance carrier to share equally settlement proceeds which fell far short of being sufficient to reimburse injured party for his pain, suffering and other losses; or to reimburse insurance carrier for its payment of injured party's extensive medical bills. Allen v. Rupard, 100 N.C. App. 490, 397 S.E.2d 330 (1990), appeal withdrawn, 328 N.C. 328, 404 S.E.2d 864 (1992).

Commission Approval Not Necessary for Rehabilitation Services Charges. — Insurance carrier did not need the Commission's approval for charges connected with rehabilitation services in order to obtain reimbursement for those expenses under this section because § 97-90(a) does not require approval of the Commission for rehabilitation services. Roberts v. ABR Assocs., 101 N.C. App. 135, 398 S.E.2d 917 (1990).

§ 97-10.3. Minors illegally employed.

In any case where an employer and employee are subject to the provisions of this Chapter, any injury to a minor while employed contrary to the laws of this State shall be compensable under this Chapter as if said minor were an adult, subject to the other provisions of this Chapter. (1929, c. 120, s. 11; 1933, c. 449, s. 1; 1943, c. 622; 1959, c. 1324.)

CASE NOTES

Injury to Minor Employed Contrary to Law. — Where the evidence disclosed that infant plaintiff was one of the minimum number of employees required under the act in a business owned by two of defendants and conducted by the third defendant as general manager, and that he was injured in the performance of the duties of his employment, nonsuit was proper, since the evidence disclosed that the cause was within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission, notwithstanding the infant plaintiff might have been hired contrary to law. (Decided under former § 97-10) McNair v. Ward, 240 N.C. 330, 82 S.E.2d 85 (1954).

§ 97-11. Employer not relieved of statutory duty.

Nothing in this Article shall be construed to relieve any employer or employee from penalty for failure or neglect to perform any statutory duty. (1929, c. 120, s. 12.)

§ 97-12. Use of intoxicant or controlled substance; willful neglect; willful disobedience of statutory duty, safety regulation or rule.

No compensation shall be payable if the injury or death to the employee was proximately caused by:

- (1) His intoxication, provided the intoxicant was not supplied by the employer or his agent in a supervisory capacity to the employee; or

- (2) His being under the influence of any controlled substance listed in the North Carolina Controlled Substances Act, G.S. 90-86, et seq., where such controlled substance was not by prescription by a practitioner; or
- (3) His willful intention to injure or kill himself or another.

When the injury or death is caused by the willful failure of the employer to comply with any statutory requirement or any lawful order of the Commission, compensation shall be increased ten percent (10%). When the injury or death is caused by the willful failure of the employee to use a safety appliance or perform a statutory duty or by the willful breach of any rule or regulation adopted by the employer and approved by the Commission and brought to the knowledge of the employee prior to the injury compensation shall be reduced ten percent (10%). The burden of proof shall be upon him who claims an exemption or forfeiture under this section. (1929, c. 120, s. 13; 1975, c. 740.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — For case notes on willful injuries, see also the case notes under § 97-2.

Legislative Intent. — This section is an integral part of the Workers' Compensation Act and evidences the legislature's intention to relieve an employer of the obligation to pay compensation to an employee when the accident giving rise to the employee's injuries is proximately caused by his intoxication. The oft-quoted rule that the act should be liberally construed does not license either commission or the courts to disregard the manifest intention of the legislature in enacting this section. Anderson v. Century Data Sys., Inc., 71 N.C. App. 540, 322 S.E.2d 638 (1984), cert. denied, 313 N.C. 327, 327 S.E.2d 887 (1985).

Act Eliminates Fault of Worker as Basis for Denying Recovery. — Compensation acts were intended to eliminate the fault of the worker as a basis for denying recovery. Hartley v. North Carolina Prison Dep't, 258 N.C. 287, 128 S.E.2d 598 (1962).

Employee's Negligence Does Not Bar Him from Compensation. — An act of negligence by an employee while he was in the performance of his duty of waiting for his foreman did not bar the employee's right to compensation for the accident resulting from the negligence. Stubblefield v. Watson Elec. Constr. Co., 277 N.C. 444, 177 S.E.2d 882 (1970).

Not even gross negligence is a defense to a compensation claim. Hartley v. North Carolina Prison Dep't, 258 N.C. 287, 128 S.E.2d 598 (1962).

Only intoxication or injury intentionally inflicted will defeat a claim. Hartley v. North Carolina Prison Dep't, 258 N.C. 287, 128 S.E.2d 598 (1962).

The negligence of the employee does not disbar him from compensation, except only in cases where the injury is occasioned by his intoxication or willful intention to injure himself or another. Archie v. Greene Bros. Lumber Co., 222 N.C. 477, 23 S.E.2d 834 (1943).

Forfeiture for Intoxication Only If Cause of the Injury. — This statute does not provide for forfeiture of benefits if an employee was intoxicated at the time of the injury, but only if the injury or death "was occasioned by the intoxication." Lassiter v. Town of Chapel Hill, 15 N.C. App. 98, 189 S.E.2d 769 (1972); Inscoe v. DeRose Indus., Inc., 292 N.C. 210, 232 S.E.2d 449 (1977).

The employer has the burden of proof on the affirmative defense of intoxication. However, the employer is not required to come forward with evidence disproving all possible causes other than intoxication. Nor is he required to prove that intoxication was the sole proximate cause of the employee's injuries. Anderson v. Century Data Sys., Inc., 71 N.C. App. 540, 322 S.E.2d 638 (1984), cert. denied, 313 N.C. 327, 327 S.E.2d 887 (1985).

In asserting the defense of intoxication set out in this section, the employer is required to prove only that the employee's intoxication was more probably than not a cause in fact of the accident resulting in injury to the employee. Anderson v. Century Data Sys., Inc., 71 N.C. App. 540, 322 S.E.2d 638 (1984), cert. denied, 313 N.C. 327, 327 S.E.2d 887 (1985).

This section places the burden of defense based upon intoxication on the defendants, to prove intoxication and to prove that death was proximately caused thereby. Smith v. Central Transp. & Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 51 N.C. App. 316, 276 S.E.2d 751 (1981).

The employer has the burden of proving intoxication as an affirmative defense. He must prove not only that the employee was intoxicated at the time of the accident causing the injury or death, but also that the accident was proximately caused by the employee's intoxication. Torain v. Fordham Drug Co., 79 N.C. App. 572, 340 S.E.2d 111 (1986).

The employer need not disprove all other possible causes of the accident and injury, nor need he prove that intoxication was the sole proximate cause of the accident; he is only required to prove that the employee's intoxication was more probably than not a proximate cause of the accident and resulting injury. Torain v. Fordham Drug Co., 79 N.C. App. 572, 340 S.E.2d 111 (1986).

Intoxication, willful intention and being under the influence of a controlled substance are affirmative defenses which place the burden of proof on the employer in a claim for workers' compensation. Harvey v. Raleigh Police Dep't, 85 N.C. App. 540, 355 S.E.2d 147, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 631, 360 S.E.2d 86 (1987).

Evidence of Intoxication. — The Industrial Commission had the power to determine whether physician was qualified to testify as an expert in stating his opinion as to deceased employee's intoxication at 2:50 p.m., based on a blood alcohol test administered at 5:00 p.m. Torain v. Fordham Drug Co., 79 N.C. App. 572, 340 S.E.2d 111 (1986).

Finding of Intoxication by Commissioner Not Required. — This statute does not require the Commissioner to find whether the employee was intoxicated or not as a matter of law. Lassiter v. Town of Chapel Hill, 15 N.C. App. 98, 189 S.E.2d 769 (1972); Inscoc v. DeRose Indus., Inc., 292 N.C. 210, 232 S.E.2d 449 (1977).

Subdivision (3) presents an affirmative defense to a claim under the Workers' Compensation Act. It requires a finding that the claimant had the willful intention to injure or kill himself or another and that this intention was the proximate cause of the claimant's injuries. Rorie v. Holly Farms Poultry Co., 306 N.C. 706, 295 S.E.2d 458 (1982).

Burden Under Subdivision (3). — Since subdivision (3) of this section is an affirmative defense, the burden of proof is on the employer to show that compensation should be denied notwithstanding the fact that the injury arose out of and in the course of the employment. Rorie v. Holly Farms Poultry Co., 306 N.C. 706, 295 S.E.2d 458 (1982).

Cause of Fact Standard Applicable to Subdivision (3). — Using a cause in fact standard, the claimant's injuries must be the result of a natural and continuous sequence of events, unbroken by a new independent cause, stemming from the claimant's willful intention to injure himself or another. It is also necessary that some injury be foreseeable from the claimant's actions, although the extent or nature of the injury suffered need not have been foreseen. Rorie v. Holly Farms Poultry Co., 306 N.C. 706, 295 S.E.2d 458 (1982).

Under subdivision (3) of this section, for the claimant's injuries to be proximately caused by her actions, the willful intention of the claimant must be more than a cause of her injuries. However, it need not be the sole cause. Rather, a cause in fact standard is required. Rorie v. Holly Farms Poultry Co., 306 N.C. 706, 295 S.E.2d 458 (1982).

Injuries Must Be Proximately Caused by Claimant's Willful Intent. — Once willful intention has been established, in order to deny recovery it is necessary to find that the claimant's injuries were "proximately caused by" an act resulting from such intent. Rorie v. Holly Farms Poultry Co., 306 N.C. 706, 295 S.E.2d 458 (1982).

But This Need Not Be the "Sole" Proximate Cause. — This section was designed to be an exception to the general rule that the employee would receive compensation for an injury arising out of and in the course of employment. To utilize a "sole" proximate cause standard would virtually vitiate the statute and defeat the express will of the General Assembly. Whenever an employee intends to injure another, that employee will usually not be injured unless the intended victim retaliates. The actions of the intended victim could always be considered a cause of the claimant's injuries, and therefore the willful intention of the claimant would rarely if ever be the sole cause. Rorie v. Holly Farms Poultry Co., 306 N.C. 706, 295 S.E.2d 458 (1982).

The sole proximate cause standard is inapplicable to this section. Rorie v. Holly Farms Poultry Co., 306 N.C. 706, 295 S.E.2d 458 (1982).

Need Not Show Intent to Inflict "Serious" Injury. — Neither acts by the claimant, nor mere words spoken by the claimant and unaccompanied by any overt act, will be sufficient to bar compensation, unless the willful intent to injure is apparent from the context and nature of the physical or verbal assault. However, no intent to inflict "serious" injury must be shown before the statutory bar to recovery will apply. The bar to recovery, set forth in subdivision (3) of this section, applies when a general willful intent to inflict some injury is established by the evidence. Rorie v. Holly Farms Poultry Co., 306 N.C. 706, 295 S.E.2d 458 (1982).

Crucial Question Is Willful Intent. — The crucial question is whether the claimant had a willful intention to injure the other employee. The fact that the other employee may have produced the knife and therefore escalated the fight is immaterial. The claimant may not have intended to kill or even seriously injure the other employee, but subdivision (3) of this section does not require that any such intent be shown before recovery will be denied. Rorie v. Holly Farms Poultry Co., 306 N.C. 706, 295 S.E.2d 458 (1982).

Suicide Induced by Injury. — In those cases where the injuries suffered by the deceased result in his becoming devoid of normal judgment and dominated by a disturbance of mind directly caused by his injury and its consequences, his suicide cannot be considered "willful" within the meaning and intent of the act. Petty v. Associated Transp., 276 N.C. 417, 173 S.E.2d 321 (1970).

Suicide cannot be intentionally self-inflicted if, in spite of the act being one of conscious volition, the employee, because of mental condition resulting from the injury, is unable to control the impulse to kill himself. Petty v. Associated Transp., 276 N.C. 417, 173 S.E.2d 321 (1970).

If the sole motivation controlling the will of the employee when he knowingly decides to kill himself is the pain and despair caused by the injury, and if his will itself is deranged and disordered by these consequences of the injury, then it seems wrong to say that this exercise of will is "independent," or that it breaks the chain of causation. Rather, it seems to be in the direct line of causation. Petty v. Associated Transp., Inc., 276 N.C. 417, 173 S.E.2d 321 (1970); Thompson v. Lenoir Transf. Co., 48 N.C. App. 47, 268 S.E.2d 534, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 405, 273 S.E.2d 450 (1980).

While suicide may be an independent intervening cause in some cases, it is certainly not so in those cases where the incontrovertible evidence shows that, without the injury, there would have been no suicide. Petty v. Associated Transp., 276 N.C. 417, 173 S.E.2d 321 (1970).

An employee who becomes mentally deranged and deprived of normal judgment as a result of a compensable accident and commits suicide in consequence does not act willfully within the meaning of this section. Elmore v. Broughton Hosp., 76 N.C. App. 582, 334 S.E.2d 231, cert. denied, 315 N.C. 390, 338 S.E.2d 879 (1985).

An employee's suicide caused by an occupational disease is compensable under the Workers' Compensation Act. This is so because § 97-52 makes it clear that the death of an employee resulting from an occupational disease shall be treated as the happening of an injury by accident. Harvey v. Raleigh Police Dep't, 85 N.C. App. 540, 355 S.E.2d 147, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 631, 360 S.E.2d 86 (1987).

When suicide is the "end result" of an injury sustained in a compensable accident, it is an intervening act but not an intervening cause. An intervening cause is one occurring entirely independent of a prior cause. When a first cause produces a second cause that produces a result, the first cause is a cause of that result. Petty v. Associated Transp., 276 N.C. 417, 173 S.E.2d 321 (1970).

Compensation for Suicide. — Using the statute to deny compensation for suicides arising out of the employment is anomalous, because to do so produces a narrower basis for recovery under the remedial workers' compensation acts than would have been possible under common-law tort doctrine. Petty v. Associated Transp., 276 N.C. 417, 173 S.E.2d 321 (1970).

A ruling prohibiting compensation to the dependents of an employee who intentionally killed himself is not compatible with the objective of the Workers' Compensation Act, which is to provide for the injured worker, or his dependents in the event of his death, at the cost of the industry which he was serving. To this end, the rule is that benefits under the act should not be denied by a technical, narrow, and strict construction. Petty v. Associated Transp., 276 N.C. 417, 173 S.E.2d 321 (1970).

Failure to Use Safety Appliances or Observe Rules. — This section does not deny compensation when it appears that an injury was caused by the willful failure of an employee to use a safety appliance, or by the willful breach of a rule or regulation adopted by the employer and approved by the Industrial Commission, but only subjects the injured employee to the penalty of a reduction in the compensation to be awarded. Archie v. Greene Bros. Lumber Co., 222 N.C. 477, 23 S.E.2d 834 (1943).

An intentional violation of an approved safety rule of which the employee had prior notice will not defeat, but will only reduce the amount of an award. Hartley v. North Carolina Prison Dep't, 258 N.C. 287, 128 S.E.2d 598 (1962).

Legal Standard of Causation Correctly Applied. — Competent evidence supported commission's findings that although plaintiff was under the influence of alcohol at the time of the accident, other factors caused the accident; therefore, intoxication was not a proximate cause of accident, and commission correctly applied the legal standard of causation required under subdivision (1) of this section.

Suggs v Snow Hill Milling Co., 100 N.C. App. 527, 397 S.E.2d 240 (1990), cert. denied, 329 N.C. 276, 407 S.E.2d 851 (1991).

Proximate Cause Is Question for Finder of Fact. — The determination of the proximate cause of the claimant's injuries is a question for the finder of fact. Rorie v. Holly Farms Poultry Co., 306 N.C. 706, 295 S.E.2d 458 (1982).

Applied in Yates v. Hajoca Corp., 1 N.C. App. 553, 162 S.E.2d 119 (1968); Petty v. Associated Transp., 4 N.C. App. 361, 167 S.E.2d 38 (1969); McCuiston v. Addressograph-Multigraph Corp., 59 N.C. App. 76, 295 S.E.2d 490 (1982); Pittman v. Twin City Laundry & Cleaners, 61 N.C. App. 468, 300 S.E.2d 899 (1983); Patterson v. Gaston County, 62 N.C. App. 544, 303 S.E.2d 182 (1983).

II. ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.

"Psychological Autopsy" Properly Admitted. — "Psychological autopsy" on decedent, involving interviewing family members and reviewing records to determine the probable cause of death or the decedent's state of mind at the time of his death, was competent and properly admitted for the purpose of determining the mental state of the deceased at the time of his suicide in a workers' compensation proceeding wherein plaintiff alleged that decedent's suicide was caused by a dysthymic disorder (depression) caused by his employment as a police officer. Harvey v. Raleigh Police Dep't, 85 N.C. App. 540, 355 S.E.2d 147, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 631, 360 S.E.2d 86 (1987).

Where it was shown that police chief's death resulted from a bullet wound, such showing raised a prima facie case only of death by accident, placing upon the employer the burden of going forward with evidence to show that the employee killed himself within the exemption or forfeiture under this section. McGill v. Town of Lumberton, 215 N.C. 752, 3 S.E.2d 324 (1939), in which police chief was found dead in town building, his gun by his side; compensation was denied by the Commission, reversed and remanded by the Supreme Court, three justices dissenting; a subsequent award of compensation was affirmed in McGill

v. Town of Lumberton, 218 N.C. 586, 11 S.E.2d 873 (1940), two justices concurring only because of the former decision; one dissent.

Where a department store manager was found dead in his store early in the morning, a pistol by his side, with no other evidence of how he met his death, the court held that while there might be a presumption of injury by accident, the award of compensation was defeated because there was no presumption or evidence to support a conclusion that the injury arose out of the employment. The causal connection between the injury and the employment was not apparent as was the case in McGill v. Lumberton. Bolling v. Belk-White Co., 228 N.C. 749, 46 S.E.2d 838 (1948).

Employer's Failure to Meet Burden. — Given the presence of competent evidence on both sides of the issue of whether intoxication was a proximate cause of death, the employer did not carry its burden on this issue. Strickland v. Carolina Classics Catfish, Inc., 119 N.C. App. 97, 458 S.E.2d 10 (1995), aff'd, 342 N.C. 640, 466 S.E.2d 276 (1996).

All of the competent evidence supported the Commission's finding that defendants did not meet their burden of showing that plaintiff's use of controlled substances was a proximate cause of his injury. Bursey v. Kewaunee Scientific Equip. Corp., 119 N.C. App. 522, 459 S.E.2d 40 (1995).

Injury Held Result of Intoxication. — When considered together, the evidence with respect to the manner in which deceased employee was driving, the presence of an odor of alcohol about his person, his statement that he had been drinking, and the level of alcohol found in his blood supported the Commission's finding of fact that he was intoxicated at the time of the accident, and that his intoxication was a proximate cause of the accident and his resulting injuries and death, as did evidence negating brake failure as a cause of the accident. Torain v. Fordham Drug Co., 79 N.C. App. 572, 340 S.E.2d 111 (1986).

There was competent evidence in the record to support a finding that the deceased was intoxicated where decedent's blood alcohol level of .202, would have rendered her borderline between simple impairment and extreme excitement and confusion. Sidney ex rel. Sidney v. Raleigh Paving & Patching, Inc., 109 N.C. App. 254, 426 S.E.2d 424 (1993).

Injury Held Not Result of Intoxication. — In Brooks v. Carolina Rim & Wheel Co., 213 N.C. 518, 196 S.E. 835 (1938), it was held that the evidence was sufficient to support the finding of the Industrial Commission that the accident causing injury was not the result of the employee's intoxication, although defendants introduced evidence in conflict therewith. See Gant v. Crouch, 243 N.C. 604, 91 S.E.2d 705 (1956).

Despite fact that employee's blood alcohol level was 387 milligrams per liter (.387) when measured following his accident, the Industrial Commission found that the employee's intoxication was not the proximate cause of his injury sustained when employee's hand got stuck in a lumber conveyor. Gaddy v. Anson Wood Prods., 92 N.C. App. 483, 374 S.E.2d 477 (1988).

Where the Commission's finding plaintiff was injured because he was attempting to help a fellow employee was substantially supported by the evidence and sufficient to explain the cause of plaintiff's injury, that plaintiff may have erred in judgment did not mandate the conclusion that the error was the result of his intoxication. Gaddy v. Anson Wood Prods., 92 N.C. App. 483, 374 S.E.2d 477 (1988).

Commission's finding that claimant's intoxication was not a proximate cause of accident was supported by evidence, even though claimant's blood alcohol level was .11 to .13 in terms of breathalyzer test at time of accident, where evidence showed that claimant had pre-existing mental and visual handicap and that equipment provided by employer malfunctioned, and his supervisor testified that he did not smell alcohol on claimant's breath and felt perfectly safe in having claimant operate equipment. Suggs v. Snow Hill Milling Co., 100 N.C. App. 527, 397 S.E.2d 240 (1990), cert. denied, 329 N.C. 276, 407 S.E.2d 851 (1991).

Injury Held Not Result of Alcohol Withdrawal Seizure. — Where doctor stated that it would not be normal to have an alcohol withdrawal seizure after more than three days and that an alcohol withdrawal seizure probably would not happen five days after consuming alcohol and plaintiff's blood alcohol level was 0.000 at the time of the incident, the Industrial Commission did not err in finding that plaintiff's injury was not approximately caused by an alcohol withdrawal seizure. Tharp v. Southern Gables, Inc., 125 N.C. App. 364, 481 S.E.2d 339 (1997), cert. denied, 346 N.C. 184, 486 S.E.2d 219 (1997).

Where there was insufficient evidence to establish that the blood alcohol test was scientifically reliable or correctly administered, it could not be used to deny plaintiff's claim pursuant to the intoxication defense in subdivision (1). Johnson v. Charles Keck Logging, 121 N.C. App. 598, 468 S.E.2d 420 (1996).

Substance Abuse as Intervening Cause of Disabling Psychosis. — Finding of the Commission that although plaintiff's on the job hand injury, for which he was compensated, was a contributing factor in his subsequent disabling psychosis, his willful substance abuse was an intervening cause which prohibited an award of benefits was supported by the evidence and would not be disturbed. Wagoner v. Douglas Battery Mfg. Co., 89 N.C. App. 67, 365 S.E.2d 298, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 486, 371 S.E.2d 274 (1988).

Death Occasioned by Violation of Safety Statute and Intoxication. — Findings, supported by evidence, that in overtaking a truck preceding him on the highway, employee's car left skid marks for 75 feet straight in a line forward and then skid marks sideways across the center of the highway to his left, and that his car was struck by a car approaching from the opposite direction, together with evidence that his blood contained .20 percent of alcohol, were held sufficient to show that the accident resulted from the employee's violation of a safety statute and to support the finding of the Industrial Commission that the employee's death was occasioned by his intoxication, and judgment denying compensation was affirmed. Osborne v. Colonial Ice Co., 249 N.C. 387, 106 S.E.2d 573 (1959).

Suicide Induced by Insanity. — Evidence was sufficient to support a finding that by reason of insanity a suicide was the result of an uncontrollable impulse, or in a delirium of frenzy without conscious volition to cause death. Painter v. Mead Corp., 258 N.C. 741, 129 S.E.2d 482 (1963).

Rejoining Course of Employment. — Where employee traveled to New York, slept in a motel and ate at restaurants at the direction of his employer, and at the time of the accident resulting in his death, he was returning to his motel from the place where he had eaten dinner, even if his remaining at the restaurant to drink alcohol and watch a ball game constituted a personal endeavor, intoxication was not a cause of his death, and sufficient evidence existed to support the Industrial Commission's finding that he had rejoined his course of employment at the time of the accident. Cable v. Soft-Play, Inc., 124 N.C. App. 526, 477 S.E.2d 678 (1996).

Unsafe Press Brake Machine. — The Commission did not make sufficient findings of fact to support its conclusion that plaintiff employee was not entitled to a 10% increase in compensation for defendant's alleged violation of statutory safety requirements; additionally, it inexplicably failed to make any findings based on the testimony of plaintiff's coworker regarding the facts that (1) the press brake machine operated by plaintiff was not "guarded," as defined by the North Carolina OSHA manual, and (2) the machine did not prevent entry of the hands and fingers into the point of operation. Jenkins v. Easco Aluminum Corp., 142 N.C. App. 71, 541 S.E.2d 510 (2001).

§ 97-13. Exceptions from provisions of Article.

(a) Employees of Certain Railroads. — This Article shall not apply to railroads or railroad employees nor in any way repeal, amend, alter or affect Article 8 of Chapter 60 or any section thereof relating to the liability of railroads for injuries to employees, nor upon the trial of any action in tort for injuries not coming under the provisions of this Article, shall any provision herein be placed in evidence or be permitted to be argued to the jury. Provided, however, that the foregoing exemption to railroads and railroad employees shall not apply to employees of a State-owned railroad company, as defined in G.S. 124-11, or to electric street railroads or employees thereof; and this Article shall apply to electric street railroads and employees thereof and to this extent the provisions of Article 8 of Chapter 60 are hereby amended.

(b) Casual Employment, Domestic Servants, Farm Laborers, Federal Government, Employer of Less than Three Employees. — This Article shall not apply to casual employees, farm laborers when fewer than 10 full-time nonseasonal farm laborers are regularly employed by the same employer, federal government employees in North Carolina, and domestic servants, nor to employees of such persons, nor to any person, firm or private corporation that has regularly in service less than three employees in the same business within this State, except that any employer without regard to number of employees, including an employer of domestic servants, farm laborers, or one who previously had exempted himself, who has purchased workers' compensation insurance to cover his compensation liability shall be conclusively presumed during life of the policy to have accepted the provisions of this Article from the effective date of said policy and his employees shall be so bound unless waived as provided in this Article; provided however, that this Article shall apply to all employers of one or more employees who are employed in activities which involve the use or presence of radiation.

(c) Prisoners. — This Article shall not apply to prisoners being worked by the State or any subdivision thereof, except to the following extent: Whenever any prisoner assigned to the State Department of Correction shall suffer accidental injury or accidental death arising out of and in the course of the employment to which he had been assigned, if there be death or if the results of such injury continue until after the date of the lawful discharge of such prisoner to such an extent as to amount to a disability as defined in this Article, then such discharged prisoner or the dependents or next of kin of such discharged prisoner may have the benefit of this Article by applying to the Industrial Commission as any other employee; provided, such application is made within 12 months from the date of the discharge; and provided further that the maximum compensation to any prisoner or to the dependents or next of kin of any deceased prisoner shall not exceed thirty dollars ($30.00) per week and the period of compensation shall relate to the date of his discharge rather than the date of the accident. If any person who has been awarded compensation under the provisions of this subsection shall be recommitted to prison upon conviction of an offense committed subsequent to the award, such compensation shall immediately cease. Any awards made under the terms of this subsection shall be paid by the State Department of Correction from the funds available for the operation of the Department of Corrections. The provisions of G.S. 97-10.1 and 97-10.2 shall apply to prisoners and discharged prisoners entitled to compensation under this subsection and to the State in the same manner as said section applies to employees and employers.

(d) Sellers of Agricultural Products. — This Article shall not apply to persons, firms or corporations engaged in selling agricultural products for the producers thereof on commission or for other compensation, paid by the producers, provided the product is prepared for sale by the producer. (1929, c.

120, s. 14; 1933, c. 401; 1935, c. 150; 1941, c. 295; 1943, c. 543; 1945, c. 766; 1957, c. 349, s. 10; c. 809; 1967, c. 996, s. 13; 1971, c. 284, s. 2; c. 1176; 1975, c. 718, s. 3; 1979, c. 247, s. 1; c. 714, s. 2; 1981, c. 378, s. 1; 1983 (Reg. Sess., 1984), c. 1042, s. 2; 1987, c. 729, s. 3; 2000-146, s. 11.)

Local Modification. — Mecklenburg: 1933, c. 401.

Cross References. — For definitions under this article, see § 97-2.

Editor's Note. — Article 8 of Chapter 60, referred to in subsection (a) of this section, was repealed by Session Laws 1963, c. 1165. For present provisions as to liability of railroads for injuries to employees, see § 62-242.

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2000-146, s. 11, effective December 1, 2000, inserted "to employees of a State-owned railroad company, as defined in G.S. 124-11, or" in subsection (a).

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — See also the case notes under § 97-2.

Purchase of Insurance Subjects Employer and Employees to Act. — By purchasing a workers' compensation insurance policy, the employer and his employees become subject to the act and continue to be "so bound unless waived as provided in this Article." Crawford v. Pressley, 6 N.C. App. 641, 171 S.E.2d 197 (1969).

And Failure of Third-Party Insurance Agent to Renew Policy Does Not Constitute Waiver. — By purchasing a workers' compensation insurance policy, the employer and his employees become subject to the act and continue to be "so bound unless waived as provided in this Article." The failure of a third party, such as the insurance agent, to fulfill his agreement to see that other insurance was obtained upon the cancellation of the insurance policy does not constitute a waiver "as provided in this Article." Crawford v. Pressley, 6 N.C. App. 641, 171 S.E.2d 197 (1969). But see Wiggins v. Rufus Tart Trucking Co., 63 N.C. App. 542, 305 S.E.2d 749 (1983).

A self-insured employer is presumptively subjected to the provisions of the Act only for the life of the policy. Once the policy ends, this presumption ends. Wiggins v. Rufus Tart Trucking Co., 63 N.C. App. 542, 305 S.E.2d 749 (1983).

For case as to former provisions of subsection (b) of this section that proof that the employer obtained insurance and filed claim should be prima facie evidence that the employer and employee had elected to be bound by the act, see Gassaway v. Gassaway & Owens, Inc., 220 N.C. 694, 18 S.E.2d 120 (1942).

Applied in Rape v. Town of Huntersville, 214 N.C. 505, 199 S.E. 736 (1938); Bennett v. Hertford County Bd. of Educ., 69 N.C. App. 615, 317 S.E.2d 912 (1984).

Stated in State v. Frazier, 142 N.C. App. 207, 541 S.E.2d 800 (2001).

II. CASUAL EMPLOYEES.

Employment in Employer's Regular Course of Business Not Casual. — Two employees were hired by a fertilizer dealer "whenever a carload of fertilizer arrived, to unload and deliver the fertilizer." This was held not to be "casual" employment, but "work pertaining to the regular course of defendant's business." Hunter v. Peirson, 229 N.C. 356, 49 S.E.2d 653 (1948).

Employment continuously for five or six weeks in construction of facilities for handling material in defendant's plant could not be held to be either casual or not in the course of defendant's business. Smith v. Southern Waste-paper Co., 226 N.C. 47, 36 S.E.2d 730 (1946).

Plaintiff who had been employed full-time for three months prior to accident, and who also worked on Saturdays by choice and with the agreement of his employer, was not merely a casual employee. Murray v. Biggerstaff, 81 N.C. App. 377, 344 S.E.2d 550, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 696, 350 S.E.2d 858 (1986).

Civilian Summoned by Forest Warden to Help Extinguish Fire. — A civilian who had been summoned by a forest warden to assist in extinguishing a fire was held to be not a casual employee. Moore v. State, 200 N.C. 300, 156 S.E. 806 (1930).

III. FARM LABORERS.

Nearness to Planting, Cultivation, etc. — Whether an employee is a farm laborer depends, in a large degree, upon the nearness of his occupation to the planting, cultivation, and harvesting of crops. Hinson v. Creech, 286 N.C. 156, 209 S.E.2d 471 (1974).

Emphasis upon Nature of Employee's Tasks. — In considering the question of whether an employee is a farm laborer, a majority of the jurisdictions have placed emphasis upon the nature of the employee's work rather than upon the nature of the employer's business. Hinson v. Creech, 286 N.C. 156, 209 S.E.2d 471 (1974).

Although the character of the "employment" of an employee must be determined from the "whole character" of his employment and not upon the particular work he is performing at the time of his injury, nevertheless the coverage of an employee under the act is dependent upon the character of the work he is hired to perform and not upon the nature and scope of his employer's business. Hinson v. Creech, 286 N.C. 156, 209 S.E.2d 471 (1974).

Employee of State Engaged in Farm Labor Is Covered by Act. — An employee of the State engaged in farm labor was covered by the act, as the exemption was intended for the protection of farmers as an occupational class and § 97-2(2) includes all State "officers and employees" except those elected or appointed by the Governor or General Assembly. Barbour v. State Hosp., 213 N.C. 515, 196 S.E. 812 (1938).

Plaintiff, who was employed to process oats, soybeans and barley through the gin process, and to do other work incidental to the ginning operation, was not a farm laborer under subsection (b) of this section, and the fact that plaintiff was operating a tractor in a field in which crops were eventually to be planted when he was injured, during a one-time excursion out of the ginning process and into an activity more akin to farming or agricultural labor, did not interrupt his compensation coverage. Murray v. Biggerstaff, 81 N.C. App. 377, 344 S.E.2d 550, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 696, 350 S.E.2d 858 (1986).

Laborer in Large-Scale Commercial Production, etc., of Chicken Eggs. — The duties of employee, consisting of cleaning, grading, packaging and delivering eggs, keeping records of sales and collecting the eggs delivered, were sufficiently removed from the normal process of agriculture to prevent her exclusion from coverage under the Workers' Compensation Act as a "farm laborer." Hinson v. Creech, 286 N.C. 156, 209 S.E.2d 471 (1974).

Insurance carrier was estopped from denying the plaintiff's status as an employee when he was injured, even though the plaintiff was a working partner in a farming operation, where the carrier had treated the plaintiff as an employee before the injury, and had accepted the benefits of that status. Garrett v. Garrett & Garrett Farms, 39 N.C. App. 210, 249 S.E.2d 808 (1978), cert. denied, 296 N.C. 736, 254 S.E.2d 178 (1979).

IV. DOMESTIC SERVANTS.

Dual Employment. — Plaintiff was employed for a single wage to do janitorial, window cleaning, and delivery work at defendant's paint store and also to do janitor and garden work at defendant's home. He was paid at the store. His injuries arose from an accident connected with lawn mowing at the employer's home. An award by the Commission was affirmed in the superior court but reversed on the insurance carrier's appeal. The personal work done for the employer was not within the coverage of the act. Burnett v. Palmer-Lipe Paint Co., 216 N.C. 204, 4 S.E.2d 507 (1939).

V. NUMBER OF EMPLOYEES.

Editor's Note. — The annotations under this analysis line below were decided prior to the 1987 amendment to subsection (b) of this section, which changed the regular employment requirement to three employees.

Whether or not the minimum number of persons are regularly employed in one business is a jurisdictional matter that cannot be waived. Dependents of Thompson v. Johnson Funeral Home, 205 N.C. 801, 172 S.E. 500 (1934), where the jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission was first challenged in an appeal from the Commission to the superior court. See same case on rehearing, 208 N.C. 178, 179 S.E. 801 (1935), noted critically in 14 N.C.L. Rev. 76 (1936).

The requirement that five (now three) or more employees be regularly employed in the same business or establishment is jurisdictional. Cain v. Guyton, 79 N.C. App. 696, 340

The plaintiff has the burden of proving that the employer regularly employed five (now three) or more employees. Cain v. Guyton, 79 N.C. App. 696, 340 S.E.2d 501, aff'd, 318 N.C. 410, 348 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

Employment of the Minimum Number of Persons or More Must Affirmatively Appear. — It must appear affirmatively by evidence or by admission of record that a defendant sought to be held liable under this Chapter had in his employ five (now three) or more employees in order to sustain the jurisdiction of the Commission. Chadwick v. North Carolina Dep't of Conservation & Dev., 219 N.C. 766, 14 S.E.2d 842 (1941). See also Hanks v. Southern Pub. Utils. Co., 204 N.C. 155, 167 S.E. 560 (1933).

To sustain the jurisdiction of the Commission, it must affirmatively appear that the employer which it undertakes to bind by its award had as many as five (now three) men in his or its employment. Letterlough v. Atkins, 258 N.C. 166, 128 S.E.2d 215 (1962).

Evidence showing that a defendant had in his employ five (now three) or more employees must affirmatively appear in the record to sustain the jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission over the claim. Durham v. McLamb, 59 N.C. App. 165, 296 S.E.2d 3 (1982).

Number of workers on job site on date of injury, standing alone, is not determinative of the issue. If the defendant had four (now three) or more "regularly employed" employees, the fact that he fell below the minimum requirement on the actual date of injury would not preclude coverage. Durham v. McLamb, 59 N.C. App. 165, 296 S.E.2d 3 (1982).

Where Number of Employees Varies. — Defendant employed three employees regularly. Two additional employees had been hired for at least a part of each week for two preceding months. It was held that the jurisdictional requirement of five (now three) regular employees was met. Hunter v. Peirson, 229 N.C. 356, 49 S.E.2d 653 (1948).

Where Employer Conducts Several Distinct Businesses. — Where the employer conducts several distinct businesses and in each employs less than the requisite number required to bring himself within the act, he is not subject to the act. This is true even though the businesses are under the same roof. Aycok v. Cooper, 202 N.C. 500, 163 S.E. 569 (1932).

Reviewing Court Must Make Independent Determination. — Whether the employer had the number of employees required to subject him to the Workers' Compensation Act is a question of jurisdictional fact, and the reviewing court is required to review and consider the evidence and make an independent determination. Durham v. McLamb, 59 N.C.

App. 165, 296 S.E.2d 3 (1982).

Reversal of Commission's Award Where Number of Employees Not Affirmatively Shown. — When it is not made to affirmatively appear that the defendant sought to be held liable under this Chapter had in his employ five (now three) or more employees, the Commission's award of compensation against him must be reversed. Chadwick v. North Carolina Dep't of Conservation & Dev., 219 N.C. 766, 14 S.E.2d 842 (1941).

Where the findings of facts of the Industrial Commission that the deceased was an employee of the defendant and that the defendant employed more than five (now three) workers are not supported by any evidence in the hearing before it, upon appeal to the superior court the award should be set aside and vacated. Poole v. Signom, 202 N.C. 172, 162 S.E. 198 (1932).

Remand to Determine Number of Employees. — It is not error for the superior court to remand a proceeding in order that the facts with respect to the number of employees in the employ of the defendant at the time the employee was injured might be ascertained by the Industrial Commission. Letterlough v. Atkins, 258 N.C. 166, 128 S.E.2d 215 (1962).

Demurrer Properly Overruled. — A demurrer to an action for death of an employee, on the ground that the action was cognizable only by the Industrial Commission, was properly overruled when it did not appear on the face of the complaint that the defendant employed more than five (now three) men in this State. Hanks v. Southern Pub. Utils. Co., 204 N.C. 155, 167 S.E. 560 (1933). See Southerland v. Harrell, 204 N.C. 675, 169 S.E. 423 (1933); Allen v. American Cotton Mills, Inc., 206 N.C. 704, 175 S.E. 98 (1934).

Where a corporate employer with less than the minimum number of employees procures a policy of compensation insurance, such employer is presumed to have accepted the provisions of the act, and such policy covers its executive officers notwithstanding the premium on the policy is based on the compensation of a single nonexecutive employee and the parties intended to cover him only, unless notice of nonacceptance by the executive officers is duly filed with the Industrial Commission. Laughridge v. South Mt. Pulpwood Co., 266 N.C. 769, 147 S.E.2d 213 (1966).

Ordinarily, an employer with less than five employees is exempt from the act. However, when such employer at his election voluntarily purchases workers' compensation insurance, he accepts all provisions of the act. In such case, the policy he purchases both creates and protects his compensation liability; and thereafter such employer and his employees are bound by the provisions of the act unless, prior to any accident resulting in injury or death, notice to the contrary is given. Crawford v. Pressley, 6 N.C. App. 641, 171 S.E.2d 197 (1969).

VI. PRISONERS.

Suspension of Workers' Compensation Benefits During Incarceration. — Imprisonment of a person already receiving worker's compensation disability payments cuts off the employer's duty to make payments during the period of confinement. Parker v. Union Camp Corp., 107 N.C. App. 505, 422 S.E.2d 585 (1992).

Action for Wrongful Death. — Where decedent was a prisoner who suffered an accidental death arising out of and in the course of his assigned employment, plaintiff was entitled to workers' compensation benefits under subsection (c). Blackmon v. N.C. Dept. Of Correction, 343 N.C. 259, 470 S.E.2d 8 (1996).

Action for Wrongful Death Under Tort Claims Act. — Subsection (c) of this section was held not to be a bar in an action for wrongful death of a prisoner brought under the Tort Claims Act. Ivey v. North Carolina Prison Dep't, 252 N.C. 615, 114 S.E.2d 812 (1960).

The second 1957 amendment to this section, which made former § 97-10 applicable to certain prisoners, did not deny to prisoners on assigned tasks rights conferred by the Tort Claims Act. Ivey v. North Carolina Prison Dep't, 252 N.C. 615, 114 S.E.2d 812 (1960). See also note to § 143-291.

Where a prisoner who suffered accidental death arising out of and in the course of the employment to which he had been assigned, his dependents or next of kin were entitled to specific benefits under the Act; therefore, inmate's mother could not maintain a wrongful death action against defendants under the Tort Claims Act. Blackmon v. North Carolina Dep't of Cors., 118 N.C. App. 666, 457 S.E.2d 306 (1995), aff'd, 343 N.C. 259, 470 S.E.2d 8 (1996).

Where the plaintiff was permanently injured while working on a silage harvesting machine operated by the Department of Correction, and he filed a claim with the Industrial Commission under the Tort Claims Act, his claim was properly dismissed on the grounds that workers' compensation was plaintiff's exclusive remedy. Richardson v. State Dep't of Cor., 118 N.C. App. 704, 457 S.E.2d 325 (1995), cert. granted, — N.C. —, 461 S.E.2d 772 (1995), aff'd, 345 N.C.

Where deceased was a prisoner who suffered "accidental death arising out of and in the course of the employment to which he had been assigned," his dependents or next of kin were statutorily "entitled" to specific benefits under the exclusive remedy provisions of § 97-10.1, and could not maintain a wrongful death action against defendants under the Tort Claims Act. Blackmon v. North Carolina Dep't of Cors., 118 N.C. App. 666, 457 S.E.2d 306 (1995), aff'd, 343 N.C. 259, 470 S.E.2d 8 (1996).

Working prisoners are excluded from suing in tort for work-related injuries. Richardson v. North Carolina Dep't of Cor., 345 N.C. 128, 478 S.E.2d 501 (1996).

Workers' Compensation Act Sole Remedy. — A prisoner's exclusive remedy for "accidental injury ... arising out of and in the course of the employment to which he had been assigned," whether he is incarcerated or released, as with other employees, arises under the provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act and is the plaintiff's sole remedy. Richardson v. State Dep't of Cor., 118 N.C. App. 704, 457 S.E.2d 325 (1995), cert. granted, — N.C. —, 461 S.E.2d 772 (1995), aff'd, 345 N.C. 128, 478 S.E.2d 501 (1996).

The monetary benefit afforded to plaintiff by subsection (c) entitled her to compensation and § 97-10.1 applied to bar plaintiff's wrongful death action under the Tort Claims Act. Blackmon v. N.C. Dept. Of Correction, 343 N.C. 259, 470 S.E.2d 8 (1996).

Workers' compensation is the exclusive remedy for prisoners injured while working on prison jobs. Richardson v. North Carolina Dep't of Cor., 345 N.C. 128, 478 S.E.2d 501 (1996).

Burial Expenses. — It was assumed, for the purpose of the case, that this section permits the establishment of a claim for the burial expenses of a prisoner whose death occurred while a prisoner. Lawson v. North Carolina State Hwy. & Pub. Works Comm'n, 248 N.C. 276, 103 S.E.2d 366 (1958).

The payment of burial expenses was not payment of "compensation" under the Workers' Compensation Act so as to make the remedy of the personal representative of such a prisoner under subsection (c) of this section exclusive by virtue of former § 97-10. Ivey v. North Carolina Prison Dep't, 252 N.C. 615, 114 S.E.2d 812 (1960).

§§ 97-14 through 97-16: Repealed by Session Laws 1973, c. 1291, ss. 7-9.

§ 97-17. Settlements allowed in accordance with Article.

(a) This article does not prevent settlements made by and between the employee and employer so long as the amount of compensation and the time and manner of payment are in accordance with the provisions of this Article. A copy of a settlement agreement shall be filed by the employer with and approved by the Commission. No party to any agreement for compensation approved by the Commission shall deny the truth of the matters contained in the settlement agreement, unless the party is able to show to the satisfaction of the Commission that there has been error due to fraud, misrepresentation, undue influence or mutual mistake, in which event the Commission may set aside the agreement. Except as provided in this subsection, the decision of the Commission to approve a settlement agreement is final and is not subject to review or collateral attack.

(b) The Commission shall not approve a settlement agreement under this section, unless all of the following conditions are satisfied:

- (1) The settlement agreement is deemed by the Commission to be fair and just, and that the interests of all of the parties and of any person, including a health benefit plan that paid medical expenses of the employee have been considered.
- (2) The settlement agreement contains a list of all of the known medical expenses of the employee related to the injury to the date of the settlement agreement, including medical expenses that the employer or carrier disputes, and a list of medical expenses, if any, that will be paid by the employer under the settlement agreement.
- (3) The settlement agreement contains a finding that the positions of all of the parties to the agreement are reasonable as to the payment of medical expenses.

(c) In determining whether the positions of all of the parties to the agreement are reasonable as to the payment of medical expenses under subdivision (3) of subsection (b) of this section, the Commission shall consider all of the following:

- (1) Whether the employer admitted or reasonably denied the employee's claim for compensation.
- (2) The amount of all of the known medical expenses of the employee related to the injury to the date of the settlement agreement, including medical expenses that the employer or carrier disputes.
- (3) The need for finality in the litigation.

(d) Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit the application of G.S. 44-49 and G.S. 44-50 to funds in compensation for settlement under this section. (1929, c. 120, s. 18; 1963, c. 436; 2001-216, s. 2; 2001-487, s. 102(b).)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-216, s. 6, provides: "The North Carolina Industrial Commission shall adopt any rules needed to implement this act."

Session Laws 2001-216, s. 6.1, as added by Session Laws 2001-487, s. 102(a), contains a severability clause.

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-216, s. 2, as amended by 2001-487, s. 102(b), effective June 15, 2001, and applicable to cases pending on or after that date except those cases in which a health benefit plan has intervened prior to that date, redesignated the former section as present subsection (a) and rewrote that subsection; and added subsections (b), (c) and (d).

CASE NOTES

The law, by this section, undertakes to protect the rights of the employee in contracting with respect to his injuries. Caudill v. Chatham Mfg. Co., 258 N.C. 99, 128 S.E.2d 128 (1962).

Section Contemplates Only Settlement in Respect of Amount of Compensation. — The only "settlement" contemplated by this section is a settlement in respect of the amount of compensation to which claimants are entitled under the act. McGill v. Bison Fast Freight, Inc., 245 N.C. 469, 96 S.E.2d 438 (1957).

And Does Not Apply to Compromise and Settlement of Common-Law Claim. — Compromise and settlement of the common-law claim of the administratrix of a deceased employee for the wrongful death of the employee, executed under the mistaken belief that the Workers' Compensation Act was not applicable, would not be disturbed on the ground that the Industrial Commission did not approve such settlement as required by this section. McGill v. Bison Fast Freight, Inc., 245 N.C. 469, 96 S.E.2d 438 (1957).

Settlement for out-of-the-state injury may be beyond the jurisdiction of the Commission to approve and enforce. See Reaves v. Earle-Chesterfield Mill Co., 216 N.C. 462, 5 S.E.2d 305 (1939).

Agreements as to Distribution of Proceeds. — An agreement, approved by the commission and otherwise valid, between the parties to a workers' compensation claim as to the distribution between them of proceeds recovered from a third party action is binding. Turner v. CECO Corp., 98 N.C. App. 366, 390 S.E.2d 685 (1990).

An approved compensation agreement is binding on the parties unless and until set aside by the Industrial Commission. Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976).

When Approved by the Commission. — An agreement between the employer and workers' compensation carrier and the employee for the payment of compensation benefits, when approved by the Industrial Commission, is binding on the parties thereto. Buchanan v. Mitchell County, 38 N.C. App. 596, 248 S.E.2d 399 (1978), cert. denied, 296 N.C. 583, 254 S.E.2d 35 (1979).

An agreement for the payment of compensation, when approved by the Commission, is as binding on the parties as an order, decision or award of the Commission unappealed from, or an award of the Commission affirmed upon appeal. Brookover v. Borden, Inc., 100 N.C. App. 754, 398 S.E.2d 604 (1990).

Agreement between worker and employer to pay worker compensation, which is approved by the Industrial Commission, becomes an award of the Commission. Martin v. Piedmont Asphalt & Paving Co., 113 N.C. App. 121, 437 S.E.2d 696 (1993).

But Is Not Binding If Not Approved. — Agreement for compensation which is signed by the parties but is not approved by the Commission pursuant to this section is not binding. Baldwin v. Piedmont Woodyards, Inc., 58 N.C. App. 602, 293 S.E.2d 814 (1982).

A compromise settlement agreement was void where the plaintiff's insurer, a real party in interest, did not consent and the Industrial Commission had subject matter jurisdiction over its claim. Hansen v. Crystal Ford-Mercury, Inc., 138 N.C. App. 369, 531 S.E.2d 867 (2000).

In approving a settlement agreement the Industrial Commission acts in a judicial capacity and the settlement as approved becomes an award enforceable, if necessary, by a court decree. Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976).

The Industrial Commission's approval of a settlement agreement is as conclusive as if made upon a determination of facts in an adversary proceeding. Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976).

An agreement for the payment of compensation, when approved by the Industrial Commission, is as binding on the parties as an order, decision or award of the Commission unappealed from, or an award of the Commission affirmed upon appeal. Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976).

Effects of Agreement on Burden of Proof. — The Commission erred in concluding that as a matter of law because defendants had the burden of proof to present evidence sufficient to rebut a presumption of continued total disability raised by the Form 21 agreement, and defendants had not met that burden, plaintiff was entitled to a continuing presumption of total disability; plaintiff's later Form 26 agreement with its specific duration superseded the earlier Form 21 agreement, which covered her total disability for an indefinite period, and consequently, she had the burden of rebutting the existing presumption of partial disability through the presentation of evidence supporting total disability. Dancy v. Abbott Labs., 139 N.C. App. 553, 534 S.E.2d 601 (2000), review dismissed, 353 N.C. 370 (2001), aff'd, 353 N.C. 446, 545 S.E.2d 211 (2001).

The presumption is that the Industrial Commission approves compromises only after a full investigation and a determination that the settlement is fair and just. Caudill

v. Chatham Mfg. Co., 258 N.C. 99, 128 S.E.2d 128 (1962); Hartsell v. Pickett Cotton Mills, Inc., 4 N.C. App. 67, 165 S.E.2d 792 (1969).

Agreement Nullifying Workers' Compensation Act Not Permitted. — The Industrial Commission has the inherent power, upon application made in due time, to relieve a party from a judicial determination of his rights when the decision is a product of mistake, fraud, or excusable neglect, but this power to prevent injustice by fraud, mistake, or excusable neglect does not extend so far as to permit a nullification of the Workers' Compensation Act by an agreement between a party entitled to receive and a party obligated to pay compensation that they will disregard its provisions. Stanley v. Brown, 261 N.C. 243, 134 S.E.2d 321 (1964).

Commission May Not Set Aside Duly Executed Agreement. — Absent a showing of fraud, misrepresentation, mutual mistake, or undue influence, the Industrial Commission may not set aside a settlement agreement duly executed by the parties, properly submitted to the Industrial Commission for approval, and approved by the Chairman of the Commission in accordance with this section and § 97-82. The fact that defense counsel had attempted to revoke its consent to the agreement after it was submitted to the Commission was immaterial. Glenn v. McDonald's, 109 N.C. App. 45, 425 S.E.2d 727 (1993).

Defendant could not establish the existence of any of the factors listed in this section that would require the Commission to set aside a previously approved I.C. Form 26. Salaam v. North Carolina DOT, 122 N.C. App. 83, 468 S.E.2d 536 (1996), review denied, 345 N.C. 494, 480 S.E.2d 51 (1997).

Agreement May Be Set Aside On Certain Grounds. — An agreement between the employer and workers' compensation carrier and the employee may be set aside when there has been error due to fraud, misrepresentation, undue influence or mutual mistake. Buchanan v. Mitchell County, 38 N.C. App. 596, 248 S.E.2d 399 (1978), cert. denied, 296 N.C. 583, 254 S.E.2d 35 (1979).

The question whether the Industrial Commission has jurisdiction to rescind and set aside settlements and compromise settlements, approved by them, on the ground of mutual mistake of fact, was touched on, but not decided, in Caudill v. Chatham Mfg. Co., 258 N.C. 99, 128 S.E.2d 128 (1962).

Where an employee has received benefits from an agreement for compensation executed by himself, his employer, and the insurance carrier, which agreement was duly approved by the Industrial Commission, he may attack and have such agreement set aside only for fraud, misrepresentation, undue influence, or mutual mistake, and he may not attack it on the ground that the jurisdictional facts therein alleged in regard to the relationship of employer and employee and that the accident arose out of and in the course of the employment were untrue. Tabron v. Gold Leaf Farms, Inc., 269 N.C. 393, 152 S.E.2d 533 (1967).

This statutory provision clearly grants the Industrial Commission the authority to rehear and set aside prior orders approving settlements on any one of the stated grounds, i.e., fraud, misrepresentation, undue influence or mutual mistake. Graham v. City of Hendersonville, 42 N.C. App. 456, 255 S.E.2d 795, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 568, 261 S.E.2d 121 (1979).

Where an employee accepts benefits from an agreement for compensation executed by himself, his employer, and the insurance carrier, which agreement was duly approved by the commission, the employee may attack and have such agreement set aside only for fraud, misrepresentation, undue influence, or mutual mistake. Brookover v. Borden, Inc., 100 N.C. App. 754, 398 S.E.2d 604 (1990).

Setting Aside Award Without Setting Aside Agreement. — An agreement for the payment of compensation is binding on the parties when approved by the Industrial Commission, and therefore where such agreement has been signed and approved by the Commission and an award has been entered thereon, and the Commission has entered an order setting aside the award alone without disturbing the Commission's approval or the agreement of the parties, for fraud, mistake, or misunderstanding, such agreement precludes action at common law. Neal v. Clary, 259 N.C. 163, 130 S.E.2d 39 (1963).

Settlement Agreement Was Not Set Aside on Mutual Mistake Ground. — A worker's compensation settlement agreement was not set aside on the ground that there was mutual mistake of fact even though the Industrial Commission's Advisory Medical Committee reported that the claimant did not have a compensable disease after the settlement was entered into. Mullinax v. Fieldcrest Cannon, Inc., 100 N.C. App. 248, 395 S.E.2d 160 (1990).

The Industrial Commission properly determined that plaintiff, who suffered a back injury and sought to set aside settlement agreement for payment of workers' compensation, was not entitled to have the agreement set aside pursuant to this section on the basis of mutual mistake. Vernon v. Steven L. Mabe Bldrs., 110 N.C. App. 552, 430 S.E.2d 676, rev'd in part, petition for discretionary review improvidently granted in part, 336 N.C. 425, 444 S.E.2d 191 (1994).

The doctrines of mutual mistake, misrepresentation, and fraud did not operate to entitle the employer to relief from a compensation award, where the award was not based on an agreement of the parties but on the defendant's unilateral initiation of payment of compensation and its subsequent failure to contest the claim under § 97-18. Higgins v. Michael Powell Bldrs., 132 N.C. App. 720, 515 S.E.2d 17 (1999).

Modification of Award by Commission Not Subject to Collateral Attack. — The action by the Industrial Commission in modifying an award pursuant to this section is a quasi-judicial act which cannot be collaterally attacked in an independent action. In the absence of a direct appeal, the modified order of the Industrial Commission is conclusively presumed to be correct and cannot be collaterally attacked. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Rushing, 36 N.C. App. 226, 243 S.E.2d 420 (1978).

Where the mistake relied on to set aside a release related only to the consequences of a known injury, and uncertainties in this regard were the subject matter of the compromise settlement, the mistake was not such as to warrant a court of equity in setting aside a release executed pursuant to a settlement approved by the Industrial Commission under this section. Caudill v. Chatham Mfg. Co., 258 N.C. 99, 128 S.E.2d 128 (1962).

Employer's Mistaken Representation Agreement Was a "Proper One." — Where documents, stipulations and findings indisputably showed that the parties and Commission acted upon defendant employer's mistaken representation that the original compensation agreement was a "proper one," and since the mistake benefited its initiator to the detriment of the misinformed, acquiescent plaintiff, fundamental equitable principles required that the mistake not be perpetuated. Cockrell v. Evans Lumber Co., 103 N.C. App. 359, 407 S.E.2d 248 (1991).

The Commission's conclusion that there was no evidence to show causation was not a basis for denying plaintiff's award in a case of admitted liability. Lucas v. Thomas Built Buses, Inc., 88 N.C. App. 587, 364 S.E.2d 147 (1988).

Releases by employers to obtain relief from the obligations created under the Workers' Compensation Act do not bar a retaliatory discharge claim under former § 97-6.1. Tellado v. Ti-Caro Corp., 119 N.C. App. 529, 459 S.E.2d 27 (1995).

Payment of Costs and Attorneys Fees. — The Industrial Commission erred in ordering that defendant's costs and attorney's fees be paid by plaintiff's counsel. Evans v. Young-Hinkle Corp., 123 N.C. App. 693, 474 S.E.2d 152 (1996), cert. denied, 346 N.C. 177, 486 S.E.2d 203 (1997).

The determination of the plaintiff's 'average weekly wages' requires application of § 97-2(5) and case law and thus raises an issue of law; thus, any mistake made by either of the parties is not a basis for setting the agreement aside. Swain v. C & N Evans Trucking Co., 126 N.C. App. 332, 484 S.E.2d 845 (1997).

Action Not Barred. — Where plaintiffs alleged injuries beyond the mere loss of workers' compensation benefits, including emotional distress and punitive damages now provided for by this section, this section was not an effective remedy for the additional injuries; thus, the exclusive remedy doctrine did not apply to bar plaintiff's civil action. Johnson v. First Union Corp., 128 N.C. App. 450, 496 S.E.2d 1 (1998).

Jurisdiction of Commission after Settlement. — Because the Industrial Commission, pursuant to this article, has sole jurisdiction over the plaintiff worker's allegations, after settlement, that defendants committed fraud, bad faith, unfair and deceptive trade practices, intentional infliction of emotional distress and civil conspiracy during the handling of his workers' compensation claim, the trial court properly dismissed the post-settlement claim pursuant to § 1A-1-12(b). Deem v. Treadaway & Sons Painting & Wallcovering, Inc., 142 N.C. App. 472, 543 S.E.2d 209 (2001).

Applied in Williams v. Insurance Repair Specialists of N.C., Inc., 32 N.C. App. 235, 232 S.E.2d 5 (1977); Little v. Anson County Schools Food Serv., 295 N.C. 527, 246 S.E.2d 743 (1978); Roberts v. Carolina Tables of Hickory, 76 N.C. App. 148, 331 S.E.2d 757 (1985); *Saunders v. ## § 97-18. Prompt payment of compensation required; installment; payment without prejudice; notice to Commission; penalties.

(a) Compensation under this Article shall be paid periodically, promptly and directly to the person entitled thereto unless otherwise specifically provided.

(b) When the employer admits the employee's right to compensation, the first installment of compensation payable by the employer shall become due on the fourteenth day after the employer has written or actual notice of the injury or death, on which date all compensation then due shall be paid. Compensation thereafter shall be paid in installments weekly except where the Commission determines that payment in installments should be made monthly or at some other period. Upon paying the first installment of compensation and upon suspending, reinstating, changing, or modifying such compensation for any cause, the insurer shall immediately notify the Commission, on a form prescribed by the Commission, that compensation has begun, or has been suspended, reinstated, changed, or modified. A copy of each notice shall be provided to the employee. The first notice of payment to the Commission shall contain the date and nature of the injury, the average weekly wages of the employee, the weekly compensation rate, the date the disability resulting from the injury began, and the date compensation commenced.

(c) If the employer denies the employee's right to compensation, the employer shall notify the Commission, on or before the fourteenth day after it has written or actual notice of the injury or death, and advise the employee in writing of its refusal to pay compensation on a form prescribed by the Commission. This notification shall (i) include the name of the employee, the name of the employer, the date of the alleged injury or death, the insurer on the risk, if any, and a detailed statement of the grounds upon which the right to compensation is denied, and (ii) advise the employee of the employee's right to request a hearing pursuant to G.S. 97-83.

(d) In any claim for compensation in which the employer or insurer is uncertain on reasonable grounds whether the claim is compensable or whether it has liability for the claim under this Article, the employer or insurer may initiate compensation payments without prejudice and without admitting liability. The initial payment shall be accompanied by a form prescribed by and filed with the Commission, stating that the payments are being made without prejudice. Payments made pursuant to this subsection may continue until the employer or insurer contests or accepts liability for the claim or 90 days from the date the employer has written or actual notice of the injury or death, whichever occurs first, unless an extension is granted pursuant to this section. Prior to the expiration of the 90-day period, the employer or insurer may upon reasonable grounds apply to the Commission for an extension of not more than 30 days. The initiation of payment does not affect the right of the employer or insurer to continue to investigate or deny the compensability of the claim or its liability therefor during this period. If at any time during the 90-day period or extension thereof, the employer or insurer contests the compensability of the claim or its liability therefor, it may suspend payment of compensation and shall promptly notify the Commission and the employee on a form prescribed by the Commission. The employer or insurer must provide on the prescribed form a detailed statement of its grounds for denying compensability of the claim or its liability therefor. If the employer or insurer does not contest the compensability of the claim or its liability therefor within 90 days from the date it first has written or actual notice of the injury or death, or within such additional period as may be granted by the Commission, it waives the right to contest the compensability of and its liability for the claim under this Article. However, the employer or insurer may contest the compensability of or its liability for the claim after the 90-day period or extension thereof when it can show that material evidence was discovered after that period that could not have been reasonably discovered earlier, in which event the employer or insurer may terminate or suspend compensation subject to the provisions of G.S. 97-18.1.

(e) The first installment of compensation payable under the terms of an award by the Commission, or under the terms of a judgment of the court upon an appeal from such an award, shall become due 10 days from the day following expiration of the time for appeal from the award or judgment or the day after notice waiving the right of appeal by all parties has been received by the Commission, whichever is sooner. Thereafter compensation shall be paid in installments weekly, except where the Commission determines that payment in installments shall be made monthly or in some other manner.

(f) The employer's or insurer's grounds for contesting the employee's claim or its liability therefor as specified in the notice suspending compensation under subsection (d) of this section are the only bases for the employer's or insurer's defense on the issue of compensability in a subsequent proceeding, unless the defense is based on newly discovered material evidence that could not reasonably have been discovered prior to the notice suspending compensation.

(g) If any installment of compensation is not paid within 14 days after it becomes due, there shall be added to such unpaid installment an amount equal to ten per centum (10%) thereof, which shall be paid at the same time as, but in addition to, such installment, unless such nonpayment is excused by the Commission after a showing by the employer that owing to conditions over which he had no control such installment could not be paid within the period prescribed for the payment.

(h) Within 16 days after final payment of compensation has been made, the employer shall send to the Commission and the employee a notice, in accordance with a form prescribed by the Commission, stating that such final payment has been made, the total amount of compensation paid, the name of the employee and of any other person to whom compensation has been paid, the date of the injury or death, and the date to which compensation has been paid. If the employer fails to so notify the Commission or the employee within such time, the Commission shall assess against such employer a civil penalty in the amount of twenty-five dollars ($25.00). The clear proceeds of civil penalties assessed pursuant to this section shall be remitted to the Civil Penalty and Forfeiture Fund in accordance with G.S. 115C-457.2.

(i) If any bill for services rendered under G.S. 97-25 by any provider of health care is not paid within 60 days after it has been approved by the Commission and returned to the responsible party, or within 60 days after it was properly submitted, in accordance with the provisions of this Article, to an insurer or managed care organization responsible for direct reimbursement pursuant to G.S. 97-26(g), there shall be added to such unpaid bill an amount equal to ten per centum (10%) thereof, which shall be paid at the same time as, but in addition to, such medical bill, unless such late payment is excused by the Commission. (1929, c. 120, s. 181/2; 1967, c. 1229, s. 2; 1979, c. 249, ss. 1, 2; c. 599; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 3.1; 1998-215, s. 114.)

CASE NOTES

Payment of Settlement Award. — To calculate the date a compromise settlement award becomes due under the Workers' Compensation Act, a party must: (1) allow the 15 day appeal time of § 97-85; (2) then add ten days pursuant to subsection (e) of this section; and (3) finally, add 14 days as required under subsection (g) of this section; thus, a paying party liable under a compromise settlement has 39 days from the date the compromise settlement is approved to tender payment, with liability for non-payment attaching on the fortieth day. Felmet v. Duke Power Co., 131 N.C. App. 87, 504 S.E.2d 815 (1998).

Notice of Final Payment to Employee Not Required by Section. — This section does not require that the employer provide a copy of notice of final payment, Form 28B, to the employee, and no such requirement is found in any of the other provisions of this Chapter. Willis v. J.M. Davis Indus., Inc., 280 N.C. 709, 186 S.E.2d 913 (1972).

Employee Has No Remedy for Employer's Failure to File a Form 28B under This Section. — The plain language of this section provides a remedy only to the Commission, not to the plaintiff employee, for the defendant employer's failure to comply with its express provisions. Hunter v. Perquimans County Bd. of Educ., 139 N.C. App. 352, 533 S.E.2d 562 (2000), cert. denied, 352 N.C. 674, 545 S.E.2d 424 (2000).

But Commission Rule XI (5) Requires Notice of Final Payment. — Rule XI (5) provides that employers will send a copy of Form 28B to the claimant within 16 days after his last payment of compensation. Willis v. J.M. Davis Indus., Inc., 280 N.C. 709, 186 S.E.2d 913 (1972).

Commission Rule XI (5) Conformed to This Section. — Industrial Commission Rule XI (5), adopted pursuant to the authority granted in § 97-80, conformed to subsection (f) of this section insofar as the time of sending Form 28B is concerned. Willis v. J.M. Davis Indus., Inc., 280 N.C. 709, 186 S.E.2d 913 (1972).

Award of the Commission. — The employer's execution of Industrial Commission Form 60 constitutes an award of the Commission and thus entitles the employee to seek the imposition of a judgment, which in turn entitles him to seek execution for past due installments and future installments as they become due. Calhoun v. Wayne Dennis Heating & Air Conditioning, 129 N.C. App. 794, 501 S.E.2d 346 (1998).

Modification of Award Prior to Filing of Closing Receipt. — A closing receipt, also called I.C. Form 28B, must be filed with the Commission. Until it is filed with and approved by the Commission, the Commission may continue to receive evidence and modify or add to a preliminary compensation award. Hill v. Hanes Corp., 79 N.C. App. 67, 339 S.E.2d 1 (1986), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

Determination of Final Payment. — For purposes of § 97-47, the statutory one-year period for filing a claim for a change of condition begins at the time final payment is accepted, not when I.C. Form 28B is filed. Nonetheless, the Commission must be given the opportunity to determine whether a payment labeled "final" is or should be, in fact, the final payment. After this determination is made, the Commission accepts and approves a copy of Form 28B. Hill v. Hanes Corp., 79 N.C. App. 67, 339 S.E.2d 1 (1986), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

Settlement proceeds are not "wages" as a matter of law. Allmon v. Alcatel, Inc., 124 N.C. App. 341, 477 S.E.2d 90 (1996).

The settlement of a claim for federal civil rights violations is not, nor was it intended to be, a substitute for workers' compensation benefits; the settlement agreement clearly reserved all rights to remedies available to plaintiff under the Workers' Compensation Act. Allmon v. Alcatel, Inc., 124 N.C. App. 341, 477 S.E.2d 90 (1996).

Penalties. — Competent evidence supported the Industrial Commission's decision to assess a 10% penalty for late payments, where the employer wrongfully terminated its employee's workers' compensation payments without Commission approval. Tucker v. Workable Co., 129 N.C. App. 695, 501 S.E.2d 360 (1998).

Standard for Relief on the Ground of Newly Discovered Evidence. — The standard for providing relief on the ground of newly discovered evidence requires that the evidence be new, i.e., available only after the initial hearing, and that the party seeking relief show that, when the award was entered, evidence material to the case existed that he did not learn about, through due diligence, until later. Higgins v. Michael Powell Bldrs., 132 N.C. App. 720, 515 S.E.2d 17 (1999).

When Doctrines of Mutual Mistake, Misrepresentation, and Fraud Not Applicable. — The doctrines of mutual mistake, misrepresentation, and fraud did not operate to entitle the employer to relief from a compensation award, where the award was not based on an agreement of the parties but on the defendant's unilateral initiation of payment of compensation and its subsequent failure to contest the claim under this section. Higgins v. Michael Powell Bldrs., 132 N.C. App. 720, 515 S.E.2d 17 (1999).

Plaintiff Must Follow Proper Procedure to Preserve Issues in This Section on Appeal. — Plaintiff's attempt to argue that the Commission erred both in concluding that the defendant insurer's policy did not cover plaintiff's North Carolina injuries, and in failing to assess a 10% late payment penalty against defendant pursuant to this section failed because he did not file a cross-appeal and because neither of his cross-assignments of error, if sustained, would provide an alternative basis for upholding the Commission's order and award, as outlined in N.C.R. App. P., Rule 10(d). Harrison v. Tobacco Transp., Inc., 139 N.C. App. 561, 533 S.E.2d 871 (2000), cert. denied, 353 N.C. 263, 546 S.E.2d 96 (2000).

Timeliness of Payment. — The Industrial Commission properly denied the plaintiff's petition for an order requiring the defendant to pay a 10% penalty under this section where defendant's payment was received on the fortieth day after the defendant received the order from the Commission approving the settlement agreement and where the thirty-ninth day was a Sunday. Morris v. L.G. Dewitt Trucking, Inc., 143 N.C. App. 339, 545 S.E.2d 474 (2001).

Sanctions Were Proper. — The Commission did not act arbitrarily or abuse its discretion in imposing sanctions of $2,500 on defendant employer who unilaterally terminated the benefits of plaintiff employee, who was robbed at gunpoint and shot during his shift as a night auditor, where nothing in the record supported defendant's speculation that the assault might have been personally motivated and where the employer filed a Form 63 (paying compensation "without prejudice and without admitting liability"), instead of Form 21 (admitting compensability), and thus avoided the necessity of filing Form 24 and having to seek permission of the Commission to stop weekly compensation payments; if an employer or insurer initially believes that a claim may not be compensable and utilizes the Form 63 procedure, and then discovers after investigation that the claim is clearly compensable, the better practice is to promptly file either Form 21 or Form 60. Shah v. Johnson, 140 N.C. App. 58, 535 S.E.2d 577 (2000).

Sanctions were not proper where nonpayment was excused because defendant could not comply with the Industrial Commission's order that payments be made only to a general guardian. Valles de Portillo v. D.H. Griffin Wrecking Co., 134 N.C. App. 714, 518 S.E.2d 555 (1999), cert. denied, 351 N.C. 186, 541 S.E.2d 727 (1999).

Form 60 does not carry with it the same presumption of continuing disability as Form 21; the burden of proving disability, therefore, remains with the employee. Sims v. Charmes/Arby's Roast Beef, 142 N.C. App. 154, 542 S.E.2d 277 (2001), cert. denied, 353 N.C. 729, 550 S.E.2d 782 (2001).

§ 97-18.1. Termination or suspension of compensation benefits.

(a) Payments of compensation pursuant to an award of the Commission shall continue until the terms of the award have been fully satisfied.

(b) An employer may terminate payment of compensation for total disability being paid pursuant to G.S. 97-29 when the employee has returned to work for the same or a different employer, subject to the provisions of G.S. 97-32.1, or when the employer contests a claim pursuant to G.S. 97-18(d) within the time allowed thereunder. The employer shall promptly notify the Commission and the employee, on a form prescribed by the Commission, of the termination of compensation and the availability of trial return to work and additional compensation due the employee for any partial disability.

(c) An employer seeking to terminate or suspend compensation being paid pursuant to G.S. 97-29 for a reason other than those specified in subsection (b) of this section shall notify the employee and the employee's attorney of record in writing of its intent to do so on a form prescribed by the Commission. A copy of the notice shall be filed with the Commission. This form shall contain the reasons for the proposed termination or suspension of compensation, be supported by available documentation, and inform the employee of the employee's right to contest the termination or suspension by filing an objection in writing with the Commission within 14 days of the date the employer's notice is filed with the Commission or within such additional reasonable time as the Commission may allow.

(d) If the employee fails to object to the employer's notice of proposed termination or suspension within the time provided, the Commission may enter an appropriate order terminating or suspending the compensation if it finds that there is a sufficient basis under this Article for this action. If the employee files a timely objection to the employer's notice, the Commission shall conduct an informal hearing by telephone with the parties or their counsel. If either party objects to conducting the hearing by telephone, the Commission may conduct the hearing in person in Raleigh or at another location selected by the Commission. The parties shall be afforded an opportunity to state their position and to submit documentary evidence at the informal hearing. The employer may waive the right to an informal hearing and proceed to the formal hearing. The informal hearing, whether by telephone or in person, shall be conducted only on the issue of termination or suspension of compensation and shall be conducted within 25 days of the receipt by the Commission of the employer's notice to the employee unless this time is extended by the Commission for good cause. The Commission shall issue a decision on the employer's application for termination of compensation within five days after completion of the informal hearing. The decision shall (i) approve the application, (ii) disapprove the application, or (iii) state that the Commission is unable to reach a decision on the application in an informal hearing, in which event the Commission shall schedule a formal hearing pursuant to G.S. 97-83 on the employer's application for termination of compensation. Compensation may be terminated or suspended by the employer following an informal hearing only if its application is approved. If the Commission was unable to reach a decision in the informal hearing, the employee's compensation shall continue pending a decision by the Commission in the formal hearing. The Commission's decision in the informal hearing is not binding in subsequent hearings.

The employer or the employee may request a formal hearing pursuant to G.S. 97-83 on the Commission's decision approving or denying the employer's application for termination of compensation. A formal hearing under G.S. 97-83 ordered or requested pursuant to this section shall be a hearing de novo on the employer's application for termination or suspension of compensation and may be scheduled by the Commission on a preemptive basis.

(e) At an informal hearing on the issue of termination or suspension of compensation, and at any subsequent hearing, the Commission may address related issues regarding the selection of medical providers or treatment under G.S. 97-25, subject to exhaustion of the dispute resolution procedures of a managed care organization pursuant to G.S. 97-25.2. (1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, ss. 3.6, 10.9.)

CASE NOTES

Formal Hearing. — Under this section, the employee may request a formal hearing de novo if benefits are suspended following an informal hearing by telephone. Bryant v. Weyerhaeuser Co., 130 N.C. App. 135, 502 S.E.2d 58 (1998), cert. denied, 349 N.C. 228, 515 S.E.2d 700

(1998), cert. denied, 349 N.C. 352, — S.E.2d — (1998).

The employer should file a Form 24 when the employer is uncertain whether the employee has returned to work; a Form 28T is to be used by the employer only when such employer is certain that the employee has returned to work and has conclusive evidence to establish the employment. Lewis v. Sonoco Prods. Co., 137 N.C. App. 61, 526 S.E.2d 671 (2000).

Return to Work Assertion Does Not Necessarily Raise Wage Earning Capacity Issue. — Where defendants did not assert any other reason for termination of plaintiff's benefits besides "return to work" on the Form 28T, the record revealed that the plaintiff denied that she ever attempted a "trial return to work" and that she, therefore, was not required to file a Form 28U, and it was undisputed that defendants did not file a Form 24 seeking to terminate plaintiff's compensation on grounds other than plaintiff's "return to work", the only issue before the Full Commission was whether or not plaintiff had returned to work, warranting termination of benefits pursuant to this section; thus it did not consider the issue of whether or not plaintiff had wage earning capacity and neither would the Court of Appeals. Lewis v. Sonoco Prods. Co., 137 N.C. App. 61, 526 S.E.2d 671 (2000).

Plaintiff employee's benefits should not have been terminated under this section, pursuant to defendants' Form 28T request, where competent evidence supported the finding that while plaintiff engaged in intermittent mowing activities and appeared once before a Board of Adjustment on behalf of her mother, she had not returned to either full or part-time employment. Lewis v. Sonoco Prods. Co., 137 N.C. App. 61, 526 S.E.2d 671 (2000).

§ 97-19. Liability of principal contractors; certificate that subcontractor has complied with law; right to recover compensation of those who would have been liable; order of liability.

Any principal contractor, intermediate contractor, or subcontractor who shall sublet any contract for the performance of any work without requiring from such subcontractor or obtaining from the Industrial Commission a certificate, issued by a workers' compensation insurance carrier, or a certificate of compliance issued by the Department of Insurance to a self-insured subcontractor, stating that such subcontractor has complied with G.S. 97-93 hereof, shall be liable, irrespective of whether such subcontractor has regularly in service fewer than three employees in the same business within this State, to the same extent as such subcontractor would be if he were subject to the provisions of this Article for the payment of compensation and other benefits under this Article on account of the injury or death of any employee of such subcontractor due to an accident arising out of and in the course of the performance of the work covered by such subcontract. If the principal contractor, intermediate contractor or subcontractor shall obtain such certificate at the time of subletting such contract to subcontractor, he shall not thereafter be held liable to any employee of such subcontractor for compensation or other benefits under this Article.

Any principal contractor, intermediate contractor, or subcontractor paying compensation or other benefits under this Article, under the foregoing provisions of this section, may recover the amount so paid from any person, persons, or corporation who independently of such provision, would have been liable for the payment thereof.

Every claim filed with the Industrial Commission under this section shall be instituted against all parties liable for payment, and said Commission, in its award, shall fix the order in which said parties shall be exhausted, beginning with the immediate employer.

The principal or owner may insure any or all of his contractors and their employees in a blanket policy, and when so insured such contractor's employees will be entitled to compensation benefits regardless of whether the relationship of employer and employee exists between the principal and the contractor. ### CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Most of the annotations under this section were decided prior to the 1987 amendment, which increased the scope of liability under this section.

Purpose of Section. — The manifest purpose of this section, enacted as an amendment to the original act, is to protect employees of irresponsible and uninsured subcontractors by imposing ultimate liability on principal contractors, intermediate contractors, or subcontractors, who, presumably being financially responsible, have it within their power, in choosing subcontractors, to pass upon their financial responsibility and insist upon appropriate compensation protection for their workers. It is also the obvious aim of the statute to forestall evasion of the act by those who might be tempted to subdivide their regular operations with the workers, thus relegating them for compensation protection to small subcontractors, who fail to carry, or if small enough may not even be required to carry, compensation insurance. Greene v. Spivey, 236 N.C. 435, 73 S.E.2d 488 (1952).

This section was enacted by the Legislature to deliberately bring specific categories of conceded nonemployees within the coverage of the Act for the purpose of protecting such workers from financially irresponsible sub-contractors who do not carry workmen's compensation insurance, and to prevent principal contractors, intermediate contractors, and sub-contractors from relieving themselves of liability under the Act by doing through sub-contractors what they would otherwise do through the agency of direct employees. Cook v. Norvell-Mackorell Real Estate Co., 99 N.C. App. 307, 392 S.E.2d 758 (1990).

The 1987 amendment clearly extended the class of persons protected by this provision to include not only employees of the subcontractor but also the subcontractor himself. Southerland v. B.V. Hedrick Gravel & Sand Co., 345 N.C. 739, 483 S.E.2d 150 (1997).

Prior to the 1987 amendment, this section was interpreted to protect the employees of a subcontractor, not the subcontractor himself. Boone v. Vinson, 127 N.C. App. 604, 492 S.E.2d 356 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 573, 498 S.E.2d 377 (1998).

This Section Modifies § 97-2(1). — As a general proposition, the only private employments covered by the act are those "in which five (now three) or more employees are regularly employed in the same business or establishment." See § 97-2(1). But this general rule is subject to the exception created by this section, which was manifestly enacted to protect the employees of financially irresponsible subcontractors who do not carry compensation insurance, and to prevent principal contractors, intermediate contractors, and subcontractors from relieving themselves of liability under the act by doing through subcontractors what they would otherwise do through the agency of direct employees. Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949).

Exclusive Remedy. — Defendant principal contractor was plaintiff's statutory employer and the workers' compensation benefits available to plaintiff through defendant's workers' compensation carrier constituted plaintiff's exclusive remedy against defendant for plaintiff's injuries. Rich v. R.L. Casey, Inc., 118 N.C. App. 156, 454 S.E.2d 666 (1995).

This section protects the employees of a subcontractor, not the subcontractor himself. Doud v. K & G Janitorial Servs., 69 N.C. App. 205, 316 S.E.2d 664, cert. denied, 312 N.C. 492, 322 S.E.2d 554 (1984).

When a principal contractor sublets part of the contract to an independent contractor, that independent contractor's employees are protected by this section if the independent contractor is uninsured. Zocco v. United States, Dep't of Army, 791 F. Supp. 595 (E.D.N.C. 1992).

But subcontractor is not entitled to immunity from civil suit merely because principal contractor secured workers' compensation insurance coverage for subcontractor's employees. Zocco v. United States, Dep't of Army, 791 F. Supp. 595 (E.D.N.C. 1992).

Jurisdiction Over Claim by Subcontractor Present. — This section (as in effect between August 5, 1987 and June 10, 1996) extends workers' compensation benefits to subcontractors under the same conditions as it extends coverage to employees of subcontractors, thereby giving the Industrial Commission jurisdiction over a claim by plaintiff, a subcontractor, which arose on December 12, 1990. Southerland v. B.V. Hedrick Gravel & Sand Co., 345 N.C. 739, 483 S.E.2d 150 (1997).

General Contractor Liable for Subcontractor's Injuries. — Where, prior to the time of subcontracting the performance of roofing work, the general contractor did not require from the subcontractor, plaintiff, a certificate of insurance, and general contractor did not obtain from the Industrial Commission a certificate stating that plaintiff had complied with § 97-93, the general contractor was liable for plaintiff's injuries pursuant to this section as it existed at the time of plaintiff's accident. Southerland v. B.V. Hedrick Gravel & Sand Co., 345 N.C. 739, 483 S.E.2d 150 (1997).

Section Is Exception to "Employment" and "Employee" Definitions of § 97-2. — This section, the so-called "statutory employer" or "contractor under" statute, is an exception to the general definitions of "employment" and "employee" set forth at § 97-2. Cook v. Norvell-Mackorell Real Estate Co., 99 N.C. App. 307, 392 S.E.2d 758 (1990).

Scope of Section. — This section is inapplicable to those business relationships between employers and independent contractors. Pinckney v. United States, 671 F. Supp. 405 (E.D.N.C. 1987).

This section is not applicable to an independent contractor as distinguished from a subcontractor of the class designated by the statute. And all the more is it so that the statute does not apply to an independent employer who produces or gets out raw materials of his own, like logs, and sells them in the open market to a processor-purchaser who has no control whatsoever over the operations of the independent employer. Greene v. Spivey, 236 N.C. 435, 73 S.E.2d 488 (1952).

This section imposes liability, under certain specified circumstances, on the principal contractor or employer for injuries and death to employees of his independent contractor or of his subcontractor, but the provisions of this section do not extend to his independent contractor personally or to his subcontractor personally when he is an independent contractor. Richards v. Nationwide Homes, 263 N.C. 295, 139 S.E.2d 645 (1965).

This section is inapplicable to those business relationships between employers and independent contractors. Pinckney v. United States, 671 F. Supp. 405 (E.D.N.C. 1987).

Employer Liable for Injury to Independent Contractor. — Where the employer had no certificate that its independent contractor had workers' compensation insurance and the contractor had not waived workers' compensation coverage in writing for the year in which he was injured, the employer was liable for workers' compensation benefits. Davis v. Taylor-Wilkes Helicopter Serv., Inc., 145 N.C. App. 1, 549 S.E.2d 580 (2001).

This section may apply as between two independent contractors, one of whom is a subcontractor to the other; but it does not apply as between a principal, i.e., an owner, and an independent contractor. Cook v. Norvell-Mackorell Real Estate Co., 99 N.C. App. 307, 392 S.E.2d 758 (1990).

Amended Version of Section Did Not Control. — Since plaintiff's injury occurred on November 25, 1985, and the amended version of § 97-19 became effective upon ratification on August 5, 1987, the amendment was not controlling. Ramey v. Sherwin-Williams Co., 92 N.C. App. 341, 374 S.E.2d 472 (1988).

Number of Persons Regularly Employed by Contractor Is Immaterial. — Where a contractor sublets a part of the contract to a subcontractor without requiring from the subcontractor a certificate that he had procured compensation insurance or had satisfied the Industrial Commission of his financial responsibility as a self-insurer under § 97-93, such contractor is properly held secondarily liable for compensation to an employee of the subcontractor, even though the contractor regularly employs less than five (now three) employees. Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949). See § 97-2.

Order of Liability. — The liability of the employer under the award is primary. He, by contract, may secure liability insurance for his protection, but his obligation to the injured employee is unimpaired. Roberts v. City Ice & Coal Co., 210 N.C. 17, 185 S.E. 438 (1936).

Principal Held Not Liable for Failure of Independent Contractor to Insure. — A mill company contracted with one G to paint the mill. The company was to furnish all materials; G was to furnish brushes and skilled labor. G testified that he, and not the mill company, had complete control of the painters employed on the job. It was held that G was not an employee, but an independent contractor within the meaning of the act, and the mill company was not liable for G's failure to insure. McCraw v. Calvine Mills, 233 N.C. 524, 64 S.E.2d 658 (1951).

Employee Not Covered Where General Contractor Was Also Owner. — The Industrial Commission erred when it found that the injured employee was covered under this section where his employer was not a subcontractor, but an independent contractor because the general contractor was also the owner of the property. Purser v. Heatherlin Properties, 137 N.C. App. 332, 527 S.E.2d 689 (2000).

Main Contractor Held Agent of Insurer in Effecting Compensation Insurance for Independent Contractor. See Greene v. Spivey, 236 N.C. 435, 73 S.E.2d 488 (1952).

Lumber Company. — A lumber company which purchased timber on the basis of a stipulated price per thousand feet when processed into lumber by it, and which was given the privilege of going upon the land and cutting and logging the timber to its site, could not be held a contractor of the owners of the timber in the performance of the logging operations, and therefore a person employed by it to conduct logging operations could not be a subcontractor within the meaning of this section; and thus the section had no application in determining the liability for injury to one of the workers employed in the logging operations. Evans v. Tabor City Lumber Co., 232 N.C. 111, 59 S.E.2d 612 (1950).

On an almost identical set of facts, claimant brought an action against lumber company, on the ground that his superior was not an independent contractor or a subcontractor, but was actually an employee of the lumber company. On the evidence there presented, the court held that an award of compensation based on the employee-employer relation should be affirmed. Scott v. Waccamaw Lumber Co., 232 N.C. 162, 59 S.E.2d 425 (1950).

Assistant Driver Employed by Owner-Lessor of Truck under Trip-Lease Agreement. — Where the owner of a truck drove same on a trip in interstate commerce for an interstate carrier under a trip-lease agreement providing that the carrier's I.C.C. license plates would be used and that the carrier would retain control and direction over the truck, an assistant driver employed by the owner-lessee was an employee of the carrier within the coverage of the Workers' Compensation Act. Further, if the owner-lessee were considered an independent contractor, but had less than five (now four) employees and no compensation insurance coverage, the carrier would still be liable under this section. McGill v. Bison Fast Freight, Inc., 245 N.C. 469, 96 S.E.2d 438 (1957).

Section Cannot Apply Absent Contract for Performance of Work. — This section, by its own terms, cannot apply unless there is first a contract for the performance of work which is then for the performance of work which is then sublet. Cook v. Norvell-Mackorell Real Estate Co., 99 N.C. App. 307, 392 S.E.2d 758 (1990).

Jurisdictional Facts Which Commission Finds Are Not Binding on Court of Appeals. — The jurisdictional facts found by the Commission, though supported by competent evidence, are not binding on the Court of Appeals. Instead, it is required to review the evidence of record and make independent findings of jurisdictional facts established by the greater weight of the evidence with regard to plaintiff's employment status. Cook v. Norvell-Mackorell Real Estate Co., 99 N.C. App. 307, 392 S.E.2d 758 (1990).

In order to extend workers' compensation insurance contract between general contractor and its insurance carrier to cover plaintiff subcontractor, action or behavior that demonstrated a desire to extend coverage on behalf of both the general contractor and the insurance carrier had to be shown. Carroll v. Daniels & Daniels Constr. Co., 327 N.C. 616, 398 S.E.2d 325 (1990), decided under prior version of § 97-19.

Rental Management Business Was Not Statutory Employer of Plaintiff Roofer. — Rental management business, which was neither contractually obligated to replace shingles on the roofs of apartment buildings it managed nor permitted to exercise its independent judgment in engaging roofing company to perform this work, was not an independent contractor with the owners with respect to the work performed to repair the roofs, but merely an agent for the owners. Thus rental management business could not be plaintiff roofer's statutory employer within the meaning of this section, notwithstanding rental management business's failure to ascertain roofing company's compliance with the provisions of § 97-93. Cook v. Norvell-Mackorell Real Estate Co., 99 N.C. App. 307, 392 S.E.2d 758 (1990).

Industrial Commission properly found that defendant homebuilding company did not sublet any contract for the performance of work to framers and that defendant was not a "principal contractor" with regard to subdivision under construction but the "owner"; since homebuilding company had not undertaken to do anything for anyone else and thus could not be an "original contractor," this section was inapplicable as to compensation claim filed by employee of framers. Mayhew v. Howell, 102 N.C. App. 269, 401 S.E.2d 831, aff'd, 330 N.C. 113, 408 S.E.2d 853 (1991).

Evidence Insufficient to Support Estoppel of Carrier. — Where Deputy Commissioner found that there was a past course of dealing between the insurance carrier and insured company to cover "people" under workers' compensation insurance, the reviewing court could not conclude that the carrier acquiesced to coverage of "subcontractors" themselves, without additional findings of fact. Carroll v. Daniels & Daniels Constr. Co., 327 N.C. 616, 398 S.E.2d 325 (1990), decided under prior version of § 97-19.

If an insurance carrier accepts workers' compensation insurance premiums for an individual, it cannot deny liability for coverage; however, where there was evidence that company (insured) deducted the premium from plaintiff's (subcontractor's) pay, but no evidence that the carrier accepted payments, and no evidence regarding the carrier's acceptance of premiums for other subcontractors in the past, the Court of Appeals incorrectly stated that "[s]ince carrier routinely accepted premiums from employer for the coverage of subcontractors, it can be assumed that carrier would have followed that practice in this case. The carrier cannot now be allowed to object to the practice in which it had acquiesced." The Court of Appeals erred by making its own findings of fact regarding past dealings between company and carrier. Carroll v. Daniels & Daniels Constr. Co., 327 N.C. 616, 398 S.E.2d 325 (1990), decided under prior version of § 97-19.

Failure to Consider Doctrine of Estoppel. — The Industrial Commission erred in failing to consider whether defendants, employer and insurance carrier, were estopped from denying insurance liability for the injured employee, who was not eligible under this section because his employer was not a subcontractor, where the plaintiff did not have his own insurance coverage and relied on his employer's promise of insurance before beginning work and where the insurance company did not expressly provide coverage to the plaintiff because it did not know about the plaintiff until after he was injured, and it never actually received the withheld premiums from the general contractor. Purser v. Heatherlin Properties, 137 N.C. App. 332, 527 S.E.2d 689 (2000).

Principal Contractor Not Employee. — Principal contractor was not a statutory employer under this section, and therefore, was not liable for the payment of workers' compensation benefits. Patterson v. Markham & Assocs., 123 N.C. App. 448, 474 S.E.2d 400 (1996).

N.C. App. 275, 458 S.E.2d 251 (1995).

Carrier Not Liable for Injuries of Independent Contractor's Employee. — Where freight hauling company retained the right of control over the hiring, training and compensation of its employees, and a contract expressly defined it as an independent contractor, the Industrial Commission incorrectly exercised jurisdiction under this section to enter an award against the defendant/carrier that leased the company's trucks. Williams v. ARL, Inc., 133 N.C. App. 625, 516 S.E.2d 187 (1999).

§ 97-20. Priority of compensation claims against assets of employer.

All rights of compensation granted by this Article shall have the same preference or priority for the whole thereof against the assets of the employer as is allowed by law for any unpaid wages for labor. (1929, c. 120, s. 20.)

§ 97-21. Claims unassignable and exempt from taxes and debts; agreement of employee to contribute to premium or waive right to compensation void; unlawful deduction by employer.

No claim for compensation under this Article shall be assignable, and all compensation and claims therefor shall be exempt from all claims of creditors and from taxes.

No agreement by an employee to pay any portion of premium paid by his employer to a carrier or to contribute to a benefit fund or department maintained by such employer for the purpose of providing compensation or medical services and supplies as required by this Article shall be valid, and any employer who makes a deduction for such purpose from the pay of any employee entitled to the benefits of this Article shall be guilty of a Class 3 misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished only by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars ($500.00). No agreement by an employee to waive his right to compensation under this Chapter shall be valid. (1929, c. 120, s. 21; 1993, c. 539, s. 677; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 24, s. 14(c).)

CASE NOTES

Obligation to support one's children is not a "debt" in the legal sense of the word;

thus, a defendant can be required to pay child support out of his workers' compensation benefits. State v. Miller, 77 N.C. App. 436, 335 S.E.2d 187 (1985).

Imposition of Constructive Trust in Fraud Case Upheld. — The language of this section declaring that workers' compensation benefits are "exempt from all claims of creditors" did not preclude the trial court from imposing the equitable remedy of a constructive trust in favor of an employer who had been defrauded by employee's unfair and deceptive acts. Sara Lee Corp. v. Carter, 351 N.C. 27, 519 S.E.2d 308 (1999).

§ 97-22. Notice of accident to employer.

Every injured employee or his representative shall immediately on the occurrence of an accident, or as soon thereafter as practicable, give or cause to be given to the employer a written notice of the accident, and the employee shall not be entitled to physician's fees nor to any compensation which may have accrued under the terms of this Article prior to the giving of such notice, unless it can be shown that the employer, his agent or representative, had knowledge of the accident, or that the party required to give such notice had been prevented from doing so by reason of physical or mental incapacity, or the fraud or deceit of some third person; but no compensation shall be payable unless such written notice is given within 30 days after the occurrence of the accident or death, unless reasonable excuse is made to the satisfaction of the Industrial Commission for not giving such notice and the Commission is satisfied that the employer has not been prejudiced thereby. (1929, c. 120, s. 22.)

Cross References. — As to minor dependent without guardian, etc., see § 97-50.

CASE NOTES

Necessity for Giving Notice. — An employee is not entitled to recover unless he can show that he has complied with the provisions of the statute in respect to the giving of notice, or has shown reasonable excuse to the satisfaction of the Industrial Commission for not giving such notice and the Commission is satisfied that the employer has not been prejudiced thereby. Singleton v. Durham Laundry Co., 213 N.C. 32, 195 S.E. 34 (1938).

The purpose of the notice-of-injury requirement is two-fold. It allows the employer to provide immediate medical diagnosis and treatment with a view to minimizing the seriousness of the injury, and it facilitates the earliest possible investigation of the circumstances surrounding the injury. Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

Exceptions to Required Written Notice. — This section clearly requires written notice by an injured employee to his employer within 30 days after the occurrence of the accident or death unless the commission is satisfied of two things: (1) there was reasonable excuse for not giving the written notice, and (2) the employer was not prejudiced thereby. Pierce v. Autoclave Block Corp., 27 N.C. App. 276, 218 S.E.2d 510, cert. denied, 288 N.C. 731, 220 S.E.2d 351 (1975).

Effect of Personal Knowledge of Employer. — The failure of plaintiff faculty member to file a written claim within the time set forth in this section did not bar his claim to compensation where several members of the faculty had personal knowledge of plaintiff's injury the second it happened, and there was evidence that the dean of the school also knew of plaintiff's injury. Chilton v. Bowman Gray School of Medicine, 45 N.C. App. 13, 262 S.E.2d 347 (1980).

Where the employer had actual knowledge of the claimant's injury on the day it occurred, and both the employer and the claimant had assumed the claimant was an independent contractor and not entitled to workers' compensation benefits, the claimant's failure to give the employer written notice within 30 days of his injury was not fatal to his claim, since he filed it within 2 years. Davis v. Taylor-Wilkes Helicopter Serv., Inc., 145 N.C. App. 1, 549 S.E.2d 580 (2001).

Power of Commission to Find Failure to Give Notice. — The fact that no reference was made to a failure to give written notice of an alleged accident to the employer in compliance with this section by the hearing Commissioner does not preclude such finding by the full Commission. Garmon v. Tridair Indus., Inc., 14 N.C. App. 574, 188 S.E.2d 523 (1972).

Determination of Prejudice. — The burden is on the defendant to show that it was prejudiced, and in determining whether prejudice occurred, the Commission must consider the evidence in light of the dual purpose behind this section. Westbrooks v. Bowes, 130 N.C. App. 517, 503 S.E.2d 409 (1998).

Whether prejudice exists requires an evaluation of the evidence in relationship to the purpose of the statutory notice requirement. The purpose is dual: First, to enable the employer to provide immediate medical diagnosis and treatment with a view to minimizing the seriousness of the injury; and second, to facilitate the earliest possible investigation of the facts surrounding the injury. Jones v. Lowe's Cos., 103 N.C. App. 73, 404 S.E.2d 165 (1991).

Finding That Employer Was Not Prejudiced by Lack of Notice. — A finding by the Commission that the employer has not been prejudiced by the failure of the plaintiff to give notice of the injury within 30 days after the accident suffices to sustain the award from and after such notice, but not for benefits which may have accrued prior thereto. Eller v. Lawrence Leather Co., 222 N.C. 604, 24 S.E.2d 244 (1943); Cross v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 19 N.C. App. 29, 198 S.E.2d 110 (1973).

The Industrial Commission erred in concluding that this section did not bar a widow's claims for death benefits without addressing whether the employer was prejudiced by the plaintiff's failure to give notice. Westbrooks v. Bowes, 130 N.C. App. 517, 503 S.E.2d 409 (1998).

Prejudice May Bar Claim Despite Reasonable Excuse. — Once a claimant has given a reasonable excuse for having failed to give timely notice, the Commission must determine if the employer was prejudiced by the delayed written notice. If prejudice is shown, the claim is barred even though the claimant had a reasonable excuse for not giving notice of the accident within 30 days. On this issue the burden is on the employer to show prejudice. Jones v. Lowe's Cos., 103 N.C. App. 73, 404 S.E.2d 165 (1991).

A claimant's action is barred, despite a reasonable excuse for failing to comply with this section, if prejudice resulted to the defendant. Westbrooks v. Bowes, 130 N.C. App. 517, 503 S.E.2d 409 (1998).

Commission's Findings Conclusive If Supported by Sufficient Evidence. —

Where the evidence is sufficient to support the commission's findings that reasonable excuse for not giving the required written notice was shown, and that the employer was not prejudiced by the failure to give written notice, the findings are conclusive on appeal. Key v. Wagner Woodcraft, Inc., 33 N.C. App. 310, 235 S.E.2d 254 (1977).

Whether a plaintiff was injured by accident and had a reasonable excuse for not giving the employer timely notice were factual issues that depended entirely upon her credibility. Since the Commission found, as its prerogative as fact finder permitted, that plaintiff's testimony was not credible, that determination was binding upon the Court of Appeals. Elliot v. A.O. Smith Corp., 103 N.C. App. 523, 405 S.E.2d 799 (1991).

Appeal of Notice Issue. — An employer who fails to raise the issue of notice at the hearing before the compensation board may not raise it on appeal. Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

To allow an employer to raise the issue of notice for the first time on appeal would deprive the claimants of the benefits of that determination and could easily lead to a denial of compensation in a case where the facts would justify a finding of no prejudice. Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

Notice Held Insufficient. — Claimant, after his injury, sent two or three messages to the superintendent, requesting him to come to see him, and the superintendent promised to do so but never did. Also, claimant's sister testified that she told the superintendent, nearly four months after the injury, that claimant had been hurt in the mill. It was held that this did not constitute sufficient notice of injury, nor did it constitute a basis for estoppel against the defendant to plead the provisions of this section. Jacobs v. Safie Mfg. Co., 229 N.C. 660, 50 S.E.2d 738 (1948).

The plaintiff was reasonably excused from not giving written notice due to his limited education, confusion resulting from the initial hospitalization for a possible heart attack, his lack of understanding of the causal relationship between the incident of hitting the truck door latch and the resulting injuries, and his reliance on his wife and his doctor to notify defendant of the work-related injury; additionally, the defendant/employer presented no evidence that it was prejudiced in any way by the plaintiff waiting to file his workers' compensation claim. Peagler v. Tyson Foods, Inc., 138 N.C. App. 593V, 532 S.E.2d 207 (2000).

Failure to Give Written Notice Excused. — There was competent evidence to support the commission's determination that the claimant was reasonably excused from not giving written notice and that the employer was not prejudiced thereby where the evidence indicated that on the date of the injury by accident, about 10 minutes after it occurred, and during plaintiff's hospitalization, the plant manager visited plaintiff, who related the details of the occurrence to him. Key v. Wagner Woodcraft, Inc., 33 N.C. App. 310, 235 S.E.2d 254 (1977).

Where the claimant offered testimony that he did not realize until December 23, 1988, the day his leg became numb and would no longer support his body, the nature and seriousness of his injury, and where the undisputed evidence revealed that, up until that time, the claimant continued to work at his regular job for employer, though he did have some pain which worsened over time, the evidence does not support the finding of the Commission that the claimant "did not have a reasonable excuse for failing to timely give said notice." To the contrary, any reasonable view of this evidence requires a finding that the claimant notified employer of the accident as soon as he was or should have been aware of the "nature, seriousness, and probable compensable character of his injury." Jones v. Lowe's Cos., 103 N.C. App. 73, 404 S.E.2d 165 (1991).

Claim Not Dismissed Where Insurer Had Actual Notice. — Where the defendant insurer had actual notice of the plaintiff employee's injury within 30 days, the defendant could not have been prejudiced by plaintiff's failure to give written notice; thus, there was no error in the Industrial Commission's not finding the plaintiff failed to give timely written notice or in its not dismissing plaintiff's claim for not giving timely written notice. Sanderson v. Northeast Constr. Co., 77 N.C. App. 117, 334 S.E.2d 392 (1985).

Fact That Employer Continued to Pay Employee's Salary After Injury. — Where plaintiff suffered a disabling injury which he failed to report, the fact that defendant continued to pay his salary for a while did not constitute an estoppel in the absence of proof that defendant knew of the injury at the time the payments were made. Lilly v. Belk Bros., 210 N.C. 735, 188 S.E. 319 (1936).

Where employee does not reasonably know of nature, seriousness, or probable compensable character of his injury and delays notification only until he reasonably knows, he has established "reasonable excuse" as that term is used in this section. Lawton v. County of Durham, 85 N.C. App. 589, 355 S.E.2d 158 (1987).

A finding by the Commission that plaintiff was not capable of coherent, normal thought at the time of his examination by physicians fell short of a finding that he was prevented from giving written notice of his injury by reason of physical or mental incapacity so as to entitle him to the benefits which might have accrued prior to the giving of such notice. Eller v. Lawrence Leather Co., 222 N.C. 604, 24 S.E.2d 244 (1943).

As to the application of this section in occupational disease cases under § 97-58(b), see Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

Where, although plaintiff's original awareness of hearing loss was precipitated by a single event, medical testimony indicated that the resulting disability was caused by repeated exposure to heightened levels of noise prior to 1974, the claim did not need to meet the requirements of this section which is for injury by accident claims; plaintiff's claim was one for compensation for occupational disease and plaintiff had met the necessary filing requirements set forth in § 97-58. Sellers v. Lithium Corp., 94 N.C. App. 575, 380 S.E.2d 526 (1989), cert. denied, 325 N.C. 547, 385 S.E.2d 501 (1989).

With reference to occupational diseases, time within which an employee must give notice or file claim begins to run when the employee is first informed by competent medical authority of the nature and work-related cause of the disease. McKee v. Crescent Spinning Co., 54 N.C. App. 558, 284 S.E.2d 175 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 301, 291 S.E.2d 150 (1982).

Pleadings. — Unless the notice of accident required by this section and § 97-23 is so considered, the act makes no mention of pleadings. Clark v. Gastonia Ice Cream Co., 261 N.C. 234, 134 S.E.2d 354 (1964).

§ 97-23. What notice is to contain; defects no bar; notice personally or by registered letter or certified mail.

The notice provided in the foregoing section [G.S. 97-22] shall state in ordinary language the name and address of the employee, the time, place, nature, and cause of the accident, and of the resulting injury or death; and shall be signed by the employee or by a person on his behalf, or, in the event of his death, by any one or more of his dependents, or by a person in their behalf.

No defect or inaccuracy in the notice shall be a bar to compensation unless the employer shall prove that his interest was prejudiced thereby, and then only to such extent as the prejudice.

Said notice shall be given personally to the employer or any of his agents upon whom a summons in civil action may be served under the laws of the State, or may be sent by registered letter or certified mail addressed to the employer at his last known residence or place of business. (1929, c. 120, s. 23; 1959, c. 863, s. 1.)

§ 97-24. Right to compensation barred after two years; destruction of records.

(a) The right to compensation under this Article shall be forever barred unless (i) a claim or memorandum of agreement as provided in G.S. 97-82 is filed with the Commission or the employee is paid compensation as provided under this Article within two years after the accident or (ii) a claim or memorandum of agreement as provided in G.S. 97-82 is filed with the Commission within two years after the last payment of medical compensation when no other compensation has been paid and when the employer's liability has not otherwise been established under this Article. The provisions of this subsection shall not limit the time otherwise allowed for the filing of a claim for compensation for occupational disease in G.S. 97-58, but in no event shall the time for filing a claim for compensation for occupational disease be less than the times provided herein for filing a claim for an injury by accident.

(b) If any claim for compensation is hereafter made upon the theory that such claim or the injury upon which said claim is based is within the jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission under the provisions of this Article, and if the Commission, or the appellate courts on appeal, shall adjudge that such claim is not within the Article, the claimant, or if he dies, his personal representative, shall have one year after the rendition of a final judgment in the case within which to commence an action at law.

(c) When all claims and reports required by this Article have been filed, and the cases and records of which they are a part have been closed by proper reports, receipts, awards or orders, these records, may after five years in the discretion of the Commission, with and by the authorization and approval of the Department of Cultural Resources, be destroyed by burning or otherwise.

CASE NOTES

Section 97-6.1 Compared. — Section 97-6.1 is a wrongful discharge statute while this section deals solely with worker's compensation. Whitt v. Roxboro Dyeing Co., 91 N.C. App. 636, 372 S.E.2d 731 (1988).

Limited Jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission. — The Industrial Commission has a special or limited jurisdiction created by statute, and is confined to its terms. Viewed as a court, it is one of limited jurisdiction, and it is a universal rule of law that parties cannot, by consent, give a court, as such, jurisdiction over subject matter of which it would otherwise not have jurisdiction. Jurisdiction in this sense cannot be obtained by consent of the parties, waiver, or estoppel. Barham v. Kayser-Roth Hosiery Co., 15 N.C. App. 519, 190 S.E.2d 306 (1972); Belfield v. Weyerhaeuser Co., 77 N.C. App. 332, 335 S.E.2d 44 (1985).

Timely Filing is Jurisdictional. — Dismissal of a claim is proper where there is an absence of evidence that the Industrial Commission acquired jurisdiction by the timely filing of a claim or by the submission of a voluntary settlement agreement to the Commission. Ordinarily, consent by the parties, waiver or estoppel are insufficient to overcome a jurisdictional bar. Reinhardt v. Women's Pavilion, Inc., 102 N.C. App. 83, 401 S.E.2d 138 (1991).

The timely filing of a claim for compensation is a condition precedent to the right to receive compensation and failure to file timely is a jurisdictional bar for the Industrial Commission. Reinhardt v. Women's Pavilion, Inc., 102 N.C. App. 83, 401 S.E.2d 138 (1991).

The requirement of filing a claim within two years of the accident is not a statute of limitation, but a condition precedent to the right to compensation. Reinhardt v. Women's Pavilion, Inc., 102 N.C. App. 83, 401 S.E.2d 138 (1991).

The requirement that a claim be filed within a certain time is a condition precedent to the right to compensation, and not a statute of limitation. For this reason, where a claim for compensation under the provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act has not been filed with the Industrial Commission within the statutory period after the date of the accident which resulted in the injury for which compensation is claimed, or where the Industrial Commission has not acquired jurisdiction of such claim within the statutory period, the right to compensation is barred. Winslow v. Carolina Conference Ass'n, 211 N.C. 571, 191 S.E. 403 (1937). See also Whitted v. Palmer-Bee Co., 228 N.C. 447, 46 S.E.2d 109 (1948).

The requirement that a claim be filed in accord with the provisions of this section constitutes a condition precedent to the right to compensation and not a statute of limitations. Montgomery v. Horneytown Fire Dep't, 265 N.C. 553, 144 S.E.2d 586 (1965); Barham v. Kayser-Roth Hosiery Co., 15 N.C. App. 519, 190 S.E.2d 306 (1972); Perdue v. Daniel Int'l, Inc., 59 N.C. App. 517, 296 S.E.2d 845 (1982), cert. denied, 307 N.C. 577, 299 S.E.2d 647 (1983); Belfield v. Weyerhaeuser Co., 77 N.C. App. 332, 335 S.E.2d 44 (1985).

And Is of the Essence of the Right to Recover. — The plaintiff's inchoate right to compensation arose by operation of law on the date of the accident. But his substantive right to compensation was not fixed by the simple fact of injury arising out of and in the course of his employment. The requirement of filing a claim within the time limited by this section was a condition precedent to his right to compensation. Necessarily, then, the element of filing a claim within the time limited was of the very essence of the plaintiff's right to recover compensation. McCrater v. Stone & Webster Eng'g Corp., 248 N.C. 707, 104 S.E.2d 858 (1958).

Timely Filing of Claim or Submission of Settlement Agreement Is Jurisdictional. — Where there was no evidence that the Industrial Commission acquired jurisdiction either by the timely filing of a claim or by the submission of a voluntary settlement agreement to the Commission for approval, the Industrial Commission properly dismissed plaintiff's claim for lack of jurisdiction. Barham v. Kayser-Roth Hosiery Co., 15 N.C. App. 519, 190 S.E.2d 306 (1972).

Timely filing of a claim for compensation is a condition precedent to the right to compensation. Under this construction, failure to file a claim in a timely fashion works a jurisdictional bar to the right to receive compensation. The general rule is that a jurisdictional bar cannot be overcome by consent of the parties, waiver or estoppel. Weston v. Sears Roebuck & Co., 65 N.C. App. 309, 309 S.E.2d 273 (1983), cert. denied, 311 N.C. 407, 319 S.E.2d 281 (1984).

The Industrial Commission lacked jurisdiction over a workers' compensation claim filed more than two years after the claimant's injury; thus, the Commission could not reach the issue of whether the defendants waived their right to contest the compensability of and their liability for the claim. Wall v. Macfield/Unifi, 131 N.C. App. 863, 509 S.E.2d 798 (1998).

Time Limit in Effect on Date of Accident Controls. — The time limit fixed by this section as it existed on the date of the accident, being a part of the plaintiff's substantive right of recovery, could not be enlarged by subsequent statute, i.e., the 1955 amendment changing the limit from one year to two years. To do so would be to deprive the defendants of a vested right. McCrater v. Stone & Webster Eng'g Corp., 248 N.C. 707, 104 S.E.2d 858 (1958).

Party may be equitably estopped from asserting time limitation in this section as a bar to jurisdiction. Belfield v. Weyerhaeuser Co., 77 N.C. App. 332, 335 S.E.2d 44 (1985).

Report of Accident and Claim of Employee Filed by Employer. — When the employer has filed with the Commission a report of the accident and claim of the injured employee, the claim is filed with the Commission within the meaning of this section. Hardison v. W.H. Hampton & Son, 203 N.C. 187, 165 S.E. 355 (1932), distinguished in Whitted v. Palmer-Bee Co., 228 N.C. 447, 46 S.E.2d 109 (1948).

There is no provision in the North Carolina act requiring an injured employee to file a claim for compensation for his injury with the North Carolina Industrial Commission. When the employer has filed with the Commission a report of the accident and claim of the injured employee, the Commission has jurisdiction of the matter, and the claim is filed with the Commission within the meaning of this section. Smith v. Allied Exterminators, Inc., 11 N.C. App. 76, 180 S.E.2d 390, rev'd on other grounds, 279 N.C. 583, 184 S.E.2d 296 (1971); Hardison v. W.H. Hampton & Son, 203 N.C. 187, 165 S.E. 355 (1932).

Report Filed by Employer on Verbal Information. — Where an employer files a report with the Commission within the prescribed time upon verbal information given by the representative of the employee, the representative not being able to read or write, and the employer admits liability, the report has been properly filed with the Industrial Commission as a claim and the Commission acquires jurisdiction. Hanks v. Southern Pub. Utils. Co., 210 N.C. 312, 186 S.E. 252 (1936), noted with proposal for amendment in 15 N.C.L. Rev. 85 (1937).

Notice to Commission Insufficient to Toll Statute. — The Industrial Commission erred by exercising jurisdiction over and hearing plaintiff's claim arising from a second accident where plaintiff did not file a claim for the accident until after the two-year filing period mandated by this section had elapsed; his earlier actions only informed the Commission that he was involved in an accident but did not amount to a filing. Tilly v. High Point Sprinkler, 143 N.C. App. 142, 546 S.E.2d 404 (2001), review denied, 353 N.C. 734, 552 S.E.2d 636 (2001).

Letter Held Sufficient Filing of Claim. — A letter which was written to the Commission within two years of the alleged accident and injury to plaintiff and which specifically requested a hearing upon the alleged injury constituted sufficient filing of claim and compliance with this section to vest jurisdiction of the accident in the Commission. Cross v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 19 N.C. App. 29, 198 S.E.2d 110 (1973).

When Informal Letter Insufficient. — An informal letter may not serve as the filing of a claim for compensation for statute of limitations purposes where it contains no request for a hearing and fails to assert in any way that the plaintiff is demanding compensation or that action by the Industrial Commission is necessary to settle the question. Gantt v. Edmos Corp., 56 N.C. App. 408, 289 S.E.2d 75 (1982).

Claim Need Not Be Filed Before Bringing Action. — Subsection (b) of this section does not require plaintiff to file a claim with the Industrial Commission, as a court of first instance, before bringing an action in the superior court. The subsection was intended to defer the time in which action in the proper court might be brought when mistaken resort to the Commission has been made. Barber v. Minges, 223 N.C. 213, 25 S.E.2d 837 (1943).

Payment of Medical Expenses by Defendant Carrier Does Not Constitute Waiver of Limitation. — The voluntary payment of a medical bill by defendant carrier is not an admission of liability and does not dispense with the necessity of filing a claim with the Industrial Commission within two years of the date of the accident. Barham v. Kayser-Roth Hosiery Co., 15 N.C. App. 519, 190 S.E.2d 306 (1972).

Report Filed by Employer and Award for Medical Expenses. — The employer gave notice to the Commission of an accident to its employee. Subsequently an award for medical expenses was made by the Commission on application of the doctor, but no hearing before the Commission was ever asked by employer or employee. In a suit by the employee against the alleged negligent third party, the period of limitation prescribed in this section having passed, the court observed that the period for filing plaintiff's claim had elapsed and "no other right of action could now accrue for the benefit of the employer, or its insurance carrier." Thompson v. Virginia & C.S.R.R., 216 N.C. 554, 6 S.E.2d 38 (1939).

Claims Not Filed Within Time Prescribed. — Where an employee did not file a claim until more than the prescribed time after injury, and the employer did not file a report of the accident because it did not have knowledge thereof, although it delivered claimant's wages to him after the disability resulting from the injury, but thought the disability was due to a prior injury, had no knowledge of the subsequent injury, and made no representations that the wages delivered to the claimant were in lieu of compensation, the evidence supported a finding that the claim was not filed within the time prescribed by this section. Lilly v. Belk Bros., 210 N.C. 735, 188 S.E. 319 (1936).

Claimant was injured by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment. He reported the accident to the employer, who, on the day of the accident, reported it to the Industrial Commission as required by § 97-92. Subsequently, bills for medical services rendered claimant as a result of the injury were approved for payment by the Commission. No claim for compensation was filed by the employee, the employer or the insurance carrier. After the expiration of the period of limitation, the employee first discovered the serious effects of the accident and requested a hearing before the Industrial Commission. It was held that no claim for compensation having been filed within the statutory period from the date of the accident and no request for hearing having been made within that time, and no payment of bills for medical treatment having been made within the statutory period prior to the request for a hearing, the claim was barred by this section. Whitted v. Palmer-Bee Co., 228 N.C. 447, 46 S.E.2d 109 (1948), distinguishing Hardison v. W.H. Hampton & Son, 203 N.C. 187, 165 S.E. 355 (1932), and Hanks v. Southern Pub. Utils. Co., 210 N.C. 312, 186 S.E. 252 (1936).

Commission's finding that the employee did not file his claim within the period of limitation, and that claim was therefore barred, was affirmed on appeal. Coats v. B. & R. Wilson, Inc., 244 N.C. 76, 92 S.E.2d 446 (1956).

Limitation Tolled as to Employee Under 18 and Without Guardian. — The limitation of time provided by this section as against an employee under 18 years of age, who is without a guardian or other legal representative, is tolled until he arrives at the age of 18. Lineberry v. Town of Mebane, 219 N.C. 257, 13 S.E.2d 429 (1941).

Prosecuting Common-Law Action and Failing to File Application for Hearing Held Not Abandonment of Filed Claim. — The prosecution of a suit at common law and the failure to file application for a hearing when requested did not amount to an abandonment of claim for compensation, and no final award having been made at the time of the filing of a formal petition for an award; the matter was pending at that time before the Commission, and it was error to deny compensation on the ground that claimant was barred by failure to file a claim within the time prescribed after the death of the deceased employee. Hanks v. Southern Pub. Utils. Co., 210 N.C. 312, 186 S.E. 252 (1936), noted in 15 N.C.L. Rev. 85 (1937).

Implied Agreement Not to Plead Statute. — Where the injured party was led to believe that his wages were accruing to his benefit, and he delayed filing his claim for more than the time prescribed, it was held that the facts did not bring the case within the principle of equitable estoppel, there being no request by defendant that claimant delay the pursuit of his rights, nor an express or implied agreement not to plead the statute. Wilson v. E.H. Clement Co., 207 N.C. 541, 177 S.E. 797 (1935).

Evidence held not to show any representation by the employer that the accident had been reported, or any agreement, express or implied, that the bar of the statute of limitations in this section would not be pleaded, and therefore the employer was not estopped from setting up the defense of the bar of the statute. Jacobs v. Safie Mfg. Co., 229 N.C. 660, 50 S.E.2d 738 (1948).

Prolonged Reliance on Employer's Promise to Take Care of Injury. — While plaintiff's reliance on defendant's promise to "take care of [his injury]" may have been reasonable in light of the circumstances at the time, the reasonableness of this reliance became suspect after nine years from the time when the promise was made with no indication that the promise would be honored. This alone would be enough to dissipate the effect of the alleged misrepresentation by defendant. These facts did not support the conclusion that defendant was equitably estopped from challenging the commission's jurisdiction to hear plaintiff's claim. Weston v. Sears Roebuck & Co., 65 N.C. App. 309, 309 S.E.2d 273 (1983), cert. denied, 311 N.C. 407, 319 S.E.2d 281 (1984).

Equitable Estoppel Not Found. — The employer and insurer were not equitably estopped from asserting the jurisdictional bar of this section, where the employer did not lull claimant into a false sense of security by promising to take care of her, but rather, told her that any claim she filed would be denied. Wall v. Macfield/Unifi, 131 N.C. App. 863, 509 S.E.2d 798 (1998).

Effect of Dismissal on Rights of Dependents. — Where the claim of an employee under the Workers' Compensation Act was dismissed because it was not filed within the period prescribed by this section, and pending appeal the employee died as a result of the accidental injury, his dependents' claim for compensation for his death brought one month after his death was not barred, the dependents not being parties in interest in the prior proceeding, and their claim being an original right enforceable only after his death. Wray v. Carolina Cotton & Woolen Mills Co., 205 N.C. 782, 172 S.E. 487 (1934), decided prior to the 1933 amendment.

Award Protecting Employee Against Possible Future Loss of Rights. — Where claimant suffered a general partial disability, but continued to receive the same wages, which amounted to more than the assessable amount of compensation for his injury, he could not receive additional compensation. To protect the employee against the possibility that the employer might, after the expiration of the period of limitation, discontinue the employment and thus defeat the rights of the employee, the Commission, after finding the existence of the disability, directed that an award issue subject to specified limitations. It directed compensation at the statutory rate "at any time it is shown that the claimant is earning less," etc., during the statutory period of 300 weeks. By this order the Commission, in effect, retained jurisdiction for future adjustments. In so doing it did not exceed its authority. Branham v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 223 N.C. 233, 25 S.E.2d 865 (1943).

Letter Held Not to Constitute Demand. — Where plaintiff's letter made no demand for compensation nor requested a hearing on the matter, and letter merely inquired as to claimant's physical progress and medical charges, such letter did not satisfy statutory requirement that a "claim" be filed within two years of accident. Reinhardt v. Women's Pavilion, Inc., 102 N.C. App. 83, 401 S.E.2d 138 (1991).

Prerequisites to Equitable Estoppel. — Although defendant furniture company may have thought plaintiff's injuries would be covered by another insurer, neither bad faith, fraud nor intent to deceive is necessary before the doctrine of equitable estoppel can be applied. Craver v. Dixie Furn. Co., 115 N.C. App. 570, 447 S.E.2d 789 (1994).

The basis for effecting equitable estoppel is the inconsistent position subsequently taken, rather than in the original conduct and where plaintiff was misled to her detriment, it was under such circumstances that application of the doctrine of equitable estoppel was appropriate. Craver v. Dixie Furn. Co., 115 N.C. App. 570, 447 S.E.2d 789 (1994).

Egregious Circumstances May Cause Estoppel. — Where the circumstances are deemed egregious, the doctrine of estoppel will be employed and will prevent a party from raising the time limitation of § 97-24. Reinhardt v. Women's Pavilion, Inc., 102 N.C. App. 83, 401 S.E.2d 138 (1991).

Employer's Payment of Injured Employee's Medical Bills Did Not Establish Estoppel. — Employer's payment of injured employee's medical bills did not estop employer from opposing the acceptance of employee's claim filed more than two years after employee's accident, as voluntarily paying an employee's medical bills is not enough to establish an estoppel. Abels v. Renfro Corp., 100 N.C. App. 186, 394 S.E.2d 658 (1990).

Defendants Were Equitably Estopped from Pleading Time Limitation. — Defendants were equitably estopped from pleading the two year time limit for filing under subsection (a) of this section as a bar to jurisdiction where that plaintiff detrimentally relied as a matter of law on statements of defendant's agent. Parker v. Thompson-Arthur Paving Co., 100 N.C. App. 367, 396 S.E.2d 626 (1990).

Section 97-58 Compared. — An accident claim must be filed within two years of the accident, not within two years after the claimant becomes aware of his disorder, as is the case under § 97-58. Perdue v. Daniel Int'l, Inc., 59 N.C. App. 517, 296 S.E.2d 845 (1982), cert. denied, 307 N.C. 577, 299 S.E.2d 647 (1983).

§ 97-25. Medical treatment and supplies.

Medical compensation shall be provided by the employer. Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 8-53, any law relating to the privacy of medical records or information, and the prohibition against ex parte communications at common law, an employer paying medical compensation to a provider rendering treatment under this Chapter may obtain records of the treatment without the express authorization of the employee. In case of a controversy arising between the employer and employee relative to the continuance of medical, surgical, hospital, or other treatment, the Industrial Commission may order such further treatments as may in the discretion of the Commission be necessary.

The Commission may at any time upon the request of an employee order a change of treatment and designate other treatment suggested by the injured employee subject to the approval of the Commission, and in such a case the expense thereof shall be borne by the employer upon the same terms and conditions as hereinbefore provided in this section for medical and surgical treatment and attendance.

The refusal of the employee to accept any medical, hospital, surgical or other treatment or rehabilitative procedure when ordered by the Industrial Commission shall bar said employee from further compensation until such refusal ceases, and no compensation shall at any time be paid for the period of suspension unless in the opinion of the Industrial Commission the circumstances justified the refusal, in which case, the Industrial Commission may order a change in the medical or hospital service.

If in an emergency on account of the employer's failure to provide the medical or other care as herein specified a physician other than provided by the employer is called to treat the injured employee, the reasonable cost of such service shall be paid by the employer if so ordered by the Industrial Commission.

Provided, however, if he so desires, an injured employee may select a physician of his own choosing to attend, prescribe and assume the care and charge of his case, subject to the approval of the Industrial Commission. #### I. IN GENERAL.

Application of 1973 Amendment. — The 1973 amendment to this section, which eliminated the 10-week limitation for the recovery of medical expenses for an employee's treatments which are necessary "to effect a cure or give relief," will not be applied retroactively to a case in which the claimant arose out of an accident occurring prior to the effective date of the amendment. Peeler v. State Hwy. Comm'n, 302 N.C. 183, 273 S.E.2d 705 (1981).

The legislature intended (1) that medical compensation, including hospital services provided by the employer, ordered by the Industrial Commission, provided pursuant to emergencies, or chosen by the employee, subject to the approval of the Commission, be limited by the terms and conditions contained in this section; (2) that such medical compensation be reasonably required to effect a cure or give relief or tend to lessen the period of disability; and (3) that the employer not be charged more than his employee would have been had the employee paid for the services. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth. v. North Carolina Indus. Comm'n, 336 N.C. 200, 443 S.E.2d 716 (1994).

The legislature intended that the Industrial Commission's authority under this section be limited to review and approval of hospital charges to ensure, first, that the employer is charged only for those reasonably required services, and, second, that the employer is not charged more for such services than the prevailing charge for the same or similar hospital service in the same community. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth. v. North Carolina Indus. Comm'n, 336 N.C. 200, 443 S.E.2d 716 (1994).

Implicit in the authority accorded the Commission to order additional compensation under this section and further medical treatment is the requirement that the supplemental compensation and future treatment be directly related to the original compensable injury. Peeler v. Piedmont Elastic, Inc., 132 N.C. App. 713, 514 S.E.2d 108 (1999).

Findings Required. — Where the order of the Commission lacked any finding as to the reasonableness of the time frame within which plaintiff requested approval for his medical treatment, the case was remanded. Larramore v. Richardson Sports Ltd. Partners, 141 N.C. App. 250, 540 S.E.2d 768 (2000), aff'd, 353 N.C. 520, 546 S.E.2d 87 (2001).

No "Change of Condition" Requirement. — Nothing in the language of this section implies that the "change of condition" requirement of § 97-47 applies to any request by an employee for the payment of his medical expenses by his employer. Hyler v. GTE Prods. Co., 333 N.C. 258, 425 S.E.2d 698 (1993).

The complete absence of an express or implied reference in this section to any "change of condition" requirement, in addition to this section's clear language permitting the Industrial Commission to review medical treatment an employee is receiving and order further treatment at any time if an employee requests such a review, indicated that the legislature did not intend for an injured employee to make any showing of a change in condition before his employer would be required to pay for further medical services or treatment needed as a result of his compensable injury. Hyler v. GTE Prods. Co., 333 N.C. 258, 425 S.E.2d 698 (1993).

The provisions of this section are in pari materia and must be construed together as a whole. Schofield v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 299 N.C. 582, 264 S.E.2d 56 (1980).

Section 97-10.2 Construed In Pari Materia. — Section 97-10.2 and this section relate to the same subject matter and must be construed in pari materia. Roberts v. ABR Assocs., 101 N.C. App. 135, 398 S.E.2d 917 (1990).

Construction with § 97-47. — Because "compensation" does not include the payment of medical expenses, the provisions of § 97-47 do not affect the Commission's grant or denial of an employee's request for payments of those expenses. The Commission's authority for requiring an employer to pay the medical expenses of an injured employee is established by the terms of this section. Hyler v. GTE Prods. Co., 333 N.C. 258, 425 S.E.2d 698 (1993).

Where employee's refusal to cooperate with employer's physician resulted in litigation, the plaintiff's claim for further compensation, filed 2 years after her last compensation check, was not time-barred because her claim was not a change-of-condition case under § 97-47, but a case still pending under this section, and defendants' filing of a Form 28B had no effect on employee's right to further compensation. Scurlock v. Durham County Gen. Hosp., 136 N.C. App. 144, 523 S.E.2d 439 (1999).

Jurisdiction of Industrial Commission. — An employee brought action against the insurance carrier and its agent, alleging that after his injury the agent, on behalf of the insurer, induced him to dispense with the services of his physician and to consult physicians selected by insurer, and that the insurer promised to provide hospitalization and surgical service recommended by insurer's physicians, but failed to do so to plaintiff's permanent injury. It was held that the insurer's obligation to furnish medical attention necessary to plaintiff's complete recovery was founded on this section, and that the Industrial Commission had exclusive jurisdiction of plaintiff's claim. Hedgepeth v. Lumbermen's Mut. Cas. Co., 209 N.C. 45, 182 S.E. 704 (1935).

Appeal of Award Does Not Suspend Jurisdiction of Commission. — An appeal of an award of the Industrial Commission does not suspend that agency's authority to accept notification of an employee's decision to select his own doctor; neither does an appeal deprive the Commission of its jurisdiction to accept the submission of a claim. It may well be that the determination of the particular claim will be delayed until the outcome of the appeal. Nevertheless, the Commission has jurisdiction to receive the claim and is, in fact, the only agency vested with that jurisdiction. Schofield v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 299 N.C. 582, 264 S.E.2d 56 (1980).

Employer's Motion to Designate Treating Physician. — The fact that this section expressly grants employees the power to request a change in their treating physician, but does not make a similar grant to employers, does not mean that employers cannot make motions to designate a treating physician. Matthews v. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth., 132 N.C. App. 11, 510 S.E.2d 388 (1999).

Medical, etc., expenses are not included in the maximum amount recoverable for one injury. See Morris v. Laughlin Chevrolet Co., 217 N.C. 428, 8 S.E.2d 484 (1940).

Payment of Medical Expenses Does Not Constitute Admission or Waiver by Employer. — The Workers' Compensation Act, by this section, requires or permits an employer to pay bills for medical and other treatment of an employee, and the payment of such bills, approved by the Commission, even without formal denial of liability, cannot have the effect of an admission of liability by the employer or constitute a waiver of the requirement of filing a timely claim by the employee as provided in § 97-24. Such facts are insufficient to invoke the doctrine of estoppel. Biddix v. Rex Mills, Inc., 237 N.C. 660, 75 S.E.2d 777 (1953).

Payment of Full Wages Does Not Determine Liability for Treatment. — The act of an employer in paying an injured employee's wages in full from the date of the injury should not be determinative of the employee's disability and thereby relieve the employer or insurance carrier from liability for hospital and medical care designed to improve his capacity to earn wages. Ashley v. Rent-A-Car Co., 271 N.C. 76, 155 S.E.2d 755 (1967).

The rule that denies compensation to an injured employee who has lost no wages is necessarily applied in some cases growing out of § 97-30 in order to determine the amount of compensation due, but it is not applicable to medical, surgical, hospital, and nursing services under this section, as medical and hospital expenses are not a part of, and are not included in, determining recoverable compensation. Ashley v. Rent-A-Car Co., 271 N.C. 76, 155 S.E.2d 755 (1967).

Relaxation of Rule as to Fees for Practical Nursing. — Industrial Commission was not entitled to relax its rule that fees for practical nursing would not be allowed unless written authority was obtained from Commission in advance, so as to award mother of injured employee an amount for practical nursing services rendered to injured employee, where record showed that Commission never gave its written or oral permission for rendition of services. Hatchett v. Hitchcock Corp., 240 N.C.

Cost of Treatment of Veteran. — The Administrator of Veterans Affairs may recover from the employer and its insurance carrier the cost of treatment in a veterans hospital for compensable injuries received by an indigent ex-serviceman in the course of his employment. Marshall v. Robert's Poultry Ranch & Egg Sales, 268 N.C. 223, 150 S.E.2d 423 (1966).

Appeal from Approval of Medical Bills. — When the Commission approves claimant's medical, etc., bills, defendant then has a right on appeal to challenge the action of the Commission in respect to the bills approved by it, in whole or in part, if it deems it advisable to do so. Bass v. Mecklenburg County, 258 N.C. 226, 128 S.E.2d 570 (1962).

Controlling Effect of § 97-59 in Cases Involving Occupational Disease. — Section 97-59, which is a more recent and specific statute dealing with awards of medical benefits in cases involving occupational disease, controls over this section in such cases. Smith v. American & Efrid Mills, 305 N.C. 507, 290 S.E.2d 634 (1982).

Where insurance company agreed to pay all necessary medical expenses incurred by plaintiff through May 31, 1983, while plaintiff waived any and all rights to reopen a claim for further compensation, and insurer was notified on May 16, 1983, that plaintiff urgently needed medical attention relating to his industrial injury, but took no action and did not authorize the urgently needed hospitalization, defendant breached its duty of good faith and fair dealing by acting to delay the treatment until after May 31, 1983, and the case would be remanded to determine how soon after notification the insurance company could have reasonably granted the authorization and to determine what portion of the costs would have then occurred prior to May 31, 1983, for which defendant was liable. Gallimore v. Daniels Constr. Co., 78 N.C. App. 747, 338 S.E.2d 317 (1986).

Refusal of Insurers to Provide Chiropractic Treatment as Workers' Compensation Coverage. — Plaintiff chiropractors alleging that defendant insurance companies had interfered with their contractual rights by refusing to honor employers' choices of chiropractors as providers of health care treatment to employees under the Workers' Compensation Act, that defendants had misrepresented to employer insureds that their workers' compensation policies did not provide coverage for chiropractic treatment, that said misrepresentations were unfair and deceptive trade practices in violation of § 75-1.1, and that defendants had conspired among themselves and with members of the medical profession to deprive plaintiffs of business opportunities by refusing to pay for chiropractic services provided in compliance with the act, an illegal restraint of trade in violation of § 75-1 and 15 U.S.C. § 1, could not maintain their action in superior court without first seeking relief from the Industrial Commission. North Carolina Chiropractic Ass'n v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 89 N.C. App. 1, 365 S.E.2d 312 (1988), remanding case to the trial court for entry of an order staying plaintiffs' action pending a determination of the underlying workers' compensation issues by the Commission.

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome. — Evidence that an employee of a waste company whose job was to collect and dispose of raw sewage developed chronic fatigue syndrome and other ailments after being accidentally sprayed with raw sewage and that the employee's illnesses were most probably the result of the accident supported a ruling of the North Carolina Industrial Commission awarding the employee permanent workers' compensation disability benefits. Norton v. Waste Mgt., Inc., — N.C. App. —, 552 S.E.2d 702, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 938 (2001).

Reimbursement Under § 97-10.2 (f)(1)(c). — The party claiming a right to reimbursement under § 97-10.2 (f)(1)(c), i.e., the employer or its insurance carrier, must show, pursuant to this section, (1) that the treatment provided was in the form of medical treatment, surgical treatment, hospital treatment, nursing services, medicines, sick travel, rehabilitation services, or other treatment including medical and surgical supplies, and (2) that the treatment provided was reasonably required for at least one of three purposes, namely, to effect a cure, give relief, or lessen the period of the plaintiff's disability. Roberts v. ABR Assocs., 101 N.C. App. 135, 398 S.E.2d 917 (1990).

Reimbursement for Rehabilitation Services. — Insurance carrier did not need the Commission's approval for the charges connected with rehabilitation services in order to obtain reimbursement for those expenses because § 97-90(a) does not require approval of the Commission for rehabilitation services. Roberts v. ABR Assocs., 101 N.C. App. 135, 398 S.E.2d 917 (1990).

Burden of Proof. — The Industrial Commission committed legal error by placing the burden on plaintiff/employee to prove causation of her headaches where she met this burden in prior proceeding. Parsons v. Pantry, Inc., 126 N.C. App. 540, 485 S.E.2d 867 (1997).

The Commission erroneously placed on the plaintiff the burden of proving the medical treatment he sought was causally related to a past compensable injury, and the case was remanded for a new determination of causation. Reininger v. Prestige Fabricators, Inc., 136 N.C. App. 255, 523 S.E.2d 720 (1999).

The Commission's failure to make sufficient findings to support its denial of a seam-stress's claim, based her refusal to see an authorized physician under this section or because she was not due any compensation for the first seven days of her injury under § 97-28, resulted in remand. Kanipe v. Lane Upholstery, 141 N.C. App. 620, 540 S.E.2d 785 (2000).

The Industrial Commission was required to state reasons for its denial of authorization of the medical treatment related to plaintiff's stomach reduction procedure, sought pursuant to this section. Clark v. Sanger Clinic, P.A., 142 N.C. App. 350, 542 S.E.2d 668 (2001), cert. denied, 353 N.C. 450, 548 S.E.2d 524 (2001).

Applied in Godwin v. Swift & Co., 270 N.C. 690, 155 S.E.2d 157 (1967); Schofield v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 32 N.C. App. 508, 232 S.E.2d 874 (1977); Perkins v. Broughton Hosp., 71 N.C. App. 275, 321 S.E.2d 495 (1984); Haponski v. Constructor's, Inc., 71 N.C. App. 786, 323 S.E.2d 46 (1984); Braswell v. Pitt County Mem. Hosp., 106 N.C. App. 1, 415 S.E.2d 86 (1992); *Maynor v. ## II. WHAT TREATMENT MUST BE PROVIDED.

The legislature's obvious intent in amending this section in 1973 by deleting the 10 week limitation with respect to medical treatments required to effect or cure or give relief was to compel employers to provide medical treatments reasonably required to "effect a cure or give relief" more than 10 weeks after the date of injury. Little v. Penn Ventilator Co., 317 N.C. 206, 345 S.E.2d 204 (1986).

Exclusive Jurisdiction of Commission. — What treatment is appropriate for a particular employee is a matter within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission. North Carolina Chiropractic Ass'n v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 89 N.C. App. 1, 365 S.E.2d 312 (1988).

Under this section, the Industrial Commission may order treatment or rehabilitative procedures that the Commission determines in its discretion to be reasonably necessary to effect a cure or give relief for an injured employee. Neal v. Carolina Mgt., 130 N.C. App. 220, 502 S.E.2d 424 (1998), rev'd on other grounds, 350 N.C. 63, 510 S.E.2d 375 (1999).

Findings of Fact by the Industrial Commission are Conclusive on Appeal if Supported by Any Competent Evidence. — Thus, on appeal, a reviewing court does not have the right to weigh the evidence and decide the issue on the basis of its weight. The court's duty goes no further than to determine whether the record contains any evidence tending to support the finding. Timmons v. North Carolina DOT, 351 N.C. 177, 522 S.E.2d 62 (1999).

Preparation of a life care plan is not necessary in all workers' compensation cases, but the subject record contained some competent evidence to support the Industrial Commission's finding requiring the employer to pay plaintiff's doctor for the cost of preparing his life care plan. Timmons v. North Carolina DOT, 351 N.C. 177, 522 S.E.2d 62 (1999).

Future Medical Expenses Not Limited to Those Lessening Period of Disability. — This section does not limit an employer's obligation to pay future medical expenses to those cases in which such expenses will lessen the period of disability. The statute also requires employers to pay the expenses of future medical treatments even if they will not lessen the period of disability, as long as they are reasonably required to (1) effect a cure, or (2) give relief. Little v. Penn Ventilator Co., 317 N.C. 206, 345 S.E.2d 204 (1986).

Subsequent Treatment of Compensable Injury. — To require plaintiff to re-prove causation each time she seeks treatment for the very injury that the Industrial Commission has previously determined to be the result of a compensable accident is unjust and violates the duty to interpret the Worker's Compensation Act in the favor of injured employees. Parsons v. Pantry, Inc., 126 N.C. App. 540, 485 S.E.2d 867 (1997).

The Industrial Commission committed legal error by placing the burden on plaintiff to prove causation for further medical treatment after she already proved causation at the initial hearing. Parsons v. Pantry, Inc., 126 N.C. App. 540, 485 S.E.2d 867 (1997).

"Relief". — "Relief" embraces not only an affirmative improvement towards an injured employee's health, but also the prevention or mitigation of further decline in that health due to the compensable injury. Little v. Penn Ventilator Co., 317 N.C. 206, 345 S.E.2d 204 (1986).

Relief from pain is a legitimate aspect of the "relief" anticipated by future medical treatment under this section. Simon v. Triangle Materials, Inc., 106 N.C. App. 39, 415 S.E.2d 105, cert. denied, 332 N.C. 347, 421 S.E.2d 154 (1992).

Relief from pain constituted "relief" as that term was used in this section prior to 1991 amendment. Radica v. Carolina Mills, 113 N.C. App. 440, 439 S.E.2d 185 (1994).

The phrase "lessen the period of disability," as used in this section means "lessen the period of time of diminution in earnings." Peeler v. State Hwy. Comm'n, 48 N.C. App. 1, 269 S.E.2d 153 (1980), aff'd, 302 N.C. 183, 273 S.E.2d 705 (1981).

Treatment to Prevent Further Decline. — As a result of the 1973 amendment to this section, employers must provide treatments reasonably required more than 10 weeks after an injury to prevent an employee's health from further declining. Little v. Penn Ventilator Co., 317 N.C. 206, 345 S.E.2d 204 (1986).

Pre-existing Condition. — Where a North Carolina Industrial Commission finding that plaintiff's worsening lumbar spine condition was directly related to his original back condition and not caused by a work related accident was supported by competent evidence, the Commission did not err in denying plaintiff's claim for additional compensation and medical treatment. Pittman v. Thomas & Howard, 122 N.C. App. 124, 468 S.E.2d 283 (1996).

Additional Medical Treatment to Lessen Period of Disability. — The provision of this section that the employer should be liable for additional medical treatment to effect a cure or give relief is limited by the provision of this section to cases in which such additional medical treatment would tend to lessen the period of the employee's disability, and the discretionary power to award such additional medical treatment is also subject to this limitation; nor may liability for medical attention be extended upon the ground that public policy demands that the care of a permanently disabled employee should not be cast upon the State, the extent of liability under the act being definitely prescribed by its provisions. Millwood v. Firestone Cotton Mills, 215 N.C. 519, 2 S.E.2d 560 (1939), superseded by Dereby v. Pitt County Fire Marshall, 318 N.C. 192, 347 S.E.2d 814 (1986) (decided under prior laws).

The provision of this section that the employer should be liable for medical and nursing services for such time as such services will tend to lessen the period of disability does not preclude such payments when the disability is permanent, provided such services will tend to lessen the degree of disability. Ashley v. Rent-A-Car Co., 271 N.C. 76, 155 S.E.2d 755 (1967) (decided under prior laws).

Future expenses incurred to monitor an employee's medical condition are reasonably required to give relief if there is a substantial risk that the employee's condition may take a turn for the worse. Little v. Penn Ventilator Co., 317 N.C. 206, 345 S.E.2d 204 (1986).

Future Medical Expenses for Procedure to Relieve Pain. — Defendants were required to pay for plaintiff's back surgery and related medical expenses as long as the surgery would give plaintiff relief, regardless of whether such surgery would lessen the period of disability or effect a cure for his injury, where, plaintiff contended the surgery would relieve a substantial portion of the pain he was suffering. Simon v. Triangle Materials, Inc., 106 N.C. App. 39, 415 S.E.2d 105, cert. denied, 332 N.C. 347, 421 S.E.2d 154 (1992).

Permanently Disabled Employee Entitled to Medical Expenses for Life. — In a workers' compensation case, there was no merit to defendant's argument that medical expenses should be compensated only to the extent they would tend to lessen the period of disability, since, if a plaintiff is found to be totally and permanently disabled, he will be entitled to medical expenses for life, dating from the time he became totally disabled, subject only to the requirements of § 97-29 that the expenses be "reasonable and necessary." Smith v. American & Efrid Mills, 51 N.C. App. 480, 277 S.E.2d 83, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 304 N.C. 197, 285 S.E.2d 101 (1981), aff'd, 305 N.C. 507, 290 S.E.2d 634 (1982).

Life Care Plan Costs. — The Industrial Commission did not have authority to order the employer to pay for every item and service mentioned in a life care plan prepared by an expert, where the plan was prepared by an expert appointed by the Commission for an employee who had been rendered a paraplegic in a compensable workplace injury, but the plan included costs for items that the law would not require the defendant to pay, and the expert testified that she prepared the plan without regard to what medical benefits the defendant would be required by law to provide the plaintiff. Timmons v. North Carolina DOT, 130 N.C. App. 745, 504 S.E.2d 567 (1998), reaff'd on recons., 132 N.C. App. 377, 511 S.E.2d 659 (1999), rev'd on other grounds, 351 N.C. 177, 522 S.E.2d 62 (1999).

Incurable Injury. — Plaintiff suffered a head injury and developed dementia praecox, which physicians pronounced incurable. She required constant medical attention. The order requiring defendant to continue treatment was reversed. While the plaintiff might be made more comfortable by further treatment, the evidence showed that the period of disability would not be lessened. But see § 97-29 Millwood v. Firestone Cotton Mills, 215 N.C. 519, 2 S.E.2d 560 (1939), superseded by Dereby v. Pitt County Fire Marshall, 318 N.C. 192, 347 S.E.2d 814 (1986).

Handicapped Accessible Housing. — An employer's duty to provide other treatment or care is sufficiently broad to include the duty to provide handicapped accessible housing. Timmons v. North Carolina DOT, 123 N.C. App. 456, 473 S.E.2d 356 (1996), aff'd, 346 N.C. 173, 484 S.E.2d 551 (1997).

Reasonableness is determined by whether the surgery is of serious magnitude and risk, and whether the surgery involves much pain and suffering and is of uncertain benefit. Watkins v. City of Asheville, 99 N.C. App. 302, 392 S.E.2d 754 (1990).

Award of Future Medical Expenses Appropriate. — The Industrial Commission's award of future medical expenses was appropriate, where four physicians testified that worker suffered from ongoing psychological disorders caused by her electrical shock injury, that these disorders in turn decreased her ability to use her right hand, and that plaintiff suffered a mild cognitive impairment. Cooke v. P.H. Glatfelter/Ecusta, 130 N.C. App. 220, 502 S.E.2d 419 (1998).

III. REFUSAL TO ACCEPT TREATMENT.

Refusal Defined. — "Refusal", as used in this section, connotes a willful or intentional act. Johnson v. Jones Group, Inc., 123 N.C. App. 219, 472 S.E.2d 587 (1996).

Findings Regarding Willingness to Cooperate. — Where full Commission focused only on defendants' non-compliance and made no finding as to plaintiff's own compliance, or lack thereof, the case had to be remanded for a determination of whether plaintiff affirmatively established her present willingness to cooperate with her employer's offers of medical treatment and rehabilitative services with her authorized physician. Scurlock v. Durham County Gen. Hosp., 136 N.C. App. 144, 523 S.E.2d 439 (1999).

For case upholding Commission's decision that the back surgery recommended by plaintiff's physician had a high probability of significantly reducing the period of plaintiff's disability and would be sought by a similarly situated reasonable man, and that required plaintiff to undergo that surgery or lose his right to compensation, see Watkins v.

City of Asheville, 99 N.C. App. 302, 392 S.E.2d 754 (1990).

The failure of the employer to seek relief from the Commission precludes the employer from raising the refusal to submit to an operation in opposition to the employee's claim for compensation. Crawley v. Southern Devices, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 284, 229 S.E.2d 325 (1976), cert. denied, 292 N.C. 467, 234 S.E.2d 2 (1977).

Brain Damaged Worker Incapable of Refusal. — Where the injury to the worker included brain damage to the extent that he became incapable of cooperating with rehabilitation efforts, the policy of liberality of the Workers' Compensation Act in favor of that injured worker precluded denial of benefits based upon his failure to accept, as opposed to willful refusal of, treatment. Johnson v. Jones Group, Inc., 123 N.C. App. 219, 472 S.E.2d 587 (1996).

Reasonableness of a refusal to accept treatment by an employee is measured by whether a reasonable person who is motivated to improve his health would accept the proffered treatment. Johnson v. Jones Group, Inc., 123 N.C. App. 219, 472 S.E.2d 587 (1996).

Reasonable Person Standard. — In cases where the ability of a claimant to make rational decisions regarding his welfare is at issue, the commission must make findings regarding the claimant's ability to act as a "reasonable person" in weighing medical options and making treatment decisions before denying benefits based on his refusal of treatment. Johnson v. Jones Group, Inc., 123 N.C. App. 219, 472 S.E.2d 587 (1996).

Attorney Involvement Does Not Constitute Refusal to Cooperate. — A letter from the claimant's attorney to her rehabilitation specialist requesting that the specialist contact the attorney directly did not constitute refusal to cooperate with rehabilitation procedure, where there was no evidence that the claimant had refused any rehabilitative procedure ordered by the Industrial Commission. Deskins v. Ithaca Indus., Inc., 131 N.C. App. 826, 509 S.E.2d 232 (1998).

Proof of Compliance with Treatment. — An unverified application and written motion, otherwise unsupported by the record, are not competent evidence on which the Industrial Commission may base a finding that the claimant kept an appointment with the designated physician, which would then support an order reinstating claimant's right to compensation. Matthews v. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth., 132 N.C. App. 11, 510 S.E.2d 388 (1999).

Refusal to Undergo Surgery with Employer-Selected Physician. — An employee was not justified in choosing to undergo surgery with her own physician where the employer had already accepted liability orally and in writing and was therefore entitled to direct the medical treatment, where she failed to request authorization from the Commission within a reasonable period of time, and where she did not have good cause to refuse the treatment by the employer's physician. Kanipe v. Lane Upholstery, 141 N.C. App. 620, 540 S.E.2d 785 (2000).

IV. EMERGENCY.

"Emergency" as Function of Circumstances. — This section does not define an emergency. What may be an emergency under one set of circumstances may not qualify as such under another. Schofield v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 43 N.C. App. 567, 259 S.E.2d 338 (1979), vacated on other grounds, 299 N.C. 582, 264 S.E.2d 56 (1980).

Emergency Treatment. — Treatment received by a plaintiff employee in a workers' compensation case could be of an emergency nature even though it extended over a 17-month period of time. Schofield v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 43 N.C. App. 567, 259 S.E.2d 338 (1979), vacated on other grounds, 299 N.C. 582, 264 S.E.2d 56 (1980).

"Failure to Provide Services." — An employee is justified under this section in seeking another physician in an emergency where the employer's "failure to provide" medical services amounts merely to an inability to provide those services. Schofield v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 299 N.C. 582, 264 S.E.2d 56 (1980).

V. SELECTION OF PHYSICIAN BY EMPLOYEE.

Proviso Relates to Entire Section. — The proviso at the end of this section, relating to choice of personal physician, constitutes a proviso to the entire section, and not solely to the emergency provision. Schofield v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 299 N.C. 582, 264 S.E.2d 56 (1980).

Employee May Choose Physician Even in Absence of Emergency. — The proviso to this section, relating to choice of personal physician, constitutes a proviso to the entire section, and not solely to the emergency provision. Construed in this light, the proviso clearly states that an injured employee has the right to procure, even in the absence of an emergency, a physician of his own choosing, subject to the approval of the Commission. Schofield v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 299 N.C. 582, 264 S.E.2d 56 (1980).

There is no limitation on the number of physicians an employee may choose. — The only requirements are that each physician be approved by the Commission, and that treatment facilitate recovery and rehabilitation. Lucas v. Thomas Built Buses, Inc., 88 N.C. App. 587, 364 S.E.2d 147 (1988).

Same Terms Apply to Treatment

Whether Chosen by Employee or Employer. — Fairness requires that medical treatment provided by the employee's own doctor be subject to the same limitations, terms and conditions as apply to medical treatment provided by the employer. Schofield v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 299 N.C. 582, 264 S.E.2d 56 (1980).

Approval of Physician Chosen by Employee. — An employee is required to obtain approval of the Commission within a reasonable time after he has selected a physician of his own choosing to assume treatment. Schofield v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 299 N.C. 582, 264 S.E.2d 56 (1980).

Claimant must obtain Industrial Commission approval for a physician selected by claimant, within a reasonable time after procuring the services of the physician, and if approval is sought within a reasonable time, if the commission approves a plaintiff's choice and if the treatment sought is to effectuate a cure or rehabilitation, then the employer has a statutory duty under this section to pay for the treatment. Forrest v. Pitt County Bd. of Educ., 100 N.C. App. 119, 394 S.E.2d 659 (1990).

The unambiguous language of this statute leaves the approval of a physician within the discretion of the Industrial Commission and the Commission's determination may only be reversed upon a finding of a manifest abuse of discretion. Franklin v. Broyhill Furn. Indus., 123 N.C. App. 200, 472 S.E.2d 382 (1996).

Approval Must Be Within Reasonable Time and Not Necessarily Prior to Services. — The Industrial Commission does not have to preclude payments for a physician's services solely because approval for those services was not previously requested; under this section, a plaintiff must only seek approval within a reasonable time not necessarily prior to the services or surgery rendered by the physician. Forrest v. Pitt County Bd. of Educ., 100 N.C. App. 119, 394 S.E.2d 659 (1990).

Unilateral Change of Physician Authorized. — The claimant's unilateral decision to change treating physicians was authorized under this section, and thus, was not adequate to support a finding that she unjustifiably refused to cooperate with vocational rehabilitation, where she continued to suffer pain from carpal tunnel syndrome after being released to return to work by her previous physician. Deskins v. Ithaca Indus., Inc., 131 N.C. App. 826, 509 S.E.2d 232 (1998).

Failure to obtain approval for payments of medical expenses does not raise an estoppel claim. Knight v. Cannon Mills Co., 82 N.C. App. 453, 347 S.E.2d 832, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 507, 349 S.E.2d 861 (1986).

Findings Required to Support Approval of Claim for Treatment by Employee's Physician. — Upon submission of a claim for approval for medical treatment rendered by the employee's own physician, there must be findings based upon competent evidence that the treatment was "required to effect a cure or give relief," or where additional time is involved, that it has "tend[ed] to lessen the period of disability." There should also be findings that the condition treated is, or was, caused by, or was otherwise traceable to or related to the injury giving rise to the compensable claim. Schofield v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 299 N.C. 582, 264 S.E.2d 56 (1980).

Since an employee who procures his own doctor must obtain approval by the Commission within a reasonable time after such procurement, the Commission must make findings relative to whether such approval was sought within a reasonable time. Schofield v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 299 N.C. 582, 264 S.E.2d 56 (1980).

Implicit in determining whether the cost of emergency treatment is reasonable is a determination of how long the emergency lasted. Before approving the cost of emergency treatment rendered by "a physician other than provided by the employer," the Industrial Commission must make findings, based upon competent evidence, relative to the duration of the emergency. Schofield v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 299 N.C. 582, 264 S.E.2d 56 (1980).

The Industrial Commission must make appropriate findings relative to whether approval of an employee's procurement of his or her own physician was sought within a reasonable time. Hudson v. Mastercraft Div., 86 N.C. App. 411, 358 S.E.2d 134, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 792, 361 S.E.2d 77 (1987).

The full Commission made insufficient findings to support its approval of employee's request where employee waited three years to request authorization to use her own physician after she and the employer-approved physician discontinued their relationship. Scurlock v. Durham County Gen. Hosp., 136 N.C. App. 144, 523 S.E.2d 439 (1999).

§ 97-25.1. Limitation of duration of medical compensation.

The right to medical compensation shall terminate two years after the employer's last payment of medical or indemnity compensation unless, prior to the expiration of this period, either: (i) the employee files with the Commission an application for additional medical compensation which is thereafter approved by the Commission, or (ii) the Commission on its own motion orders additional medical compensation. If the Commission determines that there is a substantial risk of the necessity of future medical compensation, the Commission shall provide by order for payment of future necessary medical compensation. (1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 2.5.)

§ 97-25.2. Managed care organizations.

The requirements of G.S. 97-25 may be satisfied by contracting with a managed care organization. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Article, if an employer or carrier contracts with a managed care organization for medical services pursuant to this Article, those employees who are covered by the contract with the managed care organization shall receive medical services for a condition for which the employer has accepted liability or authorized treatment under this Article in the manner prescribed by the contract and in accordance with the managed care organization's certificate of authority; provided that the contract complies with rules adopted by the Commission, consistent with this Article, governing managed care organizations. An employee must exhaust all dispute resolution procedures of a managed care organization before applying to the Commission for review of any issue related to medical services compensable under this Article. Once application to the Commission has been made, the employee shall be entitled to an examination by a duly qualified physician or surgeon in the same manner as provided by G.S. 97-27.

If an employee's medical services are provided through a managed care organization pursuant to this section, subject to the rules of the managed care organization, the employee shall select the attending physician from those physicians who are members of the managed care organization's panel, and may subsequently change attending physicians once within the group of physicians who are members of the managed care organization's panel without approval from the employer or insurer. Additional changes in the attending physician or any change to a physician or examination by a physician not a member of the insurer's managed care organization's panel shall only be made pursuant to the organization's contract or upon reasonable grounds by order of the Commission. (1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 2.1.)

§ 97-25.3. Preauthorization.

(a) An insurer may require preauthorization for inpatient admission to a hospital, inpatient admission to a treatment center, and inpatient or outpatient surgery. The insurer's preauthorization requirement must adhere to the following standards:

- (1) The insurer may require no more than 10 days advance notice of the inpatient admission or surgery.
- (2) The insurer must respond to a request for preauthorization within two business days of the request.

- (3) The insurer shall review the need for the inpatient admission or surgery and may require the employee to submit to an independent medical examination as provided in G.S. 97-27(a). This examination must be completed and the insurer must make its determination on the request for preauthorization within seven days of the date of the request unless this time is extended by the Commission for good cause.
  - (4) The insurer shall document its review findings and determination in writing and shall provide a copy of the findings and determination to the employee and the employee's attending physician, and, if applicable, to the hospital or treatment center.
  - (5) The insurer shall authorize the inpatient admission or surgery when it requires the employee to submit to a medical examination as provided in G.S. 97-27(a) and the examining physician concurs with the original recommendation for the inpatient admission or surgery. The insurer shall also authorize the inpatient admission or surgery when the employee obtains a second opinion from a physician approved by the insurer or the Commission, and the second physician concurs with the original recommendation for the inpatient admission or surgery. However, the insurer shall not be required by this subdivision to authorize the inpatient admission or surgery if it denies liability under this Article for the particular medical condition for which the services are sought.
  - (6) Except as provided in subsection (c) of this section, the insurer may reduce its reimbursement of the provider's eligible charges under this Article by up to fifty percent (50%) if the insurer has notified the provider in writing of its preauthorization requirement and the provider failed to timely obtain preauthorization. The employee shall not be liable for the balance of the charges.
  - (7) The insurer shall adhere to all other procedures for preauthorization prescribed by the Commission.
- (b) An insurer may not impose a preauthorization requirement for the following:
- (1) Emergency services;
  - (2) Services rendered in the diagnosis or treatment of an injury or illness for which the insurer has not admitted liability or authorized payment for treatment pursuant to this Article; and
  - (3) Services rendered in the diagnosis and treatment of a specific medical condition for which the insurer has not admitted liability or authorized payment for treatment although the insurer admits the employee has suffered a compensable injury or illness.
- (c) The Commission may, upon reasonable grounds, upon the request of the employee or provider, authorize treatment for which preauthorization is otherwise required by this section but was not obtained if the Commission determines that the treatment is or was reasonably required to effect a cure or give relief.
- (d) The Commission may adopt procedures governing the use of preauthorization requirements and expeditious review of preauthorization denials.
- (e) A managed care organization may impose preauthorization requirements consistent with the provisions of Chapter 58 of the General Statutes.
- (f) A provider that refuses to treat an employee for other than an emergency medical condition because preauthorization has not been obtained shall be immune from liability in any civil action for the refusal to treat the employee because of lack of preauthorization. (1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 2.2.)

§ 97-25.4. Utilization guidelines for medical treatment.

(a) The Commission may adopt utilization rules and guidelines, consistent with this Article, for medical care and medical rehabilitation services, other than those services provided by managed care organizations pursuant to G.S. 97-25.2, including, but not limited to, necessary palliative care, physical therapy treatment, psychological therapy, chiropractic services, medical rehabilitation services, and attendant care. The Commission's rules and guidelines shall ensure that injured employees are provided the services and care intended by this Article and that medical costs are adequately contained. In developing the rules and guidelines, the Commission may consider, among other factors, the practice guidelines adopted by the boards and associations representing medical and rehabilitation professionals.

(b) Palliative care rules or guidelines adopted by the Commission may require that the provider (i) supply to the employer a treatment plan, including a schedule of measurable objectives, a projected termination date for treatment, and an estimated cost of services, and (ii) obtain preauthorization from the employer, not inconsistent with the provisions of G.S. 97-25.3. (1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 2.4.)

§ 97-25.5. Utilization guidelines for vocational and other rehabilitation.

The Commission may adopt utilization rules and guidelines, consistent with this Article, for vocational rehabilitation services and other types of rehabilitation services. In developing the rules and guidelines, the Commission may consider, among other factors, the practice and treatment guidelines adopted by professional rehabilitation associations and organizations. (1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 2.4.)

Legal Periodicals. — For survey, "The 1994: A Step in the Direction of Restoring North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act of Balance," see 73 N.C.L. Rev. 2502 (1995).

§ 97-26. Fees allowed for medical treatment; malpractice of physician.

(a) Fee Schedule. — The Commission shall adopt a schedule of maximum fees for medical compensation, except as provided in subsection (b) of this section, and shall periodically review the schedule and make revisions pursuant to the provisions of this Article.

The fees adopted by the Commission in its schedule shall be adequate to ensure that (i) injured workers are provided the standard of services and care intended by this Chapter, (ii) providers are reimbursed reasonable fees for providing these services, and (iii) medical costs are adequately contained.

Prior to adoption of a fee schedule, the Commission shall publish notice of its intent to adopt the schedule in the North Carolina Register and hold a public hearing. The published notice shall include the location, date and time of the public hearing, the proposed effective date of the fee schedule, the period of time during which the Commission will receive written comments on the proposed schedule, and the person to whom comments and questions should be directed. In addition to publication in the North Carolina Register, the notice may be mailed to parties who have requested notice of the fee schedule hearing. The public hearing shall be held no earlier than 15 days after the publication of the notice. The Commission shall receive written comments for at least 30 days or until the date of the public hearing, whichever is later, after which the Commission may adopt the fee schedule.

The Commission may consider any and all reimbursement systems and plans in establishing its fee schedule, including, but not limited to, the Teachers' and State Employees' Comprehensive Major Medical Plan (hereinafter, "State Plan"), Blue Cross and Blue Shield, and any other private or governmental plans. The Commission may also consider any and all reimbursement methodologies, including, but not limited to, the use of current procedural terminology ("CPT") codes, diagnostic-related groupings ("DRGs"), per diem rates, capitated payments, and resource-based relative-value system ("RBRVS") payments. The Commission may consider statewide fee averages, geographical and community variations in provider costs, and any other factors affecting provider costs.

An appeal from a decision of the Commission establishing a fee schedule, by any party aggrieved thereby, shall be to the North Carolina Court of Appeals. The decision of the Commission shall be affirmed if supported by substantial evidence. For the purposes of the appeal, the Commission is a party.

(b) Hospital Fees. — Each hospital subject to the provisions of this subsection shall be reimbursed the amount provided for in this subsection unless it has agreed under contract with the insurer, managed care organization, employer (or other payor obligated to reimburse for inpatient hospital services rendered under this Chapter) to accept a different amount or reimbursement methodology.

Except as otherwise provided herein, payment for medical treatment and services rendered to workers' compensation patients by a hospital shall be a reasonable fee determined by the Commission. Effective September 16, 2001, through June 30, 2002, the fee shall be the following amount unless the Commission adopts a different fee schedule in accordance with the provisions of this section:

- (1) For inpatient hospital services, the amount that the hospital would have received for those services as of June 30, 2001. The payment shall not be more than a maximum of one hundred percent (100%) of the hospital's itemized charges as shown on the UB-92 claim form nor less than the minimum percentage for payment of inpatient DRG claims that was in effect as of June 30, 2001.
- (2) For outpatient hospital services and any other services that were reimbursed as a discount off of charges under the State Plan as of June 30, 2001, the amount calculated by the Commission as a percentage of the hospital charges for such services. The percentage applicable to each hospital shall be the percentage used by the Commission to determine outpatient rates for each hospital as of June 30, 2001.
- (3) For any other services, a reasonable fee as determined by the Industrial Commission.

Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, the Commission's determination of payment rates under this subsection shall:

- (1) Comply with the procedures for adoption of a fee schedule established in G.S. 97-26(a);
- (2) Include publication of the proposed payment rate, and a summary of the data and calculations on which the rate is based at least 90 days before the proposed effective date;
- (3) Be subject to the declaratory ruling provisions of G.S. 150B-4; and
- (4) Be deemed to constitute a final permanent rule under Article 2A of Chapter 150B for purposes of judicial review under Article 4 of that Chapter.

A hospital's itemized charges on the UB-92 claim form for workers' compensation services shall be the same as itemized charges for like services for all other payers.

(c) Maximum Reimbursement for Providers Under Subsection (a). — Each health care provider subject to the provisions of subsection (a) of this section shall be reimbursed the amount specified under the fee schedule unless the provider has agreed under contract with the insurer or managed care organization to accept a different amount or reimbursement methodology. In any instance in which neither the fee schedule nor a contractual fee applies, the maximum reimbursement to which a provider under subsection (a) is entitled under this Article is the usual, customary, and reasonable charge for the service or treatment rendered. In no event shall a provider under subsection (a) charge more than its usual fee for the service or treatment rendered.

(d) Information to Commission. — Each health care provider seeking reimbursement for medical compensation under this Article shall provide the Commission information requested by the Commission for the development of fee schedules and the determination of appropriate reimbursement.

(e) When Charges Submitted. — Health care providers shall submit charges to the insurer or managed care organization within 30 days of treatment, within 30 days after the end of the month during which multiple treatments were provided, or within such other reasonable period of time as allowed by the Commission. If an insurer or managed care organization disputes a portion of a health care provider's bill, it shall pay the uncontested portion of the bill and shall resolve disputes regarding the balance of the charges in accordance with this Article or its contractual arrangement.

(f) Repeating Diagnostic Tests. — A health care provider shall not authorize a diagnostic test previously conducted by another provider, unless the health care provider has reasonable grounds to believe a change in patient condition may have occurred or the quality of the prior test is doubted. The Commission may adopt rules establishing reasonable requirements for reports and records to be made available to other health care providers to prevent unnecessary duplication of tests and examinations. A health care provider that violates this subsection shall not be reimbursed for the costs associated with administering or analyzing the test.

(g) Direct Reimbursement. — The Commission may adopt rules to allow insurers and managed care organizations to review and reimburse charges for medical compensation without submitting the charges to the Commission for review and approval.

(h) Malpractice. — The employer shall not be liable in damages for malpractice by a physician or surgeon furnished by him pursuant to the provisions of this section, but the consequences of any such malpractice shall be deemed part of the injury resulting from the accident, and shall be compensated for as such. (1929, c. 120, s. 26; 1955, c. 1026, s. 3; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 2.3; 1995 (Reg. Sess., 1996), c. 548, s. 1; 1997-145, s. 1; 2001-410, s. 3; 2001-413, s. 8.2(a).)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-253, s. 2, as amended by Session Laws 2001-322, s. 3, and 2001-395, s.9, provides: "Notwithstanding G.S. 97-26, payment for medical treatment and services rendered to workers' compensation patients by a hospital on or after July 1, 2001, and before September 15, 2001, shall be equal to the payment the hospital would have received for such treatment and services on June 30, 2001."

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws

2001-410, s. 3, as amended by Session Laws 2001-413, s. 8.2 (a), effective September 15, 2001, rewrote subsection (b).

CASE NOTES

This section contains the correct measure of employer liability for hospital charges. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth. v. North Carolina Indus. Comm'n, 336 N.C. 200, 443 S.E.2d 716 (1994).

The legislature intended (1) that medical compensation, including hospital services provided by the employer, ordered by the Industrial Commission, provided pursuant to emergencies, or chosen by the employee, subject to the approval of the Commission, be limited by the terms and conditions contained in § 97-25; (2) that such medical compensation be reasonably required to effect a cure or give relief or tend to lessen the period of disability; and (3) that the employer not be charged more than his employee would have been had the employee paid for the services. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth. v. North Carolina Indus. Comm'n, 336 N.C. 200, 443 S.E.2d 716 (1994).

The legislature intended that the Industrial Commission's authority under § 97-25 be limited to review and approval of hospital charges to ensure, first, that the employer is charged only for those reasonably required services, and, second, that the employer is not charged more for such services than the prevailing charge for the same or similar hospital service in the same community. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth. v. North Carolina Indus. Comm'n, 336 N.C. 200, 443 S.E.2d 716 (1994).

Employer's Liability for Medical Expense Not Preempted by Federal Law. — The obligation of an employer to pay claimant's reasonable and necessary medical expenses, and the ability of health-care providers to accept such payment, was not controlled or preempted by federal Medicaid statutes or regulations. Pearson v. C.P. Buckner Steel Erection Co., 348 N.C. 239, 498 S.E.2d 818 (1998).

Determination of Payment Amount. — An employer who denied liability but was ordered to pay medical expenses under the Workers' Compensation Act was required to pay health-care providers the difference between the amount covered by Medicaid and the full amount authorized by the Commission's fee schedule. Pearson v. C.P. Buckner Steel Erection Co., 348 N.C. 239, 498 S.E.2d 818 (1998).

Liability of Physician or Surgeon Is Not Affected by This Section. — The purpose of this section is to treat the consequences of malpractice by a physician or surgeon as part of the consequences of the original injury as between the employee and the employer, and so, the employer's insurance carrier. Thus, the employee's right to benefit under the act on account of the consequences of such malpractice does not depend upon the employer's negligence. Conversely, the employer's liability for such consequences of malpractice by a physician or surgeon is limited to those benefits provided under the act. It was not the purpose of this section to affect in any way the liability of the physician or surgeon. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966).

This section relates to the right of the employee to recover damages or benefits under the act from the employer, and so from the insurance carrier of the employer. It does not impose liability upon the physician or surgeon or relieve him thereof. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966); Bryant v. Dougherty, 270 N.C. 748, 155 S.E.2d 181 (1967).

Act Does Not Deprive Employee of Right of Action Against Physician or Surgeon. —

The act does not deprive an employee of the right to maintain an action at common law for malpractice against the physician or surgeon selected by the employer to treat his injuries received in the course of his employment, when the physician is not a full-time employee of the employer. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966).

Provided Physician Carries on Independent Practice. — Where a physician is carrying on an independent practice of medicine or surgery, he is not "conducting the business" of an industrial corporation merely because the manager of the plant sends to him, for examination and treatment, those who, from time to time, sustain injuries in the plant. Under these circumstances, § 97-9 does not deprive the employee of his common-law right to a physician or surgeon who, in the course of such examination or treatment, is negligent and thereby aggravates the original injury. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966).

Nor Confer Jurisdiction on Commission to Determine Such Action. — The act does not abrogate the employee's common-law right of action against the attending physician or surgeon, and does not confer upon the Industrial Commission jurisdiction to hear and determine such action. Bryant v. Dougherty, 270 N.C. 748, 155 S.E.2d 181 (1967).

The act does not confer upon the Industrial Commission jurisdiction to hear and determine an action brought by an injured employee against a physician or surgeon to recover damages for injury due to the negligence of the latter in the performance of his professional services to the employee. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966); Bryant v. Dougherty, 270 N.C. 748, 155 S.E.2d 181 (1967).

Superior Court Has Jurisdiction of Mal-

practice Action. — Since the act does not abrogate the employee's common-law right of action against the attending physician or surgeon and does not confer upon the Industrial Commission jurisdiction to hear and determine such action, the superior court has jurisdiction to do so. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966).

Malpractice Not Grounds for Action Against Employer or Carrier. — The malpractice of the physician or surgeon selected by the employer or carrier is not grounds for an independent action against the employer or the carrier, but is, as to them, one of the consequences of the original injury, and is to be compensated as such in accordance with the provision of the Workers' Compensation Act. Hence, a cross-action for contribution on the theory that the carrier and the physician were joint tortfeasors would not lie. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966).

Injury or suffering sustained by employee in consequence of malpractice of a physician or surgeon furnished by the employer or carrier is not ground for an independent action; under this section it is a constituent element of the employee's injury, for which he is entitled to compensation. In such event, the employer and the carrier are primarily liable, and the question of secondary liability is eliminated. Hoover v. Globe Indem. Co., 202 N.C. 655, 163 S.E. 758 (1932).

The physician and carrier are not joint tortfeasors within the meaning of former § 1-240. Hoover v. Globe Indem. Co., 202 N.C. 655, 163 S.E. 758 (1932), following Brown v. Southern Ry., 202 N.C. 256, 162 S.E. 613 (1932).

Approval of Bills Where Liability for Medical Care Is Voluntarily Incurred by Employer. — When liability for the medical care of an employee who has suffered an accident is voluntarily incurred by the employer, the bills therefor must be approved by the Commission before the employer can demand reimbursement from its insurance carrier. In this manner, such expenditures are kept within the schedule of fees and charges adopted by the Commission. Biddix v. Rex Mills, Inc., 237 N.C. 660, 75 S.E.2d 777 (1953).

Stated in Worley v. Pipes, 229 N.C. 465, 50 S.E.2d 504 (1948); Hatchett v. Hitchcock Corp., 240 N.C. 591, 83 S.E.2d 539 (1954).

§ 97-26.1. Fees for medical records and reports; expert witnesses.

The Commission may establish maximum fees for the following when related to a claim under this Article: (i) the searching, handling, copying, and mailing of medical records, (ii) the preparation of medical reports and narratives, and (iii) the presentation of expert testimony in a Commission proceeding. (1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 5.6.)

§ 97-27. Medical examination; facts not privileged; refusal to be examined suspends compensation; autopsy.

(a) After an injury, and so long as he claims compensation, the employee, if so requested by his employer or ordered by the Industrial Commission, shall, subject to the provisions of subsection (b), submit himself to examination, at reasonable times and places, by a duly qualified physician or surgeon designated and paid by the employer or the Industrial Commission. The employee shall have the right to have present at such examination any duly qualified physician or surgeon provided and paid by him. Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 8-53, no fact communicated to or otherwise learned by any physician or surgeon or hospital or hospital employee who may have attended or examined the employee, or who may have been present at any examination, shall be privileged in any workers' compensation case with respect to a claim pending for hearing before the Industrial Commission. If the employee refuses to submit himself to or in any way obstructs such examination requested by and provided for by the employer, his right to compensation and his right to take or prosecute any proceedings under this Article shall be suspended until such refusal or objection ceases, and no compensation shall at any time be payable for the period of obstruction, unless in the opinion of the Industrial Commission the circumstances justify the refusal or obstruction. The employer, or the Industrial Commission, shall have the right in any case of death to require an autopsy at the expense of the party requesting the same.

(b) In those cases arising under this Article in which there is a question as to the percentage of permanent disability suffered by an employee, if any employee, required to submit to a physical examination under the provisions of subsection (a) is dissatisfied with such examination or the report thereof, he shall be entitled to have another examination by a duly qualified physician or surgeon licensed and practicing in North Carolina or by a duly qualified physician or surgeon licensed to practice in South Carolina, Georgia, Virginia and Tennessee provided said nonresident physician or surgeon shall have been approved by the North Carolina Industrial Commission and his name placed on the Commission's list of approved nonresident physicians and surgeons, designated by him and paid by the employer or the Industrial Commission in the same manner as physicians designated by the employer or the Industrial Commission are paid. Provided, however, that all travel expenses incurred in obtaining said examination shall be paid by said employee. The employer shall have the right to have present at such examination a duly qualified physician or surgeon provided and paid by him. No fact communicated to or otherwise learned by any physician or surgeon who may have attended or examined the employee, or who may have been present at any examination, shall be privileged, either in hearings provided for by this Article or any action at law. ## CASE NOTES

The language of this section is mandatory as to the employee. The employee "shall" submit himself to an examination if it is requested by his employer or ordered by the Industrial Commission. The language of this section, however, imposes no mandatory obligation on the Industrial Commission to order an examination. Taylor v. M.L. Hatcher Pick-Up & Delivery Serv., 45 N.C. App. 682, 263 S.E.2d 788, cert. denied, 300 N.C. 379, 267 S.E.2d 684 (1980).

Commission Approval of Request for Examination Is Discretionary. — When an employer requests the Commission to order an employee to submit to an examination, whether the Commission grants or denies the employer's request is within the discretion of the Commission. Taylor v. M.L. Hatcher Pick-Up & Delivery Serv., 45 N.C. App. 682, 263 S.E.2d 788, cert. denied, 300 N.C. 379, 267 S.E.2d 684 (1980).

Refusal to Undergo Diagnostic Tests. — Under subsection (a) of this section, employee was required to undergo the diagnostic tests requested by the physician designated by his employer or, in the alternative, request the Commission to find such test to be not reasonable, in which case the Commission would be required to decide the matter. Where he did neither, but simply unilaterally refused the tests, employee would not be entitled to compensation until that time when he submitted to further examination by the physician. Hooks v. Eastway Mills, Inc., 74 N.C. App. 432, 328 S.E.2d 602, rev'd on other grounds, 314 N.C. 657, 335 S.E.2d 898 (1985).

The Workers' Compensation Statute does not compel the employer, nor the Industrial Commission, to rely upon one source of medical information, that provided by the injured plaintiff. The statute specifically suspends an injured employee's right to compensation should he or she refuse to submit to examination by a physician designated and paid for by the employer. Blankley v. White Swan Uniform Rentals, 107 N.C. App. 751, 421 S.E.2d 603 (1992), cert. denied, 333 N.C. 461, 427 S.E.2d 618 (1993).

Refusal to Undergo Surgery with Employer-Selected Physician. — An employee was not justified in choosing to undergo surgery with her own physician where the employer had already accepted liability orally and in writing and was therefore entitled to direct the medical treatment, where she failed to request authorization from the Commission within a reasonable period of time, and where she did not have good cause to refuse the treatment by the employer's physician. Kanipe v. Lane Upholstery, 141 N.C. App. 620, 540 S.E.2d 785 (2000).

Remand Where Findings Fail to Determine Justification for Refusal. — Where the findings of fact of the Industrial Commission fail to determine whether the circumstances justified the plaintiff's refusal to submit to medical procedures, the case must be remanded to the Industrial Commission for determination of whether the plaintiff's refusal to undergo the procedures was reasonable under the circumstances. Hooks v. Eastway Mills, Inc. & Affiliates, 314 N.C. 657, 335 S.E.2d 898 (1985).

Analysis of Blood Taken from Body After Death. — The percentage of alcohol in the bloodstream of a deceased employee, determined by chemical analysis of a sample of blood taken from his body shortly after death, was competent evidence on the question of intoxication. Osborne v. Colonial Ice Co., 249 N.C. 387, 106 S.E.2d 573 (1959).

Autopsy after Burial. — One month after deceased's burial, defendant requested that the body be disinterred and a postmortem examination be made to determine the cause of his death. It was held that plaintiff's consent was rightfully refused. There is a distinction between the right to have an autopsy before and after burial. The latter will not be granted except in cases of extreme emergency. Cabe v. Parker-Graham-Sexton, Inc., 202 N.C. 176, 162 S.E. 223 (1932).

The Commission erred by admitting the deposition testimony of plaintiff's surgeon in light of the non-consensual ex parte contact between defendant and plaintiff's surgeon. Salaam v. North Carolina DOT, 122 N.C. App. 83, 468 S.E.2d 536 (1996), review denied, 345 N.C. 494, 480 S.E.2d 51 (1997).

§ 97-28. Seven-day waiting period; exceptions.

No compensation, as defined in G.S. 97-2(11), shall be allowed for the first seven calendar days of disability resulting from an injury, except the benefits provided for in G.S. 97-25. Provided however, that in the case the injury results in disability of more than 21 days, the compensation shall be allowed from the date of the disability. Nothing in this section shall prevent an employer from allowing an employee to use paid sick leave, vacation or annual leave, or disability benefits provided directly by the employer during the first seven calendar days of disability. (1929, c. 120, s. 28; 1983, c. 599; 1987, c. 729, s. 5.)

CASE NOTES

The Commission's failure to make sufficient findings to support its denial of a seamstress's claim, based on her refusal to see an authorized physician under this section or because she was not due any compensation for the first seven days of her injury under § 97-28, resulted in remand. Kanipe v. Lane Upholstery, 141 N.C. App. 620, 540 S.E.2d 785 (2000).

§ 97-29. Compensation rates for total incapacity.

Except as hereinafter otherwise provided, where the incapacity for work resulting from the injury is total, the employer shall pay or cause to be paid, as hereinafter provided, to the injured employee during such total disability a weekly compensation equal to sixty-six and two-thirds percent (66⅔%) of his average weekly wages, but not more than the amount established annually to be effective October 1 as provided herein, nor less than thirty dollars ($30.00) per week.

In cases of total and permanent disability, compensation, including medical compensation, shall be paid for by the employer during the lifetime of the injured employee. If death results from the injury then the employer shall pay compensation in accordance with the provisions of G.S. 97-38.

The weekly compensation payment for members of the North Carolina national guard and the North Carolina State Defense Militia shall be the maximum amount established annually in accordance with the last paragraph of this section per week as fixed herein. The weekly compensation payment for deputy sheriffs, or those acting in the capacity of deputy sheriffs, who serve upon a fee basis, shall be thirty dollars ($30.00) a week as fixed herein.

An officer or member of the State Highway Patrol shall not be awarded any weekly compensation under the provisions of this section for the first two years of any incapacity resulting from an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of the performance by him of his official duties if, during such incapacity, he continues to be an officer or member of the State Highway Patrol, but he shall be awarded any other benefits to which he may be entitled under the provisions of this Article.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this Article, on July 1 of each year, a maximum weekly benefit amount shall be computed. The amount of this maximum weekly benefit shall be derived by obtaining the average weekly insured wage in accordance with G.S. 96-8(22), by multiplying such average weekly insured wage by 1.10, and by rounding such figure to its nearest multiple of two dollars ($2.00), and this said maximum weekly benefit shall be applicable to all injuries and claims arising on and after January 1 following such computation. Such maximum weekly benefit shall apply to all provisions of this Chapter and shall be adjusted July 1 and effective January 1 of each year as herein provided. ## CASE NOTES

- I. In General.
- II. Permanent and Total Disability.
- III. Maximum Weekly Benefit.

I. IN GENERAL.

Legislative Intent. — The legislature's expansion of this section in 1973 reflects an obvious intent to address the plight of a worker who suffers an injury permanently abrogating his earning ability. Whitley v. Columbia Lumber Mfg. Co., 318 N.C. 89, 348 S.E.2d 336 (1986).

This section is not constitutionally infirm; its application bears a rational relationship to a legitimate state interest. Clark v. Sanger Clinic, P.A., 142 N.C. App. 350, 542 S.E.2d 668 (2001), cert. denied, 353 N.C. 450, 548 S.E.2d 524 (2001).

Findings Must Support Award and Commission, Not Court of Appeals, Must Make Findings. — While the Court of Appeals was correct that no finding of fact supported the Industrial Commission's conclusion that plaintiff was totally disabled under this section because his business was not "employment" and his earnings were not "wages," the Court of Appeals erred when it usurped the Commission's fact-finding role and determined that plaintiff's management skills were marketable in the labor market and that plaintiff was "actively involved in the personal management of [his] business." Lanning v. Fieldcrest-Cannon, Inc., 352 N.C. 98, 530 S.E.2d 54 (2000).

Cost-effectiveness is not the sole goal of the Workers' Compensation Act. Grantham v. Cherry Hosp., 98 N.C. App. 34, 389 S.E.2d 822, cert. denied, 327 N.C. 138, 394 S.E.2d 454 (1990).

This section and § 97-30 are mutually exclusive. A claimant cannot simultaneously be both totally and partially incapacitated. Carothers v. Ti-Caro, 83 N.C. App. 301, 350 S.E.2d 95 (1986).

When an employee suffers a diminution of the power or capacity to earn, he or she is entitled to benefits under § 97-30; when the power or capacity to earn is totally obliterated, he or she is entitled to benefits under this section. Gupton v. Builders Transp., 320 N.C. 38, 357 S.E.2d 674 (1987).

Construction with § 97-31. — This section should be construed in pari materia with § 97-31, allowing compensation for the loss of members, and so construed it is held that where an employee has suffered an injury to his hand arising out of and in the course of his employment, and the injury causes him total temporary disability in the course of its healing, and renders it necessary to amputate certain parts of certain fingers of the hand, he is entitled to receive compensation under this section for total temporary disability, and in addition thereto compensation for the loss of the parts of his fingers under § 97-31, there being no provision in the act that the latter should preclude the former, compensation for the latter to begin upon expiration of the compensation for the former. Rice v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 199 N.C. 154, 154 S.E. 69 (1930); Whitley v. Columbia Lumber Mfg. Co., 78 N.C. App. 217, 336 S.E.2d 642 (1985).

Same — Award Under This Section More Favorable. — In many instances, an award under this section better fulfills the policy of the Workers' Compensation Act than an award under § 97-31, because it is a more favorable remedy and is more directly related to compensating inability to work. West v. Bladenboro Cotton Mills, Inc., 62 N.C. App. 267, 302 S.E.2d 645 (1983).

Same — Award When All Injuries Not Covered Under § 97-31. — When all of a worker's injuries are not covered by the schedule contained in § 97-31 and the worker's earning capacity has been totally and permanently impaired, he is entitled to an award for permanent and total disability under the provisions of this section. Jones v. Murdoch Center, 74 N.C. App. 128, 327 S.E.2d 294 (1985).

Where all of a worker's injuries are compensable under § 97-31, the compensation provided for under that section is in lieu of all other compensation. When, however, an employee cannot be fully compensated under § 97-31 and is permanently incapacitated, he or she is entitled to compensation under this section for total incapacity or under § 97-30 for partial incapacity. Kendrick v. City of Greensboro, 80 N.C. App. 183, 341 S.E.2d 122, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 335, 346 S.E.2d 500 (1986).

An employee who suffers an injury scheduled in § 97-31 may recover compensation under this section instead of § 97-31 if he is totally and permanently disabled. Whitley v. Columbia Lumber Mfg. Co., 318 N.C. 89, 348 S.E.2d 336 (1986).

When all of an employee's injuries are included in the schedule set out in § 97-31, the employee's entitlement to compensation is exclusively under that section. However, if an employee receives an injury which is compensable and the injury causes him to become so emotionally disturbed that he is unable to work, he is entitled to compensation for total incapacity under this section. Hill v. Hanes

Corp., 79 N.C. App. 67, 339 S.E.2d 1 (1986), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

An employee may be compensated for both a scheduled compensable injury under § 97-31 and total incapacity for work under this section when the total incapacity is caused by a psychiatric disorder brought on by the scheduled injury. Hill v. Hanes Corp., 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

If a claimant is totally and permanently disabled within the meaning of this section, then he is not limited to a recovery under the schedule of compensation of § 97-31. Mitchell v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 84 N.C. App. 661, 353 S.E.2d 638 (1987).

Where claimant is totally disabled as a result of injuries not included in § 97-31 schedule, claimant is entitled to an award for total disability under this section. Weaver v. Swedish Imports Maintenance, Inc., 319 N.C. 243, 354 S.E.2d 477 (1987).

Same — Award When § 97-31 Covers All Injuries. — When all of a worker's injuries are included in the schedule set out in § 97-31 his compensation is limited to that provided for in the statutory schedule without regard to his ability or inability to earn wages. Jones v. Murdoch Center, 74 N.C. App. 128, 327 S.E.2d 294 (1985).

Same — Disablement Presumed Under § 97-31. — In all cases in which compensation is sought under this section or § 97-30, total or partial disablement must be shown; however, if compensation is sought in the alternative under § 97-31, disablement is presumed from the injury and compensation is accordingly based on the schedule. Grant v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 77 N.C. App. 241, 335 S.E.2d 327 (1985).

Same — Illustrative Cases. — Plaintiff, who suffered a fall causing a permanent partial impairment to his back of 20% and whom the Commission found unable to work at his previous job as a nurse or at any other employment, was totally and permanently disabled and was entitled to recover under this section, and was not limited to recovery under § 97-31. Taylor v. Margaret R. Pardee Mem. Hosp., 83 N.C. App. 385, 350 S.E.2d 148 (1986), cert. denied, 319 N.C. 410, 354 S.E.2d 729 (1987).

The "in lieu of" clause in § 97-31 does not prevent a worker who qualifies from recovering lifetime benefits under this section. Whitley v. Columbia Lumber Mfg. Co., 318 N.C. 89, 348 S.E.2d 336 (1986), overruling Perry v. Hibriten Furn. Co., 296 N.C. 88, 249 S.E.2d 397 (1978).

The interpretation of Perry v. Hibriten Furn. Co., 296 N.C. 88, 249 S.E.2d 397 (1978), that when all of a plaintiff's disability resulting from an injury is covered by § 97-31, an employee is entitled to no compensation for permanent total disability, was overruled in Whitley v. Columbia Lumber Mfg. Co., 318 N.C. 89, 348 S.E.2d 336 (1986), which held that the "in lieu of" clause of § 97-31 does not prevent a worker who qualifies from recovering lifetime benefits under this section. Harrington v. Pait Logging Company/Georgia Pac., 86 N.C. App. 77, 356 S.E.2d 365 (1987).

This section is an alternate source of compensation for an employee who suffers an injury which is also included under the schedule under § 97-31; the injured worker is allowed to select the more favorable remedy, but he or she cannot recover compensation under both sections, because § 97-31 is "in lieu of all other compensation." Harrington v. Pait Logging Company/Georgia Pac., 86 N.C. App. 77, 356 S.E.2d 365 (1987); McKenzie v. McCarter Elec. Co., 86 N.C. App. 619, 359 S.E.2d 249 (1987).

Often an award under this section, and by implication § 97-30, better fulfills the policy of the Workers' Compensation Act than an award under § 97-31(24). Strickland v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 87 N.C. App. 507, 361 S.E.2d 394 (1987).

Right to Elect Coverage Under This Section. — Even if all injuries are covered under § 97-31, the scheduled injury section, an employee may nevertheless elect to claim under this section if this section is more favorable, but he may not recover under both sections. Hill v. Hanes Corp., 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

Additional Recovery for Concurrent Symptoms Not Available. — Where an employee has received compensation for a brain injury under the total disability provisions of this section, additional recovery is not available for concurrent symptoms caused by that injury. Dishmond v. International Paper Co., 132 N.C. App. 576, 512 S.E.2d 771 (1999).

The Industrial Commission is required to conduct a full investigation and a determination that a Form 26 compensation agreement is fair and just, in order to assure that the settlement is in accord with the intent and purpose of the Workers' Compensation Act that an injured employee receive the disability benefits to which he is entitled, and, particularly, that an employee qualifying for disability compensation under both this section and § 97-31 have the benefit of the more favorable remedy. Vernon v. Steven L. Mabe Bldrs., 336 N.C. 425, 444 S.E.2d 191 (1994).

Failure of Commission to Determine Fairness of Agreement. — Where plaintiff may have been entitled to permanent total disability benefits under this section, as well as permanent partial disability benefits under § 97-31, but under this section plaintiff would receive such benefits for as long as he remained totally disabled rather than 45 weeks, and claims employee assumed, rather than determined, that plaintiff was knowledgeable about workers' compensation benefits and his rights, in approving the Form 26 compensation agreement between plaintiff and defendants, the Industrial Commission did not, as the statute requires, act in a judicial capacity to determine the fairness of the agreement. Vernon v. Steven L. Mabe Bldrs., 336 N.C. 425, 444 S.E.2d 191 (1994).

Worker May Select More Favorable Remedy. — This section is an alternative source of compensation for an employee who suffers an injury which is also included in the schedule, and the worker may select the more favorable remedy. Wilder v. Barbour Boat Works, 84 N.C. App. 188, 352 S.E.2d 690 (1987).

This section and § 97-31 are alternate sources of compensation for an employee who suffers a disabling injury which is also included as a scheduled injury. The injured worker is allowed to select the more favorable remedy, but he cannot recover compensation under both sections. Cockman v. PPG Indus., 84 N.C. App. 101, 351 S.E.2d 771 (1987); Dishmond v. International Paper Co., 132 N.C. App. 576, 512 S.E.2d 771 (1999).

Commission Erred by Not Assessing Most Munificent Remedy. — The Industrial Commission erred when it awarded permanent disability compensation solely for plaintiff's scheduled hand injury under § 97-31 without assessing whether this section or § 97-30 would provide him a more munificent remedy. McLean v. Eaton Corp., 125 N.C. App. 391, 481 S.E.2d 289 (1997).

Version of Statute in Effect for Determining Compensation. — Plaintiff, who became partially disabled in 1973 and was compensated pursuant to the laws in effect at that time, was entitled to compensation for total disability (arising out of the same injury) under the laws in effect in 1981, when he became totally disabled. Peace v. J.P. Stevens Co., 95 N.C. App. 129, 381 S.E.2d 798 (1989).

Payment of Employee's Consumer Debts as Rehabilitative Service Not Authorized. — The Workers' Compensation Act does not authorize the Commission to order an employer to pay an employee's common consumer debts as a rehabilitative service. Grantham v. Cherry Hosp., 98 N.C. App. 34, 389 S.E.2d 822 (1990).

It is not a reasonable interpretation of the Workers' Compensation Act to classify the payment of consumer debt as a rehabilitative service. Grantham v. Cherry Hosp., 98 N.C. App. 34, 389 S.E.2d 822 (1990).

Where an employee is properly determined to be totally and permanently disabled under this section, § 97-32 has no application. Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

Inability to Obtain Future Employment. — Where an employee's effort to obtain employment would be futile because of age, inexperience, lack of education or other preexisting factors, the employee should not be precluded from compensation for failing to engage in the meaningless exercise of seeking a job which does not exist. Lackey v. R.L. Stowe Mills, Inc., 106 N.C. App. 658, 418 S.E.2d 517, cert. denied, 332 N.C. 345, 421 S.E.2d 150 (1992).

This section is not subject to the limitation imposed by the proviso of § 97-37. Inman v. Meares, 247 N.C. 661, 101 S.E.2d 692 (1958).

Where an employee filed a claim for total temporary disability under this section and thereafter recovered from his disabling injury and returned to his employment and was fatally injured in a compensable accident unconnected with the prior claim, the claim for disability did not come within the proviso of § 97-37 and the right to payments accrued at the time of the employee's death had vested and survived to his personal representative. Inman v. Meares, 247 N.C. 661, 101 S.E.2d 692 (1958).

Termination Date of Temporary Total Disability Benefits Not Required. — This section does not require a finding nor a conclusion regarding the termination date of temporary total disability benefits. Such a requirement would be illogical since a case of temporary total disability is one in which the duration of the disability is uncertain. Kennedy v. Duke Univ. Medical Center, 101 N.C. App. 24, 398 S.E.2d 677 (1990).

Claimant Unable to Earn Wages in Any Job for Which Qualified Was Totally, Not Partially, Disabled. — The Commission erred as a matter of law by awarding claimant compensation for partial disability when it found as fact that plaintiff was incapable of earning wages in any employment for which plaintiff was qualified. Based on the Commission's findings, plaintiff was totally disabled within the meaning of this section. Carothers v. Ti-Caro, 83 N.C. App. 301, 350 S.E.2d 95 (1986).

Accrued Unpaid Compensation Is Asset of Deceased Worker's Estate. — Compensation which accrues under this section during the lifetime of an injured worker, but is unpaid at his death, becomes an asset of his estate. McCulloch v. Catawba College, 266 N.C. 513, 146 S.E.2d 467 (1966).

Disability, as used in the act, means impairment of wage earning capacity rather than physical impairment. Priddy v. Blue Bird Cab Co., 9 N.C. App. 291, 176 S.E.2d 26 (1970).

A person may be wholly incapable of working and earning wages even though her ability to carry out normal life functions has not been wholly destroyed and even though she has not lost 100 percent use of her nervous system. Little v. Anson County Schools Food Serv., 295 N.C. 527, 246 S.E.2d 743 (1978).

In order to support a conclusion of disability, the Industrial Commission must find that after the injury, the plaintiff was incapable of earning the same wages he or she earned before the injury in the same or any other employment and that the plaintiff's incapacity to earn was caused or significantly contributed to by the injury. Harrington v. Pait Logging Company/Georgia Pac., 86 N.C. App. 77, 356 S.E.2d 365 (1987); Strickland v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 86 N.C. App. 598, 359 S.E.2d 19, modified and aff'd on rehearing, 87 N.C. App. 507, 361 S.E.2d 394 (1987).

In order to prove disability the burden is on the employee to show that he is unable to earn the same wages he had earned before the injury, either in the same employment or in other employment. The employee may meet this burden in one of four ways: (1) the production of medical evidence that he is physically or mentally, as a consequence of the work related injury, incapable of work in any employment; (2) the production of evidence that he is capable of some work, but that he has, after a reasonable effort on his part, been unsuccessful in his effort to obtain employment; (3) the production of evidence that he is capable of some work but that it would be futile because of preexisting conditions, i.e., age, inexperience, lack of education, to seek other employment; or (4) the production of evidence that he has obtained other employment at a wage less than that earned prior to the injury. Russell v. Lowes Prod. Distrib., 108 N.C. App. 762, 425 S.E.2d 454 (1993).

Agreement Affects Consequent Burden of Proof. — The Commission erred in concluding that as a matter of law because defendants had the burden of proof to present evidence sufficient to rebut a presumption of continued total disability raised by Form 21 agreement, and defendants had not met that burden, plaintiff was entitled to a continuing presumption of total disability; plaintiff employee's later Form 26 agreement with its specific duration superseded the earlier Form 21 agreement which covered her total disability for an indefinite period, and consequently, she had the burden of rebutting the existing presumption of partial disability through the presentation of evidence supporting total disability. Dancy v. Abbott Labs., 139 N.C. App. 553, 534 S.E.2d 601 (2000), review dismissed, 353 N.C. 370 (2001), aff'd, 353 N.C. 446, 545 S.E.2d 211 (2001).

The relevant inquiry under this section is not whether all or some persons with plaintiff's degree of injury are capable of working and earning wages, but whether plaintiff herself has such capacity. Little v. Anson County Schools Food Serv., 295 N.C. 527, 246 S.E.2d 743 (1978); Allen v. Standard Mineral Co., 71 N.C. App. 597, 322 S.E.2d 644 (1984), cert. denied, 313 N.C. 327, 329 S.E.2d 384 (1985).

If preexisting conditions such as the employee's age, education and work experience are such that an injury causes the employee a greater degree of incapacity for work than the same injury would cause some other person, the employee must be compensated for the actual incapacity he or she suffers, and not for the degree of disability which would be suffered by someone who is younger or who possesses superior education or work experience. Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

Under the traditional four-way classification of disabilities, a total disability under this section must be either permanent or temporary. Gamble v. Borden, Inc., 45 N.C. App. 506, 263 S.E.2d 280, cert. denied, 300 N.C. 372, 267 S.E.2d 675 (1980).

Occupational Disease Is Not Compensable Until It Causes Incapacity to Work. — An occupational disease does not become compensable under this section (relating to total incapacity) or § 97-30 (relating to partial incapacity) until it causes incapacity for work. This incapacity is the basic "loss" for which the worker receives compensation. Caulder v. Mills, 314 N.C. 70, 331 S.E.2d 646 (1985).

In determining the extent of a particular employee's capacity for work, the Commission may consider such factors as the individual's degree of pain and the individual's age, education and work experience. Niple v. Seawell Realty & Indus. Co., 88 N.C. App. 136, 362 S.E.2d 572 (1987).

Fact that plaintiff can perform sedentary work does not in itself preclude the Commission from making an award for total disability if it finds upon supporting evidence that plaintiff, because of other preexisting limitations, is not qualified to perform the kind of sedentary jobs that might be available in the marketplace. Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

Where occupational lung disease incapacitates an employee from all but sedentary employment, and because of the employee's age, limited education or work experience no sedentary employment for which the employee is qualified exists, the employee is entitled to compensation for total disability. Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

Disability Related to Asbestosis. — The claimant could not recover compensation for total or partial incapacity to earn wages, both of which require a showing of disablement, where his prior award of 104-weeks' compensation for asbestosis did not establish his disablement, but he was entitled to compensation for permanent injury to his lungs. Davis v. Weyerhaeuser Co., 132 N.C. App. 771, 514 S.E.2d 91 (1999).

ties, then the award of workers' compensation must take into account such impairment. Harmon v. Public Serv. of N.C., Inc., 81 N.C. App. 482, 344 S.E.2d 285, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

When an injury to the back causes referred pain to the extremities of the body, and this pain impairs the use of the extremities, then the award of workers' compensation must take into account such impairment; furthermore, a disabled plaintiff suffering from "chronic back and leg pain" as a result of a work-related injury to the back cannot be fully compensated under § 97-31(23) and is entitled to compensation under this section. Therefore, the Industrial Commission's failure to make findings as to disability to the plaintiff's legs caused by the arachnoiditis was error and required a remand to the Commission for appropriate findings. McKenzie v. McCarter Elec. Co., 86 N.C. App. 619, 359 S.E.2d 249 (1987).

Remand for Findings as to Other Employment for Which Qualified. — Where the Commission found that plaintiff had chronic obstructive pulmonary disease caused in part by her exposure to respirable cotton dust during her employment, but that her impairment was not sufficient to render plaintiff incapable of performing types of employment which did not require very strenuous activity or exposure to cotton dust, but the Commission's findings did not address evidence that due to plaintiff's education, age and experience she was probably not capable of earning wages in any employment which did not require substantial physical exertion, the case was remanded for appropriate findings and conclusions of plaintiff's capacity to earn wages in employment for which she might be qualified. Webb v. Pauline Knitting Indus., 78 N.C. App. 184, 336 S.E.2d 645 (1985).

Remand for Findings as to Wage Earning Capacity. — Where plaintiff suffered a permanent disability to her lungs, the Industrial Commission committed error in compensating her under § 97-31, but failing to consider or make findings of fact as to whether her disability affected her wage earning capacity under either this section, or § 97-30, as this prevented plaintiff from electing to recover under either this section or § 97-30, if she was so entitled. Strickland v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 87 N.C. App. 507, 361 S.E.2d 394 (1987).

Presumption of Duration of Disability. — The Supreme Court has held that "if an award is made, payable during disability, and there is a presumption that disability lasts until the employee returns to work, there is likewise a presumption that disability ended when the employee returned to work." Tucker v. Lowdermilk, 233 N.C. 185, 63 S.E.2d 109 (1951).

Wheelchair Accessible Residence. — The employer's obligation to furnish "other treatment or care" may include the duty to furnish alternate, wheelchair accessible housing. Derebery v. Pitt County Fire Marshall, 318 N.C. 192, 347 S.E.2d 814 (1986).

Evidence that plaintiff's present rented home had not been modified to accommodate his wheelchair, that the owners would not permit such modification, and that plaintiff could not enter the bathroom or kitchen and thus could not use the bath or toilet facilities or prepare meals for himself supported the Commission's finding of fact that plaintiff's present residence was not satisfactory and its award for wheelchair accessible housing. Derebery v. Pitt County Fire Marshall, 318 N.C. 192, 347 S.E.2d 814 (1986).

Handicapped Accessible Housing. — An employer's duty to provide other treatment or care is sufficiently broad to include the duty to provide handicapped accessible housing. Timmons v. North Carolina DOT, 123 N.C. App. 456, 473 S.E.2d 356 (1996), aff'd, 346 N.C. 173, 484 S.E.2d 551 (1997).

Specially Equipped Van. — Neither the phrase "other treatment or care" nor the term "rehabilitative services" in this section can reasonably be interpreted to include a specially equipped van. McDonald v. Brunswick Elec. Membership Corp., 77 N.C. App. 753, 336 S.E.2d 407 (1985), affirming the Commission's opinion and award, however, to the extent that it required defendants to reimburse plaintiff for the cost of special adaptive equipment in his specially equipped van.

Psychological injuries are compensable, if at all, under this section or § 97-31 and wage-earning capacity is critical to the assessment of a plaintiff's entitlement to benefits under these sections. McLean v. Eaton Corp., 125 N.C. App. 391, 481 S.E.2d 289 (1997).

Evidence Held Sufficient to Show That Injurious Exposure Occurred During Course of Employment. — Where the record disclosed that plaintiff did not continue earning wages after 1969, her unsuccessful attempts to work during the years 1969 to 1980, when considered in conjunction with the medical evidence, merely demonstrated her total incapacity to earn wages; thus the commission's determination that plaintiff's last injurious exposure to the hazards of her occupational disease occurred while she was employed in 1968, and its order that employer and its carrier in 1968 pay her an award under the provisions of this section in effect on October 1, 1968, would be affirmed. Gregory v. Sadie Cotton Mills, Inc., 90 N.C. App. 433, 368 S.E.2d 650, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 835, 371 S.E.2d 277 (1988).

Testimony of two doctors and a vocational rehabilitation counselor was amply competent to support the Commission's finding that employee had no capacity to earn wages in either the same or any other employment up to the date of a hearing before a deputy commissioner. Kennedy v. Duke Univ. Medical Center, 101 N.C. App. 24, 398 S.E.2d 677 (1990).

Employee Bore Burden of Rebutting Presumption That She Was Temporarily Partially Disabled. — The plaintiff bore the burden of proving total disability at the hearing before the Commission where—after entering into a Form 21 agreement which did not specifically note the type of disability for which plaintiff was being compensated but in which the weekly compensation rate was fixed at a level equivalent to the amount payable for total disability under this section—she entered a Form 26 agreement which created the presumption that plaintiff was temporarily partially disabled, and not totally disabled. Saunders v. Edenton Ob/Gyn Ctr., 352 N.C. 136, 530 S.E.2d 62 (2000).

Burden of Proof. — A claimant who asserts that he is entitled to compensation under this section has the burden of proving that he is, as a result of the injury arising out of and in the course of his employment, totally unable to earn wages which in the same or any other employment. Burwell v. Winn-Dixie Raleigh, Inc., 114 N.C. App. 69, 441 S.E.2d 145 (1994).

Defendants Held Not Entitled to Credit for Scheduled Award. — Where temporary total disability payments for stress-induced depression resulting from injury were to begin approximately six months after the final payment on the scheduled award for permanent partial disability, the defendants would not be given credit on the compensation awarded for temporary total disability for compensation previously awarded under § 97-31(15). Hill v. Hanes Corp., 79 N.C. App. 67, 339 S.E.2d 1 (1986), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

Findings Implying Temporary Total Disability Held Sufficient. — Commission's findings implying that plaintiff's disability was a temporary total one were sufficiently definite to determine the rights of the parties, even though the Commission failed to make specific findings regarding both the extent and the permanency of the plaintiff's injury. Kennedy v. Duke Univ. Medical Center, 101 N.C. App. 24, 398 S.E.2d 677 (1990).

Evidence Sufficient to Support Temporary Total Disability Rating. — Evidence held sufficient to support the Commission's award of compensation for temporary total disability based on stress-induced depression resulting from injury. Hill v. Hanes Corp., 79 N.C. App. 67, 339 S.E.2d 1 (1986), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

Where plaintiff testified that his arm was "no good;" that he had worked as a roofer in the United States, although he had no green card and was not a citizen, since 1995; that he was in continuous pain and had been unable to work since he fell from a forklift; and that his doctor assigned him a 10% impairment rating for his left wrist, the Industrial Commission did not err in assigning plaintiff a rating of temporary total disability under this section. Rivera v. Trapp, 135 N.C. App. 296, 519 S.E.2d 777 (1999).

Evidence Sufficient to Show Permanent Total Incapacity. — Where physician testified that plaintiff suffered continuous pain in his back, both hips, and legs and continuous numbness of the right foot, and that he was 100% disabled, and opined that plaintiff's pain was caused by the use of his back in coordination with his hips and legs, the Commission could determine that plaintiff would not be totally compensated for his injuries under § 97-31 and that, as a result, he was entitled to compensation for permanent total incapacity under this section. Kendrick v. City of Greensboro, 80 N.C. App. 183, 341 S.E.2d 122, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 335, 346 S.E.2d 500 (1986).

Evidence Sufficient to Award Permanent Partial Disability. — Plaintiff, who received temporary total disability benefits under this section for a compensable heart attack in April, 1979, was properly awarded permanent partial disability under § 97-30 on his application under § 97-47 for modification of the prior award following three additional heart attacks, where the Commission found that he had been permanently and totally disabled since June, 1981, partially as a result of his compensable heart attack in 1979. Weaver v. Swedish Imports Maintenance, Inc., 80 N.C. App. 432, 343 S.E.2d 205 (1986), modified, 319 N.C. 243, 354 S.E.2d 477 (1987).

Evidence of an employer's refusal to allow an employee to return to work because there was no "light" work available supports a finding that the employee is not capable of earning wages in the same employment. Moore v. Davis Auto Serv., 118 N.C. App. 624, 456 S.E.2d 847 (1995).

Return to Work Assertion Does Not Necessarily Raise Wage Earning Capacity Issue. — Where defendants did not assert any other reason for termination of plaintiff's benefits besides "return to work" on the Form 28T, the record revealed that the plaintiff denied that she ever attempted a "trial return to work" and that she, therefore, was not required to file a Form 28U, and it was undisputed that defendants did not file a Form 24 seeking to terminate plaintiff's compensation on grounds other than plaintiff's "return to work", the only issue before the Full Commission was whether or not plaintiff had returned to work, warranting termination of benefits pursuant to N.C. Gen. Stat. § 97-18.1(b); thus it did not consider the issue of whether or not plaintiff had wage earning capacity and neither would the Court of Appeals. Lewis v. Sonoco Prods. Co., 137 N.C. App. 61, 526 S.E.2d 671 (2000).

No Benefits for Unjustifiable Refusal of Employment. — If an employer shows that an employee has unjustifiably refused employment procured for the employee that is suitable to the employee's capacity and the evidence is accepted by the Industrial Commission, the employee is not entitled to any benefits pursuant to this section or § 97-30. Franklin v. Broyhill Furn. Indus., 123 N.C. App. 200, 472 S.E.2d 382 (1996).

As to construction of section prior to its early amendment, see Smith v. Carolina Power & Light Co., 198 N.C. 614, 152 S.E. 805 (1930).

Effect of Litigation of Earning Capacity on Review of Form 26 Agreement. — Where plaintiff's earning capacity was actually litigated and necessary to the outcome of his § 97-47 hearing, the Industrial Commission was bound by that finding in determining if a Form 26 agreement was fair and just; therefore, its finding that the agreement was "improvidently approved" on the grounds that plaintiff had no earning capacity, thus qualifying him for benefits under this section, had to be reversed. Lewis v. Craven Reg'l Med. Ctr., 134 N.C. App. 438, 518 S.E.2d 1 (1999).

Applied in Aldridge v. Foil Motor Co., 262 N.C. 248, 136 S.E.2d 591 (1964); Anderson v. Lincoln Constr. Co., 265 N.C. 431, 144 S.E.2d 272 (1965); *Bryan v. ## II. PERMANENT AND TOTAL DISABILITY.

This section contains a mandatory provision that applies when the Commission finds a permanent and total disability. Robinson v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 619, 292 S.E.2d 144 (1982).

Establishment of Permanent Incapacity. — Once an employee has reached their maximum medical improvement, the employee may establish permanent incapacity pursuant to either this section, § 97-30 or § 97-31. Franklin v. Broyhill Furn. Indus., 123 N.C. App. 200, 472 S.E.2d 382 (1996).

Other Treatment Provision Is in Addition to Named Items. — The provision for other treatment or care goes beyond and is in addition to the specific named essential items and services set out in this section. Godwin v. Swift & Co., 270 N.C. 690, 155 S.E.2d 157 (1967).

Medical Expenses Compensated Only Where Disability Is Total and Permanent. — This section entitles a claimant to recover compensation for medical care only where disability is found to be total and permanent. Peeler v. State Hwy. Comm., 48 N.C. App. 1, 269 S.E.2d 153 (1980), aff'd, 302 N.C. 183, 273 S.E.2d 705 (1981).

An employee's presumption of disability may not be defeated merely by a return to work. Kisiah v. W.R. Kisiah Plumbing, Inc., 124 N.C. App. 72, 476 S.E.2d 434 (1996).

Once the Form 21 agreement was entered into by the parties and approved by the Commission, a concomitant presumption of disability attached in favor of employee, and the burden of proof was on the employer, not the employee, to demonstrate that plaintiff was no longer entitled to his disability award. Kisiah v. W.R. Kisiah Plumbing, Inc., 124 N.C. App. 72, 476 S.E.2d 434 (1996).

Combination of Compensable and Noncompensable Illnesses. — Where a claimant is rendered totally unable to earn wages, partially as a result of a compensable injury and partially as a result of a non-work-related medical condition, the claimant is entitled to an award for total disability under this section. Counts v. Black & Decker Corp., 121 N.C. App. 387, 465 S.E.2d 343 (1996).

There was competent evidence before the Industrial Commission to support its finding that plaintiff's work-related shoulder injury combined with her non-work-related arthritic condition to render her totally disabled. Counts v. Black & Decker Corp., 121 N.C. App. 387, 465 S.E.2d 343 (1996).

Total Incapacity from Emotional Disturbance Caused by Injury. — Where employee receives a compensable injury which causes her to become so emotionally disturbed that she is unable to work, she is entitled to compensation for total incapacity under this section. Fayne v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 54 N.C. App. 144, 282 S.E.2d 539 (1981), cert. denied, 304 N.C. 725, 288 S.E.2d 380 (1982).

If an employee suffers a compensable injury and the injury causes an emotional disturbance which renders him unable to work, he is entitled to compensation for total incapacity under this section. McLean v. Eaton Corp., 125 N.C. App. 391, 481 S.E.2d 289 (1997).

Compensation for Byssinosis. — It was not until 1975, when the General Assembly enacted the amendments to this section, that employees suffering from byssinosis were able to receive unlimited weekly benefits for their total and permanent disability. Prior to that time, this section only provided lifetime weekly benefits for persons disabled due to paralysis resulting from injury to the brain or spinal cord or from loss of mental capacity due to injury to the brain. In all other cases of total disability, compensation was restricted in the amount of money paid per week, in the amount of weeks paid and in the maximum amount which the claimant could receive. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 643, 292 S.E.2d 277 (1982), modified and aff'd, 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

An award for damage to the lungs may be made under subdivision (24) of § 97-31. But such an award, by the express terms of the statute, would be in lieu of all other compensation. Such award may also be based on this section, as had been done in many other reported cases involving byssinosis disability. West v. Bladenboro Cotton Mills, Inc., 62 N.C. App. 267, 302 S.E.2d 645 (1983).

Loss of Both Legs. — Section 97-31(17) provides that the loss of both legs constitutes total and permanent disability to be compensated according to this section, which provides for lifetime benefits. Timmons v. North Carolina DOT, 123 N.C. App. 456, 473 S.E.2d 356 (1996), aff'd, 346 N.C. 173, 484 S.E.2d 551 (1997).

Although plaintiff, who had lost both legs, returned to full-time employment, the employee was entitled to on-going benefits.

Timmons v. North Carolina DOT, 123 N.C. App. 456, 473 S.E.2d 356 (1996), aff'd, 346 N.C. 173, 484 S.E.2d 551 (1997).

Depression Caused by Injury. — Evidence held sufficient to support the Commission's conclusion that employee was entitled to compensation under this section for total disability due to stress induced depression caused by on-the-job physical injuries which rendered him totally disabled. Hill v. Hanes Corp., 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome. — Evidence that an employee of a waste company whose job was to collect and dispose of raw sewage developed chronic fatigue syndrome and other ailments after being accidentally sprayed with raw sewage and that the employee's illnesses were most probably the result of the accident supported a ruling of the North Carolina Industrial Commission awarding the employee permanent workers' compensation disability benefits. Norton v. Waste Mgt., Inc., — N.C. App. —, 552 S.E.2d 702, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 938 (2001).

Aggravation of Latent Condition. — When a pre-existing, nondisabling, non-job-related condition is aggravated or accelerated by an accidental injury arising out of and in the course of employment or by an occupational disease so that disability results, then the employer must compensate the employee for the entire resulting disability, even though it would not have disabled a normal person to that extent. In such a case, where an injury has aggravated an existing condition and thus proximately caused the incapacity, the relative contributions of the accident and the pre-existing condition will not be weighed. Wilder v. Barbour Boat Works, 84 N.C. App. 689, 352 S.E.2d 690 (1987).

Evidence held to clearly indicate that plaintiff's 1983 injury to his leg aggravated a latent condition due to an unrelated 1977 injury and therefore proximately contributed to his total disability. Although a normal person may not have been disabled to that extent, plaintiff's entire disability was compensable. Wilder v. Barbour Boat Works, 84 N.C. App. 689, 352 S.E.2d 690 (1987).

Where an injury has aggravated an existing condition and thus proximately caused the incapacity, the relative contributions of the accident and the preexisting condition will not be weighed. McKenzie v. McCarter Elec. Co., 86 N.C. App. 619, 359 S.E.2d 249 (1987).

Total Incapacity Resulting from More Than One Injury. — If an injured employee is permanently and totally disabled, then he or she is entitled to receive compensation under this section, even if no single injury resulted in total and permanent disability, so long as the combined effect of all of the injuries caused permanent and total disability. McKenzie v.

McCarter Elec. Co., 86 N.C. App. 619, 359 S.E.2d 249 (1987).

When Apportionment Not Permitted. — Apportionment is not permitted when an employee becomes totally and permanently disabled due to a compensable injury's aggravation or acceleration of the employee's nondisabling, pre-existing disease or infirmity. Errante v. Cumberland County Solid Waste Mgt., 106 N.C. App. 114, 415 S.E.2d 583 (1992).

An employee is also entitled to full compensation for total disability without apportionment when the nature of the employee's total disability makes any attempt at apportionment between work-related and non-work-related causes speculative. Errante v. Cumberland County Solid Waste Mgt., 106 N.C. App. 114, 415 S.E.2d 583 (1992).

Apportionment Held Necessary. — Where it is clear that claimant's permanent and total disability was only partially a result of the initial compensable heart attack, the award must be apportioned to reflect the extent to which claimant's permanent total disability was caused by the compensable heart attack. Weaver v. Swedish Imports Maintenance, Inc., 319 N.C. 243, 354 S.E.2d 477 (1987).

The apportionment rule established by Morrison v. Burlington Indus., 304 N.C. 1, 282 S.E.2d 458 (1981), was applicable to a silicosis case in which there was some evidence of the existence of a nonwork-related disease or condition which independently contributed to the employee's incapacity to earn wages. Pitman v. Feldspar Corp., 87 N.C. App. 208, 360 S.E.2d 696 (1987), cert. denied, 321 N.C. 474, 364 S.E.2d 924 (1988), remanding for specific findings as to what extent plaintiff's silicosis caused his incapacity for work.

Evidence of Total Disability Held Sufficient. — Evidence provided by plaintiff's treating physician, occupational therapists, psychological associates, and vocational rehabilitation specialists supported the Commission's finding that plaintiff was unable, as a result of injury sustained in the course and scope of his employment, to earn wages in his former employment or in any other employment. Moore v. Davis Auto Serv., 118 N.C. App. 624, 456 S.E.2d 847 (1995).

Evidence of Total Disability Held Insufficient. — There was no evidence in the medical records submitted to the Commission that supported an award of permanent total disability benefits under this section. Salaam v. North Carolina DOT, 122 N.C. App. 83, 468 S.E.2d 536 (1996), review denied, 345 N.C. 494, 480 S.E.2d 51 (1997).

Retirement. — Plaintiff was not barred from seeking disability benefits if his retirement was for reasons unrelated to his occupational disease; the pertinent issue was whether plaintiff, subsequent to retirement, experienced a loss in wage-earning capacity. Stroud v. Caswell Ctr., 124 N.C. App. 653, 478 S.E.2d 234 (1996).

III. MAXIMUM WEEKLY BENEFIT.

Legislative Intent. — The legislature intended the maximums to be separate and independent provisions of this section. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens Co., 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

The 1973 amendment to this section governing the maximum weekly workers' compensation benefit applies to § 97-38, so that § 97-38 no longer limited recovery for death claims to $80.00 per week. Andrews v. Nu-Woods, Inc., 43 N.C. App. 591, 259 S.E.2d 306 (1979), aff'd, 299 N.C. 723, 264 S.E.2d 99 (1980).

The 1973 amendment clearly establishes maximum weekly benefits for all sections of the Workers' Compensation Act, including benefits for total incapacity and death, and benefits under § 97-38 are no longer limited to $80.00 per week. Andrews v. Nu-Woods, Inc., 299 N.C. 723, 264 S.E.2d 99 (1980).

Application of Section as Amended in 1978 Upheld. — Where all of the evidence disclosed that plaintiff did not become totally disabled until 1978, no right to recover for permanent total disability vested until after the enactment of the 1978 version of this section (Session Laws 1973, c. 1308, §§ 1, 2) and no possible liability accrued to defendants as a result of plaintiff's permanent total disability until after the enactment and effective date of the 1973 revision of this section; hence, the application of the 1978 version of this section did not constitute an unconstitutional application of substantive law. Smith v. American & Efrid Mills, 305 N.C. 507, 290 S.E.2d 634 (1982).

In a workers' compensation case, plaintiff was compensated for his permanent and total disability under this section as it read in 1978 when his disability became permanent and total, rather than as it read in 1970 when he first became disabled and was entitled to compensation for partial disability under § 97-30, since plaintiff had no right to claim compensation, nor was the employer exposed to liability, under this section until 1978 when plaintiff appeared to have become totally disabled. Smith v. American & Efrid Mills, 51 N.C. App. 480, 277 S.E.2d 83, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 304 N.C. 197, 285 S.E.2d 101 (1981), aff'd, 305 N.C. 507, 290 S.E.2d 634 (1982).

Section 97-29.1 Provides Parity with Certain Benefits Under This Section. — The import of § 97-29.1 was to effectuate some economic parity in benefits afforded persons who prior to § 97-29.1 received lifetime weekly benefits with those who received lifetime weekly benefits by virtue of the 1975 amendment to this section. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 643, 292 S.E.2d 277 (1982), modified and aff'd, 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

Stacking of Benefits Under § 97-30 and This Section Not Permitted. — If the Industrial Commission in workers' compensation actions should find that a plaintiff is totally and permanently disabled, the plaintiff's compensation should be to the fullest extent allowed under this section and should be awarded without regard to compensation previously awarded the plaintiff under § 97-30 for partial disability; however, a plaintiff should receive full compensation under this section only where an award under § 97-30 was fully paid before the plaintiff became totally disabled, since, if the period for partial disability award overlapped the period for the total award, the stacking of total benefits on top of partial benefits for the same time period would allow the plaintiff a greater recovery than the legislature intended. Smith v. American & Efrid Mills, 51 N.C. App. 480, 277 S.E.2d 83, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 304 N.C. 197, 285 S.E.2d 101 (1981), aff'd, 305 N.C. 507, 290 S.E.2d 634 (1982).

At a given point in time, the provisions of this section and § 97-30 must be mutually exclusive; that is, a claimant cannot simultaneously be both totally and partially incapacitated. Smith v. American & Efrid Mills, 51 N.C. App. 480, 277 S.E.2d 83, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 304 N.C. 197, 285 S.E.2d 101 (1981), aff'd, 305 N.C. 507, 290 S.E.2d 634 (1982).

This section did not entitle the plaintiff-registered nurse to yearly increases commensurate with the maximum rate calculated per annum. Clark v. Sanger Clinic, P.A., 142 N.C. App. 350, 542 S.E.2d 668 (2001), cert. denied, 353 N.C. 450, 548 S.E.2d 524 (2001).

§ 97-29.1. Increase in payments in cases for total and permanent disability occurring prior to July 1, 1973.

In all cases of total and permanent disability occurring prior to July 1, 1973, weekly compensation payments shall be increased effective July 1, 1977, to an amount computed by multiplying the number of calendar years prior to July 1, 1973, that the case arose by five percent (5%). Payments made by the employer or its insurance carrier by reason of such increase in weekly benefits may be deducted by such employer or insurance carrier from the tax levied on such employer or carrier pursuant to G.S. 105-228.5 or G.S. 97-100. Every employer or insurance carrier claiming such deduction or credit shall verify such claim to the Secretary of Revenue or the Industrial Commission by affidavit or by such other method as may be prescribed by the Secretary of Revenue or the Industrial Commission. (1977, c. 651.)

CASE NOTES

Purpose. — In enacting this section, the legislature did not intend to do anything other than increase the weekly benefits of claimants who were totally and permanently disabled. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 643, 292 S.E.2d 277 (1982), modified and aff'd, 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

The legislative history of this section reveals an intent to provide additional benefits for persons who were disabled prior to 1973. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 643, 292 S.E.2d 277 (1982), modified and aff'd, 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

By enacting this section, the legislature intended only to affect those cases in which the claimant received lifetime weekly benefits under § 97-29 prior to 1975 amendment to that statute which provided lifetime weekly benefits for total and permanent disability regardless of the cause of disability. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens Co., 57 N.C. App. 643, 292 S.E.2d 277 (1982), modified and aff'd, 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

Effect of Section. — This section increases only the weekly compensation benefits in all cases of total and permanent disability occurring prior to July 1, 1973; no provision has been made for an increase in total benefits. It is a well-settled principle of statutory construction that where a statute is intelligible without any additional words, no additional words may be supplied. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

Section Provides Parity with Certain Benefits Under § 97-29. — The import of this section was to effectuate some economic parity in benefits afforded persons who prior to this section received lifetime weekly benefits with those who received lifetime weekly benefits by virtue of the 1975 amendment to § 97-29. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 643, 292 S.E.2d 277 (1982), modified and aff'd, 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

§ 97-30. Partial incapacity.

Except as otherwise provided in G.S. 97-31, where the incapacity for work resulting from the injury is partial, the employer shall pay, or cause to be paid, as hereinafter provided, to the injured employee during such disability, a weekly compensation equal to sixty-six and two-thirds percent (66⅔%) of the difference between his average weekly wages before the injury and the average weekly wages which he is able to earn thereafter, but not more than the amount established annually to be effective October 1 as provided in G.S. 97-29 a week, and in no case shall the period covered by such compensation be greater than 300 weeks from the date of injury. In case the partial disability begins after a period of total disability, the latter period shall be deducted from the maximum period herein allowed for partial disability. An officer or member of the State Highway Patrol shall not be awarded any weekly compensation under the provisions of this section for the first two years of any incapacity resulting from an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of the performance by him of his official duties if, during such incapacity, he continues to be an officer or member of the State Highway Patrol, but he shall be awarded any other benefits to which he may be entitled under the provisions of this Article. ## CASE NOTES

The Workers' Compensation Act is only intended to furnish compensation for loss of earning capacity. Without such loss, there is no provision for compensation in this section, even if permanent physical injury is suffered. Branham v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 223 N.C. 233, 25 S.E.2d 865 (1943).

Test of Earning Capacity. — Under the act, wages earned, or the capacity to earn wages, is the test of earning capacity, or to state it differently, the diminution of the power or capacity to earn is the measure of compensability. Branham v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 223 N.C. 233, 25 S.E.2d 865 (1943), in which claimant, who was found to have suffered one-third "general partial disability" due to back injury, returned to lighter work but was paid the same wage as before the injury, and the Supreme Court rejected his contention that he was unable to work as he had before the injury and was thus entitled to compensation although still receiving the same wage, decided prior to the 1955 amendment to § 97-31, which made back injuries compensable as specific disabilities under that section. Wilhite v. Liberty Veneer Co., 47 N.C. App. 434, 267 S.E.2d 566, rev'd on other grounds, 303 N.C. 281, 278 S.E.2d 234 (1981).

The disability of an employee is to be measured by his capacity or incapacity to earn the wages he was receiving at the time of the injury. Loss of earning capacity is the criterion. Dail v. Kellex Corp., 233 N.C. 446, 64 S.E.2d 438 (1951).

Compensation must be based upon loss of wage-earning power rather than the amount actually received. Hill v. DuBose, 234 N.C. 446, 67 S.E.2d 371 (1951). See also Evans v. Asheville Citizens Times Co., 246 N.C. 669, 100 S.E.2d 75 (1957).

Version of Statute in Effect for Determining Compensation. — Plaintiff, who became partially disabled in 1973 and was compensated pursuant to the laws in effect at that time, was entitled to compensation for total disability (arising out of the same injury) under the laws in effect in 1981, when he became totally disabled. Peace v. J.P. Stevens Co., 95 N.C. App. 129, 381 S.E.2d 798 (1989).

Medical Services to Employee Who

Loses No Wages. — The rule that denies compensation to an injured employee who has lost no wages is necessarily applied in some cases growing out of this section in order to determine the amount of compensation due, but it is not applicable to medical, surgical, hospital, and nursing services under § 97-25, as medical and hospital expenses are not a part of, and are not included in, determining recoverable compensation. Ashley v. Rent-A-Car Co., 271 N.C. 76, 155 S.E.2d 755 (1967).

Return to Work — Generally. — If there is a presumption that disability lasts until the employee returns to work, there is likewise a presumption that disability ended when the employee returned to work. Tucker v. Lowdermilk, 233 N.C. 185, 63 S.E.2d 109 (1951).

Same — At Higher Wages. — Employee was receiving compensation under this section for permanent partial disability resulting from injury to his back. He obtained a new job in which he earned more than he was earning at the time of injury. His physical condition remained unchanged. The Supreme Court held that he had undergone a change of condition within the meaning of § 97-47 justifying a modification of the award and reduction of the compensation payable. Smith v. Swift & Co., 212 N.C. 608, 194 S.E. 106 (1937), decided prior to the 1955 amendment to § 97-31 which made back injuries compensable as specific disabilities under that section.

Establishment of Permanent Incapacity. — Once an employee has reached their maximum medical improvement, the employee may establish permanent incapacity pursuant to either this section, § 97-29 or § 97-31. Franklin v. Broyhill Furn. Indus., 123 N.C. App. 200, 472 S.E.2d 382 (1996).

Extent of Disability Must Be Known. — The Commission is not in a position to make a proper award until the extent of disability or permanent injury, if any, is determined. Hall v. Thomason Chevrolet, Inc., 263 N.C. 569, 139 S.E.2d 857 (1965).

Since Degree of Disability Is Measure for Compensation. — Under this section, compensation for permanent partial disability is measured by the degree of disability, except in case of loss of a member as specified in § 97-31. Ashley v. Rent-A-Car Co., 271 N.C. 76, 155 S.E.2d 755 (1967).

Version of Statute in Effect for Determining Compensation. — Plaintiff, who became partially disabled in 1973 and was compensated pursuant to the laws in effect at that time, was entitled to compensation for total disability (arising out of the same injury) under the laws in effect in 1981, when he became totally disabled. Peace v. J.P. Stevens Co., 95 N.C. App. 129, 381 S.E.2d 798 (1989).

This section and § 97-29 are mutually exclusive. A claimant cannot simultaneously be both totally and partially incapacitated. Carothers v. Ti-Caro, 83 N.C. App. 301, 350 S.E.2d 95 (1986).

When an employee suffers a diminution of the power or capacity to earn, he or she is entitled to benefits under this section; when the power or capacity to earn is totally obliterated, he or she is entitled to benefits under § 97-29. Gupton v. Builders Transp., 320 N.C. 38, 357 S.E.2d 674 (1987).

Stacking of Benefits Under § 97-29 and This Section Not Permitted. — If the Industrial Commission in workers' compensation actions should find that a plaintiff became totally and permanently disabled, the plaintiff's compensation should be to the fullest extent allowed under § 97-29 and should be awarded without regard to compensation previously awarded the plaintiff under this section for partial disability; however, a plaintiff should receive full compensation under § 97-29 only where an award under this section was fully paid before the plaintiff became totally disabled, since if the period for the partial disability award overlapped the period for the total award, the stacking of total benefits on top of partial benefits, for the same time period, would allow the plaintiff a greater recovery than the legislature intended. Smith v. American & Efrid Mills, 51 N.C. App. 480, 277 S.E.2d 83, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 304 N.C. 197, 285 S.E.2d 101 (1981), aff'd, 305 N.C. 507, 290 S.E.2d 634 (1982).

At a given point in time, the provisions of § 97-29 and this section must be mutually exclusive; that is, a claimant cannot simultaneously be both totally and partially incapacitated. Smith v. American & Efrid Mills, 51 N.C. App. 480, 277 S.E.2d 83, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 304 N.C. 197, 285 S.E.2d 101 (1981), aff'd, 305 N.C. 507, 290 S.E.2d 634 (1982).

The proper formula for compensation under this section would be the difference between wages before and after the disease multiplied by 66⅔ percent multiplied by the percentage of disability for work on account of work-related causes rather than by the percentage of the physical impairment that is work-related. Parrish v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 71 N.C. App. 196, 321 S.E.2d 492 (1984).

Section 97-31 Compared. — In all cases in which compensation is sought under § 97-29 or this section, total or partial disablement must be shown; however, if compensation is sought in the alternative under § 97-31, disablement is presumed from the injury and compensation is accordingly based on the schedule. Grant v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 77 N.C. App. 241, 335 S.E.2d 327 (1985).

Often an award under § 97-29, and by implication of this section, better fulfills the policy of the Workers' Compensation Act than an award under § 97-31(24). Strickland v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 87 N.C. App. 507, 361 S.E.2d 394 (1987).

An employee who suffers injuries resulting in partial disability of a general nature is entitled to compensation under this section, while an employee who sustains injuries of a specific nature is entitled to recover pursuant to the schedule provided in § 97-31. In fact, an employee who sustains both general and specific injuries may recover benefits under both this section and § 97-31. Gray v. Carolina Freight Carriers, Inc., 105 N.C. App. 480, 414 S.E.2d 102 (1992).

Where all of a worker's injuries are included in the schedule set out in § 97-31 his compensation is limited to that provided for in the statutory schedule without regard to his ability or inability to earn wages. Jones v. Murdoch Center, 74 N.C. App. 128, 327 S.E.2d 294 (1985).

Unjustifiable Refusal of Employment. — If an employer shows that the employee has unjustifiably refused employment procured for him that is suitable to the employee's capacity and the evidence is accepted by the Industrial Commission, the employee is not entitled to any benefits pursuant to this section or § 97-29. Franklin v. Broyhill Furn. Indus., 123 N.C. App. 200, 472 S.E.2d 382 (1996).

Where all of a worker's injuries are not included in the schedule contained in § 97-31 and the worker's earning capacity has been permanently, but only partially, impaired he is entitled to the scheduled compensation provided for in § 97-31 and an award for permanent partial disability as provided for in this section. Jones v. Murdoch Ctr., 74 N.C. App. 128, 327 S.E.2d 294 (1985).

Injuries Also Entitling Employee to Compensation Under § 97-31. — An employee sustained injuries resulting in disability of a general nature such as would entitle him to compensation under this section. In addition to such injuries, he had also sustained injuries of a specific nature such as to entitle him to compensation under § 97-31. He is entitled to compensation for the specific injuries under § 97-31, and then, if still disabled as a result of the other injuries, compensation will be paid under this section. Morgan v. Town of Norwood, 211 N.C. 600, 191 S.E. 345 (1937).

Where all of a worker's injuries are compensable under § 97-31, the compensation provided for under that section is in lieu of all other compensation. When, however, an employee cannot be fully compensated under § 97-31 and is permanently incapacitated, he or she is entitled to compensation under § 97-29 for total incapacity or this section for partial incapacity. Kendrick v. City of Greensboro, 80 N.C. App. 183, 341 S.E.2d 122, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 335, 346 S.E.2d 500 (1986).

Because stacking of benefits covering the same injury for the same time period is prohibited, and because the prevention of double recovery, not exclusivity of remedy, is patently the intent of the "in lieu of all other compensation" clause in § 97-31, a plaintiff entitled to select a remedy under either § 97-31 or this section may receive benefits under the provisions offering the more generous benefits, less the amount he or she has already received. Gupton v. Builders Transp., 320 N.C. 38, 357 S.E.2d 674 (1987).

Award for both partial incapacity under this section and for disfigurement under § 97-31(22) is now permissible for injuries occurring since July 1, 1963. Hall v. Thomason Chevrolet, Inc., 263 N.C. 569, 139 S.E.2d 857 (1965).

When an employee's power to earn is diminished but not obliterated, he is entitled to benefits under this section for a permanent partial disability. Brown v. S & N Communications, Inc., 124 N.C. App. 320, 477 S.E.2d 197 (1996).

Award for Partial Disability Not Increased to Compensation for Total Disability. — Where an award was entered for total disability for a certain length of time, and for partial disability thereafter for a total of 300 weeks under this section, the Industrial Commission could not increase the award of compensation to that allowed for total disability, upon its finding that at the time of the review of the award claimant's condition was unchanged and that he was at the time only 50 percent disabled. Murray v. Nebel Knitting Co., 214 N.C. 437, 199 S.E. 609 (1938), distinguishing Smith v. Swift & Co., 212 N.C. 608, 194 S.E. 106 (1937).

Occupational Disease Is Not Compensable Until It Causes Incapacity for Work. — An occupational disease does not become compensable under § 97-29 (relating to total incapacity) or this section (relating to partial incapacity) until it causes incapacity for work. This incapacity is the basic "loss" for which the worker receives compensation under those statutes. Caulder v. Mills, 314 N.C. 70, 331 S.E.2d 646 (1985).

Amount of Benefit. — Subject to the limitations and percentages stated in the statute in partial disability cases, the weekly benefit due is based on the difference between the employee's average weekly wage before the injury and average weekly wage which he is able to earn thereafter. Thomason v. Fiber Indus., 78 N.C. App. 159, 336 S.E.2d 632 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 202, 341 S.E.2d 573 (1986).

Where the evidence tended to show that plaintiff was permanently partially disabled by reason of occupational disease and that after failing to obtain employment in the cotton textile industry in which he had been employed for 29 years, the plaintiff made an earnest and highly commendable search for other employment, and was able to obtain a permanent job with a restaurant at the minimum wage but was released from that employment only because business conditions resulted in the restaurant going out of business, the Commission was required to enter an award setting the plaintiff's compensation at two-thirds of the difference between his average wage of $196.91 a week while working for the defendant and the minimum wage of $134.00 a week which he received thereafter, an award of $41.94 per week, not to exceed 300 weeks. Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986).

Compensation under this section is to be computed upon the basis of the difference in the average weekly earnings before the injury and the average weekly wages the employee is able to earn thereafter. Gupton v. Builders Transp., 320 N.C. 38, 357 S.E.2d 674 (1987).

Commission Erred by Not Assessing Most Munificent Remedy. — The Industrial Commission erred when it awarded permanent disability compensation solely for plaintiff's scheduled hand injury under § 97-31 without assessing whether § 97-29 or this section would provide him a more munificent remedy. McLean v. Eaton Corp., 125 N.C. App. 391, 481 S.E.2d 289 (1997).

The Commission did not err in allowing defendants a credit only for the wages actually earned by employee after he was found to be disabled, as implicit in the Commission's finding that employee was entitled to compensation at two-thirds the difference between his wages prior to disability and his average weekly wages immediately thereafter was a finding that the wages actually earned by the employee after he was found to be disabled were the wages he was capable of earning. Calloway v. Mills, 78 N.C. App. 702, 338 S.E.2d 548 (1986), remanding, however, for further findings so that the exact amount of credit could be set and compensation could be properly calculated.

Showing Necessary to Secure Award Under Section. — In order to secure an award

under this section, the claimant has the burden of proving (1) that the injury resulted from accident arising out of and in the course of his employment; (2) that there resulted from that injury a loss of earning capacity (disability); and (3) the extent of that disability. Without such proof, there is no authority upon which to make an award, even though permanent physical injury may have been suffered. Gaddy v. Kern, 17 N.C. App. 680, 195 S.E.2d 141, cert. denied, 283 N.C. 585, 197 S.E.2d 873 (1973).

In order to secure an award under this section, the plaintiff has the burden of showing not only permanent partial disability, but also its degree. Gupton v. Builders Transp., 320 N.C. 38, 357 S.E.2d 674 (1987).

An employee's presumption of disability may not be defeated merely by a return to work. Kisiah v. W.R. Kisiah Plumbing, Inc., 124 N.C. App. 72, 476 S.E.2d 434 (1996).

Burden is on claimant to show permanent partial disability. Hall v. Thomason Chevrolet, Inc., 263 N.C. 569, 139 S.E.2d 857 (1965).

Presumption of Disability Not Rebutted. — Where the parties executed a Form 21 Agreement relieving the employee of the burden of proving his disability, the fact that plaintiff held a job one year before the matter was initially heard was not sufficient to prove that suitable jobs were available to him and that he was capable of getting one. Flores v. Stacy Penny Masonry Co., 134 N.C. App. 452, 518 S.E.2d 200 (1999).

And also its degree. See Hall v. Thomason Chevrolet, Inc., 263 N.C. 569, 139 S.E.2d 857 (1965).

Because plaintiff's presumption of post-injury diminished earning capacity was established by plaintiff and unrebutted by defendant, plaintiff was allowed to elect benefits pursuant to this section. Shaw v. UPS, 116 N.C. App. 598, 449 S.E.2d 50 (1994), aff'd per curiam, 342 N.C. 189, 463 S.E.2d 78 (1995).

Entitlement to Partial Disability Compensation Shown. — Plaintiff, who received temporary total disability benefits under § 97-29 for a compensable heart attack in April, 1979, was properly awarded permanent partial disability under this section on his application under § 97-47 for modification of the prior award following three additional heart attacks, where the Commission found that he had been permanently and totally disabled since June 1981, partially as a result of his compensable heart attack in 1979. Weaver v. Swedish Imports Maintenance, Inc., 80 N.C. App. 432, 343 S.E.2d 205 (1986), modified, 319 N.C. 243, 354 S.E.2d 477 (1987).

Individual who retired from job in which he had 47 years of experience at age 70, and subsequently attempted to return to work but could not obtain comparable employment, was entitled to partial disability compensation based on the difference between his present and former wages, in view of environmental restriction, caused by his occupational disease (COPD), which combined with other factors to limit the scope of his potential employment. Preslar v. Cannon Mills Co., 80 N.C. App. 610, 343 S.E.2d 209 (1986).

Truck driver, who suffered a 7% loss in the visual field of one eye in a job-related accident and was unable thereafter to find work at wages comparable to those he had been earning as a truck driver, was not precluded from receiving benefits under this section merely because he had received some compensation under § 97-31 for a scheduled injury. Gupton v. Builders Transp., 320 N.C. 38, 357 S.E.2d 674 (1987).

The record contained competent evidence to support the plaintiff's temporary partial disability compensation: the Commission's determination that, but for his injury, plaintiff would have received the Panthers contract amount of $86,000; its finding that plaintiff was unable to obtain other professional football employment; plaintiff's failure to obtain employment with the Dallas Cowboys; and his three treating physicians' note that a symptomatic disc would contraindicate his playing professional football. Larramore v. Richardson Sports Ltd. Partners, 141 N.C. App. 250, 540 S.E.2d 768 (2000), aff'd, 353 N.C. 520, 546 S.E.2d 87 (2001).

Retention of Jurisdiction by Commission. — Where an employee suffered a general partial disability, but continued to receive the same wages, which amounted to more than the assessable compensation for his injury, he could not receive additional compensation. But to protect the employee against the possibility that the employer might, after the expiration of the time limit specified in § 97-24, discontinue the employment and thus defeat the rights of the employee, the Commission, after finding the existing of the disability, directed that an award issue subject to specified limitations. It directed compensation at the statutory rate "at any time it is shown that the claimant is earning less," etc., during the statutory period of 300 weeks. By this order the Commission, in effect retained jurisdiction for future adjustments. In so doing it did not exceed its authority. Branham v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 223 N.C. 233, 25 S.E.2d 865 (1943).

An award also containing a provision by which the Commission sought to retain jurisdiction during 300 weeks so that claimant might be paid more compensation if he had a wage loss as a result of his injury within that time was held to be error by the Supreme Court, which said, "There is nothing in the statute . . . that contemplates or authorizes an anticipatory finding by the Commission that a physical impairment may develop into a compensable disability. Neither does the statute vest in the Commission the power to retain jurisdiction of a claim, after compensation has been awarded, merely because some physical impairment suffered by the claimant may, at some time in the future, cause a loss of wages. The Commission is concerned with conditions existing prior to and at the time of the hearing. If such conditions change in the future, to the detriment of the claimant, the statute affords the claimant a remedy and fixes the time within which he must seek it. G.S. 97-47." Dail v. Kellex Corp., 233 N.C. 446, 64 S.E.2d 438 (1951).

In Harris v. Asheville Contracting Co., 240 N.C. 715, 83 S.E.2d 802 (1954), the court again stated that the Commission was without jurisdiction to retain jurisdiction for 300 weeks. Branham v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 223 N.C. 233, 25 S.E.2d 865 (1943), was distinguished. See also Hill v. DuBose, 234 N.C. 446, 67 S.E.2d 371 (1951); Hill v. DuBose, 237 N.C. 501, 75 S.E.2d 401 (1953).

Apportionment Held Proper. — Where evidence supported the Industrial Commission's conclusion that claimant was totally disabled and that 55 percent of her disability was due to an occupational disease while 45 percent was due to other physical infirmities, it was not error for the Industrial Commission to award claimant compensation for a 55 percent partial disability rather than for total disability. Morrison v. Burlington Indus., 304 N.C. 1, 282 S.E.2d 458 (1981).

Employer's failure to tell employee about benefits provided under this section was not sufficient reason to set aside the award where employee-plaintiff entered into an agreement, accepted all the benefits from it, and chose not to contest it until almost two years after entering the agreement. Crump v. Independence Nissan, 112 N.C. App. 587, 436 S.E.2d 589 (1993).

Exaggerated Post-Injury Earnings. — Where plaintiff's hourly wage after he terminated his employment due to lung impairment was less than he had earned; however, his weekly income was approximately the same as pre-injury due to his working more hours post-injury, plaintiff's actual post-injury earnings were exaggerated and were not a reliable indicator of his earning capacity. Harris v. North Am. Prods., 125 N.C. App. 349, 481 S.E.2d 321 (1997).

Factors other than actual post-injury earnings may be considered in determining an injured employee's post-injury earning capacity. Harris v. North Am. Prods., 125 N.C. App. 349, 481 S.E.2d 321 (1997).

Remand for Findings as to Wage Earning Capacity. — Where plaintiff suffered a permanent disability to her lungs, the Industrial Commission committed error in compensating her under § 97-31, but failing to consider or make findings of fact as to whether her disability affected her wage earning capacity under either § 97-29 or this section, as this prevented plaintiff from electing to recover under either this section or § 97-29, if she was so entitled. Strickland v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 87 N.C. App. 507, 361 S.E.2d 394 (1987).

Psychological injuries are compensable, if at all, under § 97-29 or this section and wage-earning capacity is critical to the assessment of a plaintiff's entitlement to benefits under these sections. McLean v. Eaton Corp., 125 N.C. App. 391, 481 S.E.2d 289 (1997).

Disability Related to Asbestosis. — The claimant could not recover compensation for total or partial incapacity to earn wages, both of which require a showing of disablement, where his prior award of 104-weeks compensation for asbestosis did not establish his disablement, but he was entitled to compensation for permanent injury to his lungs. Davis v. Weyerhaeuser Co., 132 N.C. App. 771, 514 S.E.2d 91 (1999).

Applied in Dowdy v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 308 N.C. 701, 304 S.E.2d 215 (1983); Roper v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 65 N.C. App. 69, 308 S.E.2d 485 (1983); *Fleming v. ## § 97-31. Schedule of injuries; rate and period of compensation.

In cases included by the following schedule the compensation in each case shall be paid for disability during the healing period and in addition the disability shall be deemed to continue for the period specified, and shall be in lieu of all other compensation, including disfigurement, to wit:

- (1) For the loss of a thumb, sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the average weekly wages during 75 weeks.
- (2) For the loss of a first finger, commonly called the index finger, sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the average weekly wages during 45 weeks.
- (3) For the loss of a second finger, sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the average weekly wages during 40 weeks.
- (4) For the loss of a third finger, sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the average weekly wages during 25 weeks.
- (5) For the loss of a fourth finger, commonly called the little finger, sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the average weekly wages during 20 weeks.
- (6) The loss of the first phalange of the thumb or any finger shall be considered to be equal to the loss of one half of such thumb or finger, and the compensation shall be for one half of the periods of time above specified.
- (7) The loss of more than one phalange shall be considered the loss of the entire finger or thumb: Provided, however, that in no case shall the amount received for more than one finger exceed the amount provided in this schedule for the loss of a hand.
- (8) For the loss of a great toe, sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the average weekly wages during 35 weeks.
- (9) For the loss of one of the toes other than a great toe, sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the average weekly wages during 10 weeks.
- (10) The loss of the first phalange of any toe shall be considered to be equal to the loss of one half of such toe, and the compensation shall be for one half of the periods of time above specified.
- (11) The loss of more than one phalange shall be considered as the loss of the entire toe.
- (12) For the loss of a hand, sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the average weekly wages during 200 weeks.
- (13) For the loss of an arm, sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the average weekly wages during 240 weeks.
- (14) For the loss of a foot, sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the average weekly wages during 144 weeks.
- (15) For the loss of a leg, sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the average weekly wages during 200 weeks.
- (16) For the loss of an eye, sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the average weekly wages during 120 weeks.
- (17) The loss of both hands, or both arms, or both feet, or both legs, or both eyes, or any two thereof, shall constitute total and permanent disability, to be compensated according to the provisions of G.S. 97-29. The employee shall have a vested right in a minimum amount of compensation for the total number of weeks of benefits provided under this section for each member involved. When an employee dies from any cause other than the injury for which he is entitled to compensation, payment of the minimum amount of compensation shall be payable as provided in G.S. 97-37.

- (18) For the complete loss of hearing in one ear, sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the average weekly wages during 70 weeks; for the complete loss of hearing in both ears, sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the average weekly wages during 150 weeks.
- (19) Total loss of use of a member or loss of vision of an eye shall be considered as equivalent to the loss of such member or eye. The compensation for partial loss of or for partial loss of use of a member or for partial loss of vision of an eye or for partial loss of hearing shall be such proportion of the periods of payment above provided for total loss as such partial loss bears to total loss, except that in cases where there is eighty-five per centum (85%), or more, loss of vision in any eye, this shall be deemed "industrial blindness" and compensated as for total loss of vision of such eye.
- (20) The weekly compensation payments referred to in this section shall all be subject to the same limitations as to maximum and minimum as set out in G.S. 97-29.
- (21) In case of serious facial or head disfigurement, the Industrial Commission shall award proper and equitable compensation not to exceed twenty thousand dollars ($20,000). In case of enucleation where an artificial eye cannot be fitted and used, the Industrial Commission may award compensation as for serious facial disfigurement.
- (22) In case of serious bodily disfigurement for which no compensation is payable under any other subdivision of this section, but excluding the disfigurement resulting from permanent loss or permanent partial loss of use of any member of the body for which compensation is fixed in the schedule contained in this section, the Industrial Commission may award proper and equitable compensation not to exceed ten thousand dollars ($10,000).
- (23) For the total loss of use of the back, sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the average weekly wages during 300 weeks. The compensation for partial loss of use of the back shall be such proportion of the periods of payment herein provided for total loss as such partial loss bears to total loss, except that in cases where there is seventy-five per centum (75%) or more loss of use of the back, in which event the injured employee shall be deemed to have suffered "total industrial disability" and compensated as for total loss of use of the back.
- (24) In case of the loss of or permanent injury to any important external or internal organ or part of the body for which no compensation is payable under any other subdivision of this section, the Industrial Commission may award proper and equitable compensation not to exceed twenty thousand dollars ($20,000). (1929, c. 120, s. 31; 1931, c. 164; 1943, c. 502, s. 2; 1955, c. 1026, s. 7; 1957, c. 1221; c. 1396, ss. 2, 3; 1963, c. 424, ss. 1, 2; 1967, c. 84, s. 3; 1969, c. 143, s. 3; 1973, c. 515, s. 3; c. 759, s. 3; c. 761, ss. 1, 2; 1975, c. 164, s. 1; 1977, c. 892, s. 1; 1979, c. 250; 1987, c. 729, ss. 7, 8.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Many of the cases below construe this section as it read prior to the 1943 amendment.

The amending statute of 1963 is not retroactive. Arrington v. Stone & Webster Eng'g Corp., 264 N.C. 38, 140 S.E.2d 759 (1965).

The 1963 Amendment Separated Provisions for Disfigurement and Loss of Organ. — By Session Laws 1963, c. 424, the General Assembly rewrote subdivision (22) and added subdivision (24), separating the provisions for awards of compensation for disfigurement and for loss of an important organ of the body. Cates v. Hunt Constr. Co., 267 N.C. 560, 148 S.E.2d 604 (1966).

Which Are Not Covered by Subdivisions (1) to (20). — Subdivisions (1) to (20), inclusive, do not provide any compensation whatever for injuries on account of disfigurement. Neither do they provide compensation for loss of or injury to an organ or part of the body. Cates v. Hunt Constr. Co., 267 N.C. 560, 148 S.E.2d 604 (1966).

Liberal Construction. — The act should be liberally construed to the end that the benefits thereof shall not be denied upon technical, narrow, and strict interpretation. Cates v. Hunt Constr. Co., 267 N.C. 560, 148 S.E.2d 604 (1966).

The act requires the Industrial Commission and the courts to construe the compensation act liberally in favor of the injured worker. Cates v. Hunt Constr. Co., 267 N.C. 560, 148 S.E.2d 604 (1966).

This section should be liberally construed to the end that the benefits thereof should not be denied upon technical, narrow and strict interpretation. Gaddy v. Anson Wood Prods., 92 N.C. App. 483, 374 S.E.2d 477 (1988).

Purpose of Schedule Is to Expand Employee's Remedies. — Although this section relieves an employee from proving diminished earning capacity for injuries caused thereunder, it was not intended to mean that the presumption of reduced earning capacity should be used to the employee's detriment. The purpose of the schedule was to expand, not restrict, the employee's remedies. Whitley v. Columbia Lumber Mfg. Co., 318 N.C. 89, 348 S.E.2d 336 (1986).

Purpose of "In Lieu of" Clause. — The legislature enacted the "in lieu of" clause in this section to express its intent not to permit compensation for both loss and disfigurement of body parts. Whitley v. Columbia Lumber Mfg. Co., 318 N.C. 89, 348 S.E.2d 336 (1986).

The "in lieu of" clause of this section acts to prevent double recovery of benefits under different sections of the Workers' Compensation Act, but it does not provide for an exclusive remedy. Mitchell v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 84 N.C. App. 661, 353 S.E.2d 638 (1987).

Applicability of "In Lieu of" Provisions. — The "in lieu of" provisions of this section, the scheduled injury statute, apply only when all the employee's injuries fall within those set out in the schedule. Hill v. Hanes Corp., 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

Meaning of "Shall Be Deemed." — The words "shall be deemed," as used in the opening paragraph of this section, mean "shall be held," "shall be adjudged," "shall be determined,"

"shall be treated as if," "shall be construed." Watts v. Brewer, 243 N.C. 422, 90 S.E.2d 764 (1956).

Disablement Presumed. — In all cases in which compensation is sought under § 97-29 or § 97-30, total or partial disablement must be shown; however, if compensation is sought in the alternative under this section, disablement is presumed from the injury and compensation is accordingly based on the schedule. Grant v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 77 N.C. App. 241, 335 S.E.2d 327 (1985).

To obtain an award of benefits under any subsection of this section, a specific showing that the claimant has undergone a diminution in wage-earning capacity is not required; instead, disability is presumed from the fact of injury. Grant v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 77 N.C. App. 241, 335 S.E.2d 327 (1985).

This section is a schedule of losses for which compensation is payable even if a claimant does not demonstrate loss of wage-earning capacity. Losses included in the schedule are conclusively presumed to diminish wage-earning ability. Harrell v. Harriet & Henderson Yarns, 314 N.C. 566, 336 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

Under this section, a worker may receive compensation even if he or she cannot demonstrate loss of wage-earning capacity, because losses included in the schedule are conclusively presumed to diminish wage-earning ability. Strickland v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 86 N.C. App. 598, 359 S.E.2d 19, modified and aff'd on rehearing, 87 N.C. App. 507, 361 S.E.2d 394 (1987).

Maximum Medical Improvement. — The healing period ends when after a course of treatment and observation, the injury is discovered to be permanent and that fact is duly established; the point at which the injury has stabilized is often called "maximum medical improvement." Horne v. Universal Leaf Tobacco Processors, 119 N.C. App. 682, 459 S.E.2d 797 (1995).

Evidence indicating that a skin graft would be necessary before a complete healing of plaintiff's foot would occur and the release of plaintiff to work only with certain restrictions supported the finding that plaintiff had not yet reached maximum medical improvement. Davis v. Embree-Reed, Inc., 135 N.C. App. 80, 519 S.E.2d 763 (1999), cert. denied, 351 N.C. 102, 541 S.E.2d 143 (1999).

A finding of maximum medical improvement is simply the prerequisite to a determination of the amount of any permanent disability under this section. Silver v. Roberts Welding Contractors, 117 N.C. App. 707, 453 S.E.2d 216 (1995).

Once an employee has reached their maximum medical improvement, the employee may establish permanent incapacity pursuant to either this section, § 97-29 or § 97-30. Franklin v. Broyhill Furn. Indus., 123 N.C.

App. 200, 472 S.E.2d 382 (1996).

Contrary to the defendants' contention, the plaintiff reached maximum medical improvement—given his refusal to undergo further surgeries recommended by his doctor—with respect to his right and left upper extremities on January 24, 1994 and with respect to all of his injuries, on October 3, 1994 when he was found to be permanently and totally disabled. Aderholt v. A.M. Castle Co., 137 N.C. App. 718, 529 S.E.2d 474 (2000).

The Industrial Commission's award of temporary total disability benefits without determining whether the employee had reached maximum medical improvement required a remand for such a determination. Anderson v. Gulistan Carpet, Inc., 144 N.C. App. 661, 550 S.E.2d 237 (2001).

Maximum Medical Improvement Finding is Prerequisite to Determine Disability. — A finding of maximum medical improvement is not the equivalent of a finding that the employee is able to earn the same wage earned prior to injury; the maximum medical improvement finding is solely the prerequisite to determination of the amount of any permanent disability for purposes of this section. Watson v. Winston-Salem Transit Auth., 92 N.C. App. 473, 374 S.E.2d 483 (1988).

Section Construed with § 97-29. — In many instances, an award under § 97-29 better fulfills the policy of the Workers' Compensation Act than an award under this section, because it is a more favorable remedy and is more directly related to compensating inability to work. West v. Bladenboro Cotton Mills, Inc., 62 N.C. App. 267, 302 S.E.2d 645 (1983).

An employee who suffers an injury scheduled in this section may recover compensation under § 97-29 instead of under this section if he is totally and permanently disabled. Whitley v. Columbia Lumber Mfg. Co., 318 N.C. 89, 348 S.E.2d 336 (1986).

The "in lieu of" clause in this section does not prevent a worker who qualifies from recovering lifetime benefits under § 97-29. Whitley v. Columbia Lumber Mfg. Co., 318 N.C. 89, 348 S.E.2d 336 (1986), overruling Perry v. Hibriten Furn. Co., 296 N.C. 88, 249 S.E.2d 397 (1978).

If a claimant is totally and permanently disabled within the meaning of § 97-29, then that claimant is not limited to a recovery under the schedule of compensation of this section. Mitchell v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 84 N.C. App. 661, 353 S.E.2d 638 (1987).

Where claimant is totally disabled as a result of injuries not included in § 97-31 schedule, claimant is entitled to an award for total disability under § 97-29. Weaver v. Swedish Imports Maintenance, Inc., 319 N.C. 243, 354 S.E.2d 477 (1987).

The interpretation of Perry v. Hibriten Furn.

Co., 296 N.C. 88, 249 S.E.2d 397 (1978), that when all of a plaintiff's disability resulting from an injury are covered by this section, an employee is entitled to no compensation for permanent total disability, was overruled in Whitley v. Columbia Lumber Mfg. Co., 318 N.C. 89, 348 S.E.2d 336 (1986), which held that the "in lieu of" clause of this section does not prevent a worker who qualifies from recovering lifetime benefits under § 97-29. Harrington v. Pait Logging Company/Georgia Pac., 86 N.C. App. 77, 356 S.E.2d 365 (1987).

Section 97-29 and this section are alternate sources of compensation for an employee who suffers a disabling injury which is also included as a scheduled injury. The injured worker is allowed to select the more favorable remedy, but he cannot recover compensation under both sections. Cockman v. PPG Indus., 84 N.C. App. 101, 351 S.E.2d 771 (1987).

Right to Claim Under § 97-29. — Even if all injuries are covered under this section, the scheduled injury section, an employee may nevertheless elect to claim under § 97-29 if § 97-29 is more favorable, but he may not recover under both sections. Hill v. Hanes Corp., 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

Section 97-29 is an alternate source of compensation for an employee who suffers an injury which is also included under the schedule under this section; the injured worker is allowed to select the more favorable remedy, but he or she cannot recover compensation under both sections, because this section is "in lieu of all other compensation." Harrington v. Pait Logging Company/Georgia Pac., 86 N.C. App. 77, 356 S.E.2d 365 (1987); McKenzie v. McCarter Elec. Co., 86 N.C. App. 619, 359 S.E.2d 249 (1987).

Employee Required to Elect Section Under Which to Proceed. — Claimant who suffered a brain injury accompanied by hearing and vision loss was not entitled to recover under both this section and § 97-29, but was required to elect to proceed under one section or the other. Dishmond v. International Paper Co., 132 N.C. App. 576, 512 S.E.2d 771 (1999).

The Industrial Commission is required to conduct a full investigation and a determination that a Form 26 compensation agreement is fair and just, in order to assure that the settlement is in accord with the intent and purpose of the Workers' Compensation Act, that an injured employee receives the disability benefits to which he is entitled, and, particularly, that an employee qualifying for disability compensation under both § 97-29 and this section have the benefit of the more favorable remedy. Vernon v. Steven L. Mabe Bldrs., 336 N.C. 425, 444 S.E.2d 191 (1994).

Failure of Commission to Determine Fairness of Agreement. — Where plaintiff may have been entitled to permanent total disability benefits under § 97-29, as well as permanent partial disability benefits under this section, but under § 97-29 plaintiff would receive such benefits for as long as he remained totally disabled rather than 45 weeks, and claims employee assumed, rather than determined, that plaintiff was knowledgeable about workers' compensation benefits and his rights, in approving the Form 26 compensation agreement between plaintiff and defendants, the Industrial Commission did not, as the statute requires, act in a judicial capacity to determine the fairness of the agreement. Vernon v. Steven L. Mabe Bldrs., 336 N.C. 425, 444 S.E.2d 191 (1994).

Award Under § 97-29 Upheld. — There was sufficient evidence to support award and the provision of vocational rehabilitation services where the Industrial Commission found that plaintiff was impaired as a result of his head injury and had yet to overcome resistance on the part of potential employers in order to obtain employment and required vocational rehabilitation to assist him in obtaining stable employment. Silver v. Roberts Welding Contractors, 117 N.C. App. 707, 453 S.E.2d 216 (1995).

Where physician testified that plaintiff suffered continuous pain in his back, both hips, and legs and continuous numbness of the right foot, and that he was 100% disabled, and opined that plaintiff's pain was caused by the use of his back in coordination with the hips and the legs, the Commission could determine that plaintiff would not be totally compensated for his injuries under this section and that, as a result, he was entitled to compensation for permanent total incapacity under § 97-29. Kendrick v. City of Greensboro, 80 N.C. App. 183, 341 S.E.2d 122, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 335, 346 S.E.2d 500 (1986).

Plaintiff, who suffered a fall causing a permanent partial impairment to his back of 20% and whom the Commission found unable to work at his previous job as a nurse or at any other employment, was totally and permanently disabled and was entitled to recover under § 97-29, and was not limited to recovery under this section. Taylor v. Margaret R. Pardee Mem. Hosp., 83 N.C. App. 385, 350 S.E.2d 148 (1986), cert. denied, 319 N.C. 410, 354 S.E.2d 729 (1987).

Plaintiff, who sustained a 30% permanent physical impairment of his left leg as a result of a 1977 leg condition, and a 15% permanent physical impairment of the left leg as a result of a December, 1983 job related accident, was not limited to recovery under this section. Wilder v. Barbour Boat Works, 84 N.C. App. 689, 352 S.E.2d 690 (1987).

An employee may be compensated for both a scheduled compensable injury under this section and total incapacity for work under § 97-

29 when the total incapacity is caused by a psychiatric disorder brought on by the scheduled injury. Hill v. Hanes Corp., 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

Truck driver who suffered a 7% loss in the visual field of one eye in a job-related accident, and was unable thereafter to find work at wages comparable to those he had been earning as a truck driver, was not precluded from receiving benefits under § 97-30 merely because he had received some compensation under this section for a scheduled injury. Gupton v. Builders Transp., 320 N.C. 38, 357 S.E.2d 674 (1987).

Section Construed with § 97-30. — Because stacking of benefits covering the same injury for the same time period is prohibited, and because the prevention of double recovery, not exclusivity of remedy, is patently the intent of the “in lieu of all other compensation” clause in this section, a plaintiff entitled to select a remedy under either this section or § 97-30 may receive benefits under the provisions offering the more generous benefits, less the amount he or she has already received. Gupton v. Builders Transp., 320 N.C. 38, 357 S.E.2d 674 (1987).

An employee who suffers injuries resulting in partial disability of a general nature is entitled to compensation under § 97-30, while an employee who sustains injuries of a specific nature is entitled to recover pursuant to the schedule provided in this section. In fact, an employee who sustains both general and specific injuries may recover benefits under both § 97-30 and this section. Gray v. Carolina Freight Carriers, Inc., 105 N.C. App. 480, 414 S.E.2d 102 (1992).

This Section Is Exception to § 97-30. — Under § 97-30 compensation for permanent partial disability is measured by the degree of disability, except in case of loss of a member as specified in this section. Ashley v. Rent-A-Car Co., 271 N.C. 76, 155 S.E.2d 755 (1967).

Section 97-52 Does Not Require Showing of Disability. — The obvious intent of the Legislature in enacting § 97-52 was to permit and not restrict recovery for occupational diseases. Section 97-52, therefore, does not require that disability be shown as a condition to recovery under the schedule for occupational disease in this section. Harrell v. Harriet & Henderson Yarns, 314 N.C. 566, 336 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

Words “disablement or death” in § 97-52 merely describe a condition that must occur before recovery may be had under § 97-29. They do not predicate recovery under this section upon disability. Harrell v. Harriet & Henderson Yarns, 314 N.C. 566, 336 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

Section Construed with § 97-61.5. — The acceptance of benefits under § 97-61.5 does not necessarily preclude an award under subsection (24) of this section. Hicks v. Leviton Mfg. Co., 121 N.C. App. 453, 466 S.E.2d 78 (1996).

The philosophy which supports the Workers' Compensation Act is that the wear and tear of the worker, as well as the machinery, shall be charged to the industry. Cates v. Hunt Constr. Co., 267 N.C. 560, 148 S.E.2d 604 (1966).

This section sets out a strict and exclusive compensation scheme. Perry v. Hibriten Furn. Co., 35 N.C. App. 518, 241 S.E.2d 697, aff'd in part and remanded in part, 296 N.C. 88, 249 S.E.2d 397 (1978).

The Provisions of Which Are Mandatory.

— The language of this section is clear, and its provisions are mandatory, so that the Commission is without authority to deny the compensation for which it provides on the ground that the employee is earning as much as he was earning before the injury. Watts v. Brewer, 243 N.C. 422, 90 S.E.2d 764 (1956); Loflin v. Loflin, 13 N.C. App. 574, 186 S.E.2d 660, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 154, 187 S.E.2d 585 (1972).

Injuries Enumerated in Schedule Not Compensated Under Other Provisions. —

The fact that an injury is one of those enumerated in the schedule of payments set forth under this section precludes the Commission from awarding compensation under any other provision of the act. Loflin v. Loflin, 13 N.C. App. 574, 186 S.E.2d 660, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 154, 187 S.E.2d 585 (1972); Baldwin v. North Carolina Mem. Hosp., 32 N.C. App. 779, 233 S.E.2d 600 (1977).

When all of an employee's injuries are included in the schedule set out in this section, his entitlement to compensation is exclusively under this section. Perry v. Hibriten Furn. Co., 296 N.C. 88, 249 S.E.2d 397 (1978).

If by reason of any compensable injury an employee is unable to work and earn any wages, he is totally disabled and entitled to compensation for permanent total disability under § 97-29, unless all his injuries are included in the schedule set out in this section. In that event, the injured employee is entitled to compensation exclusively under this section, regardless of his ability or inability to earn wages in the same or any other employment; such compensation is “in lieu of all other compensation, including disfigurement.” Perry v. Hibriten Furn. Co., 296 N.C. 88, 249 S.E.2d 397 (1978).

Where all of a worker's injuries are included in the schedule set out in this section his compensation is limited to that provided for in the statutory schedule without regard to his ability or inability to earn wages. Jones v. Murdoch Center, 74 N.C. App. 128, 327 S.E.2d 294 (1985).

Where the only injury plaintiff sustained was an injury to a bodily member covered by this section, her compensation after returning to her job was limited to the schedule stated in this section, whether earning capacity was impaired or not. Algary v. McCauley & Co., 74 N.C.

App. 125, 327 S.E.2d 296 (1985).

When all of an employee's injuries are included in the schedule set out in this section, the employee's entitlement to compensation is exclusively under that section. However, if an employee receives an injury which is compensable and the injury causes him to become so emotionally disturbed that he is unable to work, he is entitled to compensation for total incapacity under § 97-29. Hill v. Hanes Corp., 79 N.C. App. 67, 339 S.E.2d 1 (1986), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

Where all of a worker's injuries are not included in the schedule contained in this section and the worker's earning capacity has been permanently, but only partially, impaired he is entitled to the scheduled compensation provided for in this section and an award for permanent partial disability as provided for in §§ 97-29 and 97-30. Jones v. Murdoch Center, 74 N.C. App. 128, 327 S.E.2d 294 (1985).

Where all of a worker's injuries are compensable under this section, the compensation provided for under this section is in lieu of all other compensation. When, however, an employee cannot be fully compensated under this section and is permanently incapacitated, he or she is entitled to compensation under § 97-29 for total incapacity or § 97-30 for partial incapacity. Kendrick v. City of Greensboro, 80 N.C. App. 183, 341 S.E.2d 122, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 335, 346 S.E.2d 500 (1986).

Measure of Compensation. — Though "disability" signifies an impairment of wage-earning capacity rather than a physical impairment, this signification does not establish impairment of wage-earning capacity as the measure of compensation. Perry v. Hibriten Furn. Co., 35 N.C. App. 518, 241 S.E.2d 697, aff'd in part and remanded, 296 N.C. 88, 249 S.E.2d 397 (1978).

Meaning of "Disability". — As used in this section, the term "disability" signifies an impairment of wage-earning capacity rather than a physical impairment. Loflin v. Loflin, 13 N.C. App. 574, 186 S.E.2d 660, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 154, 187 S.E.2d 585 (1972).

To support a conclusion of disability the North Carolina Supreme Court has said that the Commission must find the following three facts: (1) that plaintiff was incapable after his injury of earning the same wages he had earned before his injury in the same employment, (2) that plaintiff was incapable after his injury of earning the same wages he had earned before his injury in any other employment, and (3) that this individual's incapacity to earn was caused by plaintiff's injury. Cook v. Bladenboro Cotton Mills, Inc., 61 N.C. App. 562, 300 S.E.2d 852 (1983).

Partial Disability Term. — The term of partial disability, not the term of total and partial disability combined, is to last no longer than 300 weeks less the period of total disability; the 300-week maximum partial disability period includes the time during which temporary total disability is paid or is in addition to the time in which temporary total disability is paid. Brown v. Public Works Comm'n, 122 N.C. App. 473, 470 S.E.2d 352 (1996).

In determining the extent of a particular employee's capacity for work, the Commission may consider such factors as the individual's degree of pain and the individual's age, education, and work experience. Niple v. Seawell Realty & Indus. Co., 88 N.C. App. 136, 362 S.E.2d 572 (1987).

Pain. — Pain is not in and of itself a compensable injury. Jackson v. Fayetteville Area Sys. of Transp., 78 N.C. App. 412, 337 S.E.2d 110 (1985).

Pain, rather than being itself an injury, is a manifestation or indication of an injury. Jackson v. Fayetteville Area Sys. of Transp., 78 N.C. App. 412, 337 S.E.2d 110 (1985).

Finding that plaintiff experienced pain as a result of what occurred while she was performing her duties was not a sufficient finding that plaintiff sustained an injury. Jackson v. Fayetteville Area Sys. of Transp., 78 N.C. App. 412, 337 S.E.2d 110 (1985).

"Healing Period" Defined. — The healing period, within the meaning of this section, is the time when the claimant is unable to work because of his injury, is submitting to treatment, which may include an operation or operations, or is convalescing. Crawley v. Southern Devices, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 284, 229 S.E.2d 325 (1976), cert. denied, 292 N.C. 467, 234 S.E.2d 2 (1977); Perry v. Hibriten Furn. Co., 35 N.C. App. 518, 241 S.E.2d 697, aff'd in part and remanded, 296 N.C. 88, 249 S.E.2d 397 (1978).

The "healing period" of the injury is the time when the claimant is unable to work because of his injury, is submitting to treatment, which may include an operation or operations, or is convalescing. This period of temporary total disability contemplates that eventually there will be either complete recovery, or an impaired bodily condition which is stabilized. The "healing period" ends when, after a course of treatment and observation, the injury is discovered to be permanent and that fact is duly established. Carpenter v. Industrial Piping Co., 73 N.C. App. 309, 326 S.E.2d 328 (1985).

The healing period within the meaning of this section does not include time when an injured worker is able to and does work at his or her regular job. Algary v. McCarley & Co., 74 N.C. App. 125, 327 S.E.2d 296 (1985).

The healing period of an injury is defined as the time when the claimant is unable to work because of the injury, is submitting to treatment, or is convalescing; the healing period ends when, after a course of treatment and observation, the injury is discovered to be permanent, and that fact is duly established. Hudson v. Mastercraft Div., 86 N.C. App. 411, 358 S.E.2d 134, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 792, 361 S.E.2d 77 (1987).

This section provides for compensation of temporary disability during the healing period of the injury and for permanent disability at the end of the healing period, when maximum recovery has been achieved. Carpenter v. Industrial Piping Co., 73 N.C. App. 309, 326 S.E.2d 328 (1985).

Compensation for temporary disability is available until maximum recovery has been achieved. Permanent disability is available pursuant to this section at the end of the healing period when maximum recovery has been achieved. Moretz v. Richards & Assocs., 74 N.C. App. 72, 327 S.E.2d 290 (1985), modified on other grounds, 316 N.C. 539, 342 S.E.2d 844 (1986).

A disability is deemed to continue after the healing period of employee's injuries and is made compensable under the provisions of this section without regard to the loss of wage-earning power and in lieu of all other compensation. Loflin v. Loflin, 13 N.C. App. 574, 186 S.E.2d 660, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 154, 187 S.E.2d 585 (1972); Perry v. Hibriten Furn. Co., 35 N.C. App. 518, 241 S.E.2d 697, aff'd in part and remanded, 296 N.C. 88, 249 S.E.2d 397 (1978).

When Healing Period Terminates. — Maximum recovery from the injury, not from an operation, is what signifies termination of the healing period. Crawley v. Southern Devices, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 284, 229 S.E.2d 325 (1976), cert. denied, 292 N.C. 467, 234 S.E.2d 2 (1977).

When the claimant has an operation to correct or improve the impairment resulting from his injury, the healing period continues after recovery from the operation until he reaches maximum recovery. The healing period continues until, after a course of treatment and observation, the injury is discovered to be permanent and that fact is duly established. Crawley v. Southern Devices, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 284, 229 S.E.2d 325 (1976), cert. denied, 292 N.C. 467, 234 S.E.2d 2 (1977); Perry v. Hibriten Furn. Co., 35 N.C. App. 518, 241 S.E.2d 697, aff'd in part and remanded, 296 N.C. 88, 249 S.E.2d 397 (1978).

The point at which the injury has stabilized is often called "maximum medical improvement," although that term is not found in the statute itself. This term creates confusion. It connotes that a claimant is only temporarily totally disabled and his body healing when his condition is steadily improving, and/or he is receiving medical treatment. Carpenter v. Industrial Piping Co., 73 N.C. App. 309, 326 S.E.2d 328 (1985).

Recovery from injuries often entails a healing period of alternating improvement and deterioration. In these cases, the healing period is over when the impaired bodily condition is stabilized, or determined to be permanent, and not at one of the temporary high points. In many cases the body is able to heal itself, and during convalescence doctors refrain from active treatment with surgery or drugs. Thus, the absence of such medical treatment does not mean that the injury has completely improved or that the impaired bodily condition has stabilized. Carpenter v. Industrial Piping Co., 73 N.C. App. 309, 326 S.E.2d 328 (1985).

Where plaintiff's "healing period" had stabilized and he had reached his maximum recovery by December 1977, it was this date that marked the termination of his compensation for temporary total disability and the initiation of compensation for permanent disability. And where according to the payment schedule of this section and in accord with the findings of the Commission, plaintiff was entitled to 180 weeks of permanent disability payments, and plaintiff had received nearly 255 weeks of disability payments since that date, plaintiff had already received more than he was entitled by statute to receive, and defendants owed plaintiff no additional compensation. Moretz v. Richards & Assocs., 316 N.C. 539, 342 S.E.2d 844 (1986).

Healing Period Ends with Maximum Medical Improvement. — Temporary total disability is payable only during the healing period. The healing period ends when an employee reaches maximum medical improvement; only then does the question of entitlement to permanent disability arise. Franklin v. Broyhill Furn. Indus., 123 N.C. App. 200, 472 S.E.2d 382 (1996).

Aggravation of Existing Condition. — Where an injury has aggravated an existing condition and thus proximately caused the incapacity, the relative contributions of the accident and the preexisting condition will not be weighed. McKenzie v. McCarter Elec. Co., 86 N.C. App. 619, 359 S.E.2d 249 (1987).

Employee Must Establish Disability Unless It Is Included in the Schedule. — In order to obtain compensation, an employee must establish that his injury caused his "disability," unless it is included in the schedule of injuries made compensable by this section without regard to loss of wage-earning power. Loflin v. Loflin, 13 N.C. App. 574, 186 S.E.2d 660, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 154, 187 S.E.2d 585 (1972).

Psychological Injury Not Compensable. — Findings and conclusions regarding wage-earning capacity are not required when only scheduled injuries under this section are involved; however, this approach is inadequate for any psychological disability suffered by plaintiff because psychological injuries are not compensable under this section. McLean v. Eaton Corp., 125 N.C. App. 391, 481 S.E.2d 289 (1997).

Specific Disability Following Temporary Total Disability. — Where claimant suffers an injury that results in temporary total disability, followed by a specific disability compensable under this section, compensation for specific disability is payable in addition to that awarded for temporary total disability. Rice v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 199 N.C. 154, 154 S.E. 69 (1930); Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971); Loflin v. Loflin, 13 N.C. App. 574, 186 S.E.2d 660, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 154, 187 S.E.2d 585 (1972); Moretz v. Richards & Assocs., 74 N.C. App. 72, 327 S.E.2d 290 (1985), modified on other grounds, 316 N.C. 539, 342 S.E.2d 844 (1986).

Loss of Earning Power. — Although disability compensation under this section is awarded for physical impairment irrespective of ability to work or loss of wage-earning power, there is nothing in this section or the case law that forbids consideration of loss of earning capacity. Key v. McLean Trucking, 61 N.C. App. 143, 300 S.E.2d 280 (1983).

Retirement. — Plaintiff was not barred from seeking disability benefits if his retirement was for reasons unrelated to his occupational disease; the pertinent issue was whether plaintiff, subsequent to retirement, experienced a loss in wage-earning capacity. Stroud v. Caswell Ctr., 124 N.C. App. 653, 478 S.E.2d 234 (1996).

Proceedings Pend Until All Injuries Adjudicated. — Until all of an injured employee's compensable injuries and disabilities have been considered and adjudicated by the commission, the proceeding pends for the purpose of evaluation, absent laches or some statutory time limitation. Wilhite v. Liberty Veneer Co., 303 N.C. 281, 278 S.E.2d 234 (1981).

Deductions from Gross Income in Calculating Farm Income. — Farm income of injured volunteer fireman could not be properly calculated without deducting from gross income interest on money which was borrowed to finance crop production, depreciation on equipment used to produce the crops, license fees for things used in crop production, and taxes on land used to produce crops. York v. Unionville Volunteer Fire Dep't, 58 N.C. App. 591, 293 S.E.2d 812 (1982).

Defendants Held Not Entitled to Credit for Scheduled Award. — Where temporary total disability payments for stress-induced depression resulting from injury were to begin approximately six months after the final payment on the scheduled award for permanent partial disability, the defendants would not be given credit on the compensation awarded for temporary total disability for compensation previously awarded under subdivision (15) of this section. Hill v. Hanes Corp., 79 N.C. App. 67, 339 S.E.2d 1 (1986), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

Survivor Held Not Entitled to Benefits. — The dependent of a deceased employee who, prior to his death, was receiving benefits for permanent disability under subdivision (17) of this section, due to an injury that occurred prior to July 1, 1979, the effective date of the 1979 amendment, was not entitled to receive payments under the Workers' Compensation Act as a survivor. Costner v. A.A. Ramsey & Sons, 81 N.C. App. 121, 343 S.E.2d 607 (1986), aff'd, 318 N.C. 687, 351 S.E.2d 299 (1987).

Deduction of Period of Total Disability Benefits from Maximum Period for Partial Disability Benefits. — The term of partial disability, not the term of total and partial disability combined, is to last no longer than 300 weeks less the period of total disability; the 300-week maximum partial disability period includes the time during which temporary total disability is paid or is in addition to the time in which temporary total disability is paid. Brown v. Public Works Comm'n, 122 N.C. App. 473, 470 S.E.2d 352 (1996).

II. THUMB OR FINGERS.

Loss of Use of Thumb. — Where the distal portion of an employee's left thumb was amputated, the rate of compensation for permanent partial disability was not limited to 25 percent under Industrial Commission Rule XV(1) for partial loss of the thumb itself, and the employee could be compensated at a higher rate under subdivision (1) and (19) of this section for loss of use of the thumb. Caesar v. Piedmont Publishing Co., 46 N.C. App. 619, 265 S.E.2d 474 (1980).

Loss of More Than One Phalange Due to

Surgical Procedure. — Fact that amputation of part of plaintiff's middle phalange of the fourth finger was necessitated by surgical procedure rather than amputated during the accident itself did not affect plaintiff's recovery under subdivision (7). Gaddy v. Anson Wood Prods., 92 N.C. App. 483, 374 S.E.2d 477 (1988).

III. HANDS.

"Hand," as used in subdivision (12), refers to the fingers and thumb, the hand proper and the wrist. Thompson v. Frank IX & Sons, 33 N.C. App. 350, 235 S.E.2d 250 (1977), aff'd, 294 N.C. 358, 240 S.E.2d 783 (1978).

Consideration of Other Sections. — The Industrial Commission erred when it awarded permanent disability compensation solely for plaintiff's scheduled hand injury under this section without assessing whether § 97-29 or § 97-30 would provide him a more munificent remedy. McLean v. Eaton Corp., 125 N.C. App. 391, 481 S.E.2d 289 (1997).

Award for 75% impairment of use of left hand upheld. See Pridmore v. McCrary, 245 N.C. 544, 96 S.E.2d 843 (1957).

Compensation for Injury to Hand and Finger Allowed. — Where plaintiff asserted that she was entitled to compensation under subsection (12) for disability to her hand, in addition to compensation she had already received for disability to her second finger under subsection (3), the claim was not based on unfounded litigiousness; therefore, the awarding of attorney's fees was unwarranted. Evans v. Young-Hinkle Corp., 123 N.C. App. 693, 474 S.E.2d 152 (1996), cert. denied, 346 N.C. 177, 486 S.E.2d 203 (1997).

IV. LEGS.

Injury to "Hip". — For purposes of this section, an injury to the "hip" will be considered an injury to the "leg." See Gasperson v. Buncombe County Pub. Schools, 52 N.C. App. 154, 277 S.E.2d 872 (1981).

Lifetime Benefits for Loss of Legs. — Subsection (17) provides that the loss of both legs constitutes total and permanent disability to be compensated according to § 97-29, which provides for lifetime benefits. Timmons v. North Carolina DOT, 123 N.C. App. 456, 473 S.E.2d 356 (1996), aff'd, 346 N.C. 173, 484 S.E.2d 551 (1997).

Resumption of Work. — Although plaintiff, who had lost both legs, returned to full-time employment, he was entitled to on-going benefits. Timmons v. North Carolina DOT, 123 N.C. App. 456, 473 S.E.2d 356 (1996), aff'd, 346 N.C. 173, 484 S.E.2d 551 (1997).

Competent evidence supported the Commission's finding that plaintiff was temporarily and totally disabled from February 16, 1995, until July 7, 1995, where plain- tiff's primary care physician since 1989 testified that each of her three prior ankle injuries aggravated her pre-existing condition and were significant contributing factors in her continuing problems with non-healing ulcer that spontaneously erupted in February, 1995. Royce v. Rushco Food Stores, Inc., 139 N.C. App. 322, 533 S.E.2d 284 (2000).

V. EYES.

"Total Loss" of Vision. — Prior to 1943, "total loss" of vision was taken in its ordinary meaning, that being "total destruction" of vision. Logan v. Johnson, 218 N.C. 200, 10 S.E.2d 653 (1940). By the 1943 amendment to this section, "total loss" was enlarged to include "industrial blindness," which is 85% or more loss of vision in one eye. See Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949).

Amount Awarded for Loss of Vision. — Under this section, a worker who suffers a total loss of an eye is entitled to 60% (now 66⅔%) of his average weekly wages during 120 weeks in addition to the compensation paid during the healing period. If, however, the injury produces only a partial loss of vision, he is entitled to receive that portion of the compensation provided in subdivision (16) that the percentage of loss of vision bears to a total loss. Watts v. Brewer, 243 N.C. 422, 90 S.E.2d 764 (1956).

Compensation for partial loss of vision by a claimant should be awarded on the basis of the vision remaining without the use of corrective lenses. Hollman v. City of Raleigh, 273 N.C. 240, 159 S.E.2d 874 (1968).

Loss of 95% of Vision of Each Eye. — Upon evidence showing that claimant had suffered permanent loss of 95% of the vision of each eye, it was held that, under the 1943 amendment to this section, an award for permanent and total loss of vision of each eye was proper. Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949).

Prior Astigmatism Not Bar to Recovery. — For case in which claimant was held entitled to full compensation for total loss of vision of an eye by this section, and in which it was held error to first deduct 40% loss due to astigmatism and award claimant only 60% of the amount recoverable for total loss of vision, see Schrum v. Catawba Upholstering Co., 214 N.C. 353, 199 S.E. 385 (1938).

Continuance of Disability from Loss of Eye. — In case of the loss of an eye, the Commission must conclusively presume and adjudge that the disability resulting therefrom continued or will continue for 120 weeks beyond the healing period. Watts v. Brewer, 243 N.C. 422, 90 S.E.2d 764 (1956).

Eye Injury with Significant Risk of Future Vision Impairment. — While an employee who suffered a laceration of his cornea when a piece of metal hit his eye, presenting a clear danger of retinal detachment in the future, unquestionably sustained a permanent injury to his eye, he did not lose the injured eye or suffer any loss of vision. Since his injury was not specifically encompassed by subdivisions (16) or (19) of this section, or any other subdivision, subdivision (24) was the appropriate basis for the Commission's award. Little v. Penn Ventilator Co., 75 N.C. App. 92, 330 S.E.2d 276, aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 317 N.C. 206, 345 S.E.2d 204 (1986).

While the evidence tended to support the claim of an employee suffering an eye injury that his risk of some form of future vision impairment was significantly increased, the statutory scheme allowed him to be compensated for "permanent injury," but made no provision for an additional recovery because the claimant could be subject to a greater risk of permanent disability as a result of his accident. Consequently, the amount awarded — $2,500 — was supported by the evidence. Little v. Penn Ventilator Co., 75 N.C. App. 92, 330 S.E.2d 276, aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 317 N.C. 206, 345 S.E.2d 204 (1986).

Eye Injury Without Immediate Loss of Vision Compensated Under Subdivision (24). — Where plaintiff received a serious, permanent eye injury which placed him at great risk for future complications, although he had not yet suffered any loss of vision nor any decrease in earning ability, and the extent of his future complications as well as his prognosis if they should arise lay outside the realm of certainty, the Commission's award of $2,500.00 for plaintiff's eye injury under subdivision (24) of this section would be affirmed. Little v. Penn Ventilator Co., 317 N.C. 206, 345 S.E.2d 204 (1986).

A 7% loss of field of vision in plaintiff's right eye was compensable under subdivisions (16) and (19) of this section. Gupton v. Builders Transp., 83 N.C. App. 1, 348 S.E.2d 601 (1986), rev'd on other grounds, 320 N.C. 38, 357 S.E.2d 674 (1987).

VI. PARTIAL LOSS OR PARTIAL LOSS OF USE.

Effect of 1957 Amendment to Subdivision (19). — Before the 1957 amendment to subdivision (19) of this section, an award for partial disability was to be based on a percentage of the weekly wage for the entire period, rather than a percentage of the number of weekly payments. Kellams v. Carolina Metal Prods., Inc., 248 N.C. 199, 102 S.E.2d 841 (1958).

Compensation for Partial Loss of Member of or Use Thereof. — When plaintiff can prove a case of either partial loss of a member subject to Industrial Commission Rule XV or partial loss of the use of that member he is entitled to compensation under either heading. This interpretation is consistent with the plain and explicit language of subdivision (19) of this section. Caesar v. Piedmont Publishing Co., 46 N.C. App. 619, 265 S.E.2d 474 (1980).

Award for Partial Disability Under Subdivision (19) Is Subject to Minimum Provided in § 97-29. — Under the provisions of subdivision (20) of this section, awards for partial loss or partial loss of use of a member under subdivision (19) were subject to the minimum fixed in § 97-29 in like manner as awards for total disability, and therefore the weekly payments of an award for partial disability should not have been less than the minimum fixed by § 97-29. Kellams v. Carolina Metal Prods., Inc., 248 N.C. 199, 102 S.E.2d 841 (1958).

Commission Only Required to Find Percentage of Disability of Member Affected. — Where an award is properly made under specific schedules and the Commission has found as a fact that the employee is not totally and permanently disabled, the commission is only required to find the percentage of disability of the member or members affected. Perry v. Hibriten Furn. Co., 296 N.C. 88, 249 S.E.2d 397 (1978).

VII. DISFIGUREMENT.

Provision as to Bodily Disfigurement Is Constitutional. — This section, authorizing the Industrial Commission to award compensation for bodily disfigurement, is sufficiently certain and prescribes the standard for the computation of an award thereunder with sufficient definiteness. Thus, the provision is valid and constitutional and is not void as a delegation of legislative power in contravention of N.C. Const., Art. I, § 8 (now N.C. Const., Art. I, § 6). Baxter v. W.H. Arthur Co., 216 N.C. 276, 4 S.E.2d 621 (1939).

Provisions as to Disfigurement Are Not Invalid for Failure to Provide Guide or Standard. — The fact that there exists a broad area in which the judgment of the Commission with reference to the particular factual situation is determinative does not invalidate the statutory provision on grounds of failure to provide an intelligible guide or standard for the award of compensation for serious disfigurement causing impairment of future earning power. Davis v. Sanford Constr. Co., 247 N.C. 332, 101 S.E.2d 40 (1957).

Recovery for Disfigurement Is in Addition to Other Recovery. — Subdivision (21) of this section, when properly read, means that a person may recover for serious facial and head disfigurement in addition to recovery under other parts of the section. Griffin v. Red &

White Supermarket, 78 N.C. App. 617, 337 S.E.2d 657 (1985).

Separate Awards to Be Entered in Cases Involving Facial and Bodily Disfigurement. — Under this section prior to amendment in 1987, in cases where there was both facial and bodily disfigurement, where Commission did not specify in its opinion separate award amounts for each category of disfigurement, but made one award to compensate the injured worker for both types of disfigurement, would be upheld. However, in view of the 1987 amendment, in future cases, separate awards should be entered in cases involving both types of disfigurement. Crews v. North Carolina DOT, 103 N.C. App. 372, 405 S.E.2d 595 (1991).

Disfigurement must be evidenced by an outward observable blemish, scar or mutilation, under the act, and it must be so permanent and serious as to hamper or handicap the person in his earnings or in securing employment. Branham v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 223 N.C. 233, 25 S.E.2d 865 (1943).

A disfigurement is a blemish, a blot, a scar or a mutilation that is external and observable, marring the appearance. Arrington v. Stone & Webster Eng'g Corp., 264 N.C. 38, 140 S.E.2d 759 (1965).

There is a serious disfigurement in law only when there is a serious disfigurement in fact. A serious disfigurement in fact is a disfigurement that mars and hence adversely affects the appearance of the injured employee to such extent that it may be reasonably presumed to lessen his opportunities for remunerative employment and so reduces his future earning power. No present loss of wages need be established; but to be serious, the disfigurement must be of such nature that it may be fairly presumed that the injured employee has suffered a diminution of his future earning power. Davis v. Sanford Constr. Co., 247 N.C. 332, 101 S.E.2d 40 (1957); Arrington v. Stone & Webster Eng'g Corp., 264 N.C. 38, 140 S.E.2d 759 (1965); Wilhite v. Liberty Veneer Co., 303 N.C. 281, 278 S.E.2d 234 (1981); Liles v. Charles Lee Byrd Logging Co., 309 N.C. 150, 305 S.E.2d 523 (1983); Locklear v. Canal Wood Corp., 63 N.C. App. 185, 303 S.E.2d 825 (1983).

One who is so disfigured as to be considered "repulsive" to others is less likely to be hired and thus is hampered or handicapped in his earning or securing employment. Liles v. Charles Lee Byrd Logging Co., 309 N.C. 150, 305 S.E.2d 523 (1983).

What Disfigurement Is Compensable. — Disfigurement alone is not made compensable by the act. Before it is compensable it must be not only (1) marked disfigurement, but also one which (2) impairs the future usefulness or occupational opportunities of the injured employee. Wilhite v. Liberty Veneer Co., 47 N.C. App. 434, 267 S.E.2d 566, rev'd on other grounds, 303 N.C. 281, 278 S.E.2d 234 (1981).

To warrant compensation for disfigurement it must be so permanent and serious that in some manner it hampers or handicaps the person in his earning or in securing employment, or it must be such as to make the person repulsive to other people. Liles v. Charles Lee Byrd Logging Co., 309 N.C. 150, 305 S.E.2d 523 (1983).

Compensation Under Subdivision (21) for Loss of or Permanent Injury to Important Organ of Face or Head. — While subdivision (21) does not refer in express terms to the loss of or permanent injury to any important organ of the face or head, such loss, if in fact a "serious facial or head disfigurement," is compensable thereunder. Davis v. Sanford Constr. Co., 247 N.C. 332, 101 S.E.2d 40 (1957); Arrington v. Stone & Webster Eng'g Corp., 264 N.C. 38, 140 S.E.2d 759 (1965).

Enucleation where artificial eye cannot be fitted and used is a type of facial disfigurement under subdivision (21). No other type of eye injury is a compensable disfigurement. Griffin v. Red & White Supermarket, 78 N.C. App. 617, 337 S.E.2d 657 (1985).

Applicability of Subdivision (22). — Subdivision (22) of this section applies only to serious bodily disfigurements which are not accompanied by any other disability which would already have been compensated for under another provision of the Workers' Compensation Act. Liles v. Charles Lee Byrd Logging Co., 309 N.C. 150, 305 S.E.2d 523 (1983).

Compensation of Disfigurement Under Subdivision (22). — The Workers' Compensation Act deals with compensation for reduced capacity for work. A bodily disfigurement, other than facial or head disfigurements which are governed by subdivision (21) of this section, is serious and compensable under subdivision (22) of this section only when it is of such a nature that it may be fairly presumed that it causes to the injured employee a diminution of his future earning capacity. Liles v. Charles Lee Byrd Logging Co., 59 N.C. App. 330, 296 S.E.2d 485 (1982), modified and aff'd, 309 N.C. 150, 305 S.E.2d 523 (1983).

Natural physical handicap resulting from the disfigurement, and the age, training, experience, education, occupation and adaptability of the employee to obtain and retain employment are factors to be used in arriving at the diminution of earning power — the amount of an award. It follows, however, that these same factors are to be used as well to determine if any award is to be made, that is, whether the disfigurement is in fact serious and thus compensable under subdivision (22) of this section because it is such as to give rise to the presumption that the worker has suffered a diminution of his future earning power. Liles v. Charles Lee Byrd Logging Co., 309 N.C. 150, 305 S.E.2d 523 (1983).

In order to be compensated for a bodily disfigurement under subsection (22), the injury must be of such a nature that it may be fairly presumed that the injured employee has suffered a diminution of his future earning power. Blackwell v. Multi Foods Mgt., Inc., 126 N.C. App. 189, 484 S.E.2d 815 (1997), cert. denied, 346 N.C. 544, 488 S.E.2d 796 (1997).

Scars Not Visible During Normal Employment. — Evidence did not support the Industrial Commission's award for serious disfigurement affecting plaintiff's future earning capacity where plaintiff's scars on the top of one of her breasts were not visible during her normal employment, plaintiff had affirmatively testified that she would not want a type of job where the scars might show, and she had returned to her former job without reduction in pay or apparent incident. Anderson v. Shoney's, 76 N.C. App. 158, 332 S.E.2d 93 (1985).

Commission Has Discretion in Awarding Compensation for Bodily Disfigurement. — Compensation for "serious bodily disfigurement" is not required by the act. Its allowance or disallowance is within the legal discretion of the Industrial Commission. Branham v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 223 N.C. 233, 25 S.E.2d 865 (1943); Davis v. Sanford Constr. Co., 247 N.C. 332, 101 S.E.2d 40 (1957).

Where serious bodily disfigurement is involved, an award of compensation therefor is not required by this section, but may be allowed in the discretion of the Industrial Commission. Wilhite v. Liberty Veneer Co., 303 N.C. 281, 278 S.E.2d 234 (1981).

But Compensation for Serious Facial or Head Disfigurement Is Mandatory. — The statute makes it mandatory on the Commission to award proper and equitable compensation in case of serious facial or head disfigurement. This is not the case in regard to disfigurement of other parts of the body. Stanley v. Hyman-Michaels Co., 222 N.C. 257, 22 S.E.2d 570 (1942); Davis v. Sanford Constr. Co., 247 N.C. 332, 101 S.E.2d 40 (1957).

The General Assembly made provision for compensation for disfigurement of the head and body in separate subdivisions, and made compensation for head disfigurement mandatory and compensation for bodily disfigurement discretionary. Arrington v. Stone & Webster Eng'g Corp., 264 N.C. 38, 140 S.E.2d 759 (1965).

Subdivision (21) is mandatory in providing that the Industrial Commission shall award proper and equitable compensation, not to exceed $3,500 (now $20,000.00), for serious facial or head disfigurement. Cates v. Hunt Constr. Co., 267 N.C. 560, 148 S.E.2d 604 (1966).

Determining Award for Serious Disfigurement. — In awarding compensation for serious disfigurement and arriving at the consequent diminution of earning power, the Commission should consider the natural physical handicap resulting and the age, training, experience, education, occupation and adaptability of the employee to obtain and retain employment. Stanley v. Hyman-Michaels Co., 222 N.C. 257, 22 S.E.2d 570 (1942); Davis v. Sanford Constr. Co., 247 N.C. 332, 101 S.E.2d 40 (1957); Wilhite v. Liberty Veneer Co., 303 N.C. 281, 278 S.E.2d 234 (1981).

Award for Disfigurement Is Separate. — Weekly compensation under the schedules cannot be increased by the inclusion of compensation for disfigurement. Compensation for disfigurement, if allowed, must be a separate award and the aggregate awards in no case may exceed the total compensation fixed in the act. Stanley v. Hyman-Michaels Co., 222 N.C. 257, 22 S.E.2d 570 (1942).

No Award for Disfigurement If One Is Made for Total Permanent Disability. — No award can be made for disfigurement where an award has been made for total permanent disability. Likewise, disfigurement must be serious in order that compensation may be allowed therefor. Stanley v. Hyman-Michaels Co., 222 N.C. 257, 22 S.E.2d 570 (1942).

No Award for Disfigurement for Period Covered by Temporary Total Disability Award. — There can be no recovery for disfigurement during the period in which an award was made for temporary total disability payment; otherwise there would, in effect, be a double recovery for the same injury. Wilhite v. Liberty Veneer Co., 47 N.C. App. 434, 267 S.E.2d 566, rev'd on other grounds, 303 N.C. 281, 278 S.E.2d 234 (1981).

Award for both partial incapacity under § 97-30 and for disfigurement under subdivision (22) of this section is now permissible for injuries occurring since July 1, 1963. Hall v. Thomason Chevrolet, Inc., 263 N.C. 569, 139 S.E.2d 857 (1965).

Disfigurement and Partial Loss of Arm. — Under this section, the Industrial Commission had authority to award compensation for facial and bodily disfigurement, in this case resulting from scar tissue from burns, and to award compensation for partial loss of the use of the arm resulting from such scar tissue, when such awards were supported by competent evidence, provided the award for the disfigurement did not exceed the maximum provided by the act, and provided that the aggregate of all awards did not exceed the maximum total compensation prescribed by § 97-29. Baxter v. W.H. Arthur Co., 216 N.C. 276, 4 S.E.2d 621 (1939). See Stanley v. Hyman-Michaels Co., 222 N.C. 257, 22 S.E.2d 570 (1942).

Loss of Two Front Teeth. — If the loss of two upper front teeth constitutes serious disfigurement within the meaning of this section, it would be a "serious facial or head disfigurement" compensable under subdivision (21) of this section, rather than a "serious bodily disfigurement" compensable under subdivision (22). In such case, plaintiff would be entitled under subdivision (21) to an award as a matter of right. Davis v. Sanford Constr. Co., 247 N.C. 332, 101 S.E.2d 40 (1957), construing the former statute.

Whether an injured employee has suffered a "serious facial or head disfigurement" in the loss of two upper front teeth is a question of fact to be determined by the Commission, after taking into consideration the factors involved, in relation to whether it may be fairly presumed to cause a diminution of his future earning power, construing the former statute. Davis v. Sanford Constr. Co., 247 N.C. 332, 101 S.E.2d 40 (1957).

Disfigurement of Forearm and Permanent Partial Disability of Hand. — An employee who had received compensation for the permanent partial disability of his left hand was entitled under subdivision (22) of this section to additional compensation for serious disfigurement because of surgical scars on his left forearm above the wrist. While a double recovery for a single injury compensated pursuant to this section is not authorized, since the settlement related only to partial loss of use of plaintiff's hand, and there was no evidence indicating that the scars extended to the wrist, plaintiff was entitled to the additional compensation. Thompson v. Frank IX & Sons, 33 N.C. App. 350, 235 S.E.2d 250 (1977), aff'd, 294 N.C. 358, 240 S.E.2d 783 (1978).

Injury to Finger Not Serious Bodily Disfigurement. — In an action to recover an award for "serious bodily disfigurement" resulting from a cut finger sustained by an accident arising out of and in the course of plaintiff's employment with the defendant-employer, where plaintiff's finger was scarred and the nail had a roughish appearance and was deformed and where plaintiff suffered no pain or embarrassment as a result of the injury, there was no evidence in the record to support a finding by the Industrial Commission that the injury to plaintiff's finger resulted in "serious bodily disfigurement." Weidle v. Cloverdale Ford, 50 N.C. App. 555, 274 S.E.2d 263 (1981).

Burns. — Findings that plaintiff's injury which was caused by a severe burn, looked repulsive, required massage after periods of standing or walking, and limited his employment choices, were sufficient to support finding of disfigurement. Blackwell v. Multi Foods Mgt., Inc., 126 N.C. App. 189, 484 S.E.2d 815 (1997), cert. denied, 346 N.C. 544, 488 S.E.2d 796 (1997).

Post Mortem Award to Employee's Dependents. — Generally speaking, a lump sum award made prior to decedent's death is deemed to be an accrued benefit, but logic compels the conclusion that if, pursuant to subdivision (22) of this section, no determination of the lump sum award for disfigurement had been made prior to death, then such entitlements are unaccrued until such time as they are determined, and, for that reason, the payment of the lump sum award for disfigurement would pass to the worker's dependents pursuant to this section rather than to the deceased worker's estate. Wilhite v. Liberty Veneer Co., 47 N.C. App. 434, 267 S.E.2d 566, rev'd on other grounds, 303 N.C. 281, 278 S.E.2d 234 (1981).

Dependents of an employee who suffers a serious bodily disfigurement due to an accident covered by the Workers' Compensation Act, but who dies due to an unrelated cause, are entitled to a post mortem award for serious bodily disfigurement. Bridges v. McCrary Stone Servs., Inc., 48 N.C. App. 185, 268 S.E.2d 559 (1980).

When an employee suffers serious bodily disfigurement due to an accident covered by the Workers' Compensation Act and dies from unrelated causes while drawing compensation for temporary total disability, his dependents are entitled to a postmortem award for serious bodily disfigurement. Wilhite v. Liberty Veneer Co., 303 N.C. 281, 278 S.E.2d 234 (1981).

VIII. BACK.

Compensation under subdivision (23) is made without regard to the loss of wage-earning power. Crawley v. Southern Devices, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 284, 229 S.E.2d 325 (1976), cert. denied, 292 N.C. 467, 234 S.E.2d 2 (1977).

Injury to Spinal Cord Held Not Limited to Award Under Subdivision (23). — Where physicians indicated that an injury to plaintiff's spinal cord resulted in weakness in all of her extremities and numbness or loss of sensation throughout her body, and the doctors further testified that she suffered diminished mobility and had difficulty with position sense and with recognition of things in her hands when objects were placed in her hands, the commission could not limit plaintiff to an award under subdivision (23) of this section. Little v. Anson County Schools Food Serv., 295 N.C. 527, 246 S.E.2d 743 (1978).

When an injury to the back causes referred pain to the extremities of the body, and this pain impairs the use of the extremities, then the award of workers' compensation must take into account such impairment. Harmon v. Public Serv. of N.C., Inc., 81 N.C. App. 482, 344 S.E.2d 285, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

When an injury to the back causes referred pain to the extremities of the body, and this pain impairs the use of the extremities, then the award of workers' compensation must take into account such impairment; furthermore, a disabled plaintiff suffering from chronic back and leg pain as a result of a work-related injury to the back cannot be fully compensated under subdivision (23) of this section and is entitled to compensation under § 97-29. Therefore, the Industrial Commission's failure to make findings as to disability to the plaintiff's legs caused by the arachnoiditis was error and required a remand to the Commission for appropriate findings. McKenzie v. McCarter Elec. Co., 86 N.C. App. 619, 359 S.E.2d 249 (1987).

The Full Industrial Commission erred in concluding that plaintiff was entitled to total and permanent disability benefits where the plaintiff did not meet his burden of showing, as required unless a presumption has been established through the filing of a Form 21, pursuant to § 97-82, that he was totally disabled and therefore unable to earn any of the wages he was receiving at the time of his injury in the same or any other employment. Demery v. Converse, Inc., 138 N.C. App. 243, 530 S.E.2d 871 (2000).

IX. IMPORTANT ORGANS.

Sections 97-29 and 97-30 Compared. — Often an award under § 97-29, and by implication § 97-30, better fulfills the policy of the Workers' Compensation Act than an award under this section. Strickland v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 87 N.C. App. 507, 361 S.E.2d 394 (1987).

Proof Required for Claim Under Subdivision (24). — In order for plaintiff to be entitled to workers' compensation pursuant to subdivision (24) of this section, he must show from medical evidence that he has sustained loss of or permanent injury to an important external or internal organ or part of his body for which no compensation is payable under any other subdivision of this section. Porterfield v. RPC Corp., 47 N.C. App. 140, 266 S.E.2d 760 (1980).

Awards under subdivision (24) are equitable in nature and within the Industrial Commission's discretion. Grant v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 77 N.C. App. 241, 335 S.E.2d 327 (1985).

Discretion of Commission. — By employing the word "may" in subdivision (24) of this section, the legislature intended to give the Industrial Commission discretion whether to award compensation under that section. Little v. Penn Ventilator Co., 317 N.C. 206, 345 S.E.2d 204 (1986).

The decision regarding the amount of compensation under subdivision (24) of this section should be left to the sound discretion of the Industrial Commission. Its decision will not be overturned on appeal absent an abuse of discretion on its part. Little v. Penn Ventilator Co., 317 N.C. 206, 345 S.E.2d 204 (1986).

Amount of Award Is Within Commis- sion's Discretion. — While the amount of compensation for most injuries under this section is determined according to a statutory formula, compensation for injuries under subdivision (24) appears to be within the discretion of the Commission, provided that the amount of the award does not exceed the $10,000 (now $20,000) ceiling. Little v. Penn Ventilator Co., 75 N.C. App. 92, 330 S.E.2d 276, aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 317 N.C. 206, 345 S.E.2d 204 (1986).

Consideration of Earning Capacity. — Although the courts have not explicitly stated that earning capacity can be considered in an award under subdivision (24) of this section, two cases, Shuler v. Talon Div. of Textron, 30 N.C. App. 570, 227 S.E.2d 627 (1976), overruled on other grounds, Hylar v. GTE Prods. Co., 333 N.C. 258, 425 S.E.2d 698 (1993), and Arrington v. Stone & Webster Eng'g Corp., 264 N.C. 38, 140 S.E.2d 759 (1965), support such a holding. Key v. McLean Trucking, 61 N.C. App. 143, 300 S.E.2d 280 (1983).

An employee is not required to establish a diminution of wage earning capacity under subdivision (24) of this section, although it may be considered in setting the amount of the award. Little v. Penn Ventilator Co., 75 N.C. App. 92, 330 S.E.2d 276, aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 317 N.C. 206, 345 S.E.2d 204 (1986).

Loss of Senses of Taste and Smell Is Compensable Under Subdivision (24). — Under subdivision (24) of this section, an award of compensation for loss of sense of taste or smell would unquestionably be sustained, where from the circumstances it could be reasonably presumed that the worker suffered diminution of his future earning power by reason of such loss. Arrington v. Stone & Webster Eng'g Corp., 264 N.C. 38, 140 S.E.2d 759 (1965).

The loss of sense of taste and smell is compensable as the loss of an important internal organ. Cloutier v. State, 57 N.C. App. 239, 291 S.E.2d 362, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 555, 294 S.E.2d 222 (1982).

Claimant who lost the senses of taste and smell was entitled to compensation for permanent damage to the olfactory organ and not for compensation for two separate compensable injuries. Bess v. Tyson Foods, Inc., 125 N.C. App. 698, 482 S.E.2d 26 (1997).

But Not Under Subdivision (21). — Loss of the senses of taste and smell is not compensable under subdivision (21) of this section, which is applicable to head disfigurement. Arrington v. Stone & Webster Eng'g Corp., 264 N.C. 38, 140 S.E.2d 759 (1965).

"Loss" as Used in Subdivision (24) Includes Loss of Use. Harrell v. Harriet & Henderson Yarns, 314 N.C. 566, 336 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

Sinuses. — Sinuses are important internal organs under subdivision (24) of this section. Cloutier v. State, 57 N.C. App. 239, 291 S.E.2d 362, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 555, 294 S.E.2d 222 (1982).

"Loss" as used in subdivision (24) includes loss of use. — Harrell v. Harriet & Henderson Yarns, 314 N.C. 566, 336 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

Loss of Sense of Smell and Damage to Nerves and Muscles of Face. — It is true that no provision of the Act specifies the payment of benefits due to the loss of a sense of smell or damages to the nerves and muscles of an employee's face. However, benefits are awarded under subdivision (24) for loss of a permanent injury to important external or internal organs or parts of the body, and the Commission properly used subdivision (24) in awarding benefits. Proof of diminished wage-earning capacity is not required under subdivision (24). Stanley v. Gore Bros., 82 N.C. App. 511, 347 S.E.2d 49 (1986).

Claim for compensation due to an alleged loss of the sense of smell and damage to the nerves and muscles in the right side of face was not barred by the passage of time and the doctrine of res judicata, where these symptoms did not manifest themselves immediately after the accident, and the first opinion and award filed in the matter covered only claimant's loss of vision and the disfigurement of his face. Stanley v. Gore Bros., 82 N.C. App. 511, 347 S.E.2d 49 (1986).

The following organs were important within the meaning of this section and the amounts awarded for each were proper and equitable: Pancreas $20,000.00; Lungs ($20,000 for each lung) $40,000.00; Abdominal wall $15,000.00; Omentum $10,000.00; Intestines $12,000.00; Stomach $5,000.00; Reproductive organs $15,000.00. Aderholt v. A.M. Castle Co., 137 N.C. App. 718, 529 S.E.2d 474 (2000).

Lungs. — An award for damage to the lungs may be made under subdivision (24) of this section. But such an award, by the express terms of the statute, would be in lieu of all other compensation. Such award may also be based on § 97-29, as has been done in many other reported cases involving byssinosis disability. West v. Bladenboro Cotton Mills, Inc., 62 N.C. App. 267, 302 S.E.2d 645 (1983).

An award for partial loss of lung function falls within the scope of subdivision (24) of this section. Harrell v. Harriet & Henderson Yarns, 314 N.C. 566, 336 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

There is no statutory justification for excluding loss of or permanent injury to the lungs resulting from occupational disease from the coverage of subdivision (24) of this section, and no statutory justification for making a specific finding of disability a condition precedent for recovery thereunder. Grant v. Burlington

Indus., Inc., 77 N.C. App. 241, 335 S.E.2d 327 (1985).

Uterus. — Where plaintiff was permanently deprived of her uterus, an important organ, due to accidental injury, award of $15,000 for permanent loss of her uterus was held to be a proper exercise of discretion by the Industrial Commission. Alva v. Charlotte Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth., 118 N.C. App. 76, 453 S.E.2d 871 (1995).

Bladder. — Award of $11,000 for permanent damage to plaintiff's bladder was proper where there was credible and competent evidence that plaintiff's bladder, an important organ, was permanently damaged. Alva v. Charlotte Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth., 118 N.C. App. 76, 453 S.E.2d 871 (1995).

Spleen. — The commission did not err in awarding plaintiff $20,000.00 for the loss of his spleen. The defendants incorrectly asserted that "the spleen does not serve as an 'important' organ" and that its "function to the human body is somewhat illusive;" and that the award of $ 20,000.00 was "excessive and constituted an abuse of discretion." Aderholt v. A.M. Castle Co., 137 N.C. App. 718, 529 S.E.2d 474 (2000).

Occupational Diseases. — As to the applicability of subdivision (24) of this section to occupational diseases, see Cook v. Bladenboro Cotton Mills, Inc., 61 N.C. App. 562, 300 S.E.2d 852 (1983).

The Legislature intended for this section to apply to occupational disease. Harrell v. Harriet & Henderson Yarns, 314 N.C. 566, 336 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

The Legislature must have intended for occupational disease to be compensable under the schedule in this section or it would not have expressly provided that medical treatments be provided both in cases of disability and in cases of damage to organs. Harrell v. Harriet & Henderson Yarns, 314 N.C. 566, 336 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

Remand for Findings as to Capacity for Other Employment. — Where the Commission found that plaintiff had chronic obstructive pulmonary disease caused in part by her exposure to respirable cotton dust during her employment, but that her impairment was not sufficient to render plaintiff incapable of performing types of employment which did not require very strenuous activity or exposure to cotton dust, but the Commission's findings did not address evidence that due to plaintiff's education, age and experience she was probably not capable of earning wages in any employment which did not require substantial physical exertion, the case would be remanded for appropriate findings and conclusions of plaintiff's capacity to earn wages in employment for which she might be qualified. Webb v. Pauline Knitting Indus., 78 N.C. App. 184, 336 S.E.2d 645 (1985).

Remand for Findings as to Wage Earning Capacity. — Where plaintiff suffered a permanent disability to her lungs, the Industrial Commission committed error in compensating her under this section, but failing to consider or make findings of fact as to whether her disability affected her wage earning capacity under either § 97-29 or § 97-30, as this prevented plaintiff from electing to recover under either § 97-29 or § 97-30 if she was so entitled. Strickland v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 87 N.C. App. 507, 361 S.E.2d 394 (1987).

Denial of Claim Under Subdivision (24) Held Proper. — Finding that worker had sustained no permanent injury to his kidney and thus was not entitled to compensation under subdivision (24) of this section was supported by doctor's competent testimony that defendant's renal difficulty had apparently cleared up and that the outlook for his kidney was excellent. Fowler v. B.E. & K. Constr., Inc., 92 N.C. App. 237, 373 S.E.2d 878 (1988).

§ 97-31.1. Effective date of legislative changes in benefits.

Every act of the General Assembly that changes the benefits enumerated in this Chapter shall become law no later than June 1 and shall have an effective date of no earlier than January 1 of the year after which it is ratified. (1981, c. 521, s. 3; 1995, c. 20, s. 11.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 10.1, "The Workers' Compensation Reform Act of 1994," provides: "G.S. 97-31.1 does not apply to this act [c. 679, which amended the Workers' Compensation Act.]"

Session Laws 1995, c. 20, s. 17 provided that sections 1 through 16 of this act would become effective only if the constitutional amendments proposed by Session Laws 1995, c. 5, ss. 1-2 were approved as provided by Session Laws 1995, c. 5, ss. 3-4, and if so approved, sections 1 through 16 would become effective with respect to bills and joint resolutions passed in either house of the General Assembly on or after January 1, 1997. The proposed constitutional amendments were approved.

§ 97-32. Refusal of injured employee to accept suitable employment as suspending compensation.

If an injured employee refuses employment procured for him suitable to his capacity he shall not be entitled to any compensation at any time during the continuance of such refusal, unless in the opinion of the Industrial Commission such refusal was justified. (1929, c. 120, s. 32.)

CASE NOTES

The purpose of this section is to guard against the possibility that an injured employee may refuse to work when, in fact, he is able to work and earn wages, and thus increase or attempt to increase the amount of his compensation. Branham v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 223 N.C. 233, 25 S.E.2d 865 (1943).

One purpose of this section is to prevent a partially disabled employee from refusing employment within the employee's capacity in an effort to increase the amount of compensation payable to the employee. Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

Justifiable Rejection of Employment Offer Shown. — The post-injury water meter reader job offered by defendant to former police officer was not suitable to plaintiff's capacity pursuant to this section and related statutes and case law; thus, plaintiff was justified in rejecting it. Dixon v. City of Durham, 128 N.C. App. 501, 495 S.E.2d 380 (1998), cert. denied, 348 N.C. 496, 510 S.E.2d 381 (1998).

Plaintiff was justified in refusing the employer's offered wipe glaze job, which consisted of highly repetitive motion involving the hand and wrist and was in direct conflict with her doctor's recommendation. Oliver v. Lane Co., 143 N.C. App. 167, 544 S.E.2d 606 (2001).

Unjustifiable Refusal of Employment. — If an employer shows that the employee has unjustifiably refused employment procured for the employee that is suitable to the employee's capacity and the evidence is accepted by the Industrial Commission, the employee is not entitled to any benefits pursuant to § 97-29 or § 97-30. Franklin v. Broyhill Furn. Indus., 123 N.C. App. 200, 472 S.E.2d 382 (1996).

The Commission properly concluded that the employment offered to plaintiff employee by defendant employer, following his release to return to work was "suitable" and was unjustifiably refused by plaintiff, although the employer did not offer plaintiff, who was robbed and shot while working as a night auditor, lodging worth $100.00 per week as he received prior to the shooting, and although the employee had since moved to California; plaintiff's testimony regarding the job offer was centered on how he "felt" physically, not the location of the job, and the evidence he offered did not support his theory that he refused the offer because he was frightened to return to the job. Shah v. Johnson, 140 N.C. App. 58, 535 S.E.2d 577 (2000).

Proffered Employment Must Be Suitable. — The plain language of this section requires that the proffered employment be suitable to the employee's capacity; if not, it cannot be used to bar compensation for which an employee is otherwise entitled. McLean v. Eaton Corp., 125 N.C. App. 391, 481 S.E.2d 289 (1997).

Inapplicability of section. — Where an employee is properly determined to be totally and permanently disabled under § 97-29, this section has no application. Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

Constructive Refusal to Accept Suitable Employment. — For misconduct that causes a claimant to be discharged from employment to amount to "constructive refusal" to accept suitable employment that renders him ineligible for worker's compensation, the misconduct need not occur during working hours or at the workplace, and it need not amount to a crime, but it must have been conduct for which a nondisabled employee ordinarily would have been terminated. Williams v. Pee Dee Elec. Membership Corp., 130 N.C. App. 298, 502 S.E.2d 645 (1998).

Industrial Commission erred by determining that plaintiff's refusal to accept the job offered by defendant was unjustified without making additional findings regarding the impact plaintiff's psychological injuries had on his wage-earning capacity. McLean v. Eaton Corp., 125 N.C. App. 391, 481 S.E.2d 289 (1997).

No Compensation After Unjustifiable Refusal. — Because the express terms of this section prohibit an employee from receiving any compensation during the continuance of his refusal to accept employment suitable to his capacity, plaintiff employee who was robbed and shot during his shift as a night auditor was not entitled to $66.67 per week (two-thirds of $100.00) for his loss of earnings after he unjustifiably rejected an offer to return to his position, which offer amounted to $100.00-worth-of-lodging less per week than what he had earned prior to the shooting. Shah v. Johnson, 140 N.C.

App. 58, 535 S.E.2d 577 (2000).

The deputy commissioner rightly entered an order affirming the Form 24 application to stop temporary total disability payments to plaintiff where the defendant-employer presented evidence that plaintiff was offered a light duty position and unjustifiably refused the position and where the plaintiff-employee failed to support his claim of a continuing disability. Allen v. Roberts Elec. Contractors, 143 N.C. App. 55, 546 S.E.2d 133 (2001).

Quoted in Benavides v. Summit Structures, Inc., 118 N.C. App. 645, 456 S.E.2d 339 (1995).

Cited in Honeycutt v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 235 N.C. 471, 70 S.E.2d 426 (1952); Martin v. Piedmont Asphalt & Paving Co., 113 N.C. App. 121, 437 S.E.2d 696 (1993); Smith v. Sealed Air Corp., 127 N.C. App. 359, 489 S.E.2d 445 (1997); Lewis v. Sonoco Prods. Co., 137 N.C. App. 61, 526 S.E.2d 671 (2000).

§ 97-32.1. Trial return to work.

Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 97-32, an employee may attempt a trial return to work for a period not to exceed nine months. During a trial return to work period, the employee shall be paid any compensation which may be owed for partial disability pursuant to G.S. 97-30. If the trial return to work is unsuccessful, the employee's right to continuing compensation under G.S. 97-29 shall be unimpaired unless terminated or suspended thereafter pursuant to the provisions of this Article. (1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 4.1.)

Legal Periodicals. — For survey, "The North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act of 1994: A Step in the Direction of Restoring Balance," see 73 N.C.L. Rev. 2502 (1995).

Presumption of Continuing Disability.

— The employer failed to rebut the presumption of continuing disability with medical evidence or with evidence that the claimant was capable of obtaining a suitable job in the competitive marketplace, where the claimant temporarily and unsuccessfully returned to work, the modified roller picker position offered to claimant was temporary, there was no evidence that this position was a real position that existed in the marketplace and was not "made" work, and the only medical evidence supported the claimant's claims of shoulder pain. Stamey v. North Carolina Self-Insurance Guar. Ass'n, 131 N.C. App. 662, 507 S.E.2d 596 (1998).

nate plaintiff's compensation on grounds other than plaintiff's "return to work", the only issue before the Full Commission was whether or not plaintiff had returned to work, warranting termination of benefits pursuant to N.C. Gen. Stat. § 97-18.1(b); thus it did not consider the issue of whether or not plaintiff had wage earning capacity and neither would the Court of Appeals. Lewis v. Sonoco Prods. Co., 137 N.C. App. 61, 526 S.E.2d 671 (2000).

Failure to Submit Properly Completed Form Held Not Reversible Error. — Where Industrial Commission found, based on competent evidence in the record, that plaintiff's return to work was "a failed return to work" due to his work-related compensable injury, defendant's claim that plaintiff's Form 28U was not signed by the appropriate party was valid, but the error was not reversible at that stage of the proceedings. Jenkins v. Public Serv. Co. of N.C., 134 N.C. App. 405, 518 S.E.2d 6 (1999), cert. granted, 351 N.C. 106, 541 S.E.2d 147 (1999).

Cited in Oliver v. Lane Co., 143 N.C. App. 167, 544 S.E.2d 606 (2001).

§ 97-33. Prorating in event of earlier disability or injury.

If any employee is an epileptic, or has a permanent disability or has sustained a permanent injury in service in the army or navy of the United States, or in another employment other than that in which he received a subsequent permanent injury by accident, such as specified in G.S. 97-31, he shall be entitled to compensation only for the degree of disability which would have resulted from the later accident if the earlier disability or injury had not existed. (1929, c. 120, s. 33; 1975, c. 832.)

Legal Periodicals. — For note discussing limitations on the apportionment of disabilities, see 54 N.C.L. Rev. 1123 (1976).

CASE NOTES

This section is designed to prevent double recoveries. Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 27 N.C. App. 254, 218 S.E.2d 876 (1975), rev'd on other grounds, 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976); Wilder v. Barbour Boat Works, 84 N.C. App. 188, 352 S.E.2d 690 (1987).

Inapplicability of Section to Noncompensable Injury or Damage. — Neither this section nor § 97-35 were applicable where plaintiff received no compensation for his earlier injury, which arose out of a noncompensable automobile accident separate and apart from any employment. Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 27 N.C. App. 254, 218 S.E.2d 876 (1975), rev'd on other grounds, 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976).

When prior damage to an eye was not due to an accident, recovery would be allowed for the complete loss of sight, as this section is not applicable in instances of this sort. Schrum v. Catawba Upholstering Co., 214 N.C. 353, 199 S.E. 385 (1938).

Where plaintiff's condition stemmed neither from epilepsy nor from an injury received in the armed services or in the course of other employment, and where plaintiff had received no compensation for the injury, his case did not fall within the provisions of this section. Wilder v. Barbour Boat Works, 84 N.C. App. 188, 352 S.E.2d 690 (1987).

Compensation for Separate and Distinct Injuries. — Under this section, it was proper to compensate employee for a 20 percent disability of the back when he had previously been compensated by the same employer for a 15 percent disability due to a prior injury, where the second injury was separate and distinct from the first injury. Bailey v. Smoky Mt. Enters., Inc., 65 N.C. App. 134, 308 S.E.2d 489 (1983), cert. denied, 311 N.C. 303, 317 S.E.2d 678 (1984).

When Apportionment Not Permitted. — Apportionment is not permitted when an employee becomes totally and permanently disabled due to a compensable injury's aggravation or acceleration of the employee's nondisabling, pre-existing disease or infirmity. Errante v. Cumberland County Solid Waste Mgt., 106 N.C. App. 114, 415 S.E.2d 583 (1992).

An employee is also entitled to full compensation for total disability without apportionment when the nature of the employee's total disability makes any attempt at apportionment between work-related and non-work-related causes speculative. Errante v. Cumberland County Solid Waste Mgt., 106 N.C. App. 114, 415 S.E.2d 583 (1992).

§ 97-34. Employee receiving an injury when being compensated for former injury.

If an employee receives an injury for which compensation is payable, while he is still receiving or entitled to compensation for a previous injury in the same employment, he shall not at the same time be entitled to compensation for both injuries, unless the later injury be a permanent injury such as specified in G.S. 97-31; but he shall be entitled to compensation for that injury and from the time of that injury which will cover the longest period and the largest amount payable under this Article. (1929, c. 120, s. 34.)

CASE NOTES

Restricted Application. — Application of this section and § 97-35 is restricted to those instances where the employee (1) receives an injury for which compensation is payable while he is still receiving or entitled to compensation for a previous injury in the same employment, or (2) receives a permanent injury specified in § 97-31 after having sustained another perma-ment injury in the same employment. Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976).

Application When Lump Sum Benefits Paid. — The correct interpretation of § 97-34 is that a lump sum payment should be treated as if an employee received weekly payments for the applicable payment period covered by the lump sum in order to prevent double recovery. Farley v. North Carolina Dep't of Labor, — N.C. App. —, 553 S.E.2d 231, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 983 (2001).

Cited in Dolbow v. Holland Indus., Inc., 64 N.C. App. 695, 308 S.E.2d 335 (1983).

§ 97-35. How compensation paid for two injuries; employer liable only for subsequent injury.

If any employee receives a permanent injury as specified in G.S. 97-31 after having sustained another permanent injury in the same employment, he shall be entitled to compensation for both injuries, but the total compensation shall be paid by extending the period and not by increasing the amount of weekly compensation, and in no case exceeding 500 weeks.

If an employee has previously incurred permanent partial disability through the loss of a hand, arm, foot, leg, or eye, and by subsequent accident incurs total permanent disability through the loss of another member, the employer's liability is for the subsequent injury only. (1929, c. 120, s. 35.)

ties, see 54 N.C.L. Rev. 1123 (1976).

CASE NOTES

Restricted Application. — Application of this section and § 97-35 is restricted to those instances where the employee (1) receives an injury for which compensation is payable while he is still receiving or entitled to compensation for a previous injury in the same employment, or (2) receives a permanent injury specified in § 97-31 after having sustained another permanent injury in the same employment. Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976).

Neither § 97-33 nor this section were applicable where plaintiff received no compensation for his earlier injury, which arose out of a noncompensable automobile accident separate and apart from any employment. Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 27 N.C. App. 254, 218 S.E.2d 876 (1975), rev'd on other grounds, 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976).

When Apportionment Not Permitted. —

Apportionment is not permitted when an employee becomes totally and permanently disabled due to a compensable injury's aggravation or acceleration of the employee's nondisabling, pre-existing disease or infirmity. Errante v. Cumberland County Solid Waste Mgt., 106 N.C. App. 114, 415 S.E.2d 583 (1992).

An employee is also entitled to full compensation for total disability without apportionment when the nature of the employee's total disability makes any attempt at apportionment between work-related and non-work-related causes speculative. Errante v. Cumberland County Solid Waste Mgt., 106 N.C. App. 114, 415 S.E.2d 583 (1992).

§ 97-36. Accidents taking place outside State; employees receiving compensation from another state.

Where an accident happens while the employee is employed elsewhere than in this State and the accident is one which would entitle him or his dependents or next of kin to compensation if it had happened in this State, then the employee or his dependents or next of kin shall be entitled to compensation (i) if the contract of employment was made in this State, (ii) if the employer's principal place of business is in this State, or (iii) if the employee's principal place of employment is within this State; provided, however, that if an employee or his dependents or next of kin shall receive compensation or damages under the laws of any other state nothing herein contained shall be construed so as to permit a total compensation for the same injury greater than is provided for in this Article. (1929, c. 120, s. 36; 1963, c. 450, s. 2; 1967, c. 1229, s. 3; 1973, c. 1059; 1991, c. 284, s. 1.)

CASE NOTES

For case holding former § 97-36 to be constitutional prior to the 1963 amendment thereto, see Reaves v. Earle-Chesterfield Mill Co., 216 N.C. 462, 5 S.E.2d 305 (1939).

Employee No Longer Required to Be Resident of State. — The 1963 amendment to former § 97-36 struck out the requirement that the employee should be a resident of this State. Rice v. Uwharrie Council Boy Scouts of Am., 263 N.C. 204, 139 S.E.2d 223 (1964).

The "last act" test employed under the long-arm statute and under the choice of laws doctrine is the appropriate test to be applied in determining whether the contract of employment was made in North Carolina. Thomas v. Overland Express, Inc., 101 N.C. App. 90, 398 S.E.2d 921 (1990), discretionary review denied, 328 N.C. 576, 403 S.E.2d 522 (1991).

For an employment contract to be made in North Carolina such that the Industrial Commission would have jurisdiction over a workers' compensation claim, the final act necessary to make a binding obligation must be done in North Carolina. Murray v. Ahlstrom Indus. Holdings, Inc., 131 N.C. App. 294, 506 S.E.2d 724 (1998).

Plaintiff's principal place of employment was within North Carolina where plaintiff was assigned to operate a tractor-trailer in an area consisting of twelve to thirteen southern states but no state, standing alone, had the same degree of significant contacts to plaintiff's employment as North Carolina. Furthermore, the "Policies, Procedures and Agreement" form signed by plaintiff upon being hired was an invalid attempt to limit plaintiff's rights to those enumerated under Arkansas workers' compensation law as well as a violation of § 97-6. Perkins v. Arkansas Trucking Servs., 351 N.C. 634, 528 S.E.2d 902 (2000).

Contract of Employment Formed in North Carolina. — The Industrial Commission had jurisdiction over an employee's claim, where the employee was injured in another state and the employer's principal place of business was outside North Carolina, but the last act necessary for formation of the contract occurred in this state when the employer called the employee in North Carolina and offered the job at a specific hourly rate, the employee accepted the offer, and the employer responded that he was "hired." Murray v. Ahlstrom Indus. Holdings, Inc., 131 N.C. App. 294, 506 S.E.2d 724 (1998).

Commission did not have jurisdiction over a claim arising from a tractor-trailer driver's out-of-state injury, where, although the trucking company which employed him had business contacts with North Carolina sufficiently substantial to meet minimum due process requirements, the company's principal place of business was in Indiana. Thomas v. Overland Express, Inc., 101 N.C. App. 90, 398 S.E.2d 921 (1990), discretionary review denied, 328 N.C. 576, 403 S.E.2d 522 (1991).

The Court of Appeals erred in applying the "any competent evidence" standard of review to the Industrial Commission's jurisdictional determination under this section; the court should have made its own independent findings of jurisdictional fact. Perkins v. Arkansas Trucking Servs., 351 N.C. 634, 528 S.E.2d 902 (2000).

Commission Had Jurisdiction. — Sufficient evidence existed to support the Industrial Commission's conclusion that plaintiff/truck driver's principal place of employment was within North Carolina and its conclusion that the North Carolina Industrial Commission had jurisdiction over claim between foreign corporation/employer and plaintiff, whose residence was in North Carolina, who conducted various aspects of his business including receipt of assignments, storage and maintenance of truck, receipt of paychecks, etc., in North Carolina, and who made 18-20% of his pick-up stops in North Carolina. Perkins v. Arkansas Trucking Servs., Inc., 134 N.C. App. 490, 518 S.E.2d 36 (1999). But see Hyde v. Chesney Glen

§ 97-37. Where injured employee dies before total compensation is paid.

When an employee receives or is entitled to compensation under this Article for an injury covered by G.S. 97-31 and dies from any other cause than the injury for which he was entitled to compensation, payment of the unpaid balance of compensation shall be made: First, to the surviving whole dependents; second, to partial dependents, and, if no dependents, to the next of kin as defined in the Article; if there are no whole or partial dependents or next of kin as defined in the Article, then to the personal representative, in lieu of the compensation the employee would have been entitled to had he lived.

Provided, however, that if the death is due to a cause that is compensable under this Article, and the dependents of such employee are awarded compensation therefor, all right to unpaid compensation provided by this section shall cease and determine. (1929, c. 120, s. 37; 1947, c. 823; 1971, c. 322.)

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1980 tort law, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 1239 (1981).

CASE NOTES

Recovery Where Employee Died After Filing Claim. — Where a claimant dies after a claim has been filed, the claimant's estate may recover all accrued but unpaid benefits, and all unaccrued benefits to which the employee would have been entitled had he lived are payable to decedent's dependents pursuant to this section. Wilhite v. Liberty Veneer Co., 47 N.C. App. 434, 267 S.E.2d 566, rev'd on other grounds, 303 N.C. 281, 278 S.E.2d 234 (1981).

Recovery Where Employee Died Without Filing Claim. — Allowing a dependent widow of a deceased worker to recover that to which her husband would have been entitled is consistent with the statutory purpose of this section, and a widow's claim will not be denied because her husband had not filed a worker's compensation claim for disfigurement before he died. Wilhite v. Liberty Veneer Co., 47 N.C. App. 434, 267 S.E.2d 566, rev'd on other grounds, 303 N.C. 281, 278 S.E.2d 234 (1981).

Basis for Award. — The dependents of a deceased employee who suffered a serious bodily disfigurement due to an accident covered by the Workers' Compensation Act but who died due to an unrelated cause were entitled to a post mortem award for serious bodily disfigurement based on the best possible medical estimate as to the probable residual disability that would have remained had the employee lived to complete his healing period, notwithstanding the fact that the employee had not filed a workers' compensation claim for disfigurement before he died. Wilhite v. Liberty Veneer Co., 47 N.C. App. 434, 267 S.E.2d 566, rev'd on other grounds, 303 N.C. 281, 278 S.E.2d 234 (1981).

An award inadvertently entered by the Industrial Commission after the death of the claimant on appeal from the award is irregular, but not void, and the proceedings do not abate. Butts v. Montague Bros., 204 N.C. 389, 168 S.E. 215 (1933).

§ 97-38. Where death results proximately from compensable injury or occupational disease; dependents; burial expenses; compensation to aliens; election by partial dependents.

If death results proximately from a compensable injury or occupational disease and within six years thereafter, or within two years of the final determination of disability, whichever is later, the employer shall pay or cause to be paid, subject to the provisions of other sections of this Article, weekly payments of compensation equal to sixty-six and two-thirds percent (66 2/3%) of the average weekly wages of the deceased employee at the time of the accident, but not more than the amount established annually to be effective October 1 as provided in G.S. 97-29, nor less than thirty dollars ($30.00), per week, and burial expenses not exceeding three thousand five hundred dollars ($3,500), to the person or persons entitled thereto as follows:

- (1) Persons wholly dependent for support upon the earnings of the deceased employee at the time of the accident shall be entitled to receive the entire compensation payable share and share alike to the exclusion of all other persons. If there be only one person wholly dependent, then that person shall receive the entire compensation payable.
- (2) If there is no person wholly dependent, then any person partially dependent for support upon the earnings of the deceased employee at the time of the accident shall be entitled to receive a weekly payment of compensation computed as hereinabove provided, but such weekly payment shall be the same proportion of the weekly compensation provided for a whole dependent as the amount annually contributed by the deceased employee to the support of such partial dependent bears to the annual earnings of the deceased at the time of the accident.
- (3) If there is no person wholly dependent, and the person or all persons partially dependent is or are within the classes of persons defined as "next of kin" in G.S. 97-40, whether or not such persons or such classes of persons are of kin to the deceased employee in equal degree, and all so elect, he or they may take, share and share alike, the commuted value of the amount provided for whole dependents in (1) above instead of the proportional payment provided for partial dependents in (2) above; provided, that the election herein provided may be exercised on behalf of any infant partial dependent by a duly qualified guardian; provided, further, that the Industrial Commission may, in its discretion, permit a parent or person standing in loco parentis to such infant to exercise such option in its behalf, the award to be payable only to a duly qualified guardian except as in this Article otherwise provided; and provided, further, that if such election is exercised by or on behalf of more than one person, then they shall take the commuted amount in equal shares.

When weekly payments have been made to an injured employee before his death, the compensation to dependents shall begin from the date of the last of such payments. Compensation payments due on account of death shall be paid for a period of 400 weeks from the date of the death of the employee; provided, however, after said 400-week period in case of a widow or widower who is unable to support herself or himself because of physical or mental disability as of the date of death of the employee, compensation payments shall continue during her or his lifetime or until remarriage and compensation payments due a dependent child shall be continued until such child reaches the age of 18.

Compensation payable under this Article to aliens not residents (or about to become nonresidents) of the United States or Canada, shall be the same in amounts as provided for residents, except that dependents in any foreign country except Canada shall be limited to surviving spouse and child or children, or if there be no surviving spouse or child or children, to the surviving father or mother. Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-232, s. 1, effective October 1, 2001, substituted "three thousand five hundred dollars ($3,500)" for "two thousand dollars ($2,000)" in the introductory language.

I. In General.

II. Dependents.

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Most of the annotations under this section were decided prior to the 1987 amendment, which, inter alia, changed the time limit provisions in the first paragraph.

Constitutionality. — The court would not consider the constitutionality of this section where the issue was not presented at the hearing before the full Commission. McPherson v. Henry Motor Sales Corp., 201 N.C. 303, 160 S.E. 283 (1931), appeal dismissed, 286 U.S. 527, 52 S. Ct. 499, 76 L. Ed. 1269 (1932).

This section classifies those persons eligible to receive, and determines the amount of, death benefits payable under the act to persons wholly or partially dependent upon the earnings of a deceased employee. Stevenson v. City of Durham, 281 N.C. 300, 188 S.E.2d 281 (1972).

The express language of this section fixes the rights and liabilities at the time of the employee's death, providing that where there is only one wholly dependent person at the time of decedent's death, all of the death benefits be paid to that person. Allen v. Piedmont Transp. Servs., Inc., 116 N.C. App. 234, 447 S.E.2d 835 (1994).

"Disability." — The definition of the word "disability," as it is defined in subdivision (9) of § 97-2, must be read into this section in lieu of the word "disability" therein. Burton v. Peter W. Blum & Son, 270 N.C. 695, 155 S.E.2d 71 (1967).

Under the act "disability" refers not to physical infirmity but to a diminished capacity to earn money. Burton v. Peter W. Blum & Son, 270 N.C. 695, 155 S.E.2d 71 (1967).

When Death Is Compensable. — In order for a claimant to recover workers' compensation benefits for death, he must prove that death resulted from an injury (1) by accident; (2) arising out of his employment; and (3) in the course of the employment. Pickrell v. Motor Convoy, Inc., 322 N.C. 363, 368 S.E.2d 582 (1988).

To recover death benefits under the Workers Compensation Act, a claimant bears the burden of proving that the decedent sustained a fatal injury (1) by accident, (2) arising out of his employment, and (3) during the course of his employment. Westbrooks v. Bowes, 130 N.C. App. 517, 503 S.E.2d 409 (1998).

When Disability or Death Resulting from Disease Is Compensable. — Disability caused by, or death resulting from, a disease is compensable only when the disease is an occupational disease, or is aggravated or accelerated by causes and conditions characteristic of and peculiar to the claimant's employment.

Goodman v. Cone Mills Corp., 75 N.C. App. 493, 331 S.E.2d 261 (1985).

The employer is required to pay compensation for the death of an employee only when the death results proximately from injury by accident arising out of and in the course of employment. Gilmore v. Hoke County Bd. of Educ., 222 N.C. 358, 23 S.E.2d 292 (1942).

The act authorizes the Industrial Commission to make an award of compensation on account of the death of an employee only in the event that death results proximately from the accident and within two years thereafter, or while total disability still continues and within six years after the accident. Burton v. Peter W. Blum & Son, 270 N.C. 695, 155 S.E.2d 71 (1967), decided prior to the 1983 amendment to this section.

This section contemplates only one accident leading to death when it states "the accident." Death benefits accrue only if death occurs within the maximum statutorily set time after "the accident." It would defy legislative intent to hold that subsequent changes in disability status arising from the same occupational disease created new "accidents," thereby renewing the time limit for claiming benefits under § 97-38. Joyner v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 71 N.C. App. 625, 322 S.E.2d 636 (1984).

The rule limiting occupational disease victims to a single claim for purposes of the statute of limitations in § 97-58(c) applies by analogy to allow occupational disease victims to claim only one "accident" under this section. Joyner v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 71 N.C. App. 625, 322 S.E.2d 636 (1984).

This section may sometimes have the effect of barring an otherwise valid and provable claim simply because the employee did not die within the requisite period of time. The remedy for any inequities arising from the statute, however, lies not with the courts but with the legislature. Joyner v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 71 N.C. App. 625, 322 S.E.2d 636 (1984).

Continuing Total Disability Is Condition Precedent to Award for Death After Two Years. — A continuing total disability from the time of the accident to the time of the death is a condition precedent to the making of an award of death benefits where the death occurred more than two years after the accident. Burton v. Peter W. Blum & Son, 270 N.C. 695, 155 S.E.2d 71 (1967).

An award of compensation, on account of a death occurring more than two years after the accident, is authorized only if there is evidence to support a finding that, from the accident to the death, the employee had a continuing incapacity, because of the injury, to earn the wages which he was receiving at the time of his accident. Burton v. Peter W. Blum & Son, 270 N.C. 695, 155 S.E.2d 71 (1967).

Widow seeking death benefits under this section not collaterally estopped to litigate the issue of decedent's total permanent disability on grounds that he had previously been found temporarily totally disabled, where she was not a party to the claim for her husband's lifetime benefits, nor was she in privity with a party to that claim, and she was not in control of the prosecution of that claim and did not have a mutual interest in the same property rights, even though she continued to pursue decedent's claim for lifetime benefits and subsequently withdrew the appeal of that claim. Goins v. Cone Mills Corp., 90 N.C. App. 90, 367 S.E.2d 335, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 173, 373 S.E.2d 108 (1988).

For case impliedly criticizing this section insofar as its application may sometimes bar an otherwise valid and provable claim simply because the employee did not die within the requisite period of time, see Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

Death from Preexisting Heart Condition Aggravated by Injury. — Findings to the effect that the employee suffered an injury arising out of and in the course of the employment, which injury aggravated a preexisting heart condition and caused death, would support an award for compensation and burial expenses. Wyatt v. Sharp, 239 N.C. 655, 80 S.E.2d 762 (1954).

Suicide Due to Derangement Caused by Pain and Suffering from Compensable Injury. — If an employee receives an injury which is compensable under this Chapter and as a result of pain and suffering from this injury he becomes so deranged that he commits suicide, the death is compensable. Fayne v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 54 N.C. App. 144, 282 S.E.2d 539 (1981), cert. denied, 304 N.C. 725, 288 S.E.2d 380 (1982).

Maximum Weekly Benefit. — The 1973 amendment to § 97-29, governing the maximum weekly workers' compensation benefit, applies to this section. Andrews v. Nu-Woods, Inc., 43 N.C. App. 591, 259 S.E.2d 306 (1979), aff'd, 299 N.C. 723, 264 S.E.2d 99 (1980).

Statute in Effect at Time of Death Controls Award. — Where an employee died of serum hepatitis, which was found to be a disease characteristic of and peculiar to his occupation of lab technician, the commission did not err in awarding compensation according to the statute in effect when the employee died rather than the statute in effect at the time he contracted the disease. Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

Date of "Accident" in Occupational Disease Case. — Where employee died 15 months after he became totally disabled by serum hepatitis, the claim of deceased employee's dependents for death benefits was not barred by this section providing compensation if death results from an accident within two years or, while total disability continues, within six years after the accident, since the date of the "accident" in cases involving occupational disease is treated as the date on which disablement occurs and not as the date on which employee contracted the disease. Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

II. DEPENDENTS.

Percentage of Survivors' Benefits Fixed by Subdivision (1). — Paragraph fixing the period of time for which benefits are to be paid as 400 weeks for the widow and for each minor child until he reaches age 18 is not intended to fix the percentage of survivors' benefits; that is done by subdivision (1) of this section. Chinault v. Floyd S. Pike Elec. Contractors, 53 N.C. App. 604, 281 S.E.2d 460 (1981), aff'd, 306 N.C. 286, 293 S.E.2d 147 (1982).

Shares of Partial Dependents Fixed by Subdivisions (2) and (3). — Subdivisions (2) and (3) of this section fix the share each survivor is to receive if there are no persons wholly dependent on decedent at the date of his death. Chinault v. Floyd S. Pike Elec. Contractors, 53 N.C. App. 604, 281 S.E.2d 460 (1981), aff'd, 306 N.C. 286, 293 S.E.2d 147 (1982).

Recipients' Shares Fixed at Date of Death. — General Assembly intended to fix each recipient's share of death benefits at the date of decedent's death. Chinault v. Floyd S. Pike Elec. Contractors, 53 N.C. App. 604, 281 S.E.2d 460 (1981), aff'd, 306 N.C. 286, 293 S.E.2d 147 (1982).

Effect of 18th Birthday of Minor Dependent. — Decedent's wife was not entitled to a reapportionment of death benefits upon her daughter's 18th birthday. Friday v. Carolina Steel Corp., 139 N.C. App. 802, 534 S.E.2d 648 (2000).

If there is a decrease in the dependent beneficiary pool during the 400 weeks following the employee's death, there must be a corresponding reapportionment of the full award payable for that set period among the remaining eligible members of the pool. That is only situation in which there will be an increase in the amount of the individual shares paid to the dependents still partaking of the compensation fund. Deese v. Southern Lawn & Tree Expert Co., 306 N.C. 275, 293 S.E.2d 140, rehearing denied, 306 N.C. 753, 303 S.E.2d 83 (1982).

Section does not permit reapportionment of entire compensation award among eligible dependents after 400 weeks have elapsed. Deese v. Southern Lawn & Tree Expert Co., 306 N.C. 275, 293 S.E.2d 140, rehearing denied, 306 N.C. 753, 303 S.E.2d 83 (1982).

Death or Remarriage of Widow Before All Installments Paid. — This section places no limitation by way of forfeiture on compensation receivable where a widow who has been awarded compensation for her husband's death dies or remarries before all installments have been paid. Hill v. Cahoon, 252 N.C. 295, 113 S.E.2d 569 (1960).

Where a widow who has been properly awarded compensation as the sole dependent of her deceased husband dies before all the installments of compensation have been paid, the commuted value of such future installments is properly paid to her personal representative, and the next of kin of the deceased employee, who are not dependents, are not entitled thereto. Hill v. Cahoon, 252 N.C. 295, 113 S.E.2d 569 (1960).

Where an employee has lost his life in the course of his employment and thereafter an award has been made by the Industrial Commission to his widow, as his sole dependent, and within a few months after the award is made his widow dies intestate, her administrator is entitled to the benefits of the award as made to her. Queen v. Champion Fibre Co., 203 N.C. 94, 164 S.E. 752 (1932).

No Finding of Permanent Disability Required For Disabled Widow. — The provision of this section for compensation for life or until remarriage for the disabled widow of an employee who dies under compensable circumstances does not on its face require a finding of permanent disability. Hendrick v. Southland Corp., 41 N.C. App. 431, 255 S.E.2d 198, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 296, 259 S.E.2d 912 (1979).

Duration of Payment of Compensation to Dependent Children Under Age 18. — The provision of the second paragraph of this section, as amended, which relates to dependent children under the age of 18 years, should be read in conjunction with the introductory proviso. When so read, it means "as provided, however, after said 400-week period compensation payments due a dependent child shall be continued until such child reaches the age of 18." Caldwell v. Marsh Realty Co., 32 N.C. App. 676, 233 S.E.2d 594, cert. denied, 292 N.C. 728, 235 S.E.2d 782 (1977).

Stepchildren must be substantially dependent upon the deceased employee. This result is derived from the wording of the various dependency tests employed by the act. Winstead v. Derreberry, 73 N.C. App. 35, 326 S.E.2d 66 (1985); Capps v. Standard Trucking Co., 77 N.C. App. 448, 335 S.E.2d 357 (1985).

The substantial dependency standard is a question of fact to be determined under the facts of each case, the burden of proof being on the stepchild under the evidentiary standards normally employed in workers' compensation cases. The factors to be considered are the actual amount and consistency of the support derived by the stepchild from (1) the deceased stepparent, (2) the natural parent married to the stepparent, (3) the estranged natural parent, whether such support is voluntary or required by law, (4) the income of the stepchild, and (5) any other funds regularly received for the support of the stepchild. Winstead v. Derreberry, 73 N.C. App. 35, 326 S.E.2d 66 (1985).

A stepchild must be factually "substantially" dependent upon the deceased in order to qualify as a child dependent on deceased under § 97-39 and, therefore, be entitled to a share of death benefits under this section. Capps v. Standard Trucking Co., 77 N.C. App. 448, 335 S.E.2d 357 (1985).

Allocation of Compensation to Widow and Children Upheld. — The Industrial Commission properly held that the entire compensation to which survivors, a widow and three minor children, were entitled should be divided into four equal parts, with the widow to receive weekly payments for 400 weeks, and each of the three minor children to receive only its share of weekly compensation beyond the 400-week period and until such child reached 18 years of age. Chinault v. Floyd S. Pike Elec. Contractors, 53 N.C. App. 604, 281 S.E.2d 460 (1981), aff'd, 306 N.C. 286, 293 S.E.2d 147 (1982).

Legal Adoption Not Finalized. — Where adoption proceedings had begun but were not finalized, the minor plaintiff was not a child legally adopted prior to the injury of the employee. Lennon v. Cumberland County, 119 N.C. App. 319, 458 S.E.2d 240 (1995).

Total Dependency Shown. — Where the evidence tended to show that the mother of the deceased employee lived with him, that he had paid the rent, bought groceries and supported her for a period of years, but that for two months prior to his death she did washing and nominal services for, and stayed with, an aged bedridden person and earned $5.75 per week thereby, which she deposited in a bank or used to buy small luxuries, the fact that the mother earned small amounts of money in temporary and casual employment did not indicate any dependable source of income other than that she received from her son and the conclusion of the Industrial Commission that she was totally dependent upon her son within the meaning of the Workers' Compensation Act was sustained. Thomas v. Raleigh Gas Co., 218 N.C. 429, 11 S.E.2d 297 (1940).

Finding as to Dependency Binding on Appeal. — While it may be admitted that in some instances the question of dependency may be a mixed question of fact and law, where the facts admitted or found by the Commission upon competent evidence support the conclusion of the Commission in regard thereto, its award is binding on the court. Thomas v. Ra- leigh Gas Co., 218 N.C. 429, 11 S.E.2d 297 (1940).

When Employee Has No Dependents. — Where the Commission has found that the deceased employee left no one who was dependent upon him, wholly or partially, § 97-40 determines the person or persons entitled to receive the death benefits provided in this act, but the amount payable to the person or persons entitled thereto is determined by this section, commuted to its present, lump sum value. Smith v. Allied Exterminators, Inc., 279 N.C. 583, 184 S.E.2d 296 (1971).

Section 97-40 determines the person or persons entitled to receive the death benefits in the absence of dependents, but the amount payable to the person or persons entitled thereto is determined by this section, commuted to its present, lump sum value. Stevenson v. City of Durham, 281 N.C. 300, 188 S.E.2d 281 (1972).

If the deceased employee leaves neither whole nor partial dependents, then § 97-40 provides for the commutation and payment of compensation to the "next of kin" as therein defined. Stevenson v. City of Durham, 281 N.C. 300, 188 S.E.2d 281 (1972).

Proper Plaintiffs in Action for Failure to Procure Compensation Insurance. — An action against insurance agents for breach of their agreement with an employer to procure compensation coverage for an employee may be maintained only by those who would have been entitled to payments had the policy been issued, and when it appears that the employee died as the result of injury received during the employment, and that the employee left a widow surviving him, such action may be maintained only by the widow; thus, an action instituted by the employee's administrator and the employer, who advanced the insurance premium, must be dismissed. Crawford v. General Ins. & Realty Co., 266 N.C. 615, 146 S.E.2d 651 (1966).

§ 97-39. Widow, widower, or child to be conclusively presumed to be dependent; other cases determined upon facts; division of death benefits among those wholly dependent; when division among partially dependent.

A widow, a widower and/or a child shall be conclusively presumed to be wholly dependent for support upon the deceased employee. In all other cases questions of dependency, in whole or in part shall be determined in accordance with the facts as the facts may be at the time of the accident, but no allowance shall be made for any payment made in lieu of board and lodging or services, and no compensation shall be allowed unless the dependency existed for a period of three months or more prior to the accident. If there is more than one person wholly dependent, the death benefit shall be divided among them, the persons partly dependent, if any, shall receive no part thereof. If there is no one wholly dependent, and more than one person partially dependent, the death benefit shall be divided among them according to the relative extent of their dependency.

The widow, or widower and all children of deceased employees shall be conclusively presumed to be dependents of deceased and shall be entitled to receive the benefits of this Article for the full periods specified herein. (1929, c. 120, s. 39.)

pendents, see 8 N.C.L. Rev. 426 (1930).

CASE NOTES

Only widows who come within the definition in subdivision (14) of § 97-2 are entitled to the presumption provided by this section. Bass v. Mooresville Mills, 11 N.C. App.

631, 182 S.E.2d 246 (1971).

Presumption of Dependency. — By statute, a widow is conclusively presumed to be wholly dependent for support upon the deceased employee, and shall receive benefits under the Workers' Compensation Act. Rogers v. University Motor Inn, 103 N.C. App. 456, 405 S.E.2d 770 (1991).

The common-law wife of a deceased employee is not entitled to compensation under the provisions of this act. Reeves v. Parker-Graham-Sexton, Inc., 199 N.C. 236, 154 S.E. 66 (1930).

The term "in all other cases," in the connection in which it appears in this section, means in all cases other than those of widows, widowers, and children, claiming to be dependents of the deceased employee, dependency shall be determined in accordance with the facts as the facts may be at the time of the accident. Manifestly, a woman living in cohabitation with a man to whom she is not married is not within the purview of the term "in all other cases." Fields v. Hollowell, 238 N.C. 614, 78 S.E.2d 740 (1953).

A woman who was living with an employee as his common-law wife at the time of his death and who was actually wholly dependent upon him for support for some years prior to his death by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment was not a dependent of the deceased employee within the purview of this section, and was not entitled to any part of the compensation payable under the provisions of the act. Fields v. Hollowell, 238 N.C. 614, 78 S.E.2d 740 (1953).

Wife separated by mutual agreement evidenced by legally executed separation agreement is not widow. Bass v. Mooresville Mills, 11 N.C. App. 631, 182 S.E.2d 246 (1971); Sloop v. Williams Exxon Serv., 24 N.C. App. 129, 210 S.E.2d 111 (1974).

Surrender of Right to Support. — There is no reason why a separated wife who has surrendered all right to look to the husband for support while he is living should, upon his death, receive benefits that are intended to replace in part the support which the husband was providing or should have been providing. Bass v. Mooresville Mills, 11 N.C. App. 631, 182 S.E.2d 246 (1971); Sloop v. Williams Exxon Serv., 24 N.C. App. 129, 210 S.E.2d 111 (1974).

Spouse's Adultery Does Not Create an Exception to Statutes. — It is not within the authority of courts to create an exception to § 97-2(14) and this section based upon adultery by a spouse. To find that the legislature intended such an exception, it must be apparent in the statute. Rogers v. University Motor Inn, 103 N.C. App. 456, 405 S.E.2d 770 (1991).

A wife's adulterous affair did not bar her from qualifying as her husband's widow under § 97-2(14) or this section. Rogers v. University Motor Inn, 103 N.C. App. 456, 405 S.E.2d 770 (1991).

Divorce and Remarriage in Another State. — On the conflict of laws question raised where there has been a divorce and remarriage in another state and a subsequent controversy develops as to who is the "widow," see Rice v. Rice, 336 U.S. 674, 69 S. Ct. 751, 93 L. Ed. 957 (1949); 28 N.C.L. Rev. 265, 286.

A second or subsequent marriage is presumed legal until the contrary is proved, and the burden of the issue is upon a plaintiff who attempts to establish a property right which is dependent upon the invalidity of such a marriage. Kearney v. Thomas, 225 N.C. 156, 33 S.E.2d 871 (1945).

Illegitimate Child Acknowledged by Father. — An illegitimate child born after the death of its father, who before his death had acknowledged his paternity of the child, is a dependent of its deceased father within the meaning of this section, and such child is entitled to share with the children of its deceased father who were born of his marriage to their mother, from whom their father had been divorced prior to his death, in compensation awarded under this act to his dependents. Lippard v. Southeastern Express Co., 207 N.C. 507, 177 S.E. 801 (1935).

Illegitimate Child Must Be Acknowledged. — To qualify for survivor's benefits under the act, an illegitimate child must be acknowledged in sufficient fashion by the father. Tucker v. City of Clinton, 120 N.C. App. 776, 463 S.E.2d 806 (1995).

Stepchildren must be substantially dependent upon the deceased employee. This result is derived from the wording of the various dependency tests employed by the act. Winstead v. Derreberry, 73 N.C. App. 35, 326 S.E.2d 66 (1985); Capps v. Standard Trucking Co., 77 N.C. App. 448, 335 S.E.2d 357 (1985).

The substantial dependency standard is a question of fact to be determined under the facts of each case, the burden of proof being on the stepchild under the evidentiary standards normally employed in workers' compensation cases. The factors to be considered are the actual amount and consistency of the support derived by the stepchild from (1) the deceased stepparent, (2) the natural parent married to the stepparent, (3) the estranged natural parent, whether such support is voluntary or required by law, (4) the income of the stepchild, and (5) any other funds regularly received for the support of the stepchild. *Winstead v. Children of employee's common-law wife who were not the children of the employee were not entitled to share compensation with the employee's legal widow and their children, even though they had been supported by the employee, since his act of maintenance was voluntary and was not a legal obligation. Wilson v. Utah Constr. Co., 243 N.C. 96, 89 S.E.2d 864 (1955).

A child born to employee's common-law wife shortly after his death was not entitled to compensation where there was no evidence that employee had acknowledged the child. Wilson v. Utah Constr. Co., 243 N.C. 96, 89 S.E.2d 864 (1955).

Father Held Not a Dependent. — Where deceased employee had lived at his father's home, buying food and other supplies for the house from time to time, but when he was away from home, he made no contribution, the Commission's finding that the father of deceased was not a dependent would be affirmed. Scott v. Auman, 209 N.C. 853, 184 S.E. 830 (1936).

§ 97-40. Commutation and payment of compensation in absence of dependents; "next of kin" defined; commutation and distribution of compensation to partially dependent next of kin; payment in absence of both dependents and next of kin.

Subject to the provisions of G.S. 97-38, if the deceased employee leaves neither whole nor partial dependents, then the compensation which would be payable under G.S. 97-38 to whole dependents shall be commuted to its present value and paid in a lump sum to the next of kin as herein defined. For purposes of this section and G.S. 97-38, "next of kin" shall include only child, father, mother, brother or sister of the deceased employee, including adult children or adult brothers or adult sisters of the deceased, but excluding a parent who has willfully abandoned the care and maintenance of his or her child and who has not resumed its care and maintenance at least one year prior to the first occurring of the majority or death of the child and continued its care and maintenance until its death or majority. For all such next of kin who are neither wholly nor partially dependent upon the deceased employee and who take under this section, the order of priority among them shall be governed by the general law applicable to the distribution of the personal estate of persons dying intestate. In the event of exclusion of a parent based on abandonment, the claim for compensation benefits shall be treated as though the abandoning parent had predeceased the employee. For all such next of kin who were also partially dependent on the deceased employee but who exercise the election provided for partial dependents by G.S. 97-38, the general law applicable to the distribution of the personal estate of persons dying intestate shall not apply and such person or persons upon the exercise of such election, shall be entitled, share and share alike, to the compensation provided in G.S. 97-38 for whole dependents commuted to its present value and paid in a lump sum.

If the deceased employee leaves neither whole dependents, partial dependents, nor next of kin as hereinabove defined, then no compensation shall be due or payable on account of the death of the deceased employee, except that the employer shall pay or cause to be paid the burial expenses of the deceased employee not exceeding three thousand five hundred dollars ($3,500) to the person or persons entitled thereto. Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-232, s. 4, provides in part: "Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 97-31.1, Section 1 and 3.1 of this act become effective October 1, 2001."

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-232, s. 3.1, effective October 1, 2001, substituted "three thousand five hundred dollars ($3,500)" for "two thousand dollars ($2,000)" in the last sentence of the second paragraph.

Legal Periodicals. — For discussion of the original section, see 8 N.C.L. Rev. 427 (1930).

As to the 1931 amendments, see 9 N.C.L. Rev. 406 (1931).

CASE NOTES

Function of Section. — Where the Commission has found that the deceased employee left no one who was dependent upon him, wholly or partially, this section determines the person or persons entitled to receive the death benefits provided in this act, but the amount payable to the person or persons entitled thereto is determined by § 97-38, commuted to its present, lump sum value. Smith v. Allied Exterminators, Inc., 279 N.C. 583, 184 S.E.2d 296 (1971); Stevenson v. City of Durham, 281 N.C. 300, 188 S.E.2d 281 (1972).

This Section Is Not Limited by § 97-2(12). — The doctrine of pari materia does not apply, and the provisions of this section should not be construed with the provisions of § 97-2(12). Stevenson v. City of Durham, 281 N.C. 300, 188 S.E.2d 281 (1972).

The imposition of the restrictions of dependency and age contained in § 97-2(12) upon this section would result in a narrow and technical interpretation of the act. Stevenson v. City of Durham, 281 N.C. 300, 188 S.E.2d 281 (1972).

By the 1971 amendment, which includes adult children or adult brothers and adult sisters in the definition of "next of kin" contained in this section, the General Assembly evidenced its intent that the definition of "next of kin" should not be narrowly and strictly limited by the provisions of § 97-2(12). Stevenson v. City of Durham, 281 N.C. 300, 188 S.E.2d 281 (1972).

Removal of Requirements of Dependency, Age and Marital Status from Definition of "Next of Kin". — The General Assembly has shown a clear intent to remove the requirements of dependency, age and marital status from the definition of "next of kin" who are entitled to death benefits under this section. Stevenson v. City of Durham, 281 N.C. 300, 188 S.E.2d 281 (1972).

Married Siblings over 18 Are "Next of Kin". — Brothers and sisters who are 18 years of age or older and who are married are "next of kin" as defined in this section. Stevenson v. City of Durham, 281 N.C. 300, 188 S.E.2d 281 (1972).

Adult Illegitimate Children Were Not "Next of Kin". — Adult illegitimate children, who cannot show compliance with the requirements of § 29-19 of the intestate succession act, are not "next of kin" as defined in this section. Brimley v. Logging, 93 N.C. App. 467, 378 S.E.2d 52 (1989).

Abandoning Father Loses Share of Death Benefits of Child. — Where the father wilfully abandoned the care and maintenance of the deceased during the latter's minority, under § 31A-2 the father loses all right to intestate succession in the distribution of the personal estate of the deceased child; consequently, he does not share in the death benefits for which the employer or its carrier is liable under § 97-38. Smith v. Allied Exterminators, Inc., 279 N.C. 583, 184 S.E.2d 296 (1971).

Benefits do not become part of assets of estate of decedent. Smith v. Allied Exterminators, Inc., 279 N.C. 583, 184 S.E.2d 296 (1971).

Order of Priority for Benefits among Next of Kin. — Where the deceased leaves surviving him a person or persons in two or more of these categories of relationship, the benefits are not distributed among all of such surviving "next of kin." In that event, this section directs the Commission to "the general law applicable to the distribution of the personal estate of persons dying intestate" to determine "the order of priority" among these several persons. Smith v. Allied Exterminators, Inc., 279 N.C. 583, 184 S.E.2d 296 (1971).

The Commission is directed to the general law governing intestate succession simply because, for this purpose only, the general law of intestate succession is incorporated by reference into this section. Smith v. Allied Exterminators, Inc., 279 N.C. 583, 184 S.E.2d 296 (1971).

When the legislature, in former § 28-173, provided that the proceeds of an action for wrongful death "shall be disposed of as provided in the Intestate Succession Act," and when it provided in this section that the order of priority among claimants to death benefits payable under the act "shall be governed by the general law applicable to the distribution of the personal estate of persons dying intestate," it had in mind the same law; i.e., the Intestate Succession Act as modified by Chapter 31A, entitled, "Acts Barring Property Rights." Williford v. Williford, 288 N.C. 506, 219 S.E.2d 220 (1975).

The meaning of an "order of priority" is that the person or persons in one category takes to the exclusion of the others. Smith v. Allied Exterminators, Inc., 279 N.C. 583, 184 S.E.2d 296 (1971).

Amount Payable Not Reduced Where Employee Leaves No Dependent. — Where the deceased employee leaves no dependent, whole or partial, the amount payable is not reduced from the amount which would have been payable had the deceased employee left a person wholly dependent upon him, unless there is no person surviving who falls within the term "next of kin" as defined in this section. Smith v. Allied Exterminators, Inc., 279 N.C. 583, 184 S.E.2d 296 (1971); Stevenson v. City of Durham, 281 N.C. 300, 188 S.E.2d 281 (1972).

Only Future Payments Subject to Commutation or Reduction. — By definition it is only those payments due in the future that are subject to commutation or reduction to a discounted present value. Strickland v. Carolina Classics Catfish, Inc., 127 N.C. App. 615, 492 S.E.2d 362 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 585, 502 S.E.2d 617 (1998).

For cases decided prior to the 1963 amendment, which rewrote this section, see Jones' Adm'r v. E.H. Clement Co., 201 N.C. 768, 161 S.E. 403 (1931); Hunt v. State, 201 N.C. 37, 158 S.E. 703 (1931), followed in Slade v. Willis Hosiery Mills, 209 N.C. 823, 184 S.E. 844 (1936); Hamby v. Cobb, 214 N.C. 813, 1 S.E.2d 101 (1939); *Parsons v. ## § 97-40.1. Second Injury Fund.

(a) There is hereby created a fund to be known as the "Second Injury Fund," to be held and disbursed by the Industrial Commission as hereinafter provided.

For the purpose of providing money for said fund the Industrial Commission may assess against the employer or its insurance carrier the payment of not to exceed two hundred fifty dollars ($250.00) for the loss, or loss of use, of each minor member in every case of a permanent partial disability where there is such loss, and shall assess not to exceed seven hundred fifty dollars ($750.00) for fifty percent (50%) or more loss or loss of use of each major member, defined as back, foot, leg, hand, arm, eye, or hearing.

(b) The Industrial Commission shall disburse moneys from the Second Injury Fund in unusual cases of second injuries as follows:

- (1) To pay additional compensation in cases of second injuries referred to in G.S. 97-33; provided, however, that the original injury and the subsequent injury were each at least twenty percent (20%) of the entire member; and, provided further, that such additional compensation, when added to the compensation awarded under said section, shall not exceed the amount which would have been payable for both injuries had both been sustained in the subsequent accident.
- (2) To pay additional compensation to an injured employee who has sustained permanent total disability in the manner referred to in the second paragraph of G.S. 97-35, which shall be in addition to the compensation awarded under said section; provided, however, that such additional compensation, when added to the compensation awarded under said section, shall not exceed the compensation for permanent total disability as provided for in G.S. 97-29.

- (3) To pay compensation and medical expense in cases of permanent and total disability resulting from an injury to the brain or spinal cord in the manner and to the extent hereinafter provided.

The additional compensation and treatment expenses herein provided for shall be paid out of the Second Injury Fund exclusively and only to the extent to which the assets of such fund shall permit.

(c) In addition to payments for the purposes hereinabove set forth, the Industrial Commission may, in its discretion, make payments from said fund for the following purposes and under the following conditions:

- (1) In any case in which total and permanent disability due to paralysis or loss of mental capacity has resulted from an injury to the brain or spinal cord, the Industrial Commission may, in its discretion enter an award and pay compensation and reasonable and necessary medical, nursing, hospital, institutional, equipment, and other treatment expenses from the Second Injury Fund during the life of the injured employee in cases where the injury giving rise to such disability occurred prior to July 1, 1953, and the last payment of compensation has been made subsequent to January 1, 1941. Such compensation and medical expense shall be paid only from April 4, 1947, and after the employer's liability for compensation and treatment expense has ended, and in every case in which the injury resulting in paralysis due to injury to the spinal cord occurred subsequent to April 4, 1947, and prior to July 1, 1953, the liability of the employer and his insurance carrier to pay compensation and medical expense during the life of the injured employee shall not be affected by this section.
- (2) When compensation is allowed from the fund in any case under subdivision (1) of subsection (c), the Commission may in its discretion authorize payment of medical, nursing, hospital, equipment, and other treatment expenses incurred prior to the date compensation is allowed and after the employer's liability has ended if funds are reasonably available in the Second Injury Fund for such purpose after paying claims in cases of second injuries as specified in G.S. 97-33 and 97-35. Should the fund be insufficient to pay both compensation and treatment expenses, then the said expenses may, in the discretion of the Commission, be paid first and compensation thereafter according to the reasonable availability of funds in the fund. (1953, c. 1135, s. 2; 1957, c. 1396, s. 4; 1963, c. 450, s. 3; 1977, c. 457; 1991, c. 703, s. 11; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 6.1.)

ties, see 54 N.C.L. Rev. 1123 (1976).

§ 97-41: Repealed by Session Laws 1973, c. 1308, s. 5.

§ 97-42. Deduction of payments.

Payments made by the employer to the injured employee during the period of his disability, or to his dependents, which by the terms of this Article were not due and payable when made, may, subject to the approval of the Commission be deducted from the amount to be paid as compensation. Provided, that in the case of disability such deductions shall be made by shortening the period during which compensation must be paid, and not by reducing the amount of the weekly payment. Unless otherwise provided by the plan, when payments are made to an injured employee pursuant to an employer-funded salary continuation, disability or other income replacement plan, the deduction shall be calculated from payments made by the employer in each week during which compensation was due and payable, without any carry-forward or carry-back of credit for amounts paid in excess of the compensation rate in any given week. (1929, c. 120, s. 42; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 3.7.)

CASE NOTES

The laudable purpose of this section is to encourage voluntary payments to workers while their claims to compensation are being disputed and they are receiving no wages. Evans v. AT & T Technologies, 103 N.C. App. 45, 404 S.E.2d 183, rev'd on other grounds, 332 N.C. 78, 418 S.E.2d 503 (1992).

The only authority for allowing an employer in this state any credit against workers' compensation payments due an injured employee is this section. Evans v. AT & T Technologies, 103 N.C. App. 45, 404 S.E.2d 183, rev'd on other grounds, 332 N.C. 78, 418 S.E.2d 503 (1992).

Scope of Commission's Authority. — The Industrial Commission only has the authority to disallow credit for the employer's workers' compensation payments to an employee so long as the payments did not exceed the amount determined by statute or by the Commission to compensate the employee for his injuries. Tucker v. Workable Co., 129 N.C. App. 695, 501 S.E.2d 360 (1998).

A deduction from the amount of the award to be paid is not required to be granted. The decision of whether to grant a credit is within the sound discretion of the Industrial Commission. Such decision to grant or deny the credit will not be disturbed in the absence of an abuse of discretion. Moretz v. Richards & Assocs., 74 N.C. App. 72, 327 S.E.2d 290 (1985), modified on other grounds, 316 N.C. 539, 342 S.E.2d 844 (1986).

This section permits, but does not require, the Commission to deduct from a compensation award to an injured employee any payments made by the employer before the employee's right to compensation under the terms of the Workers' Compensation Act was established. Johnson v. IBM, Inc., 97 N.C. App. 493, 389 S.E.2d 121, cert. denied, 327 N.C. 429, 395 S.E.2d 679 (1990).

Less Than 100% Credit Was Within Commission's Authority. — Where the Commission's award allowed the defendant credit for payments that they had already made through their private insurer less the plaintiff's reasonable attorney's fees calculated and based upon the amount of the entire worker's compensation award, the award was authorized by the statute since all credit given by the Commission in these circumstances is "subject to the approval" of the Industrial Commission. Church v. Baxter Travenol Labs., Inc., 104 N.C. App. 411, 409 S.E.2d 715 (1991).

The Industrial Commission acted within its discretion, pursuant to this section, in reducing defendants' credit for payments made under a disability insurance policy fully funded by defendants by 25% to provide plaintiff's counsel additional fees, although the record on appeal contained no copy of a fee award filed with the Commission as required by § 97-90(c). Cole v. Triangle Brick, 136 N.C. App. 401, 524 S.E.2d 79 (2000).

Criteria Is Whether Payments Were "Due and Payable". — The analysis of whether an employer is entitled to credit under this section is limited to a determination of whether the payments for which the employer seeks credit were "due and payable" when made. Estes v. North Carolina State Univ., 89 N.C. App. 55, 365 S.E.2d 160 (1988).

Due and Payable Benefits Are Not Deductible. — This section expressly provides that payments made by the employer which were "due and payable" when made are not deductible. Once the employer has accepted an injury as compensable, benefits are "due and payable." Moretz v. Richards & Assocs., 316 N.C. 539, 342 S.E.2d 844 (1986).

If payments are "due and payable when made" they may not be deducted from the amount to be paid employee as compensation; if they are not then due and payable the Commission has authority in its discretion to deduct them. Johnson v. IBM, Inc., 97 N.C. App. 493, 389 S.E.2d 121, cert. denied, 327 N.C. 429, 395 S.E.2d 679 (1990).

Employer Should Not Be Denied Full

Credit for Payments Under Private Benefit Plan. — An employer who has paid an employee wage-replacement benefits under a private benefit plan at the time of that employee's greatest need should not be penalized by being denied full credit for the amount paid as against the amount which was subsequently determined to be due the employee under the Workers' Compensation Act; to do so would inevitably cause employers to be less generous, and the result would be that the employee would lose his or her full salary at the very moment he or she needs it most. Foster v. Western-Electric Co., 320 N.C. 113, 357 S.E.2d 670 (1987), expressing no opinion as to whether payments made to a claimant under a plan to which the claimant contributed would be within the purview of this section.

In order for an employer to receive full credit for voluntary payments made to an injured employee, this section must be interpreted to mean that the amount of the deduction to which an employer, subject to the approval of the Commission, is entitled is the amount of the gross before-tax payments. Evans v. AT & T Technologies, Inc., 331 N.C. 78, 418 S.E.2d 503 (1992).

The ordinary meaning of the language of this section allows an employer, subject to Commission approval, to receive a full dollar-for-dollar credit for all such payments. Evans v. AT & T Technologies, Inc., 331 N.C. 78, 418 S.E.2d 503 (1992).

The defendant employer was entitled to a credit for disability benefits where the disability compensation plan was entirely funded by the employer and no evidence indicated that the employee contributed to it. Peagler v. Tyson Foods, Inc., 138 N.C. App. 593V, 532 S.E.2d 207 (2000).

Credits for Payments Sent to Wrong Party. — Employer, who failed to send every fourth award payment to injured employee's counsel, as ordered by the North Carolina Industrial Commission, was not entitled to receive credit for payments sent instead to the injured employee. Thomas v. B.F. Goodrich, 144 N.C. App. 312, 550 S.E.2d 193 (2001).

Payments made by employer's medical disability plan before it was determined that employee, who had previously received compensation for permanent partial disability, had become totally disabled, were not due and payable under the Workers' Compensation Act "when made" and their deduction from the compensation awarded the employee for total permanent disability was authorized by this section. Johnson v. IBM, Inc., 97 N.C. App. 493, 389 S.E.2d 121, cert. denied, 327 N.C. 429, 395 S.E.2d 679 (1990).

An employer's entitlement to a credit under this section is governed in the first instance by the determination of whether the payments for which the employer seeks credit were due and payable when made. Estes v. North Carolina State Univ., 102 N.C. App. 52, 401 S.E.2d 384 (1991).

Where defendant had not accepted claimant's injury as compensable under workers' compensation at the time the payments were made, nor had there been a determination of compensability by the Industrial Commission, the employer should be awarded a credit for these payments under this section. Lowe v. BE & K Constr. Co., 121 N.C. App. 570, 468 S.E.2d 396 (1996).

Employer was not entitled to use accumulated sick and vacation leave to offset its obligations as determined by the Industrial Commission. Under §§ 97-6 and -7, employers, including the State, are prohibited from providing benefits in lieu of paying workers' compensation. Estes v. North Carolina State Univ., 102 N.C. App. 52, 401 S.E.2d 384 (1991).

Where injured employees had the option of taking accumulated sick and vacation leave, or any portion of either, and then go on workers' compensation leave and begin drawing workers' compensation, this option did not operate as a wage-replacement program tantamount to workers' compensation. The Industrial Commission erred in concluding as a matter of law that the payments were not due and payable under the Workers' Compensation Act when paid for purposes of a setoff or credit pursuant to this section. Estes v. North Carolina State Univ., 102 N.C. App. 52, 401 S.E.2d 384 (1991).

Defendants Held Not Entitled to Deduction. — Where temporary total disability payments for stress-induced depression resulting from injury were to begin approximately six months after the final payment on the scheduled award for permanent partial disability, the defendants would not be given credit on award for temporary total disability for compensation previously awarded under § 97-31(15). Hill v. Hanes Corp., 79 N.C. App. 67, 339 S.E.2d 1 (1986), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

Where employer and carrier accepted plaintiff's injury as compensable, and initiated the payment of benefits, those payments were due and payable and were not deductible under the provisions of this section, so long as the payments did not exceed the amount determined by statute or by the Commission to compensate plaintiff for his injuries. Moretz v. Richards & Assocs., 316 N.C. 539, 342 S.E.2d 844 (1986).

Defendant insurer was not entitled to a credit under this section, where the deputy commissioner's opinion required another defendant insurer to pay "at least fifty percent of the compensation due" and rendered such payment "due and payable" before the $3,500.00 was paid to plaintiff. Royce v. Rushco Food Stores, Inc., 139 N.C. App. 322, 533 S.E.2d 284 (2000). “Fringe Benefit” Rationale No Longer Appropriate. — The “fringe benefit” rationale followed by the court in Ashe v. Barnes, 255 N.C. 310, 121 S.E.2d 549 (1961), in determining the issue of credit under this section is no longer the appropriate basis for decision in view of Foster v. Western-Electric Co., 320 N.C. 113, 357 S.E.2d 670 (1987). Estes v. North Carolina State Univ., 89 N.C. App. 55, 365 S.E.2d 160 (1988).

Credit Held “Week-by-Week.” — In paying plaintiff employee workers’ compensation awarded, the credit due to the defendant employer for the payments it made to plaintiff while she was unable to work and her right to workers’ compensation was being contested was a “week-by-week” credit, not “dollar-for-dollar.” Evans v. AT & T Technologies, 103 N.C. App. 45, 404 S.E.2d 183, rev’d, 332 N.C. 78, 418 S.E.2d 503 (1992).

Offsetting Sickness and Disability Plan Payments Against Compensation Authorized. — Since the wage payments under employee Sickness and Disability Plan belonged to claimant, using them to offset employer’s obligations to pay her compensation for other weeks is not authorized by § 97-42 and would be confiscatory if it was. But though the wage payments were hers, offsetting them against compensation awarded her for the same weeks is authorized for two reasons: First, no compensation is due claimant for the weeks that her wages were paid because disability under the Workers’ Compensation Act is based upon decreased earnings, and she had sustained no wage loss; and second, the claimant cannot collect workers’ compensation for the weeks that her wages were paid because of the policy against employees receiving duplicating payments at the employers’ expense. Evans v. AT & T Technologies, 103 N.C. App. 45, 404 S.E.2d 183, rev’d, 332 N.C. 78, 418 S.E.2d 503 (1992).

Applied in Loflin v. Loflin, 13 N.C. App. 574, 186 S.E.2d 660 (1972); Davis v. Weyerhaeuser Co., 96 N.C. App. 584, 386 S.E.2d 740 (1989).

§ 97-42.1. Credit for unemployment benefits.

If an injured employee has received unemployment benefits under the Employment Security Law for any week with respect to which he is entitled to workers’ compensation benefits for temporary total or permanent and total disability, the employment benefits paid for such weeks may be deducted from the award to be paid as compensation. If an injured employee has received unemployment benefits for any week with respect to which he is entitled to workers’ compensation benefits for partial disability as provided in G.S. 97-30, the unemployment benefits paid for such weeks may be deducted from the award to be paid only to the extent that the sum of the unemployment benefits and workers’ compensation payable for such week exceeds two-thirds of the injured employee’s average weekly wages as determined by the Commission in accordance with G.S. 97-2(5). Benefits payable under G.S. 97-31 for permanent partial disability or other permanent injury shall not be subject to reduction because of the receipt of unemployment benefits. (1985, c. 616, s. 1.)

§ 97-43. Commission may prescribe monthly or quarterly payments.

The Industrial Commission, upon application of either party, may, in its discretion, having regard to the welfare of the employee and the convenience of the employer, authorize compensation to be paid monthly or quarterly instead of weekly. (1929, c. 120, s. 43.)

§ 97-44. Lump sums.

Whenever any weekly payment has been continued for not less than six weeks, the liability therefor may, in unusual cases, where the Industrial Commission deems it to be to the best interest of the employee or his dependents, or where it will prevent undue hardships on the employer or his insurance carrier, without prejudicing the interests of the employee or his dependents, be redeemed, in whole or in part, by the payment by the employer of a lump sum which shall be fixed by the Commission, but in no case to exceed the uncommuted value of the future installments which may be due under this Article. The Commission, however, in its discretion, may at any time in the case of a minor who has received permanently disabling injuries either partial or total provide that he be compensated, in whole or in part, by the payment of a lump sum, the amount of which shall be fixed by the Commission, but in no case to exceed the uncommuted value of the future installments which may be due under this Article. (1929, c. 120, s. 44; 1963, c. 450, s. 4; 1975, c. 255.)

Legal Periodicals. — For discussion of this section, see 8 N.C.L. Rev. 427 (1930).

CASE NOTES

Lump Sum Payable Only in Unusual Cases. — The general statutory scheme for periodic payment of income benefits can be changed to a lump sum payment only in unusual cases and when the commissioner deems it to be in the best interest of the employee or his dependents. Harris v. Lee Paving Co., 47 N.C. App. 348, 267 S.E.2d 381, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 88, 273 S.E.2d 297 (1980).

The maximum amount of the lump sum under this section is not its commuted value or its commutable value but rather its uncommuted value. Harris v. Lee Paving Co., 47 N.C. App. 348, 267 S.E.2d 381, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 88, 273 S.E.2d 297 (1980).

§ 97-45. Reducing to judgment outstanding liability of insurance carriers withdrawing from State.

Upon the withdrawal of any insurance carrier from doing business in the State that has any outstanding liability under the Workers' Compensation Act, the Insurance Commissioner shall immediately notify the North Carolina Industrial Commission, and thereupon the said North Carolina Industrial Commission shall issue an award against said insurance carrier and commute the installments due the injured employee or employees, and immediately have said award docketed in the superior court of the county in which the claimant resides, and the said North Carolina Industrial Commission shall then cause suit to be brought on said judgment in the state of the residence of any such insurance carrier, and the proceeds from said judgment after deducting the cost, if any, of the proceeding, shall be turned over to the injured employee, or employees, taking from such employee, or employees, the proper receipt in satisfaction of his claim. (1933, c. 474; 1979, c. 714, s. 2.)

§ 97-46. Lump sum payments to trustee; receipt to discharge employer.

Whenever the Industrial Commission deems it expedient any lump sum, subject to the provisions of G.S. 97-44, shall be paid by the employer to some suitable person or corporation appointed by the superior court in the county wherein the accident occurred, as trustee, to administer the same for the benefit of the person entitled thereto, in the manner provided by the Commission. The receipt of such trustee for the amount as paid shall discharge the employer or anyone else who is liable therefor. (1929, c. 120, s. 45.)

§ 97-47. Change of condition; modification of award.

Upon its own motion or upon the application of any party in interest on the grounds of a change in condition, the Industrial Commission may review any award, and on such review may make an award ending, diminishing, or increasing the compensation previously awarded, subject to the maximum or minimum provided in this Article, and shall immediately send to the parties a copy of the award. No such review shall affect such award as regards any moneys paid but no such review shall be made after two years from the date of the last payment of compensation pursuant to an award under this Article, except that in cases in which only medical or other treatment bills are paid, no such review shall be made after 12 months from the date of the last payment of bills for medical or other treatment, paid pursuant to this Article. (1929, c. 120, s. 46; 1931, c. 274, s. 6; 1947, c. 823; 1973, c. 1060, s. 2.)

CASE NOTES

- I. In General.
- II. Change of Condition.
- III. Time Limitations.

I. IN GENERAL.

This section cannot apply unless there has been a previous award of the Commission. Biddix v. Rex Mills, Inc., 237 N.C. 660, 75 S.E.2d 777 (1953).

The Industrial Commission's authority under this statute is limited to review of prior awards, and the statute is inapplicable in instances where there has been no previous final award. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971). See also, Pratt v. Central Upholstery Co., 252 N.C. 716, 115 S.E.2d 27 (1960).

This section has no application except where it is made to appear that a previous award was made by the Industrial Commission. Where the record on appeal to the superior court from an award of the Industrial Commission does not disclose a previous award made to claimant, defendant's contention that the award appealed from cannot be sustained in the absence of a finding of change of condition is untenable. Penland v. Bird Coal Co., 246 N.C. 26, 97 S.E.2d 432 (1957).

The Industrial Commission's authority under this section is limited to the review of prior awards; thus the statute is inapplicable unless there has been a previous final award. Weaver v. Swedish Imports Maintenance, Inc., 319 N.C.

243, 354 S.E.2d 477 (1987).

The "award" referred to in this section, which the Industrial Commission may not review after two years from the date of the last payment of compensation thereunder, is a final award, and this section does not apply to an interlocutory award. Beard v. Blumenthal Jewish Home, 87 N.C. App. 58, 359 S.E.2d 261 (1987), cert. denied, 321 N.C. 471, 364 S.E.2d 918 (1988).

This section establishes conditions under which otherwise final disability evaluations can be reviewed and revised when changes occur; it does not establish either a procedure or a limitations period for processing unresolved claims for permanent disability. Beard v. Blumenthal Jewish Home, 87 N.C. App. 58, 359 S.E.2d 261 (1987), cert. denied, 321 N.C. 471, 364 S.E.2d 918 (1988).

And it does not apply if the Commission has no jurisdiction of the claim. Hart v. Thomasville Motors, Inc., 244 N.C. 84, 92 S.E.2d 673 (1956).

Continuing Jurisdiction. — It was the purpose of the General Assembly that the Industrial Commission should have a continuing jurisdiction of all proceedings begun before the Commission for compensation in accordance with its terms. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

Implicit in the authority accorded the Commission to order additional compensation under this section and further medical treatment is the requirement that the supplemental compensation and future treatment be directly related to the original compensable injury. Peeler v. Piedmont Elastic, Inc., 132 N.C. App. 713, 514 S.E.2d 108 (1999).

Proceeding Is Pending Until All Disabilities Are Considered. — Until all of an injured employee's compensable injuries and disabilities have been considered and adjudicated by the Commission, the proceeding pends for the purpose of evaluation, absent laches or some statutory time limitation. Hall v. Thomason Chevrolet, Inc., 263 N.C. 569, 139 S.E.2d 857 (1965).

Absent Previous Award, Jurisdiction Is Retained by Commission. — In cases where there has been no previous final award, jurisdiction is retained by and remains in the Industrial Commission pending a termination of the case by final award, and no statute runs against a litigant while his case is pending in court. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

This section is inapplicable in cases in which there has been no previous final award. In such cases, jurisdiction remains in the Commission pending termination of the case by a final award. Hill v. Hanes Corp., 79 N.C. App. 67, 339 S.E.2d 1 (1986), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

Section Not Applicable to Claims for Medical Expenses. — This section does not apply to an employee's right to claim medical payments under the Workers' Compensation Act. Hylar v. GTE Prods. Co., 333 N.C. 258, 425 S.E.2d 698 (1993).

Nothing in the language of § 97-25 implies that the "change of condition" requirement of this section applies to any request by an employee for the payment of his medical expenses by his employer. Hylar v. GTE Prods. Co., 333 N.C. 258, 425 S.E.2d 698 (1993).

The Commission must concern itself with the claimant's level of disability as it exists prior to and at the time of hearing. If a change occurs in the future rendering plaintiff capable of earning some wages, the statute affords defendants a remedy. Carothers v. Ti-Caro, 83 N.C. App. 301, 350 S.E.2d 95 (1986).

The proper procedure to end, diminish or increase a compensation award previously issued is a motion to the Industrial Commission under this section. Hill v. Hanes Corp., 79 N.C. App. 67, 339 S.E.2d 1 (1986), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

Where plaintiff's initial compensation award for temporary total disabilities was determined by agreement prior to the time plaintiff became fully aware of the extent of his injuries, and plaintiff's initial claim was closed upon the filing of Form 28B, the proper procedure for presenting plaintiff's claim for his alleged permanent disabilities was through the statutorily prescribed procedure for compensation for substantial change of condition. Chisholm v. Diamond Condominium Constr. Co., 83 N.C. App. 14, 348 S.E.2d 596 (1986), cert. denied, 319 N.C. 103, 353 S.E.2d 106 (1987).

Where the Industrial Commission established an administrative procedure which allowed and condoned the termination of compensation by an employer and the employer's insurance carrier by the mere filing of an Industrial Commission created form (Form 24) notifying the Commission and the employee that compensation was being terminated, the Commission exceeded its authority. Martin v. Piedmont Asphalt & Paving Co., 113 N.C. App. 121, 437 S.E.2d 696 (1993).

Power of Commission to Grant Rehearing. — The Industrial Commission has the power, in a proper case, and in accordance with its rules and regulations, to grant a rehearing of a proceeding pending before it, and in which it has made an award, on the ground of newly discovered evidence. Owens v. Standard Mineral Co., 10 N.C. App. 84, 177 S.E.2d 775 (1970), cert. denied, 277 N.C. 726, 178 S.E.2d 831 (1971).

The Effect of Litigation of Earning Capacity on Review of Form 26 Agreement.

— Where plaintiff's earning capacity was actually litigated and necessary to the outcome of his hearing under this section, the Industrial Commission was bound by that finding in determining if a Form 26 agreement was fair and just; therefore, its finding that the agreement was "improvidently approved" on the grounds that plaintiff had no earning capacity, thus qualifying him for benefits under § 97-29, would be reversed. Lewis v. Craven Reg'l Med. Ctr., 134 N.C. App. 438, 518 S.E.2d 1 (1999).

The fact that evidence claimed as the basis of a motion to open a compensation award was not newly discovered and might have been offered at the original hearing in the exercise of due diligence and that counsel, through inadvertence, failed to present a ground upon which compensation might have been allowed did not prevent the Industrial Commission from granting such a motion. Owens v. Standard Mineral Co., 10 N.C. App. 84, 177 S.E.2d 775 (1970), cert. denied, 277 N.C. 726, 178 S.E.2d 831 (1971).

The Commission has the power to order a rehearing on the basis of newly discovered evidence. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

Reopening Award Where Change Would Necessitate Award in Different Category.

— The fact that the change necessitates making an award in an entirely different category, as when an original award was one of temporary benefits for time loss and the award on reopening would be for total permanent disability, is no obstacle to reopening. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

Discretion of Commission over Motion for Rehearing. — Ordinarily, a motion for further hearing on the grounds of introducing additional or newly discovered evidence rests in the sound discretion of the Industrial Commission, but this principle is not applicable where the Commission declines to consider such a motion under a misapprehension of applicable principles of law. Owens v. Standard Mineral Co., 10 N.C. App. 84, 177 S.E.2d 775 (1970), cert. denied, 277 N.C. 726, 178 S.E.2d 831 (1971).

Improper Denial of Rehearing. — An employee's application for a rehearing on the ground that he has additional evidence to establish his claim of disability by silicosis is improperly dismissed by the Industrial Commission, where (1) the employee's application is timely made and (2) the Commission acted under a misapprehension of the law in denying the application. Owens v. Standard Mineral Co., 10 N.C. App. 84, 177 S.E.2d 775 (1970), cert. denied, 277 N.C. 726, 178 S.E.2d 831 (1971).

Power to Set Aside Judgment. — The Industrial Commission has inherent power analogous to that conferred on courts by § 1A-1, Rule 60(b)(6), in the exercise of supervision over its own judgments to set aside a former judgment when the paramount interest in achieving a just and proper determination of a workers' compensation claim requires it. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

Because the power to set aside a former judgment is vital to the proper functioning of the judiciary, the Legislature impliedly vested such power in the Commission in conjunction with the judicial power which the Legislature granted it to administer the Workers' Compensation Act. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

The Industrial Commission possesses such judicial power as is necessary to administer the Workers' Compensation Act. The Commission's judicial power includes the power to set aside a former judgment on the grounds of mutual mistake, misrepresentation, or fraud. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

As to application seeking modification of settlement agreement, see Morgan v. Norwood, 211 N.C. 600, 191 S.E. 345 (1937).

Agreement to pay compensation, when approved by the Commission, is the equivalent of an award. White v. Shoup Boat Corp., 261 N.C. 495, 135 S.E.2d 216 (1964); Gantt v. Hickory Motor Sales, Inc., 8 N.C. App. 559, 174

S.E.2d 624 (1970); Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 10 N.C. App. 486, 179 S.E.2d 130, rev'd on other grounds, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

A validly executed Industrial Commission Form 21 agreement ("Agreement for Compensation for Disability") constitutes an "award" under the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act. Apple v. Guilford County, 84 N.C. App. 679, 353 S.E.2d 641, rev'd on other grounds, 321 N.C. 98, 361 S.E.2d 588 (1987).

A closing receipt purports to be a final settlement and indicates that no further compensation will be paid unless a request for a hearing for a change of condition is timely made. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

Award Retaining Jurisdiction in Commission for Future Adjustments. — Claimant, following a back injury, returned to the same employer and was paid the same wages as before his injury although he was doing lighter work. The award of the Commission found as a fact that claimant was being paid wages "in lieu of compensation" and retained jurisdiction for 300 weeks from the date of injury so that future adjustments might be made in compensation payable should employee suffer any wage loss due to his injury within that period. The Supreme Court affirmed this action, saying that the Commission did not exceed its authority in thus retaining jurisdiction to protect the employee against imposition by the employer. Branham v. Denny Roll & Panel Co., 223 N.C. 233, 25 S.E.2d 865 (1943).

There is nothing in the act that contemplates or authorizes an anticipatory finding by the Commission that a physical impairment may develop into a compensable disability. Neither does the act vest in the Commission the power to retain jurisdiction of a claim, after compensation has been awarded, merely because some physical impairment suffered by the claimant may, at some time in the future, cause a loss of wages. The Commission is concerned with conditions existing prior to and at the time of the hearing. If such conditions change in the future, to the detriment of the claimant, this section affords the claimant a remedy and fixes the time within which he must seek it. Dail v. Kellex Corp., 233 N.C. 446, 64 S.E.2d 438 (1951).

Claimant suffered multiple injuries in a wreck. After hearing, the Commission found as a fact that he had suffered 20 percent permanent partial disability. However, it also found that he was suffering no wage loss as a result of injury at the time of hearing. It did not appear that he was being paid wages in lieu of compensation. On the further finding that the physical impairment might cause loss of wages in the future, the Commission attempted to retain jurisdiction during 300 weeks from the date of injury. This was held to be error by the Supreme Court. Dail v. Kellex Corp., 233 N.C. 446, 64 S.E.2d 438 (1951).

As to the power of the Commission to retain jurisdiction during 300 weeks from the date of injury, see also note to § 97-30.

A change of theory in the application for review in the superior court from that pursued before the hearing commissioner and the full commission is not permissible. McGinnis v. Old Fort Finishing Plant, 253 N.C. 493, 117 S.E.2d 490 (1960).

Failure to Appeal from Adverse Finding Bars Claim for Change of Condition. — A plaintiff who failed to appeal from the Industrial Commission's finding that there was no causal relation between the immobility in his right leg and an accident arising out of his employment was barred from asserting a subsequent claim for change of condition with respect to the right leg. West v. J.P. Stevens Co., 12 N.C. App. 456, 183 S.E.2d 876 (1971).

Avenue of Review Where Appeal Not Taken. — Where the plaintiff did not perfect an appeal from the Industrial Commission's order denying her claim for workers' compensation based upon an accident which arose out of and in the course of her employment, she was not entitled to a hearing de novo, and the only avenue of review open to her was an application for review based on a change of condition pursuant to the provisions of this section. Smith v. Carolina Footware, Inc., 50 N.C. App. 460, 274 S.E.2d 386 (1981).

Review by Court of Appeals. — Conclusions of law, including whether there has been a change of condition pursuant to this section, are reviewable de novo by the Court of Appeals. Grantham v. R.G. Barry Corp., 127 N.C. App. 529, 491 S.E.2d 678 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 671, 500 S.E.2d 86 (1998).

Applied in Harris v. Asheville Contracting Co., 240 N.C. 715, 83 S.E.2d 802 (1954); Campbell v. Superior Yarn Mills, Inc., 265 N.C. 384, 144 S.E.2d 149 (1965); Anderson v. Lincoln Constr. Co., 265 N.C. 431, 144 S.E.2d 272 (1965); Hedgecock v. Frye, 1 N.C. App. 369, 161 S.E.2d 647 (1968); Tucker v. FCX, Inc., 36 N.C. App. 438, 245 S.E.2d 77 (1978); *McLean v. ## II. CHANGE OF CONDITION.

The language of this section is clear. White v. Shoup Boat Corp., 261 N.C. 495, 135 S.E.2d 216 (1964).

And Provides Only Basis for Altering Final Award. — There is no basis for altering a final award of compensation, other than that provided by this section. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 10 N.C. App. 486, 179 S.E.2d 130, rev'd on other grounds, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

Commission May Alter Compensation Only upon a "Change in Condition". — The Industrial Commission is given authority to review an award and to end, diminish or increase the compensation previously awarded only when there has been a "change in condition" of the claimant, as provided in this section. Murray v. Nebel Knitting Co., 214 N.C. 437, 199 S.E. 609 (1938).

When an award had been entered for total disability for a certain length of time, and for partial disability thereafter for a total of 30 weeks under § 97-30, the Industrial Commission could not, upon a review of the award on claimant's application prior to the payment of the last installment of the award, increase the award of compensation to that allowed for total disability under § 97-29, upon its finding that claimant was unable to earn any appreciable sum by his labor, when the Commission also found that at the time of the review of the award claimant's condition was unchanged and that he was at that time only 50 percent disabled. Murray v. Nebel Knitting Co., 214 N.C. 437, 199 S.E. 609 (1938).

The Commission was not required to give weight to potentially damaging evidence elicited by the cross-examination of plaintiff's doctor regarding the etiology of fibromyalgia, nor did it fail to give proper weight to the opinion testimony of another doctor who indicated that plaintiff's current complaints were "not causally related to [her] prior compensable injury." Young v. Hickory Bus. Furn., 137 N.C. App. 51, 527 S.E.2d 344 (2000).

A change of condition under this section is a substantial change in physical capacity to earn wages, occurring after a final award of compensation, different from that existing when the award was made. Bailey v. Sears Roebuck & Co., 131 N.C. App. 649, 508 S.E.2d 831 (1998).

A change in physical capacity to earn wages alone is sufficient to support an award of additional compensation for change of condition. Dinkins v. Federal Paper Bd. Co., 120 N.C. App. 192, 461 S.E.2d 909 (1995).

The primary factor in determining if a change of condition has occurred is whether the employee's physical capacity to earn wages has been affected. Grantham v. R.G. Barry Corp., 127 N.C. App. 529, 491 S.E.2d 678 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 671, 500 S.E.2d 86 (1998).

A change in condition can consist of either a change in the claimant's physical condition that impacts his earning capacity, a change in the claimant's earning capacity even though claimant's physical condition remains unchanged, or a change in the degree of disability even though claimant's physical condition remains unchanged. Blair v. American Television & Communications Corp., 124 N.C. App. 420, 477 S.E.2d 190 (1996).

No "Change of Condition" Requirement for Claims for Medical Expenses. — The complete absence of an express or implied reference in § 97-25 to any "change of condition" requirement, in addition to that statute's clear language permitting the Industrial Commission to review medical treatment an employee is receiving and order further treatment at any time if an employee requests such a review, indicated that the legislature did not intend for an injured employee to make any showing of a change in condition before his employer would be required to pay for further medical services or treatment needed as a result of his compensable injury. Hyler v. GTE Prods. Co., 333 N.C. 258, 425 S.E.2d 698 (1993).

It was not the intent of the legislature to require an injured employee to make any showing of a change in condition before his employer would be required to pay further medical services or treatment needed as a result of his compensable injury. Poe v. Raleigh/Durham Airport Auth., 121 N.C. App. 117, 464 S.E.2d 689 (1995).

Compensation Does Not Include Medical Expenses. — Because "compensation" does not include the payment of medical expenses, this provision does not affect the Commission's grant or denial of an employee's request for payments of those expenses. The Commission's authority for requiring an employer to pay the medical expenses of an injured employee is established by the terms of § 97-25. Hyler v. GTE Prods. Co., 333 N.C. 258, 425 S.E.2d 698 (1993).

"Change of condition" refers to a substantial change, after a final award of compensation, of the injured employee's physical capacity to earn and, in some cases, of his earnings. Swaney v. George Newton Constr. Co., 5 N.C. App. 520, 169 S.E.2d 90 (1969); Gaddy v. Kern, 32 N.C. App. 671, 233 S.E.2d 609 (1977); Edwards v. Smith & Sons, 49 N.C. App. 191, 270 S.E.2d 569 (1980), cert. denied, 301 N.C. 720, 274 S.E.2d 228 (1981); Haponski v. Constructor's Inc., 87 N.C. App. 95, 360 S.E.2d 109 (1987).

A change of condition means an actual change and not a mere change of opinion with respect to a preexisting condition. West v. J.P. Stevens Co., 12 N.C. App. 456, 183 S.E.2d 876 (1971); Gaddy v. Kern, 32 N.C. App. 671, 233 S.E.2d 609 (1977); Edwards v. Smith & Sons, 49 N.C. App. 191, 270 S.E.2d 569 (1980), cert. denied, 301 N.C. 720, 274 S.E.2d 228 (1981).

Change in Physical Capacity to Earn Wages Alone. — Where plaintiff was unable to find another job, due to his severe physical restrictions, coupled with his vocational and educational limits, because the record was rife with testimony that plaintiff suffered a compensable work-related injury which caused damage to the lumbar region of plaintiff's back, and Industrial Commission was able to determine that subsequent accident caused a "temporary flare-up" of plaintiff's pre-existing injury, it followed that plaintiff's change in wage earning capacity must have been a result of that same pre-existing injury; the Commission's findings and conclusions to the contrary were unsupported by the evidence and were therefore reversed. Poe v. Raleigh/Durham Airport Auth., 121 N.C. App. 117, 464 S.E.2d 689 (1995).

Change of condition refers to conditions different from those existent when the award was made, and a continued incapacity of the same kind and character and for the same injury is not a change of condition; the change must be actual, and not a mere change of opinion with respect to the pre-existing condition. Haponski

v. Constructor's Inc., 87 N.C. App. 95, 360 S.E.2d 109 (1987).

In determining if a change of condition has occurred, entitling an employee to additional compensation under this section, the primary factor is a change in condition affecting the employee's physical capacity to earn wages. Lucas v. Bunn Mfg. Co., 90 N.C. App. 401, 368 S.E.2d 386 (1988).

Change of Physician's Opinion. — A mere change of doctor's opinion with respect to claimant's preexisting condition does not constitute a change of condition required by this section. Shuler v. Talon Div. of Textron, 30 N.C. App. 570, 227 S.E.2d 627 (1976), overruled on other grounds, Hyler v. GTE Prods. Co., 333 N.C. 258, 425 S.E.2d 698 (1993).

Physician's change of opinion with respect to the degree of permanent partial disability is not evidence of a change in condition within the meaning of this section if it is based solely on his reconsidering the contents of the patient's medical record as of the date of his first opinion. If, however, the physician examines his patient subsequent to the date of his first opinion and in the interim the patient's physical condition has deteriorated, then a change of opinion with respect to the degree of permanent partial disability is evidence of a change in condition for purposes of this section. McLean v. Roadway Express, Inc., 307 N.C. 99, 296 S.E.2d 456 (1982).

Change of condition not shown where the only evidence that plaintiff presented to show a change of condition was the change of one doctor's opinion. Allen v. Roberts Elec. Contractors, 143 N.C. App. 55, 546 S.E.2d 133 (2001).

Difference of Opinion. — Plaintiff did not experience a change of condition where one physician gave him a 15% disability rating, which he accepted, and a second physician gave him a 30% disability rating, where the second physician commented that the discrepancy was a difference of opinion. Crump v. Independence Nissan, 112 N.C. App. 587, 436 S.E.2d 589 (1993).

Proof Not Limited to Testimony of Original Physician. — Applicant need not limit proof of a change in condition to the testimony of a physician who had examined the plaintiff before and after the change in condition; such physician may be unavailable for testifying during a later hearing for greater benefits, and furthermore, the Commission, not the testifying physician, makes the crucial comparison of conditions. Styron v. Duke Univ. Hosp., 96 N.C. App. 356, 385 S.E.2d 519 (1989).

New Findings on Additional Evidence. — Under this section, the Commission is not bound by prior orders when considering an alleged change of condition; rather, the Commission may make new findings based on the additional evidence presented. Grantham v.

R.G. Barry Corp., 127 N.C. App. 529, 491 S.E.2d 678 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 671, 500 S.E.2d 86 (1998).

A change in the degree of permanent disability is a change in condition. West v. J.P. Stevens Co., 12 N.C. App. 456, 183 S.E.2d 876 (1971); McLean v. Roadway Express, Inc., 307 N.C. 99, 296 S.E.2d 456 (1982).

Change from Partial to Total Disability. — When the Commission finds on one occasion that a person is permanently partially disabled and on a later occasion finds, based on additional evidence, that the person is totally disabled, this supports a finding of a change in condition. Harmon v. Public Serv. of N.C., Inc., 81 N.C. App. 482, 344 S.E.2d 285, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

Changes of condition occurring during the healing period and prior to the time of maximum recovery and the permanent disability, if any, found to exist at the end of the period of healing are not changes of condition within the meaning of this section. Pratt v. Central Upholstery Co., 252 N.C. 716, 115 S.E.2d 27 (1960).

Change of Condition Attributed to Pre-existing Condition. — Where a North Carolina Industrial Commission finding that plaintiff's worsening lumbar spine condition was directly related to his original back condition and not caused by a work related accident was supported by competent evidence, the Commission did not err in denying plaintiff's claim for additional compensation and medical treatment. Pittman v. Thomas & Howard, 122 N.C. App. 124, 468 S.E.2d 283 (1996).

The claimant failed to prove a change in condition, where the medical evidence supported the Industrial Commission's finding that her tightened Achilles tendon was caused by the progressive nature of her pre-existing cerebral palsy, rather than an aggravation of a work-related injury. Bailey v. Sears Roebuck & Co., 131 N.C. App. 649, 508 S.E.2d 831 (1998).

Increase in Earning Power as Change of Condition. — Claimant had been awarded compensation for general partial disability and thereafter had obtained a job paying practically as much as he made at the time of the accident. It was held that the claimant had undergone a change of condition, as the basis of disability under the act is loss of earning power. Smith v. Swift & Co., 212 N.C. 608, 194 S.E. 106 (1937).

Awareness of Continuing Medical Attention Not Inconsistent with Change of Condition. — A claim for permanent partial disability may involve a "change in condition" within the purview of this section, notwithstanding the fact that the Industrial Commission and the defendants were aware, at the time when the closing receipt was signed, that plaintiff was still undergoing treatment for his injury, because none of the parties realized that plaintiff's injury might result in permanent disability. Mere awareness of continuing medical attention is not inconsistent with the eventual prospect of complete recovery. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 10 N.C. App. 486, 179 S.E.2d 130, rev'd on other grounds, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

Where the harmful consequences of an injury are initially unknown when the amount of compensation to be paid is determined by agreement, but subsequently develops, the amount of compensation to which the employee is entitled can be redetermined within the statutory period for reopening. This is a "change in condition" as the term is used in this section. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971); Hand ex rel. Hand v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 85 N.C. App. 372, 355 S.E.2d 141, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 792, 361 S.E.2d 76 (1987).

Inability to Work Not a Change of Condition Where Claimant Has Same Disability. — Where plaintiff had been receiving compensation for over 275 weeks for permanent partial disability and then offered, as a basis for claiming total disability, proof that he had not been able to do any work, it was held that there had been no change of condition, since the claimant had the same disability he had at the time of his first rating. Murray v. Nebel Knitting Co., 214 N.C. 437, 199 S.E. 609 (1938).

Depression Caused by Compensated Injury. — Where the claimant's doctor testified that the claimant's depression was caused by his compensated injury three years earlier and that this depression adversely affected his capacity to work, the claimant established a significant change of condition under this section, and she was entitled to compensation for total incapacity under § 97-29. Haponski v. Constructor's Inc., 87 N.C. App. 95, 360 S.E.2d 109 (1987).

Evidence Insufficient to Show Depression Caused a Change in Circumstances. — While two doctors testified that plaintiff was depressed because of his injury, there was no evidence that this depression prevented plaintiff from working, which is essential in order to show a change of condition under this section. Jones v. Candler Mobile Village, 118 N.C. App. 719, 457 S.E.2d 315 (1995).

As to serious bodily disfigurement, see Tucker v. Lowdermilk, 233 N.C. 185, 63 S.E.2d 109 (1951).

Burden of Proof. — The burden is on the party seeking the modification to prove the existence of the new condition and that it is causally related to the injury that is the basis of the award the party seeks to modify. Blair v. American Television & Communications Corp., 124 N.C. App. 420, 477 S.E.2d 190 (1996).

The burden is on the party seeking the modification to prove the existence of the new condition and that it is causally related to the injury that is the basis of the award the party seeks to modify; an employee satisfies this burden by producing medical evidence showing he is physically or mentally, as a consequence of the work related injury, incapable of work in any employment. Grantham v. R.G. Barry Corp., 127 N.C. App. 529, 491 S.E.2d 678 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 671, 500 S.E.2d 86 (1998).

Heart Attacks. — Where claimant's condition changed from temporary total disability following a heart attack to total and permanent disability following a third heart attack, this was a change in condition within the meaning of this section. Weaver v. Swedish Imports Maintenance, Inc., 319 N.C. 243, 354 S.E.2d 477 (1987).

Spread of Blood Poisoning. — After payments for a time under an approved agreement, claimant applied on January 6, 1936, for compensation payable in a lump sum. This was granted, and paid on February 24, 1936. On January 5, 1937, he applied for a reopening of the case on the ground that blood poisoning had spread and created a change of condition and that he was then suffering from Buerger's disease due to the injury. The hearing commissioner's finding that there had been a change of condition and that the application was in time was affirmed. Knight v. Ford Body Co., 214 N.C. 7, 197 S.E. 563 (1938).

Formation of Scar Tissue Not Change in Condition. — Where plaintiff's condition remained essentially unchanged since his award, and the intensifying of plaintiff's physical problems was due to the scar tissue that infiltrated the area where the operation had been done, plaintiff's continued incapacity was therefore of the same kind and character as his incapacity at the time of the award, and was not a change of condition within the meaning of this section. Sawyer v. Ferebee & Son, 78 N.C. App. 212, 336 S.E.2d 643 (1985), cert. denied, 315 N.C. 590, 341 S.E.2d 29 (1986).

Question of Fact and Question of Law. — Whether there has been a change of condition is a question of fact; whether the facts found amount to a change of condition is a question of law. West v. J.P. Stevens Co., 12 N.C. App. 456, 183 S.E.2d 876 (1971).

Conclusive Effect of Commissioner's Finding as to Change of Condition. — Where there is ample evidence to support a finding of a change in claimant's condition as contemplated by this section, and evidence which would support a contrary finding, the finding of the Industrial Commission from the conflicting evidence is conclusive. Knight v. Ford Body Co., 214 N.C. 7, 197 S.E. 563 (1938).

By this section the Industrial Commission is given authority to review an award and to increase the compensation theretofore awarded when there has been a change of condition of the claimant, and when the evidence supports a finding of change of claimant's condition, the finding of the Commission is conclusive. Baldwin v. Amazon Cotton Mills, 253 N.C. 740, 117 S.E.2d 718 (1961).

Where the Commission finds a fact in one hearing and evidence in a subsequent hearing shows that such finding was not correct, this will support a finding of a different fact which supports a finding of a change in condition. Hubbard v. Burlington Indus., 76 N.C. App. 313, 332 S.E.2d 746 (1985).

Physician who did not examine plaintiff from December 1980 until September 1981, the date of the original award, would be unable to testify as to plaintiff's amount of disability at the time of the award, and thus his testimony would be incompetent as to whether plaintiff had suffered a change of condition since that time. Sawyer v. Ferebee & Son, 78 N.C. App. 212, 336 S.E.2d 643 (1985), cert. denied, 315 N.C. 590, 341 S.E.2d 29 (1986).

Commission's Finding Review able. — Whether the facts as found by the Commission amount to a change of condition pursuant to this section is a question of law and thus properly reviewable by the Supreme Court. Weaver v. Swedish Imports Maintenance, Inc., 319 N.C. 243, 354 S.E.2d 477 (1987).

Award Subject to Modification If Substantial Change Occurs. — Though an earlier agreement approved by the Industrial Commission became in effect a final award, since it determined the extent of plaintiff's permanent disability and left no other issue for determination, the award was nevertheless subject to modification if a substantial change of condition had occurred. Lucas v. Bunn Mfg. Co., 90 N.C. App. 401, 368 S.E.2d 386 (1988).

An injured employee's disability rating need not change in order for the court to conclude that she has suffered a substantial change of condition under this section where the evidence indicated that her physical condition changed so as to impact her wage-earning capacity and several doctors testified that her condition had substantially worsened. Young v. Hickory Bus. Furn., 137 N.C. App. 51, 527 S.E.2d 344 (2000).

Effect of Pain Suffered by Person Shown to be Substantial Change in Condition. — While the physical and symptomatic changes that employee suffered — increases in the intensity and frequency of pain and muscle spasms and a decrease in the movement of the back muscles — may not appear to be great when considered by themselves and measured in the abstract, their effect upon the plaintiff was very profound, because they changed her from a person capable of working and earning wages five days a week to one incapable of working at all or earning anything, and thus commission's finding that employee had undergone a substantial change in condition would be affirmed. Lucas v. Bunn Mfg. Co., 90 N.C. App. 401, 368 S.E.2d 386 (1988).

Modification of Award Upheld. — Plaintiff, who received temporary total disability benefits under § 97-29 for a compensable heart attack in April, 1979, was properly awarded permanent partial disability under § 97-30 on his application under this section for modification of the prior award following three additional heart attacks, where the Commission found that he had been permanently and totally disabled since June, 1981, partially as a result of his compensable heart attack in 1979. Weaver v. Swedish Imports Maintenance, Inc., 80 N.C. App. 432, 343 S.E.2d 205 (1986), modified, 319 N.C. 243, 354 S.E.2d 477 (1987).

Where evidence before Industrial Commission showed that the continuous pain stemming from plaintiff's injury eventually rendered her totally incapable of earning any wages, this evidence was sufficient to justify the commission's finding and conclusion that a substantial change in plaintiff's back condition had occurred since the initial award. East v. Baby Diaper Servs., Inc., 119 N.C. App. 147, 457 S.E.2d 737 (1995).

Evidence Held Sufficient. — Plaintiff met her burden of establishing a causal connection between the fibromyalgia and her compensable injury in terms of "reasonable medical probability." Young v. Hickory Bus. Furn., 137 N.C. App. 51, 527 S.E.2d 344 (2000).

III. TIME LIMITATIONS.

This section is a statute of limitations which requires an employee to apply for additional compensation on the grounds of a change in condition within two years of the date on which the last compensation was paid. Apple v. Guilford County, 321 N.C. 98, 361 S.E.2d 588 (1987).

This section merely fixes a date after which the claim is barred. Ammons v. Z.A. Sneed's Sons, 257 N.C. 785, 127 S.E.2d 575 (1962).

The time limitation is not jurisdictional; this section merely provides a plea in bar which may be asserted by the employer. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 10 N.C. App. 486, 179 S.E.2d 130, rev'd on other grounds, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

The two year limitation of this section is not jurisdictional; it merely provides a defense which the employer may assert. Pennington v. Flame Refractories, Inc., 53 N.C. App. 584, 281 S.E.2d 463 (1981); Cook v. Southern Bonded, Inc., 82 N.C. App. 277, 346 S.E.2d 168 (1986), cert. denied, Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976).

Time limit in this section has been construed to be a statute of limitations and not a condition precedent to jurisdiction. Weston v. Sears Roebuck & Co., 65 N.C. App. 309, 309 S.E.2d 273 (1983), cert. denied, 311 N.C. 407, 319 S.E.2d 281 (1984).

But Is a Technical Legal Defense. — The lapse of time, when properly pleaded, is a technical legal defense. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

The two-year time limitation in this section is a statute of limitations, a technical legal defense which may be asserted by the employer. Hand ex rel. Hand v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 85 N.C. App. 372, 355 S.E.2d 141, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 792, 361 S.E.2d 76 (1987).

Which Is Waived If Not Plead. — Under general principles of civil procedure, the statute of limitations is a technical defense, and must be timely pleaded or it is deemed waived. There is no reason why this same rule should not apply to cases arising under this section. Gragg v. W.M. Harris & Son, 54 N.C. App. 607, 284 S.E.2d 183 (1981).

The time limitation in this section is a nonjurisdictional limit and a technical, legal defense. Sound public policy and the fair, effective disposition of contested workers' compensation claims require that if the time limitation of this section is to be available as a defense to claims based upon a change of condition, such defense must be asserted prior to hearing on the merits; if not so asserted, it must be deemed to have been waived. Gragg v. W.M. Harris & Son, 54 N.C. App. 607, 284 S.E.2d 183 (1981).

When Time for Filing Claim for Change of Condition Begins to Run. — For purposes of this section, the statutory one-year period for filing a claim for a change of condition begins at the time final payment is accepted, not when I.C. Form 28B is filed. Nonetheless, the Commission must be given the opportunity to determine whether a payment labeled "final" is or should be, in fact, the final payment. After this determination is made, the Commission accepts and approves a copy of Form 28B. Hill v. Hanes Corp., 79 N.C. App. 67, 339 S.E.2d 1 (1986), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 319 N.C. 167, 353 S.E.2d 392 (1987).

Plaintiff employee's claim for additional compensation filed with the Commission on April 3, 1996, was untimely because the limitations period began to run when plaintiff received her last payment of compensation in early March, 1994, regardless of whether she received a copy of Form 28B. Hunter v. Perquimans County Bd. of Educ., 139 N.C. App. 352, 533 S.E.2d 562 (2000), cert. denied, 352 N.C. 674, 545 S.E.2d 424 (2000).

Estoppel to Rely on Delay. — Delay for more than one year (now two years) may be asserted as a plea in bar, but the party interposing and relying on it may be estopped to assert it by inequitable conduct. Ammons v.

Z.A. Sneed's Sons, 257 N.C. 785, 127 S.E.2d 575 (1962); Belfield v. Weyerhaeuser Co., 77 N.C. App. 332, 335 S.E.2d 44 (1985).

Equity will deny the right to assert the defense of lapse of time when delay has been induced by acts, representations, or conduct, the repudiation of which would amount to a breach of good faith. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

When the request for a review of an award for changed conditions was not made until more than 12 months (now two years) after delivery and acceptance of a check in final payment, review of the award was barred, but the employer and his insurance carrier, by their conduct, might have been estopped to plead the lapse of time. Willis v. J.M. Davis Indus., Inc., 280 N.C. 709, 186 S.E.2d 913 (1972).

Tolling of the statute may result from the honest but entirely erroneous expression of opinion as to some significant legal fact. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

Case Still Pending Under § 97-25. — Where employee's refusal to cooperate with employer's physician resulted in litigation, the plaintiff's claim for further compensation, filed 2 years after her last compensation check, was not time-barred because her claim was not a change-of-condition case under this section, but a case still pending under § 97-25, and defendants' filing of a Form 28B had no effect on employee's right to further compensation. Scurlock v. Durham County Gen. Hosp., 136 N.C. App. 144, 523 S.E.2d 439 (1999).

Purpose of the two year limitation is to protect the employer against claims too old to be successfully investigated and defended. Pennington v. Flame Refractories, Inc., 53 N.C. App. 584, 281 S.E.2d 463 (1981).

Running of Time Limitation. — The limitation of this section begins to run when the employee is notified and the last payment of compensation pursuant to an agreement is made, and after one year (now two years) forecloses plaintiff's claim if there was a "change in condition" as contemplated by this section, and if defendants are not estopped to invoke the limitation. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 10 N.C. App. 486, 179 S.E.2d 130, rev'd on other grounds, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

If the previous award directed the payment of both compensation and medical expense, then the injured employee would have one year (now two years) from the last payment of compensation pursuant to the award in which to file a claim for further compensation upon an alleged change of condition. If the award directed the payment of medical bills only, then the injured employee would have one year from the date on which the last payment for medical treatment was made in which to file a claim for further compensation upon an alleged change of condition. Biddix v. Rex Mills, Inc., 237 N.C. 660, 75 S.E.2d 777 (1953). See also, Whitted v. Palmer-Bee Co., 228 N.C. 447, 46 S.E.2d 109 (1948).

When Time Limitation Begins to Run. — Under this section, the time limitation commences to run from the date on which employee received the last payment of compensation, not from the date on which he received a Form 28B. Cook v. Southern Bonded, Inc., 82 N.C. App. 277, 346 S.E.2d 168 (1986), cert. denied, 318 N.C. 692, 351 S.E.2d 741 (1987).

The time limitation of this section does not commence to run upon the dismissal of an appeal. Cook v. Southern Bonded, Inc., 82 N.C. App. 277, 346 S.E.2d 168 (1986), cert. denied, 318 N.C. 692, 351 S.E.2d 741 (1987).

Two-year time limit of this section begins to run upon receipt and acceptance of the last compensation check, not when the injury constituting a change of condition is first diagnosed. Hand ex rel. Hand v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 85 N.C. App. 372, 355 S.E.2d 141, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 792, 361 S.E.2d 76 (1987).

The exception clause added at the end of this section by the 1947 amendment has no relation to the filing of original claims for compensation or the time within which such claims are to be filed. It relates exclusively to the time within which an employee may file a petition for a review of an award theretofore made, and the time limit within which the review may be had is tolled by the payment of medical bills, if at all, only when such payments are made under the mandate of an award duly entered by the Commission. Biddix v. Rex Mills, Inc., 237 N.C. 660, 75 S.E.2d 777 (1953).

Effect of Plaintiff's Signature on Closing Receipt. — The limitation would have begun to run when notice of the last payment of compensation under an agreement was given plaintiff, with or without plaintiff's signature on a closing receipt. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 10 N.C. App. 486, 179 S.E.2d 130, rev'd on other grounds, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

The execution, filing and forwarding to plaintiff of I.C. Form 28B, which by its terms gave notice to plaintiff that his case was closed and that he had one year (now two years) in which to notify the Commission, in writing, that he claimed further benefits, in fact closed plaintiff's case and terminated his claim for injuries arising out of his accident. Plaintiff's signature was not a necessary element for the proper execution of the form. Chisholm v. Diamond Condominium Constr. Co., 83 N.C. App. 14, 348 S.E.2d 596 (1986), cert. denied, 319 N.C. 103, 353 S.E.2d 106 (1987).

Date of Last Payment. — The last payment of compensation within the meaning of this section is the date the last check was delivered to and accepted by the employee, and not the date the check was paid by the drawee bank. Paris v. Carolina Bldrs. Corp., 244 N.C. 35, 92 S.E.2d 405 (1956); Baldwin v. Amazon Cotton Mills, 253 N.C. 740, 117 S.E.2d 718 (1961).

An employee cannot be allowed 12 months (now two years) in which to request a review from the last date on which the compensation would have been due had he not elected to accept payment of the award in a lump sum. Paris v. Carolina Bldrs. Corp., 244 N.C. 35, 92 S.E.2d 405 (1956).

The last payment of compensation within the meaning of this section is the date the last check was delivered to and accepted by the employee. Cook v. Southern Bonded, Inc., 82 N.C. App. 277, 346 S.E.2d 168 (1986), cert. denied, 318 N.C. 692, 351 S.E.2d 741 (1987).

Notice Must Be Given to Employee and to Commission. — The law requires only that the injured employee be given notice of the time limitation, and that the Industrial Commission be given notice that the final payment of compensation has been made. Watkins v. Central Motor Lines, 10 N.C. App. 486, 179 S.E.2d 130, rev'd on other grounds, 279 N.C. 132, 181 S.E.2d 588 (1971).

Failure to Furnish Form 28B Estops Employer from Pleading Lapse of Time. — Under the Commission's Rule XI(5), an employer must execute Form 28B and furnish a copy to a claimant with his last compensation check. A failure to furnish a copy will estop the employer from pleading the lapse of time in bar of a claim asserted for additional compensation on the grounds of a change in condition. Sides v. G.B. Weaver & Sons Elec. Co., 12 N.C. App. 312, 183 S.E.2d 308 (1971).

But Furnishing Copy Late Does Not Estop Employer from Asserting Limitation. — Failure of the employer or the insurance carrier to furnish a copy of Industrial Commission Form 28B to an employee with his last compensation payment as required by former Industrial Commission Rule XI(5) did not estop them from asserting the time limitation of this section as a defense to employee's claim for additional compensation for change of condition; consequently, employee's claim filed more than one year (now two years) after receipt of his last compensation payment was barred notwithstanding it was filed within a year of his receipt of Form 28B from the carrier. Willis v. J.M. Davis Indus., Inc., 280 N.C. 709, 186 S.E.2d 913 (1972).

To allow an employee's claim for additional compensation for the reason that such claim was made within 12 months (now two years) from the time he was furnished a copy of Form 28B would be contrary to the express provisions of this section. Willis v. J.M. Davis Indus., Inc., 280 N.C. 709, 186 S.E.2d 913 (1972).

As Limitation Does Not Run from Re- ceipt of Form. — The time limitation within which an employer can claim additional compensation commences to run from the date on which he receives the last payment of compensation and not from the time he receives Form 28B. Willis v. J.M. Davis Indus., Inc., 280 N.C. 709, 186 S.E.2d 913 (1972).

The statement, "If the carrier failed to comply with the rule by giving employee notice of the limited time within which he could claim additional compensation, it failed to put the statute of limitations in operation," found in White v. Shoup Boat Corp., 261 N.C. 495, 135 S.E.2d 216 (1964), is an inaccurate expression of the law and is disapproved. Willis v. J.M. Davis Indus., Inc., 280 N.C. 709, 186 S.E.2d 913 (1972).

The importance of Form 28B with respect to starting the running of the statutory period under this section is that this form serves as explicit notice to a claimant that if further benefits are claimed the Commission must be notified in writing within one year (now two years) from the date of receipt of claimant's last compensation check. Sides v. G.B. Weaver & Sons Elec. Co., 12 N.C. App. 312, 183 S.E.2d 308 (1971).

Timely Notice to Employer of Recurrence of Disability. — Where plaintiff contended that she notified defendant of a recurrence of disability within a year (now two years) after receipt of the last payment of compensation, but she filed no claim with the Commission until after a year (now two years) had elapsed, her rights were barred. Lee v. Rose's 5-10-25¢ Stores, 205 N.C. 310, 171 S.E. 87 (1933).

Letter Held Timely. — Letter based on change in condition, mailed to the Industrial Commission, held timely. Pennington v. Flame Refractories, Inc., 53 N.C. App. 584, 281 S.E.2d 463 (1981).

Additional Notice of Accident as Sufficient Notice of Claim to Further Benefits. — Plaintiff's act of filing an additional notice of accident, I.C. Form 18, claiming that he was still experiencing impairments in his lower back and right leg as a result of his accident, while not specifically alleging any change in condition or any permanent injuries, was sufficient to give the Commission the requisite written notice of plaintiff's claim to further benefits. Chisholm v. Diamond Condominium Constr. Co., 83 N.C. App. 14, 348 S.E.2d 596 (1986), cert. denied, 319 N.C. 103, 353 S.E.2d 106 (1987).

A Form 18 received prior to final payment would be taken as mere completion of the paper work required of the employee in connection with the filing of the initial claim and would not be adequate to signal a further claim based on change of condition. In order to achieve this purpose, a Form 18 filed prior to receipt of final payment would have to contain an express request for review based upon change of condition. Apple v. Guilford County, 321 N.C. 98, 361 S.E.2d 588 (1987).

Filing a Form 18 after receipt of final payment may satisfy the requirements of this section because receipt of a Form 18 by the employer and the carrier after they have made what they deem to be final payment may serve to notify them that the employee wishes to reopen the case. Apple v. Guilford County, 321 N.C. 98, 361 S.E.2d 588 (1987).

Employer and insurance carrier are entitled to treat final payment under a Form 21 agreement as closing the proceeding, absent timely notice that an employee seeks further compensation due to change of condition. Apple v. Guilford County, 321 N.C. 98, 361 S.E.2d 588 (1987).

As to limitation as to minor employees, see Lineberry v. Town of Mebane, 219 N.C. 257, 13 S.E.2d 429 (1941).

Form 28B Held Without Effect on Previously Filed Application for Review. — While an Industrial Commission Form 28B ("Report of Compensation of Disability"), when sent together with the employee's last compensation payment, ordinarily closes the employee's case, it has no effect on an application for review which has previously been filed with the Commission. Apple v. Guilford County, 84 N.C. App. 679, 353 S.E.2d 641, rev'd on other grounds, 321 N.C. 98, 361 S.E.2d 588 (1987).

Time Period of Change Required. — Where the Industrial Commission found that plaintiff was unable to work for a period of time, yet there was no finding as to the time period during which plaintiff experienced this change a remand was needed since the commission's findings were not sufficient to determine the rights of the parties. Dinkins v. Federal Paper Bd. Co., 120 N.C. App. 192, 461 S.E.2d 909 (1995).

§ 97-47.1. Payment without prejudice; limitations period.

When the employer has paid compensation without prejudice but timely contested liability as provided in G.S. 97-18(d), the right, if any, to further indemnity compensation and medical compensation shall terminate two years after the employer's last payment of medical or indemnity compensation, whichever last occurs, unless the employee files with the Commission a claim for further compensation prior to the expiration of this period. (1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 3.5.)

Editor's Note. — Subsection (d) of G.S. 97-18, referred to above, was redesignated as subsection (f).

§ 97-48. Receipts relieving employer; payment to minors; when payment of claims to dependents subsequent in right discharges employer.

(a) Whenever payment of compensation is made to a widow or widower for her or his use, or for her or his use and the use of the child or children, the written receipt thereof of such widow or widower shall acquit the employer: Provided, however, that in order to protect the interests of minors or incompetents the Industrial Commission may at its discretion change the terms of any award with respect to whom compensation for the benefit of such minors or incompetents shall be paid.

(b) Whenever payment is made to any person 18 years of age or over, the written receipt of such person shall acquit the employer.

(c) Payment of death benefits by an employer in good faith to a dependent subsequent in right to another or other dependents shall protect and discharge the employer, unless and until such dependent or dependents prior in right shall have given notice of his or their claims. In case the employer is in doubt as to the respective rights of rival claimants, he may apply to the Industrial Commission to decide between them.

(d) A minor employee under the age of 18 years may sign agreements and receipts for payments of compensation for temporary total disability, and such agreements and receipts executed by such minor shall acquit the employer. Where the injury results in a permanent disability and the sum to be paid does not exceed five hundred dollars ($500.00) the minor employee may execute agreements and sign receipts and such agreements and receipts shall acquit the employer; provided, that when deemed necessary the Commission may require the signature of a parent or person standing in place of a parent. (1929, c. 120, s. 47; 1931, c. 274, s. 7; 1945, c. 766.)

CASE NOTES

Payment in Good Faith Discharges Employer. — Payment of award of compensation to employee's mother was in good faith and discharged the employer, where investigation by employer's carrier prior to hearing revealed that employee's mother and brother were next of kin, and mother and brother testified to the same effect at the hearing, and the Commission judicially determined that mother was entitled to all benefits, notwithstanding the fact that thereafter it was discovered that deceased left surviving a wife in another county. Green v. Briley, 242 N.C. 196, 87 S.E.2d 213 (1955).

Appointment of Person to Receive Minor's Death Benefits. — A clerk of Superior Court may not appoint a "general guardian" for a minor if a natural guardian, such as a biological mother, exists; however, a clerk of Superior Court may appoint some other person to receive death benefits on behalf of minor. Valles de Portillo v. D.H. Griffin Wrecking Co., 134 N.C. App. 714, 518 S.E.2d 555 (1999), cert. denied, 351 N.C. 186, 541 S.E.2d 727 (1999).

§ 97-49. Benefits of mentally incompetent or minor employees under 18 may be paid to a trustee, etc.

If an injured employee is mentally incompetent or is under 18 years of age at the time when any right or privilege accrues to him under this Article, his guardian, trustee or committee may in his behalf claim and exercise such right or privilege. (1929, c. 120, s. 48.)

CASE NOTES

Declaration of Common-Law Rule. — This section is a mere declaration of the common-law rule. Lineberry v. Town of Mebane, 219 N.C. 257, 13 S.E.2d 429 (1941).

§ 97-50. Limitation as against minors or mentally incompetent.

No limitation of time provided in this Article for the giving of notice or making claim under this Article shall run against any person who is mentally incompetent, or a minor dependent, as long as he has no guardian, trustee, or committee. (1929, c. 120, s. 49.)

CASE NOTES

Application of Section. — This section is applicable only to the mentally incompetent and the minor dependent. Lineberry v. Town of Mebane, 219 N.C. 257, 13 S.E.2d 429 (1941).

Minor Not Barred by Failure to Give Notice of Claim. — A minor dependent under 18 years of age and who is without guardian, trustee or committee, is not barred during such disability by failure to give notice of claim for compensation as required by § 97-22 et seq. McGill v. Bison Fast Freight, Inc., 245 N.C. 469, 96 S.E.2d 438 (1957).

Evidence Supported Commission's Finding of Competency. — Where there was evidence which would support a finding that plaintiff was incompetent during the relevant period, but there was also evidence which supported the commission's finding of fact that plaintiff was not incompetent, including evidence that plaintiff performed her job, which required physical and mental dexterity, in a satisfactory manner, understood her pay scale and contested the amount when she thought it was too low, the commission's finding was conclusive. Hand ex rel. Hand v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 85 N.C. App. 372, 355 S.E.2d 141, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 792, 361 S.E.2d 76 (1987).

§ 97-51. Joint employment; liabilities.

Whenever an employee, for whose injury or death compensation is payable under this Article, shall at the time of the injury be in joint service of two or more employers subject to this Article, such employers shall contribute to the payment of such compensation in proportion to their wages liability to such employee; provided, however, that nothing in this section shall prevent any reasonable arrangement between such employers for a different distribution as between themselves of the ultimate burden of compensation. (1929, c. 120, s. 50.)

CASE NOTES

Test for Determining if Lent Employee Entered Employment Relationship with Special Employer. — Because of the statutory requirement that the employment be under an "appointment or contract of hire," the first question which must be answered in determining whether a lent employee has entered into an employment relationship with a special employer for Workers' Compensation Act purposes is: Did he make a contract of hire with the special employer? If this question cannot be answered "yes," the investigation is closed, and this must necessarily be so, since the employee loses certain rights along with those he gains when he strikes up a new employment relation. Collins v. James Paul Edwards, Inc., 21 N.C. App. 455, 204 S.E.2d 873, cert. denied, 285 N.C. 589, 206 S.E.2d 862 (1974).

Lent employee must consent to new relationship. Collins v. James Paul Edwards, Inc., 21 N.C. App. 455, 204 S.E.2d 873, cert. denied, 285 N.C. 589, 206 S.E.2d 862 (1974).

Consent may be implied from the lent employee's acceptance of the special employer's control and direction. But what seems on the surface to be such acceptance may actually be only a continued obedience of the general employer's commands. Collins v. James Paul Edwards, Inc., 21 N.C. App. 455, 204 S.E.2d 873, cert. denied, 285 N.C. 589, 206 S.E.2d 862 (1974).

Basis for Consent Requirement in Lent Employee Cases. — The necessity for the lent employee's consent to a new employment relation stems from the statutory requirement of "contract of hire." Collins v. James Paul Edwards, Inc., 21 N.C. App. 455, 204 S.E.2d 873, cert. denied, 285 N.C. 589, 206 S.E.2d 862 (1974).

The only presumption in lent employee cases is the continuance of the general employment, which is taken for granted as the beginning point of any lent employee problem. Collins v. James Paul Edwards, Inc., 21 N.C. App. 455, 204 S.E.2d 873, cert. denied, 285 N.C. 589, 206 S.E.2d 862 (1974).

To overcome this presumption, it is not unreasonable to insist upon a clear demonstration that a new temporary employer has been substituted for the old, which demonstration should include a showing that a contract was made between the special employer and the employee, proof that the work being done was essentially that of the special employer, and proof that the special employer assumed the right to control the details of the work; failing this, the general employer should remain liable. Collins v. James Paul Edwards, Inc., 21 N.C. App. 455, 204 S.E.2d 873, cert. denied, 285 N.C. 589, 206 S.E.2d 862 (1974).

Conflict of Interest Is Between Two Employers. — What gives the lent employee cases their special character is the fact that they begin, not with an unknown relation, but with an existing employment relation. The conflict of interest becomes one not between employer and employee (who is assured of recovering from someone) but between two employers and their insurance carriers. Collins v. James Paul Edwards, Inc., 21 N.C. App. 455, 204 S.E.2d 873, cert. denied, 285 N.C. 589, 206 S.E.2d 862 (1974).

Employment Held Not Joint. — Deceased was employed as teacher and coach by the defendant school district. The State Board of Equalization paid part of his salary as teacher, while the school district paid the remainder of his salary both for teaching and for coaching. Deceased was killed while in performance of his duties as coach. It was held that deceased was an employee of the defendant school district but not of the State Board of Equalization since that body had no voice in his election or power over his actions. Perdue v. State Bd. of Equalization, 205 N.C. 730, 172 S.E. 396 (1934).

Contract Between Owner and Lessee of Truck Not Binding on Employee-Driver. — Deceased employee was a truck driver for X, who leased the truck to other haulers. While hauling goods for a lessee of the truck, and under his full control, deceased met his death. The lease contract between X and his lessee provided that X should carry compensation insurance upon the truck driver. It was held that this contract could not be binding upon the employee-driver, as he was not a party to it. Recovery of compensation was allowed against lessee for the death of the employee. The court left open the question of liability of X to the lessee. Roth v. McCord, 232 N.C. 678, 62 S.E.2d 64 (1950).

§ 97-52. Occupational disease made compensable; "accident" defined.

Disablement or death of an employee resulting from an occupational disease described in G.S. 97-53 shall be treated as the happening of an injury by accident within the meaning of the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act and the procedure and practice and compensation and other benefits provided by said act shall apply in all such cases except as hereinafter otherwise provided. The word "accident," as used in the Workers' Compensation Act, shall not be construed to mean a series of events in employment, of a similar or like nature, occurring regularly, continuously or at frequent intervals in the course of such employment, over extended periods of time, whether such events may or may not be attributable to fault of the employer and disease attributable to such causes shall be compensable only if culminating in an occupational disease mentioned in and compensable under this Article: Provided, however, no compensation shall be payable for asbestosis and/or silicosis as hereinafter defined if the employee, at the time of entering into the employment of the employer by whom compensation would otherwise be payable, falsely represented himself in writing as not having previously been disabled or laid off because of asbestosis or silicosis. (1935, c. 123; 1979, c. 714, s. 2.)

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — For additional cases regarding compensability of occupational disease, see the case notes under § 97-53.

Purpose of this Section and § 97-53. — Any scheme or plan for the payment of compensation to disabled employees, should include those diseases or abnormal conditions of human beings the causative origin of which is occupational in nature. To meet this need the legislature adopted this section and § 97-53. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 234 N.C. 126, 66 S.E.2d 693 (1951).

The purpose of this section and § 97-53 was to compensate employees for occupational disease as defined in the Act. Bowles v. CTS of Asheville, Inc., 77 N.C. App. 547, 335 S.E.2d 502 (1985).

The purpose of this section is to enable a worker to recover for disability caused by occupational disease under § 97-29. Harrell v. Harriet & Henderson Yarns, 314 N.C. 566, 336 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

Exclusivity of Rights and Remedies. — The rights and remedies of an employee under the Workers' Compensation Act exclude all other rights and remedies, and an employee bound by the act may not maintain an action at common law against the employer and his foreman to recover for injuries caused by an occupational disease not enumerated in this section and § 97-53, even though the disease is the result of negligence. Murphy v. American Enka Corp., 213 N.C. 218, 195 S.E. 536 (1938).

Common-Law Action Where Employer

Has Rejected Act. — If an employee contracts an occupational disease while working for an employer who has rejected the act, recovery may be had in an action at common law upon a showing of negligence. Bame v. Palmer Stone Works, 232 N.C. 267, 59 S.E.2d 812 (1950).

Injury by Accident and Occupational Disease Distinguished. — An injury by accident, as that term is ordinarily understood, is distinguished from an occupational disease in that the former rises from a definite event, the time and place of which can be fixed, while the latter develops gradually over a long period of time. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 234 N.C. 126, 66 S.E.2d 693 (1951).

Limitation on meaning of "accident," etc. simply prevents claims for maladies that are neither occupational in nature nor arise from an event definite in time and place. Bowles v. CTS of Asheville, Inc., 77 N.C. App. 547, 335 S.E.2d 502 (1985).

An accident must result from an event, and multiple events, or stressors, occurring over a period of time, allegedly resulting in an acute cardiac incident, do not constitute an "accident;" consequently, attorney senior partner could not recover workers's compensation. Lovekin v. Lovekin & Ingle, 140 N.C. App. 244, 535 S.E.2d 610 (2000).

Words "disablement or death" in this section merely describe a condition that must occur before recovery may be had under § 97-29. They do not predicate recovery under § 97-31 upon disability. Harrell v. Harriet &

Henderson Yarns, 314 N.C. 566, 336 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

Disability Defined. — Disability is defined as incapacity because of injury to earn the wages which the employee was receiving at the time of injury in the same or any other employment; this definition applies to occupational diseases. Hilliard v. Apex Cabinet Co., 54 N.C. App. 173, 282 S.E.2d 828 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 305 N.C. 593, 290 S.E.2d 682 (1982).

This Chapter does not guarantee that benefits will be paid whenever an employee is injured or suffers from an occupational disease; it is not designed to be health or accident insurance. Hilliard v. Apex Cabinet Co., 54 N.C. App. 173, 282 S.E.2d 828 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 305 N.C. 593, 290 S.E.2d 682 (1982).

When Injury From Occupational Disease Is Compensable. — The current version of subdivision (13) of § 97-53 applies to all claims for disablement in which the disability occurs after the effective date of the subdivision as amended, i.e., July 1, 1971, since under this section injury resulting from occupational disease is compensable only when it leads to disablement, and until that time the employee has no cause of action and the employer has no liability. Wood v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 297 N.C. 636, 256 S.E.2d 692 (1979).

Benefits are paid only when, due to occupational disease or injury, employee is incapable of earning the same wages he earned at the time of contracting the disease or receiving the injury, at his same job or any other employment. Hilliard v. Apex Cabinet Co., 54 N.C. App. 173, 282 S.E.2d 828 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 305 N.C. 593, 290 S.E.2d 682 (1982).

Disease Must Be Incident to or Result of Employment. — An award for an occupational disease cannot be sanctioned unless it be shown that the disease was incident to or the result of the particular employment in which the worker was engaged. Duncan v. City of Charlotte, 234 N.C. 86, 66 S.E.2d 22 (1951).

If a disease is not a natural result of a particular employment, but is produced by some extrinsic or independent agency, it is in no real sense an occupational disease, and ordinarily may not be imputed to the occupation or employment. Duncan v. City of Charlotte, 234 N.C. 86, 66 S.E.2d 22 (1951).

Disability resulting from a disease is compensable when the disease is aggravated or accelerated by causes and conditions characteristic of and peculiar to claimant's employment. Robinson v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 619, 292 S.E.2d 144 (1982).

If a disease is not disabling apart from aggravation by occupational conditions, the employer must compensate the employee for the entire resulting disability. Robinson v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 619, 292 S.E.2d 144 (1982).

Other Gradually Developing Conditions Not Compensable. — This section precludes claims for conditions that develop gradually but do not fall into the category of occupational disease. Bowles v. CTS of Asheville, Inc., 77 N.C. App. 547, 335 S.E.2d 502 (1985).

Showing That Activity Did Not previously Cause Pain Insufficient. — It is insufficient as a matter of law to show only that in the past a regular activity caused no pain and that the same activity now causes pain; there must be a specific fortuitous event, rather than a gradual build-up of pain, in order to show injury by accident. Bowles v. CTS of Asheville, Inc., 77 N.C. App. 547, 335 S.E.2d 502 (1985).

Employees who suffer due to personal sensitivities are not entitled to workers' compensation benefits, absent a finding that the disability is due to an occupational disease. Hilliard v. Apex Cabinet Co., 54 N.C. App. 173, 282 S.E.2d 828 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 305 N.C. 593, 290 S.E.2d 682 (1982).

Employee's suicide caused by occupational disease is compensable under the Workers' Compensation Act. This is so because this section makes it clear that the death of an employee resulting from an occupational disease shall be treated as the happening of an injury by accident. Harvey v. Raleigh Police Dep't, 85 N.C. App. 540, 355 S.E.2d 147, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 631, 360 S.E.2d 86 (1987).

Only Diseases Mentioned in § 97-53 Are Compensable. — Disablement or death resulting from any "series of events" in employment shall be treated as the happening of an injury by accident compensable under the act when and only when such series of events culminates in one of the occupational diseases mentioned in § 97-53. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 234 N.C. 126, 66 S.E.2d 693 (1951). But see now subdivision (13) of § 97-53.

Disease Resulting from Accident. — This section, providing that only the occupational diseases specified in this Article shall be compensable, relates only to occupational diseases, which are those resulting from long and continued exposure to risks and conditions inherent and usual in the nature of the employment, and does not preclude compensation for a disease not inherent in or incident to the nature of the employment when it results from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. MacRae v. Unemployment Comp. Comm'n, 217 N.C. 769, 9 S.E.2d 595 (1940). See also, Blassingame v. Southern Asbestos Co., 217 N.C. 223, 7 S.E.2d 478 (1940).

Claimant Must Prove Causation. — A claimant's right to compensation for an occupational disease under § 97-53(13) and this section depends upon proper proof of causation, and the burden of proving each and every element of compensability is upon the plaintiff. Moore v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 47 N.C. App. 744, 269 S.E.2d 159, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 401, 274 S.E.2d 226 (1980).

Claimant must show that diminution in earning capacity is due to occupational disease or injury; it is not enough merely to show a diminution in wages earned subsequent to the affliction or injury. Hilliard v. Apex Cabinet Co., 54 N.C. App. 173, 282 S.E.2d 828 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 305 N.C. 593, 290 S.E.2d 682 (1982).

Disability Need Not Be Shown to Recover Under § 97-31. — The obvious intent of the Legislature in enacting this section was to permit and not restrict recovery for occupational diseases. This section, therefore, does not require that disability be shown as a condition to recovery under the schedule for occupational disease in § 97-31. Harrell v. Harriet & Henderson Yarns, 314 N.C. 566, 336 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

Section 97-38 contemplates only one accident leading to death when it states "the accident." Death benefits accrue only if death occurs within the maximum statutorily set time after "the accident." It would defy legislative intent to hold that subsequent changes in disability status arising from the same occupational disease created new "accidents," thereby renewing the time limit for claiming benefits under § 97-38. Joyner v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 71 N.C. App. 625, 322 S.E.2d 636 (1984).

Date of "Accident" in Occupational Disease Cases. — Where employee died 15 months after he became totally disabled by serum hepatitis, the claim of deceased employee's dependents for death benefits was not barred by § 97-38 providing compensation if death results from an accident within two years or, while total disability continues, within six years after the accident, since the date of the "accident" in cases involving occupational disease is treated as the date on which disablement occurs and not as the date on which employee contracted the disease. Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

The date when plaintiff became disabled due to byssinosis is deemed to be the date upon which she sustained an injury by accident. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 300 N.C. 94, 265 S.E.2d 144 (1980).

Date on Which Disease "Originates" Is Irrelevant. — As it is the event of disability which triggers entitlement to compensation and not the date of the last injurious exposure, the date on which a plaintiff's occupational disease "originated" has no relevance to his claim. Taylor v. Cone Mills Corp., 56 N.C. App. 291, 289 S.E.2d 60, rev'd on other grounds, 306 N.C. 314, 293 S.E.2d 189 (1982).

Industrial Commission did not err in concluding that plaintiff had not contracted an occupational disease while em- ployed in defendant's textile mill, where the evidence tended to show that plaintiff suffered from chronic bronchitis and had evidence of mild obstructive lung disease, aggravated by exposure to cotton dust, but such infirmities would not interfere with any work except the most strenuous kind, so that plaintiff therefore did not suffer any disablement which would entitle him to compensation. Mills v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 53 N.C. App. 341, 280 S.E.2d 802, cert. denied, 304 N.C. 196, 285 S.E.2d 100 (1981).

Degenerative disc condition which is not shown to be "characteristic of and peculiar to" plaintiff's employment is not an occupational disease, and there can be no compensation without a connection between the disease and the employment. Griffitts v. Thomasville Furn. Co., 65 N.C. App. 369, 309 S.E.2d 277 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 477, 312 S.E.2d 884 (1984).

Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease. — An employee who suffers from chronic obstructive pulmonary disease is entitled to findings of fact and conclusions of law that said disease is an occupational disease pursuant to § 97-53(13) if it is shown by competent evidence that occupational exposure to a hazard known to cause the disease, such as cotton dust, significantly contributed to the causation or development of the disease. Swink v. Cone Mills, Inc., 65 N.C. App. 397, 309 S.E.2d 271 (1983).

Byssinosis is an occupational disease under § 97-53(13) and is compensable under this section. Donnell v. Cone Mills Corp., 60 N.C. App. 338, 299 S.E.2d 436, cert. denied, 308 N.C. 190, 302 S.E.2d 243 (1983).

Byssinosis, as a component of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, is a compensable occupational disease. Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 69 N.C. App. 263, 317 S.E.2d 120, modified on other grounds, 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

Special Provisions Relating to Asbestosis and Silicosis. — When the special provisions of the occupational disease amendment relating to asbestosis and silicosis were read in their entirety, it was apparent that they were designed to effect these objects: (1) to prevent the employment of unaffected persons peculiarly susceptible to asbestosis or silicosis in industries with dust hazards; (2) to secure compensation to those workers affected with asbestosis or silicosis, whose principal need is compensation; and (3) to provide compulsory changes of occupations for those workers affected by asbestosis or silicosis, whose primary need is removal to employments without dust hazards. Young v. Whitehall Co., 229 N.C. 360, 49 S.E.2d 797 (1948).

The clear intent of § 97-61.6 to provide compensation for death occurring within 350 weeks from the date of last exposure to silicosis if the employee was at the time of death receiving compensation for disablement due to silicosis, even though the death does not result from silicosis, must be given effect notwithstanding subdivisions (6) and (10) of § 97-2 and this section, since the specific provisions relating to silicosis, which were enacted because of the peculiar course of the disease, must be construed as an exception to the general tenor of the Workers' Compensation Act to provide compensation for death only if it results from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. Davis v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 259 N.C. 672, 131 S.E.2d 335 (1963).

Remand for Findings as to Capacity for Other Employment. — Where the Commission found that plaintiff had chronic obstructive pulmonary disease caused in part by her exposure to respirable cotton dust during her employment, but that her impairment was not sufficient to render plaintiff incapable of performing types of employment which did not require very strenuous activity or exposure to cotton dust, but the Commission's findings did not address evidence that due to plaintiff's education, age and experience she was probably not capable of earning wages in any employment which did not require substantial physical exertion, the case would be remanded for appropriate findings and conclusions of plaintiff's capacity to earn wages in employment for which she might be qualified. Webb v. Pauline Knitting Indus., 78 N.C. App. 184, 336 S.E.2d 645 (1985).

Effect of Retirement. — Because disability measures an employee's present ability to earn wages, and is unrelated to a decision to withdraw from the labor force by retirement, the Commission may not deny disability benefits because the claimant retired, where there is evidence of diminished earning capacity caused by an occupational disease. Heffner v. Cone Mills Corp., 83 N.C. App. 84, 349 S.E.2d 70 (1986).

Report Under § 97-92(a). — Section 97-92(a) requires an employer to report any injury by accident if it keeps the employee from work for more than one day. Presumably this would include notice of an occupational disease which is considered an injury by accident. Knight v.

Cannon Mills Co., 82 N.C. App. 453, 347 S.E.2d 832, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 507, 349 S.E.2d 861 (1986).

A claimant's post-injury earning capacity is the determinative factor in assessing disability. Tyndall v. Walter Kidde Co., 102 N.C. App. 726, 403 S.E.2d 548, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 505, 407 S.E.2d 553 (1991).

Burden on Claimant to Prove Unsuitability Due to Peculiar Characteristics. — The burden of proof rests upon the claimant to prove the existence of his disability and its extent, and relevant to these issues is evidence that the claimant may be unsuited for particular employment due to characteristics peculiar to him. Tyndall v. Walter Kidde Co., 102 N.C. App. 726, 403 S.E.2d 548, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 505, 407 S.E.2d 553 (1991).

§ 97-53. Occupational diseases enumerated; when due to exposure to chemicals.

The following diseases and conditions only shall be deemed to be occupational diseases within the meaning of this Article:

- (1) Anthrax.
- (2) Arsenic poisoning.
- (3) Brass poisoning.
- (4) Zinc poisoning.

- (5) Manganese poisoning.
- (6) Lead poisoning. Provided the employee shall have been exposed to the hazard of lead poisoning for at least 30 days in the preceding 12 months' period; and, provided further, only the employer in whose employment such employee was last injuriously exposed shall be liable.
- (7) Mercury poisoning.
- (8) Phosphorus poisoning.
- (9) Poisoning by carbon bisulphide, menthanol, naphtha or volatile halogenated hydrocarbons.
- (10) Chrome ulceration.
- (11) Compressed-air illness.
- (12) Poisoning by benzol, or by nitro and amido derivatives of benzol (dinitrolbenzol, anilin, and others).
- (13) Any disease, other than hearing loss covered in another subdivision of this section, which is proven to be due to causes and conditions which are characteristic of and peculiar to a particular trade, occupation or employment, but excluding all ordinary diseases of life to which the general public is equally exposed outside of the employment.
- (14) Epitheliomatous cancer or ulceration of the skin or of the corneal surface of the eye due to tar, pitch, bitumen, mineral oil, or paraffin, or any compound, product, or residue of any of these substances.
- (15) Radium poisoning or disability or death due to radioactive properties of substances or to roentgen rays, X rays or exposure to any other source of radiation; provided, however, that the disease under this subdivision shall be deemed to have occurred on the date that disability or death shall occur by reason of such disease.
- (16) Blisters due to use of tools or appliances in the employment.
- (17) Bursitis due to intermittent pressure in the employment.
- (18) Miner's nystagmus.
- (19) Bone felon due to constant or intermittent pressure in employment.
- (20) Synovitis, caused by trauma in employment.
- (21) Tenosynovitis, caused by trauma in employment.
- (22) Carbon monoxide poisoning.
- (23) Poisoning by sulphuric, hydrochloric or hydrofluoric acid.
- (24) Asbestosis.
- (25) Silicosis.
- (26) Psittacosis.
- (27) Undulant fever.
- (28) Loss of hearing caused by harmful noise in the employment. The following rules shall be applicable in determining eligibility for compensation and the period during which compensation shall be payable:
  - a. The term "harmful noise" means sound in employment capable of producing occupational loss of hearing as hereinafter defined. Sound of an intensity of less than 90 decibels, A scale, shall be deemed incapable of producing occupational loss of hearing as defined in this section.
  - b. "Occupational loss of hearing" shall mean a permanent sensorineural loss of hearing in both ears caused by prolonged exposure to harmful noise in employment. Except in instances of preexisting loss of hearing due to disease, trauma, or congenital deafness in one ear, no compensation shall be payable under this subdivision unless prolonged exposure to harmful noise in employment has caused loss of hearing in both ears as hereinafter provided.

- c. No compensation benefits shall be payable for temporary total or temporary partial disability under this subdivision and there shall be no award for tinnitus or a psychogenic hearing loss.
- d. An employer shall become liable for the entire occupational hearing loss to which his employment has contributed, but if previous deafness is established by a hearing test or other competent evidence, whether or not the employee was exposed to harmful noise within six months preceding such test, the employer shall not be liable for previous loss so established, nor shall he be liable for any loss for which compensation has previously been paid or awarded and the employer shall be liable only for the difference between the percent of occupational hearing loss determined as of the date of disability as herein defined and the percentage of loss established by the preemployment and audiometric examination excluding, in any event, hearing losses arising from nonoccupational causes.
- e. In the evaluation of occupational hearing loss, only the hearing levels at the frequencies of 500, 1,000, 2,000, and 3,000 cycles per second shall be considered. Hearing losses for frequencies below 500 and above 3,000 cycles per second are not to be considered as constituting compensable hearing disability.
- f. The employer liable for the compensation in this section shall be the employer in whose employment the employee was last exposed to harmful noise in North Carolina during a period of 90 working days or parts thereof, and an exposure during a period of less than 90 working days or parts thereof shall be held not to be an injurious exposure; provided, however, that in the event an insurance carrier has been on the risk for a period of time during which an employee has been injuriously exposed to harmful noise, and if after insurance carrier goes off the risk said employee has been further exposed to harmful noise, although not exposed for 90 working days or parts thereof so as to constitute an injurious exposure, such carrier shall, nevertheless, be liable.
- g. The percentage of hearing loss shall be calculated as the average, in decibels, of the thresholds of hearing for the frequencies of 500, 1,000, 2,000, and 3,000 cycles per second. Pure tone air conduction audiometric instruments, properly calibrated according to accepted national standards such as American Standards Association, Inc., (ASA), International Standards Organization (ISO), or American National Standards Institute, Inc., (ANSI), shall be used for measuring hearing loss. If more than one audiogram is taken, the audiogram having the lowest threshold will be used to calculate occupational hearing loss. If the losses of hearing average 15 decibels (26 db if ANSI or ISO) or less in the four frequencies, such losses of hearing shall not constitute any compensable hearing disability. If the losses of hearing average 82 decibels (93 db if ANSI or ISO) or more in the four frequencies, then the same shall constitute and be total or one hundred percent (100%) compensable hearing loss. In measuring hearing impairment, the lowest measured losses in each of the four frequencies shall be added together and divided by four to determine the average decibel loss. For each decibel of loss exceeding 15 decibels (26 db if ANSI or ISO) an allowance of one and one-half percent (1½%) shall be made up to the maximum of one hundred percent (100%) which is reached at 82 decibels (93 db if ANSI or ISO). In determining the binaural percentage of loss, the percentage of impairment in the better ear shall be multiplied by five. The resulting figure shall be added to the percentage of impairment in the poorer ear, and the sum of the two divided by six. The final percentage shall represent the binaural hearing impairment.

- h. There shall be payable for total occupational loss of hearing in both ears 150 weeks of compensation, and for partial occupational loss of hearing in both ears such proportion of these periods of payment as such partial loss bears to total loss.
- i. No claim for compensation for occupational hearing loss shall be filed until after six months have elapsed since exposure to harmful noise with the last employer. The last day of such exposure shall be the date of disability. The regular use of employer-provided protective devices capable of preventing loss of hearing from the particular harmful noise where the employee works shall constitute removal from exposure to such particular harmful noise.
- j. No consideration shall be given to the question of whether or not the ability of an employee to understand speech is improved by the use of a hearing aid. The North Carolina Industrial Commission may order the employer to provide the employee with an original hearing aid if it will materially improve the employee's ability to hear.
- k. No compensation benefits shall be payable for the loss of hearing caused by harmful noise after October 1, 1971, if employee fails to regularly utilize employer-provided protection device or devices, capable of preventing loss of hearing from the particular harmful noise where the employee works.

Occupational diseases caused by chemicals shall be deemed to be due to exposure of an employee to the chemicals herein mentioned only when as a part of the employment such employee is exposed to such chemicals in such form and quantity, and used with such frequency as to cause the occupational disease mentioned in connection with such chemicals. ## CASE NOTES

- I. In General.
- II. Subdivision (13).
- III. Particular Diseases.
- IV. Hearing Loss.

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — For additional cases regarding compensability of occupational disease, see the case notes under § 97-52.

1949 Amendment Held Unconstitutional. — Former subdivision (26), which was added to this section by Session Laws 1949, c. 1078, and which purported to make certain forms of heart disease compensable occupational diseases when suffered by firemen, was unconstitutional, since it sought to confer upon firemen a special privilege not accorded to other municipal employees, nor to employees in private industry, and created for firemen substantial financial benefits, to be paid from the public treasury under the guise of workers' compensation benefits, without establishing an occupational disease as the usual incident or result of the particular employment. Duncan v. City of Charlotte, 234 N.C. 86, 66 S.E.2d 22 (1951), commented on in 30 N.C.L. Rev. 98 (1951). See also Davis v. City of Winston-Salem, 234 N.C. 95, 66 S.E.2d 28 (1951).

Legislative Intent. — The clear intent of the General Assembly in enacting the current version of this section was to bring North Carolina in line with the vast majority of states by providing comprehensive coverage for occupational diseases. Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

The purpose of § 97-52 and this section was to compensate employees for occupational disease as defined in the Act. Bowles v. CTS of Asheville, Inc., 77 N.C. App. 547, 335 S.E.2d 502 (1985).

Technical Words to Be Accorded Their Technical Connotations. — In designating those diseases and conditions which are to be deemed occupational in origin and compensable under the act, the legislature, for the most part, used technical terms. Anthrax, bursitis, asbestosis, silicosis, nystagmus, synovitis, tenosynovitis are technical words. In construing the act, the court must accord them their technical connotations. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 234 N.C. 126, 66 S.E.2d 693 (1951).

Common-Law Actions Excluded as to Certain Occupational Diseases. — In dealing with certain unscheduled occupational diseases, the Supreme Court has held common-law actions to be excluded by the act; but in these cases the condition admittedly and allegedly arose out of the employment. Barber v. Minges, 223 N.C. 213, 25 S.E.2d 837 (1943).

But Employee May Bring Common-Law Action Against Employer Who Has Rejected Act. — Where silicosis is contracted by an employee whose employer has rejected the act, the employee may recover in an action at common law upon a showing of negligence, but the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is not applicable. Bame v. Palmer Stone Works, 232 N.C. 267, 59 S.E.2d 812 (1950).

Effect of Last Sentence. — The last sentence of this section is intended to limit compensable diseases to those that are actually caused by on-the-job exposure to hazardous substances, rather than to limit the number of diseases that are compensable. McAllister v. Cone Mills Corp., 88 N.C. App. 577, 364 S.E.2d 186 (1988).

"Occupational Disease" Defined. — The legislature, in listing those diseases which are to be deemed occupational in character, was fully aware of the meaning of the term "occupational disease." Indeed, it in effect defined the term in § 97-52 as a diseased condition caused by a series of events, of a similar or like nature, occurring regularly or at frequent intervals over an extended period of time, in employment. The term has likewise been defined as a diseased condition arising gradually from the character of the employee's work. These are the accepted definitions of the term. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 234 N.C. 126, 66 S.E.2d 693 (1951).

A disease, contracted in the usual and ordinary course of events, which from the common experience of humanity is known to be incidental to a particular employment, is an occupational disease. Morrow v. Memorial Mission Hosp., 21 N.C. App. 299, 204 S.E.2d 543 (1974).

An "occupational disease" suffered by a servant or an employee, if it means anything as distinguished from a disease caused or superinduced by an actionable wrong or injury, is neither more nor less than a disease which is the usual incident or result of the particular employment in which the worker is engaged, as distinguished from one which is caused or brought about by the employer's failure in his duty to furnish him a safe place to work.

Morrow v. Memorial Mission Hosp., 21 N.C. App. 299, 204 S.E.2d 543 (1974).

When Illness Is Compensable. — An illness is compensable under this section, whether mentioned specifically in the statute or falling within the general definition in subdivision (13) of this section, only if it also comes within well understood definitions of the term "occupational diseases." Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

Only those occupational diseases specifically designated are compensable under the act. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 231 N.C. 477, 57 S.E.2d 760 (1950), decided prior to the first 1971 amendment which rewrote subdivision (13).

Only those diseases and conditions enumerated in this section are occupational diseases within the meaning of the act. McAllister v. Cone Mills Corp., 88 N.C. App. 577, 364 S.E.2d 186 (1988).

Unless Due to Specified Causes and Conditions. — The clear language of this section provides that for any disease other than those specifically named to be deemed an "occupational disease," it must be proven to be due to causes and conditions as specified in the section. Hansel v. Sherman Textiles, 304 N.C. 44, 283 S.E.2d 101 (1981).

Or Aggravated or Accelerated by Conditions Peculiar to Employment. — Disability resulting from a disease is compensable when the disease is aggravated or accelerated by causes and conditions characteristic of and peculiar to claimant's employment. Robinson v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 619, 292 S.E.2d 144 (1982).

If a disease is not disabling apart from aggravation by occupational conditions, the employer must compensate the employee for the entire resulting disability. Robinson v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 619, 292 S.E.2d 144 (1982).

Disability caused by, or death resulting from, a disease is compensable only when the disease is an occupational disease, or is aggravated or accelerated by causes and conditions characteristic of and peculiar to the claimant's employment. Goodman v. Cone Mills Corp., 75 N.C. App. 493, 331 S.E.2d 261 (1985).

Circumstances Showing Connection Between Disease and Occupation. — In the case of occupational diseases, proof of a causal connection between the disease and the employee's occupation must of necessity be based on circumstantial evidence. Among the circumstances which may be considered are the following: (1) The extent of exposure to the disease or disease-causing agents during employment; (2) the extent of exposure outside employment; and (3) absence of the disease prior to the work-related exposure, as shown by the employee's medical history. Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979);

Hansel v. Sherman Textiles, 49 N.C. App. 1, 270 S.E.2d 585 (1980), rev'd on other grounds, 304 N.C. 44, 283 S.E.2d 101 (1981).

Qualifying Disease Is Compensable Even if It Is Also an "Injury by Accident".

— If an employee contracts an infectious disease as a result of his employment and it falls within either the schedule of diseases set out in the statute or the general definition of "occupational disease" in subdivision (13), it should be treated as a compensable event regardless of the fact that it might also qualify as an "injury by accident" under § 97-2(6). Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

Denial of compensation may be predicated upon failure of claimant to prove any element of compensability under this section. Hansel v. Sherman Textiles, 304 N.C. 44, 283 S.E.2d 101 (1981).

Expert Testimony. — Conflicting expert testimony on the question of whether the deceased employee died as a result of an occupational disease, caused by exposure to benzol poisoning, arising out of and in the course of his employment, was sufficient to sustain the Commission's award of compensation to the employee's dependent. Tindall v. American Furn. Co., 216 N.C. 306, 4 S.E.2d 894 (1939).

While the construction of a statute is ultimately a question of law for the courts, expert opinion testimony as to the meaning of technical terms used in a statute is clearly competent. Expert testimony may be received as an aid to proper interpretation if the statute or rule uses technical terms which are not generally understood or is ambiguous or indefinite. Taylor v. Cone Mills Corp., 306 N.C. 314, 293 S.E.2d 189 (1982).

Duty of Commission. — In determining whether a given illness falls within a definition set out in this section, it is the duty of the Commission to consider all of the competent evidence, make definitive findings, draw its conclusions of law from these findings, and enter the appropriate award. Harrell v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 45 N.C. App. 197, 262 S.E.2d 830, cert. denied, 300 N.C. 196, 269 S.E.2d 623 (1980).

Appellate Review Limited. — Review of Industrial Commission decisions is limited to a determination of whether there was competent evidence before the Commission to support its findings and whether such findings support its legal conclusions; the Court of Appeals cannot substitute its judgment for that of the Commission. Findings of fact, when supported by competent evidence, are conclusive on appeal. Keel v. H & V, Inc., 107 N.C. App. 536, 421 S.E.2d 362 (1992).

Evaluation of Evidence. — In making its findings, the Commission's function is to weigh and evaluate the entire evidence and determine as best it can where the truth lies. Harrell v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 45 N.C. App. 197, 262 S.E.2d 830, cert. denied, 300 N.C. 196, 269 S.E.2d 623 (1980).

Proof of Inability to Earn. — Plaintiffs may prove they were incapable after injury of earning the same wages they had earned before injury in any other employment in one of four ways: (1) the production of medical evidence that they are physically or mentally, as consequence of the work related injury, incapable of work in any employment; (2) the production of evidence that they are capable of some work, but have, after a reasonable effort been unsuccessful in their effort to obtain employment; (3) the production of evidence that they are capable of some work but that it would be futile because of preexisting conditions, i.e., age, inexperience, or lack of education, to seek other employment; or (4) the production of evidence that they have obtained other employment at a wage less than that earned prior to the injury. Grantham v. R.G. Barry Corp., 115 N.C. App. 293, 444 S.E.2d 659 (1994).

Award for Total Disability Not Authorized Where 40 to 50 Percent Not Occupational in Origin. — The Industrial Commission does not have authority to award compensation for total disability when 40 to 50 percent of claimant's disablement is not occupational in origin and was not aggravated or accelerated by any occupational disease. Morrison v. Burlington Indus., 304 N.C. 1, 282 S.E.2d 458 (1981).

Award for Partial Disability Upheld. — Where evidence supported the Industrial Commission's conclusion that claimant was totally disabled and that 55 percent of her disability was due to an occupational disease and 45 percent of her disability was due to other physical infirmities, it was not error for the Commission to award claimant compensation for a 55 percent partial disability rather than for total disability. Morrison v. Burlington Indus., 304 N.C. 1, 282 S.E.2d 458 (1981).

Finding of Total Disability Proper. — Evidence that plaintiff, age 58, had a fifth grade education and had no training to do any work other than textile work; that prior to his employment in textile mills, plaintiff had no lung disease or breathing difficulties; that during his employment he developed respiratory problems; that plaintiff was diagnosed as having byssinosis; and that he was 50 percent to 70 percent disabled and was totally disabled to perform his former textile employment was evidence supporting the Commission's findings and conclusion that plaintiff was totally disabled due to an occupational disease. Anderson v. A.M. Smyre Mfg. Co., 54 N.C. App. 337, 283 S.E.2d 433 (1981).

Applied in Clark v. Burlington Indus., 49 N.C. App. 269, 271 S.E.2d 101 (1980); May v.

II. SUBDIVISION (13).

The 1963 amendment of subdivision (13) of this section to include infections or inflammations of "any other internal or external organ or organs of the body" applied only to cases in which the last exposure in an occupation subject to the hazards of such disease occurred on or after July 1, 1963. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

The 1971 amendment to subdivision (13) of this section broadened its coverage to include a wider range of conditions susceptible to interpretation of being occupational diseases within the meaning of the act. Carawan v. Carolina Tel. & Tel. Co., 79 N.C. App. 703, 340 S.E.2d 506 (1986).

When Disease Is Compensable Under Subdivision (13). — A disease is compensable under subdivision (13) of this section where neither the chemical causing the disease nor the disease itself is mentioned in the statute.

McAllister v. Cone Mills Corp., 88 N.C. App. 577, 364 S.E.2d 186 (1988).

The 1971 amendment of subdivision (13) of this section to its present form, which defines occupational disease, applies to all cases originating on and after July 1, 1971. Unlike the 1963 amendment, it was not limited to cases in which the "last exposure" to disease occurred after its effective date, but to cases "originating" after such date. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

The current (1971) version of subdivision (13) of this section applies to all claims for disablement in which the disability occurs after the statute's effective date, July 1, 1971. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

Time of Disablement. — Given plaintiff's allegation that she was disabled after the effective date of the present version of subdivision (13), it was incumbent upon the Commission to determine when plaintiff became disabled before it decided which law applied to her claim. Where the Commission heard no evidence on this point and made no factual determination as to the date of disablement, the case would be remanded for a determination of that issue. Wood v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 297 N.C. 636, 256 S.E.2d 692 (1979).

Time of disablement for the purpose of deciding which version of the Workers' Compensation Act to apply runs from the date the claimant was incapable of working due to a later diagnosed occupational disease. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 300 N.C. 94, 265 S.E.2d 144 (1980).

Subdivision (13) Intended to Define "Occupational Disease." — Except for those diseases specifically named in the statute, the legislature intended the present version of subdivision (13) to define the term "occupational disease." To the extent that this statute conflicts with prior judicial definitions of the term "occupational disease," the older definitions must give way. Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

What Constitutes Occupational Disease. — Under subdivision (13) of this section, any disease is an occupational disease if it is due to causes and conditions peculiarly characteristic of the worker's particular trade, occupation or employment, and if the disease is not one that the general public, outside of the particular employment, stands an equal risk of contracting. The statute contains no other conditions and excludes no particular diseases, including the ordinary diseases of life. Thomason v. Fiber Indus., 78 N.C. App. 159, 336 S.E.2d 632 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 202, 341 S.E.2d 573 (1986).

A disease is an occupational disease compensable under this section if claimant's employment exposed him to a greater risk of contracting this disease than members of the public generally and such exposure significantly contributed to, or was a significant causal factor in, the disease's development. Perry v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 80 N.C. App. 650, 343 S.E.2d 215 (1986).

For an occupational disease to be compensable under subdivision (13) of this section, two conditions must be met: (1) It must be due to causes and conditions characteristic and peculiar to the employment; and (2) the particular employment conditions must place the worker at greater risk than the general public of contracting the disease. Fann v. Burlington Indus., 59 N.C. App. 512, 296 S.E.2d 819 (1982).

To prove the existence of a compensable "occupational disease" under this section:

(1) the disease must be characteristic of a trade or occupation; (2) the disease must not be an ordinary disease of life to which the public is equally exposed outside of the employment; and (3) there must be proof of causation, i.e., proof of a causal connection between the disease and the employment. Hansel v. Sherman Textiles, 304 N.C. 44, 283 S.E.2d 101 (1981); Perry v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 80 N.C. App. 650, 343 S.E.2d 215 (1986).

What Plaintiff Must Show Under Subdivision (13). — Plaintiff must show, in order to be entitled to compensation for disablement resulting from an occupational disease covered by subdivision (13) of this section: (1) that her disablement results from an occupational disease encompassed by this section, i.e., an occupational disease due to causes and conditions which are characteristic of and peculiar to a particular trade, occupation or employment, as distinguished from an ordinary disease of life to which the general public is equally exposed outside of the employment; and (2) the extent of the disablement resulting from said occupational disease, i.e., whether she is totally or partially disabled as a result of the disease. Morrison v. Burlington Indus., 304 N.C. 1, 282 S.E.2d 458 (1981).

The Supreme Court has rejected the requirement that an employee quantify the degree of exposure to the harmful agent during his employment. Any evaluation of the workplace for the agent in question after claimant's departure would not quantify claimant's exposure, but would merely "guessimate" it. Since the degree of exposure does not need to be measured during claimant's employment, it should not need to be quantified in findings of fact, either. Keel v. H & V, Inc., 107 N.C. App. 536, 421 S.E.2d 362 (1992).

Three elements are necessary to show the existence of a compensable occupational disease under this section: (1) the disease must be characteristic of persons engaged in a particular trade or occupation in which the plaintiff is engaged; (2) the disease must not be an ordinary disease of life to which the public is equally exposed; and (3) there must be a causal connection between the disease and the plaintiff's employment. Jarvis v. Food Lion, Inc., 134 N.C. App. 363, 517 S.E.2d 388 (1999).

The substance to which plaintiff was last injuriously exposed need not be in a substance known to cause the disease. Keel v. H & V, Inc., 107 N.C. App. 536, 421 S.E.2d 362 (1992).

When Disease Is "Characteristic" of Profession. — To be compensable under subdivision (13) of this section, a disease must, inter alia, be "characteristic of and peculiar to a particular trade, occupation or employment." A disease is "characteristic" of a profession when there is a recognizable link between the nature of the job and an increased risk of contracting the disease in question. Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979); Humphries v. Cone Mills Corp., 52 N.C. App. 612, 279 S.E.2d 56, cert. denied, 304 N.C. 390, 285 S.E.2d 832 (1981); Anderson v. A.M. Smyre Mfg. Co., 54 N.C. App. 337, 283 S.E.2d 433 (1981).

Under subdivision (13), a disease is "characteristic" of a profession when there is a recognizable link between the nature of the job and an increased risk of contracting the disease in question. Keller v. City of Wilmington Police Dept., 65 N.C. App. 675, 309 S.E.2d 543 (1983).

"Peculiar to the occupation," as used in subdivision (13) of this section, means that the conditions of the employment must result in a hazard which distinguishes it in character from the general run of occupations and is in excess of that attending employment in general. Keller v. City of Wilmington Police Dept., 65 N.C. App. 675, 309 S.E.2d 543 (1983).

"Employment" Refers to Particular Job. — When considering whether a claimant suffers from an occupational disease, the term "employment" must be interpreted as referring to the claimant's particular job, rather than to the type of job. Woody v. Thomasville Upholstery Inc., — N.C. App. —, 552 S.E.2d 202, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 857 (2001).

Proof of Causation Is Essential. — In order for an occupational disease which develops over a long period of time to be compensable under subdivision (13) of this section, it must be proved that it was caused by the plaintiff's employment. Brown v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 49 N.C. App. 118, 270 S.E.2d 602 (1980), cert. denied, 304 N.C. 192, 285 S.E.2d 96 (1981).

Proof of a causal connection between the disease and the employee's occupation is an essential element in proving the existence of a compensable occupational disease within the meaning of this section. Hansel v. Sherman Textiles, 49 N.C. App. 1, 270 S.E.2d 585 (1980), rev'd on other grounds, 304 N.C. 44, 283 S.E.2d 101 (1981).

There must be a proof of causation between the injury and the employment. Keller v. City of Wilmington Police Dept., 65 N.C. App. 675, 309 S.E.2d 543 (1983).

Plaintiff did not meet the burden of showing a causal connection between her back injury and her employment with defendant. Thompson v. Tyson Foods, Inc., 119 N.C. App. 411, 458 S.E.2d 746 (1995).

If a disease is produced by some extrinsic or independent agency, it may not be imputed to the occupation or the employment. Moore v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 47 N.C. App. 744, 269 S.E.2d 159, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 401, 274 S.E.2d 226 (1980).

But Employment Need Not Be Exclusive Cause of Disease. — Subdivision (13) in no way requires that the conditions of employment be the exclusive cause of the disease in order to be compensable. Humphries v. Cone Mills Corp., 52 N.C. App. 612, 279 S.E.2d 56, cert. denied, 304 N.C. 390, 285 S.E.2d 832 (1981).

The disease need not be one which originates exclusively from the particular kind of employment in which the employee is engaged, but rather, employment must result in a hazard which distinguishes it in character from the general run of occupations. Humphries v. Cone Mills Corp., 52 N.C. App. 612, 279 S.E.2d 56, cert. denied, 304 N.C. 390, 285 S.E.2d 832 (1981).

The hazards of employment do not have to be the sole cause of a worker's injury in order for the worker to receive compensation for the full extent of his incapacity for work caused by the injury. Rutledge v. Tultex Corp./Kings Yarn, 308 N.C. 85, 301 S.E.2d 359 (1983).

Where the accident and resultant injury arise out of both the idiopathic condition of the worker and the hazards incident to the employment, the employer is liable. But not so where the idiopathic condition is the sole cause of the injury. Rutledge v. Tultex Corp./Kings Yarn, 308 N.C. 85, 301 S.E.2d 359 (1983).

Rutledge v. Tultex Corp./Kings Yarn, 308 N.C. 85, 301 S.E.2d 359 (1983) expressly replaced the former standard of actual causation with a liberalized standard of causation, whereby exposure to cotton dust need only be a significant causative or contributing factor in the disease's development. Calloway v. Mills, 78 N.C. App. 702, 338 S.E.2d 548 (1986).

Fact that on cross-examination physician testified that plaintiff's cigarette smoking was probably a more significant contributing factor than his occupation did not compel the conclusion that plaintiff did not have a compensable occupational disease. So long as the employment significantly contributed to, or was a significant causal factor in, the disease's development, an occupational disease is compensable under this section. Perry v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 80 N.C. App. 650, 343 S.E.2d 215 (1986).

The claimant's rotator cuff injury was compensable, even if her second job aggravated the injury, where the shoulder pains began two years before she began cleaning houses in addition to her regular job as a reclaim operator, and this subsection does not require that the conditions of employment be the exclusive cause of the occupational disease. Garren v. P.H. Glatfelter Co., 131 N.C. App. 93, 504 S.E.2d 810 (1998).

Disease Need Not Be Unique to the Particular Occupation. — To satisfy the first and second elements of subdivision (13) of this section, it is not necessary that the disease originate exclusively from or be unique to the particular trade or occupation in question. All ordinary diseases of life are not excluded from the statute's coverage. Only those ordinary diseases of life to which the general public is exposed equally with workers in the particular trade or occupation are excluded. Thus, the first two elements are satisfied if, as a matter of fact, the employment exposed the worker to a greater risk of contracting the disease than the public generally. Rutledge v. Tultex Corp./Kings Yarn, 308 N.C. 85, 301 S.E.2d 359 (1983).

Factual inquiry should be whether occupational exposure was such significant factor in the disease's development that without it the disease would not have developed to such an extent that it caused the physical disability which resulted in claimant's incapacity for work. Rutledge v. Tultex Corp./Kings Yarn, 308 N.C. 85, 301 S.E.2d 359 (1983); Collins v. Mills, 85 N.C. App. 243, 354 S.E.2d 245 (1987).

Causal Connection May Be Established by Circumstantial Evidence. — In occupational disease cases, the causal connection between the disease and the employee's occupation must of necessity be based upon circumstantial evidence. Lumley v. Dancy Constr. Co., 79 N.C. App. 114, 339 S.E.2d 9 (1986).

Circumstantial evidence of the causal connection between the occupation and the disease is sufficient. Medical opinions given may be based either on personal knowledge or observation or on information supplied him by others, including the patient. Absolute medical certainty is not required. Keel v. H & V, Inc., 107 N.C. App. 536, 421 S.E.2d 362 (1992).

The right to compensation for a disease caused in part by occupational factors and in part by nonoccupational factors depends on proving: (1) that the occupation in question exposed the worker to a greater risk of contracting the disease than members of the public generally, and (2) that the worker's exposure significantly contributed to or was a significant causal factor in the disease's development. Mills v. Mills, 68 N.C. App. 151, 314 S.E.2d 833 (1984); Gay v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 79 N.C. App. 324, 339 S.E.2d 490 (1986).

Ordinary Disease of Life. — If the medical evidence tends to show that plaintiff suffers from an ordinary disease of life to which the general public is equally exposed, which is not proven to be due to causes and conditions which are characteristic of and peculiar to any particular trade, occupation or employment and which is not aggravated or accelerated by an occupational disease, the claim is not compensable. Thompson v. Burlington Indus., 59 N.C. App. 539, 297 S.E.2d 122 (1982), cert. denied, 307 N.C. 582, 299 S.E.2d 650 (1983).

Exposure to Environmental Irritants. — Where an employee is exposed in his workplace to environmental irritants which in fact hasten the onset of a disabling condition which did not previously exist, such aggravation is tantamount to causation for purposes of subdivision (13) of this section, and the resulting disability is an occupational disease thereunder. Walston v. Burlington Indus., 49 N.C. App. 301, 271 S.E.2d 516 (1980), rev'd on other grounds, 304 N.C. 670, 285 S.E.2d 822 (1982).

Commission Was Not Required to Make Two Separate Findings Regarding Aggravation of Disease. — The terms "significantly contributing to" and "aggravated," regarding exposure to a substance and its effect on a claimant's health, are interchangeable. Therefore, where the Industrial Commission had determined that plaintiff's exposure to cotton dust did not significantly contribute to his disease, it was tantamount to a finding that his disease was not aggravated by his exposure to cotton dust. It was not necessary for the Commission to make two separate findings. Wilkins v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 100 N.C. App. 742, 398 S.E.2d 66 (1990), aff'd, 333 N.C. 449, 426 S.E.2d 675 (1993).

Commission Must Determine Significance of Exposure. — Ultimately, the Commission must determine whether the occupational exposure was such a significant factor in the disease's development that without it the disease would not have developed to such an extent that it caused the physical disability which resulted in claimant's incapacity for work. Gay v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 79 N.C. App. 324, 339 S.E.2d 490 (1986); Perry v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 80 N.C. App. 650, 343 S.E.2d 215 (1986).

Factors in Determining Significance of Exposure. — In determining the role occupational exposure played in development of disease, the Commission may consider, in addition to expert medical testimony, factual circumstances which bear on the question of causation. Thus, the Commission may consider (1) the nature and extent of claimant's occupational exposure, (2) the presence or absence of other nonwork-related exposures and components which contributed to the disease's development, and (3) correlations between claimant's work history and the development of the disease. Gay v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 79 N.C. App. 324, 339 S.E.2d 490 (1986); Keel v. H & V, Inc., 107 N.C. App. 536, 421 S.E.2d 362 (1992).

Award Where Occupational and Nonoccupational Disease Cannot Be Apportioned. — Where medical evidence would not permit any reasonable apportionment of claimant's disability between occupational and nonoccupational disease, claimant would be entitled to an award for her entire disability if her occupational disease was a substantial and material factor in bringing about that disability. Harrell v. Harriet & Henderson Yarns, 314 N.C. 566, 336 S.E.2d 47 (1985), remanding to the Commission for a determination of the issue.

Mixed Question of Law and Fact. — Whether a given illness falls within the general definition set out in subdivision (13) presents a mixed question of fact and law. The Commission must determine first the nature of the disease from which the plaintiff is suffering, that is, its characteristics, symptoms and manifestations. Ordinarily, such findings will be based on expert medical testimony. Having made appropriate findings of fact, the next question the Commission must answer is whether or not the illness which plaintiff has contracted falls within the definition set out in the statute. This latter judgment requires a conclusion of law. Wood v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 297 N.C. 636, 256 S.E.2d 692 (1979); Harrell v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 45 N.C. App. 197, 262 S.E.2d 830, cert. denied, 300 N.C. 196, 269 S.E.2d 623 (1980).

Whether a given illness falls within the general definitions set out in subdivision (13) of this section presents a mixed question of fact and law. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 300 N.C. 94, 265 S.E.2d 144 (1980); Taylor v. Cone Mills Corp., 306 N.C. 314, 293 S.E.2d 189 (1982).

Explicit Findings Required. — Where the Commission awards compensation for disablement due to an occupational disease encompassed by subdivision (13), the opinion an award must contain explicit findings as to the characteristics, symptoms and manifestations of the disease from which the plaintiff suffers, as well as a conclusion of law as to whether the disease falls within the statutory provision. Moore v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 47 N.C. App. 744, 269 S.E.2d 159, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 401, 274 S.E.2d 226 (1980); Hansel v. Sherman Textiles, 304 N.C. 44, 283 S.E.2d 101 (1981); Keel v. H & V, Inc., 107 N.C. App. 536, 421 S.E.2d 362 (1992).

Occupational Disease Found. — Competent evidence supported the finding that a textile mill employee's work environment significantly contributed to the development of her asthma to the extent that it disabled her, where a medical expert testified that exposure "more likely than not" contributed to the worsening of her asthma, and another doctor testified that the employee's asthma was severe enough to prevent her from working. Locklear v. Stedman Corporation/Sara Lee Knit Prods., 131 N.C. App. 389, 508 S.E.2d 795 (1998).

A claimant's fibromyalgia, which was contributed to by severe depression caused by a supervisor's demeaning treatment, and the employer's failure to remedy the problem, was a compensable occupational disease. Woody v. Thomasville Upholstery Inc., — N.C. App. —, 552 S.E.2d 202, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 857 (2001).

Occupational Disease Not Found. — Evidence was insufficient to support a finding that plaintiff had a compensable occupational disease, where none of plaintiff's co-workers testified that they had consulted a physician and had been diagnosed with fibromyalgia, although they testified that they experienced similar symptoms as plaintiff, and none of the medical witnesses expressed an opinion as to whether plaintiff's employment or occupation subjected her to a greater risk of contracting the disease. Norris v. Drexel Heritage Furnishings, Inc., 139 N.C. App. 620, 534 S.E.2d 259 (2000).

Unless there is a proper finding that plaintiff suffers from an occupational disease, the analysis required by Morrison v. Burlington Indus., 304 N.C. 1, 282 S.E.2d 458 (1981) and Hansel v. Sherman Textiles, 304 N.C. 44, 283 S.E.2d 101 (1981) is inappropriate. Lumpkins v. Mills, 56 N.C. App. 653, 289 S.E.2d 848 (1982).

Claimant Has Burden of Proof. — A claimant's right to compensation for an occupational disease under subdivision (13) of this section and § 97-52 depends upon proper proof of causation, and the burden of proving each and every element of compensability is upon the plaintiff. Moore v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 47 N.C. App. 744, 269 S.E.2d 159, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 401, 274 S.E.2d 226 (1980).

The claimant carries the burden of proving the existence of a compensable claim. Gay v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 79 N.C. App. 324, 339 S.E.2d 490 (1986).

Claimant has the burden of proof, but if the occupational exposure in question is such that it augments the disease process to any degree, however slight, the employer is liable. Keel v. H & V, Inc., 107 N.C. App. 536, 421 S.E.2d 362 (1992).

Respiratory surfaces of the lungs are "external contact surfaces" of the body as contemplated by subdivision (13) of this section as it existed prior to the 1971 amendment.

Taylor v. Cone Mills Corp., 306 N.C. 314, 293 S.E.2d 189 (1982).

Evidence offered was sufficient to support the Industrial Commission's findings that a spontaneous tear of the rotator cuff was an occupational disease within the meaning of subsection (13) of this section. Gibbs v. Leggett & Platt, Inc., 112 N.C. App. 103, 434 S.E.2d 653 (1993).

Causal Relationship Between Disease and Inability to Work. — Evidence that a claimant's environmental restriction (caused by an occupational disease) significantly limits the scope of potential employment in his or her usual vocation, when combined with other factors such as a lack of training in any other vocation, is competent to establish a causal nexus between the occupational disease and the partial or total inability to earn wages in the same or any other employment. Preslar v. Cannon Mills Co., 80 N.C. App. 610, 343 S.E.2d 209 (1986).

Individual who retired from job in which he had 47 years of experience at age 70, and subsequently attempted to return to work but could not obtain comparable employment, was entitled to partial disability compensation based on the difference between his present and former wages, in view of environmental restriction, caused by his occupational disease (COPD), which combined with other factors to limit the scope of his potential employment. Preslar v. Cannon Mills Co., 80 N.C. App. 610, 343 S.E.2d 209 (1986).

Wrongful Death Claim Barred. — Wrongful death complaint alleging that defendant, decedent's employer, negligently required decedent to perform tasks which exposed decedent to known carcinogens, thereby causing decedent's cancer of the bladder and resulting death, came within the language of subdivision (13) of this section and was barred by the Workers' Compensation Act. McAllister v. Cone Mills Corp., 88 N.C. App. 577, 364 S.E.2d 186 (1988).

Evidence Sufficient. — The employee met her burden in showing that her employment caused or was a significant contributing factor to her rotator cuff tear, where she showed that her work as a reclaim operator required her to perform the repetitive activities involving her shoulders of removing, replacing, and stacking bobbins, and her medical witness testified that the work could have been a significant factor in causing the injury. Garren v. P.H. Glatfelter Co., 131 N.C. App. 93, 504 S.E.2d 810 (1998).

III. PARTICULAR DISEASES.

Degenerative disc condition which is not shown to be "characteristic of and peculiar to" plaintiff's employment is not an occupational disease, and there can be no compensation without a connection between the disease and the employment. Griffitts v. Thomasville Furn. Co., 65 N.C. App. 369, 309 S.E.2d 277 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 477, 312 S.E.2d 884 (1984).

Evidence Insufficient. — Court agreed with Industrial Commission that plaintiff failed to demonstrate that her carpal tunnel syndrome was an occupational disease "which was characteristic of and peculiar to her employment" within the meaning of this section. Jarvis v. Food Lion, Inc., 134 N.C. App. 363, 517 S.E.2d 388 (1999).

Heart Disease. — Heart disease is not an occupational disease. West v. North Carolina Dep't of Conservation & Dev., 229 N.C. 232, 49 S.E.2d 398 (1948); Duncan v. City of Charlotte, 234 N.C. 86, 66 S.E.2d 22 (1951).

Infectious hepatitis is not listed in this section. Smith v. Memorial Mission Hosp., 21 N.C. App. 380, 204 S.E.2d 546 (1974).

Evidence presented was insufficient to show that infectious hepatitis was a disease which was characteristic of and peculiar to the occupation of a master mechanic acting, sometimes as a plumber, in the course of his employment for a hospital. Morrow v. Memorial Mission Hosp., 21 N.C. App. 299, 204 S.E.2d 543 (1974); Smith v. Memorial Mission Hosp., 21 N.C. App. 380, 204 S.E.2d 546 (1974).

Serum Hepatitis. — Because serum hepatitis is not expressly mentioned in the schedule of diseases contained in this section, it is a compensable injury only if it falls within the general definition set out in subdivision (13). Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

Dermatitis resulting from contact with gloves made of commercial rubber held not an occupational disease compensable under the act. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 231 N.C. 477, 57 S.E.2d 760 (1950).

Skin Condition Caused by Sensitivity to Chemicals Used in Work. — A hair stylist was not entitled to disability compensation payments where her skin condition, caused by her sensitivity to chemicals used in her work, had completely cleared up within one month of her terminating employment. While it might be true that her skin disease could recur if she returned to her previous job, there was no evidence of any continuing disability as a result of a disease contracted in the course of employment. She was not entitled to compensation for her susceptibility to the skin disease. Sebastian v. Mona Watkins Hair Styling, 40 N.C. App. 30, 251 S.E.2d 872, cert. denied, 297 N.C. 301, 254 S.E.2d 921 (1979).

Calcification of Tendons and Ligaments. — Where, in a hearing before the Industrial Commission, the critical issue raised by the evidence was whether the calcification of tendons and ligaments in plaintiff's shoulders, resulting in a 10 percent permanent partial disability to both arms, was an occupational disease within the meaning of subdivision (13), this issue engendered two distinct findings of fact which had to be made: (1) an explicit description of plaintiff's duties in performing her occupation, and (2) a determination of whether such duties caused the calcification and resulting disability to either or both of plaintiff's arms. Cannady v. Gold Kist, 43 N.C. App. 482, 259 S.E.2d 342 (1979).

Tenosynovitis Caused by Trauma in Employment. — Synovitis is the inflammation of a synovial membrane and tenosynovitis or tendosynovitis is the inflammation of a synovial membrane which forms the protective sheath that encloses the tendon. It is sometimes used to denote the inflammation of both the sheath and the tendon. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 234 N.C. 126, 66 S.E.2d 693 (1951).

The causative origin of tenosynovitis is either infection or trauma. The clause "caused by trauma in employment" was used by the legislature to modify the word "tenosynovitis" so as to include the occupational and exclude the infectious type, i.e., to include the traumatic and exclude the idiopathic. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 234 N.C. 126, 66 S.E.2d 693 (1951).

In using the modifying phrase, "caused by trauma in employment," the legislature necessarily meant a series of events in employment occurring regularly, or at frequent intervals, over an extended period of time, and culminating in the condition technically known as tenosynovitis. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 234 N.C. 126, 66 S.E.2d 693 (1951).

A single blow on the arm might bruise the extensor tendons to such an extent as to cause temporary tenosynovitis. The resulting condition would be properly termed an injury by accident caused by trauma. But it would not constitute an occupational disease, for an occupational disease is a diseased or morbid condition which develops gradually, and is produced by a series of events in employment occurring over a period of time. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 234 N.C. 126, 66 S.E.2d 693 (1951).

Tenosynovitis attributable to repeated strain or stress on the extensor tendons of claimant's arms incident to the performance of the duties of his employment is "caused by trauma in employment" and is an occupational disease compensable under the provisions of this section, since "trauma" in its technical sense is not limited to injuries resulting from external force or violence. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 234 N.C. 126, 66 S.E.2d 693 (1951).

Silicosis is an inflammatory disease of the lungs due to the inhalation of particles of silicon dioxide. It is incurable and is one of the most disabling occupational diseases because it makes the lungs susceptible to other infection, particularly tuberculosis. According to the textbook writers, it has been definitely determined that the removal of a man who has silicosis from silica exposure, does not stop the progress of the disease at once, but that fibrotic changes continue to develop for another one or two years. Singleton v. D.T. Vance Mica Co., 235 N.C. 315, 69 S.E.2d 707 (1952).

Byssinosis. — The Commission erred in assuming that byssinosis is an irritation of the pulmonary air passages without hearing evidence and making findings of fact as to the nature of claimant's illness, which is required of the Commission in determining whether a given illness falls within the general definition set out in subdivision (13). The causes and development of byssinosis, and the structural and functional changes produced by the diseases, are still the subject of scientific debate, and the Supreme Court has never before considered a case involving byssinosis. Under these circumstances, judicial notice as to the essential characteristics of the disease is inappropriate. Wood v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 297 N.C. 636, 256 S.E.2d 692 (1979).

Despite evidence that plaintiff had smoked three-fourths of a pack of cigarettes daily for 30 years, the medical evidence and plaintiff's own testimony was sufficient to find him permanently disabled under this section from byssinosis caused by the conditions of his employment in the weave room of a textile plant. Humphries v. Cone Mills Corp., 52 N.C. App. 612, 279 S.E.2d 56, cert. denied, 304 N.C. 390, 285 S.E.2d 832 (1981).

Byssinosis, as a component of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, is a compensable occupational disease. Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 69 N.C. App. 263, 317 S.E.2d 120, modified on other grounds, 316 N.C. 426, 342 S.E.2d 798 (1986).

Apportionment between causal factors is no longer the standard for disability compensation in cases involving exposure to cotton dust. Gibson v. Little Cotton Mfg. Co., 73 N.C. App. 143, 325 S.E.2d 698 (1985).

Evidence held sufficient to support the finding that plaintiff was partially incapable of engaging in gainful employment by byssinosis and chronic obstructive lung disease as a result of 29 years of smoking and exposure to cotton dust, and that his occupational disease, combined with his age, limited education and work experience, limited his ability to earn wages. Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986).

Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease. — To hold that the inhalation of cotton dust must be the sole cause of chronic obstructive lung disease before this disease can be considered occupational establishes too harsh a principle from the standpoint of the worker and the purposes and policies of the Workers' Compensation Act. This act should be liberally construed so that the benefits under the act will not be denied by narrow, technical or strict interpretation. Rutledge v. Tultex Corp./Kings Yarn, 308 N.C. 85, 301 S.E.2d 359 (1983).

Chronic obstructive lung disease may be an occupational disease provided the occupation in question exposed the worker to a greater risk of contracting this disease than members of the public generally, and provided the worker's exposure to cotton dust significantly contributed to, or was a significant causal factor in, the disease's development. This is so even if other non-work related factors also made significant contributions or were significant causal factors. Dowdy v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 308 N.C. 701, 304 S.E.2d 215 (1983), rehearing denied, 311 S.E.2d 590 (N.C. 1984); McHargue v. Burlington Indus., 78 N.C. App. 324, 337 S.E.2d 584 (1985); 302 N.C. 183, 273 S.E.2d 705 (1981).

An employee who suffers from chronic obstructive pulmonary disease is entitled to findings of fact and conclusions of law that said disease in an occupational disease pursuant to subdivision (13) of this section, if it is shown by competent evidence that occupational exposure to a hazard known to cause the disease, such as cotton dust, significantly contributed to the causation or development of the disease. Swink v. Cone Mills, Inc., 65 N.C. App. 397, 309 S.E.2d 271 (1983).

A claimant is not required to establish work-related byssinosis as a causal element of his or her chronic obstructive pulmonary disease in order to prove the existence of an occupational disease within the meaning of subdivision (13) of this section. Rather, he or she needs only to establish the existence of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease and to establish that exposure to cotton dust in the work environment significantly contributed to or was a significant causal factor in the development of the disease. Clark v. American & Efrid Mills, 66 N.C. App. 624, 311 S.E.2d 624, cert. denied, 311 N.C. 399, 319 S.E.2d 268 (1984), aff'd, 312 N.C. 616, 323 S.E.2d 920 (1985).

Where plaintiff established the existence of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease with chronic bronchitis as the only element thereof, in order to conclude that plaintiff did not have an occupational disease within the meaning of subdivision (13) of this section the Commission would have to make findings, supported by competent record evidence, that plaintiff's exposure to cotton dust was neither a significant contribution to nor a significant causal factor in the development of her disease. Clark v. American & Efrid Mills, 66 N.C. App. 624, 311 S.E.2d 624, cert. denied, 311 N.C. 399, 319 S.E.2d 268 (1984), aff'd, 312 N.C. 616, 323 S.E.2d 920 (1985).

Although the Industrial Commission made no findings regarding the significance of plaintiff's exposure to cotton dust in relation to the development of his lung disease, an award of workers' compensation would nevertheless be proper if the evidence supported a conclusion that occupational exposure was a significant contributing or causal factor in the development of plaintiff's lung disease. Mills v. Mills, 68 N.C. App. 151, 314 S.E.2d 833 (1984).

The following legal standard determines whether a claimant suffering from chronic obstructive lung disease has a compensable occupational disease under subdivision (13): The occupation in question must have exposed the worker to a greater risk of contracting this disease than members of the public generally, and provided the worker's exposure to cotton dust significantly contributed to, or was a significant causal factor in, the disease's development. This is so even if other non-work related factors also make significant contributions, or were significant causal factors. Gibson v. Little Cotton Mfg. Co., 73 N.C. App. 143, 325 S.E.2d 698 (1985).

Chronic obstructive lung disease may be an occupational disease provided that the worker's exposure to substances peculiar to the occupation in question significantly contributed to, or was a significant causal factor in, the development of the disease. Goodman v. Cone Mills Corp., 75 N.C. App. 493, 331 S.E.2d 261 (1985).

In determining whether exposure to an occupational substance significantly contributed to, or was a significant causal factor in, chronic obstructive lung disease, the Commission may consider medical testimony as well as other factual circumstances in the case, including the extent of the worker's exposure to the substance, the extent of non-occupational but contributing factors, and the manner of development of the disease as it relates to the claimant's work history. Goodman v. Cone Mills Corp., 75 N.C. App. 493, 331 S.E.2d 261 (1985).

Where a medical doctor, a specialist in pulmonary medicine, testified, and the Commission found, that the claimant's chronic obstructive lung disease was not caused, in whole or in part, by exposure to an occupational substance (i.e., cotton dust), but was due instead, to cigarette smoking, upon such a finding, the Commission was required to conclude that the claimant's disease was not an occupational disease. Goodman v. Cone Mills Corp., 75 N.C. App. 493, 331 S.E.2d 261 (1985).

Doctor's testimony that the sulfuric acid fumes inhaled by plaintiff in his employment as a "battery buster" were a respiratory irritant, along with testimony that plaintiff often inhaled those fumes, was sufficient to establish a causal relationship with plaintiff's obstructive lung disease. Cain v. Guyton, 79 N.C. App. 696,

Employee in his late fifties whose formal education ended after the first grade, and who could not read, write or sign his name; did not know his date of birth; had a long history of cigarette smoking; worked on and off in the textile industry until March, 1981; and had chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, was not entitled to benefits, as he failed to prove extent of exposure to cotton dust and causation. Knight v. Cannon Mills Co., 82 N.C. App. 453, 347 S.E.2d 832, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 507, 349 S.E.2d 861 (1986).

Chronic obstructive pulmonary disease may be an occupational disease if (i) the occupation in question exposed the worker to a greater risk of contracting the disease than that faced by members of the public generally and (ii) the worker's exposure to cotton dust significantly contributed to or was a significant causal factor in the disease's development, even if other non-work-related factors also make significant contributions, or were significant causal factors. Rutledge v. Tultex Corp./Kings Yarn, 308 N.C. 85, 301 S.E.2d 359 (1983); Collins v. Mills, 85 N.C. App. 243, 354 S.E.2d 245 (1987).

Testimony of physician that considering plaintiff's history of cigarette smoking, his ability to perform work today would be the same had plaintiff worked on a farm rather than in the textile industry, supported the commission's conclusion that plaintiff's exposure to cotton dust was not a significant factor in the cause of plaintiff's chronic obstructive lung disease. Collins v. Mills, 85 N.C. App. 243, 354 S.E.2d 245 (1987).

When Byssinosis and Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease Are "Occupational" Under Subdivision (13). — Byssinosis and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease are not among the prima facie occupational diseases listed in this section. Therefore, to be "occupational" under the catch-all provision of subdivision (13), the plaintiff's disease must be characteristic of persons engaged in the particular trade or occupation in which the claimant is engaged, and not an ordinary disease of life to which the public generally is equally exposed with those engaged in that particular trade or occupation, and there must be a causal connection between the disease and the claimant's employment. Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986).

Evidence held sufficient to support the finding that plaintiff was partially incapable of engaging in gainful employment by byssinosis and chronic obstructive lung disease as a result of 29 years of smoking and exposure to cotton dust, and that his occupational disease, combined with his age, limited education and work experience, limited his ability to earn wages.

Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986).

Obstruction caused by chronic obstructive lung disease need not be apportioned between occupational and nonoccupational causes; a claimant may recover the entire disability resulting from such obstruction, so long as the occupation-related cause was a significant causal factor in the disease's development. Harrell v. Harriet & Henderson Yarns, 314 N.C. 566, 336 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

Progression of chronic obstructive lung disease is not the test of compensability; rather, the test is whether the occupational exposure significantly contributed to the disabling disease's development. Neal v. Leslie Fay, Inc., 78 N.C. App. 117, 336 S.E.2d 628 (1985).

Lung Disease Partially Caused by Occupational Exposure. — In determining chronic obstructive lung disabilities which are caused in part by occupational exposure to cotton dust and in part by some other cause or causes unrelated to the employment, the following rule applies: When exposure to cotton dust is an insignificant causal factor in, or does not significantly contribute to, the development of the disabling lung disease, it is not an occupational disease within the purview of subdivision (13) of this section and no compensation is due therefor; but when the exposure to cotton dust significantly contributes to, or is a significant causal factor in, the development of a disabling lung disease it is an occupational disease and compensation for the full extent of the disability is due. Neal v. Leslie Fay, Inc., 78 N.C. App. 117, 336 S.E.2d 628 (1985).

Findings as to Cause of Lung Disease. — It was not enough for the Commission to say that claimant's lung disease was "not caused by" exposure to cotton dust in her employment, where the Commission did not, however, make any findings on the issue of "significant contribution." McHargue v. Burlington Indus., 78 N.C. App. 324, 337 S.E.2d 584 (1985).

Tuberculosis — Plaintiff failed to show correlation between his work as a janitor and the development of tuberculosis, with the exception of his exposure to a coemployee with the disease, or that the nature of a janitorial job increased a person's risk of developing tuberculosis, for tuberculosis to be found to be an occupational disease under subdivision (13). Higgs v. Southeastern Cleaning Serv., 122 N.C. App. 456, 470 S.E.2d 337 (1996).

Chronic Bronchitis Caused by Pneumonia. — Finding of the Commission that employee who worked in the cotton textile industry had chronic bronchitis caused by nonwork-related pneumonia would be upheld. Clark v. American & Efrid Mills, 82 N.C. App. 192, 346 S.E.2d 155, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 413, 349 S.E.2d 591 (1986).

Costochondritis. — Evidence tending to show that the disabling inflammation of the cartilaginous tissues between plaintiff's sternum and ribs was caused by her constant lifting of 50 pound cakes of yarn, as her employment required; that the causes and conditions of her inflammation were peculiarly characteristic of her employment; and that her work placed her at a greater risk of contracting the inflammatory disease process than the public at large, few of whom regularly and repeatedly lift anything weighing 50 pounds, was support enough for the Commission's conclusion that plaintiff's disabling costochondritis was an occupational disease under subdivision (13). Thomason v. Fiber Indus., 78 N.C. App. 159, 336 S.E.2d 632 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 202, 341 S.E.2d 573 (1986).

Pesticide Allergy. — Although chlorpyrifos (Dursban), to which plaintiff was allergic, is not listed in this section, the evidence permitted the Commission to find and conclude that the form and quantity of her exposure to chlorpyrifos, due to repeated treatment of the workplace by the employer, caused her to contract a compensable occupational disease. Carawan v. Carolina Tel. & Tel. Co., 79 N.C. App. 703, 340 S.E.2d 506 (1986).

Scarring of Ulnar Arteries. — Evidence held to support the Commission's finding that adventitial scarring of the ulnar arteries was peculiar to the occupation of carpenter's helper, which trade involves repetitive trauma to the palm area of the hand. Lumley v. Dancy Constr. Co., 79 N.C. App. 114, 339 S.E.2d 9 (1986).

Insect Sting. — Where plaintiff failed to show that he was at an increased risk of being stung than a member of the general public, the sting was not an accident or an injury arising out of the employment. Minter v. Osborne Co., 127 N.C. App. 134, 487 S.E.2d 835 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 401, 494 S.E.2d 415 (1997).

Suicide. — Commission's finding that police officer's death by suicide was not due to a compensable disease within the meaning of subdivision (13) was not supported by findings of fact where the commission failed to determine whether he had a dysthymic disorder (depression) as testified to by expert, and made no findings adequate to support a conclusion that if he had a dysthymic disorder, it was not an occupational disease. Harvey v. Raleigh Police Dept., 85 N.C. App. 540, 355 S.E.2d 147, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 631, 360 S.E.2d 86 (1987).

Stress. — There was sufficient evidence to support the findings of the full commission that plaintiff suffered occupational stress as a result of her employment as a police officer and was entitled to workers' compensation benefits. Pulley v. City of Durham, 121 N.C. App. 688, 468 S.E.2d 506 (1996).

Non-Hodgkin's Lymphoma. — The Industrial Commission's finding that a deceased firefighter's non-Hodgkin's lymphoma was a compensable occupational disease was not supported by competent evidence, where it was not shown that the disease was characteristic of persons engaged in firefighting, or that it was not an ordinary disease of life to which the public generally is equally exposed, or that there was a causal connection between the disease and firefighting. Beaver v. City of Salisbury, 130 N.C. App. 417, 502 S.E.2d 885 (1998), review dismissed, 350 N.C. 376, 514 S.E.2d 89 (1999).

Carpal Tunnel Syndrome. — Where plaintiff's doctors failed to testify that her employment as a typist was a significant contributing factor to the development of her carpal tunnel syndrome, the Industrial Commission correctly found that plaintiff was not entitled to benefits. Hardin v. Motor Panels, Inc., 136 N.C. App. 351, 524 S.E.2d 368 (2000), cert. denied, 351 N.C. 473, 543 S.E.2d 488 (2000).

Coccidioidomycosis. — Although coccidioidomycosis is not one of the occupational diseases listed in § 97-53, truck driver was entitled to worker's compensation benefits because the disease was one that the general public was not at risk of exposure to since it was limited to a specific geographic region, and the truck driver would not have contracted the disease but for the driver's work, which required the driver to drive through an area of the southwest infested by dust-borne mold or fungus. Pressley v. Southwestern Freight Lines, 144 N.C. App. 342, 551 S.E.2d 118 (2001).

IV. HEARING LOSS.

Compensability of Hearing Loss Existing Prior to October 1, 1971. — Nothing in Session Laws 1971, c. 1108, s. 3, which added subdivision (28) of this section, or in subdivision (28) itself, expressly mandates that hearing loss existing prior to October 1, 1971, is not compensable, as long as the last injurious exposure occurred after that date. Clark v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 78 N.C. App. 695, 338 S.E.2d 553, cert. denied, 316 N.C. 375, 342 S.E.2d 892 (1986).

If plaintiff, who suffered an occupational hearing loss while employed with defendant, could show any augmentation of his condition, however slight, proximately resulting from his employment with defendant and occurring after October 1, 1971, then defendant could properly and constitutionally be liable for the entire disability. Clark v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 78 N.C. App. 695, 338 S.E.2d 553, cert. denied, 316 N.C. 375, 342 S.E.2d 892 (1986).

Augmentation of Hearing Loss after October 1, 1971. — Defendant employer may be held liable for plaintiff's entire disability if plaintiff could show any augmentation of his occupational hearing loss, however slight, proximately resulting from his employment with defendant and occurring after October 1, 1971. Preslar v. Cannon Mills Co., 81 N.C. App. 276, 344 S.E.2d 141 (1986).

The Commission erred in awarding plaintiff compensation for the 10% difference between his hearing loss established in 1984 and his hearing loss established prior to October 1, 1971, the effective date of subdivision (28) of this section, rather than awarding him compensation for the entire occupational hearing loss of 48.5% to which his employment contributed. Preslar v. Cannon Mills Co., 81 N.C. App. 276, 344 S.E.2d 141 (1986).

A construction of subdivision (28) which defeats its purpose would be irrational and will not be adopted by the Supreme Court. McCuiston v. Addressograph-Multigraph Corp., 308 N.C. 665, 303 S.E.2d 795 (1983).

In order to obtain an award of workers' compensation for loss of hearing under subdivision (28), plaintiff must prove that he suffered a loss of hearing in both ears which was caused by harmful noise in his work environment. Price v. Broyhill Furn., 90 N.C. App. 224, 368 S.E.2d 1 (1988).

Plaintiff was entitled to compensation according to his wages at the time of last exposure, since plaintiff had met the burden of proof for that period of time; expert medical testimony clearly indicated that during this time, in which plaintiff was exposed to noise above 90 decibels in immediate proximity without the benefit of protective headgear, plaintiff's pattern and degree of hearing loss correlated to the kind of noise to which he was exposed. Sellers v. Lithium Corp., 94 N.C. App. 575, 380 S.E.2d 526 (1989), cert. denied, 325 N.C. 547, 385 S.E.2d 501 (1989).

The 90 decibel limit in this section is the ambient noise level. Clark v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 78 N.C. App. 695, 338 S.E.2d 553, cert. denied, 316 N.C. 375, 342 S.E.2d 892 (1986).

No presumption arises under subdivision (28) if the noise intensity level is 90 decibels or greater. Claimant must still prove a loss of hearing caused by harmful noise in the employment. McCuiston v. Addressograph-Multigraph Corp., 308 N.C. 665, 303 S.E.2d 795 (1983).

Burden of Proof. — To establish a prima facie case under subdivision (28) of this section, a plaintiff must prove: (1) loss of hearing in both ears which was (2) caused by harmful noise in his work environment. Upon so doing, the burden of proof shifts to the employer. If the employer then proves that the sound which caused plaintiff's hearing loss was of an intensity of less than 90 decibels, plaintiff cannot recover. McCuiston v. Addressograph-

Multigraph Corp., 308 N.C. 665, 303 S.E.2d 795 (1983).

Burden to prove that noise level was under 90 decibels exists only when the defendant seeks to establish an affirmative defense under paragraph (28)a. Price v. Broyhill Furn., 90 N.C. App. 224, 368 S.E.2d 1 (1988).

Employee Need Not Measure Noise Level. — It is unreasonable to assume that the legislature intended an employee to bear the burden of making noise-level measurements during his employment in order to lay the groundwork for a workers' compensation claim. Such an interpretation of subdivision (28) would make it virtually impossible for an employee to successfully bring suit for compensation for a hearing loss, due to the difficulty he would encounter in attempting to make measurements of sound on his employer's premises. McCuiston v. Addressograph-Multigraph Corp., 308 N.C. 665, 303 S.E.2d 795 (1983).

Intensity Less Than 90 Decibels Is Affirmative Defense. — In seeking to recover workers' compensation for occupational loss of hearing, an employee does not have the burden of proving as part of his prima facie case that the workplace sound which caused his hearing loss was of intensity of 90 decibels, A scale, or more. Rather, proof that the sound causing plaintiff's injury was of intensity less than 90 decibels is an affirmative defense available to the employer. McCuiston v. Addressograph-Multigraph Corp., 308 N.C. 665, 303 S.E.2d 795 (1983).

Ninety decibels is generally considered a threshold of safe noise under federal and state occupational health and safety standards. Under such noise standards, many employers are required to maintain a continuing effective hearing conservation program for employees exposed to occupational noise level of 85 decibels or more. McCuiston v. Addressograph-Multigraph Corp., 308 N.C. 665, 303 S.E.2d 795 (1983).

Effect of Regular Use of Protective Devices. — The last sentence of subdivision (28)i of this section means that regular use of protective devices constitutes removal from exposure only for purposes of triggering the statutory six-month waiting period established by the first sentence of paragraph (28)i. Clark v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 78 N.C. App. 695, 338 S.E.2d 553, cert. denied, 316 N.C. 375, 342 S.E.2d 892 (1986).

The providing of protective devices does not establish any absolute bar to claims for hearing loss, and the Commission erred in so interpreting subdivision (28)i of this section. Clark v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 78 N.C. App. 695, 338 S.E.2d 553, cert. denied, 316 N.C. 375, 342 S.E.2d 892 (1986).

Noise to Be Measured in Workplace and Not Inside Protective Device. — North Carolina industrial noise monitoring requirements require noise to be measured in the workplace. Contentions that compliance with the 90 decibel standard should be measured inside the hearing protective device worn by the employee, rather than in the workplace itself, have been rejected. Clark v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 78 N.C. App. 695, 338 S.E.2d 553, cert. denied, 316 N.C. 375, 342 S.E.2d 892 (1986).

§ 97-54. "Disablement" defined.

The term "disablement" as used in this Article as applied to cases of asbestosis and silicosis means the event of becoming actually incapacitated because of asbestosis or silicosis to earn, in the same or any other employment, the wages which the employee was receiving at the time of his last injurious exposure to asbestosis or silicosis; but in all other cases of occupational disease "disablement" shall be equivalent to "disability" as defined in G.S. 97-2(9). (1935, c. 123; 1955, c. 525, s. 1.)

Legal Periodicals. — For discussion of occupational disease compensation in light of Rutledge v. Tultex Corp./Kings Yarn, 308 N.C.

85, 301 S.E.2d 370 (1983), see 62 N.C.L. Rev. 573 (1984).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under this section as it stood before the 1955 amendment.

Section 97-61.5 was held in conflict with this section and former § 97-58(a), thereby establishing an exception. This exception made the diagnosis of asbestosis or silicosis the same as disablement. The disease must therefore have developed within two years of the last exposure. Roberts v. Southeastern Magnesia & Asbestos Co., 61 N.C. App. 706, 301 S.E.2d 742 (1983), decided prior to 1987 amendment to § 97-58, which repealed subsection (a).

"Any other employment" construed. — This section clearly states that disablement begins when a claimant is incapacitated because of asbestosis or silicosis from earning in the same or any other employment the wages he earned at the time of his last injurious exposure to silicosis or asbestosis. It simply does not require that "any other employment" be a "dusty" trade. Martin v. Petroleum Tank Serv., 65 N.C. App. 565, 309 S.E.2d 536 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 477, 312 S.E.2d 885 (1984).

In ascertaining the right to compensation in cases involving occupational diseases such as silicosis, the Industrial Commission must ordinarily determine (1) whether the plaintiff in fact has an occupational disease, (2) whether, and to what extent, the plaintiff is disabled within the meaning of this section, and (3) to what degree any such disability is caused by the occupational disease. Pitman v. Feldspar Corp., 87 N.C. App. 208, 360 S.E.2d 696 (1987), cert. denied, 321 N.C. 474, 364 S.E.2d 924 (1988).

Silicosis and Asbestosis Disablement as

Inability to Work Near Dust. — Unlike disablement from other occupational diseases, disablement from silicosis and asbestosis is measured from the time a claimant can no longer work at dusty trades, not from the time he can no longer work at any job. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 300 N.C. 94, 265 S.E.2d 144 (1980).

Two-prong test is used to determine when running of claim period is triggered: (1) the time at which employee is disabled within the meaning of this section by his inability to work, and (2) the time at which employee is informed of his disease by competent medical authority. Martin v. Petroleum Tank Serv., 65 N.C. App. 565, 309 S.E.2d 536 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 477, 312 S.E.2d 885 (1984).

Disability Refers to Diminished Capacity to Earn Money. — Under the act, disability refers not to physical infirmity but to a diminished capacity to earn money. Mabe v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 15 N.C. App. 253, 189 S.E.2d 804 (1972).

But Earning Capacity Must Be That of Particular Plaintiff. — With respect to disability, the question is what effect has the disease had upon the earning capacity of this particular plaintiff; not what effect a like physical impairment would have upon an employee of average age and intelligence. Mabe v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 15 N.C. App. 253, 189 S.E.2d 804 (1972).

Where the plaintiff is fully incapacitated because of silicosis to earn wages through work at hard labor, which is the only work he is qualified to do by reason of his age and education, the plaintiff is totally incapacitated because of silicosis to earn, in the same or any other employment, the wages he was earning at the time of his last injurious exposure. Mabe v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 15 N.C. App. 253, 189 S.E.2d 804 (1972).

When Disablement Deemed to Have Occurred. — The time when disablement is deemed to have occurred depends upon the factual situation under consideration. Fetner v. Rocky Mount Marble & Granite Works, 251 N.C. 296, 111 S.E.2d 324 (1959).

An employee does not contract or develop asbestosis or silicosis in a few weeks or months. These diseases develop as the result of exposure for many years to asbestos dust or dust of silica. Both diseases, according to the textbook writers, are incurable and usually result in total permanent disability. Therefore, it would seem that the victims of these incurable occupational diseases constitute a legitimate burden on the industries in which they were exposed to the hazards that produced their disablement. Such was the intent of the legislature. Honeycutt v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 235 N.C. 471, 70 S.E.2d 426 (1952).

When Plaintiff First Learned of Disease Irrelevant to When Disability Began. — Plaintiff did not become disabled within the meaning of the Workers' Compensation Act until June 3, 1982, when he was forced to stop work of any kind because of his occupational disease. Because plaintiff was able to earn the wages he had always received until that date, the arguments as to when plaintiff was first informed of the nature and work-related cause of his disease were irrelevant. Thus his claim, filed on February 2, 1983, was timely. Underwood v. Cone Mills Corp., 78 N.C. App. 155, 336 S.E.2d 634 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 202, 341 S.E.2d 583 (1986).

The fact that a worker performed his duties with regularity until the date he was dismissed because he was affected with silicosis does not require a finding that he was not disabled at that time as defined by this section. Young v. Whitehall Co., 229 N.C. 360, 49 S.E.2d 797 (1948).

Medical Testimony Necessary to Establish "Disablement". — Evidence tending to establish "disablement," as that term is used in the statute in reference to silicosis, must be supported by medical testimony, and the finding of the competent medical authority must be to the effect that disablement occurred within two years from the last exposure. Huskins v. United Feldspar Corp., 241 N.C. 128, 84 S.E.2d 645 (1954).

Evidence of Disability from Silicosis. — Due to the nature of silicosis, it is essential to establish the presence of the disease by competent medical authority. But where it has been established that a person who has been exposed to free silica dust has developed silicosis to the extent that it may be disabling, testimony other than that of a medical expert may be admitted and considered in determining when such person actually became disabled or disabled to work. Certainly, a victim of silicosis is competent to testify to his lessened capacity to work, his shortness of breath, and the effect that physical exertion has upon him, all of which are normal symptoms of silicosis. Singleton v. D.T. Vance Mica Co., 235 N.C. 315, 69 S.E.2d 707 (1952).

Evidence of Disability from Byssinosis and Chronic Obstructive Lung Disease. — Evidence held sufficient to support the finding that plaintiff was partially incapable of engaging in gainful employment by byssinosis and chronic obstructive lung disease as a result of 29 years of smoking and exposure to cotton dust, and that his occupational disease, combined with his age, limited education and work experience, limited his ability to earn wages. Hendrix v. Linn-Corriher Corp., 317 N.C. 179, 345 S.E.2d 374 (1986).

Finding that plaintiff has not been able to work since leaving his employment and that plaintiff is totally disabled, taken together with additional findings regarding plaintiff's age, limited education, work experience, worsened physical condition and inability to exert himself, support a conclusion that plaintiff is unable to earn wages at any job, and are minimally sufficient to support a conclusion of disability. Pitman v. Feldspar Corp., 87 N.C. App. 208, 360 S.E.2d 696 (1987), cert. denied, 321 N.C. 474, 364 S.E.2d 924 (1988).

Evidence that plaintiff could do "light work" if no silica dust were involved was insufficient to support a finding that he was not disabled from doing "ordinary work," since the two terms are not synonymous in the realm of manual labor. Young v. Whitehall Co., 229 N.C. 360, 49 S.E.2d 797 (1948).

Claimant Unable to Earn Wages in Any Job for Which Qualified Is Totally, Not Partially, Disabled. — The Commission erred as a matter of law by awarding claimant compensation for partial disability when it found as fact that plaintiff was incapable of earning wages in any employment for which plaintiff was qualified. Based on the Commission's findings, plaintiff was totally disabled within the meaning of § 97-29. Carothers v. Ti-Caro, 83 N.C. App. 301, 350 S.E.2d 95 (1986).

Where a plaintiff, due to an occupational disease, is fully incapacitated to earn wages at employment which is the only work he is qualified to do by reason of such factors as age and education, he is totally incapacitated. Carothers v. Ti-Caro, 83 N.C. App. 301, 350 S.E.2d 95 (1986).

Evidence held sufficient to show claimant disabled. Autrey v. Victor Mica Co., 234 N.C. 400, 67 S.E.2d 383 (1951); Singleton v. D.T. Vance Mica Co., 235 N.C. 315, 69 S.E.2d 707 (1952). See also Young v. Whitehall Co., 229

N.C. 360, 49 S.E.2d 797 (1948).

Evidence Held Sufficient to Show that Injurious Exposure Occurred during Course of Employment. — Where the record disclosed that plaintiff did not continue earning wages after 1969, her unsuccessful attempts to work during the years 1969 to 1980, when considered in conjunction with the medical evidence, merely demonstrated her total incapacity to earn wages; thus the commission's determination that plaintiff's last injurious exposure to the hazards of her occupational disease occurred while she was employed in 1968, and its order that employer and its carrier in 1968 pay her an award under the provisions of § 97-29 in effect on October 1, 1968, would be affirmed. Gregory v. Sadie Cotton Mills, Inc., 90 N.C. App. 433, 368 S.E.2d 650, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 835, 371 S.E.2d 277 (1988).

Six Day Leave of Absence Incompensable. — Plaintiff's six day leave-of-absence was incompensable under the Act for disability compensation. Howard v. Square-D Co., 128 N.C. App. 303, 494 S.E.2d 606 (1998).

Evidence held insufficient to show disablement occurring within two years from last exposure. Huskins v. United Feldspar Corp., 241 N.C. 128, 84 S.E.2d 645 (1954).

As to criterion of disability in cases of asbestosis and silicosis prior to the 1955 amendment. Young v. Whitehall Co., 229 N.C.

360, 49 S.E.2d 797 (1948); Singleton v. D.T. Vance Mica Co., 235 N.C. 315, 69 S.E.2d 707 (1952); Honeycutt v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 235 N.C. 471, 70 S.E.2d 426 (1952); Brinkley v. United Feldspar & Minerals Corp., 246 N.C. 17, 97 S.E.2d 419 (1957).

§ 97-55. "Disability" defined.

The term "disability" as used in this Article means the state of being incapacitated as the term is used in defining "disablement" in G.S. 97-54. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-56. Limitation on compensable diseases.

The provisions of this Article shall apply only to cases of occupational disease in which the last exposure in an occupation subject to the hazards of such diseases occurred on or after March 26, 1935. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-57. Employer liable.

In any case where compensation is payable for an occupational disease, the employer in whose employment the employee was last injuriously exposed to the hazards of such disease, and the insurance carrier, if any, which was on the risk when the employee was so last exposed under such employer, shall be liable.

For the purpose of this section when an employee has been exposed to the hazards of asbestosis or silicosis for as much as 30 working days, or parts thereof, within seven consecutive calendar months, such exposure shall be deemed injurious but any less exposure shall not be deemed injurious; provided, however, that in the event an insurance carrier has been on the risk for a period of time during which an employee has been injuriously exposed to the hazards of asbestosis or silicosis, and if after insurance carrier goes off the risk said employee is further exposed to the hazards of asbestosis or silicosis, although not so exposed for a period of 30 days or parts thereof so as to constitute a further injurious exposure, such carrier shall, nevertheless, be liable. (1935, c. 123; 1945, c. 762; 1957, c. 1396, s. 7.)

ing the Definition of an Occupational Disease Under the Last Injurious Exposure Rule," see 64 N.C.L. Rev. 1566 (1986).

CASE NOTES

The purpose of this section is to determine whether there has been sufficient exposure to the hazards of asbestosis during a particular period of employment to hold the employer during that period liable. By contrast, the purpose of former § 97-58(a) was to limit the time in which an employer was liable for a compensable exposure. Long v. North Carolina Finishing Co., 82 N.C. App. 568, 346 S.E.2d 669 (1986).

Function of Section. — The rule under this section, assigning liability to the employer where the employee was last injuriously exposed, serves to eliminate the need for complex and expensive litigation of the issue of relative contribution by each of several employments to a plaintiff's occupational disease. The possibility that some employers may bear a disproportionate share of the total liability for occupational disease is a problem for the legislature, not the courts, to consider. Frady v. Groves Thread/General Accident Ins. Co., 56 N.C. App. 61, 286 S.E.2d 844, aff'd, 312 N.C. 316, 321 S.E.2d 835 (1984).

This section does not provide for partnership in responsibility, and has nothing to say as to the length of the last employment or the degree of injury which the deleterious exposure must inflict to merit compensation. It takes the breakdown practically where it occurs — with the last injurious exposure. Haynes v. Feldspar Producing Co., 222 N.C. 163, 22 S.E.2d 275 (1942).

And Negates Comparative Responsibility of Successive Employers and Insurance Carriers. — Any suggestion of comparative responsibility as between successive employers and their respective carriers, or as between successive carriers for the same employer, is dispelled by the plain language of this section. The liability is upon the employer and carrier on the risk when the employee was "last injuriously exposed" to the hazards of silicosis, as that expression is here defined. Stewart v. Duncan, 239 N.C. 640, 80 S.E.2d 764 (1954).

Presumption Created by Section 97-57.

— Section 97-57 creates an irrebuttable legal presumption that the last thirty days of work is the period of last injurious exposure. Thus, "an exposure which proximately augmented the disease to any extent, however slight" is deemed the last injurious exposure. Barber v. Babcock & Wilcox Constr. Co., 101 N.C. App. 564, 400 S.E.2d 735 (1991).

Plaintiff does not have to establish that the conditions of his employment with the defendant caused or significantly contributed to his disease. He need only show that: (1) he has an occupational disease and (2) he was "last injuriously exposed to the hazards of such disease" in the defendant's employment. Barber v. Babcock & Wilcox Constr. Co., 101 N.C. App. 564, 400 S.E.2d 735 (1991).

Plaintiff satisfied his burden of proof and was entitled to workers' compensation benefits where there was an irrebuttable legal presumption that the last thirty days of work subjecting the plaintiff to the hazards of asbestos is the period of last injurious exposure and the Industrial Commission held that plaintiff was exposed to the inhalation during the 48 days he worked for last employer, the defendant. Barber v. Babcock & Wilcox Constr. Co., 101 N.C. App. 564, 400 S.E.2d 735 (1991).

The Commission erred in requiring plaintiff to prove that her last employment was the cause of her occupational disease, as this section assesses liability to the employer in whose employment the employee was last injuriously exposed, however minimal the exposure, to the hazards of the occupational disease. Rutledge v. Tultex Corp./Kings Yarn, 56 N.C. App. 345, 289 S.E.2d 72, aff'd in part and rev'd in part on other grounds, 308 N.C. 85, 301 S.E.2d 359 (1983).

"Hazard". — The term "hazard" should be given its common and ordinary meaning, since there is nothing to indicate that the legislature intended it to have some other meaning and it has not acquired some technical meaning. Caulder v. Mills, 314 N.C. 70, 331 S.E.2d 646 (1985).

By the phrase "hazards of the disease," as used in this section, the legislature intended to include more than substances which are capable in themselves of producing an occupational disease. Caulder v. Mills, 314 N.C. 70, 331 S.E.2d 646 (1985).

In order for a substance to be a "hazard" of an occupational disease within the meaning of this section, it must be a substance peculiar to the workplace. By this it is meant that the substance is one to which the worker has a greater exposure on the job than does the public generally, either because of the nature of the substance itself or because the concentrations of the substance in the workplace are greater than concentrations to which the public generally is exposed. Caulder v. Mills, 314 N.C. 70, 331 S.E.2d 646 (1985).

A condition peculiar to the workplace which accelerates the progress of an occupational disease to such an extent that the disease finally causes the worker's incapacity to work constitutes a source of danger and difficulty to that worker and increases the possibility of that worker's ultimate loss. It constitutes, therefore, a hazard of the disease as the term "hazard" is commonly used. Caulder v. Mills, 314 N.C. 70, 331 S.E.2d 646 (1985).

Dust as Substance Peculiar to Workplace. — Dust arising from the processing of synthetic fibers in textile plants is a substance to which, because of its nature, workers in those plants have a greater exposure than does the public generally. It is, therefore, a substance peculiar to the workplace. Caulder v. Mills, 314 N.C. 70, 331 S.E.2d 646 (1985).

Effect of Preexisting Condition. — An employer must take his employee as he finds him, and will be liable for the full extent of the employee's compensable injury even where a preexisting condition substantially contributes to the degree of the injury. Frady v. Groves Thread/General Accident Ins. Co., 56 N.C. App. 61, 286 S.E.2d 844, aff'd, 312 N.C. 316, 321 S.E.2d 835 (1984).

The statutory term "last injuriously exposed" means an exposure which proximately augmented the disease to any extent, however slight. Rutledge v. Tultex Corp./Kings Yarn, 308 N.C. 85, 301 S.E.2d 359 (1983).

Liability of Employer in Whose Employment Employee Was Last Injuriously Exposed. — In compensable cases of occupational diseases, the employer in whose employment the employee was last injuriously exposed to the hazards of such disease is liable. This section does not require an independent showing of a significant contribution to the occupational disease. Cain v. Guyton, 79 N.C. App. 696, 340 S.E.2d 501, aff'd, 318 N.C. 410, 348 S.E.2d 595 (1986); Anderson v. Gulistan Carpet, Inc., 144 N.C. App. 661, 550 S.E.2d 237 (2001).

Where plaintiff's doctor testified that she had negative Tinel's and Phalen's signs immediately after her resignation from her job but positive bilateral Tinel's and Phalen's signs 15 months after her resignation and after holding various other jobs, the Industrial Commission did not err in finding that she was last "injuriously exposed" to carpal tunnel syndrome while working with her subsequent employers. Hardin v. Motor Panels, Inc., 136 N.C. App. 351, 524 S.E.2d 368 (2000), cert. denied, 351 N.C. 473, 543 S.E.2d 488 (2000).

Last Injurious Exposure Can Be Quantitatively Slight. — Exposure to a substance which can cause an occupational disease can be a last injurious exposure to the hazards of such disease under this section even if the exposure in question is so slight quantitatively that it could not in itself have produced the disease. Caulder v. Mills, 314 N.C. 70, 331 S.E.2d 646 (1985).

If the occupational exposure in question is such that it augments the disease process to any degree, however slight, the employer is liable. Gay v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 79 N.C. App. 324, 339 S.E.2d 490 (1986).

"Last injuriously exposed" means an exposure which proximately augmented the disease to any extent, however slight. Cain v. Guyton, 79 N.C. App. 696, 340 S.E.2d 501, aff'd, 318 N.C. 410, 348 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

Substance Need Not Be Known to Cause Disease. — In addition, the substance to which plaintiff was last injuriously exposed need not be a substance known to cause the disease. Gay v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 79 N.C. App. 324, 339 S.E.2d 490 (1986).

Finding of Last Injurious Exposure Held Not Inconsistent with Other Findings. — Where an employee's exposure to dust at his last employer's plants, including the last plant at which he worked, contributed to his pulmonary symptoms and was harmful to him, and his last injurious exposure to the hazards of his lung disease occurred while he was employed by his last employer, the Commission's finding that dust from the synthetic fibers present at his last employer's plants was not known to cause chronic obstructive lung disease did not preclude a conclusion that exposure to it constituted a last injurious exposure to the hazards of the disease. Caulder v. Mills, 314 N.C. 70, 331 S.E.2d 646 (1985).

In chronic obstructive lung disease cases, the last injurious exposure to "the hazards of such disease" is not necessarily limited to cotton dust; it can be to other conditions that enhance or augment the disease process and the worker's condition to any extent. Neal v. Leslie Fay, Inc., 78 N.C. App. 117, 336 S.E.2d 628 (1985).

It is not necessary that the last injurious exposure to the hazards of chronic obstructive lung disease either caused or significantly contributed to the occupational disease; it is enough if the exposure augmented the disease to any extent whatever. Neal v. Leslie Fay, Inc., 78 N.C. App. 117, 336 S.E.2d 628 (1985).

Most Recent Employer Found Liable for Pre-existing Condition. — A textile mill employee's second employer was liable for her asthma, where there was medical testimony that employee's exposure at the second employer's mill likely augmented her illness, however slight, such that employee was last injuriously exposed to the hazards of her disease at the second employer's mill. Locklear v. Stedman Corporation/Sara Lee Knit Prods., 131 N.C. App. 389, 508 S.E.2d 795 (1998).

It is not necessary that claimant show that the conditions of employment caused or significantly contributed to occupational disease. She need only show: (1) That she has a compensable occupational disease and (2) that she was "last injuriously exposed to the hazards of such disease" in defendant's employment. Rutledge v. Tultex Corp./Kings Yarn, 308 N.C. 85, 301 S.E.2d 359 (1983).

Portion of Disability Due to Industrial Disease Not Chargeable to Age and Education. — Where an industrial disease renders an employee actually incapacitated to earn any wages, the employer may not ask that a portion of the disability be charged to employee's advanced age and poor learning on the ground that if it were not for these factors he might still retain some earning capacity. Anderson v. A.M. Smyre Mfg. Co., 54 N.C. App. 337, 283 S.E.2d 433 (1981).

Liability of Insurance Carrier. — The carrier of the insurance during the employee's last 30-day period of exposure to the hazards of an occupational disease is solely liable for compensation allowed for total disability from the occupational disease. This result is not affected by the fact that prior to the time such insurance company became the carrier, medical examinations had disclosed that the employee was suffering with the disease, or that the Industrial Commission had advised him as to the compensation and rehabilitation provisions of the act, but had, in the exercise of its discretion, failed to order him to quit the occupation pursuant to former § 97-61. Bye v. Interstate Granite Co., 230 N.C. 334, 53 S.E.2d 274 (1949).

Where compensation insurer carried risk for employer from 1947 through Jan. 31, 1953, and employer did not carry insurance from Feb. 1, 1953 through Feb. 19, 1953, insurer was liable for at least a pro rata part of award based on finding that employee became disabled by silicosis on Feb. 19, 1953, the last date on which the employee was remuneratively employed by the employer. Mayberry v. Oakboro Granite & Marble Co., 243 N.C. 281, 90 S.E.2d 511 (1955), decided under this section as it stood before the 1957 amendment.

Before the 1957 amendment, which added the proviso to the second paragraph of this section, where an employee became disabled from asbestosis while working for a single employer, but different insurers were on the risk during the employee's last 30 days' exposure to the hazards of the disease, the carrier last on the risk, even though it was on the risk for only the last five days on which the employee worked, was solely liable for the award under a provision of the policy contracts that each policy should apply only to injury by disease of which the last day of the last exposure occurred during the policy period. Hartsell v. Thermoid Co., 249 N.C. 527, 107 S.E.2d 115 (1959).

Where there are two companies and, presumably, two insurance carriers, or one company and two insurance carriers, the carrier on the risk when the employee is last injuriously exposed is the liable party. Jones v. Beaunit Corp., 72 N.C. App. 351, 324 S.E.2d 624 (1985).

Application of definition of "injurious exposure" in the first clause of the second paragraph of this section to the hazards of asbestosis is limited, by the express language of the statute, to determining liability under this section. Long v. North Carolina Finishing Co., 82 N.C. App. 568, 346 S.E.2d 669 (1986).

Exposure Requirement of This Section Not Read into Former § 97-58(a). — Logically there was no reason to read the exposure requirements of this section into former § 97-58(a), and the Court of Appeals would decline to do so. Long v. North Carolina Finishing Co., 82 N.C. App. 568, 346 S.E.2d 669 (1986).

A claimant need not provide scientific proof of his exposure to asbestos for purposes of this section; plaintiff presented substantial other evidence of his repeated exposure to asbestos during his employment with defendant-employer to justify his compensation. Austin v. Continental Gen. Tire, 141 N.C. App. 397, 540 S.E.2d 824 (2000), rev'd on other grounds, 354 N.C. 344, 553 S.E. 2d 680 (2001).

A claimant need not introduce scientific evidence to prove his exposure to asbestos for the purposes of this section; testimony of plaintiff, two co-workers, a defense witness and three medical experts was, therefore, sufficient to support the Commission's finding that plaintiff was exposed to asbestos. Clark v. ITT Grinnell Indus. Piping, Inc., 141 N.C. App. 417, 539 S.E.2d 369 (2000).

Findings Required to Support Award for Silicosis. — To support an award to one suffering from silicosis, the Industrial Commission must find, inter alia, that the employee had been exposed to the hazards of silicosis for the period provided by this section, and that the employee's work in the State must have exposed him to the inhalation of silica dust for the further period prescribed by § 97-63. Pitman v. Carpenter, 247 N.C. 63, 100 S.E.2d 231 (1957); Woodell v. Starr Davis Co., 77 N.C. App. 352, 335 S.E.2d 48 (1985).

This section creates an irrebuttable presumption, of law. The last day of work was the date of disablement and the last 30 days of work was the period of last injurious exposure. The Commission could not arbitrarily select any 30 days of employment, other than the last 30 days, within the seven months' period for convenience or protection of any of the parties, even if there was some evidence which may be construed to support such selection. Fetner v. Rocky Mount Marble & Granite Works, 251 N.C. 296, 111 S.E.2d 324 (1959).

Where Employee Was Advised That He Had Silicosis before Expiration of 30-Day Period. — Where the evidence supported findings of the Industrial Commission that an employee suffering disability from silicosis was last injuriously exposed to the hazards of the disease for 30 working days within seven consecutive calendar months while in the employment of defendant, this section placed liability therefor upon such employer and his insurance carrier during that period, and the mere fact that the employee was advised that he had silicosis prior to the expiration of this 30-day period but continued for a short time to perform his same work was insufficient, standing alone, to sustain the insurance carrier's contention that his employment after the discovery of the disease was in bad faith so as to make the loss fall upon it. Stewart v. Duncan, 239 N.C. 640, 80 S.E.2d 764 (1954).

Where the evidence showed that decedent's last possible exposure occurred in February, 1975, he was required to meet the statutory time limitations between February 1965, and February 1975. Exposure which occurred prior to 1964 could not be used to calculate his level of exposure since it occurred over 10 years prior to the last exposure. Gosney v. Golden Belt Mfg., 89 N.C. App. 670, 366 S.E.2d 873, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 835, 371 S.E.2d 276 (1988), upholding Commission's finding that plaintiff failed to show the length of exposure to asbestos required by this section and § 97-63.

Applied in Singleton v. D.T. Vance Mica Co., 235 N.C. 315, 69 S.E.2d 707 (1952); Willingham v. Bryan Rock & Sand Co., 240 N.C. 281, 82 S.E.2d 68 (1954); Roberts v. Southeastern Magnesia & Asbestos Co., 61 N.C. App. 706, 301 S.E.2d 742 (1983).

§ 97-58. Time limit for filing claims.

(a) Repealed by Session Laws 1987, c. 729, s. 13.

(b) The report and notice to the employer as required by G.S. 97-22 shall apply in all cases of occupational disease except in case of asbestosis, silicosis, or lead poisoning. The time of notice of an occupational disease shall run from the date that the employee has been advised by competent medical authority that he has same.

(c) The right to compensation for occupational disease shall be barred unless a claim be filed with the Industrial Commission within two years after death, disability, or disablement as the case may be. Provided, however, that the right to compensation for radiation injury, disability or death shall be barred unless a claim is filed within two years after the date upon which the employee first suffered incapacity from the exposure to radiation and either knew or in the exercise of reasonable diligence should have known that the occupational disease was caused by his present or prior employment. (1935, c. 123; 1945, c. 762; 1955, c. 525, s. 6; 1963, c. 553, s. 2; 1973, c. 1060, s. 3; 1981, c. 734, s. 1; 1987, c. 729, s. 13.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Most of the cases below were decided prior to the 1987 amendment repealing subsection (a), which had set certain restrictions on claims relating to asbestosis and lead poisoning.

Former subsection (a) and subsections (b) and (c) were construed in pari materia and to ascertain the true legislative intent. Duncan v. Carpenter, 233 N.C. 422, 64 S.E.2d 410 (1951), overruled on other grounds, 300 N.C. 94, 265 S.E.2d 144 (1980).

Subsections (b) and (c) must be construed in pari materia. Underwood v. Cone Mills Corp., 78 N.C. App. 155, 336 S.E.2d 634 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 202, 341 S.E.2d 583 (1986).

When subsections (b) and (c) of this section are interpreted in pari materia, they require an employee who seeks to recover for disability resulting from an occupational disease to give notice or file a claim within two years of the time when he is first informed by competent medical authority of the nature and work-related cause of the disease. Lawson v. Cone Mills Corp., 68 N.C. App. 402, 315 S.E.2d 103 (1984).

As to the inapplicability of the last exposure rule to diseases other than silicosis and asbestosis, see Taylor v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 300 N.C. 94, 265 S.E.2d 144 (1980).

Failure to obtain approval for payments of medical expenses does not raise an estoppel claim. Knight v. Cannon Mills Co., 82 N.C. App. 453, 347 S.E.2d 832, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 507, 349 S.E.2d 861 (1986).

What Findings of Fact Are Conclusive on Review. — Except as to questions of jurisdiction, findings of fact by the Industrial Commission are conclusive on appeal when supported by competent evidence even though there is evidence to support contrary findings. Findings of jurisdictional fact by the Industrial Commission, however, are not conclusive upon appeal, even though supported by evidence in the record. Dowdy v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 308 N.C. 701, 304 S.E.2d 215 (1983), rehearing denied, 311 S.E.2d 590 (N.C. 1984).

Review of Jurisdictional Findings. — Findings of the Industrial Commission that employee received notice from competent medical authority that she had an occupational disease on June 25, 1977 at an occupational respiratory problem screening clinic and that her claim, filed on July 11, 1980, was barred by the two-year statute of limitations in this section were jurisdictional findings of fact fully reviewable by the Court of Appeals. Dawkins v. Mills, 74 N.C. App. 712, 329 S.E.2d 688 (1985).

When a defendant employer challenges the jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission, any reviewing court, including the Supreme Court, has the duty to make its own independent findings of jurisdictional facts from its consideration of the entire record. Dowdy v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 308 N.C. 701, 304 S.E.2d 215 (1983), rehearing denied, 311 S.E.2d 590 (N.C. 1984).

II. ASBESTOSIS, SILICOSIS AND LEAD POISONING.

Editor's Note. — The cases below were decided prior to the 1987 amendment deleting subsection (a), which had set certain restrictions on claims relating to asbestosis and lead poisoning.

Applicability of 1981 Amendment to Former Subsection (a). — The Commission erred in failing to apply the provisions of former subsection (a) of this section, as amended effective July 1, 1981, where plaintiff's decedent died on December 11, 1981, and plaintiff's claim was filed on January 8, 1982. As the amended version of subsection (a) was in effect at the time plaintiff's right to compensation arose, viz., the time of decedent's death, the amended version could constitutionally apply to plaintiff's claim. Long v. North Carolina Finishing Co., 82 N.C. App. 568, 346 S.E.2d 669 (1986).

Purpose of § 97-57 and Former Subsection (a) of This Section Compared. — The purpose of § 97-57 is to determine whether there has been sufficient exposure to the hazards of asbestosis during a particular period of employment to hold the employer during that period liable. By contrast, the purpose of former subsection (a) of this section was to limit the time in which an employer was liable for a compensable exposure. Long v. North Carolina Finishing Co., 82 N.C. App. 568, 346 S.E.2d 669 (1986).

Exposure Requirement of § 97-57 Not Read into Former Subsection (a) of This Section. — Logically there was no reason to read the exposure requirements of § 97-57 into former subsection (a) of this section, and the Court of Appeals would decline to do so. Long v. North Carolina Finishing Co., 82 N.C. App. 568, 346 S.E.2d 669 (1986).

Section 97-61.5 is in conflict within § 97-54 and this section, thereby establishing an exception. This exception makes the diagnosis of asbestosis or silicosis the same as disablement. The disease must therefore have developed within two years of the last exposure. Roberts v. Southeastern Magnesite & Asbestos

Co., 61 N.C. App. 706, 301 S.E.2d 742 (1983).

In this section the legislature recognized that silicosis is a progressive disease, and provided that an employer might be held liable for compensation for silicosis if disablement resulted at any time within two years after the last exposure to the disease. Young v. Whitehall Co., 229 N.C. 360, 49 S.E.2d 797 (1948).

Disablement Dates from Time Claimant Was Advised He Had Disease. — By enacting this section, the legislature intended to authorize the filing of a claim for asbestosis, silicosis or lead poisoning where disablement occurs within two years after the last exposure to such disease; and, although disablement may have existed from the time the employee quit work, such disablement, for the purpose of notice and claim for compensation, should date from the time the employee was notified by competent medical authority that he had such disease. Autrey v. Victor Mica Co., 234 N.C. 400, 67 S.E.2d 383 (1951); Duncan v. Carpenter, 233 N.C. 422, 64 S.E.2d 410 (1951), overruled on other grounds, 300 N.C. 94, 265 S.E.2d 194 (1980).

Due to the peculiar nature of the disease, the slow process of its development, the similarity of its symptoms to those of other diseases which affect the lungs and for other reasons, a worker, whatever his actual physical condition may be, is not charged with notice that he has silicosis until and unless he is so advised by competent medical authority, and the time within which he must file his claim for compensation begins to run from the date he is so advised. Huskins v. United Feldspar Corp., 241 N.C. 128, 84 S.E.2d 645 (1954).

Advising an employee, who has been exposed to free silica dust, that his examination reveals "evidence of dust disease" is not sufficient to put him on notice that he has silicosis. Singleton v. D.T. Vance Mica Co., 235 N.C. 315, 69 S.E.2d 707 (1952).

Where disablement from silicosis occurs, as defined in § 97-54, and notice of claim is filed in accord with the provisions contained in this section, the claimant need not be advised by competent medical authority that he has silicosis within two years from the date of his last exposure. Singleton v. D.T. Vance Mica Co., 235 N.C. 315, 69 S.E.2d 707 (1952).

The reason for allowing two years from the date of the last exposure to silica dust in which to determine actual disability from silicosis is that silicosis is a progressive disease, and the lung changes continue to develop for one or two years after removal of the worker from the silica hazard. Brinkley v. United Feldspar & Minerals Corp., 246 N.C. 17, 97 S.E.2d 419 (1957).

Incapacity Not Resulting Within Two Years of Last Exposure. — Claimant was removed from the hazard of silica dust before becoming incapacitated within the meaning of § 97-54. He was thereafter employed by the same employer for five years at the same wage at employment free from the hazard of silica dust. It was held that his retirement from such other occupation at the end of five years could not have been caused by incapacity from silicosis resulting within two years of the last exposure to silica dust, and compensation therefor could not be sustained. Brinkley v. United Feldspar & Minerals Corp., 246 N.C. 17, 97 S.E.2d 419 (1957).

Competency of Evidence Other Than Expert Medical Testimony. — While it is essential to establish the presence of silicosis or asbestosis by competent medical authority, evidence other than expert medical testimony is competent on the question of whether claimant is disabled and whether such disablement occurred within two years from date of last exposure. Singleton v. D.T. Vance Mica Co., 235 N.C. 315, 69 S.E.2d 707 (1952).

III. REPORT AND NOTICE.

The purpose of the notice of injury requirement is two-fold. It allows the employer to provide immediate medical diagnosis and treatment with a view to minimizing the seriousness of the injury, and it facilitates the earliest possible investigation of the circumstances surrounding the injury. Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

Report and Notice to Employer Under § 97-22. — The employee is not required to give any notice pursuant to the provisions of § 97-22 to the employer in case of asbestosis, silicosis and lead poisoning. In all other cases of occupational disease, the time for giving the notice pursuant to § 97-22 is extended to 30 days after the employee has been advised by competent medical authority that he is suffering from an occupational disease, and the one-year period (now two years) within which he may file his claim dates from receipt of such advice. Duncan v. Carpenter, 233 N.C. 422, 64 S.E.2d 410 (1951), overruled on other grounds, 300 N.C. 94, 265 S.E.2d 144 (1980).

Reading subsection (b) of this section in conjunction with § 97-22, a claim for compensation under the act is barred if the employer is not notified within 30 days of the date on which the claimant is informed of the diagnosis, unless reasonable excuse is made to the satisfaction of the Industrial Commission for not giving such notice and the Commission is satisfied that the employer has not been prejudiced thereby. Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

Waiver of Notice Issue Where Not Raised. — An employer who fails to raise the issue of notice at the hearing before the compensation board may not raise it on appeal. Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

Employer's failure to notify the Commission pursuant to subsection (a) of § 97-92 does not raise an estoppel claim. Knight v. Cannon Mills Co., 82 N.C. App. 453, 347 S.E.2d 832, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 507, 349 S.E.2d 861 (1986).

In an action brought by the dependents of an employee who died of hepatitis in order to recover death benefits, the employer waived its right to notice of the employee's disease where it failed to raise that issue at the hearing before the Industrial Commission; moreover, under the circumstances of the case it was unrealistic to assume that the employer did not immediately receive notice of the diagnosis of the employee's disease, where the employee continued to work in the same laboratory in which he contracted the disease, and where his duties were changed after he "suffered" the disease, so that he no longer handled blood. Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

IV. FILING OF CLAIMS.

The two-year time limit for filing claims under subsection (c) is a condition precedent with which claimants must comply in order to confer jurisdiction on the Industrial Commission to hear the claim. Poythress v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 54 N.C. App. 376, 283 S.E.2d 573 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 153, 289 S.E.2d 380 (1982); Clary v. A.M. Smyre Mfg. Co., 61 N.C. App. 254, 300 S.E.2d 704 (1983); Lawson v. Cone Mills Corp., 68 N.C. App. 402, 315 S.E.2d 103 (1984); Dowdy v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 308 N.C. 701, 304 S.E.2d 215 (1983), rehearing denied, 311 S.E.2d 590 (N.C. 1984); Dawkins v. Mills, 74 N.C. App. 712, 329 S.E.2d 688 (1985).

Subsection (c) of this section does not establish a defense to a claim for workers' compensation, but is a condition precedent with which claimants must comply in order to confer jurisdiction on the Industrial Commission to hear the claim. Clary v. A.M. Smyre Mfg. Co., 61 N.C. App. 254, 300 S.E.2d 704 (1983).

Two year statute of limitation is a condition precedent with which a plaintiff must comply in order to confer jurisdiction on the Industrial Commission. Underwood v. Cone Mills Corp., 78 N.C. App. 155, 336 S.E.2d 634 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 202, 341 S.E.2d 583 (1986).

The burden is on plaintiff to establish that the claim was timely filed, and a failure to do so creates a jurisdictional bar to the claim. Dowdy v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 308 N.C. 701, 304 S.E.2d 215 (1983), rehearing denied, 311 S.E.2d 590 (N.C. 1984).

When Two-Year Limit Begins to Run. — Two factors trigger the onset of the two-year period in the case of an occupational disease. Time begins running when an employee has suffered: (1) injury from an occupational disease which (2) renders the employee incapable of earning the wages the employee was receiving at the time of the incapacity by injury. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 300 N.C. 94, 265 S.E.2d 144 (1980).

The two-year period within which claims for benefits for an occupational disease must be filed under subsection (c) of this section begins running when an employee has suffered injury from an occupational disease which renders the employee incapable of earning the wages the employee was receiving at the time of the incapacity by such injury, and the employee is informed by competent medical authority of the nature and work-related cause of the disease. Dowdy v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 308 N.C. 701, 304 S.E.2d 215 (1983), rehearing denied, 311 S.E.2d 590 (N.C. 1984); Dawkins v. Mills, 74 N.C. App. 712, 329 S.E.2d 688 (1985).

The two year period within which claims for benefits for an occupational disease must be filed begins running when an employee has suffered injury from an occupational disease which renders the employee incapable of earning, at any job, the wages the employee was receiving at the time of the incapacity, and the employee is informed by competent medical authority of the nature and work-related cause of the disease. Underwood v. Cone Mills Corp., 78 N.C. App. 155, 336 S.E.2d 634 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 202, 341 S.E.2d 583 (1986).

Though the two-year time limit for timely filing is a jurisdictional requisite, without which the Commission may not consider a workers' compensation claim, the time does not begin to run against occupational disease claims until the employee is informed by competent medical authority of the nature and work-related cause of the disease. McCubbins v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 79 N.C. App. 409, 339 S.E.2d 497, cert. denied, 316 N.C. 732, 345 S.E.2d 389 (1986).

Two conditions must be met in order to start the two-year statute of limitations running against a claimant: (1) The employee must have suffered an occupational disease which renders the employee incapable of earning, at any job, the wages the employee was receiving at the time of the incapacity, and (2) the employee has been informed by competent medical authority of the nature and work-related cause of the disease. Rutledge v. Stroh Cos., 105 N.C. App. 307, 412 S.E.2d 901 (1991), cert. denied, 331 N.C. 384, 417 S.E.2d 791 (1992).

The two-year period within which claims for occupational disease must be filed begins running when an employee suffers injury which renders the employee incapable of earning, at any job, the wages the employee was receiving at the time of the incapacity, and the employee is informed by medical authority of the nature and work-related cause of the disease. Howard v. Square-D Co., 128 N.C. App. 303, 494 S.E.2d 606 (1998).

The two-year time limitation for filing claims does not begin to run anew when employee's condition changes from permanent partial disability to permanent total disability. Dowdy v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 308 N.C. 701, 304 S.E.2d 215 (1983), rehearing denied, 311 S.E.2d 590 (N.C. 1984).

Had the legislature intended that only total permanent disability or disablement trigger the two-year limitation on claims or that a change in an employee's condition from permanent partial disability to permanent total disability would begin the two-year limitation period anew, the legislature would have said so in plain language. Dowdy v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 308 N.C. 701, 304 S.E.2d 215 (1983), rehearing denied, 311 S.E.2d 590 (N.C. 1984).

Two-Year Time Limitation Runs from Date When Employee Receives Clear Information That His Disease Is Work-Related. — The plaintiff, who was disabled as of September 20, 1992, but was not advised by a competent medical authority that his disease was a result of his occupation until April 1994, notified his employer of his occupational disease within the requisite two-year period when he filed his Form 18 claim on January 24, 1994; the doctors testified that they had shared suspicions with each other of a causal relationship between plaintiff's work and health, but no testimony was offered that any of those doctors informed the plaintiff that his job was causing his disease. Terrell v. Terminix Servs., 142 N.C. App. 305, 542 S.E.2d 332 (2001).

Employer's Reliance upon Subsection (c) Not Estopped by Omission Under § 97-92(a). — The prescribed penalty against an employer for the neglectful omission to report to the Industrial Commission an employee's absence under § 97-92(a) is not the tolling of a "statute of limitation" or a bar, either through estoppel or waiver, to reliance upon subsection (c) of this section. Poythress v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 54 N.C. App. 376, 283 S.E.2d 573 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 153, 289 S.E.2d 380 (1982).

The dependents' claim for compensation would not be barred by the employee's failure to file within the statutory period where the dependents were not parties to the proceeding brought by the employee. Booker v. Duke Medical Ctr., 297 N.C. 458, 256 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

The employee is required to file but a single claim, and the amount of compensation payable is predicated on the extent of the disability resulting from the accident or occupational disease. Dowdy v. Fieldcrest Mills, Inc., 308 N.C. 701, 304 S.E.2d 215 (1983), rehearing denied, 311 S.E.2d 590 (N.C. 1984).

Hearing Loss Claim Filed Under This Section. — Where, although plaintiff's original awareness of hearing loss was precipitated by a single event, medical testimony indicated that the resulting disability was caused by repeated exposure to heightened levels of noise prior to 1974, the claim did not need to meet the requirements of § 97-22 which is for injury by accident claims; plaintiff's claim was one for compensation for occupational disease and plaintiff had met the necessary filing requirements set forth in this section. Sellers v. Lithium Corp., 94 N.C. App. 575, 380 S.E.2d 526 (1989), cert. denied, 325 N.C. 547, 385 S.E.2d 501 (1989).

Carpal Tunnel Claim. — Plaintiffs claim was timely filed even though she was diagnosed with carpal tunnel syndrome and was unable to work for 6 days over two years before the claim was filed because she returned to work and continued to work for approximately 16 months more before she finally incurred a compensable period of disability. Howard v. Square-D Co., 128 N.C. App. 303, 494 S.E.2d 606 (1998).

V. KNOWLEDGE OF EMPLOYEE.

When Time Limitations Begin to Run. — With reference to occupational diseases, the time within which an employee must give notice or file claim begins to run when the employee is first informed by competent medical authority of the nature and work-related cause of the disease. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 300 N.C. 94, 265 S.E.2d 144 (1980); McCall v. Cone Mills Corp., 61 N.C. App. 118, 300 S.E.2d 245, cert. denied, 308 N.C. 544, 304 S.E.2d 237 (1983); Clary v. A.M. Smyre Mfg. Co., 61 N.C. App. 254, 300 S.E.2d 704 (1983).

An employee must be informed clearly, simply and directly that he has an occupational disease and that the illness is work-related to trigger the running of the two-year period set forth in this section. Lawson v. Cone Mills Corp., 68 N.C. App. 402, 315 S.E.2d 103 (1984).

It is not enough that the worker be told a medical name for his disease, which may be meaningless to him, without a statement of its causal relationship to an extra-hazardous occupation. McKee v. Crescent Spinning Co., 54 N.C. App. 558, 284 S.E.2d 175 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 301, 291 S.E.2d 150 (1982).

Employee Is Not Required to Diagnose His Own Condition. — It was not the legislative intent to require an employee, in many instances, suffering from any one of these occupational diseases to make a correct medical diagnosis of his own condition or to file his notice and claim for compensation before he knew he had such disease, or run the risk of having his claim barred by the one-year (now two-year) statute. Duncan v. Carpenter, 233 N.C. 422, 64 S.E.2d 410 (1951), overruled on other grounds, 300 N.C. 94, 265 S.E.2d 144 (1980).

Nor to Inquire and Discover Relationship of Disease to Employment. — The legislature never intended that a claimant for workers' compensation benefits would have to make a correct medical diagnosis of his own condition prior to notification by other medical authority of his disease in order to timely make his claim; likewise, plaintiff cannot be expected to inquire further and discover the relationship of his condition to his employment. McKee v. Crescent Spinning Co., 54 N.C. App. 558, 284 S.E.2d 175 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 301, 291 S.E.2d 150 (1982).

When Plaintiff First Learned of Disease Irrelevant to When Disability Began. — Plaintiff did not become disabled within the meaning of the Workers' Compensation Act until June 3, 1982, when he was forced to stop work of any kind because of his occupational disease. Because plaintiff was able to earn the wages he had always received until that date, the arguments as to when plaintiff was first informed of the nature and work-related cause of his disease were irrelevant. Thus his claim, filed on February 2, 1983, was timely. Underwood v. Cone Mills Corp., 78 N.C. App. 155, 336 S.E.2d 634 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 202, 341 S.E.2d 583 (1986).

§ 97-59. Employer to pay for treatment.

Medical compensation shall be paid by the employer in cases in which awards are made for disability or damage to organs as a result of an occupational disease after bills for same have been approved by the Industrial Commission.

In case of a controversy arising between the employer and employee relative to the continuance of medical, surgical, hospital or other treatment, the Industrial Commission may order such further treatments as may in the discretion of the Commission be necessary. (1935, c. 123; 1945, c. 762; 1973, c. 1061; 1981, c. 339; 1991, c. 703, s. 5.)

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1981 administrative law, see 60 N.C.L. Rev. 1165 (1982).

For survey of 1982 law on workers' compensation, see 61 N.C.L. Rev. 1243 (1983).

CASE NOTES

Section Controls over § 97-25. — This section, which is a more recent and specific statute dealing with awards of medical benefits in cases involving occupational disease, controls over § 97-25, which is an older and more general statute. Smith v. American & Efrid Mills, 305 N.C. 507, 290 S.E.2d 634 (1982).

Grounds for Award of Medical Benefits. — This section states two grounds upon which the Commission shall extend medical benefits; if either is found to exist by the Commissioner, an award for medical benefits must be made. Smith v. American & Efrid Mills, 305 N.C. 507, 290 S.E.2d 634 (1982).

There is no provision in the Act allowing the Commission to limit the award of medical expenses under this section to the period of time in which disability is paid; moreover upon finding that the treatment would provide needed relief, it is not necessary under this section for the Commission to determine that such treatment would also lessen the period of disability. Smith v. American & Efrid Mills, 305 N.C. 507, 290 S.E.2d 634 (1982).

"Needed Relief". — There is nothing talismanic about the phrase "needed relief." Where a medical expert's testimony is otherwise clear, he is not required to use those particular words to justify an award for future medical expenses. Heffner v. Cone Mills Corp., 83 N.C. App. 84, 349 S.E.2d 70 (1986).

Prior Approval Only Required Where Practicable. — The requirement in this section of prior approval of medical treatment applies only in cases where it is reasonably practicable to seek such prior approval. Smith v. American & Efrid Mills, 305 N.C. 507, 290 S.E.2d 634 (1982).

Failure to obtain approval for payments of medical expenses does not raise an estoppel claim. Knight v. Cannon Mills Co., 82 N.C. App. 453, 347 S.E.2d 832, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 507, 349 S.E.2d 861 (1986).

Plaintiff failed to properly preserve his right to appeal the failure of the Deputy Commissioner to order payment of medical expenses under this section, where there was no evidence in the record that the matter was ever addressed by the full commission, the plaintiff did not appeal from the Deputy Commissioner's opinion and award, and the sole issue on appeal before the full commission was the propriety of the amounts awarded for loss of lung function and attorneys' fees. Joyner v. Rocky Mount Mills, 85 N.C. App. 606, 355 S.E.2d 161 (1987).

§ 97-60. Examination of employees by advisory medical committee; designation of industries with dust hazards.

The compulsory examination of employees and prospective employees as herein provided applies only to persons engaged or about to engage in an occupation which has been found by the Industrial Commission to expose them to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis. The Industrial Commission shall designate by order each industry found subject to any such hazard and shall notify the employers therein before such examinations are required. On and after March 26, 1935, it shall be the duty of every employer, in the conduct of whose business his employees or any of them are subjected to the hazard of asbestosis and/or silicosis, to provide prior to employment necessary examinations of all new employees for the purpose of ascertaining if any of them are in any degree affected by asbestosis and/or silicosis or peculiarly susceptible thereto; and every such employer shall from time to time, as ordered by the Industrial Commission, provide similar examinations for all of his employees whose employment exposes them to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis. At least one member of the advisory medical committee or other physician designated by the Industrial Commission shall make such examinations or be present when any such examination is made. The refusal of an employee to submit to any such examination shall bar such employee from compensation or other benefits provided by this Article in the event of disablement and/or death resulting from exposure to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis subsequent to such refusal. It shall be the duty of the Industrial Commission to make and/or order inspections of employments and to keep a record of all employments subjecting employees to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis, and to notify the employer in any case where such hazard shall have been found to exist. The unreasonable failure of an employer to provide for any examination or his unreasonable refusal to permit any inspection herein authorized shall constitute a Class 1 misdemeanor and shall be punishable as such. (1935, c. 123; 1993, c. 539, s. 678; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 24, s. 14(c).)

CASE NOTES

Constitutionality. — The court disagreed with defendants employers that the under-inclusive nature of the asbestosis statutes somehow “places a disproportionate and unconstitutional burden on Defendants.” Clark v. ITT Grinnell Indus. Piping, Inc., 141 N.C. App. 417, 539 S.E.2d 369 (2000).

The provision herein for preemployment examinations was cited by the court in Haynes v. Feldspar Producing Co., 222 N.C. 163, 22 S.E.2d 275 (1942), as a justification for the harsh rule of the statute in throwing full liability on the last employer regardless of how brief the employment and how slight the injury ascribable to it.

The “engaged or about to engage in” language of this section does not carry over to the examination and compensation provisions of §§ 97-61.1 through 97-61.7. Austin v. Continental Gen. Tire, 141 N.C. App. 397, 540

§ 97-61: Rewritten as §§ 97-61.1 to 97-61.7.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1955, c. 525, s. 2, rewrote § 97-61 as §§ 97-61.1 through 97-61.7. The rewritten section had been derived from Public Laws 1935, c. 123, and was amended by Session Laws 1945, c. 762.

§ 97-61.1. First examination of and report on employee having asbestosis or silicosis.

When an employee and the Industrial Commission are advised by the Department of Health and Human Services that an employee has asbestosis or silicosis, the employer shall be notified by the Industrial Commission, and the employee, when ordered by the Industrial Commission, shall go to a place designated by the Industrial Commission and submit to X rays and a physical examination by the advisory medical committee, at least one of whom shall conduct the examination, and the member or members of the advisory medical committee conducting the examination shall forward the X rays and findings to the member or members of the committee not present for the physical examination. The employer shall pay the expenses connected with the examination in such amounts as shall be directed by the Industrial Commission. Within 30 days after the completion of the examination, the advisory medical committee shall make a written report signed by all of its members setting forth:

- (1) The X rays and clinical procedures used by the committee in arriving at its findings.
- (2) Whether or not the claimant has contracted asbestosis or silicosis.
- (3) The committee's opinion expressed in percentages of the impairment of the employee's ability to perform normal labor in the same or any other employment.
- (4) Any other matter deemed pertinent by the committee.

When a competent physician certifies to the Industrial Commission that the employee's physical condition is such that his movement to the place of examination ordered by the Industrial Commission as herein provided in G.S. 97-61.1, 97-61.3 and 97-61.4 would be harmful or injurious to the health of the employee, the Industrial Commission shall cause the examination of the employee to be made by the advisory medical committee as herein provided at some place in the vicinity of the residence of the employee suitable for the purposes of making such examination. (1935, c. 123; 1945, c. 762; 1955, c. 525, s. 2; 1973, c. 476, s. 128; 1989, c. 727, s. 219(15); 1997-443, s. 11A.37.)

CASE NOTES

An employer's status (or lack thereof) as a "dusty trade" does not impact the application of the examination and compensation scheme set forth in §§ 97-61.1 through 97-61.7. Austin v. Continental Gen. Tire, 141 N.C. App. 397, 540 S.E.2d 824 (2000), rev'd on other grounds, 354 N.C. 344, 553 S.E. 2d 680 (2001).

An employer need not be designated a "dusty trade" for §§ 97-61.1 through 97-61.7 to apply. Clark v. ITT Grinnell Indus. Piping, Inc., 141 N.C. App. 417, 539 S.E.2d 369 (2000).

The "engaged or about to engage in" language of § 97-60 does not carry over to the examination and compensation provisions of §§ 97-61.1 through 97-61.7. Austin v. Continental Gen. Tire, 141 N.C. App. 397, 540 S.E.2d 824 (2000), rev'd on other grounds, 354 N.C. 344, 553 S.E. 2d 680 (2001).

The "engaged or about to engage in" language of § 97-60 does not carry over to the screening and reporting provisions of §§ 97-61.1 through 97-61.7. Clark v. ITT Grinnell Indus. Piping, Inc., 141 N.C. App. 417, 539 S.E.2d 369 (2000).

Opinion of Percent of Impairment. — The Advisory Medical Committee's final "impression" of "Silicosis, Grade II, 100% disability" was clearly a fulfillment of the statutory requirement that its written report include the Committee's opinion, expressed in percentages, of the impairment of the employee's ability to perform labor or earn wages in the same or any other employment. Pitman v. Feldspar Corp., 87 N.C. App. 208, 360 S.E.2d 696 (1987), cert. denied, 321 N.C. 474, 364 S.E.2d 924 (1988).

§ 97-61.2. Filing of first report; right of hearing; effect of report as testimony.

The advisory medical committee shall file its report in triplicate with the Industrial Commission, which shall send one copy thereof to the claimant and one copy thereof to the employer by registered mail or certified mail. Unless within 30 days from receipt of the copy of said report the claimant and employer, or either of them, shall request the Industrial Commission in writing to set the case for hearing for the purpose of examining and cross-examining the members of the advisory medical committee respecting the report of said committee, and for the purpose of introducing additional testimony, said report shall become a part of the record of the case and shall be accepted by the Industrial Commission as expert medical testimony to be considered as such and in connection with all the evidence in the case in arriving at its decision. (1935, c. 123; 1945, c. 762; 1955, c. 525, s. 2; 1963, c. 450, s. 5.)

§ 97-61.3. Second examination and report.

As soon as practicable after the expiration of one year following the initial examination by the advisory medical committee and when ordered by the Industrial Commission, the employee shall again appear before the advisory medical committee, at least one of whom shall conduct the examination, and the member or members of the advisory medical committee conducting the examination shall forward the X rays and findings to the member or members of the committee not present for the physical examination. Within 30 days after the completion of the examination, the advisory medical committee shall make a written report to the Industrial Commission signed by all of its members, setting forth any change since the first report in the employee's condition which is due to asbestosis or silicosis, said report to be filed in triplicate with the Industrial Commission, which shall send one copy thereof to the claimant, and one copy to the employer by registered mail or certified mail. The claimant and employer, or either of them, shall have the right only at the final hearing provided for in G.S. 97-61.4 to examine or cross-examine the members of the advisory medical committee respecting the second report of the committee. (1935, c. 123; 1945, c. 762; 1955, c. 525, s. 2; 1959, c. 863, s. 2.)

§ 97-61.4. Third examination and report.

As soon as practicable after the expiration of two years from the first examination and when ordered by the Industrial Commission, the employee shall appear before the advisory medical committee, or at least two of them, for final X rays and physical examination. Upon completion of this examination and within 30 days, the advisory medical committee shall make a written report setting forth:

- (1) The X rays and clinical procedures used by the committee.
- (2) To what extent, if any, has the damage to the employee's lungs due to asbestosis or silicosis changed since the first examination.
- (3) The opinion of the committee, expressed in percentages, with respect to the extent of impairment of the employee's ability to earn in the same or any other employment the wages which the employee was receiving at the time of his last injurious exposure to asbestosis or silicosis.
- (4) Any other matter deemed pertinent by the committee.

Said report shall be filed in triplicate with the Industrial Commission which shall send one copy thereof to the claimant and one copy to the employer by registered mail or certified mail. (1935, c. 123; 1945, c. 762; 1955, c. 525, s. 2; 1959, c. 863, s. 3.)

§ 97-61.5. Hearing after first examination and report; removal of employee from hazardous occupation; compensation upon removal from hazardous occupation.

(a) After the employer and employee have received notice of the first committee report, the Industrial Commission, unless it has already approved an agreement between the employer and employee, shall set the matter for hearing at a time and place to be decided by it, to hear any controverted questions, determine if and to whom liability attaches, and where appropriate, file a written opinion with its findings of fact and conclusions of law and cause its award to be issued thereon, all of which shall be subject to modification as provided in G.S. 97-61.6.

(b) If the Industrial Commission finds at the first hearing that the employee has either asbestosis or silicosis or if the parties enter into an agreement to the effect that the employee has silicosis or asbestosis, it shall by order remove the employee from any occupation which exposes him to the hazards of asbestosis or silicosis, and if the employee thereafter engages in any occupation which exposes him to the hazards of asbestosis or silicosis without having obtained the written approval of the Industrial Commission as provided in G.S. 97-61.7, neither he, his dependents, personal representative nor any other person shall be entitled to any compensation for disablement or death resulting from asbestosis or silicosis; provided, that if the employee is removed from the industry the employer shall pay or cause to be paid as in this subsection provided to the employee affected by such asbestosis or silicosis a weekly compensation equal to sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of his average weekly wages before removal from the industry, but not more than the amount established annually to be effective October 1 as provided in G.S. 97-29 or less than thirty dollars (\$30.00) a week, which compensation shall continue for a period of 104 weeks. Payments made under this subsection shall be credited on the amounts payable under any final award in the cause entered under G.S. 97-61.6. (1935, c. 123; 1945, c. 762; 1955, c. 525, s. 2; c. 1354; 1957, c. 1217; c. 1396, s. 8; 1963, c. 604, s. 6; 1967, c. 84, s. 7; 1969, c. 143, s. 6; 1971, c. 281, s. 5; 1973, c. 515, s. 6; c. 759, s. 5; 1981, c. 276, s. 1; c. 378, s. 1.)

CASE NOTES

Constitutionality. — Assuming arguendo that defendant employer did have standing to assert a constitutional challenge to this section on the basis that it treats employees with asbestosis or silicosis differently than employees who contract occupational diseases other than asbestosis or silicosis, the court agreed with the Commission that the statute was not unconstitutional; enacted as an added benefit to employees suffering from asbestosis or silicosis, its purpose to account for the incurable, latent, and unique nature of asbestosis and silicosis, factors not apparent in other occupational diseases, the statute survives minimum scrutiny. Jones v. Weyerhaeuser Co., 141 N.C. App. 482, 539 S.E.2d 380 (2000), appeal dismissed and cert. denied, 353 N.C. 525, 549 S.E.2d 858 (2001).

This section is in conflict with §§ 97-54 and former 97-58(a), thereby establishing an exception. This exception made the diagnosis of asbestosis or silicosis the same as disablement. The disease must therefore have developed within two years of the last exposure. Roberts v. Southeastern Magnesia & Asbestos Co., 61 N.C. App. 706, 301 S.E.2d 742 (1983), decided prior to the 1987 amendment to § 97-58, which repealed subsection (a) thereof.

It is clear from the language of this section and § 97-61.7 that a diagnosis of asbestosis, for purposes of determining eligibility to receive benefits, is the equivalent of a finding of actual disability. Roberts v. Southeastern Magnesia & Asbestos Co., 61 N.C. App. 706, 301 S.E.2d 742 (1983).

Purpose of Section. — One of the purposes of this section is the compensation of employees for the incurable nature of the disease of asbestosis. Roberts v. Southeastern Magnesia & Asbestos Co., 61 N.C. App. 706, 301 S.E.2d 742 (1983).

Legislative Intent. — There is no indication that the legislature intended to prohibit any recovery whatsoever to those employees who refused to remove themselves from contact with asbestos after being diagnosed as having asbestosis. The statutory language merely prohibits recovery for actual partial incapacity if the employee, after receiving initial compensation in the form of 104 weeks of installment payments, is shown to have remained in a job where he or she is exposed to asbestos. Roberts v. Southeastern Magnesia & Asbestos Co., 61 N.C. App. 706, 301 S.E.2d 742 (1983).

The intent of the legislature in providing for an automatic 104 installment payments was to encourage employees to remove themselves from hazardous exposure to asbestos and to provide for employee rehabilitation. Roberts v. Southeastern Magnesia & Asbestos Co., 61 N.C. App. 706, 301 S.E.2d 742 (1983).

The Workers' Compensation Act contemplates that an employee will not be allowed to remain exposed to silica dust or asbestos dust until he becomes actually incapacitated within the meaning of § 97-54, and that if removed from the hazard before such incapacity, he will seek and obtain other remunerative employment. Brinkley v. United Feldspar & Minerals Corp., 246 N.C. 17, 97 S.E.2d 419 (1957).

Showing of Disability for Asbestosis. — The claimant could not recover compensation for total or partial incapacity to earn wages, both of which require a showing of disablement, where his prior award of 104-weeks compensation for asbestosis did not establish his disablement, but he was entitled to compensation for permanent injury to his lungs without offset for previous benefits received. Davis v. Weyerhaeuser Co., 132 N.C. App. 771, 514 S.E.2d 91 (1999).

Compensation Where Employee's Condition Is Complicated by Tuberculosis. — Where an employee is ordered to abstain from employment in an industry having the hazards of silica dust and directed to report for second and third medical examinations under §§ 97-61.3 and 97-61.4, it is proper that he be awarded the compensation provided by subsection (b) of this section without consideration of the fact that his condition was complicated by pulmonary tuberculosis, since the total amount of compensation is to be determined on the hearing after the third medical report as provided in § 97-61.6, at which time consideration should be given to the tubercular condition in accordance with § 97-65. Pitman v. Carpenter, 247 N.C. 63, 100 S.E.2d 231 (1957).

Section Construed with § 97-31. — The acceptance of benefits under this section does not necessarily preclude an award under § 97-31(24). Hicks v. Leviton Mfg. Co., 121 N.C. App. 453, 466 S.E.2d 78 (1996).

Calculation Based on Wage at Time of Diagnosis. — Plaintiff who was diagnosed with silicosis was entitled to compensation calculated based on his average weekly wage at the time he was diagnosed, not at the time of his last exposure or at the time he was "removed from the industry". Moore v. Standard Mineral Co., 122 N.C. App. 375, 469 S.E.2d 594 (1996).

Plaintiff was not barred from seeking disability benefits if his retirement was for reasons unrelated to his occupational disease; the pertinent issue was whether plaintiff, subsequent to retirement, experienced a loss in wage-earning capacity. Stroud v. Caswell Ctr., 124 N.C. App. 653, 478 S.E.2d 234 (1996).

An employee who retires prior to being diagnosed with asbestosis need not be "removed" from employment to be entitled to the 104 weeks compensation set forth in this section. Austin v. Continental Gen. Tire, 141 N.C. App. 397, 540 S.E.2d 824 (2000), rev'd on other grounds, 354 N.C. 344, 553 S.E. 2d 680 (2001).

An employee need not be "removed" from employment to be entitled to the 104 weeks compensation set forth in this sec- tion; construing this section in para materia with § 97-61.7 the court held that the General Assembly's intent was to allow an injured plaintiff to remain in the harmful work environment and receive the 104 weeks of compensation although the court acknowledged that the language of this section by itself appeared to restrict recovery to an employee who is removed from the industry. Clark v. ITT Grinnell Indus. Piping, Inc., 141 N.C. App. 417, 539 S.E.2d 369 (2000).

§ 97-61.6. Hearing after third examination and report; compensation for disability and death from asbestosis or silicosis.

After receipt by the employer and employee of the advisory medical committee's third report, the Industrial Commission, unless it has approved an agreement between the employee and employer, shall set a final hearing in the cause, at which it shall receive all competent evidence bearing on the cause, and shall make a final disposition of the case, determining what compensation, if any, the employee is entitled to receive in addition to the 104 weeks already received.

Where the incapacity for work resulting from asbestosis or silicosis is found to be total, the employer shall pay, or cause to be paid, to the injured employee during such total disability a weekly compensation in accordance with G.S. 97-29.

When the incapacity for work resulting from asbestosis or silicosis is partial, the employer shall pay, or cause to be paid, to the affected employee, a weekly compensation equal to sixty-six and two-thirds percent ( $66\frac{2}{3}\%$ ) of the difference between his average weekly wages at the time of his last injurious exposure, and the average weekly wages which he is able to earn thereafter, but not more than the amount established annually to be effective October 1 as provided in G.S. 97-29, a week, and provided that the total compensation so paid shall not exceed a period of 196 weeks, in addition to the 104 weeks for which the employee has already been compensated.

Provided, however, should death result from asbestosis or silicosis within two years from the date of last exposure, or should death result from asbestosis or silicosis, or from a secondary infection or diseases developing from asbestosis or silicosis within 350 weeks from the date of last exposure and while the employee is entitled to compensation for disablement due to asbestosis or silicosis, either partial or total, then in either of these events, the employer shall pay, or cause to be paid compensation in accordance with G.S. 97-38.

Provided further that if the employee has asbestosis or silicosis and dies from any other cause, the employer shall pay, or cause to be paid by one of the methods set forth in G.S. 97-38 compensation for any remaining portion of the 104 weeks specified in G.S. 97-61.5 for which the employee has not previously been paid compensation, and in addition shall pay compensation for such number of weeks as the percentage of disability of the employee bears to 196 weeks. If the employee was totally disabled as a result of asbestosis or silicosis, compensation shall be paid for any remaining portion of the 104 weeks specified in G.S. 97-61.5 for which the employee has not previously been paid compensation, and in addition shall be paid for an additional 300 weeks. (1935, c. 123; 1945, c. 762; 1955, c. 525, s. 2; c. 1354; 1957, c. 1271; 1963, c. 604, s. 7; 1965, c. 907; 1967, c. 84, s. 8; 1969, c. 143, s. 7; 1971, c. 281, s. 6; c. 631; 1973, c. 515, s. 7; c. 759, s. 6; c. 1308, ss. 6, 7; 1979, c. 246; 1981, c. 276, s. 1.)

istrative evidence rules, see 49 N.C.L. Rev. 635 (1971).

CASE NOTES

Purpose of Section. — Because of the difficulty of effecting a cure and the length of time necessary to ascertain the extent of the disability, this section fixes a time in the future when the total amount of compensation will be determined. Pitman v. Carpenter, 247 N.C. 63, 100 S.E.2d 231 (1957).

The language of the fourth paragraph of this section is clear, positive and understandable. When the language of a statute is plain and free from ambiguity, expressing a single, definite and sensible meaning, that meaning is conclusively presumed to be the meaning which the legislature intended, and the statute must be interpreted accordingly. Davis v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 259 N.C. 672, 131 S.E.2d 335 (1963).

The fourth paragraph of this section provides two conditions under which dependents of a deceased employee, who had silicosis, are entitled to compensation on account of his death: (1) If death results from silicosis within two years from the date of last exposure, or (2) if death results within 350 weeks from the date of last exposure and while the employee is entitled to compensation for disablement due to silicosis, either partial or total. These conditions are stated in independent clauses of a compound sentence, and neither clause is dependent upon the other. Davis v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 259 N.C. 672, 131 S.E.2d 335 (1963).

"Death Resulting from Asbestosis" Construed. — "Death resulting from asbestosis" was construed to mean that a compensable death occurs when job-related asbestosis only accelerates and contributes to the death but is not the immediate or primary cause. Self v. Starr-Davis Co., 13 N.C. App. 694, 187 S.E.2d 466 (1972), decided prior to the 1971 amendment to this section.

When Compensation Allowed Although Death Does Not Result from Silicosis. — Under this section the dependents of a deceased employee are entitled to compensation if the employee dies within 350 weeks from the date of last exposure to silicosis and while he is receiving or is entitled to receive compensation for disability due to silicosis, either partial or total, notwithstanding that the death does not result from silicosis. Davis v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 259 N.C. 672, 131 S.E.2d 335 (1963).

The clear intent of this section to provide compensation for death occurring within 350 weeks from the date of last exposure if the employee was at the time of death receiving compensation for disablement due to silicosis, even though the death does not result from silicosis, must be given effect notwithstanding § 97-2, subdivisions (6) and (10), and § 97-52, since the specific provisions relating to silicosis, which were enacted because of the peculiar course of the disease, must be construed as an exception to the general tenor of the Workers' Compensation Act to provide compensation for death only if it results from an accident arising out of and in the course of the employment. Davis v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 259 N.C. 672, 131 S.E.2d 335 (1963).

Disability Refers to Diminished Capacity to Earn Money. — Under the Workers' Compensation Act disability refers not to physical infirmity but to a diminished capacity to earn money. Mabe v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 15 N.C. App. 253, 189 S.E.2d 804 (1972).

But Earning Capacity Must Be That of Particular Plaintiff. — With respect to disability, the question is what effect has the disease had upon the earning capacity of this particular plaintiff; not what effect a like physical impairment would have upon an employee of average age and intelligence. Mabe v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 15 N.C. App. 253, 189 S.E.2d 804 (1972).

Where the plaintiff is fully incapacitated because of silicosis to earn wages through work at hard labor, which is the only work he is qualified to do by reason of his age and education, the plaintiff is totally incapacitated because of silicosis to earn, in the same or any other employment, the wages he was earning at the time of his last injurious exposure. Mabe v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 15 N.C. App. 253, 189 S.E.2d 804 (1972).

Effect of Commission's Findings. — If the findings of fact of the Industrial Commission are supported by competent evidence and are determinative of all the questions at issue in the proceeding, the court must accept such findings as final truth and merely determine whether or not they justify the legal conclusions and decision of the Commission. Mabe v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 15 N.C. App. 253, 189 S.E.2d 804 (1972).

Applied in Allen v. Standard Mineral Co., 71 N.C. App. 597, 322 S.E.2d 644 (1984).

§ 97-61.7. Waiver of right to compensation as alternative to forced change of occupation.

An employee who has been compensated under the terms of G.S. 97-61.5(b) as an alternative to forced change of occupation, may, subject to the approval of the Industrial Commission, waive in writing his right to further compensation for any aggravation of his condition that may result from his continuing in an occupation exposing him to the hazards of asbestosis or silicosis, in which case payment of all compensation awarded previous to the date of the waiver as approved by the Industrial Commission shall bar any further claims by the employee, or anyone claiming through him, provided, that in the event of total disablement or death as a result of asbestosis or silicosis with which the employee was so affected, compensation shall nevertheless be payable, but in no case, whether for disability or death or both, for a longer period than 100 weeks in addition to the 104 weeks already paid. Such written waiver must be filed with the Industrial Commission, and the Commission shall keep a record of each waiver, which record shall be open to the inspection of any interested person. (1935, c. 123; 1945, c. 762; 1955, c. 525, s. 2.)

CASE NOTES

Construing § 97-61.5 in para materia with this section, the court held that the General Assembly's intent was to allow an injured plaintiff to remain in the harmful work environment and receive the 104 weeks of compensation. Clark v. ITT Grinnell Indus. Piping, Inc., 141 N.C. App. 417, 539 S.E.2d 369 (2000).

Applied in Austin v. Continental Gen. Tire, 141 N.C. App. 397, 540 S.E.2d 824 (2000), rev'd on other grounds, 354 N.C. 344, 553 S.E. 2d 680 (2001).

It is clear from the language of § 97-61.5 and this section that a diagnosis of asbestosis, for purposes of determining eligibility to receive benefits, is the equivalent of a finding of actual disability. Roberts v. Southeastern Magnesia & Asbestos Co., 61 N.C. App. 706, 301 S.E.2d 742 (1983).

Waiver Inapplicable as to Subsequent Employment. — A waiver of an employee's right to compensation for silicosis signed by the employee upon his employment by one employer did not apply to or waive the employee's right to compensation for silicosis upon his subsequent employment by an entirely separate employer. Fetner v. Rocky Mount Marble & Granite Works, 251 N.C. 296, 111 S.E.2d 324 (1959).

§ 97-62. "Silicosis" and "asbestosis" defined.

The word "silicosis" shall mean the characteristic fibrotic condition of the lungs caused by the inhalation of dust of silica or silicates. "Asbestosis" shall mean a characteristic fibrotic condition of the lungs caused by the inhalation of asbestos dust. (1935, c. 123.)

Legal Periodicals. — For note, "Caulder v. Waverly Mills: Expanding the Definition of an Occupational Disease under the Last Injurious Exposure Rule," see 64 N.C.L. Rev. 1566 (1986).

CASE NOTES

Asbestosis is a disease of the lungs occurring in persons working in air laden with asbestos dust. It is infrequent as compared to silicosis, but has somewhat similar symptoms and consequences. Young v. Whitehall Co., 229 N.C. 360, 49 S.E.2d 797 (1948).

Sufficient evidence supported the Commission's finding that plaintiff had asbestosis as defined in this section. Austin v. Continental Gen. Tire, 141 N.C. App. 397, 540 S.E.2d 824 (2000), rev'd on other grounds, 354 N.C. 344, 553 S.E. 2d 680 (2001).

Competent evidence supported the Industrial Commission's findings that plaintiff suffered from asbestosis, as defined in this section; an expert in pulmonary medicine affiliated with the North Carolina Industrial Commission's Advisory Medical Committee testified that plaintiff's x-rays indicated evidence of "pleural plaques and thickening" and opined that plaintiff had "fibrotic conditions of the lung [] characteristic of asbestos exposure" while a pulmonary specialist, who examined plaintiff, found that "chest x-ray reveal[ed] definite pleural plaques quite consistent with asbestos exposure" and an expert in pulmonary medicine observed "evidence on chest radiograph consistent with a significant asbestos exposure." Clark v. ITT Grinnell Indus. Piping, Inc., 141 N.C. App. 417, 539 S.E.2d 369 (2000).

Quoted in Midkiff v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 235 N.C. 149, 69 S.E.2d 166 (1952).

Stated in Pitman v. Carpenter, 247 N.C. 63, 100 S.E.2d 231 (1957); Davis v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 259 N.C. 672, 131 S.E.2d 335 (1963).

§ 97-63. Period necessary for employee to be exposed.

Compensation shall not be payable for disability or death due to silicosis and/or asbestosis unless the employee shall have been exposed to the inhalation of dust of silica or silicates or asbestos dust in employment for a period of not less than two years in this State, provided no part of such period of two years shall have been more than 10 years prior to the last exposure. (1935, c. 123.)

CASE NOTES

Constitutionality. — This statute denies equal protection of the law under both the North Carolina Constitution and the United States Constitution in that it treats persons with asbestosis differently than persons with other occupational diseases and does so without any valid reason. Walters v. Algernon Blair, 120 N.C. App. 398, 462 S.E.2d 232 (1995), aff'd per curiam, 344 N.C. 628, 476 S.E.2d 105 (1996), cert. denied, 520 U.S. 1196, 117 S. Ct. 1551, 137 L. Ed. 2d 700 (1997).

Findings Required to Support Award for Silicosis. — To support an award to one suffering from silicosis, the Industrial Commission must find, inter alia, that the employee had been exposed to the hazards of silicosis for the period provided by § 97-57 and that the employee's work in the State must have exposed him to the inhalation of silica dust for the further period prescribed by this section. Pitman v. Carpenter, 247 N.C. 63, 100 S.E.2d 231 (1957); Woodell v. Starr Davis Co., 77 N.C. App. 352, 335 S.E.2d 48 (1985).

Employee Held Not Entitled to Rehabilitation Benefits Under Former § 97-61. — Employee had worked in granite industry from time to time during 18 years. However, from 1940 to 1946 he worked in a nondusty trade outside North Carolina and from 1946 to March, 1949, in a nondusty trade inside this State. From March, 1949, until June, 1950, he worked in defendant's granite shed. He then left the dusty trade and filed a claim for rehabilitation benefits, having developed silicosis. An award of rehabilitation benefits under former § 97-61 by the Commission was reversed by the Supreme Court, which held that no benefits could be obtained under the act until the employee had worked at least two years in a dusty trade in this State within the preceding 10 years. Midkiff v. North Carolina Granite Corp., 235 N.C. 149, 69 S.E.2d 166 (1952).

Where the evidence showed that decedent's last possible exposure occurred in February, 1975, he was required to meet the statutory time limitations between February 1965, and February 1975. Exposure which occurred prior to 1964 could not be used to calculate his level of exposure, since it occurred over 10 years prior to the last exposure. Gosney v. Golden Belt Mfg., 89 N.C. App. 670, 366 S.E.2d 873, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 835, 371 S.E.2d 276 (1988), upholding Commission's finding that plaintiff failed to show the length of exposure to asbestos required by § 97-57 and this section.

§ 97-64. General provisions of act to control as regards benefits.

Except as herein otherwise provided, in case of disablement or death from silicosis and/or asbestosis, compensation shall be payable in accordance with the provisions of the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act. (1935, c. 123; 1979, c. 714, s. 2.)

CASE NOTES

Purpose of Section. — With a view to averting the unjust and oppressive results of an indiscriminate transfer of workers affected by asbestosis or silicosis from their accustomed occupations to other employments under the economic threat of deprivation of compensation, the legislature established in this section the general rule that an employee becoming disabled by asbestosis or silicosis within the terms of the specific definition embodied in § 97-54 should be entitled to ordinary compensation measured by the general provisions of the act. Young v. Whitehall Co., 229 N.C. 360, 49 S.E.2d 797 (1948).

Quoted in Austin v. Continental Gen. Tire, 141 N.C. App. 397, 540 S.E.2d 824 (2000), rev'd on other grounds, 354 N.C. 344, 553 S.E. 2d 680 (2001); Clark v. ITT Grinnell Indus. Piping, Inc., 141 N.C. App. 417, 539 S.E.2d 369 (2000).

Cited in Brinkley v. United Feldspar & Minerals Corp., 246 N.C. 17, 97 S.E.2d 419 (1957).

§ 97-65. Reduction of rate where tuberculosis develops.

In case of disablement or death due primarily from silicosis and/or asbestosis and complicated with tuberculosis of the lungs compensation shall be payable as hereinbefore provided, except that the rate of payments may be reduced one sixth. (1935, c. 123.)

CASE NOTES

Time for Making Reduction in Award. — It is at the time of determining the total amount of compensation as provided in § 97-61.6 that the Commission should take into consideration the fact that the employee's condition is complicated by pulmonary tuberculosis and determine in its wisdom the extent to which the provisions of this section should affect the compensation payable to the employee. Pitman v. Carpenter, 247 N.C. 63, 100 S.E.2d 231 (1957).

Reduction of Award Rests in Discretion

of Commission. — Where the Industrial Commission found that a disabled employee was suffering from tuberculosis as well as from silicosis, whether the award for disability from silicosis should be reduced by one-sixth rested in the discretion of the Industrial Commission. Stewart v. Duncan, 239 N.C. 640, 80 S.E.2d 764 (1954); Fetner v. Rocky Mount Marble & Granite Works, 251 N.C. 296, 111 S.E.2d 324 (1959).

Cited in Duncan v. Carpenter, 233 N.C. 422, 64 S.E.2d 410 (1951).

§ 97-66. Claim where benefits are discontinued.

Where compensation payments have been made and discontinued, and further compensation is claimed, the claim for further compensation shall be made within two years after the last payment in all cases of occupational disease, provided, that claims for further compensation for asbestosis or silicosis shall be governed by the final award as set forth in G.S. 97-61.6. (1935, c. 123; 1945, c. 762; 1955, c. 525, s. 3; 1987, c. 729, s. 14.)

§ 97-67. Postmortem examinations; notice to next of kin and insurance carrier.

Upon the filing of a claim for death from an occupational disease where in the opinion of the Industrial Commission a postmortem examination is necessary to accurately ascertain the cause of death, such examination shall be ordered by the Industrial Commission. A full report of such examination shall be certified to the Industrial Commission. The surviving spouse or next kin and the employer or his insurance carrier, if their identity and whereabouts can be reasonably ascertained, shall be given reasonable notice of the time and place of such postmortem examination, and, if present at such examination, shall be given an opportunity to witness the same. Any such person may be present at and witness such examination either in person or through a duly authorized representative. If such examination is not consented to by the surviving husband or wife or next of kin, all right to compensation shall cease. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-68. Controverted medical questions.

The Industrial Commission may at its discretion refer to the advisory medical committee controverted medical questions arising out of occupational disease claims other than asbestosis or silicosis. (1935, c. 123; 1955, c. 525, s. 4.)

CASE NOTES

§ 97-69. Examination by advisory medical committee; inspection of medical reports.

The advisory medical committee, upon reference to it of a case of occupational disease shall notify the employee, or, in case he is dead, his dependents or personal representative, and his employer to appear before the advisory medical committee at a time and place stated in the notice. If the employee be living, he shall appear before the advisory medical committee at the time and place specified then or thereafter and he shall submit to such examinations including clinical and X-ray examinations as the advisory medical committee may require. The employee, or, if he be dead, the claimant and the employer shall be entitled to have present at all such examinations, a physician admitted to practice medicine in the State who shall be given every reasonable facility for observing every such examination whose services shall be paid for by the claimant or by the employer who engaged his services. If a physician admitted to practice medicine in the State shall certify that the employee is physically unable to appear at the time and place designated by the advisory medical committee, such committee may, upon the advice of the Industrial Commission, and on notice to the employer, change the place and/or time of the examination so as to reasonably facilitate the examination of the employee, and in any such case the employer shall furnish transportation and provide for other reasonably necessary expenses incidental to necessary travel. The claimant and the employer shall produce to the advisory medical committee all reports of medical and X-ray examinations which may be in their respective possession or control showing the past or present condition of the employee to assist the advisory medical committee in reaching its conclusions. Provided that this section shall not apply to a living employee who has contracted asbestosis or silicosis. (1935, c. 123; 1955, c. 525, s. 5.)

§ 97-70. Report of committee to Industrial Commission.

The advisory medical committee, shall, as soon as practicable after it has completed its consideration of a case, report to the Industrial Commission its opinion regarding all medical questions involved in the case. The advisory medical committee shall include in its report a statement of what, if any, physician or physicians were present at the examination on behalf of the claimant or employer and what, if any, medical reports and X rays were produced by or on behalf of the claimant or employer. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-71. Filing report; right of hearing on report.

The advisory medical committee shall file its report in triplicate with the Industrial Commission, which shall send one copy thereof to the claimant and one copy to the employer by registered mail. Unless within 30 days from receipt of the copy of said report the claimant and/or employer shall request the Industrial Commission in writing to set the case for further hearing for the purpose of examining and/or cross-examining the members of the advisory medical committee respecting the report of said committee, said report shall become a part of the record of the case and shall be accepted by the Industrial Commission as expert medical testimony to be considered as such in connection with all the evidence in the case in arriving at its decision. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-72. Appointment of advisory medical committee; terms of office; duties and functions; salaries and expenses.

(a) There shall be an advisory medical committee consisting of three members, who shall be licensed physicians in good professional standing and peculiarly qualified in the diagnosis or treatment of occupational diseases. They shall be appointed by the Industrial Commission with the approval of the Governor, and one of them shall be designated as chairman of the committee by the Industrial Commission. The members of committee shall be appointed to serve terms as follows: one for a term of two years, one for a term of four years, and one for a term of six years. Upon the expiration of each term as above mentioned the Industrial Commission shall appoint a successor for a term of six years. The function of the committee shall be to conduct examinations and make reports as required by G.S. 97-61.1 through 97-61.6 and 97-68 through 97-71, and to assist in any postmortem examinations provided for in G.S. 97-67 when so directed by the Industrial Commission. Members of the committee shall devote to the duties of the office so much of their time as may be required in the conducting of examinations with reasonable promptness, and they shall attend hearings as scheduled by the Industrial Commission when their attendance is desired for the purpose of examining and cross-examining them respecting any report or reports made by them.

(b) The members of the advisory medical committee shall be paid one hundred dollars ($100.00) per month plus not more than forty dollars ($40.00) per film examined. The fee per film shall be established by the Secretary of Health and Human Services, as guided by the current Medicaid/Medicare reimbursement schedules for North Carolina.

(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Article, the Industrial Commission, in its discretion, may designate a qualified physician who is not a member of the advisory medical committee to perform an examination of an employee who has filed a claim for benefits for asbestosis or silicosis. This physician shall file his reports in the same manner a member of the advisory medical committee files reports; and these reports shall be deemed reports of the advisory medical committee. (1935, c. 123; 1955, c. 525, s. 7; 1981, c. 562, s. 2; 1989, c. 439; 1991, c. 481, s. 1; 1997-443, s. 11A.38; 1997-508, s. 1.)

§ 97-73. Expenses of making examinations.

(a) The Industrial Commission shall establish a schedule of fees for examinations conducted and reports made pursuant to G.S. 97-61.1 through 97-61.6 and 97-67 through 97-71. The fees shall be collected in accordance with rules adopted by the Industrial Commission.

(b) The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall establish a schedule of fees for examinations conducted by the Department of Health and Human Services pursuant to G.S. 97-60. The fees shall be collected in accordance with rules adopted by the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

(c) Fees imposed pursuant to this section shall be collected from employers who by order of the Industrial Commission are determined to be subject to the hazards of asbestosis or silicosis. (1935, c. 123; 1955, c. 525, s. 8; 1991, c. 481, s. 2; 1991 (Reg. Sess., 1992), c. 1039, s. 2; 1997-443, s. 11A.39.)

§ 97-74. Expense of hearings taxed as costs in compensation cases; fees collected directed to general fund.

In hearings arising out of claims for disability and/or death resulting from occupational diseases the Industrial Commission shall tax as a part of the costs in cases in which compensation is awarded a reasonable allowance for the services of members of the advisory medical committee attending such hearings and reasonable allowances for the services of members of the advisory medical committee for making investigations in connection with all claims for compensation on account of occupational diseases, including uncontested cases, as well as contested cases, and whether or not hearings shall have been conducted in connection therewith. All such charges, fees and allowances to be collected by the Industrial Commission shall be paid into the general fund of the State treasury to constitute a fund out of which to pay the expenses of the advisory medical committee. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-75. Making up deficiency by assessment upon employers in hazardous industries; provision for annual fund.

In the event the amount appropriated by the General Assembly and the charges, fees and allowances so assessed and collected and paid into the State treasury shall not be sufficient to pay the full cost incurred by the advisory medical committee in making examinations of employees, and conducting postmortem examinations, and in making investigations of claims arising under this Article, and in testifying before the Industrial Commission, the Industrial Commission shall assess against the employers found by the Industrial Commission to be subject to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis an amount sufficient to pay such cost, said amount to be assessed against such employers pro rata on the basis of annual payroll. The Industrial Commission is authorized to assess and collect in advance in the beginning of any year from the employers subject to such hazard an amount estimated as necessary to pay such cost. Said amount when so assessed shall be paid by such employers within 10 days after the notice of assessment, and when collected by the Industrial Commission shall be paid into the State treasury as a part of the fund out of which to pay the expenses of the advisory medical committee. In the event such amount so assessed shall be found to be in excess of the cost incurred by such advisory medical committee in the performance of its duties under this Article, such excess shall be credited against the estimate of the cost to be incurred by said committee for the succeeding year. In case the amount so assessed shall be insufficient to pay such cost the Industrial Commission is authorized to make an additional assessment to be made at the end of the regular assessment period and to be collected from the employers subject to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis. (1935, c. 123.)

§ 97-76. Inspection of hazardous employments; refusal to allow inspection made misdemeanor.

The Industrial Commission shall make inspections of employments for the purpose of ascertaining whether such employments, or any of them, are subject to the hazards of asbestosis and/or silicosis, and for the purpose of making studies and recommendations with a view to reducing and/or eliminating such hazards. The Industrial Commission, and/or any person selected by it, is authorized to enter upon the premises of employers where employments covered by this Article are being carried on to make examinations and studies as aforesaid. Any employer, or any officer or agent of any employer, who unreasonably prevents or obstructs any such examinations or study shall be guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor. (1935, c. 123; 1993, c. 539, s. 679; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 24, s. 14(c).)

§ 97-77. North Carolina Industrial Commission created; members appointed by Governor; terms of office; chairman.

(a) There is hereby created a commission to be known as the North Carolina Industrial Commission, consisting of seven commissioners who shall devote their entire time to the duties of the Commission. The Governor shall appoint the members of the Commission, one for a term of two years, one for a term of four years, and one for a term of six years. Of the additional appointments made in 1994, one shall be for a term expiring June 30, 1996, one for a term expiring June 30, 1998, and two for terms expiring June 30, 2000. Upon the expiration of each term as above mentioned, the Governor shall appoint a successor for a term of six years, and thereafter the term of office of each commissioner shall be six years. Not more than three appointees shall be persons who, on account of their previous vocations, employment or affiliations, can be classed as representatives of employers, and not more than three appointees shall be persons who, on account of their previous vocations, employment or affiliations, can be classed as representatives of employees.

(b) One member, to be designated by the Governor, shall act as chairman. The chairman shall be the chief judicial officer and the chief executive officer of the Industrial Commission; such authority shall be exercised pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 126 of the General Statutes and the rules and policies of the State Personnel Commission. Notwithstanding the provisions of this Chapter, the chairman shall have such authority as is necessary to direct and oversee the Commission. The chairman may delegate any duties and responsibilities as may be necessary to ensure the proper management of the Industrial Commission. Notwithstanding the provisions of this Chapter, Chapter 143A, and Chapter 143B of the General Statutes, the chairman may hire or fire personnel and transfer personnel within the Industrial Commission.

The Governor may designate one vice-chairman from the remaining commissioners. The vice-chairman shall assume the powers of the chairman upon request of the chairman or when the chairman is absent for 24 hours or more. The authority delegated to the vice-chairman shall be relinquished immediately upon the return of the chairman or at the request of the chairman. (1929, c. 120, s. 51; 1931, c. 274, s. 8; 1991, c. 264, s. 1; 1993, c. 399, s. 3; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 769, s. 28.15(a).)

CASE NOTES

The Industrial Commission is a creature of the General Assembly and was created by statute. Bowman v. Comfort Chair Co., 271 N.C. 702, 157 S.E.2d 378 (1967).

The Industrial Commission is primarily an administrative agency of the State, charged with the duty of administering the provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act. Hanks v. Southern Pub. Util. Co., 210 N.C. 312, 186 S.E. 252 (1936), citing In re Hayes, 200 N.C. 133, 156 S.E. 791 (1931). See Brice v. Robertson House Moving, Wrecking & Salvage Co., 249 N.C. 74, 105 S.E.2d 439 (1958).

The Commission is not a court of general jurisdiction. It can have no implied jurisdiction beyond the presumption that it is clothed with the power to perform the duties required of it by the law entrusted to it for administration. Barber v. Minges, 223 N.C. 213, 25 S.E.2d 837 (1943); Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

The Industrial Commission is not a court of general jurisdiction. It is an administrative board with quasi-judicial functions and has a special or limited jurisdiction created by statute and confined to its terms. Letterlough v. Atkins, 258 N.C. 166, 128 S.E.2d 215 (1962); Bowman v. Comfort Chair Co., 271 N.C. 702, 157 S.E.2d 378 (1967); Morse v. Curtis, 276 N.C. 371, 172 S.E.2d 495 (1970).

The Industrial Commission is not a court of general jurisdiction. It has no jurisdiction except that conferred upon it by statute. Bryant v. Dougherty, 267 N.C. 545, 148 S.E.2d 548 (1966).

Its Jurisdiction Is Limited. — In its functions as a court, the jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission is limited, and jurisdiction cannot be conferred on it by agreement or waiver. Chadwick v. North Carolina Dep't of Conservation & Dev., 219 N.C. 766, 14 S.E.2d 842 (1941).

The Industrial Commission has only the limited power and jurisdiction delegated to it by statute, as it is purely a creation of the General Assembly. Buck v. Procter & Gamble Mfg. Co., 58 N.C. App. 804, 295 S.E.2d 243 (1982), cert. denied, 308 N.C. 543, 304 S.E.2d 236 (1983).

The jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission may not be enlarged or extended by act or consent of parties, nor may jurisdiction be conferred by agreement or waiver. Letterlough v. Atkins, 258 N.C. 166, 128 S.E.2d 215 (1962); Morse v. Curtis, 276 N.C. 371, 172 S.E.2d 495 (1970).

Continuing Jurisdiction. — It was the purpose of the General Assembly that the Industrial Commission should have a continuing jurisdiction of all proceedings begun before the Commission for compensation in accordance with its terms. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

Commission Is Special Tribunal When Considering Claims. — When a claim for compensation has been filed and the employer and employee have failed to reach an agreement, the statute authorizes the Commission to hear and determine all matters in dispute. Thereupon, the Commission is constituted a special or limited tribunal, and is invested with certain judicial functions, and possesses the powers and incidents of a court, within the provisions of the act, and as are necessary to determine the rights and liabilities of employees and employers. Hanks v. Southern Pub. Util. Co., 210 N.C. 312, 186 S.E. 252 (1936); Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

The Industrial Commission, while primarily an administrative agency of the State, is constituted a special or limited tribunal to hear and determine matters in dispute between employer and employee in a claim for compensation under the Workers' Compensation Act. Hodge v. Robertson, 2 N.C. App. 216, 162 S.E.2d 594 (1968).

In approving settlements the Commission acts in its judicial capacity. Letterlough v. Atkins, 258 N.C. 166, 128 S.E.2d 215 (1962).

The legislature intended that the Industrial Commission should administer the Workers' Compensation Act under summary and simple procedure, distinctly its own, so as to furnish speedy, substantial, and complete relief to parties bound by the act. Greene v. Spivey, 236 N.C. 435, 73 S.E.2d 488 (1952).

The Commission may not ex mero motu institute a proceeding. Letterlough v. Atkins, 258 N.C. 166, 128 S.E.2d 215 (1962).

Power to Order Rehearing. — The Commission has the power to order a rehearing on the basis of newly discovered evidence. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

Power to Set Aside Judgment. — The Industrial Rule Commission has inherent power analogous to that conferred on courts by § 1A-1, Rule 60(b)(6), in the exercise of supervision over its own judgments to set aside a former judgment when the paramount interest in achieving a just and proper determination of a workers' compensation claim requires it. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

Because the power to set aside a former judgment is vital to the proper functioning of the judiciary, the Legislature impliedly vested such power in the Commission in conjunction with the judicial power which the Legislature granted it to administer the Workers' Compensation Act. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

The Industrial Commission possesses such judicial power as is necessary to administer the Workers' Compensation Act. The Commission's judicial power includes the power to set aside a former judgment on the grounds of mutual mistake, misrepresentation, or fraud. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

Majority of Commission. — The Commission is a continuing body. As a commission it acts by a majority of its qualified members at the time a decision is made. A vote of two members, therefore, would constitute a majority of the Commission empowered to act for the Commission. Gant v. Crouch, 243 N.C. 604, 91 S.E.2d 705 (1956).

A hearing commissioner has no authority to award plaintiff an attorneys' fee as part of the costs upon an initial hearing in a workers' compensation matter. Bowman v. Comfort Chair Co., 271 N.C. 702, 157 S.E.2d 378 (1967).

OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

The governor is not required to appoint a representative of employers and a representative of employees. See opinion of Attorney General to the Honorable Robert W. Scott, Governor of North Carolina, 40 N.C.A.G. 311 (1970).

§ 97-77.1. Expired.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1993, c. 679, s. 11.1, as amended by Session Laws 1997-483, s. 13.1, provided that this section, relating to an advisory council, would expire July 1, 2001.

§ 97-78. Salaries and expenses; administrator, executive secretary, and other staff assistance; annual report.

(a) The salary of each commissioner shall be the same as that fixed from time to time for district attorneys except that the commissioner designated as chair shall receive one thousand five hundred dollars ($1,500) additional per annum.

(b) The Commission may appoint an administrator whose duties shall be prescribed by the Commission, and who shall be subject to the State Personnel System. The Commission may appoint an executive secretary whose duties shall be prescribed by the Commission, and who shall be subject to the State Personnel System and who, upon entering upon his duties, shall give bond in such sum as may be fixed by the Commission. The Commission may also employ such clerical or other assistance as it may deem necessary, and fix the compensation of its staff, except that the salaries of the administrator and the executive secretary shall be fixed by subsection (b1) of this section. The compensation of Commission staff shall be in keeping with the compensation paid to the persons employed to do similar work in other State departments.

(b1) The salary of the administrator shall be ninety percent (90%) of the salary of a commissioner. The salary of the executive secretary shall be eighty percent (80%) of the salary of a commissioner. In lieu of merit and other incremental raises, the administrator and the executive secretary shall receive longevity pay on the same basis as is provided to other employees subject to the State Personnel Act.

(c) The members of the Commission and its assistants shall be entitled to receive from the State their actual and necessary expenses while traveling on the business of the Commission, but such expenses shall be certified by the person who incurred the same, and shall be approved by the chairman of the Commission before payment is made.

(d) All salaries and expenses of the Commission shall be audited and paid out of the State treasury, in the manner prescribed for similar expenses in other departments or branches of the State service, and to defray such salaries and expenses a sufficient appropriation shall be made under the General Appropriation Act as made to other departments, commissions and agencies of the State government.

(e) The Commission shall publish annually for free distribution a report of the administration of this Article, together with such recommendations as the Commission deems advisable. (1929, c. 120, s. 52; 1931, c. 274, s. 9; 1941, c. 358, s. 2; 1947, c. 823; 1957, c. 541, s. 6; 1971, c. 527, s. 1; c. 1147, s. 1; 1983, c. 717, s. 20; 1983 (Reg. Sess., 1984), c. 1034, s. 164; 1997-443, s. 33.4; 1998-212, s. 28.18(a).)

§ 97-79. Offices and supplies; deputies with power to subpoena witnesses and to take testimony; meetings; hearings.

(a) The Commission shall be provided with adequate offices in which the records shall be kept and its official business transacted during regular business hours; it shall also be provided with necessary office furniture, stationery, and other supplies.

(b) The Commission may appoint deputies who shall have the same power as members of the Commission pursuant to G.S. 97-80 and the same power to take evidence, and enter orders, opinions, and awards based thereon as is possessed by the members of the Commission. The deputies shall be subject to the State Personnel System.

(c) The Commission or any member thereof may hold sessions at any place within the State as may be deemed necessary by the Commission.

(d) Hearings before the Commission shall be open to the public and shall be stenographically reported, and the Commission is authorized to contract for the reporting of such hearings. The Commission shall by regulation provide for the preparation of a record of the hearings and other proceedings. Notwithstanding the provisions of this subsection, informal hearings conducted pursuant to the provisions of G.S. 97-18.1, whether by telephone or in person, shall not be open to the public nor stenographically reported unless the Commission orders otherwise.

(e) The Commission, or any member thereof, or any deputy is authorized by appropriate order, to make additional parties plaintiff or defendant in any proceeding pending before the Commission when it is made to appear that such new party is either a necessary party or a proper party to a final determination of the proceeding.

(f) The Commission shall create an ombudsman program to assist unrepresented claimants, employers, and other parties, to enable them to protect their rights under this Article. In addition to other duties assigned by the Commission, the ombudsman shall meet with, or otherwise provide information to, injured employees, investigate complaints, and communicate with employers' insurance carriers and physicians at the request of the claimant. Assistance provided under this subsection shall not include representing the claimant in a compensation hearing. (1929, c. 120, s. 53; 1931, c. 274, s. 10; 1951, c. 1059, s. 7; 1955, c. 1026, s. 11; 1971, c. 527, s. 2; c. 1147, s. 2; 1981 (Reg. Sess., 1982), c. 1243, s. 1; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 5.2.)

CASE NOTES

Appointment of Deputies Discretionary. — It is inherent in this section that the Commission has the discretion to appoint deputies for such purposes as are appropriate for the conduct of its business. Hedgecock v. Frye, 1 N.C. App. 369, 161 S.E.2d 647 (1968).

No Particular Title Need Be Conferred on Deputy. — The authority to appoint a deputy does not require that any particular title be conferred upon the deputy, nor does it require that his title must include the word "deputy." Hedgecock v. Frye, 1 N.C. App. 369, 161 S.E.2d 647 (1968).

The Commission has the authority to appoint a chief claims examiner as its dep- uty to act for it in approval or disapproval of agreements for compensation. Hedgecock v. Frye, 1 N.C. App. 369, 161 S.E.2d 647 (1968).

View of Premises and Method of Doing Work. — In Johnson v. Erwin Cotton Mills Co., 232 N.C. 321, 59 S.E.2d 828 (1950), the hearing commissioner, claimant and defendant viewed the premises and the method of doing the work in which plaintiff had been employed. Although apparently approved by the court, the point was not discussed. See also Rewis v. New York Life Ins. Co., 226 N.C. 325, 38 S.E.2d 97 (1946).

Quoted in Moore v. City of Raleigh, 135 N.C. App. 332, 520 S.E.2d 133 (1999).

§ 97-80. Rules and regulations; subpoena of witnesses; examination of books and records; depositions; costs.

(a) The Commission may make rules, not inconsistent with this Article, for carrying out the provisions of this Article. The Commission shall request the Office of State Budget and Management to prepare a fiscal note for a proposed new or amended rule that has a substantial economic impact, as defined in G.S. 150B-21.4(b1). The Commission shall not take final action on a proposed rule change that has a substantial economic impact until at least 60 days after the fiscal note has been prepared.

Processes, procedure, and discovery under this Article shall be as summary and simple as reasonably may be.

(b) The Commission or any member thereof, or any person deputized by it, shall have the power, for the purpose of this Article, to tax costs against the parties, to administer or cause to have administered oaths, to preserve order at hearings, to compel the attendance and testimony of witnesses, and to compel the production of books, papers, records, and other tangible things.

(c) The Commission may order parties to participate in mediation, under rules substantially similar to those approved by the Supreme Court for use in the Superior Court division, except the Commission shall determine the manner in which payment of the costs of the mediated settlement conference is assessed.

(d) The Commission may order testimony to be taken by deposition and any party to a proceeding under this Article may, upon application to the Commission, which application shall set forth the materiality of the evidence to be given, cause the depositions of witnesses residing within or without the State to be taken, the costs to be taxed as other costs by Commission. Depositions ordered by the Commission upon application of a party shall be taken after giving the notice and in the manner prescribed by law for depositions in action at law, except that they shall be directed to the Commission, the commissioner, or the deputy commissioner before whom the proceedings may be pending.

(e) A subpoena may be issued by the Commission and served in accordance with G.S. 1A-1, Rule 45. Upon a motion, the Commission may quash a subpoena if it finds that the evidence the production of which is required does not relate to a matter in issue, the subpoena does not describe with sufficient particularity the evidence the production of which is required, or for any other reason sufficient in law the subpoena may be quashed. Each witness who appears in obedience to such subpoena of the Commission shall receive for attendance the fees and mileage for witnesses in civil cases in courts of the county where the hearing is held.

(f) The Commission may by rule provide for and limit the use of interrogatories and other forms of discovery, and it may provide reasonable sanctions for failure to comply with a Commission order compelling discovery.

(g) The Commission or any member or deputy thereof shall have the same power as a judicial officer pursuant to Chapter 5A of the General Statutes to hold a person in civil contempt, as provided thereunder, for failure to comply with an order of the Commission, Commission member, or deputy. A person held in civil contempt may appeal in the manner provided for appeals pursuant to G.S. 97-85 and G.S. 97-86. The provisions of G.S. 5A-24 shall not apply to appeals pursuant to this subsection.

(h) The Commission or any member or deputy thereof shall also have the same power as a judicial officer pursuant to Chapter 5A of the General Statutes to punish for criminal contempt, subject to the limitations thereunder, (i) for wilful behavior committed during the sitting of the commissioner or deputy commissioner and directly tending to interrupt the proceedings; (ii) for wilful disobedience of a lawful order of the Commission or a member or deputy thereof; or (iii) for wilful refusal to be sworn or affirmed as a witness, or, when so sworn or affirmed, wilful refusal to answer any legal and proper question when refusal is not legally justified. The Commission or any member or deputy thereof may issue an order of arrest as provided by G.S. 15A-305 when authorized by G.S. 5A-16 in connection with contempt proceedings. When the commissioner or deputy commissioner chooses not to proceed summarily pursuant to G.S. 5A-14, the proceedings shall be before a district court judge, and venue lies throughout the district where the order was issued directing the person charged to appear. A person found in criminal contempt may appeal in the manner provided for appeals in criminal actions to the superior court of the district in which the order of contempt was issued, and the appeal is by hearing de novo before a superior court judge. (1929, c. 120, s. 54; 1977, cc. 456, 505; 1981 (Reg. Sess., 1982), c. 1243, s. 2; 1993, c. 321, s. 25(b); c. 399, s. 1; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, ss. 5.3, 5.4; 1995, c. 358, s. 8(a), (b); c. 437, s. 6(a), (b); c. 467, s. 5(a), (b); c. 507, ss. 25.13, 27.8(o); c. 509, s. 48; 2000-140, s. 93.1(a); 2001-424, s. 12.2(b).)

Cross References. — As to medical committee fees, see § 97-74. As to costs on review, see § 97-88. As to medical fees, see § 97-89.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1993, c. 321, s. 25(b) provides that, if HB 658 (Session Laws 1993, c. 399) is enacted, the first sentence of s. 4 of c. 399 is amended by deleting "only if the General Assembly appropriates funds to implement the purpose of this act." However, this language is in the second sentence of section 5 of Chapter 399 and reads "only if the General Assembly appropriates funds to implement the purpose of these sections." The Revisor of Statutes was informed that appropriation was made in 1994.

Session Laws 2001-424, s. 1.2, provides: "This act shall be known as the 'Current Operations and Capital Improvements Appropriations Act of 2001'."

Session Laws 2001-424, s. 36.5 is a severability clause.

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2000-140, s. 93.1, effective July 1, 2000, in subsection (a), substituted "Office of State Budget, Planning and Management" for "Office of State Budget and Management."

Session Laws 2001-424, s. 12.2(b), effective July 1, 2001, substituted "Office of State Budget and Management" for "Office of State Budget, Planning, and Management" in the first paragraph of subsection (a).

CASE NOTES

- I. In General.
- II. Rules and Rule Making.
- III. Evidence.
- IV. Findings.

I. IN GENERAL.

Determination of Jurisdiction Is First Order of Business. — In every proceeding before the Commission, determination of jurisdiction is the first order of business. Letterlough v. Atkins, 258 N.C. 166, 128 S.E.2d 215 (1962).

Continuing Jurisdiction. — It was the purpose of the General Assembly that the Industrial Commission should have a continuing jurisdiction of all proceedings begun before the Commission for compensation in accordance with its terms. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

Power to Order Rehearing. — While there is no direct statutory provision giving the Industrial Commission power to order a rehearing of an award made by it for newly discovered evidence, the Commission has such power in proper instances in accordance with its rules and regulations, as provided by this section, it being the intent of the legislature, as gathered from the whole act, to give the Industrial Commission continuing jurisdiction of all proceedings begun before it with appellate jurisdiction in the superior court on matters of law only. Butts v. Montague Bros., 208 N.C. 186, 179 S.E. 799 (1935).

The Commission has the power to order a rehearing on the basis of newly discovered evidence. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

Power to Set Aside Judgment. — The Industrial Rule Commission has inherent power analogous to that conferred on courts by § 1A-1, Rule 60(b)(6), in the exercise of supervision over its own judgments to set aside a former judgment when the paramount interest in achieving a just and proper determination of a workers' compensation claim requires it. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

Because the power to set aside a former judgment is vital to the proper functioning of the judiciary, the Legislature impliedly vested such power in the Commission in conjunction with the judicial power which the Legislature granted it to administer the Workers' Compensation Act. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

The Industrial Commission possesses such judicial power as is necessary to administer the Workers' Compensation Act. The Commission's judicial power includes the power to set aside a former judgment on the grounds of mutual mistake, misrepresentation, or fraud. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 315 N.C. 127, 337 S.E.2d 477 (1985).

Power to Force Witness to Testify. — This section does not deprive the Commission of the power to force a witness who is before it to testify and to punish for contempt a witness who refuses to testify. In re Hayes, 200 N.C. 133, 156 S.E. 791, 73 A.L.R. 1179 (1931).

The Industrial Commission did not exceed its authority by the repeal of the Blue Cross Blue Shield rule. — Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth. v. North Carolina Indus. Comm'n, 336 N.C. 200, 443 S.E.2d 716 (1994).

Attorney's Travel Expenses in Taking Deposition Out-of-State. — The travel expenses of the attorney who took a deposition of a witness out-of-state by order of the Commissioner were part of the cost of taking the deposition under this section, and should have been so taxed by the full Commission. Cloutier v. State, 57 N.C. App. 239, 291 S.E.2d 362, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 555, 294 S.E.2d 222 (1982).

Taxing Costs of Taking Medical Expert's Deposition. — There is no restriction in either the Workers' Compensation Act or the Rules of the Industrial Commission on the commission's discretion to tax costs of a deposition when the plaintiff requests the deposition of its own medical expert. Harvey v. Raleigh Police Dep't, 85 N.C. App. 540, 355 S.E.2d 147, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 631, 360 S.E.2d 86 (1987), affirming commission's order requiring defendant to pay the costs of expert's deposition.

Enumeration of Rules Violations. — An order dismissing a workers' compensation action or proceeding for violation of the Workers' Compensation Rules must specifically enumerate which of the Rules has been violated and what actions constitute the violations. Matthews v. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth., 132 N.C. App. 11, 510 S.E.2d 388 (1999).

Applied in McPhaul v. Sewell, 36 N.C. App. 312, 244 S.E.2d 158 (1978); Grantham v. R.G. Barry Corp., 115 N.C. App. 293, 444 S.E.2d 659 (1994).

Quoted in Pratt v. Central Upholstery Co., 252 N.C. 716, 115 S.E.2d 27 (1960); Hodge v. Robertson, 2 N.C. App. 216, 162 S.E.2d 594 (1968); Timmons v. North Carolina DOT, 123 N.C. App. 456, 473 S.E.2d 356 (1996), aff'd, 346 N.C. 173, 484 S.E.2d 551 (1997); Matthews v. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth., 132 N.C. App. 11, 510 S.E.2d 388 (1999).

App. 312, 183 S.E.2d 308 (1971); Belfield v. Weyerhaeuser Co., 77 N.C. App. 332, 335 S.E.2d 44 (1985).

II. RULES AND RULE MAKING.

Application of Judicial Rules of Evidence. — Strictly speaking, the rules of evidence applicable in the general courts do not govern the Industrial Commission's own administrative factfinding. Haponski v. Constructor's Inc., 87 N.C. App. 95, 360 S.E.2d 109 (1987).

Rule-Making Power Relates Only to Administrative Matters. — The rule-making power here granted relates only to administrative matters. There can be no delegation of the power to make law. Motsinger v. Perryman, 218 N.C. 15, 9 S.E.2d 511 (1940).

Construction and Application of Rules. — Under this section the Industrial Commission has the power not only to make rules governing its administration of the act, but also to construe and apply such rules. Its construction and application of its rules, duly made and promulgated, in proceedings pending before the Commission, ordinarily is final and conclusive and not subject to review by the courts of this State on an appeal from an award made by the Commission. Winslow v. Carolina Conference Ass'n, 211 N.C. 571, 191 S.E. 403 (1937); Shore v. Chatham Mfg. Co., 54 N.C. App. 678, 284 S.E.2d 179 (1981), cert. denied, 304 N.C. 729, 287 S.E.2d 902 (1982).

Statutory authority existed to promulgate rules for the assessment of attorney's fees in a case where a party's attorney failed to stipulate as to medical reports prepared by a doctor and a deputy commissioner had to order a deposition of the doctor. Hawley v. Wayne Dale Constr., — N.C. App. —, 552 S.E.2d 269, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 944 (2001).

Rules promulgated by the Commission are for the benefit of the Commission and must be complied with by the parties to a proceeding brought pursuant to the provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act. Brewer v. Powers Trucking Co., 256 N.C. 175, 123 S.E.2d 608 (1962); Petty v. Associated Transp., 4 N.C. App. 361, 167 S.E.2d 38 (1969), rev'd on other grounds, 276 N.C. 417, 173 S.E.2d 321 (1970).

And Do Not Limit Its Power to Review Findings of Fact. — Rules promulgated by the Commission do not limit the power of the Commission to review, modify, adopt, or reject the findings of fact found by a deputy commissioner or by an individual member of the Commission when acting as a hearing commissioner. Petty v. Associated Transp., 4 N.C. App. 361, 167 S.E.2d 38 (1969), rev'd on other grounds, 276 N.C. 417, 173 S.E.2d 321 (1970).

The Commission was not entitled to relax its rule that fees for practical nursing would not be allowed unless written authority was obtained from the Commission in advance, so as to award mother of injured employee an amount for practical nursing services rendered to injured employee, where the record showed that the Commission never gave its written or oral permission for rendition of services. Hatchett v. Hitchcock Corp., 240 N.C. 591, 83 S.E.2d 539 (1954).

The Commission may not use its own rules to deprive a plaintiff of the right to have his case fully determined; thus, the Commission's statement in an order dismissing plaintiff's motions that "the issue of payment of future medical expenses is not properly preserved" would not support the order. Joyner v. Rocky Mount Mill, 92 N.C. App. 478, 374 S.E.2d 610 (1988).

Rules Inconsistent with Article. — The power to make rules may not be exercised when the rule is inconsistent with this Article. Evans v. Asheville Citizens Times Co., 246 N.C. 669, 100 S.E.2d 75 (1957), holding that Rule XVI of the Commission was inconsistent with § 97-30.

Commission Held Without Authority to Allow Claim. — To allow an employee's claim for additional compensation for the reason that such claim was made within 12 months from the time he was furnished a copy of Form 28B would be allowing the Commission by its rule-making authority to amend § 97-47; this would exceed the authority granted the Commission by this section. Willis v. J.M. Davis Indus., Inc., 280 N.C. 709, 186 S.E.2d 913 (1972), decided prior to 1973 amendment to § 97-47.

Rule requiring notice of cancellation of policy to be given to the Commission does not become a part of the policy contract. Motsinger v. Perryman, 218 N.C. 15, 9 S.E.2d 511 (1940).

Rule Relative to New Evidence on Review. — The rules of the Industrial Commission, adopted pursuant to this section, relative to the introduction of new evidence on review by the full Commission, are in accord with the decisions of the Supreme Court as to granting new trials for newly discovered evidence. Tindall v. American Furn. Co., 216 N.C. 306, 4 S.E.2d 894 (1939); Hall v. Thomason Chevrolet, Inc., 263 N.C. 569, 139 S.E.2d 857 (1965); McCulloh v. Catawba College, 266 N.C. 513, 146 S.E.2d 467 (1966).

Procedure before the Industrial Commission need not necessarily conform strictly to judicial procedure in courts of law unless the statute so requires or the court of last resort shall consider such procedure indispensable to the preservation of the essentials of justice and the principles of due process of law, and procedure adopted by the Commission with respect to the reception and consideration of evidence will be given liberal treatment by the courts, since this section empowers the Commission to make rules for carrying out the provisions of the act, and requires processes and procedure to be summary and simple. Maley v. Thomasville Furn. Co., 214 N.C. 589, 200 S.E. 438 (1939).

III. EVIDENCE.

Basis of Facts Found. — Determinative facts upon which rights of parties are made to rest must be found from judicial admissions made by the parties, facts agreed, stipulations entered into and noted at the hearing, and evidence offered in open court, after all parties have been given full opportunity to be heard. Recourse may not be had to records, files, evidence, or data not thus presented to the court. Letterlough v. Atkins, 258 N.C. 166, 128 S.E.2d 215 (1962).

Hearsay evidence is not competent to establish either that an accident arose out of or in the course of the employment. Plyer v. Charlotte Country Club, 214 N.C. 453, 199 S.E. 622 (1938).

The award of the Commission will not be disturbed because of the presence of hearsay testimony when there is other competent evidence upon which to base the findings. Hearsay evidence offered without objection may serve to corroborate and explain the other evidence in the case. Maley v. Thomasville Furn. Co., 214 N.C. 589, 200 S.E. 438 (1939).

The report of an accident filed by the employer with the Commission, being in the nature of an admission, is competent evidence in a hearing involving the accident. Russell v. Western Oil Co., 206 N.C. 341, 174 S.E. 101 (1934).

Even if a report filed by defendant's manager contained some statement of fact not of his personal knowledge, it was competent as a declaration against interest. Carlton v. Bernhardt-Seagle Co., 210 N.C. 655, 188 S.E. 77 (1936), where the only evidence to show the cause of injury was that contained in the employer's report.

Unsigned Letter from Doctor Reporting on Employee's Condition. — Pending hearing in the superior court, a copy of an unsigned letter from a doctor reporting the condition of employee's eye was added to the record by the Commission's supplemental certificate. On later appeal and reversal for other reasons, the Supreme Court declared that this letter was "incompetent" and "had no place in the record and evidence." Logan v. Johnson, 218 N.C. 200, 10 S.E.2d 653 (1940). See note, "Evidence before North Carolina Tribunals," 19 N.C.L. Rev. 568 (1941).

Evidence as to the course of dealing between employer and employee is of value to show the interpretation which they put upon the character of the employment and their intention regarding it. Smith v. City of Gastonia, 216 N.C. 517, 5 S.E.2d 540 (1939).

The Commission is the sole judge of the credibility of witnesses, and there is no obligation to accord unquestioned credence to any testimony, even if uncontradicted. Anderson v. Northwestern Motor Co., 233 N.C. 372, 64 S.E.2d 265 (1951).

The Commission is the sole judge of the credibility of the witnesses and the weight to be given their testimony. West v. Stevens, 6 N.C. App. 152, 169 S.E.2d 517 (1969).

The function of the Industrial Commission is to weigh and evaluate the entire evidence and determine as best it can where the truth lies. West v. Stevens, 6 N.C. App. 152, 169 S.E.2d 517 (1969).

And It Is Not Compelled to Find According to Testimony of Any Particular Witness. — In its consideration of claims, the Industrial Commission is not compelled to find in accordance with testimony of any particular witness. West v. Stevens, 6 N.C. App. 152, 169 S.E.2d 517 (1969).

IV. FINDINGS.

The Commission is the fact-finding body under the Workers' Compensation Act. Petty v. Associated Transp., 4 N.C. App. 361, 167 S.E.2d 38 (1969), rev'd on other grounds, 276 N.C. 417, 173 S.E.2d 321 (1970).

Findings Required. — To enable a proper review of a conclusion concerning disability, the Industrial Commission is required to make specific findings of fact as to a plaintiff's earning capacity. Grant v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 77 N.C. App. 241, 335 S.E.2d 327 (1985).

The finding of facts is one of the primary duties of the Commission. Petty v. Associated Transp., 4 N.C. App. 361, 167 S.E.2d 38 (1969), rev'd on other grounds, 276 N.C. 417, 173 S.E.2d 321 (1970).

Conclusive Effect of Findings of Fact. — The findings of fact by the Industrial Commission are conclusive and binding upon the courts when supported by competent evidence. West v. Stevens, 6 N.C. App. 152, 169 S.E.2d 517 (1969).

Judicial Review of Findings of Fact of Hearing Commissioner. — A finding of fact by a hearing commissioner or by a deputy commissioner never reaches the superior court or the Court of Appeals unless it has been affirmed by the Commission. Petty v. Associated Transp., 4 N.C. App. 361, 167 S.E.2d 38 (1969), rev'd on other grounds, 276 N.C. 417, 173 S.E.2d 321 (1970).

§ 97-81. Blank forms and literature; statistics; safety provisions; accident reports; studies and investigations and recommendations to General Assembly; to cooperate with other agencies for prevention of injury.

(a) The Commission shall prepare and cause to be printed, and upon request furnish, free of charge to any employee or employer, such blank forms and literature as it shall deem requisite to facilitate or prompt the efficient administration of this Article. The Commission may authorize the use of electronic submission of forms and other means of transmittal of forms and notices when it deems appropriate.

(b) The Commission shall tabulate the accident reports received from employers in accordance with G.S. 97-92 and shall publish the same in the annual report of the Commission and as often as it may deem advisable, in such detailed or aggregate form as it may deem best. The name of the employer or employee shall not appear in such publications, and the employers' reports shall be private records of the Commission, and shall not be open for public inspection except for the inspection of the parties directly involved, and only to the extent of such interest, and except for inspection by the Department of Labor and other State or federal agencies pursuant to subsections (d) and (e) of this section. These reports shall not be used as evidence against any employer in any suit at law brought by any employee for the recovery of damages.

(c) The Commission shall make studies and investigations with respect to safety provisions and the causes of injuries in employments covered by this Article, and shall from time to time make to the General Assembly and to employers and carriers such recommendations as it may deem proper as to the best means of preventing such injuries.

(d) In making such studies and investigations the Commission shall:

- (1) Cooperate with any agency of the United States charged with the duty of enforcing any law securing safety against injury in any employment covered by this Article, or with any State agency engaged in enforcing any laws to assure safety for employees, and
- (2) Permit any such agency to have access to the records of the Commission.

In carrying out the provisions of this section the Commission or any officer or employee of the Commission is authorized to enter at any reasonable time upon any premises, tracks, wharf, dock, or other landing place, or to enter any building, where an employment covered by this Article is being carried on, and to examine any tool, appliance, or machinery used in such employment.

(e) The Commission shall, upon written request from the Commissioner of Labor, provide from the Commission's records the following information from claims filed by employees, and from employer reports of injury to an employee required by G.S. 97-92:

- (1) Name and business address of the employer;
- (2) Type of business of the employer;
- (3) Date the accident, illness, or injury occurred;
- (4) Nature of the injury or disease reported; and
- (5) Whether compensation for disability or medical expenses was paid to the injured employee.

Information provided to the Commissioner of Labor pursuant to this subsection, and to other State and federal agencies pursuant to subsection (d) of this section, shall be private and exempt from public inspection to the same extent that records of the Commission are so exempt. (1929, c. 120, s. 55; 1991 (Reg. Sess., 1992), c. 894, s. 2; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 10.2.)

§ 97-82. Memorandum of agreement between employer and employee to be submitted to Commission on prescribed forms for approval; direct payment as award.

(a) If the employer and the injured employee or his dependents reach an agreement in regard to compensation under this Article, they may enter into a memorandum of the agreement in the form prescribed by the Commission.

An agreement, however, shall be incorporated into a memorandum of agreement in regard to compensation: (i) for loss or permanent injury, disfigurement, or permanent and total disability under G.S. 97-31, (ii) for death from a compensable injury or occupational disease under G.S. 97-38, or (iii) when compensation under this Article is paid or payable to an employee who is incompetent or under 18 years of age.

The memorandum of agreement, accompanied by a full and complete medical report, shall be filed with and approved by the Commission; otherwise such agreement shall be voidable by the employee or his dependents.

(b) If approved by the Commission, a memorandum of agreement shall for all purposes be enforceable by the court's decree as hereinafter specified. Payment pursuant to G.S. 97-18(b), or payment pursuant to G.S. 97-18(d) when compensability and liability are not contested prior to expiration of the period for payment without prejudice, shall constitute an award of the Commission on the question of compensability of and the insurer's liability for the injury for which payment was made. Compensation paid in these circumstances shall constitute payment of compensation pursuant to an award under this Article. (1929, c. 120, s. 56; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 3.2.)

CASE NOTES

Purpose and Effect of Section. — This section was inserted in the act to protect the employees of the State against the disadvantages arising out of their economic status and give assurance that their settlements are in accord with the intent and purpose of the act. Biddix v. Rex Mills, Inc., 237 N.C. 660, 75 S.E.2d 777 (1953).

The legislature anticipated that employers and employees would, in most cases, be able to reach an agreement with respect to the employee's right to compensation; hence, it inserted in the act a provision authorizing such agreements, when made in the manner prescribed by the Industrial Commission. White v. Shoup

Boat Corp., 261 N.C. 495, 135 S.E.2d 216 (1964).

When Jurisdiction of Commission Is Invoked. — The jurisdiction of the Commission is invoked either when a claim for compensation is filed or a voluntary settlement is submitted for approval. Letterlough v. Atkins, 258 N.C. 166, 128 S.E.2d 215 (1962); Tabron v. Gold Leaf Farms, Inc., 269 N.C. 393, 152 S.E.2d 533 (1967).

Section Contemplates Only Settlement in Respect of Amount of Compensation. — The only "settlement" contemplated by this section is a settlement in respect of the amount of compensation to which claimants are entitled under the act. McGill v. Bison Fast Freight, Inc., 245 N.C. 469, 96 S.E.2d 438 (1957).

And Does Not Apply to Compromise and Settlement of Common-Law Claim. — Compromise and settlement of the common-law claim of the administratrix of a deceased employee for the wrongful death of the employee, executed under the mistaken belief that the act was not applicable, would not be disturbed on the ground that the Industrial Commission did not approve such settlement as provided in this section. McGill v. Bison Fast Freight, Inc., 245 N.C. 469, 96 S.E.2d 438 (1957).

In approving settlements the Commission acts in a judicial capacity. Letterlough v. Atkins, 258 N.C. 166, 128 S.E.2d 215 (1962).

And Approved Settlements Are Enforceable by Court Decree. — In approving a settlement agreement, the Industrial Commission acts in a judicial capacity, and the settlement as approved becomes an award enforceable, if necessary, by a court decree. Biddix v. Rex Mills, Inc., 237 N.C. 660, 75 S.E.2d 777 (1953); Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976).

An agreement for the payment of compensation approved by the Commission is enforceable by a court decree. Dalton v. Anvil Knitwear, 119 N.C. App. 275, 458 S.E.2d 251 (1995).

Conclusiveness of Commission's Approval. — The Commission's approval of stipulated facts and payments is as conclusive as if made upon a determination of facts in an adversary proceeding. Stanley v. Brown, 261 N.C. 243, 134 S.E.2d 321 (1964); Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976).

An agreement for the payment of compensation, when approved by the Industrial Commission, is as binding on the parties as an order, decision or award of the Commission unappealed from, or an award of the Commission affirmed upon appeal. Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976).

An agreement for compensation, when approved by the Commission, is binding on the parties. Roberts v. Carolina Tables of Hickory, 76 N.C. App. 148, 331 S.E.2d 757 (1985).

An agreement for the payment of compensation, when approved by the Commission, is as binding on the parties as an order, decision or award of the Commission unappealed from, or an award of the Commission affirmed upon appeal. Brookover v. Borden, Inc., 100 N.C. App. 754, 398 S.E.2d 604 (1990).

Until Set Aside. — An approved compensation agreement is binding on the parties unless and until it is set aside by the Industrial Commission. Pruitt v. Knight Publishing Co., 289 N.C. 254, 221 S.E.2d 355 (1976).

Commission May Not Set Aside a Duly Executed Agreement. — Absent a showing of fraud, misrepresentation, mutual mistake, or undue influence, the Industrial Commission may not set aside a settlement agreement duly executed by the parties, properly submitted to the Industrial Commission for approval, and approved by the Chairman of the Commission in accordance with § 97-17 and this section. The fact that defense counsel had attempted to revoke its consent to the agreement after it was submitted to the Commission was immaterial. Glenn v. McDonald's, 109 N.C. App. 45, 425 S.E.2d 727 (1993).

Interlocutory Award. — The approval by the Industrial Commission of an agreement of the parties for compensation was not, under the circumstances, a final award, but an interlocutory award, and the Industrial Commission retained jurisdiction to enter a final award upon the filing of a full and complete medical report. Pratt v. Central Upholstery Co., 252 N.C. 716, 115 S.E.2d 27 (1960).

Waiver of Right to Contest Compensability of Injuries. — Defendants waived their right to contest the compensability of claimant's injuries, and thus, the award of compensation became final, where the defendants knew that claimant might have been a subcontractor on the day of the accident, but although they made payments without prejudice to their rights, they did not investigate the claimant's status within the prescribed time. Higgins v. Michael Powell Bldrs., 132 N.C. App. 720, 515 S.E.2d 17 (1999).

Change of Condition Following Complete Settlement. — After plaintiff had been awarded compensation for partial disability, a hearing was had to determine whether there had been a change of condition. Plaintiff alleged partial deafness. The matter was heard several times, and finally a compromise was approved whereby plaintiff was paid a lump sum "as a full and complete settlement." Later plaintiff asked for another hearing because of another change of condition. It was held that in the absence of fraud or mutual mistake, or in the absence of consent on defendant's part, the agreement was binding. Recovery was denied. Morgan v. Town of Norwood, 211 N.C. 600, 191 S.E. 345 (1937).

Where plaintiff's initial compensation award for temporary total disabilities was determined by agreement prior to the time plaintiff became fully aware of the extent of his injuries, and plaintiff's initial claim was closed upon the filing of Form 28B, the proper procedure for presenting plaintiff's claim for his alleged permanent disabilities was through the statutorily prescribed procedure for compensation for substantial change of condition. Chisholm v. Diamond Condominium Constr. Co., 83 N.C. App. 14, 348 S.E.2d 596 (1986), cert. denied, 319 N.C. 103, 353 S.E.2d 106 (1987).

Where an employee accepts benefits from an agreement for compensation executed by himself, his employer, and the insurance carrier, which agreement was duly approved by the commission, the employee may attack and have such agreement set aside only for fraud, misrepresentation, undue influence, or mutual mistake. Brookover v. Borden, Inc., 100 N.C. App. 754, 398 S.E.2d 604 (1990).

A Form 21 agreement constitutes an award by the Commission and such an award is conclusive and binding as to all questions of fact. Kisiah v. W.R. Kisiah Plumbing, Inc., 124 N.C. App. 72, 476 S.E.2d 434 (1996).

The Full Industrial Commission erred in concluding that plaintiff was entitled to total and permanent disability benefits where the plaintiff did not meet his burden of showing, as required by § 97-31, unless a presumption has been established through the filing of a Form 21, pursuant to this section, that he was totally disabled and therefore unable to earn any of the wages he was receiving at the time of his injury in the same or any other employment. Demery v. Converse, Inc., 138 N.C. App. 243, 530 S.E.2d 871 (2000).

Effect of Litigation of Earning Capacity on Review of Form 26 Agreement. — Where plaintiff's earning capacity was actually litigated and necessary to the outcome of his § 97-47 hearing, the Industrial Commission was bound by that finding in determining if a Form 26 agreement was fair and just; therefore, its finding that the agreement was "improvidently approved" on the grounds that plaintiff had no earning capacity, thus qualifying him for benefits under § 97-29, would be reversed. Lewis v. Craven Reg'l Med. Ctr., 134 N.C. App. 438, 518 S.E.2d 1 (1999).

§ 97-83. Commission is to make award after hearing.

If the employer and the injured employee or his dependents fail to reach an agreement in regard to benefits under this Article within 14 days after the employer has written or actual notice of the injury or death, or upon the arising of a dispute under this Article, either party may make application to the Commission for a hearing in regard to the matters at issue, and for a ruling thereon.

Immediately after such application has been received the Commission shall set the date of a hearing, which shall be held as soon as practicable and shall notify the parties at issue of the time and place of such hearing. The hearing or hearings shall be held in the city or county where the injury occurred, unless otherwise authorized by the Commission. (1929, c. 120, s. 57; 1955, c. 1026, s. 121/2; 1977, c. 743; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 3.3.)

CASE NOTES

Provisions for Settlement of Any Matter in Dispute. — In this section and §§ 97-84 through 97-86 the General Assembly prescribed an adequate remedy by which any matter in dispute and incident to any claim under the provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act may be determined and settled. Worley v. Pipes, 229 N.C. 465, 50 S.E.2d 504 (1948).

Remedy Is Exclusive. — The remedy provided by this section and §§ 97-84 through 97-86 is exclusive. Worley v. Pipes, 229 N.C. 465, 50 S.E.2d 504 (1948).

The Industrial Commission has exclu- sive authority to find facts except in matters determinative of jurisdiction. Hargus v. Select Foods, Inc., 271 N.C. 369, 156 S.E.2d 737 (1967).

Determination of Conflicting Claims to Compensation Already Paid. — While the Industrial Commission has jurisdiction to amend its award in regard to persons entitled to receive compensation awarded by it, it has no jurisdiction to enter a judgment in favor of a party to recover compensation theretofore paid to another; rather, the superior court has jurisdiction to determine conflicting claims of persons in regard to compensation which has already been paid. Hill v. Cahoon, 252 N.C. 295, 113 S.E.2d 569 (1960).

Physician's Claim for Services. — The sole remedy of a physician seeking to recover for services to an injured employee, where the employee and employer are subject to the Workers' Compensation Act, is by application to the Industrial Commission in accordance with this section and §§ 97-84 through 97-86 to consider plaintiff's bill for such services, notwithstanding the fact that the employer denies liability for the injury on the ground that it did not arise out of and in the course of the employment. The physician may not challenge the constitutionality of the relevant provisions of this Chapter by an independent suit against the employee to recover for the medical services. Matros v. Owen, 229 N.C. 472, 50 S.E.2d 509 (1948).

Where a physician renders services to an injured employee under private contract without knowledge that the injury was covered by the Workers' Compensation Act, and thereafter upon discovery that the injury is compensable files claim for such services with the Industrial Commission in order that the employee may get the benefit thereof, his remedy upon approval by the Industrial Commission in a sum less than the full amount of his claim is to request a hearing before the Commission, with right of appeal to the courts for review, pursuant to this section and §§ 97-84 through 97-86; this remedy is exclusive and precludes the physician from maintaining an action against the employee to recover the full contractual amount for the services and attacking the constitutionality of the relevant provisions of the act. Worley v. Pipes, 229 N.C. 465, 50 S.E.2d 504 (1948).

How Minor Under 18 May Prosecute Claim. — While, for the purposes of the act, a minor becomes sui juris upon attaining the age of 18 years, until then he may prosecute his proceeding for compensation only when represented by general guardian or other legal representative. McGill v. Bison Fast Freight, Inc., 245 N.C. 469, 96 S.E.2d 438 (1957).

Proceeding Should Not Be in Name of Deceased Employee. — A proceeding under the act to determine the liability of defendants to the next of kin of a deceased employee should not be brought in the name of the deceased employee. Slade v. Willis Hosiery Mills, 209 N.C. 823, 184 S.E. 844 (1936).

When Administratrix Is Proper Claimant. — The administratrix of the decedent is the proper claimant in a proceeding for compensation only when there are no dependents, whole or partial. However, the joinder of the administratrix with the dependents in the prosecution of a claim will be treated as surplusage. McGill v. Bison Fast Freight, Inc., 245 N.C. 469, 96 S.E.2d 438 (1957). See § 97-40.

Failure to File Claim Did Not Bar Father's Participation in Award. — A father was not barred from participation in a workers' compensation award for the death of his son by his failure to file a claim therefor, where the matter was heard by the Industrial Commission upon the request of the employer's insurance carrier pursuant to this section. Smith v. Allied Exterminators, Inc., 279 N.C. 583, 184 S.E.2d 296 (1971).

The Commission used the wrong criteria when it denied defendants' request under this section to modify disability payments, because the employee's continued entitlement to benefits must be based on his post-injury earning capacity, not his post-injury wages. McGee v. Estes Express Lines, 125 N.C. App. 298, 480 S.E.2d 416 (1997).

Applied in Long v. Reeves, 77 N.C. App. 830, 336 S.E.2d 98 (1985); Saums v. Raleigh Community Hosp., 346 N.C. 760, 487 S.E.2d 746 (1997).

Quoted in Samuel v. Claude Puckett/Lincoln Used Cars, 55 N.C. App. 463, 285 S.E.2d 876 (1982); Kisiah v. W.R. Kisiah Plumbing, Inc., 124 N.C. App. 72, 476 S.E.2d 434 (1996).

App. 61, 526 S.E.2d 671 (2000).

§ 97-83.1. Facilities for hearings; security.

The senior resident superior court judge shall provide suitable facilities for the conduct of hearings under this Article in the county or counties within the judge's district at the time the Commission schedules hearings therein. The senior resident superior court judge shall, to the extent the judge determines necessary and practicable, provide or arrange for security at Commission hearings upon the request of a member or deputy of the Commission. (1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 5.7.)

§ 97-84. Determination of disputes by Commission or deputy.

The Commission or any of its members shall hear the parties at issue and their representatives and witnesses, and shall determine the dispute in a summary manner. The award, together with a statement of the findings of fact, rulings of law, and other matters pertinent to the questions at issue shall be filed with the record of the proceedings, within 180 days of the close of the hearing record unless time is extended for good cause by the Commission, and a copy of the award shall immediately be sent to the parties in dispute. The parties may be heard by a deputy, in which event the hearing shall be conducted in the same way and manner prescribed for hearings which are conducted by a member of the Industrial Commission, and said deputy shall proceed to a complete determination of the matters in dispute, file his written opinion within 180 days of the close of the hearing record unless time is extended for good cause by the Commission, and the deputy shall cause to be issued an award pursuant to such determination. (1929, c. 120, s. 58; 1951, c. 1059, s. 7; 1987, c. 729, s. 15.)

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on the 1951 amendment, which gave a deputy authority to make a complete determination of a dispute, see 29 N.C.L. Rev. 416 (1951).

For article on administrative evidence rules, see 49 N.C.L. Rev. 635 (1971).

CASE NOTES

The Industrial Commission has exclusive original jurisdiction of the rights and remedies afforded by this Chapter. Carpenter v. Hawley, 53 N.C. App. 715, 281 S.E.2d 783, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 304 N.C. 587, 289 S.E.2d 564 (1981).

And Is Constituted a Special Tribunal. — The Industrial Commission is primarily an administrative agency of the State, but when a claim for compensation is presented the Commission is constituted a special tribunal, is invested with certain judicial functions, and possesses the powers and incidents of a court. Hanks v. Southern Pub. Util. Co., 210 N.C. 312, 186 S.E. 252 (1936).

The Commission is the sole fact-finding agency in cases in which it has jurisdiction. The finding of facts is one of the primary duties of the Commission. Morgan v. Thomasville Furn. Indus., 2 N.C. App. 126, 162 S.E.2d 619 (1968).

Under this section the Commission is made a fact-finding body. The finding of facts is one of its primary duties. Beach v. McLean, 219 N.C. 521, 14 S.E.2d 515 (1941); Brice v. Robertson House Moving, Wrecking & Salvage Co., 249 N.C. 74, 105 S.E.2d 439 (1958).

The Commission is without authority to sit en banc; the Full Commission shall be composed of three member panels. Sims v. Charnes/Arby's Roast Beef, 142 N.C. App. 154, 542 S.E.2d 277 (2001), cert. denied, 353 N.C. 729, 550 S.E.2d 782 (2001).

And Determines Credibility and Weight of Testimony. — The Commission is the sole judge of the credibility of the witnesses and the weight to be given to their testimony. It may accept all the testimony of a witness or reject all the testimony of a witness. It may accept a part of the testimony of a witness and reject a part of the testimony of such witness. It is not required to accept the uncontradicted testimony of a witness. Morgan v. Thomasville Furn. Indus., 2 N.C. App. 126, 162 S.E.2d 619 (1968).

In passing upon issues of fact, the Commission, like any other trier of facts, is the sole judge of the credibility of the witnesses, and of the weight to be given to their testimony. It may accept or reject the testimony of a witness, either in whole or in part, depending solely upon whether it believes or disbelieves the same. Anderson v. Northwestern Motor Co., 233 N.C. 372, 64 S.E.2d 265 (1951); Moses v. Bartholomew, 238 N.C. 714, 78 S.E.2d 923 (1953); Smith v. William Muirhead Constr. Co., 27 N.C. App. 286, 218 S.E.2d 717 (1975).

The Industrial Commission is the sole judge of the truthfulness and weight of the testimony of the witnesses in the discharge of its function as the fact-finding authority under the act. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 231 N.C. 477, 57 S.E.2d 760 (1950).

Contradictions in the testimony go to its weight, which is for the fact-finding body, the Industrial Commission. Evans v. Topstyle, Inc., 270 N.C. 134, 153 S.E.2d 851 (1967).

Remedy Is Exclusive. — The remedy provided by this section and §§ 97-83, 97-85, and 97-86 is exclusive. Worley v. Pipes, 229 N.C.

465, 50 S.E.2d 504 (1948).

Prerogative of Commission to Determine Credibility and Weight of Evidence.

— The full Commission has the authority to make additional findings of fact, and where it found that plaintiff failed to prove that he was injured while making an arrest was supported by competent evidence, plaintiff's case was left without a foundation. In not accepting plaintiff's contrary version of the event involved, the Commission exercised its prerogative under the law to determine the credibility and weight of the evidence presented. Griffey v. Town of Hot Springs, 87 N.C. App. 290, 360 S.E.2d 457 (1987).

Duty and Responsibility of Commission to Decide All Matters of Controversy Between Parties.

— Plaintiff's claim, initially decided by a hearing officer, embodied a claim for future medical expenses, and when the matter was appealed to the full Commission by defendants it was the duty and responsibility of the full Commission to decide all of the matters in controversy between the parties, indeed, if necessary, the full Commission should have conducted a full evidentiary hearing to resolve all matters embodied in plaintiff's claim; inasmuch as the Industrial Commission decides claims without formal pleadings, it was the duty of the Commission to consider every aspect of plaintiff's claim whether before a hearing officer or on appeal to the full Commission. Joyner v. Rocky Mount Mills, 92 N.C. App. 478, 374 S.E.2d 610 (1988).

Duty of Commission to Make Detailed Findings of Fact to Every Aspect of Case.

— The "full Commission" is not an appellate court in the sense that it reviews decisions of a trial court; it is the duty and responsibility of the full Commission to make detailed findings of fact and conclusions of law with respect to every aspect of the case before it. Joyner v. Rocky Mount Mills, 92 N.C. App. 478, 374 S.E.2d 610 (1988).

The full Commission has the authority to determine a case from the written transcript of the hearing before the deputy commissioner or hearing officer; however, when that transcript is insufficient to resolve all the issues, the full Commission must conduct its own hearing or remand the matter for further hearing. Joyner v. Rocky Mount Mills, 92 N.C. App. 478, 374 S.E.2d 610 (1988).

After review of a transcript of a hearing before a deputy commissioner or hearing officer, the full Commission must make findings of fact, draw conclusions of law therefrom and enter the appropriate order; the better practice would be for the full Commission to make its own findings of fact and not adopt the findings of fact of the deputy commissioner or hearing officer. Joyner v. Rocky Mount Mills, 92 N.C. App. 478, 374 S.E.2d 610 (1988).

Duty of Commission as Fact-Finder.

— Appellate courts must follow the "any competent evidence" standard in deciding whether the evidence permits a determination by the Commission, which is the fact-finder. The fact-finder, however, is not required so to view the evidence. Rather, its duty is to weigh the evidence, resolve conflicts therein, and make its own determination as to weight and credibility. Wagoner v. Douglas Battery Mfg. Co., 80 N.C. App. 163, 341 S.E.2d 120 (1986), aff'd, 89 N.C. App. 67, 365 S.E.2d 298, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 486, 371 S.E.2d 274 (1988).

Function of the Commission necessarily includes determining paternity of an illegitimate child when such a determination is necessary to resolve a dispute as to who is entitled to the compensation due under this Chapter. Carpenter v. Hawley, 53 N.C. App. 715, 281 S.E.2d 783, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 304 N.C. 587, 289 S.E.2d 564 (1981).

Specific findings of fact by the Industrial Commission are required. These must cover the crucial questions of fact upon which plaintiff's right to compensation depends. Guest v. Brenner Iron & Metal Co., 241 N.C. 448, 85 S.E.2d 596 (1955); State v. Haywood Elec. Membership Corp., 260 N.C. 59, 131 S.E.2d 865 (1963); Pardue v. Blackburn Bros. Oil & Tire Co., 260 N.C. 413, 132 S.E.2d 747 (1963); Nello L. Teer Co. v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 265 N.C. 1, 143 S.E.2d 247 (1965); Morgan v. Thomasville Furn. Indus., 2 N.C. App. 126, 162 S.E.2d 619 (1968); State ex rel. Utils. Comm'n v. Queen City Coach Co., 4 N.C. App. 116, 166 S.E.2d 441 (1969); Cannady v. Gold Kist, 43 N.C. App. 482, 259 S.E.2d 342 (1979).

It is impossible to exaggerate how essential the proper exercise of the fact-finding authority of the Industrial Commission is to the due administration of the act. The findings of fact of the Industrial Commission should tell the full story of the event giving rise to the claim for compensation. They must be sufficiently positive and specific to enable the court on appeal to determine whether they are supported by the evidence and whether the law has been properly applied to them. It is obvious that the court cannot ascertain whether the findings of fact are supported by the evidence unless the Industrial Commission reveals with at least a fair degree of positiveness what facts it finds. It is likewise plain that the court cannot decide whether the conclusions of laws and the decision of the Industrial Commission rightly recognize and effectively enforce the rights of the parties upon the matters in controversy if the Industrial Commission fails to make specific findings as to each material fact upon which those rights depend. Morgan v. Thomasville Furn. Indus., 2 N.C. App. 126, 162 S.E.2d 619

(1968); Cannady v. Gold Kist, 43 N.C. App. 482, 259 S.E.2d 342 (1979).

But the Commission is not required to make a finding as to each detail of the evidence or at every inference or shade of meaning to be drawn therefrom. Guest v. Brenner Iron & Metal Co., 241 N.C. 448, 85 S.E.2d 596 (1955).

The Commission must make specific findings of fact regarding each material fact upon which a plaintiff's right to compensation depends. The Commission is not required, however, to make findings as to facts presented by the evidence that are not material to plaintiff's claim. Guy v. Burlington Indus., 74 N.C. App. 685, 329 S.E.2d 685 (1985).

The Commission must make specific findings of fact as to each material fact upon which the rights of the parties in a case involving a claim for compensation depend. Moore v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 47 N.C. App. 744, 269 S.E.2d 159, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 401, 274 S.E.2d 226 (1980); Walston v. Burlington Indus., 49 N.C. App. 301, 271 S.E.2d 516 (1980), rev'd on other grounds, 304 N.C. 670, 285 S.E.2d 822 (1982).

When evidence is presented in support of a material issue that has been raised, it becomes necessary for the Commission to make a finding one way or the other. Smith v. William Muirhead Constr. Co., 27 N.C. App. 286, 218 S.E.2d 717 (1975).

Where the Commission awards compensation for disablement due to an occupational disease encompassed by § 97-53(13), the opinion and award must contain explicit findings as to the characteristics, symptoms and manifestations of the disease from which the plaintiff suffers, as well as a conclusion of law as to whether the disease falls within the statutory provision. Moore v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 47 N.C. App. 744, 269 S.E.2d 159, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 401, 274 S.E.2d 226 (1980).

Where the record contains conflicting evidence concerning the claimant's capacity to work because of his disability, the Commission is required to make findings of fact which support its conclusion as to the presence or absence of disability as defined by § 97-2(9). Priddy v. Cone Mills Corp., 58 N.C. App. 720, 294 S.E.2d 743 (1982).

Although the Industrial Commission is free to accept or reject any or all of plaintiff's evidence in making its award, it must make specific findings as to the facts upon which a compensation claim is based, including the extent of a claimant's disability. The order must contain more than mere recitals of medical opinion to resolve these basic issues. Priddy v. Cone Mills Corp., 58 N.C. App. 720, 294 S.E.2d 743 (1982).

Findings May Not Rest upon Evidence Not Presented to Commission. — In judicial proceedings before the Commission, the facts found must rest upon admissions made by the parties, facts agreed, stipulations entered into and noted at the hearing, and evidence offered in open court, after all parties have been given full opportunity to be heard. Recourse may not be had to records, files, evidence, or data not thus presented to the Commission for consideration. Biddix v. Rex Mills, Inc., 237 N.C. 660, 75 S.E.2d 777 (1953); Little v. Anson County Schools Food Serv., 295 N.C. 527, 246 S.E.2d 743 (1978).

Findings and Conclusions Outside Scope of Hearing Are Improper. — Where a full Commission limited the initial hearing to defendant's motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction, given the limited scope of the hearing it was patently improper for the deputy commissioner to find and conclude that plaintiff had suffered an injury arising from his employment with defendant, and it was similarly improper for the full Commission, on appeal from the opinion and award of the deputy commissioner, to find and conclude that plaintiff had a compensable injury, regardless of its ruling with respect to jurisdiction. Weston v. Sears Roebuck & Co., 65 N.C. App. 309, 309 S.E.2d 273 (1983), cert. denied, 311 N.C. 407, 319 S.E.2d 281 (1984).

Cause May Be Remanded for Findings. — If the findings of fact of the Commission are insufficient to enable the court to determine the rights of the parties upon the matters in controversy, the cause must be remanded to the Commission for proper findings of fact. Moore v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 47 N.C. App. 744, 269 S.E.2d 159, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 401, 274 S.E.2d 226 (1980).

Conclusive Effect of Findings. — The Industrial Commission is the judge of the credibility of the evidence and is the fact-finding body under the act. Where the evidence before the Commission is contradictory, the findings of fact by the Commission, which are nonjurisdictional, are conclusive on appeal to the Court of Appeals. Priddy v. Blue Bird Cab Co., 9 N.C. App. 291, 176 S.E.2d 26 (1970).

Right of Party to Testify and Present Evidence. — Under this section, a party to workers' compensation proceedings is afforded the right to testify and present such relevant evidence as he may choose. Little v. Anson County Schools Food Serv., 295 N.C. 527, 246 S.E.2d 743 (1978).

When a claimant refrains from presenting evidence in reliance on an inaccurate statement by a deputy commissioner that a certain matter is uncontested, the right guaranteed by this section has been abridged and the claimant's failure to present such evidence may not be used against him. Little v. Anson County Schools Food Serv., 295 N.C. 527, 246 S.E.2d 743 (1978).

Agreement Approved by Commission Is as Binding as Award. — An agreement for the payment of compensation, when approved by the Commission, is as binding on the parties as an order, decision or award of the Commission unappealed from, or an award of the Commission affirmed on appeal. Neal v. Clary, 259 N.C. 163, 130 S.E.2d 39 (1963).

Commission May Vacate Award Entered Contrary to Law. — The Commission is privileged to vacate an award which the Commission itself admits was entered contrary to law. Ruth v. Carolina Cleaners, 206 N.C. 540, 174 S.E. 445 (1934).

Deputy Commissioner May Set Aside Opinion and Award. — Where, in order to allow defendants to depose a physician, the Deputy Commissioner entered an order to keep the record open, but before defendants had an opportunity to depose the physician, the Deputy Commissioner entered an Opinion and Award, this Act vested the Deputy Commissioner with the inherent authority to set aside his Opinion and Award once informed of the omission of the physician's testimony. Plummer v. Henderson Storage Co., 118 N.C. App. 727, 456 S.E.2d 886 (1995).

Motions for Additional Evidence and for Rehearing Held Properly Denied. — The Industrial Commission properly denied employee's motion to take additional evidence on appeal and motion for a rehearing on all issues, where employee's claim was denied by the hearing commissioner on the ground that he did not sustain an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, and where additional medical testimony proposed had no bearing on how the accident occurred and was only more elaborative than the testimony at the original hearing. Cooke v. Thurston Motor Lines, 13 N.C. App. 342, 185 S.E.2d 445 (1971), appeal dismissed, 280 N.C. 721, 186 S.E.2d 923 (1972).

True Copy to Be Sent to Parties. — This section requires that when the Commission or one of its deputies determines a dispute before it, a copy of the opinion and award be sent to the parties; this necessarily means a true copy. Crawford v. McLaurin Trucking Co., 78 N.C. App. 219, 336 S.E.2d 647 (1985).

Incorrect Notice Did Not Affect Right to Appeal. — Since the law permits appeals only from actual rather than supposed decisions, the incorrect notice of a decision that had not been made had no effect on plaintiff's right to appeal from the decision that was made. Crawford v. McLaurin Trucking Co., 78 N.C. App. 219, 336 S.E.2d 647 (1985).

§ 97-85. Review of award.

If application is made to the Commission within 15 days from the date when notice of the award shall have been given, the full Commission shall review the award, and, if good ground be shown therefor, reconsider the evidence, receive further evidence, rehear the parties or their representatives, and, if proper, amend the award: Provided, however, when application is made for review of an award, and such an award has been heard and determined by a commissioner of the North Carolina Industrial Commission, the commissioner who heard and determined the dispute in the first instance, as specified by G.S. 97-84, shall be disqualified from sitting with the full Commission on the review of such award, and the chairman of the Industrial Commission shall designate a deputy commissioner to take such commissioner's place in the review of the particular award. The deputy commissioner so designated, along with the two other commissioners, shall compose the full Commission upon review. Provided further, the chairman of the Industrial Commission shall have the authority to designate a deputy commissioner to take the place of a commissioner on the review of any case, in which event the deputy commissioner so designated shall have the same authority and duty as does the commissioner whose place he occupies on such review. (1929, c. 120, s. 59; 1963, c. 402; 1977, cc. 390, 431.)

Continuing Jurisdiction of Commission.

— The Industrial Commission has, within the limits prescribed by statute, continuing jurisdiction, and hence as an administrative agency empowered to hear evidence and render awards thereon affecting the rights of workers, has and ought to have authority to make its own records speak the truth in order to protect its own decrees from mistake of material facts and the blight of fraud; therefore, when the full Commission finds and asserts that the award was not made in compliance with the provisions of the statute, then manifestly the Commission is entitled to vacate an award which the Commission itself admits was contrary to law. McDowell v. Town of Kure Beach, 251 N.C. 818, 112 S.E.2d 390 (1960).

Remedy Is Exclusive. — The remedy provided by this section and §§ 97-83, 97-84, and 97-86 is exclusive. Worley v. Pipes, 229 N.C. 465, 50 S.E.2d 504 (1948).

The Commission is the fact-finding body under the act. The finding of facts is one of the primary duties of the Commission. Brewer v. Powers Trucking Co., 256 N.C. 175, 123 S.E.2d 608 (1962).

The Commission is without authority to sit en banc; the Full Commission shall be composed of three member panels. Sims v. Charnes/Arby's Roast Beef, 142 N.C. App. 154, 542 S.E.2d 277 (2001), cert. denied, 353 N.C. 729, 550 S.E.2d 782 (2001).

Commission Can Accept Deputy Commissioner's Credibility Determinations. — It was properly within the province of the Commission to elect, in several instances, to accept the deputy commissioner's credibility determinations. Fuller v. Motel 6, 136 N.C. App. 727, 526 S.E.2d 480 (2000).

Deputy Commissioner's Findings of Fact Not Conclusive. — The deputy commissioner's findings of fact are not conclusive; only the Full Commission's findings of fact are conclusive. Kéel v. H & V, Inc., 107 N.C. App. 536, 421 S.E.2d 362 (1992).

Upon appeal from a deputy commissioner's award, the Commission may receive further evidence regardless of whether it was newly discovered evidence. Keel v. H & V, Inc., 107 N.C. App. 536, 421 S.E.2d 362 (1992).

The Commission may weigh the evidence presented to the deputy commissioner and make its own determination as to the weight and credibility of the evidence. Keel v. H & V, Inc., 107 N.C. App. 536, 421 S.E.2d 362 (1992).

The Commission may strike the deputy commissioner's findings of fact even if no exception was taken to the findings. Keel v. H & V, Inc., 107 N.C. App. 536, 421 S.E.2d 362 (1992).

The Commission is the fact-finding body under the Workers' Compensation Act. Watkins v. City of Wilmington, 290 N.C. 276, 225 S.E.2d 577 (1976).

Adams v. AVX Corp., 349 N.C. 676, 509 S.E.2d 411 (1998), which overruled Sanders v. Broyhill Furniture Industries, 124 N.C. App. 637, 478 S.E.2d 223 (1996), which had required the commission to give deference to the credibility findings of the deputy commissioner, was to be applied retroactively to cases remanded by it to the Industrial Commission. Brice v. Sheraton Inn, 137 N.C. App. 131, 527 S.E.2d 323 (2000).

Failure of Commission to Review Evidence. — Without the depositions containing the medical evidence necessary to resolve the issues, the full Commission could not have determined what issues might have been raised by the evidence; therefore, before the full Commission attempted to address the merits of plaintiff's claim it should have requested the parties to submit the missing depositions. Slatton v. Metro Air Conditioning, Inc., 117 N.C. App. 226, 450 S.E.2d 550 (1994).

Plenary Powers of Commission to Review Awards. — Giving the language of this section the liberal construction to which it is entitled, the powers which are granted therein to the full Commission to "review the award, and, if good ground be shown therefor, reconsider the evidence, receive further evidence, rehear the parties or their representatives, and, if proper, amend the award," are plenary powers to be exercised in the sound discretion of the Commission. Lynch v. M.B. Kahn Constr. Co., 41 N.C. App. 127, 254 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 298, 259 S.E.2d 914 (1979).

Under its plenary powers the Commission may adopt, modify, or reject the findings of fact of the hearing commissioner, and in doing so may weigh the evidence and make its own determination as to the weight and credibility of the evidence. Hobgood v. Anchor Motor Freight, 68 N.C. App. 783, 316 S.E.2d 86 (1984);

Keel v. H & V, Inc., 107 N.C. App. 536, 421 S.E.2d 362 (1992).

Whether "good ground be shown therefore" in any particular case is a matter within the sound discretion of the Commission, and the Commission's determination in that regard will not be reviewed on appeal absent a showing of manifest abuse of discretion. Lynch v. M.B. Kahn Constr. Co., 41 N.C. App. 127, 254 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 298, 259 S.E.2d 914 (1979); Thompson v. Burlington Indus., 59 N.C. App. 539, 297 S.E.2d 122 (1982), cert. denied, 307 N.C. 582, 299 S.E.2d 650 (1983).

Power to Resolve Conflicts. — The Industrial Commission has the duty and authority to resolve conflicts in the testimony, whether medical or not, and the conflict should not always be resolved in favor of the claimant. Cauble v. Macke Co., 78 N.C. App. 793, 338 S.E.2d 320 (1986).

Commission to Decide All Matters in Controversy. — When the matter is "appealed" to the full commission pursuant to this section, it is the duty and responsibility of the full commission to decide all of the matters in controversy between the parties. Viergegge v. North Carolina State Univ., 105 N.C. App. 633, 414 S.E.2d 771 (1992).

Review of Findings of Hearing Commissioner. — The full Commission, upon reviewing an award by the hearing commissioner, is not bound by findings of fact supported by the evidence, but may reconsider evidence and adopt or reject findings and conclusions of the hearing commissioner. Robinson v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 619, 292 S.E.2d 144 (1982); Pollard v. Krispy Waffle #1, 63 N.C. App. 354, 304 S.E.2d 762 (1983); Godley v. Hackney & Sons, 65 N.C. App. 155, 308 S.E.2d 492 (1983).

The plenary powers of the Commission are such that upon review, it may adopt, modify, or reject the findings of fact of the hearing commissioner, and in doing so may weigh the evidence and make its own determination as to the weight and credibility of the evidence. Hollar v. Montclair Furn. Co., 48 N.C. App. 489, 269 S.E.2d 667 (1980); Pollard v. Krispy Waffle #1, 63 N.C. App. 354, 304 S.E.2d 762 (1983).

The hearing officer is the best judge of the credibility of witnesses because he is a first-hand observer of witnesses whose testimony he must weigh and accept or reject. However, the full Commission has the power to review determinations made by deputy commissioners on the credibility of witnesses. Pollard v. Krispy Waffle #1, 63 N.C. App. 354, 304 S.E.2d 762 (1983).

Only the findings of the Commission are conclusive, not those of the hearing officer. Hobgood v. Anchor Motor Freight, 68 N.C. App. 783, 316 S.E.2d 86 (1984).

The Industrial Commission's credibility

determinations made in response to Sanders v. Broyhill Furn. Indus., 124 N.C. App. 637, 478 S.E.2d 223 cannot be the Court of Appeals' basis for reversing the commission's order absent other error; in other words, if the commission's conclusions are otherwise supported by competent evidence, the court may not scrutinize the commission's reasons for believing a witness while engaged in its fact-finding role and overturn its decision on the basis of those reasons. Deese v. Champion Int'l Corp., 352 N.C. 109, 530 S.E.2d 549 (2000).

The opinion and award of the Industrial Commission was valid where it was only signed and filed by two commissioners voting in the majority because the third commissioner participated in the review of the case before he retired prior to the filing of the decision. Tew v. E.B. Davis Elec. Co., 142 N.C. App. 120, 541 S.E.2d 764 (2001).

Findings Regarding Rejection of Credibility Determination. — When the Industrial Commission rejects a credibility determination made by the Commissioner, it must enter findings showing why the credibility determination should be rejected. Holcomb v. Pepsi Cola Co., 128 N.C. App. 323, 494 S.E.2d 609 (1998).

Credibility Determinations. — In reversing the deputy commissioner's credibility findings, the full Commission is not required to demonstrate that sufficient consideration was paid to the fact that credibility may be best judged by a first-hand observer of the witness when that observer was the only one to see the witnesses. Adams v. AVX Corp., 349 N.C. 676, 509 S.E.2d 411 (1998).

Rules promulgated by the Commission do not limit the power of the Commission to review, modify, adopt, or reject the findings of fact found by a deputy commissioner or by an individual member of the Commission when acting as a hearing commissioner. Brewer v. Powers Trucking Co., 256 N.C. 175, 123 S.E.2d 608 (1962).

In reviewing the findings found by a deputy commissioner or by an individual member of the Commission when acting as a hearing commissioner, the Commission may review, modify, adopt or reject the findings of fact found by the hearing commissioner. Watkins v. City of Wilmington, 290 N.C. 276, 225 S.E.2d 577 (1976); Pollard v. Krispy Waffle #1, 63 N.C. App. 354, 304 S.E.2d 762 (1983).

Substitution of Commissioners on Panel. — Although there is no express statutory authority for the substitution of two Commissioners, neither is there a statutory provision in the Workers' Compensation Act expressly prohibiting such action, and if the legislature intended such restrictions on the Commissioner's authority, they would have expressly provided for such. Poe v. Ra- leigh/Durham Airport Auth., 121 N.C. App. 117, 464 S.E.2d 689 (1995).

Construction with Other Sections. — Where plaintiff's motion for reconsideration was made after the 15 days allowed under this section, Rule 60(b) merely requires that a motion for relief from the judgment be filed within a reasonable time. Thus, the Commission should have considered the motion as a Rule 60(b) motion for relief from the judgment. Jones v. Yates Motor Co., 121 N.C. App. 84, 464 S.E.2d 479 (1995).

Power to Modify or Strike Out Findings of Fact. — The power to review the evidence, reconsider it, receive evidence, rehear the parties or their representatives, and, if proper, to amend the award, carries with it the power to modify or strike out findings of fact made by the deputy commissioner or hearing commissioner if in the judgment of the Commission such findings are not proper. Brewer v. Powers Trucking Co., 256 N.C. 175, 123 S.E.2d 608 (1962); Lee v. F.M. Henderson & Assocs., 284 N.C. 126, 200 S.E.2d 32 (1973).

The power of the Commission to review and reconsider the evidence carries with it the power to modify or strike out findings of fact made by the hearing commissioner. Smith v. William Muirhead Constr. Co., 27 N.C. App. 286, 218 S.E.2d 717 (1975).

The Industrial Commission has authority to review, modify, adopt, or reject findings of a hearing commissioner and may ex mero motu strike out a finding of the hearing commissioner and his conclusion of law based thereon in order to make the record comply with the law, even though there is no exception to the finding or conclusion. Garmon v. Tridair Indus., Inc., 14 N.C. App. 574, 188 S.E.2d 523 (1972).

The power to review and reconsider evidence and amend awards carries with it the power to modify or strike out findings of fact and conclusions made by the deputy commissioner or hearing commissioner, even though no exception has been made by the parties. Nash v. Conrad Indus., Inc., 62 N.C. App. 612, 303 S.E.2d 373, aff'd, 309 N.C. 629, 308 S.E.2d 334 (1983).

The Industrial Commission erred in deciding not to review the record to determine whether plaintiff's post-traumatic stress disorder caused an aggravation of his diabetes where the defendant's application for review prevented the commissioner's decision from becoming final, and the commission's failed to satisfy its statutory duty when it held that res judicata barred the defendant's appeal on that issue. Lewis v. North Carolina Dep't of Corr., 138 N.C. App. 526, 531 S.E.2d 468 (2000).

Taking of Additional Evidence on Review. — The Industrial Commission, upon an appeal to it from an opinion and award of the hearing commissioner, has the discretionary authority to receive further evidence, regardless of whether it is newly discovered evidence. Harris v. Frank L. Blum Constr. Co., 10 N.C. App. 413, 179 S.E.2d 148 (1971).

An appellant to the full Commission has no substantive right to require it to hear new additional testimony, but the Commission's duty to do so applies only if good ground therefor be shown, and its rules in regard thereto, adopted pursuant to § 97-80, are in accord with the decision of the Supreme Court relating to the granting of new trials for newly discovered evidence. Tindall v. American Furn. Co., 216 N.C. 306, 4 S.E.2d 894 (1939).

The plaintiff does not have a substantial right to require the Commission to hear additional testimony, and the duty to do so applies only if good ground therefor is shown. Eaton v. Klopman Mills, Inc., 2 N.C. App. 363, 163 S.E.2d 17 (1968).

The party against whom an award has been made does not have a substantive right to require the Full Commission to hear new or additional testimony. It may, and should, do so if the due administration of justice requires. Keel v. H & V, Inc., 107 N.C. App. 536, 421 S.E.2d 362 (1992).

The rules of the Industrial Commission, adopted pursuant to the act, relative to the introduction of new evidence at a review by the full Commission, are in accord with the decisions of the Supreme Court as to granting new trials on newly discovered evidence. Hall v. Thomason Chevrolet, Inc., 263 N.C. 569, 139 S.E.2d 857 (1965).

The Commission's power to receive additional evidence is a plenary power to be exercised in the sound discretion of the Commission. Moore v. Davis Auto Serv., 118 N.C. App. 624, 456 S.E.2d 847 (1995).

In exercising its discretion to receive additional evidence, the Industrial Commission should consider all the circumstances of the case, including the delay involved in taking additional evidence, and should not encourage a lack of pre-deposition preparation by counsel or witnesses. Pittman v. International Paper Co., 132 N.C. App. 151, 510 S.E.2d 705 (1999), cert. denied, 350 N.C. 310, 534 S.E.2d 596 (1999), aff'd, 351 N.C. 42, 519 S.E.2d 524 (1999).

Whether good ground is shown for the taking of further evidence is within the sound discretion of the Commission, and its ruling in that regard will not be reviewed on appeal absent a showing of manifest abuse of discretion. Guy v. Burlington Indus., 74 N.C. App. 685, 329 S.E.2d 685 (1985); Chisholm v. Diamond Condominium Constr. Co., 83 N.C. App. 14, 348 S.E.2d 596 (1986), cert. denied, State v. Sheetz, 46 N.C. App. 641, 265 S.E.2d 914 (1980).

The question of whether to reopen a case for the taking of additional evidence is addressed to the sound discretion of the Commission, and its decision is not reviewable on appeal in the absence of a manifest abuse of that discretion. Pickrell v. Motor Convoy, Inc., 82 N.C. App. 238, 346 S.E.2d 164 (1986), rev'd on other grounds, 322 N.C. 363, 368 S.E.2d 582 (1988).

The Industrial Commission was not required to receive additional evidence and to overturn the findings of fact and conclusions of law reached by the deputy commissioner merely because it reconsidered the evidence considered by the deputy commissioner, where the Commission reached the same facts and conclusions as the deputy commissioner. Porter v. Fieldcrest Cannon, Inc., 133 N.C. App. 23, 514 S.E.2d 517 (1999).

New Evidence Not Required. — The Industrial Commission is not required to receive new evidence and may simply decide a case on the record before the Deputy Commissioner; however, the commission is required to consider that the Deputy Commissioner is in a better position to judge the credibility of the witnesses. Holcomb v. Pepsi Cola Co., 128 N.C. App. 323, 494 S.E.2d 609 (1998).

Commission may decide to exclude evidence which it has previously seen fit to hear, where the decision to take additional evidence is discretionary in nature and neither party has put forth good cause for such evidence to be considered. Keel v. H & V, Inc., 107 N.C. App. 536, 421 S.E.2d 362 (1992).

Where it was within the Commission's power to ask for additional medical evidence, it was also within its power to exclude such evidence. Keel v. H & V, Inc., 107 N.C. App. 536, 421 S.E.2d 362 (1992).

Refusal to Remand Upheld. — The Industrial Commission did not abuse its discretion and did not commit error in denying plaintiff's motion to remand to the hearing commissioner for the purpose of taking testimony which was not newly discovered evidence. Harris v. Frank L. Blum Constr. Co., 10 N.C. App. 413, 179 S.E.2d 148 (1971).

Denial of Motion Upheld. — Where new evidence, testimony by a private investigator, was the same type of evidence that defendants introduced at the first hearing and the testimony did not provide any new revelations regarding plaintiff's disability, defendants suffered no prejudice by the Commission's denial of their motion to consider the new evidence. Andrews v. Fulcher Tire Sales & Serv., 120 N.C. App. 602, 463 S.E.2d 425 (1995).

Plaintiff's contention that the Commission erred in remanding the proceeding for further hearing was waived by the plaintiff when she stipulated the questions to be determined at that hearing. Grigg v. Pharr Yarns, Inc., 15 N.C. App. 497, 190 S.E.2d 285 (1972).

Party moving to reopen case must show good grounds for allowance of the motion. Pickrell v. Motor Convoy, Inc., 82 N.C. App. 238, 346 S.E.2d 164 (1986), rev'd on other grounds, 322 N.C. 363, 368 S.E.2d 582 (1988).

Rehearing on Grounds of Newly Discovered Evidence. — The Industrial Commission has the power to grant a rehearing of a proceeding before it and in which it has made an award on the grounds of newly discovered evidence. Harris v. Frank L. Blum Constr. Co., 10 N.C. App. 413, 179 S.E.2d 148 (1971).

Where an issue has been fairly litigated, with proof offered by both parties upon an issue, a claimant should not be entitled to a further hearing to introduce cumulative evidence, unless its character or force be such that it would be likely to produce a different result. Hall v. Thomason Chevrolet, Inc., 263 N.C. 569, 139 S.E.2d 857 (1965).

In view of the fact that the act does not require all damages to be assessed at one time and awarded in a lump sum, the rules in regard to res judicata are not to be so strictly enforced as in civil cases generally, and an award will not preclude a review for newly discovered evidence relating to the extent of disability, particularly when claimant, because of his disability and the circumstances of the case, could not reasonably have obtained the additional evidence at the time of the hearing. Hall v. Thomason Chevrolet, Inc., 263 N.C. 569, 139 S.E.2d 857 (1965).

Objection to the admission of incompetent evidence should be made before the hearing commissioner, and objection taken for the first time at the hearing before the full Commission on appeal is too late. Maley v. Thomasville Furn. Co., 214 N.C. 589, 200 S.E. 438 (1939).

Preservation of Issue of Attorney's Fees. — Where the motion of the husband of a murdered employee for attorney's fees was denied by the deputy commissioner, the issue of entitlement to attorney's fees was preserved, although it was not raised as an assignment of error on appeal to the Industrial Commission from the deputy commissioner's denial of benefits. Hauser v. Advanced Plastiform, Inc., 133 N.C. App. 378, 514 S.E.2d 545 (1999).

Failure of Employer to File Notice of Appeal. — Defendant carrier filed apt notice of appeal to the full Commission and later to the superior court. The employer failed to file such notice. It was held that the employer's liability, he not being a party to the appeal, would not have been affected even if the case were reversed. McPherson v. Henry Motor Sales Corp., 201 N.C. 303, 160 S.E. 283, appeal dismissed, 286 U.S. 527, 52 S. Ct. 499, 76 L. Ed. 1269 (1932).

Judicial Review of Findings of Fact of Hearing Commissioner. — A finding of fact by a hearing commissioner or by a deputy commissioner never reaches the superior court or the Supreme Court unless it has been affirmed by the Commission. Brewer v. Powers Trucking Co., 256 N.C. 175, 123 S.E.2d 608 (1962).

When Application for Review Is Timely.

— Application by an employer for review of an award by the Industrial Commission is timely when the application is mailed to the full Commission within 15 days from the date when notice of the award is received. Hubbard v. Burlington Indus., 76 N.C. App. 313, 332 S.E.2d 746 (1985).

Time for Appeal Based on Presumption of Correct Notice. — Though this section requires that appeal from an opinion and award of a Deputy Commissioner be taken within 15 days from the date a party is notified of the Deputy Commissioner's opinion and award, this requirement is based on the presumption that the notice given was correct. Crawford v. McLaurin Trucking Co., 78 N.C. App. 219, 336 S.E.2d 647 (1985).

Incorrect Notice Did Not Affect Right to Appeal. — Since the law permits appeals only from actual rather than supposed decisions, the incorrect notice of a decision that had not been made had no effect on plaintiff's right to appeal from the decision that was made. Crawford v. McLaurin Trucking Co., 78 N.C. App. 219, 336 S.E.2d 647 (1985).

Motion for New Hearing on Ground That Notice Not Given. — Since the North Carolina Industrial Commission has no rule comparable to § 1A-1, Rule 60(b), and because the Rules of Civil Procedure are applicable, the Industrial Commission should have treated defendant's motion pursuant to this section and Industrial Commission Rule XXI for a new hearing on the ground that he had not received notice of hearing in which plaintiff was awarded compensation as one made pursuant to § 1A-1, Rule 60(b) to be relieved from a judgment. Long v. Reeves, 77 N.C. App. 830, 336 S.E.2d 98 (1985).

Waiver of Right to Remand. — Where plaintiff had not assigned as error the failure of the Industrial Commission to afford him the review to which he was entitled under this section, and where plaintiff failed to argue that he was prejudiced in any way by any error upon the part of the full Commission, remand was not required. Faircloth v. North Carolina DOT, 106 N.C. App. 303, 416 S.E.2d 409 (1992).

Remand for Misapprehension of Law. — Where facts were found by the Commission under the misapprehension that the law required a finding for the plaintiff if there was any competent evidence to support such a finding, the Court of Appeals was empowered to remand the case so that the evidence could be considered in its true legal light. Cable v.

Macké Co., 78 N.C. App. 793, 338 S.E.2d 320 (1986).

Failure of Commission to Make Findings and Conclusions. — The Industrial Commission failed to carry out its statutory duties pursuant to this section by not making its own findings of fact and conclusions of law to support its disposition of plaintiff's claim. However, despite the failure of the Commission to make its own findings and conclusions, there was no prejudice to plaintiff. Jauregui v. Carolina Vegetables, 112 N.C. App. 593, 436 S.E.2d 268 (1993).

For preferred format of Industrial Commission's review of awards by deputy commissioner, see Crump v. Independence Nissan, 112 N.C. App. 587, 436 S.E.2d 589 (1993).

Excusable Neglect. — The commission has the inherent power and authority, in its discretion, to consider defendant's motion for relief due to excusable neglect. Allen v. Food Lion, Inc., 117 N.C. App. 289, 450 S.E.2d 571 (1994).

The Industrial Commission had authority to grant relief from a judgment entered against the employee, even though the employee filed his notice of appeal after expiration of the time limit, where he showed excusable neglect in that his counsel was on vacation when the workers' compensation opinion arrived, the opinion was filed by the attorney's clerical staff, and no entry was made on the office calendar showing the date the opinion arrived. Murray v. Ahlstrom Indus. Holdings, Inc., 131 N.C. App. 294, 506 S.E.2d 724 (1998).

Excusable Neglect Not Shown. — The Industrial Commission erred by concluding that excusable neglect existed where plaintiff represented himself before the deputy commissioner and was unacquainted with the complexities of the Workers' Compensation Act; furthermore, the Commission did not have the authority, under Industrial Commission Rule 801, to excuse plaintiff from complying with this section and thus disregard the holdings of the appellate court as to what constituted "excusable neglect." Moore v. City of Raleigh, 135 N.C. App. 332, 520 S.E.2d 133 (1999).

Payment of Settlement Award. — To calculate the date a compromise settlement award becomes due under the Workers' Compensation Act, a party must: (1) allow the 15 day appeal time of this section; (2) then add ten days pursuant to § 97-18(e); and (3) finally, add 14 days as required under § 97-18(g); thus, a paying party liable under a compromise settlement has 39 days from the date the compromise settlement is approved to tender payment, with liability for non-payment attaching on the fortieth day. Felmet v. Duke Power Co., 131 N.C. App. 87, 504 S.E.2d 815 (1998).

§ 97-86. Award conclusive as to facts; appeal; certified questions of law.

The award of the Industrial Commission, as provided in G.S. 97-84, if not reviewed in due time, or an award of the Commission upon such review, as provided in G.S. 97-85, shall be conclusive and binding as to all questions of fact; but either party to the dispute may, within 30 days from the date of such award or within 30 days after receipt of notice to be sent by registered mail or certified mail of such award, but not thereafter, appeal from the decision of said Commission to the Court of Appeals for errors of law under the same terms and conditions as govern appeals from the superior court to the Court of Appeals in ordinary civil actions. The procedure for the appeal shall be as provided by the rules of appellate procedure.

The Industrial Commission of its own motion may certify questions of law to the Court of Appeals for decision and determination by said Court. In case of an appeal from the decision of the Commission, or of a certification by said Commission of questions of law, to the Court of Appeals, said appeal or certification shall operate on a supersedeas except as provided in G.S. 97-86.1, and no employer shall be required to make payment of the award involved in said appeal or certification until the questions at issue therein shall have been fully determined in accordance with the provisions of this Article. If the employer is a noninsurer, then the appeal of such employer shall not act as a supersedeas and the plaintiff in such case shall have the same right to issue execution or to satisfy the award from the property of the employer pending the appeal as obtains to the successful party in an action in the superior court.

When any party to an appeal from an award of the Commission is unable, by reason of his poverty, to make the deposit or to give the security required by law for said appeal, any member of the Commission or any deputy commissioner shall enter an order allowing said party to appeal from the award of the Commission without giving security therefor. The party appealing from the judgment shall, within 30 days from the filing of the appeal from the award, make an affidavit that he is unable by reason of his poverty to give the security required by law. The request shall be passed upon and granted or denied by a member of the Commission or deputy commissioner within 20 days from receipt of the affidavit specified above. (1929, c. 120, s. 60; 1947, c. 823; 1957, c. 1396, s. 9; 1959, c. 863, s. 4; 1967, c. 669; 1971, c. 1189; 1975, c. 391, s. 15; 1977, c. 521, s. 1; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 10.5; 1995 (Reg. Sess., 1996), c. 552, s. 1.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Many of the cases below were decided before the 1967 amendment gave appellate jurisdiction over decisions of the Industrial Commission to the Court of Appeals. Formerly the superior court had appellate jurisdiction.

Remedy Is Exclusive. — The remedy provided by this section and §§ 97-83 through 97-85 is exclusive. Worley v. Pipes, 229 N.C. 465, 50 S.E.2d 504 (1948).

Effect of Appeal on Commission's Jurisdiction. — An appeal of an award of the Industrial Commission does not suspend that agency's authority to accept notification of an employee's decision to select his own doctor; neither does an appeal deprive the Commission of its jurisdiction to accept the submission of a claim. It may well be that the determination of the particular claim will be delayed until the outcome of the appeal. Nevertheless, the Commission has jurisdiction to receive the claim and is, in fact, the only agency vested with that jurisdiction. Schofield v. Great Atl. & Pac. Tea Co., 299 N.C. 582, 264 S.E.2d 56 (1980).

Modification of Award Under § 97-17 Is Not Subject to Collateral Attack. — The action of the Industrial Commission in modifying an award pursuant to § 97-17 is a quasi-judicial act which cannot be collaterally attacked in an independent action. In the absence of a direct appeal, the modified order of the Industrial Commission is conclusively presumed to be correct and cannot be collaterally attacked. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Rushing, 36 N.C. App. 226, 243 S.E.2d 420 (1978).

Recovery in Wrongful Death Action Not

Exempt from Disbursement by Commission. — There is no authority either in the statutes or in case law for holding that recovery in a wrongful death action is exempt from disbursement by the Industrial Commission if the act is applicable to the injured employee. Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

II. REVIEW, GENERALLY.

Appeal Lies Only from Final Order of Commission. — No appeal lies from an interlocutory order of the Industrial Commission. Only from a final order or decision of the Commission is there an appeal of right to the appellate court. Lynch v. M.B. Kahn Constr. Co., 41 N.C. App. 127, 254 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 298, 259 S.E.2d 914 (1979).

Only from a final order or decision of the Industrial Commission is there an appeal of right to the Court of Appeals. Ledford v. Asheville Hous. Auth., 125 N.C. App. 597, 482 S.E.2d 544 (1997).

Dismissal of Appeal as Interlocutory. — Appeal must be dismissed as interlocutory where the Industrial Commission determines only that plaintiff sustained an injury by accident and no final award has been entered. Fisher v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours, 54 N.C. App. 176, 282 S.E.2d 543 (1981).

Procedure Provided by Section Must Be Followed. — When the applicable statute provides an appeal from an administrative agency, the procedure provided in the Act must be followed. McDowell v. Town of Kure Beach, 251 N.C. 818, 112 S.E.2d 390 (1960).

Hence, a writ of certiorari cannot be used as a substitute for an appeal either before or after the time of appeal has expired. McDowell v. Town of Kure Beach, 251 N.C. 818, 112 S.E.2d 390 (1960).

Conclusive Effect of Award Which Is Not Timely Appealed. — An award of the Commission, if not reviewed in due time as provided in the Act, is conclusive and binding as to all questions of fact. Hall v. Thomason Chevrolet, Inc., 263 N.C. 569, 139 S.E.2d 857 (1965).

Dismissal Where Notice of Appeal Is Untimely. — Defendant's purported appeal from a workers' compensation proceeding would be dismissed where notice of appeal was filed after expiration of the 30-day period provided by this section. Fisher v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours, 54 N.C. App. 176, 282 S.E.2d 543 (1981).

Exceptions and Objections. — Where appellant on appeal to the superior court (now the Court of Appeals) does not except to any finding of the Industrial Commission or to the award, but merely gives notice of appeal for review as to errors of law, the single question presented to the court is whether the facts found were sufficient to support the award. Likewise, a sole exception to the judgment of the court presents only the question of whether the facts found support the judgment. Wyatt v. Sharp, 239 N.C. 655, 80 S.E.2d 762 (1954).

Questions of law which appellant desires the Supreme Court to review, including questions of whether specific findings of fact are supported by the evidence, must be presented by exceptions duly taken and assignments of error duly made which point out specifically and distinctly the alleged error; the Supreme Court, upon a broadside exception, will not make a voyage of discovery through the record to ascertain if error was committed at some time in some way during the progress of the trial or case. Worsley v. S. & W. Rendering Co., 239 N.C. 547, 80 S.E.2d 467 (1954).

The effect of an exception to the judgment of the Industrial Commission is only to challenge the correctness of the judgment, and presents the single question of whether the facts found are sufficient to support the judgment. Hatchell v. Cooper, 266 N.C. 345, 146 S.E.2d 62 (1966).

Fact Finding Prerogative Extends to Credibility Determinations. — The Industrial Commission's credibility determinations made in response to Sanders v. Broyhill Furn. Indus., 124 N.C. App. 637, 478 S.E.2d 223 cannot be the Court of Appeals' basis for reversing the commission's order absent other error; in other words, if the commission's conclusions are otherwise supported by competent evidence, the court may not scrutinize the commission's reasons for believing a witness while engaged in its fact-finding role and overturn its decision on the basis of those reasons. Deese v. Champion Int'l Corp., 352 N.C. 109, 530 S.E.2d 549 (2000).

Judgment Should Refer to Specific Assignments of Error. — Where, upon an appeal from the Industrial Commission, the exceptions point out specific assignments of error, the judgment in the superior court (now the Court of Appeals) thereon properly should overrule or sustain respectively each of the exceptions on matters of law thus designated. And where the judgment merely decrees that the award be in all respects affirmed, the Supreme Court will presume that the judge below considered each of the assignments of error and overruled them. Fox v. Cramerton Mills, 225 N.C. 580, 35 S.E.2d 869 (1945).

III. JURISDICTION.

A jurisdictional question may be raised at any stage of the proceeding. Askew v. Leonard Tire Co., 264 N.C. 168, 141 S.E.2d 280 (1965).

The Commission's jurisdiction may be questioned at any stage and even where an appeal, by stipulation, raises only the question of who was claimant's employer. If the record fails to show by testimony or admission that appellant had the requisite number of employees, the Commission is not shown to have acquired jurisdiction. The making of a stipulation that there was only one question at issue would not serve as an admission of the jurisdictional fact. Chadwick v. North Carolina Dep't of Conservation & Dev., 219 N.C. 766, 14 S.E.2d 842 (1941).

The reviewing court is not bound by the findings of jurisdictional facts by the Industrial Commission, and must make its own finding from a consideration of all the evidence in the case. Lloyd v. Jenkins Context Co., 46 N.C. App. 817, 266 S.E.2d 35 (1980).

Where the jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission to hear and consider a claim for compensation is challenged by an employer on the ground that he is not subject to the provisions of the act, the findings of fact made by the Commission, on which its jurisdiction is dependent, are not conclusive on the superior court (now the Court of Appeals). The court has both the power and the duty, on the appeal of either party to the proceeding, to consider all the evidence in the record, and to find therefrom the jurisdictional facts, without regard to the finding of such facts by the Commission. Aycock v. Cooper, 202 N.C. 500, 163 S.E. 569 (1932);

Aylor v. Barnes, 242 N.C. 223, 87 S.E.2d 269 (1955).

The Commission's findings of jurisdictional facts are not conclusive on appeal, even if they are supported by competent evidence. Askew v. Leonard Tire Co., 264 N.C. 168, 141 S.E.2d 280 (1965); Patterson v. L.M. Parker & Co., 2 N.C. App. 43, 162 S.E.2d 571 (1968); Lucas v. Li'l Gen. Stores, 289 N.C. 212, 221 S.E.2d 257 (1976).

Notwithstanding this section, the finding of a jurisdictional fact by the Industrial Commission is not conclusive upon appeal, even if there is evidence in the record to support such finding. The reviewing court has the right, and the duty, to make its own independent findings of such jurisdictional facts from its consideration of all the evidence in the record. Dockery v. McMillan, 85 N.C. App. 469, 355 S.E.2d 153, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 167, 358 S.E.2d 49 (1987).

The court has the right and the duty to make its own independent findings of jurisdictional facts from its consideration of all the evidence in the record. Richards v. Nationwide Homes, 263 N.C. 295, 139 S.E.2d 645 (1965); Askew v. Leonard Tire Co., 264 N.C. 168, 141 S.E.2d 280 (1965); Lucas v. Li'l Gen. Stores, 289 N.C. 212, 221 S.E.2d 257 (1976).

Where the judge is of the opinion, upon a fair and impartial consideration of the evidence in the record, that the Commission's findings of jurisdictional facts lead to an improper assumption or rejection of jurisdiction by the Commission, he has the duty to make independent findings of jurisdictional facts and to set them out in the judgment. Patterson v. L.M. Parker & Co., 2 N.C. App. 43, 162 S.E.2d 571 (1968).

If a party to the proceedings requests the court to make independent findings of jurisdictional facts, it is error to fail to do so. Patterson v. L.M. Parker & Co., 2 N.C. App. 43, 162 S.E.2d 571 (1968).

Ordinarily, the findings of fact of the Commission are binding on appeal if supported by any competent evidence. However, where a party challenges the jurisdiction of the Commission, the findings of fact are not conclusive and the reviewing court may consider all of the evidence in the record and make its own findings of fact. Weston v. Sears Roebuck & Co., 65 N.C. App. 309, 309 S.E.2d 273 (1983), cert. denied, 311 N.C. 407, 319 S.E.2d 281 (1984).

Findings of the Commission that employee received notice from competent medical authority that she had an occupational disease on June 25, 1977, at an occupational respiratory problem screening clinic and that her claim, filed on July 11, 1980, was barred by the two-year statute of limitations, § 97-58, were jurisdictional findings of fact and were fully reviewable by the Court of Appeals.

Dawkins v. Mills, 74 N.C. App. 712, 329 S.E.2d 688 (1985).

The award should be set aside if the fact found by the Commission was jurisdictional and there was no evidence tending to support such finding. Poole v. Sigmon, 202 N.C. 172, 162 S.E. 198 (1932).

IV. FINDINGS OF COMMISSION.

Findings Required on Crucial Facts. — While the Commission is not required to make findings as to each fact presented by the evidence, it is required to make specific findings with respect to crucial facts upon which the question of plaintiff's right to compensation depends. Gaines v. L.D. Swain & Son, 33 N.C. App. 575, 235 S.E.2d 856 (1977).

It is required that the Industrial Commission find all the crucial and specific facts upon which the right to compensation depends, in order that it may be determined on appeal whether an adequate basis exists for the ultimate findings as to whether plaintiff was injured by accident arising out of and in the course of his employment, but it is not required that the Commission make a finding as to each detail of the evidence or as to every shade of meaning to be drawn therefrom. Guest v. Brenner Iron & Metal Co., 241 N.C. 448, 85 S.E.2d 596 (1955). See also, Clark v. Gastonia Ice Cream Co., 261 N.C. 234, 134 S.E.2d 354 (1964).

Findings Must Be Specific and Definite. — It is the duty of the Commission to make such specific and definite findings upon the evidence as will enable the court to determine whether its general findings or conclusions should stand. Singleton v. Durham Laundry Co., 213 N.C. 32, 195 S.E. 34 (1938).

The Industrial Commission is required to make specific findings as to the facts upon which a compensation claim is based, including the extent of a claimant's disability. Grant v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 77 N.C. App. 241, 335 S.E.2d 327 (1985).

The findings of fact should tell the full story of the event giving rise to the claim for compensation. They must be sufficiently positive and specific to enable the court on appeal to determine whether they are supported by the evidence and whether the law has been properly applied to them. Thomason v. Red Bird Cab Co., 235 N.C. 602, 70 S.E.2d 706 (1952); Gaines v. L.D. Swain & Son, 33 N.C. App. 575, 235 S.E.2d 856 (1977).

Mere recitals of medical opinion are not sufficiently specific to enable a reviewing court to judge the propriety of the Commission's order, and therefore cannot properly form the basis for a conclusion of law as to compensation. Harrell v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 54 N.C. App. 582, 284 S.E.2d 343 (1981), cert. denied, 305 N.C. 152, 289 S.E.2d 379 (1982).

Finding Held Too Indefinite to Serve as Basis for Valid Award. — Where it was found by the Commission that the deceased was killed while acting either as deputy sheriff or jailer, the court held that the finding was too indefinite to serve as a basis for a valid award. Gowens v. Alamance County, 214 N.C. 18, 197 S.E. 538 (1938), decided prior to the 1939 amendment to § 97-2.

V. SCOPE OF REVIEW.

Certain Matters Are Not Reviewable. — There are completely unreviewable matters in compensation procedures, just as there are in ordinary judicial procedure. Morse v. Curtis, 6 N.C. App. 620, 170 S.E.2d 491 (1969).

Review of Questions of Fact and of Law Distinguished. — When the assignments of error bring up for review the findings of fact of the Commission, the court will review the evidence to determine as a matter of law whether there is any competent evidence tending to support the findings; if so, the findings of fact are conclusive on the court. If a finding of fact is a mixed question of fact and law, it is conclusive also, if there is sufficient evidence to sustain the facts involved. If a question of law alone, it is reviewable. Lewter v. Abercrombie Enters., Inc., 240 N.C. 399, 82 S.E.2d 410 (1954).

An appeal from the Industrial Commission is permitted only on matters of law. Fox v. Cramerton Mills, 225 N.C. 580, 35 S.E.2d 869 (1945).

The appellate court has jurisdiction to review only for errors of law. Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 3 N.C. App. 139, 164 S.E.2d 535 (1968), aff'd, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969). See also, Byrd v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 207 N.C. 253, 176 S.E. 572 (1934).

On appeal from the Industrial Commission, the court has no power to review the findings of fact by the Commission. It can consider only errors of law appearing in the record, as certified by the Commission. Winslow v. Carolina Conference Ass'n, 211 N.C. 571, 191 S.E. 403 (1937).

The award of the Industrial Commission is conclusive and binding as to all questions of fact, and the appeal to the court is for error of law only. Ballenger Paving Co. v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 258 N.C. 691, 129 S.E.2d 245 (1963).

The Court of Appeals has appellate jurisdiction to review an award of the Industrial Commission for errors of law when a party to the proceeding in which the appeal is made appeals to it. Morgan v. Thomasville Furn. Indus., 2 N.C. App. 126, 162 S.E.2d 619 (1968).

While findings of fact by the Industrial Commission, when supported by competent evidence, are conclusive, the rulings of the Commission are subject to review on questions of law, i.e., whether the Industrial Commission has jurisdiction, whether the findings are supported by evidence, and whether upon the facts established the decision is correct. Smith v. Southern Waste Paper Co., 226 N.C. 47, 36 S.E.2d 730 (1946).

Appellate review of opinions and awards of the Commission is strictly limited to the discovery and correction of legal errors. Godley v. County of Pitt, 306 N.C. 357, 293 S.E.2d 167 (1982).

As to review of errors of law prior to 1967 amendment, see Thomason v. Red Bird Cab Co., 235 N.C. 602, 70 S.E.2d 706 (1952).

Discretion to Consider Excusable Neglect. — The commission has the inherent power and authority, in its discretion, to consider defendant's motion for relief due to excusable neglect. Allen v. Food Lion, Inc., 117 N.C. App. 289, 450 S.E.2d 571 (1994).

The Commission's legal conclusions are subject to court review. Jackson v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 272 N.C. 697, 158 S.E.2d 865 (1968); Porterfield v. RPC Corp., 47 N.C. App. 140, 266 S.E.2d 760 (1980); Peeler v. State Hwy. Comm'n, 48 N.C. App. 1, 269 S.E.2d 153 (1980), aff'd, 302 N.C. 183, 273 S.E.2d 705 (1981); Pollard v. Krispy Waffle #1, 63 N.C. App. 354, 304 S.E.2d 762 (1983); Grant v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 77 N.C. App. 241, 335 S.E.2d 327 (1985).

Even If Denominated "Findings of Fact". — A conclusion of law is made no less reviewable by virtue of the fact that it is denominated a "finding of fact". Walston v. Burlington Indus., 49 N.C. App. 301, 271 S.E.2d 516 (1980), rev'd on other grounds, 304 N.C. 670, 285 S.E.2d 822 (1982).

As Conclusions of Law Are Not Binding on the Court. — Conclusions of law entered by the Industrial Commission are not binding on the Court of Appeals, and are reviewable for purposes of determining their evidentiary basis and the reasonableness of the legal inferences made therefrom. Walston v. Burlington Indus., 49 N.C. App. 301, 271 S.E.2d 516 (1980), rev'd on other grounds, 304 N.C. 670, 285 S.E.2d 822 (1982).

Where the facts are not in dispute, the effect to be given such facts is a matter of law reviewable on appeal. Perkins v. Sprott, 207 N.C. 462, 177 S.E. 404 (1934).

Findings of fact made by the Commission are, when supported by any evidence, conclusive on appeal. But when all the evidence and the inferences to be drawn therefrom result in only one conclusion, liability is a question of law subject to review. Hensley v. Farmers Fed'n Coop., 246 N.C. 274, 98 S.E.2d 289 (1957).

In passing upon an appeal from an award of the Commission, the reviewing court is limited to two questions of law, namely: (1) Whether there was any competent evidence before the Commission to support its findings of fact; and (2) whether the findings of fact of the Commission justify its legal conclusions and decisions. Brice v. Robertson House Moving, Wrecking & Salvage Co., 249 N.C. 74, 105 S.E.2d 439 (1958); Moore v. Adams Elec. Co., 259 N.C. 735, 131 S.E.2d 356 (1963); Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969); Waggoner v. North Carolina Bd. of Alcoholic Control, 7 N.C. App. 692, 173 S.E.2d 548 (1970); Inscoe v. DeRose Indus., Inc., 292 N.C. 210, 232 S.E.2d 449 (1977); Barham v. Food World, Inc., 300 N.C. 329, 266 S.E.2d 676, rehearing denied, 300 N.C. 562, 270 S.E.2d 105 (1980); King v. Forsyth County, 45 N.C. App. 467, 263 S.E.2d 283, cert. denied, 300 N.C. 374, 267 S.E.2d 676 (1980); Walston v. Burlington Indus., 49 N.C. App. 301, 271 S.E.2d 516 (1980), rev'd on other grounds, 304 N.C. 670, 285 S.E.2d 822 (1982); Hansel v. Sherman Textiles, 304 N.C. 44, 283 S.E.2d 101 (1981); Buck v. Procter & Gamble Mfg. Co., 52 N.C. App. 88, 278 S.E.2d 268 (1981); Chandler v. Nello L. Teer Co., 53 N.C. App. 766, 281 S.E.2d 718 (1981), aff'd, 305 N.C. 292, 287 S.E.2d 890 (1982); Hilliard v. Apex Cabinet Co., 54 N.C. App. 173, 282 S.E.2d 828 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 305 N.C. 593, 290 S.E.2d 682 (1982); Anderson v. A.M. Smyre Mfg. Co., 54 N.C. App. 337, 283 S.E.2d 433 (1981); Rutledge v. Tultex Corp., 56 N.C. App. 345, 289 S.E.2d 72, aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 308 N.C. 85, 301 S.E.2d 359 (1983); Hundley v. Fieldcrest Mills, 58 N.C. App. 184, 292 S.E.2d 766 (1982); Dolbow v. Holland Indus., Inc., 64 N.C. App. 695, 308 S.E.2d 335 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 308, 312 S.E.2d 651 (1984); Roper v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 65 N.C. App. 69, 308 S.E.2d 485 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 309, 312 S.E.2d 652 (1984); Mills v. Mills, 68 N.C. App. 151, 314 S.E.2d 833 (1984); Sanderson v. Northeast Constr. Co., 77 N.C. App. 117, 334 S.E.2d 392 (1985); McBride v. Peony Corp., 84 N.C. App. 221, 352 S.E.2d 236 (1987).

In appeals from the Industrial Commission, the superior court (now the Court of Appeals) may determine upon proper exceptions that the facts found by the Industrial Commission were or were not supported by competent evidence and that the findings so supported do or do not sustain the legal conclusions and the award of the Industrial Commission. Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

The role of the appellate court in reviewing an appeal from the Industrial Commission is limited to a determination of (1) whether the findings of fact are supported by competent evidence, and (2) whether the conclusions of law are supported by the findings. Guy v. Burlington Indus., 74 N.C. App. 685, 329 S.E.2d 685 (1985); Woodell v. Starr Davis Co., 77 N.C. App. 352, 335 S.E.2d 48 (1985).

Court May Determine Whether There Is Any Evidence to Support Commission's Findings. —

The findings of fact of the Industrial Commission are conclusive on appeal only when supported by evidence, and the court, on appeal, may review the evidence to determine as a matter of law whether there is any evidence tending to support the findings. Vause v. Vause Farm Equip. Co., 233 N.C. 88, 63 S.E.2d 173 (1951); Eller v. Porter-Hayden Co., 48 N.C. App. 610, 269 S.E.2d 284, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 527, 273 S.E.2d 452 (1980).

When the party aggrieved appeals to court from a decision of the full Commission on the theory that the underlying findings of fact of the full Commission are not supported by competent evidence, the court does not retry the facts. The court merely determines from the proceedings had before the Commission whether there was sufficient competent evidence before the Commission to support the findings of fact of the full Commission. Moses v. Bartholomew, 238 N.C. 714, 78 S.E.2d 923 (1953).

It is the duty of the court to determine whether, in any reasonable view of the evidence, such evidence is sufficient to support the critical findings necessary to permit an award of compensation. Keller v. Electric Wiring Co., 259 N.C. 222, 130 S.E.2d 342 (1963).

The court's duty in a compensation case goes no further than to determine whether the record contains any evidence tending to support the finding. Anderson v. Lincoln Constr. Co., 265 N.C. 431, 144 S.E.2d 272 (1965); Hollman v. City of Raleigh, 273 N.C. 240, 159 S.E.2d 874 (1968); Inscoc v. DeRose Indus., Inc., 292 N.C. 210, 232 S.E.2d 449 (1977); Ivory v. Greer Bros., 45 N.C. App. 455, 263 S.E.2d 290 (1980); Taylor v. M.L. Hatcher Pick-Up & Delivery Serv., 45 N.C. App. 682, 263 S.E.2d 788, cert. denied, 300 N.C. 379, 267 S.E.2d 684 (1980); Click v. Pilot Freight Carriers, Inc., 300 N.C. 164, 265 S.E.2d 389 (1980).

Conclusions of law are reviewable by the Court of Appeals to determine their evidentiary basis. Lucas v. Thomas Built Buses, Inc., 88 N.C. App. 587, 364 S.E.2d 147 (1988).

A review of the record indicated there was competent evidence to support the Commission's findings of fact, and the findings of fact justified the Commission's legal conclusions. Lowe v. BE & K Constr. Co., 121 N.C. App. 570, 468 S.E.2d 396 (1996).

And Whether Findings Support Commission's Conclusions and Decision. —

On appeal from an award of the Industrial Commission the jurisdiction of the courts is limited to the questions of law as to whether there was competent evidence before the Commission to support its findings of fact and whether such findings justify the legal conclusions and decision of the Commission. Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 231 N.C. 477, 57 S.E.2d 760 (1950); Thomason v. Red Bird Cab Co., 235 N.C. 602, 70 S.E.2d 706 (1952); Green v. Eastern Constr. Co., 1 N.C. App. 300, 161 S.E.2d 200 (1968); Gaines v. L.D. Swain & Son, 33 N.C. App. 575, 235 S.E.2d 856 (1977); King v. Exxon Co., 46 N.C. App. 750, 266 S.E.2d 37 (1980); Peeler v. State Hwy. Comm'n, 48 N.C. App. 1, 269 S.E.2d 153 (1980), aff'd, 302 N.C. 183, 273 S.E.2d 705 (1981); McLean v. Roadway Express, Inc., 307 N.C. 99, 296 S.E.2d 456 (1982); Keller v. City of Wilmington Police Dep't, 65 N.C. App. 675, 309 S.E.2d 543 (1983).

When called upon to review the findings of fact, conclusions of law, and awards of the Industrial Commission in compensation cases, the courts determine as a matter of law whether the facts found support the Commission's conclusions, and whether they justify the awards. McRae v. Wall, 260 N.C. 576, 133 S.E.2d 220 (1963).

If the findings of fact of the Industrial Commission are supported by competent evidence and are determinative of all of the questions at issue in the proceeding, the court must accept such findings as final truth and merely determine whether they justify the legal conclusions and decision of the Commission. Pardue v. Blackburn Bros. Oil & Tire Co., 260 N.C. 413, 132 S.E.2d 747 (1963); Morgan v. Thomasville Furn. Indus., 2 N.C. App. 126, 162 S.E.2d 619 (1968); Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 3 N.C. App. 139, 164 S.E.2d 535 (1968), aff'd, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969); Hollar v. Montclair Furn. Co., 48 N.C. App. 489, 269 S.E.2d 667 (1980).

While findings of fact of the Industrial Commission are conclusive on appeal when supported by evidence, the courts must review the reasonableness of the inferences of fact deduced from the basic facts found, and the conclusions of law predicated upon them. Evans v. Tabor City Lumber Co., 232 N.C. 111, 59 S.E.2d 612 (1950); Crawley v. Southern Devices, Inc., 31 N.C. App. 284, 229 S.E.2d 325 (1976), cert. denied, 292 N.C. 467, 234 S.E.2d 2 (1977).

On appeal from an award of the Industrial Commission, the appellate court's review is limited to the questions of whether the findings made by the Commission are supported by competent evidence in the record and whether these findings support the conclusions of law drawn by the Commission. Little v. Penn Ventilator Co., 75 N.C. App. 92, 330 S.E.2d 276, aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 317 N.C. 206, 345 S.E.2d 204 (1986).

While the Commission's findings of fact are conclusive, the reviewing court's function is to determine whether the Commission's findings of fact are supported by competent evidence and whether the conclusions of law are correct. Lucas v. Thomas Built Buses, Inc., 88 N.C. App.

587, 364 S.E.2d 147 (1988).

Court May Not Find Facts Itself. — In no event may the superior court (now the Court of Appeals) or the Supreme Court consider the evidence in a proceeding involving an appeal from the Industrial Commission for the purpose of finding the facts for itself. Reed v. Lavender Bros., 206 N.C. 898, 172 S.E. 877 (1934); Walker v. J.D. Wilkins, Inc., 212 N.C. 627, 194 S.E. 89 (1937); Thomason v. Red Bird Cab Co., 235 N.C. 602, 70 S.E.2d 706 (1952); Pardue v. Blackburn Bros. Oil & Tire Co., 260 N.C. 413, 132 S.E.2d 747 (1963); Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 3 N.C. App. 139, 164 S.E.2d 535 (1968), aff'd, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

The court cannot consider the evidence in the proceeding in any event for the purpose of finding the facts for itself. If the findings of fact of the Industrial Commission are supported by competent evidence and are determinative of all the questions at issue in the proceeding, the court must accept such findings as final truth and merely determine whether or not they justify the legal conclusions and decision of the Commission. But if the findings of fact of the Industrial Commission are insufficient to enable the court to determine the rights of the parties upon the matters in controversy, the proceeding must be remanded to the Commission for proper findings. Brice v. Robertson House Moving, Wrecking & Salvage Co., 249 N.C. 74, 105 S.E.2d 439 (1958); Gamble v. Borden, Inc., 45 N.C. App. 506, 263 S.E.2d 280, cert. denied, 300 N.C. 372, 267 S.E.2d 675 (1980).

The Court of Appeals may neither find facts nor adjudicate matters within the jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission. Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

When reviewing an appeal from an award of the full Commission, the appellate court does not retry the facts, but instead, determines whether there was any competent evidence before the Commission to support its findings of fact. Bailey v. Smoky Mt. Enters., Inc., 65 N.C. App. 134, 308 S.E.2d 489 (1983), cert. denied, 311 N.C. 303, 317 S.E.2d 678 (1984).

Or Receive Evidence Not Considered Below. — Neither the superior court (now the Court of Appeals) nor the Supreme Court may receive or consider any evidence not introduced in the hearings before the hearing commissioner or the full Commission. Huffman v. Douglass Aircraft Co., 260 N.C. 308, 132 S.E.2d 614 (1963), cert. denied, 379 U.S. 850, 85 S. Ct. 93, 13 L. Ed. 2d 53, rehearing denied, 379 U.S. 925, 85 S. Ct. 279, 13 L. Ed. 2d 338 (1964).

The appellate court may not receive or consider new evidence not introduced in the hearing before the Commission. Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 3 N.C. App. 139, 164 S.E.2d 535 (1968), aff'd, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

The scope of review is limited to the record as certified by the Commission and to the questions of law therein presented. Penland v. Bird Coal Co., 246 N.C. 26, 97 S.E.2d 432 (1957); Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 3 N.C. App. 139, 164 S.E.2d 535 (1968), aff'd, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

On appeal from a judgment of the superior court (now the Court of Appeals) affirming or reversing an award of the Industrial Commission, the Supreme Court acts upon the record that was before the court and upon that alone; if the record was defective, it should have been amended in the superior court. Penland v. Bird Coal Co., 246 N.C. 26, 97 S.E.2d 432 (1957).

Matters which were not in the record before the superior court (now the Court of Appeals), but which were sent up with the transcript to the Supreme Court, are no more a part of the record in the Supreme Court than they were in the superior court (now the Court of Appeals), and may not be made so by certificate of the court below. Penland v. Bird Coal Co., 246 N.C. 26, 97 S.E.2d 432 (1957).

The court does not have the right to weigh the evidence in a workers' compensation case and decide the issue on the basis of its weight. Anderson v. Lincoln Constr. Co., 265 N.C. 431, 144 S.E.2d 272 (1965); Hollman v. City of Raleigh, 273 N.C. 240, 159 S.E.2d 874 (1968); Inscoc v. DeRose Indus., Inc., 292 N.C. 210, 232 S.E.2d 449 (1977).

Upon review of an order of the Industrial Commission, the Supreme Court does not weigh the evidence but may only determine whether there is evidence in the record to support the finding made by the Commission. Russell v. Pharr Yarns, Inc., 18 N.C. App. 249, 196 S.E.2d 571 (1973); Willis v. Reidsville Drapery Plant, 29 N.C. App. 386, 224 S.E.2d 287 (1976).

Upon review of the opinion and award of the full Commission, the Court of Appeals does not weigh the evidence, but may only determine whether there is evidence in the record to support the findings made by the Commission. If there is any evidence of substance which directly or by reasonable inference tends to support the findings, this court is bound by such evidence, even though there is evidence that would have supported a finding to the contrary. Porterfield v. RPC Corp., 47 N.C. App. 140, 266 S.E.2d 760 (1980).

It is not for a reviewing court to weigh the evidence before the Industrial Commission in a workers' compensation case. Mayo v. City of Washington, 51 N.C. App. 402, 276 S.E.2d 747 (1981).

It is not the function of any appellate court to retry the facts found by the Commission or weigh the evidence received by it and decide anew the issue of compensability of an employee's claim. Buck v. Procter & Gamble Mfg. Co., 52 N.C. App. 88, 278 S.E.2d 268 (1981).

Commission Is Sole Judge of Weight and Credibility of Testimony. — The Industrial Commission is the sole judge of the credibility of the witnesses and the weight to be given their testimony. Anderson v. Lincoln Constr. Co., 265 N.C. 431, 144 S.E.2d 272 (1965); Hollman v. City of Raleigh, 273 N.C. 240, 159 S.E.2d 874 (1968); Inscoc v. DeRose Indus., Inc., 292 N.C. 210, 232 S.E.2d 449 (1977); McNinch v. Henredon Indus., Inc., 51 N.C. App. 250, 276 S.E.2d 756 (1981); Yelverton v. Kemp Furn. Co., 51 N.C. App. 675, 277 S.E.2d 441 (1981); Woodell v. Starr Davis Co., 77 N.C. App. 352, 335 S.E.2d 48 (1985); Grant v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 77 N.C. App. 241, 335 S.E.2d 327 (1985).

By authority of this section the Commission is the sole judge of the credibility and weight to be accorded to the evidence and testimony before it. Its findings of fact may be set aside on appeal only when there is a complete lack of competent evidence to support them. Mayo v. City of Washington, 51 N.C. App. 402, 276 S.E.2d 747 (1981).

The Commission is the sole judge of the credibility of the witnesses and the weight to be given their testimony. Thus, the Commission may assign more weight and credibility to certain testimony than to other testimony. Moreover, if the evidence before the Commission is capable of supporting two contrary findings, the determination of the Commission is conclusive on appeal. Dolbow v. Holland Indus., Inc., 64 N.C. App. 695, 308 S.E.2d 335 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 308, 312 S.E.2d 651 (1984).

Argument that finding was contrary to the greater weight of the evidence was irrelevant; determining the weight and credibility of evidence was the province of the commission, the fact finder, which could accept or reject different parts of a witness' testimony as it saw fit. Fowler v. B.E. & K. Constr., Inc., 92 N.C. App. 237, 373 S.E.2d 878 (1988).

Authority to Find Facts Is Vested Exclusively in Industrial Commission. — The authority to find facts necessary for an award pursuant to the provisions of the act is vested exclusively in the Industrial Commission. Moore v. Adams Elec. Co., 259 N.C. 735, 131 S.E.2d 356 (1963); Anderson v. Lincoln Constr. Co., 265 N.C. 431, 144 S.E.2d 272 (1965).

The Industrial Commission is the sole trier of the facts. Hall v. W.A. Davis Milling Co., 1 N.C. App. 380, 161 S.E.2d 780 (1968).

This section vests the Industrial Commission with full authority to find essential facts. Hollman v. City of Raleigh, 273 N.C. 240, 159 S.E.2d 874 (1968); Inscoc v. DeRose Indus., Inc., 292 N.C. 210, 232 S.E.2d 449 (1977).

The Industrial Commission is vested with the judicial function and the authority and duty to determine whether, under the established facts and applicable law, the plaintiff has a compensable claim. Nello L. Teer Co. v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 265 N.C. 1, 143 S.E.2d 247 (1965).

The Commission is the sole fact-finding agency in cases in which it has jurisdiction. Yelverton v. Kemp Furn. Co., 51 N.C. App. 675, 277 S.E.2d 441 (1981).

The factual determinations of the Industrial Commission are conclusive on appeal to the superior court (now the Court of Appeals) and in the Supreme Court. Brown v. Carolina Aluminum Co., 224 N.C. 766, 32 S.E.2d 320 (1944).

Under the Workers' Compensation Act the Industrial Commission is made the fact-finding body, and the findings of fact made by the Commission are conclusive on appeal. McMahan v. Hickey's Supermarket, 24 N.C. App. 113, 210 S.E.2d 214 (1974); Inscoc v. DeRose Indus., Inc., 292 N.C. 210, 232 S.E.2d 449 (1977).

When Supported by Competent Evidence. — The findings of fact of the Industrial Commission are conclusive and binding upon appeal when supported by competent evidence. Fox v. Mills, Inc., 225 N.C. 580, 35 S.E.2d 869 (1945); Henry v. A.C. Lawrence Leather Co., 231 N.C. 477, 57 S.E.2d 760 (1950); Williams v. Ornamental Stone Co., 232 N.C. 88, 59 S.E.2d 193 (1950); Vause v. Vause Farm Equip. Co., 233 N.C. 88, 63 S.E.2d 173 (1951); *Anderson v. The Industrial Commission's findings of fact, except jurisdictional findings, are conclusive on appeal if supported by competent evidence. Askew v. Leonard Tire Co., 264 N.C. 168, 141 S.E.2d 280 (1965); Nello L. Teer Co. v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 265 N.C. 1, 143 S.E.2d 247 (1965); *Hollman v. If the evidence and the stipulations, viewed in the light most favorable to claimant, support the findings of the Industrial Commission, the courts are bound by them. Maurer v. Salem Co., 266 N.C. 381, 146 S.E.2d 432 (1966).

The Commission occupies a position analogous to that of a referee, the difference being that the findings of fact by the Commission are binding, if there is any evidence to support them, while those of a referee are not. Singleton v. Durham Laundry Co., 213 N.C. 32, 195 S.E. 34 (1937). See also, Maley v. Thomasville Furn. Co., 214 N.C. 589, 200 S.E. 438 (1948), as to the hearing commissioner.

Even If Evidence Would Also Have Supported Contrary Findings. — If there is any competent evidence to support a finding of fact of the Industrial Commission, such finding is conclusive on appeal, even though there is evidence that would have supported a finding to the contrary. Riddick v. Richmond Cedar Works, 227 N.C. 647, 43 S.E.2d 850 (1947); Johnson v. Erwin Cotton Mills Co., 232 N.C. 321, 59 S.E.2d 828 (1950); Tucker v. Starr Davis Co., 77 N.C. App. 352, 335 S.E.2d 48 (1985).

The findings of fact of the Industrial Commission are conclusive on the courts when the findings are supported by any competent evidence, notwithstanding the fact that the court, if it had been the fact-finding body, might have reached a different conclusion, the finding of facts from the evidence being the exclusive function of the Industrial Commission. McGill v. Lumberton, 218 N.C. 586, 11 S.E.2d 873 (1940). See Withers v. Black, 230 N.C. 428, 53 S.E.2d 668 (1949).

If there is any evidence of substance which directly or by reasonable inference tends to support the findings, the court is bound by such evidence, even though there is evidence that would have supported a finding to the contrary. Russell v. Pharr Yarns, Inc., 18 N.C. App. 249, 196 S.E.2d 571 (1973); Willis v. Reidsville Drapery Plant, 29 N.C. App. 386, 224 S.E.2d 287 (1976).

If the totality of the evidence, viewed in the light most favorable to the complainant, tends directly or by reasonable inference to support the Commission's findings, these findings are conclusive on appeal even though there may be plenary evidence to support findings to the contrary. Mayo v. City of Washington, 51 N.C. App. 402, 276 S.E.2d 747 (1981).

For other examples of the application of the rule that when supported by competent legal evidence, the findings of fact of the Commission are conclusive even though they may be contrary to the opinion of the appellate court, see Williams v. Thompson, 200 N.C. 463, 157 S.E.

430 (1931); Wimbish v. Home Detective Co., 202 N.C. 800, 164 S.E. 344 (1932); Moore v. Summers Drug Co., 206 N.C. 711, 175 S.E. 96 (1934); Johnson v. Foreman-Blades Lumber Co., 216 N.C. 123, 4 S.E.2d 334 (1939); Blythe v. Welborn, 223 N.C. 857, 25 S.E.2d 555 (1940).

But facts found by the Commission under a misapprehension of law are not binding on appeal. Whitted v. Palmer-Bee Co., 228 N.C. 447, 46 S.E.2d 109 (1948); Cooper v. Colonial Ice Co., 230 N.C. 43, 51 S.E.2d 889 (1949); Hawes v. Mutual Benefit Health & Accident Ass'n, 243 N.C. 62, 89 S.E.2d 739 (1955).

Findings May Be Set Aside Only for Complete Lack of Competent Evidence. — Industrial Commission's findings of fact are binding on a reviewing court if supported by competent evidence, and may be set aside on appeal only when there is a complete lack of competent evidence to support them. Carrington v. Housing Auth., 54 N.C. App. 158, 282 S.E.2d 541 (1981).

The findings of the Commission are conclusive only if there is evidence to show that the facts are as found. Hildebrand v. McDowell Furn. Co., 212 N.C. 100, 193 S.E. 294 (1937).

The court may set aside a finding of fact of the Industrial Commission only upon the ground that it lacks evidentiary support. McRae v. Wall, 260 N.C. 576, 133 S.E.2d 220 (1963); Anderson v. Lincoln Constr. Co., 265 N.C. 431, 144 S.E.2d 272 (1965); Inscoe v. DeRose Indus., Inc., 292 N.C. 210, 232 S.E.2d 449 (1977).

As an Award Not Supported by Evidence Cannot Be Upheld. — The rule that the findings of fact made by the Industrial Commission, when supported by any competent evidence, are conclusive on appeal, does not mean that the conclusions of the Commission from the evidence are in all respects unexceptionable. If those findings, involving mixed questions of law and fact, are not supported by evidence, the award cannot be upheld. Perley v. Ballenger Paving Co., 228 N.C. 479, 46 S.E.2d 298 (1948).

The findings of fact of the Industrial Commission, when supported by competent evidence, are binding upon the courts upon appeal, but findings not supported by competent evidence are not conclusive and must be set aside. Logan v. Johnson, 218 N.C. 200, 10 S.E.2d 653 (1940); Penland v. Bird Coal Co., 246 N.C. 26, 97 S.E.2d 432 (1957).

But if the findings of fact are supported by the evidence, the decision of the full Commission must be affirmed. Brown v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 49 N.C. App. 118, 270 S.E.2d 602 (1980), cert. denied, 304 N.C. 192, 285 S.E.2d 96 (1981).

As a general rule, an opinion and award of the Industrial Commission is conclusive on appeal if its findings of fact are supported by any competent evidence and the conclusions of law are supported by the findings. Priddy v. Cone Mills Corp., 58 N.C. App. 720, 294 S.E.2d 743 (1982).

Conclusions of the Commission will not be disturbed if justified by findings of fact. Robinson v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 619, 292 S.E.2d 144 (1982).

Ruling Undisturbed Even Though Facts Justified Setting Aside Dismissal. — Commission's refusal to set aside dismissal was not an abuse of discretion. While there was much in the case which would have justified its setting aside dismissal, Commission's decision was supported by reason. Hogan v. Cone Mills Corp., 326 N.C. 476, 390 S.E.2d 136 (1990).

An opinion and award entered by the Commission may not be disturbed on appeal unless a patent error of law exists therein. Hoffman v. Ryder Truck Lines, 306 N.C. 502, 293 S.E.2d 807 (1982); Carter v. Frank Shelton, Inc., 62 N.C. App. 378, 303 S.E.2d 184 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 476, 312 S.E.2d 883 (1984).

Commission's legal interpretation of a particular provision is persuasive, although not binding, and should be accorded some weight on appeal and not idly cast aside, since that administrative body hears and decides all questions arising under the Workers' Compensation Act in the first instance. Deese v. Southern Lawn & Tree Expert Co., 306 N.C. 275, 293 S.E.2d 140, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 753, 303 S.E.2d 83 (1982).

A finding based on incompetent testimony is not conclusive. Plyler v. Charlotte Country Club, 214 N.C. 453, 199 S.E. 622 (1938); Penland v. Bird Coal Co., 246 N.C. 26, 97 S.E.2d 432 (1957).

Where the record specifically discloses that the Commission's findings of fact are based upon incompetent testimony, such as the direct testimony of a witness who refused to be cross-examined or the transcript of previous testimony given in a criminal action, the findings are not only not conclusive, but there is error and the cause will be remanded. Citizens Bank & Trust Co. v. Reid Motor Co., 216 N.C. 432, 5 S.E.2d 318 (1939).

Effect of Admission of Incompetent Evidence Where Competent Evidence Supports Findings. — Where each of the essential facts found by the Industrial Commission is supported by competent evidence, the findings are conclusive on appeal, even though some incompetent evidence was also admitted upon the hearing. Carlton v. Bernhardt-Seagle Co., 210 N.C. 655, 188 S.E. 77 (1936). See Tomlinson v. Town of Norwood, 208 N.C. 716, 182 S.E. 659 (1935); Swink v. Carolina Asbestos Co., 210 N.C. 303, 186 S.E. 258 (1936); Porter v. Noland Co., 215 N.C. 724, 2 S.E.2d 853 (1939); Baxter v.

Carolina Wood Turning Co.*, 217 N.C. 302, 7 S.E.2d 550 (1940); MacRae v. Unemployment Comp. Comm'n., 217 N.C. 769, 9 S.E.2d 595 (1940); Blevins v. Teer, 220 N.C. 135, 16 S.E.2d 659 (1941); Miller v. Caudle, 220 N.C. 308, 17 S.E.2d 487 (1941); Haynes v. Feldspar Producing Co., 222 N.C. 163, 22 S.E.2d 275 (1942); Stanley v. Hyman-Michaels Co., 222 N.C. 257, 22 S.E.2d 570 (1942); Kearns v. Biltwell Chair & Furn. Co., 222 N.C. 438, 23 S.E.2d 310 (1942); Archie v. Greene Bros. Lumber Co., 222 N.C. 477, 23 S.E.2d 834 (1943); Penland v. Bird Coal Co., 246 N.C. 26, 97 S.E.2d 432 (1957).

The introduction of incompetent evidence cannot be held prejudicial where the record contains sufficient competent evidence to support the findings. Eaton v. Klopman Mills, Inc., 2 N.C. App. 363, 163 S.E.2d 17 (1968).

Adoption of Findings by Reference. — If the court's findings are in agreement with those of the Commission, it may by reference in the judgment adopt the latter as its own. Askew v. Leonard Tire Co., 264 N.C. 168, 141 S.E.2d 280 (1965); Patterson v. L.M. Parker & Co., 2 N.C. App. 43, 162 S.E.2d 571 (1968).

VI. REVIEW OF PARTICULAR FINDINGS.

The relationship of employer and employee created by the facts found by the Commission is a question of law and the conclusion of the Commission based on those facts is reviewable. Hawes v. Mutual Benefit Health & Accident Ass'n, 243 N.C. 62, 89 S.E.2d 739 (1955).

The finding of the Industrial Commission that deceased was an employee of defendant at the time of his fatal injury is conclusive on the courts if supported by competent evidence, notwithstanding that the court might have reached a different conclusion if it had been the fact-finding body. Cloinger v. Ambrosia Cake Bakery Co., 218 N.C. 26, 9 S.E.2d 615 (1940). But see, Francis v. Carolina Wood Turning Co., 204 N.C. 701, 169 S.E. 654 (1933), wherein it was held that the finding by the Commission on the question of whether the claimant was an employee was one of jurisdiction and was not conclusive on appeal.

The question of whether claimant was employed by defendant or by an independent subcontractor, as contended, was one of law, and reviewable, once the facts to the arrangements between the parties and their actions with reference to it had been determined by the Commission. Farmer v. Bemis Lumber Co., 217 N.C. 158, 7 S.E.2d 376 (1940).

Finding of fact that the superior of an injured worker was a supervisory em- ployee and not an independent contractor is conclusive on appeal when supported by competent evidence. Scott v. Waccamaw Lumber Co., 232 N.C. 162, 59 S.E.2d 425 (1950).

Whether an accident arises out of and in the course of employment is a mixed question of law and fact, and the appellate court may review the record to determine if the findings and conclusions are supported by sufficient evidence. Gallimore v. Marilyn's Shoes, 292 N.C. 399, 233 S.E.2d 529 (1977); Williams v. Hydro Print, Inc., 65 N.C. App. 1, 308 S.E.2d 478 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 156, 311 S.E.2d 297 (1984); Spratt v. Duke Power Co., 65 N.C. App. 457, 310 S.E.2d 38 (1983).

On Which the Commission's Finding Is Conclusive If Supported by Evidence. — Whether an accident arises out of the employment is a mixed question of fact and law, and the finding of the Commission is conclusive if supported by any competent evidence. Chambers v. Union Oil Co., 199 N.C. 28, 153 S.E. 594 (1930); Perdue v. State Bd. of Equalization, 205 N.C. 730, 172 S.E. 396 (1934); Marsh v. Bennett College for Women, 212 N.C. 662, 194 S.E. 303 (1937); Lockey v. Cohen, Goldman & Co., 213 N.C. 356, 196 S.E. 342 (1938); McNeill v. C.A. Ragland Constr. Co., 216 N.C. 744, 6 S.E.2d 491 (1940); Ashley v. F-W Chevrolet Co., 222 N.C. 25, 21 S.E.2d 834 (1942); Hegler v. Cannon Mills Co., 224 N.C. 669, 31 S.E.2d 918 (1944); Fox v. Cramerton Mills, 225 N.C. 580, 35 S.E.2d 869 (1945); DeVine v. Dave Steel Co., 227 N.C. 684, 44 S.E.2d 77 (1947); Stubblefield v. Watson Elec. Constr. Co., 277 N.C. 444, 177 S.E.2d 882 (1970); Watkins v. City of Wilmington, 290 N.C. 276, 225 S.E.2d 577 (1976).

Where the evidence is conflicting, the Commission's finding of causal connection is conclusive. Anderson v. Lincoln Constr. Co., 265 N.C. 431, 144 S.E.2d 272 (1965).

Reversal Where Findings of Fact Lead to Opposite Conclusion. — Whether an accident grew out of the employment within the purview of the act is a mixed question of law and fact, which the court has the right to review on appeal, and when the detailed findings of fact force a conclusion opposite that reached by the Commission, it is the duty of the court to reverse the Commission. Alford v. Quality Chevrolet Co., 246 N.C. 214, 97 S.E.2d 869 (1957).

Whether an accident was proximately caused by the violation of a safety statute is a question for the fact-finding body. Osborne v. Colonial Ice Co., 249 N.C. 387, 106 S.E.2d 573 (1959).

Finding as to Cause of Death. — Determination of the Industrial Commission that the additional hazard created by artificial heat was the direct and superinducing cause of plaintiff's intestate's death was conclusive on appeal. Fields v. Tompkins-Johnston Plumbing Co., 224

N.C. 841, 32 S.E.2d 623 (1945).

Whether an accident was proximately caused by the violation of a safety statute is a question for the fact-finding body. Osborne v. Colonial Ice Co., 249 N.C. 387, 106 S.E.2d 573 (1959).

A finding by the Commission that the claimant sustained a compensable injury is conclusive upon an appeal to the courts if, but only if, the Commission had before it competent evidence sufficient to support such a finding. Rhinehart v. Roberts Super Mkt., Inc., 271 N.C. 586, 157 S.E.2d 1 (1967).

Marriage of Deceased Employee. — Findings by the Commission upon competent evidence that the deceased employee and the femme claimant were married and lived together as husband and wife until the husband's death, thereby entitling the wife to an award of compensation, was binding upon the reviewing court, even though there was evidence that the wife's first marriage had not been dissolved. Green v. Eastern Constr. Co., 1 N.C. App. 300, 161 S.E.2d 200 (1968).

Whether evidence shows a "reasonable ground" to defend is a matter reviewable by Court of Appeals. Robinson v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 619, 292 S.E.2d 144 (1982).

VII. REMAND AND REHEARING.

As to the jurisdiction of the court to reverse and remand, see Perkins v. Sprott, 207 N.C. 462, 177 S.E. 404 (1934).

Remand Where Findings Insufficient. — When the findings of the Industrial Commission are insufficient for a proper determination of the question involved, the proceeding will be remanded to the Industrial Commission for additional findings. Farmer v. Bemis Lumber Co., 217 N.C. 158, 7 S.E.2d 376 (1940); Thomason v. Red Bird Cab Co., 235 N.C. 602, 70 S.E.2d 706 (1952); Pardue v. Blackburn Bros. Oil & Tire Co., 260 N.C. 413, 132 S.E.2d 747 (1963).

In case the findings are insufficient upon which to determine the rights of the parties, the Court of Appeals may remand the proceeding to the Industrial Commission for additional findings. Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969); Hales v. North Hills Constr. Co., 5 N.C. App. 564, 169 S.E.2d 24 (1969); Crawford v. Pressley, 6 N.C. App. 641, 171 S.E.2d 197 (1969); Hundley v. Fieldcrest Mills, 58 N.C. App. 184, 292 S.E.2d 766 (1982); Priddy v. Cone Mills Corp., 58 N.C. App. 720, 294 S.E.2d 743 (1982).

If the findings of fact of the Commission are insufficient to enable the court to determine the rights of the parties upon the matters in controversy, the proceeding must be remanded to the end that the Commission may make proper findings. Pardue v. Blackburn Bros. Oil & Tire

Co., 260 N.C. 413, 132 S.E.2d 747 (1963); Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 3 N.C. App. 139, 164 S.E.2d 535 (1968), aff'd, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969); Morgan v. Thomasville Furn. Indus., 2 N.C. App. 126, 162 S.E.2d 619 (1968); Gaines v. L.D. Swain & Son, 33 N.C. App. 575, 235 S.E.2d 856 (1977); Walston v. Burlington Indus., 49 N.C. App. 301, 271 S.E.2d 516 (1980), rev'd on other grounds, 304 N.C. 670, 285 S.E.2d 822 (1982); Grant v. Burlington Indus., Inc., 77 N.C. App. 241, 335 S.E.2d 327 (1985).

Remand Where Commission Fails to Find Facts. — Where the Commission fails to find facts, and justice so demands, the cause will be remanded. Stanley v. Hyman-Michaels Co., 222 N.C. 257, 22 S.E.2d 570 (1942).

Where the Industrial Commission failed to find the facts necessary for a determination of the rights of the parties, the judgment of the superior court (now the Court of Appeals) was reversed in order that it could remand to the Industrial Commission with directions to make necessary findings of fact on which the rights of the parties could be determined. Moore v. Adams Elec. Co., 259 N.C. 735, 131 S.E.2d 356 (1963).

Remand for Specific Findings. — Stipulations to the effect that plaintiff employee became disabled while at work are insufficient alone to support an award of compensation, and a case is properly remanded to the Industrial Commission for specific findings from the evidence and stipulations as to whether claimant was injured by accident. Hargus v. Select Foods, Inc., 271 N.C. 369, 156 S.E.2d 737 (1967).

Remand for More Complete Findings. — Where the Commission's findings of fact are supported by competent evidence, the superior court (now the Court of Appeals) has no power to remand for more complete findings. Blevins v. Teer, 220 N.C. 135, 16 S.E.2d 659 (1941).

Remand Where Facts Found Under Misapprehension of Law. — Where it appears that the Industrial Commission has found the facts under a misapprehension of the law, the cause will be remanded for findings by the Commission upon consideration of the evidence in its true legal light. McGill v. Town of Lumberton, 215 N.C. 752, 3 S.E.2d 324 (1939); Nello L. Teer Co. v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 265 N.C. 1, 143 S.E.2d 247 (1965); Cauble v. Macke Co., 78 N.C. App. 793, 338 S.E.2d 320 (1986).

When facts are found or the Industrial Commission fails to find facts under a misapprehension of the law, a remand may be necessary so that the evidence may be considered in its true legal light; the proper procedure on appeal is to remand a case when the Commission's findings of fact are insufficient to determine the rights of parties upon a claim for compensation. Mills v.

Mills, 68 N.C. App. 151, 314 S.E.2d 833 (1984).

Remand for Taking of Additional Evidence. — Ordinarily the limited authority of the reviewing court does not permit it to order remand of the case for the taking of additional evidence. Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 3 N.C. App. 139, 164 S.E.2d 535 (1968), aff'd, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

As to the power of the court to remand on ground of newly discovered evidence, see Byrd v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 207 N.C. 253, 176 S.E. 572 (1934); McCulloh v. Catawba College, 266 N.C. 513, 146 S.E.2d 467 (1966); Hall v. W.A. Davis Milling Co., 1 N.C. App. 380, 161 S.E.2d 780 (1968).

The burden is upon the applicant for a rehearing to rebut the presumption that the award is correct and that there has been a lack of due diligence. McCulloh v. Catawba College, 266 N.C. 513, 146 S.E.2d 467 (1966); Hall v. W.A. Davis Milling Co., 1 N.C. App. 380, 161 S.E.2d 780 (1968).

Applicant makes out "a proper case" for granting a new hearing for newly discovered evidence only when it appears by affidavit: (1) That the witness will give the newly discovered evidence; (2) that it is probably true; (3) that it is competent, material, and relevant; (4) that due diligence has been used, or that there have been no laches, in procuring the testimony at the trial; (5) that it is not merely cumulative; (6) that it does not tend only to contradict a former witness or to impeach or discredit him; (7) that it is of such a nature as to show that on another trial a different result will probably be reached and that the right will prevail. McCulloh v. Catawba College, 266 N.C. 513, 146 S.E.2d 467 (1966); Hall v. W.A. Davis Milling Co., 1 N.C. App. 380, 161 S.E.2d 780 (1968).

The appellate court may remand a cause to the Industrial Commission on the ground of newly discovered evidence only when a proper case is made to appear by affidavit meeting the seven requirements set out in Johnson v. Seaboard Air Line Ry., 163 N.C. 431, 79 S.E. 690, 1915B Ann. Cas. 598 (1913); Byers v. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n, 3 N.C. App. 139, 164 S.E.2d 535 (1968), aff'd, 275 N.C. 229, 166 S.E.2d 649 (1969).

It is error for the court to direct an award for compensation. The correct procedure is to remand the case to the Industrial Commission. Francis v. Wood Turning Co., 204 N.C. 701, 169 S.E. 654 (1933), decided prior to the 1967 amendment.

Surrender of Jurisdiction by Court upon Remand. — When a proceeding is remanded to the Commission for a specific purpose, the superior court (now the Court of Appeals) surrenders jurisdiction and the Commission acquires it for all purposes. Butts v. Montague Bros., 208 N.C. 186, 179 S.E. 799 (1935).

§ 97-86.1. Payment of award pending appeal in certain cases.

(a) When any appeal or certification to the Court of Appeals is pending, and it appears to the Commission that any part of the award appealed from is not appealed by the issues raised by such appeal, the Commission may, on action or of its own motion, render a judgment directing compliance with any portion of such award not affected by such appeal; or, if the only issue raised by such appeal is the amount of the average weekly wage, the Commission shall, on motion of the claimant, direct the payment of such portion of the compensation payable under its award as is not in dispute, if any, pending final adjudication of the undisputed portion thereof.

(b) In any claim under the provisions of this Chapter where it is conceded by all parties that the employee's claim is a compensable one and the amount is not disputed and where the only issue is which employer or employers, carrier or carriers are liable, the Commission may, where an appeal from a hearing commissioner or the full Commission is taken by one or more parties, order payment made to the employee pending outcome of the case on appeal. The order of payment shall contain the provision that if the employer or carrier ordered to pay is not ultimately liable for the amount paid, the employer or carrier will be reimbursed by the employer or carrier ultimately held liable.

(c) No payment made pursuant to the provisions of this section shall in any manner operate as an admission of liability or estoppel to deny liability by an employer or carrier.

(d) In any claim under the provisions of this Chapter wherein one employer or carrier has made payments to the employee or his dependents pending a final disposition of the claim and it is determined that different or additional employers or carriers are liable, the Commission may order any employers or carriers determined liable to make repayment in full or in part to any employer or carrier which has made payments to the employee or his dependents. (1977, c. 521, s. 2.)

§ 97-86.2. Interest on awards after hearing.

In any workers' compensation case in which an order is issued either granting or denying an award to the employee and where there is an appeal resulting in an ultimate award to the employee, the insurance carrier or employer shall pay interest on the final award or unpaid portion thereof from the date of the initial hearing on the claim, until paid at the legal rate of interest provided in G.S. 24-1. If interest is paid it shall not be a part of, or in any way increase attorneys' fees, but shall be paid in full to the claimant. (1981, c. 242, s. 1; 1985, c. 598; 1987, c. 729, s. 16.)

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1981 administrative law, see 60 N.C.L. Rev. 1165 (1982).

CASE NOTES

Legislative Intent. — An order directing defendants to forthwith comply with the opinion and award has the import of an affirmance under this section. A contrary holding would permit circumvention of the compensation statutes by appeals taken but subsequently abandoned upon calendaring for review; carriers, through frivolous appeals, could temporarily deprive injured employees of awards while retaining the earnings thereon. The General Assembly, in the enactment of this section, did not intend to permit such a result. Suggs v. Kelly Springfield Tire Co., 71 N.C. App. 428, 322 S.E.2d 441 (1984), decided prior to 1985 amendment.

Award Entered Prior to Effective Date of Section. — The initial award of permanent partial disability entered on January 14, 1980 by the deputy commissioner, and not the award of total permanent disability made by the full Industrial Commission on October 28, 1982, was controlling in the application of this section; as such award was entered prior to the effective date of this section, the plaintiff was not entitled to interest on the award. Peoples v. Cone Mills Corp., 86 N.C. App. 227, 356 S.E.2d 801 (1987).

Interest Properly Awarded. — Industrial Commission did not err in awarding interest on plaintiff's outstanding medical expenses pursuant to this section. Childress v. Trion, Inc., 125 N.C. App. 588, 481 S.E.2d 697 (1997), cert. denied, 346 N.C. 276, 487 S.E.2d 541 (1997).

Payment of Interest. — Interest awarded must be paid in full to plaintiffs and cannot be used to calculate the attorney's fees. Strickland v. Carolina Classics Catfish, Inc., 127 N.C. App. 615, 492 S.E.2d 362 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 585, 502 S.E.2d 617 (1998).

Plaintiffs were not entitled to receive interest on entire award (commuted and uncommuted portions) from the date of the initial hearing because the plaintiffs were not entitled to the full uncommuted award at the time of the initial hearing. Strickland v. Carolina Classics Catfish, Inc., 127 N.C. App. 615, 492 S.E.2d 362 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 585, 502 S.E.2d 617 (1998).

§ 97-87. (Effective until June 1, 2002) Filing agreements approved by Commission or awards; judgment in accordance therewith; discharge or restoration of lien.

Any party in interest may file in the superior court of the county in which the injury occurred a certified copy of a memorandum of agreement approved by the Commission, or of an order or decision of the Commission, or of an award of the Commission unappealed from or of an award of the Commission affirmed upon appeal, whereupon said court shall render judgment in accordance therewith, and notify the parties. Such judgment shall have the same effect, and all proceedings in relation thereto shall thereafter be the same, as though said judgment had been rendered in a suit duly heard and determined by said court: Provided, if the judgment debtor shall file a certificate duly issued by the Industrial Commission showing compliance with G.S. 97-83 with the clerk of the superior court in the county or counties where such judgment is docketed, then such clerk shall make upon the judgment roll an entry showing the filing of such certificate which shall operate as a discharge of the lien of the said judgment, and no execution shall be issued thereon; provided, further, that if at any time there is default in the payment of any installment due under the award set forth in said judgment the court may, upon application for cause and after 10 days' notice to judgment debtor, order the lien of such judgment restored, and execution may be immediately issued thereon for past due installments and for future installments as they may become due. (1929, c. 120, s. 61.)

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The cases below were decided prior to the 2001 amendment of this section, providing for agreements, orders and final awards under the Workers' Compensation Act to be entered as judgments by the clerk of the superior court.

Remedy Exclusive. — The Act does not provide for the enforcement of an award of the Industrial Commission by execution or otherwise. Nor does it authorize or contemplate the institution and maintenance of a civil action based on such award. The exclusive remedy of claimant in a proceeding under the Act is that provided by this section. Bryant v. Poole, 261 N.C. 553, 135 S.E.2d 629 (1964).

Pleading. — A worker's complaint demanding entry of judgment against his employer for the sums due under an Industrial Commission Form 60 was an acceptable method for asserting a claim, where the complaint failed to state that the claimant was seeking judgment under this section, but he pled facts sufficient to alert the employer that relief was being sought under this section. Calhoun v. Wayne Dennis Heating & Air Conditioning, 129 N.C. App. 794, 501 S.E.2d 346 (1998).

Procedure Where No Appeal Is Taken. —

The procedure for the enforcement of an award of the Industrial Commission when no appeal is taken therefrom is by filing a certified copy of the award in the superior court, whereupon said court shall render judgment in accordance therewith and notify the parties. Champion v. Vance County Bd. of Health, 221 N.C. 96, 19 S.E.2d 239 (1942).

Section Refers to Judgment of Superior Court. — The text of this section is clear. The judgment referred to is a judgment of the superior court, not an award of the Industrial Commission. Bryant v. Poole, 261 N.C. 553, 135 S.E.2d 629 (1964).

Mandamus to Compel County Board of Health to Pay Award. — Mandamus to compel a municipal corporation, governmental agency or public officer to pay a claim is equivalent to execution, and therefore a suit to compel a county board of health to pay an award rendered against it by the Industrial Commission from which no appeal was taken will not lie until judgment on the award has been rendered by the superior court in accordance with the procedure outlined by this section. Champion v. Vance County Bd. of Health, 221 N.C. 96, 19 S.E.2d 239 (1942).

§ 97-87 is set out twice. See notes.

An agreement for the payment of compensation, when approved by the Commission, is as binding on the parties as an order, decision or award of the Commission unappealed from, or an award of the Commission affirmed upon appeal. Tucker v. Lowdermilk, 233 N.C. 185, 63 S.E.2d 109 (1951); Tabron v. Gold Leaf Farms, Inc., 269 N.C. 393, 152 S.E.2d 533 (1967); Hedgecock v. Frye, 1 N.C. App. 369, 161 S.E.2d 647 (1968).

The employer's execution of Industrial Commission Form 60 constitutes an award of the Commission and thus entitles the employee to seek the imposition of a judgment, which in turn entitles him to seek execution for past due installments and future installments as they become due. Calhoun v. Wayne Dennis Heating & Air Conditioning, 129 N.C. App. 794, 501 S.E.2d 346 (1998).

Applied in Pratt v. Central Upholstery Co., 252 N.C. 716, 115 S.E.2d 27 (1960).

Quoted in Watts v. Hemlock Homes of the Highlands, Inc., 141 N.C. App. 725, 544 S.E.2d 1 (2001), cert. denied, 353 N.C. 398, 547 S.E.2d 431 (2001).

§ 97-87. (Effective June 1, 2002) Judgments on awards.

(a) As used in this section, "award" includes the following:

- (1) A form filed, or an award arising, under G.S. 97-18(b), 97-18(d), or 97-82(b).
- (2) A memorandum of agreement approved by the Commission.
- (3) An order or decision of the Commission.
- (4) An award of the Commission from which there has been no appeal.
- (5) An award of the Commission affirmed on appeal.

(b) When an award or portion of an award provides for a sum certain or for a sum that can by computation be made certain, and that sum is due and payable as of the date of the award, a judgment may be docketed as provided in subsection (d) of this section, in an amount equal to that sum.

(c) When an award or portion of an award provides for periodic payments to be made on or after the date of the award, a judgment may be docketed as provided in subsection (d) of this section, in an amount equal to the sum stated in any Certificate of Accrued Arrearages that is issued by the Commission under this subsection. If any payment that has accrued after the date of the award, or after the date specified in the most recent Certificate of Accrued Arrearages issued under this subsection, is not received by the claimant when due, the following procedure is available for obtaining a Certificate of Accrued Arrearages:

- (1) The claimant may file with the Commission a Statement of Accrued Arrearages, on a form approved by the Commission, and shall serve a copy on all parties against whom judgment is sought and their attorney of record.
- (2) Any party against whom judgment is sought may, within 15 days of the date of service of a Statement of Accrued Arrearages, file with the Commission proof of any payments that have been made or other responsive pleadings.
- (3) If no proof or other responsive pleading is filed within 15 days of the date of service of the Statement, the Commission shall immediately issue a Certificate of Accrued Arrearages.
- (4) If proof of payment or other responsive pleading is filed, the Commission shall, within seven days, either issue a Certificate of Accrued Arrearages that shall state the sum of payments due or decline to issue a Certificate of Accrued Arrearages. The Commission shall notify the claimant, the party against whom judgment is sought, and their attorney of record of the Commission's decision.

- (5) If any party disputes the decision of the Commission entered under subdivision (c)(4) of this section, the party may appeal to the full Commission within 10 days of the entry of the decision of the Commission. The nonappealing party may file a response within 10 days of receiving notice of appeal. The notice of appeal shall request one of the following:
    - a. The Commission reconsider the decision entered based on the record and any additional evidence that parties submit with the notice and response.
    - b. A de novo evidentiary hearing before the full Commission.
  - (6) The Commission shall grant the request for an evidentiary hearing under sub-subdivision (c)(5)b. of this section if a material issue of fact exists whose resolution is necessary to determine the appeal.
  - (7) If a notice of appeal is given under sub-subdivision (c)(5)a. of this section, the Commission shall issue its decision within 10 days of the filing of the response under subdivision (c)(5)b. of this section. If a notice of appeal is given under sub-subdivision (c)(5) of this section, the Commission shall either conduct an evidentiary hearing and issue its decision on the appeal within 90 days of the filing of the response under subdivision (c)(5) of this section or deny the request for the evidentiary hearing and issue its decision within 10 days of the filing of the response under subdivision (c)(5) of this section. Further appeals are governed by G.S. 97-86.
  - (8) Each award and each Certificate of Accrued Arrearages shall include the following information:
    - a. The names and addresses of the parties.
    - b. The sum of all principal amounts that have accrued and remain unpaid since the date of the award or since the date of the most recent prior Certificate of Accrued Arrearages.
    - c. The total of any interest that has accrued on the award, as of the date of the Certificate of Accrued Arrearages, since the date of the award or since the date of the most recent prior Certificate of Accrued Arrearages.
    - d. Any costs, penalties, or monetary sanctions included in the award.
- (d) Any party in interest may file a certified copy of an award described in subsection (b) of this section, or of a Certificate of Accrued Arrearages, in the office of the clerk of superior court of the county in which the defendant has a place of business or has property, or in which an injury occurred, or in Wake County. An award shall be accompanied by the party's affidavit stating that the award has become final and the time for making the first payment under the award has expired.
- (e) Promptly after a certified copy of an award or of a Certificate of Accrued Arrearages is filed, the clerk shall docket and index a judgment as provided in Chapter 1 of the General Statutes. The principal amount in the award or in the Certificate of Accrued Arrearages shall bear interest at the judgment rate from the date the judgment is docketed. The judgment may be enforced in the same manner as a judgment docketed under Chapter 1 of the General Statutes.
- (f) The filing of an award, or of a Certificate of Accrued Arrearages, for docketing as a judgment under this section shall be treated as a civil action for record-keeping purposes. The amount in which the judgment is docketed shall determine the amount of the costs to be collected at the time of filing and assessed pursuant to G.S. 7A-305.

§ 97-87 is set out twice. See notes.

(g) Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit the Commission's authority to impose any other remedy provided by law. (1929, c. 120, s. 61; 2001-477, s. 1.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-477, s. 1, which amended §§ 1-209 and 97-87 to provide for agreements, orders and final awards under the Workers' Compensation Act to be entered as judgments by the clerk of the superior court, provides in s. 3: "This act becomes effective June 1, 2002, and applies to all forms filed and awards arising under G.S. 97-18(b), 97-18(d), or 97-82(b) that are filed or that arise before, on, or after that date; all agreements approved by the North Carolina Industrial Commission under the Workers' Compensation Act, Article 1 of Chapter 97 of the General Statutes, that are approved before, on, or after that date; all orders or decisions of the North Carolina Industrial Commission under the Workers' Compensation Act that are entered before, on, or after that date; and all awards of the North Carolina Industrial Commission unappealed from or affirmed upon appeal under the Workers' Compensation Act that are awarded before, on, or after that date, and to all Certificates of Accrued Arrearages that are issued on and after that date."

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-477, s. 1, effective June 1, 2002, rewrote the section. See editor's note for applicability.

§ 97-88. Expenses of appeals brought by insurers.

If the Industrial Commission at a hearing on review or any court before which any proceedings are brought on appeal under this Article, shall find that such hearing or proceedings were brought by the insurer and the Commission or court by its decision orders the insurer to make, or to continue payments of benefits, including compensation for medical expenses, to the injured employee, the Commission or court may further order that the cost to the injured employee of such hearing or proceedings including therein reasonable attorney's fee to be determined by the Commission shall be paid by the insurer as a part of the bill of costs. (1929, c. 120, s. 62; 1931, c. 274, s. 11; 1971, c. 500.)

Cross References. — As to the assessment of costs incurred in hearings brought without reasonable grounds, see § 97-88.1.

CASE NOTES

Construction with Other Sections. — This section and § 97-88.1 are supplementary in nature. This section allows an injured employee to move that its attorney's fees be paid whenever an insurer appeals to the Full Commission, or to a court of the appellate division, and the insurer is required to make payments to the injured employee. By contrast, an award of attorney's fees under § 97-88.1 requires that the litigation be brought, prosecuted, or defended without reasonable ground. Troutman v. White & Simpson, Inc., 121 N.C. App. 48, 464 S.E.2d 481 (1995).

The statutory requirements for awarding attorney's fees to plaintiff under § 97-88 are met when defendant appeals the Industrial Commission's order directing that defendant pay additional benefits to plaintiff, and that order is affirmed; there is no proviso that "reasonable ground" be found lacking, which applies to fees sought under § 97.88.1, at the original hearing before the commission. Brown v. Public Works Comm'n, 122 N.C. App. 473, 470 S.E.2d 352 (1996).

Validity. — This section is valid. Russell v. Western Oil Co., 206 N.C. 341, 174 S.E. 101 (1934).

And Constitutes Only Statutory Authority to Award Fees. — Although the Commission is authorized to approve fees received by attorneys for services rendered in workers' compensation matters (§ 97-90), the only statutory authority to award fees as a part of the costs is contained in this section. Bowman v. Comfort Chair Co., 271 N.C. 702, 157 S.E.2d 378 (1967).

Fees Only for Portion of Case Attributable to Appeal. — Under this section, the Commission is empowered to award to the injured employee attorney's fees only for the portion of the case attributable to the insurer's appeal(s). Troutman v. White & Simpson, Inc., 121 N.C. App. 48, 464 S.E.2d 481 (1995).

The statutory requirements for awarding attorney's fees to plaintiff under this section are met when defendant appeals the Industrial Commission's order directing that defendant pay additional benefits to plaintiff and that order is affirmed; there is no proviso that "reasonable ground" be found lacking, which applies to fees sought under GS 97.88.1, at the original hearing before the Commission. Brown v. Public Works Comm'n, 122 N.C. App. 473, 470 S.E.2d 352 (1996).

This section includes carriers, self insurers, and noninsurers. Morris v. Laughlin Chevrolet Co., 217 N.C. 428, 8 S.E.2d 484 (1940).

When Section Is Applicable. — The better interpretation of this statute is that the Commission, in its discretion, can award attorneys' fees only when an appeal is before it to review a hearing commissioner's decision. Suggs v. Kelly Springfield Tire Co., 71 N.C. App. 428, 322 S.E.2d 441 (1984).

This section is applicable only when proceedings are brought by the insurer and the court orders the insurer to make or to continue payments of compensation to the injured employee. Bowman v. Comfort Chair Co., 271 N.C. 702, 157 S.E.2d 378 (1967).

This section authorizes reasonable attorneys' fees as a part of the bill of costs only when the decision orders the insurer to make, or to continue, payments of compensation to the injured employee. Ashley v. Rent-A-Car Co., 1 N.C. App. 171, 160 S.E.2d 521 (1968).

This section requires that there be a hearing or proceeding brought by the insurer from which the insurer is ordered to pay an award. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens Co., 57 N.C. App. 643, 292 S.E.2d 277 (1982), modified and aff'd, 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

When Section Is Inapplicable. — The portion of this section requiring defendant carrier to pay plaintiff's costs, including attorneys' fees, incident to the appeal by defendants from the Commission to the superior court does not apply when the Supreme Court finds error in the Commission's decision in respect to the sole controversy presented by the appeal. Liles v. Faulkner Neon & Elec. Co., 244 N.C. 653, 94 S.E.2d 790 (1956); Barnhardt v. Yellow Cab Co., 266 N.C. 419, 146 S.E.2d 479 (1966).

Intervenor was not entitled to attorneys' fees under this section, where intervenor had accepted Medicaid as payment for injured employee's medical care under Medicaid, Title XIX of the Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. §§ 1396-1396v, and in conjunction with North Carolina's Medicaid program as set out in §§ 108A-54 thru 108A-70.5, and, thereby, gave up its right to hold injured employee liable for any costs associated with that care aside from the standard deductible, coinsurance or copayment required. Pearson v. C.P. Buckner Steel Erection, 139 N.C. App. 394, 533 S.E.2d 532 (2000), cert denied, 353 N.C. 379, 547 S.E.2d 434 (2001).

Payments in Addition to Medicaid Prohibited. — the prerequisites for an award pursuant to this section were fulfilled. Robinson v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 619, 292 S.E.2d 144 (1982).

"Commission" and "Court" Not Used Interchangeably. — Use of the wording "Commission or court" on three separate occasions does not mean that the Commission and the court are interchangeable, nor that the Commission can award attorneys' fees for services rendered before the Court of Appeals, while the Court of Appeals can award such fees for services rendered before the Industrial Commission. Buck v. Procter & Gamble Mfg. Co., 58 N.C. App. 804, 295 S.E.2d 243 (1982), cert. denied, 308 N.C. 543, 304 S.E.2d 236 (1983). But see Taylor v. J.P. Stevens Co., 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

The costs may be assessed either by the Commission or by the court. Morris v. Laughlin Chevrolet Co., 217 N.C. 428, 8 S.E.2d 484 (1940).

Award of Attorneys' Fees Is Within Discretion of Commission. — The language of both this section and § 97-88.1 clearly indicates that an award of attorneys' fees is not required to be granted. Such language places the decision of whether to award attorneys' fees within the sound discretion of the Industrial Commission. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens Co., 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

In a workers' compensation case involving a Department of Corrections officer's claim for salary continuation, the Industrial Commission could in its discretion award reasonable attorney's fees under § 143-166.19. Ruggeri v. North Carolina Dep't of Cors., 135 N.C. App. 270, 520 S.E.2d 77 (1999).

And the Commission's decision must be upheld unless there is an abuse of discretion. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens Co., 57 N.C. App. 643, 292 S.E.2d 277 (1982), modified and aff'd, 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

The power given the court under this section to order that the costs to the injured employee of such proceedings, including a reasonable attorneys' fee to be determined by the Commission, shall be paid by the insurer as part of the bill of costs is within the discretion of the court, and an order appearing in the judgment will not be reviewed by the Supreme Court. Perdue v. State Bd. of Equalization, 205 N.C. 730, 172 S.E. 396 (1934).

The Commission, in its discretion, can award attorneys' fees only when an appeal is before it to review a hearing commissioner's decision. In such a situation, the amount of the award for attorney fees is limited to the value of those services rendered on the appeal taken to the Industrial Commission. Buck v. Procter & Gamble Mfg. Co., 58 N.C. App. 804, 295 S.E.2d 243 (1982), cert. denied, 308 N.C. 543, 304 S.E.2d 236 (1983). But see Taylor v. J.P. Stevens Co., 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

Fees Not Awarded Where Only Claimant Appeals. — In its sound discretion, the Industrial Commission may award claimant attorneys' fees in cases in which defendant insurer appealed. However, the Industrial Commission may not award attorneys' fees pursuant to this section in cases in which only the claimant appealed. Harwell v. Thread, 78 N.C. App. 437, 337 S.E.2d 112 (1985).

Industrial Commission did not abuse its discretion when it refused to assess attorney's fees against defendants in appeal brought by plaintiff. Valles de Portillo v. D.H. Griffin Wrecking Co., 134 N.C. App. 714, 518 S.E.2d 555 (1999), cert. denied, 351 N.C. 186, 541 S.E.2d 727 (1999).

Expenses and Fees Incurred at Appellate Court Level. — Where defendant/insurer appealed deputy commissioner's decision, and then appealed the full Commission's decision, and the court affirmed the prior decisions, the requirements of this section were satisfied and the court granted the plaintiff's request for expenses incurred on appeal, including attorney's fees. Flores v. Stacy Penny Masonry Co., 134 N.C. App. 452, 518 S.E.2d 200 (1999).

This section provides the commission with authority to allow attorneys' fees for work done in furtherance of an appeal before an appellate court; however, the decision to grant or deny a request for such an award will not be disturbed in the absence of an abuse of discretion. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens Co., 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

The Commission may exercise limited discretion when the Court of Appeals approves an award of attorneys' fees but certifies its decision to the Commission with instructions to decide the exact amount to be awarded. In such a case, the Commission may determine only the amount of the award and not whether the award should be made at all. It follows that the Court of Appeals is the only body which can decide whether to allow attorneys' fees for services rendered on an appeal taken to the Court of Appeals. Buck v. Procter & Gamble Mfg. Co., 58 N.C. App. 804, 295 S.E.2d 243 (1982), cert. denied, 308 N.C. 543, 304 S.E.2d 236 (1983). But see Taylor v. J.P. Stevens Co., 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

Awards Upheld. — The allowance of attorneys' fees to claimant's attorneys' in a proceeding under the act was held authorized by this section. Brooks v. Carolina Rim & Wheel Co., 213 N.C. 518, 196 S.E. 835 (1938); Gant v. Crouch, 243 N.C. 604, 91 S.E.2d 705 (1956).

Affirmance by the full Commission of the hearing commissioner's findings of fact, conclusions, and award, and approval of a fee of $150.00 for claimant's counsel, in addition to the fee for claimant's counsel approved by the hearing commissioner, and an order that such fee be assessed against defendant as a part of the costs of the appeal in accordance with the provisions of this section was not error. Bass v. Mecklenburg County, 258 N.C. 226, 128 S.E.2d 570 (1962).

Industrial Commission properly awarded attorney's fees upon finding defendants in violation of rules by terminating compensation without the Commission's approval, and by refusing to resume immediate payments following the deputy commissioner's order. Hieb v. Howell's Child Care Ctr., Inc., 123 N.C. App. 61, 472 S.E.2d 208 (1996).

Industrial Commission did not abuse its discretion in awarding plaintiff attorney fees for successfully defending his appeal. Childress v. Trion, Inc., 125 N.C. App. 588, 481 S.E.2d 697 (1997), cert. denied, 346 N.C. 276, 487 S.E.2d 541 (1997).

Fee Upheld Even Where Appeal Was Made on Reasonable Grounds. — An award of fees under this section is permitted even if the insurer who institutes the proceeding has reasonable grounds, provided the insurer is ordered as a result of the proceeding to make or continue making benefit payments to the injured worker. Lewis v. Sonoco Prods. Co., 137 N.C. App. 61, 526 S.E.2d 671 (2000).

Award Modified on Appeal to Require Defendant to Pay Costs. — Where plaintiff ultimately prevailed against the defendants, and since costs follow the final judgment, the opinion and award of the Commission in which it was provided that "Each side shall pay its own costs as the same relate to the appeal" was modified so as to require the defendants to pay the costs of the appeal. Grigg v. Pharr Yarns, Inc., 15 N.C. App. 497, 190 S.E.2d 285 (1972).

Remand for Determination of Attorneys' Fees. — Where the language in the Commission's order regarding this section was so ambiguous as to preclude review as to whether the Commission believed it lacked authority to award attorneys' fees where both the insurer and the claimant appealed, the case could be remanded to the Commission for a discretionary determination as to an award of attorneys' fees to claimant. Harwell v. Thread, 78 N.C. App. 437, 337 S.E.2d 112 (1985).

Employee Was Entitled to Have Employer Pay Attorney's Fees. — Where an employer had no reasonable basis for appealing the decision of the Deputy Commissioner to the Full Commission and requiring employee to appeal to the court of appeals to obtain the benefits under settlement agreement approved by the Industrial Commission, the employee was entitled to have his attorneys' fees paid by the employer. Mullinax v. Fieldcrest Cannon, Inc., 100 N.C. App. 248, 395 S.E.2d 160 (1990).

Where defendant appealed the initial award of benefits from the deputy commissioner to the full Commission and then to the Court of Appeals, and both affirmed the award of benefits, the requirements of this section were satisfied, and the Commission could award plaintiff the costs, including attorney's fees, of defending those appeals to the full Commission and to the Court of Appeals. Estes v. North Carolina State Univ., 117 N.C. App. 126, 449 S.E.2d 762 (1994).

§ 97-88.1. Attorney's fees at original hearing.

If the Industrial Commission shall determine that any hearing has been brought, prosecuted, or defended without reasonable ground, it may assess the whole cost of the proceedings including reasonable fees for defendant's attorney or plaintiff's attorney upon the party who has brought or defended them. (1979, c. 268, s. 1.)

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1982 law on workers' compensation, see 61 N.C.L. Rev. 1243 (1983).

CASE NOTES

Legislative Intent. — The General Assembly did not intend to deter an employer with legitimate doubt regarding the employee's credibility, based on substantial evidence of conduct by the employee inconsistent with his alleged claim, from compelling the employee to sustain his burden of proof. Sparks v. Mountain Breeze Restaurant & Fish House, Inc., 55 N.C. App. 663, 286 S.E.2d 575 (1982).

The language of this section clearly shows the legislature did not intend to require that attorneys' fees be awarded. Instead the statute was written to enable the Industrial Commission to award attorneys' fees in those cases it deems proper. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens Co., 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

Purpose. — The evident purpose of this section is to deter stubborn, unfounded litigiousness, which is inharmonious with the primary consideration of the Workers' Compensation Act, namely, compensation for injured employees. Sparks v. Mountain Breeze Restaurant & Fish House, Inc., 55 N.C. App. 663, 286 S.E.2d 575 (1982).

The purpose of this section is to prevent stubborn, unfounded litigiousness which is inharmonious with the primary purpose of the Workers' Compensation Act to provide compensation to injured employees. Troutman v. White & Simpson, Inc., 121 N.C. App. 48, 464 S.E.2d 481 (1995).

Construction with Other Sections. — Section § 97-88 and this section are supplementary in nature. Section 97-88 allows an injured employee to move that its attorney's fees be paid whenever an insurer appeals to the Full Commission, or to a court of the appellate division, and the insurer is required to make payments to the injured employee. By contrast, an award of attorney's fees under this section requires that the litigation be brought, prosecuted, or defended without reasonable grounds. Troutman v. White & Simpson, Inc., 121 N.C. App. 48, 464 S.E.2d 481 (1995).

The statutory requirements for awarding attorney's fees to plaintiff under § 97-88 are met when defendant appeals the Industrial Commission's order directing that defendant pay additional benefits to plaintiff, and that order is affirmed; there is no proviso that "reasonable ground" be found lacking, which applies to fees sought under § 97.88.1, at the original hearing before the commission. Brown v. Public Works Comm'n, 122 N.C. App. 473, 470 S.E.2d 352 (1996).

Discretion of Industrial Commission. — The language of both § 97-88 and this section clearly indicates that an award of attorneys' fees is not required to be granted. Such language places the decision of whether to award attorneys' fees within the sound discretion of the Industrial Commission. Taylor v. J.P. Stevens Co., 307 N.C. 392, 298 S.E.2d 681 (1983).

Authority of Commission. — The Commission is authorized under this section to assess attorney's fees, and other costs, for the entire case, against a party prosecuting or defending a hearing without reasonable grounds. Troutman v. White & Simpson, Inc., 121 N.C. App. 48, 464 S.E.2d 481 (1995).

Test. — The test is not whether the defense prevails, but whether it is based in reason rather than in stubborn, unfounded litigiousness. Sparks v. Mountain Breeze Restaurant & Fish House, Inc., 55 N.C. App. 663, 286 S.E.2d 575 (1982); Donnell v. Cone Mills Corp., 60 N.C. App. 338, 299 S.E.2d 436, cert. denied, 308 N.C. 190, 302 S.E.2d 243 (1983).

Defendants did not have reasonable grounds to appeal opinion and award of the deputy commissioner, and the full Commission did not abuse its discretion in awarding costs to plaintiff under this section; no evidence indicated that defendants were informed by an employer that plaintiff had returned to work, consistent with plaintiff's claim that she had not returned to work. Lewis v. Sonoco Prods. Co., 137 N.C. App. 61, 526 S.E.2d 671 (2000).

Payment of Fees By Counsel. — The Industrial Commission erred in ordering that defendant's costs and attorney's fees be paid by plaintiff's counsel. Evans v. Young-Hinkle Corp., 123 N.C. App. 693, 474 S.E.2d 152 (1996), cert. denied, 346 N.C. 177, 486 S.E.2d 203 (1997).

The statutory language of this section does not expressly provide the Industrial Commission with the authority to assess costs and fees against a party's counsel. Evans v. Young-Hinkle Corp., 123 N.C. App. 693, 474 S.E.2d 152 (1996), cert. denied, 346 N.C. 177, 486 S.E.2d 203 (1997).

Whether the evidence shows a "reasonable ground" to defend is a matter reviewable by the Court of Appeals. Robinson v. J.P. Stevens & Co., 57 N.C. App. 619, 292 S.E.2d 144 (1982).

Fees Upheld. — Industrial Commission properly awarded attorney's fees upon finding defendants in violation of rules by terminating compensation without the Commission's approval, and by refusing to resume immediate payments following the deputy commissioner's order. Hieb v. Howell's Child Care Ctr., Inc., 123 N.C. App. 61, 472 S.E.2d 208 (1996).

Competent evidence supported the Industrial Commission's conclusion that the employer was responsible for the employee's costs and attorney fees, where the employer refused to comply with the Workers' Compensation Act and the Commission's rules and regulations, the claimant was required to incur substantial travel and housing expenses to attend a hearing, and his counsel was forced to expend extra time in handling the matter. Tucker v. Workable Co., 129 N.C. App. 695, 501 S.E.2d 360 (1998).

An attorney's fee award of 25% of awarded benefits was warranted based on the failure of the employer of an employee who was murdered by a former co-employee to disclose during discovery that the employee had gone to a restaurant to take work-related information on unemployment benefits to the former co-employee. Hauser v. Advanced Plastiform, Inc., 133 N.C. App. 378, 514 S.E.2d 545 (1999).

Where employee sought treatment from other physicians for a legitimate injury because the employer-approved physician refused to see him, and where the Industrial Commission subsequently approved this medical treatment within a reasonable time, the Court of Appeals upheld the Commission's finding that the employer unreasonably defended the case and, therefore, should pay an attorney's fee of five hundred dollars. Ruggeri v. North Carolina Dep't of Cors., 135 N.C. App. 270, 520 S.E.2d 77 (1999).

The Commission's award of attorney's fees was neither arbitrary nor unreasoned, where it was undisputed that plaintiff suffered a compensable injury in 1994, compensation for which defendant employer was ultimately responsible, and defendant's refusal to compensate plaintiff pending the outcome of its litigation with defendant insurer with respect to coverage prevented plaintiff for approximately six years from receiving the full amount of compensation to which he was entitled. Harrison v. Tobacco Transp., Inc., 139 N.C. App. 561, 533 S.E.2d 871 (2000), cert. denied, 353 N.C. 263, 546 S.E.2d 96 (2000).

The Industrial Commission did not abuse its discretion in awarding defendants attorney's fees "incurred as a result of plaintiff's unfounded litigiousness," pursuant to this section, where the plaintiff argued that the defendant failed to rebut the presumption of continuing disability in his favor but the defendant presented witness testimony, videotaped surveillance of plaintiff, as well as medical evidence and strong evidence of fraud in rebuttal. Johnson v. Lowe's Cos., 143 N.C. App. 348, 546 S.E.2d 616 (2001), aff'd, — N.C. —, 554 S.E.2d 336 (2001).

Fees Denied. — Because the parties brought, prosecuted, or defended this matter with reasonable grounds, the Commission properly declined to award attorney's fees in this matter. Shaw v. UPS, 116 N.C. App. 598, 449 S.E.2d 50 (1994), aff'd per curiam, 342 N.C. 189, 463 S.E.2d 78 (1995).

The statutory requirements for awarding attorney's fees to plaintiff under G.S. 97-88 are met when defendant appeals the Industrial Commission's order directing that defendant pay additional benefits to plaintiff and that order is affirmed; there is no proviso that "reasonable ground" be found lacking, which applies to fees sought under this section, at the original hearing before the Commission. Brown v. Public Works Comm'n, 122 N.C. App. 473, 470 S.E.2d 352 (1996).

The employer had reasonable ground to defend against a claim for permanent partial disability benefits, and thus attorneys' fees should have been denied, where there was some evidence that the clawed position in which the defendant held her hand was not a result of her arm injury and could not be explained physiologically, and the claimant presented no evidence that she obtained work at a lesser wage or that a search for work would have been futile. Cooke v. P.H. Glatfelter/Ecusta, 130 N.C. App. 220, 502 S.E.2d 419 (1998).

Award of travel expenses for employee was erroneous where the evidence showed that the employer had reasonable grounds for its motion to suspend compensation. Matthews v. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth., 132 N.C. App. 11, 510 S.E.2d 388 (1999).

Applied in Beam v. Floyd's Creek Baptist Church, 99 N.C. App. 767, 394 S.E.2d 191 (1990); Poplin v. PPG Indus., 108 N.C. App. 55, 422 S.E.2d 353 (1992); Matthews v. Petroleum Tank Serv., Inc., 108 N.C. App. 259, 423 S.E.2d 532 (1992).

§ 97-88.2. Penalty for fraud.

(a) Any person who willfully makes a false statement or representation of a material fact for the purpose of obtaining or denying any benefit or payment, or assisting another to obtain or deny any benefit or payment under this Article, shall be guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor if the amount at issue is less than one thousand dollars ($1,000). Violation of this section is a Class H felony if the amount at issue is one thousand dollars ($1,000) or more. The court may order restitution.

(b) The Commission shall:

- (1) Perform investigations regarding all cases of suspected fraud and all violations related to workers' compensation claims, by or against insurers or self-funded employers, and refer possible criminal violations to the appropriate prosecutorial authorities;
- (2) Conduct administrative violation proceedings; and
- (3) Assess and collect civil penalties and restitution.

(c) Any person who threatens an employee with criminal prosecution under the provisions of subsection (a) of this section for the purpose of coercing or attempting to coerce the employee into agreeing to compensation or agreeing to forgo compensation under this Article shall be guilty of a Class H felony.

(d) The Commission shall not be liable in a civil action for any action made in good faith under this section, including the identification and referral of a person for investigation and prosecution for an alleged administrative violation or criminal offense. Any person, including, but not limited to, an attorney, an employee, an employer, an insurer, and an employee of an insurer, who in good faith comes forward with information under this section, shall not be liable in a civil action.

(e) The Commission shall report annually to the General Assembly on the number and disposition of investigations involving claimants, employers, insurance company officials, officials of third-party administrators, insurance agents, attorneys, health care providers, and vocational rehabilitation providers. (1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 7.1; 1995, c. 507, s. 25(a); 1997-353, s. 1.)

§ 97-88.3. Penalty for health care providers.

(a) In addition to any liability under G.S. 97-88.2, any health care provider who willfully or intentionally undertakes the following acts is subject to an administrative penalty, assessed by the Commission, not to exceed ten thousand dollars ($10,000):

- (1) Submitting charges for health care that was not furnished;
- (2) Fraudulently administering, providing, and attempting to collect for inappropriate or unnecessary treatment or services; or
- (3) Violating the provisions of Article 28 of Chapter 90 of the General Statutes.

A penalty assessed by the Commission for a violation of subdivision (3) of this subsection is in addition to penalties assessed under G.S. 90-407.

(b) In addition to any liability under G.S. 97-88.2, any health care provider who willfully or intentionally undertakes the following acts is subject to an administrative penalty, assessed by the Commission, not to exceed one thousand dollars ($1,000):

- (1) Failing or refusing to timely file required reports or records;
- (2) Making unnecessary referrals; and
- (3) Knowingly violating this Article or rules promulgated hereunder, including treatment guidelines, with intention to deceive or to gain improper advantage of a patient, employee, insurer, or the Commission.

(c) A health care provider who knowingly charges or otherwise holds an employee financially responsible for the cost of any services provided for a compensable injury under this Article is guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor.

(d) Any person, including, but not limited to, an employer, an insurer, and an employee of an insurer, who in good faith comes forward with information under this section, shall not be liable in a civil action.

(e) Information relating to possible violations under this section shall be reported to the Commission which shall refer the same to the appropriate licensing or regulatory board or authority for the health care provider involved.

(f) A hospital that relies in good faith on a written order of a physician in performing health care services shall not be subject to an administrative penalty in violation of this section. (1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 7.2.)

§ 97-89. Commission may appoint qualified physician to make necessary examinations; expenses; fees.

The Commission or any member thereof may, upon the application of either party, or upon its own motion, appoint a disinterested and duly qualified physician or surgeon to make any necessary medical examination of the employee, and to testify in respect thereto. Said physician or surgeon shall be allowed traveling expenses and a reasonable fee to be fixed by the Commission. The fees and expenses of such physician or surgeon shall be paid by the employer. (1929, c. 120, s. 63; 1931, c. 274, s. 12; 1973, c. 520, s. 3.)

CASE NOTES

This section does not provide for examination by an additional physician. Clark v. Burlington Indus., 49 N.C. App. 269, 271

S.E.2d 101 (1980), cert. denied, 301 N.C. 719, 276 S.E.2d 283 (1981).

§ 97-90. Legal and medical fees to be approved by Commission; misdemeanor to receive fees unapproved by Commission, or to solicit employment in adjusting claims; agreement for fee or compensation.

(a) Fees for attorneys and charges of health care providers for medical compensation under this Article shall be subject to the approval of the Commission; but no physician or hospital or other medical facilities shall be entitled to collect fees from an employer or insurance carrier until he has made the reports required by the Commission in connection with the case. Except as provided in G.S. 97-26(g), a request for a specific prior approval to charge shall be submitted to the Commission for each such fee or charge.

(b) Any person (i) who receives any fee, other consideration, or any gratuity on account of services so rendered, unless such consideration or gratuity is approved by the Commission or the court, as provided in subsection (c), or (ii) who makes it a business to solicit employment for a lawyer or for himself in respect of any claim or award for compensation, shall be guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor.

(c) If an attorney has an agreement for fee or compensation under this Article, he shall file a copy or memorandum thereof with the hearing officer or Commission prior to the conclusion of the hearing. If the agreement is not considered unreasonable, the hearing officer or Commission shall approve it at the time of rendering decision. If the agreement is found to be unreasonable by the hearing officer or Commission, the reasons therefor shall be given and what is considered to be reasonable fee allowed. If within five days after receipt of notice of such fee allowance, the attorney shall file notice of appeal to the full Commission, the full Commission shall hear the matter and determine whether or not the attorney's agreement as to a fee or the fee allowed is unreasonable. If the full Commission is of the opinion that such agreement or fee allowance is unreasonable and so finds, then the attorney may, by filing written notice of appeal within 10 days after receipt of such action by the full Commission, appeal to the senior resident judge of the superior court in the county in which the cause of action arose or in which the claimant resides; and upon such appeal said judge shall consider the matter and determine in his discretion the reasonableness of said agreement or fix the fee and direct an order to the Commission following his determination therein. The Commission shall, within 20 days after receipt of notice of appeal from its action concerning said agreement or allowance, transmit its findings and reasons as to its action concerning such agreement or allowance to the judge of the superior court designated in the notice of appeal. In all other cases where there is no agreement for fee or compensation, the attorney or claimant may, by filing written notice of appeal within five days after receipt of notice of action of the full Commission with respect to attorneys' fees, appeal to the senior resident judge of the superior court of the district of the county in which the cause arose or in which the claimant resides; and upon such appeal said judge shall consider the matter of such fee and determine in his discretion the attorneys' fees to be allowed in the cause. The Commission shall, within 20 days after notice of appeal has been filed, transmit its findings and reasons as to its action concerning such fee or compensation to the judge of the superior court designated in the notice of appeal; provided that the Commission shall in no event have any jurisdiction over any attorneys' fees in any third-party action. In any case in which an attorney appeals to the superior court on the question of attorneys' fees, the appealing attorney shall notify the Commission and the employee of any and all proceedings before the superior court on the appeal, and either or both may appear and be represented at such proceedings.

The Commission, in determining an allowance of attorneys' fees, shall examine the record to determine the services rendered. The factors which may be considered by the Commission in allowing a reasonable fee include, but are not limited to, the time invested, the amount involved, the results achieved, whether the fee is fixed or contingent, the customary fee for similar services, the experience and skill level of the attorney, and the nature of the attorney's services.

In making the allowance of attorneys' fees, the Commission shall, upon its own motion or that of an interested party, set forth findings sufficient to support the amount approved.

The Commission may deny or reduce an attorney's fees upon proof of solicitation of employment in violation of the Rules of Professional Conduct of the North Carolina State Bar.

(d) Provided, that nothing contained in this section shall prevent the collection of such reasonable fees of physicians and charges for hospitalization as may be recovered in an action, or embraced in settlement of a claim, against a third-party tort-feasor as described in G.S. 97-10.2.

(e) A health care provider shall not pursue a private claim against an employee for all or part of the costs of medical treatment provided to the employee by the provider unless the employee's claim or the treatment is finally adjudicated not to be compensable or the employee fails to request a hearing after denial of liability by the employer. Notwithstanding subsequent denial of liability or adjudication that the condition treated was not compensable, the insurer shall be liable as provided in G.S. 97-26 to providers whose services have been authorized by the insurer or employer. The statute of limitations applicable to a provider's claim for payment shall be tolled during the period the compensability of a claim or liability for particular treatment remains an issue in a compensation case. (1929, c. 120, s. 64; 1955, c. 1026, s. 4; 1959, cc. 1268, 1307; 1973, c. 520, s. 4; 1981, c. 521, s. 4; 1991, c. 703, s. 6; 1993, c. 539, s. 680; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 24, s. 14(c); 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 9.1.)

CASE NOTES

The clear intent of this section and judicial opinions is to assure that medical and related expenses incurred by an injured employee for which the employer or his insurance carrier is to be liable shall be kept within reasonable and appropriate limits, and the responsibility for the enforcement of these limits rests upon the Industrial Commission. Morse v. Curtis, 20 N.C. App. 96, 200 S.E.2d 832 (1973), cert. denied, 285 N.C. 86, 203 S.E.2d 58 (1974).

The authority to approve hospital charges under subsection (a) is provided to ensure that hospitals do not provide services not reasonably required to effect a cure or give relief or tend to lessen the period of disability, and that hospital charges therefor do not exceed the prevailing community charge described therein. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth. v. North Carolina Indus. Comm'n, 336

N.C. 200, 443 S.E.2d 716 (1994).

Employer's Liability for Medical Expense Not Preempted by Federal Law. — The obligation of an employer to pay claimant's reasonable and necessary medical expenses, and the ability of health-care providers to accept such payment, was not controlled or preempted by federal Medicaid statutes or regulations. Pearson v. C.P. Buckner Steel Erection Co., 348 N.C. 239, 498 S.E.2d 818 (1998).

Employer's Liability for Medical Expense Not Preempted by Federal Law. — An employer who denied liability but was ordered to pay medical expenses under the Workers' Compensation Act was required to pay health-care providers the difference between the amount covered by Medicaid and the full amount authorized by the Commission's fee schedule. Pearson v. C.P. Buckner Steel Erec- tion Co., 348 N.C. 239, 498 S.E.2d 818 (1998).

Appropriate Treatment Is Within Exclusive Jurisdiction of Commission. — What treatment is appropriate for a particular employee is a matter within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission. North Carolina Chiropractic Ass'n v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 89 N.C. App. 1, 365 S.E.2d 312 (1988).

No Jurisdiction Over Dispute Between Attorney's Over Division of Fees. — There is no statutory authority that would extend commission's jurisdiction to cover dispute between plaintiff's attorneys over division of attorneys' fees. Eller v. J & S Truck Servs., Inc., 100 N.C. App. 545, 397 S.E.2d 242 (1990), cert. denied, 328 N.C. 271, 400 S.E.2d 451 (1991).

Attorney did not claim that Industrial Commission failed to compensate him for his efforts on behalf of employee, or that the Commission found a reasonable fee to be unreasonable, but that the Commission refused to divide fee award between attorneys with competing claims to it. Commission had no statutory authority to resolve this dispute. Eller v. J & S Truck Servs., Inc., 100 N.C. App. 545, 397 S.E.2d 242 (1990), cert. denied, 328 N.C. 271, 400 S.E.2d 451 (1991).

Jurisdiction of Industrial Commission. — Where plaintiff sought enforcement of Industrial Commission's previous order awarding him reasonable and necessary medical expenses after a dispute arose over what expenses defendants must pay the Commission was acting within its statutory mandate and had subject matter jurisdiction to hear and decide these issues. Pearson v. C.P. Buckner Steel Erection Co., 126 N.C. App. 745, 486 S.E.2d 723 (1997), rev'd on other grounds, 348 N.C. 239, 498 S.E.2d 818 (1998).

All Bills Must Be Submitted to and Approved by Commission. — The superior court had no authority to order defendants to pay medical bills incurred by plaintiff for treatment of her work-related injury, though the Industrial Commission had ordered that defendants pay all such bills, where the bills in question had not been submitted to or approved by the Industrial Commission. Weydener v. Carolina Village, 45 N.C. App. 549, 263 S.E.2d 329 (1980).

It would be a misdemeanor for any person to receive fees which were not approved by the Commission. Morse v. Curtis, 20 N.C. App. 96, 200 S.E.2d 832 (1973), cert. denied, 285 N.C. 86, 203 S.E.2d 58 (1974).

Process of filing for approval does not result in notice to the claimant; the statute provides a penalty for noncompliance, and its purpose (to ensure that medical service providers are not overcharging for services and products) is unrelated to the employee's claim. Knight v. Cannon Mills Co., 82 N.C. App. 453, 347 S.E.2d 832, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 507, 349 S.E.2d 861 (1986).

Failure to obtain approval for payments of medical expenses does not raise an estoppel claim. Knight v. Cannon Mills Co., 82 N.C. App. 453, 347 S.E.2d 832, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 507, 349 S.E.2d 861 (1986).

Agreement by Employee to Pay Balance to Physician Held Void. — An agreement by an injured employee to pay the physician engaged by him any balance due on his account after application of the amount approved by the Industrial Commission for the services was unenforceable and void, since this section made the receipt of any fee for such services not approved by the Commission a misdemeanor. Worley v. Pipes, 229 N.C. 465, 50 S.E.2d 504 (1948).

Approval of Rehabilitation Services Not Required. — Subsection (a) does not require approval of the Commission for rehabilitation services. Roberts v. ABR Assocs., 101 N.C. App. 135, 398 S.E.2d 917 (1990).

Remedy Where Physician's Bill Approved for Less than Full Amount. — Where a physician has submitted his bill to the Industrial Commission for its approval, and received approval for less than the full amount, his remedy is to request a hearing before the Commission with the right of appeal to the courts under §§ 97-83 through 97-86, and this remedy is exclusive. Worley v. Pipes, 229 N.C. 465, 50 S.E.2d 504 (1948). See Matros v. Owen, 229 N.C. 472, 50 S.E.2d 509 (1949).

Independent Action by Physician Against Employee. — Where a physician has submitted his bill to the Industrial Commission for its approval and received approval for less than the full amount, and has failed to pursue his exclusive statutory remedy of a hearing before the Industrial Commission with the right of appeal to the courts under §§ 97-83 through 97-86, he has no standing to attack the constitutionality of this section in an independent suit against the employee to recover for the medical services. Worley v. Pipes, 229 N.C. 465, 50 S.E.2d 504 (1948). See Matros v. Owen, 229 N.C. 472, 50 S.E.2d 509 (1949).

Refusal of Insurers to Provide Chiropractic Treatment as Workers' Compensation Coverage. — Plaintiff chiropractors alleging that defendant insurance companies had interfered with their contractual rights by refusing to honor employers' choices of chiropractors as providers of health care treatment to employees under the Workers' Compensation Act, that defendants had misrepresented to employer insureds that their workers' compensation policies did not provide coverage for chiropractic treatment, that said misrepresentations were unfair and deceptive trade practices in violation of § 75-1.1, and that defendants had conspired among themselves and with members of the medical profession to deprive plaintiffs of business opportunities by refusing to pay for chiropractic services provided in compliance with the act, an illegal restraint of trade in violation of § 75-1 and 15 U.S.C. § 1, could not maintain their action in superior court without first seeking relief from the Industrial Commission. North Carolina Chiropractic Ass'n v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 89 N.C. App. 1, 365 S.E.2d 312 (1988), remanding case to the trial court for entry of an order staying plaintiffs' action pending a determination of the underlying workers' compensation issues by the Commission.

Less Than 100% Credit Was Within Commission's Authority. — Where the Commission's award allowed the defendant credit for payments that they had already made through their private insurer less only the plaintiff's reasonable attorney's fees calculated and based upon the amount of the entire worker's compensation award, the award was authorized by the statute since all credit given by the Commission in these circumstances is "subject to the approval" of the Industrial Commission. Church v. Baxter Travenol Labs., Inc., 104 N.C. App. 411, 409 S.E.2d 715 (1991).

The Industrial Commission acted within its discretion, pursuant to § 97-42, in reducing defendants' credit for payments made under a disability insurance policy fully funded by defendants by 25% to provide plaintiff's counsel additional fees, although the record on appeal contained no copy of a fee award filed with the Commission as required by this section. Cole v. Triangle Brick, 136 N.C. App. 401, 524 S.E.2d 79 (2000).

Fees in Special Hardship Cases. — The fees prescribed by the Commission shall govern, except that in special hardship cases where sufficient reason therefor is demonstrated to the Commission, fees in excess of those published may be allowed. Wake County Hosp. Sys. v. North Carolina Indus. Comm'n, 8 N.C. App. 259, 174 S.E.2d 292 (1970), overruled on other grounds, Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth. v. North Carolina Indus. Comm'n, 336 N.C. 200, 443 S.E.2d 716 (1994).

Authority to Review Attorneys' Fees. — The authority of the Industrial Commission and its hearing officers to review fees for attorneys is found in this section. Hardy v. Brantley Constr. Co., 87 N.C. App. 562, 361 S.E.2d 748 (1987).

Applicability of Reasonableness Requirement. — Under § 97-10.2(f)(1)b, the attorneys' fee taken from the employee's share may not exceed one-third of the amount recovered, but it is not otherwise subject to the reasonableness requirement of subsection (c) of this section; the attorneys' fee on the subrogation interest of the employer (or its carrier) is subject to the reasonableness requirement of subsection (c) of this section and may not exceed one-third of the amount recovered from the third party. Hardy v. Brantley Constr. Co., 87 N.C. App. 562, 361 S.E.2d 748 (1987), rev'd on other grounds, 322 N.C. 106, 366 S.E.2d 485 (1988).

Applied in Salmons v. E.L. Trogden Lumber Co., 1 N.C. App. 390, 161 S.E.2d 632 (1968); Priddy v. Blue Bird Cab Co., 2 N.C. App. 331, 163 S.E.2d 20 (1968); Cloutier v. State, 57 N.C. App. 239, 291 S.E.2d 362 (1982).

§ 97-90.1. Insurers that provide employee's health benefit plans, disability income plans, or any other health insurance plans as real parties in interest; reimbursement.

An insurer that covers an employee under a health benefit plan as defined in G.S. 58-3-167, a disability income plan, or any other health insurance plan is not a real party in interest and shall not intervene or participate in any proceeding or settlement agreement under this Article to determine whether a claim is compensable under this Article or to seek reimbursement for medical payments under its plan. The insurer that covers an employee under a health benefit plan as defined in G.S. 58-3-167 or any other health insurance plan may seek reimbursement from the employee, employer, or carrier that is liable or responsible for the specific medical charge according to a final adjudication of the claim under this Article or an order of the Commission approving a settlement agreement entered into under this Article for health plan payments for that specific medical charge. Upon the admission or adjudication that a claim is compensable, the party or parties liable shall notify in writing any known health benefit plan covering the employee of the admission or adjudication. (2001-216, s. 1; 2001-487, s. 102(b).)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-216, s. 6, provides: "The North Carolina Industrial Commission shall adopt any rules needed to implement this act."

Session Laws 2001-216, s. 6.1, as added by Session Laws 2001-487, s. 102(a), contains a severability clause.

Session Laws 2001-216, s. 7, as rewritten by 2001-487, s. 102(b), makes the section effective June 15, 2001, and applicable to cases pending on or after that date except those cases in which a health benefit plan has intervened prior to that date.

§ 97-91. Commission to determine all questions.

All questions arising under this Article if not settled by agreements of the parties interested therein, with the approval of the Commission, shall be determined by the Commission, except as otherwise herein provided. (1929, c. 120, s. 65.)

CASE NOTES

This section is not limited in its application solely to questions arising out of an employer-employee relationship or in the determination of rights asserted by or on behalf of an injured employee. Wake County Hosp. Sys. v. North Carolina Indus. Comm'n, 8 N.C. App. 259, 174 S.E.2d 292 (1970), overruled on other grounds, Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hosp. Auth. v. North Carolina Indus. Comm'n, 336 N.C. 200, 443 S.E.2d 716 (1994); Spivey v. Oakley's Gen. Contractors, 32 N.C. App. 488, 232 S.E.2d 454 (1977).

The Act does not take away common law rights that are unrelated to the employer-employee relationship. North Carolina Chiropractic Ass'n v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 89 N.C. App. 1, 365 S.E.2d 312 (1988).

"Questions arising under this Article" would seem to consist primarily, if not exclusively, of questions for decision in the determination of rights asserted by or on behalf of an injured employee or his dependents. Clark v. Gastonia Ice Cream Co., 261 N.C. 234, 134 S.E.2d 354 (1964).

Jurisdiction of Commission Exclusive. — In an action instituted in the superior court under the Declaratory Judgment Act or otherwise, when the pleadings disclose that an employer-employee relationship exists so as to make the parties subject to the provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act, dismissal is proper, for the Industrial Commission has exclusive jurisdiction in such cases. Cox v. Pitt County Transp. Co., 259 N.C. 38, 129 S.E.2d 589 (1963).

The Declaratory Judgment Act may not be used to determine whether or not the employer's insurance carrier is entitled to the right of subrogation against the funds received from the third-party tortfeasor under the provisions of § 97-10.2, since the Industrial Commission has exclusive original jurisdiction to determine the question. Cox v. Pitt County Transp. Co., 259 N.C. 38, 129 S.E.2d 589 (1963).

By statute, the superior court is divested of original jurisdiction of all actions which come within the provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act. Morse v. Curtis, 276 N.C. 371, 172 S.E.2d 495 (1970).

The amount, or rate, of compensation to which plaintiff is entitled, depending on a determination of his average weekly wage, is a question within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission; while the court has jurisdiction to enforce an award made pursuant to the execution of a Form 60, it cannot review the amount of compensation unless the Commission has first made that determination. Watts v. Hemlock Homes of the Highlands, Inc., 141 N.C. App. 725, 544 S.E.2d 1 (2001), cert. denied, 353 N.C. 398, 547 S.E.2d 431 (2001).

Jurisdiction of Dispute as to Payment of Medical Expenses. — Having determined that the employer was liable for claimant's disability compensation and medical expenses, the Commission had jurisdiction to determine whether a health-care provider could receive payment pursuant to workers' compensation laws after accepting payment from Medicaid. Pearson v. C.P. Buckner Steel Erection Co., 348 N.C. 239, 498 S.E.2d 818 (1998).

No Jurisdiction over Dispute Between

Attorneys over Division of Legal Fees. — There is no statutory authority that would extend commission's jurisdiction to cover dispute between plaintiff's attorneys over division of attorneys' fees. Eller v. J & S Truck Servs., Inc., 100 N.C. App. 545, 397 S.E.2d 242 (1990), cert. denied, 328 N.C. 271, 400 S.E.2d 451 (1991).

Appropriate Treatment Within Exclusive Jurisdiction of Commission. — What treatment is appropriate for a particular employee is a matter within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission. North Carolina Chiropractic Ass'n v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 89 N.C. App. 1, 365 S.E.2d 312 (1988).

The Commission has the duty to make specific findings of fact necessary to determine all questions relevant to the issues raised in a proceeding before it. Buchanan v. Mitchell County, 38 N.C. App. 596, 248 S.E.2d 399 (1978), cert. denied, 296 N.C. 583, 254 S.E.2d 35 (1979).

Prerogative of Commission to Determine Credibility and Weigh Evidence. — The full Commission has the authority to make additional findings of fact, and where it found that plaintiff failed to prove that he was injured while making an arrest was supported by competent evidence, plaintiff's case was left without a foundation. In not accepting plaintiff's contrary version of the event involved, the Commission exercised its prerogative under the law to determine the credibility and weight of the evidence presented. Griffey v. Town of Hot Springs, 87 N.C. App. 290, 360 S.E.2d 457 (1987).

The Industrial Commission is not required to find in accordance with plaintiff's expert medical testimony if the defendant does not offer expert medical testimony to the contrary. Harvey v. Raleigh Police Dep't, 96 N.C. App. 28, 384 S.E.2d 549, cert. denied, 326 N.C. 706, 388 S.E.2d 454 (1989).

On appeal, the Commission's findings of fact are conclusive and the role of the reviewing court is limited to ascertaining whether there was any competent evidence before the Commission to support its findings of fact and whether the findings of fact justify its legal conclusions and decision. Buchanan v. Mitchell County, 38 N.C. App. 596, 248 S.E.2d 399 (1978), cert. denied, 296 N.C. 583, 254 S.E.2d 35 (1979).

A health insurer may intervene as a real party in interest in a workers' compensation proceeding when it alleges that it has paid medical expenses due to an employee's compensable injury and is entitled to reimbursement, and liability is disputed by the employer. Hansen v. Crystal Ford-Mercury, Inc., 138 N.C. App. 369, 531 S.E.2d 867 (2000).

Questions Respecting Existence of Insurance and Liability of Insurance Car- rier. — The Commission is specifically vested by statute with jurisdiction to hear "all questions arising under" the act. This jurisdiction under the statute ordinarily includes the right and duty to hear and determine questions of fact and law respecting the existence of insurance coverage and the liability of the insurance carrier. Greene v. Spivey, 236 N.C. 435, 73 S.E.2d 488 (1952); Clark v. Gastonia Ice Cream Co., 261 N.C. 234, 134 S.E.2d 354 (1964); Spivey v. Oakley's Gen. Contractors, 32 N.C. App. 488, 232 S.E.2d 454 (1977).

The act does not confer upon the Commission, expressly or by implication, jurisdiction to determine, in a proceeding in which plaintiff asserts no claim against insurer, employer's asserted right to reform the policy and to recover from insurer the amount of plaintiff's award. Clark v. Gastonia Ice Cream Co., 261 N.C. 234, 134 S.E.2d 354 (1964).

Greene v. Spivey, 236 N.C. 435, 73 S.E.2d 488 (1952) may not be considered authority for the proposition that the Commission has equitable jurisdiction to determine whether a compensation insurance policy should be reformed. Clark v. Gastonia Ice Cream Co., 261 N.C. 234, 134 S.E.2d 354 (1964).

After the employer had settled with the employee, the Commission had jurisdiction to determine whether policy of compensation insurance had been properly cancelled, or whether insurer was on the risk. Spivey v. Oakley's Gen. Contractors, 32 N.C. App. 488, 232 S.E.2d 454 (1977).

Refusal of Insurers to Provide Chiropractic Treatment as Workers' Compensation Coverage. — Plaintiff chiropractors alleging that defendant insurance companies had interfered with their contractual rights by refusing to honor employers' choices of chiropractors as providers of health care treatment to employees under the Workers' Compensation Act, that defendants had misrepresented to employer insureds that their workers' compensation policies did not provide coverage for chiropractic treatment, that said misrepresentations were unfair and deceptive trade practices in violation of § 75-1.1, and that defendants had conspired among themselves and with members of the medical profession to deprive plaintiffs of business opportunities by refusing to pay for chiropractic services provided in compliance with the act, an illegal restraint of trade in violation of § 75-1 and 15 U.S.C. § 1, could not maintain their action in superior court without first seeking relief from the Industrial Commission. North Carolina Chiropractic Ass'n v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 89 N.C. App. 1, 365 S.E.2d 312 (1988), remanding case to the trial court for entry of an order staying plaintiffs' action pending a determination of the underlying workers' compensation issues by the Commission.

Applied in Worley v. Pipes, 229 N.C. 465, 50 S.E.2d 504 (1948); Forrest v. Pitt County Bd. of Educ., 100 N.C. App. 119, 394 S.E.2d 659 (1990).

§ 97-92. Employer's record and report of accidents; records of Commission not open to public; supplementary report upon termination of disability; penalty for refusal to make report; when insurance carrier liable.

(a) Every employer shall hereafter keep a record of all injuries, fatal or otherwise, received by his employees in the course of their employment on blanks approved by the Commission. Within five days after the occurrence and knowledge thereof as provided in G.S. 97-22 of an injury to an employee, causing his absence from work for more than one day or charges for medical compensation exceeding the amount set by the Commission, a report thereof shall be made in writing and mailed or transmitted to the Commission in the form approved by the Commission for this purpose.

(b) The records of the Commission that are not awards under G.S. 97-84 and that are not reviews of awards under G.S. 97-85, insofar as they refer to accidents, injuries, and settlements are not public records under G.S. 132-1 and shall not be open to the public, but only to the parties satisfying the Commission of their interest in such records and the right to inspect them, and to State and federal agencies pursuant to G.S. 97-81.

(c) Upon the termination of the disability of the injured employee, or if the disability extends beyond a period of 60 days, then, also, at the expiration of such period the employer shall make a supplementary report to the Commission on blanks to be procured from the Commission for the purpose.

(d) The said report shall contain the name, nature, and location of the business of the employer and name, age, sex, and wages and occupation of the injured employee, and shall state the date and hour of the accident causing injury, the nature and cause of the injury, and such other information as may be required by the Commission.

(e) Any employer who refuses or neglects to make the report required by this section shall be liable for a penalty of not less than five dollars ($5.00) and not more than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) for each refusal or neglect. The fine herein provided may be assessed by the Commission in an open hearing, with the right of review and appeal as in other cases. In the event the employer has transmitted the report to the insurance carrier for transmission by such insurance carrier to the Industrial Commission, the insurance carrier willfully neglecting or failing to transmit the report shall be liable for the said penalty.

(f) Any bill, report, application, and document of every nature and kind, which is required or permitted by Commission rules to be transmitted to the Commission by electronic media or is recorded among the Commission records on computer disk, optical disk, microfilm, or similar media and which is produced or reproduced in written form in the normal course of business or is certified as a true and accurate copy of the data recorded at the Commission in the normal course of its business shall be treated as a signed original in all uses before the Commission and as a duplicate within the meaning of Rule 1003 of the North Carolina Rules of Evidence. (1929, c. 120, s. 66; 1945, c. 766; 1991, c. 703, s. 9; 1991 (Reg. Sess., 1992), c. 894, s. 3; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 10.8; 2001-216, s. 3; 2001-487, s. 102(b).) port of Commission, see § 97-81(b).

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-216, s.

6, provides: "The North Carolina Industrial Commission shall adopt any rules needed to implement this act."

Session Laws 2001-216, s. 6.1, as added by Session Laws 2001-487, s. 102(a), contains a severability clause.

Session Laws 2001-216, s. 7, as rewritten by 2001-487, s. 102(b), makes the section effective June 15, 2001, and applicable to cases pending on or after that date except those cases in which a health benefit plan has intervened before the Industrial Commission before that date.

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-216, s. 3, effective June 15, 2001, in subsection (b), inserted "that are not awards under G.S. 97-84 and that are not reviews of awards under G.S. 97-85" and inserted "are not public records under G.S. 132-1." For applicability, see editor's note.

CASE NOTES

Report of Occupational Disease. — Subsection (a) of this section requires an employer to report any injury by accident if it keeps the employee from work for more than one day. Presumably this would include notice of an occupational disease which is considered an injury by accident. Knight v. Cannon Mills Co., 82 N.C. App. 453, 347 S.E.2d 832, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 507, 349 S.E.2d 861 (1986).

Filing of employer's report (Form 19) is insufficient to invoke the jurisdiction of the Commission where the employee has not filed the claim required under § 97-24. Perdue v. Daniel Int'l, Inc., 59 N.C. App. 517, 296 S.E.2d 845 (1982), cert. denied, 307 N.C. 577, 299 S.E.2d 647 (1983).

The notice requirement of subsection (a) of this section does not invoke the jurisdiction of the Commission without the employee filing a claim. Knight v. Cannon Mills Co., 82 N.C. App. 453, 347 S.E.2d 832, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 507, 349 S.E.2d 861 (1986).

For case in which report filed by employer upon verbal information elicited from the illiterate representative of the employee by its claim agent was treated as a claim, see Hanks v. Southern Pub. Util. Co., 210 N.C. 312, 186 S.E. 252 (1936).

Report as Evidence. — The report signed by the manager of an incorporated employer and filed with the Industrial Commission, as required by this section, is competent upon the hearing, and statements contained therein not within the personal knowledge of the manager are competent as an admission against interest. Carlton v. Bernhardt-Seagle Co., 210 N.C. 655, 188 S.E. 77 (1936).

Employer's failure to notify the Commission pursuant to subsection (a) of this section does not raise an estoppel claim. Knight v. Cannon Mills Co., 82 N.C. App. 453, 347 S.E.2d 832, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 507, 349 S.E.2d 861 (1986).

§ 97-93. Employers required to carry insurance or prove financial ability to pay for benefits; employers required to post notice; self-insured employers regulated by Commissioner of Insurance.

(a) Every employer subject to the provisions of this Article relative to the payment of compensation shall either:

- (1) Insure and keep insured his liability under this Article in any authorized corporation, association, organization, or in any mutual insurance association formed by a group of employers so authorized; or
- (2) Repealed by Session Laws 1997-362, s. 5.
- (3) Obtain a license from the Commissioner of Insurance under Article 5 of this Chapter or under Article 47 of Chapter 58 of the General Statutes.

(b) through (d) Repealed by Session Laws 1997-362, s. 5.

(e) Every employer who is in compliance with the provisions of subsection (a) of this section shall post in a conspicuous place in places of employment a notice stating that employment by this employer is subject to the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act and stating whether the employer has a policy of insurance against liability or qualifies as a self-insured employer. In the event the employer allows its insurance to lapse or ceases to qualify as a self-insured employer, the employer shall, within five working days of this occurrence, remove any notices indicating otherwise. (1929, c. 120, s. 67; 1943, c. 543; 1973, c. 1291, s. 12; 1979, c. 345; 1983, c. 728; 1985, c. 119, s. 1; 1993, c. 120, ss. 1, 2; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 679, s. 8.2; 1995, c. 193, s. 64; c. 471, s. 1; 1997-362, s. 5.)

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on the provisions of this and other sections in relation to the law of contracts, see 13 N.C.L. Rev. 102 (1935).

CASE NOTES

The manifest legislative intent is that the employer's liability should be insured at all times. Moore v. Adams Elec. Co., 264 N.C. 667, 142 S.E.2d 659 (1965), decided under prior version of section.

Employer Primarily Liable. — An award was entered in favor of the dependents of a deceased employee for payment of compensation in weekly installments for the death of the employee. After the insurance carrier had paid several installments, it defaulted in the payment of the balance because of insolvency. Under the provisions of the act, the employer is primarily liable to the employee, which obligation is unimpaired by its contract with an insurer for insurance protection, or by the insurer's subrogation to the rights of the employer upon paying or assuming the payment of an award, and the employer is not relieved of its liability to the dependents of the deceased employee for the balance of the weekly payments because of the insolvency of the insurer. Roberts v. City Ice & Coal Co., 210 N.C. 17, 185 S.E. 438 (1936), decided under prior version of section.

The employer, held liable for the balance of an award after the insolvency of the insurer, is not entitled to a credit for the amount paid the dependents out of the judgment against the third-person tortfeasor or for the amount paid plaintiff's attorneys in that action, the amount paid the dependents out of the judgment being an amount in addition to the award, and the award not being subject to reduction by such amount. Roberts v. City Ice & Coal Co., 210 N.C. 17, 185 S.E. 438 (1936), decided under prior version of section.

General Contractor Liable for Subcontractor's Injuries. — Where, prior to the time of subcontracting the performance of roofing work, the general contractor did not require from the subcontractor, plaintiff, a certificate of insurance, and general contractor did not obtain from the Industrial Commission a certificate stating that plaintiff had complied with this section, the general contractor was liable for plaintiff's injuries pursuant to § 97-19 as it existed at the time of plaintiff's accident. Southerland v. B.V. Hedrick Gravel & Sand Co., 345 N.C. 739, 483 S.E.2d 150 (1997).

General Contractor Liable for Failure to Bring SubContractor into Compliance. — Where defendant/contractor presented conflicting testimony regarding his knowledge of subcontractor's lack of workers' compensation insurance, the Industrial Commission's findings and conclusions that he willfully neglected to bring the subcontractor into compliance with the requirements of this section would be upheld. Rivera v. Trapp, 135 N.C. App. 296, 519 S.E.2d 777 (1999).

Cancellation of Policy. — Employer's insurance policy was cancellable on 10 days' written notice. Notice was held effective from the time of receipt by insured, even though he mislaid it and never read it or knew its purport. Nor was the policy kept in force as to a later injured employee by failure of the carrier to give notice to the Industrial Commission or to the North Carolina Rating Bureau in accordance with their rules, even though the policy was made expressly subject to the law concerning cancellation notices. The rules of these bodies do not have the force of law as to such matters. Motsinger v. Perryman, 218 N.C. 15, 9 S.E.2d 511 (1940), decided under prior version of section.

Applied in Carroll v. Daniels & Daniels Constr. Co., 327 N.C. 616, 398 S.E.2d 325 (1990).

§ 97-94. Employers required to give proof that they have complied with preceding section; penalty for not keeping liability insured; review; liability for compensation; criminal penalties for failure to secure payment of compensation.

(a) Every employer subject to the compensation provisions of this Article shall file with the Commission, in form prescribed by it, as often as the Commission determines to be necessary, evidence of its compliance with the provisions of G.S. 97-93 and all other provisions relating thereto.

(b) Any employer required to secure the payment of compensation under this Article who refuses or neglects to secure such compensation shall be punished by a penalty of one dollar ($1.00) for each employee, but not less than fifty dollars ($50.00) nor more than one hundred dollars ($100.00) for each day of such refusal or neglect, and until the same ceases; and the employer shall be liable during continuance of such refusal or neglect to an employee either for compensation under this Article or at law at the election of the injured employee.

The penalty herein provided may be assessed by the Industrial Commission administratively, with the right to a hearing if requested within 30 days after notice of the assessment of the penalty and the right of review and appeal as in other cases. Enforcement of the penalty shall be made by the Office of the Attorney General. The clear proceeds of penalties provided for in this subsection shall be remitted to the Civil Penalty and Forfeiture Fund in accordance with G.S. 115C-457.2.

(c) Any employer required to secure the payment of compensation under this Article who willfully fails to secure such compensation shall be guilty of a Class H felony. Any employer required to secure the payment of compensation under this Article who neglects to secure the payment of compensation shall be guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor.

(d) Any person who, with the ability and authority to bring an employer in compliance with G.S. 97-93, willfully fails to bring the employer in compliance, shall be guilty of a Class H felony. Any person who, with the ability and authority to bring an employer in compliance with G.S. 97-93, neglects to bring the employer in compliance, shall be guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor. Any person who violates this subsection may be assessed a civil penalty by the Commission in an amount up to one hundred percent (100%) of the amount of any compensation due the employer's employees injured during the time the employer failed to comply with G.S. 97-93.

(e) Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 97-101, the Commission may suspend collection or remit all or part of any civil penalty imposed under this section on condition that the employer or person pays the compensation due and complies with G.S. 97-93. ### CASE NOTES

This Section Does Not Grant the Court Jurisdiction Absent Proof of Noncompliance. — A claim in which the plaintiff/employee alleges only that he sustained injuries due to defendant employer's negligence while he was performing duties within the course and scope of his employment is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Industrial Commission and cannot be heard by the court without further evidence that the employer refuses to accept the provisions of this Act. Reece v. Forga, 138 N.C. App. 703, 531 S.E.2d 881 (2000).

Claims Against Noncompliant Employers. — While this section arguably permits a plaintiff to bring a claim at law, the Industrial Commission is not precluded from hearing claims against noncompliant employers. Seigel v. Patel, 132 N.C. App. 783, 513 S.E.2d 602 (1999).

The Industrial Commission properly assessed a fine of $50.00 per day where it determined that defendant employer had failed to procure necessary insurance for its North Carolina operations, and thus was in violation of this section. Harrison v. Tobacco Transp., Inc., 139 N.C. App. 561, 533 S.E.2d 871 (2000), cert. denied, 353 N.C. 263, 546 S.E.2d 96 (2000).

§ 97-95. Actions against employers failing to effect insurance or qualify as self-insurer.

As to every employer subject to the provisions of this Article who shall fail or neglect to keep in effect a policy of insurance against compensation liability arising hereunder with some insurance carrier as provided in G.S. 97-93, or who shall fail to qualify as a self-insurer as provided in the Article, in addition to other penalties provided by this Article, such employer shall be liable in a civil action which may be instituted by the claimant for all such compensation as may be awarded by the Industrial Commission in a proceeding properly instituted before said Commission, and such action may be brought by the claimant in the county of his residence or in any county in which the defendant has any property in this State; and in said civil action, ancillary remedies provided by law in civil actions of attachment, receivership, and other appropriate ancillary remedies shall be available to plaintiff therein. Said action may be instituted before the award shall be made by the Industrial Commission in such case for the purpose of preventing the defendant from disposing of or removing from the State of North Carolina for the purpose of defeating the payment of compensation any property which the defendant may own in this State. In said action, after being instituted, the court may, after proper amendment to the pleadings therein, permit the recovery of a judgment against the defendant for the amount of compensation duly awarded by the North Carolina Industrial Commission and subject any property seized in said action for payment of the judgment so awarded. The institution of said action shall in no wise interfere with the jurisdiction of said Industrial Commission in hearing and determining the claim for compensation in full accord with the provisions of this Article. Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit or abridge the rights of an employee as provided in subsection (b) of G.S. 97-94. (1941, c. 352.)

CASE NOTES

Section Held Valid. — This section was held valid as applied to a claim arising and an award made before its passage. Byrd v. Johnson, 220 N.C. 184, 16 S.E.2d 843 (1941).

Construction with § 1-440.2. — This section provides a further action in which attachment may be had, and which must be read in pari materia with § 1-440.2. Nelson v. Hayes, 116 N.C. App. 632, 448 S.E.2d 848, cert. denied, 338 N.C. 519, 452 S.E.2d 814 (1994).

An employer must pay benefits to its employees, whether the employer has the necessary insurance, is self-insured, or has no insurance at all. Ryles v. Durham Co. Hosp. Corp., 107 N.C. App. 455, 420 S.E.2d 487, cert. denied, 333 N.C. 169, 424 S.E.2d 406 (1992).

Employer's lack of workers' compensation insurance does not bar an employee's remedy through workers' compensation. Ryles v. Durham Co. Hosp. Corp., 107 N.C. App. 455, 420 S.E.2d 487, cert. denied, 333 N.C. 169, 424 S.E.2d 406 (1992).

This section affects procedure only and does not disturb any vested rights. It must be construed prospectively and not retrospectively. Byrd v. Johnson, 220 N.C. 184, 16 S.E.2d 843 (1941).

Attachment. — The provisions of this section, in force from its ratification on March 15, 1941, were available to claimants who instituted a civil action alleging that the Industrial Commission had awarded them compensation in a stipulated sum on March 24, 1941, that defendant employer had failed and neglected to keep in effect a policy of compensation insurance and had failed to qualify as a self-insurer, and that defendant was disposing of and removing all his property from the State, and praying that a warrant of attachment issue against defendant's property. The warrant of attachment was issued, and defendant's exception to the refusal of the court to vacate it was held without merit. Byrd v. Johnson, 220 N.C. 184, 16 S.E.2d 843 (1941).

This section merely provides an avenue to allow for attachment where an employer (1) is uninsured or fails to qualify as a self-insurer, and (2) owns property in the State susceptible to disposal or removal; as such, plaintiff's affidavit must meet one of the grounds for attachment listed in §§ 1-440.2 and 1-440.11. Nelson v. Hayes, 116 N.C. App. 632, 448 S.E.2d 848, cert. denied, 338 N.C. 519, 452 S.E.2d 814 (1994).

The rights of a plaintiff in an action under this section are the same as those of any other plaintiff in a civil action. Nelson v. Hayes, 116 N.C. App. 632, 448 S.E.2d 848, cert. denied, 338 N.C. 519, 452 S.E.2d 814 (1994).

The opinion and award issued by the Industrial Commission did not violate a stay order issued by a federal court, where the stay order was issued with regard to the employer's insolvent workers' compensation insurance carrier, but the only issues determined by the Commission related to the employee's claim for benefits from his employer, which is required to pay benefits when so ordered whether or not it has insurance. Tucker v. Workable Co., 129 N.C. App. 695, 501 S.E.2d 360 (1998).

Cited in Zocco v. United States, Dep't of Army, 791 F. Supp. 595 (E.D.N.C. 1992).

§ 97-96: Repealed by Session Laws 1997-362, s. 7.

§ 97-97. Insurance policies must contain clause that notice to employer is notice to insurer, etc.

All policies insuring the payment of compensation under this Article must contain a clause to the effect that, as between the employer and the insurer the notice to or acknowledgment of the occurrence of the injury on the part of the insured employer shall be deemed notice or knowledge as the case may be, on the part of the insurer; that jurisdiction of the insured for the purposes of this Article shall be jurisdiction of the insurer, that the insurer shall in all things be bound by and subject to the awards, judgments, or decrees rendered against such insured employer, and that insolvency or bankruptcy of the employer and/or discharge therein shall not relieve the insurer from the payment of compensation for disability or death sustained by an employee during the life of such policy or contract. (1929, c. 120, s. 70.)

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "North Carolina Construction Law Survey II," see 22 Wake Forest L. Rev. 481 (1987).

CASE NOTES

Applied in Collins v. Garber, 72 N.C. App. 652, 325 S.E.2d 21 (1985).

§ 97-98. Policy must contain agreement promptly to pay benefits; continuance of obligation of insurer in event of default.

No policy of insurance against liability arising under this Article shall be issued unless it contains the agreement of the insurer that it will promptly pay to the person entitled to same all benefits conferred by this Article, and all installments of the compensation that may be awarded or agreed upon, and that the obligation shall not be affected by any default of the insured after the injury or by any default in giving notice required by such policy or otherwise. Such agreement shall be construed to be a direct promise by the insurer to the person entitled to compensation enforceable in his name. (1929, c. 120, s. 71.)

CASE NOTES

Under this section, an employee has the right to enforce the insurance contract made for his benefit. Hartsell v. Thermoid Co., 249 N.C. 527, 107 S.E.2d 115 (1959).

Ambiguous provisions must be resolved against the carrier. Kenan v. Duplin Motor Co., 203 N.C. 108, 164 S.E. 729 (1932). See Williams v. Ornamental Stone Co., 232 N.C. 88, 59 S.E.2d 193 (1950).

Carrier Held Estopped to Deny Existence of Employment Relationship. — Where defendant carrier, at the request of employer, attached a rider to its policy covering "S, logging contractor," it was estopped to deny that plaintiff, who was working for S, was an employee of defendant. Greenway v. Riverside Mfg. Co., 206 N.C. 599, 175 S.E. 112 (1934).

Employee Paid in Part by State. — Claimant was paid for janitorial work partly by the local board of education and partly by the State School Commission. He was injured while doing extra, after-hours work solely for and at the expense of the board. A stipulation in the insurance contract with the board reduced the carrier's liability where part of the employee's wage was paid by the State. This clause was held inapplicable to the instant case, since pay for the job in which he was injured was not shared by the State, even though the award was figured on the basis of his regular weekly wage which the State did share. Casey v. Board of Educ., 219 N.C. 739, 14 S.E.2d 853 (1941). See also, Callihan v. Board of Educ., 222 N.C. 381, 23 S.E.2d 297 (1942), in which a somewhat similar liability-limiting indorsement on an insurance policy was held not applicable to relieve the carrier where a teacher of vocational education was paid in part with funds supplied by the State.

Policy Covering "Operations Conducted from" Main Place of Business. — Where a policy covered a Charlotte employer, inter alia, on "operations . . . conducted . . . from" its main place of business, it was proper for the Commission to find that an employee going daily to lay tile nearby in South Carolina, who was expected to report back at headquarters each evening and was killed in North Carolina on such return journey, was within the policy, even though the tile company had a policy in another company covering its operations in South Carolina and the North Carolina carrier did not receive any premium for the South Carolina job. Mion v. Atlantic Marble & Tile Co., 217 N.C. 743, 9 S.E.2d 501 (1940).

Injury at Quarry 40 Miles from Employer's Main Plant. — A policy designated the operations of the insured as "concrete products mfg. — shop or yard work only," and gave as the location the address of the main plant of the insured. The policy covered injuries sustained by reason of the business operations, which were stated to include "all operations necessary, incident or appurtenant thereto . . . whether such operations are conducted at the work places defined . . . or elsewhere." The policy further provided that no other business operations were covered. An injury received at defendant's quarry, 40 miles from the main plant, was held to be covered by this policy; it was "one of the work places of the company." Williams v. Ornamental Stone Co., 232 N.C. 88, 59 S.E.2d 193 (1950).

Quarrying Operations Carried on in Connection with Trucking Business. — Defendant carrier's policy covered defendant trucker's employees, including specifically blacksmiths, and service away from the business headquarters. The employer not only hauled stone for others but, without disclosure to the carrier, operated a quarry from which he sold and delivered stone. Deceased employee, a blacksmith, worked at the quarry only, but repaired some shovels and other tools used in connection with the trucking as well as the quarry machinery. He was on the general payroll. The policy provided for adjustment of the premiums on a payroll check-over made at the end of the policy period. It was held that the Commission's findings that the quarrying operations were carried on in connection with the trucking business and that the employee was covered by the policy were supported by competent evidence and were binding on the court. An award against the carrier was upheld. Miller v. Caudle, 220 N.C. 308, 17 S.E.2d 487 (1941).

Truck Driver Engaged in Unloading Logs. — It was found that defendant motor company did log hauling as an incident to its regular business. A policy in terms covering injuries to drivers was held to cover plaintiff, a regularly employed truck driver, who was engaged in unloading logs for the motor company. The carrier had contended that injuries in this type of work were outside the policy. Kenan v. Duplin Motor Co., 203 N.C. 108, 164 S.E. 729 (1932).

Notice of Cancellation of Policy. — Where policy provided for 10 days' notice of cancellation, and plaintiff was injured within 10 days from the day the employer received notice of cancellation but more than 10 days after such notice was mailed, the carrier was liable, as the 10 days date from the time of receipt of the notice. Pettit v. Wood-Owen Trailer Co., 214 N.C. 335, 199 S.E. 279 (1938).

§ 97-99. Law written into each insurance policy; form of policy to be approved by Commissioner of Insurance; single catastrophe hazards.

(a) Every policy for the insurance of the compensation in this Article, or against liability therefor, shall be deemed to be made subject to the provisions of this Article. No corporation, association or organization shall enter into any such policy of insurance unless its form has been approved by the Commissioner of Insurance.

(b) This Article shall not apply to policies of insurance against loss from explosion of boilers or flywheels or other similar single catastrophe hazards: Provided, that nothing in this Article relieves an employer from liability for injury or death of an employee as a result of such an explosion or catastrophe. (1929, c. 120, s. 72; 1943, c. 170; 1945, c. 381, s. 1; 1959, c. 863, s. 5; 1967, c. 1218; 1993, c. 504, s. 31; 2001-241, s. 1.)

Cross References. — As to prohibition against certain workers' compensation insurance policy cancellations, see § 58-36-105. As to notice of nonrenewal, premium rate increase, or change in workers' compensation insurance coverage, see § 58-36-110.

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-241, s. 1, effective October 1, 2001, and applicable to policies issued, renewed or subject to renewal, or amended on or after that date, deleted "cancellation," preceding "single catastrophe hazards" in the section head; in subsection (a), substituted "in this Article" for "herein provided" in the first sentence, substituted "has" for "shall have" preceding "been approved" in the second sentence, and deleted the former last four sentences, regarding cancellation; in subsection (b), substituted "in this Article relieves an employer" for "herein contained shall be construed to relieve the employer" following "nothing," and added "an" preceding "explosion."

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The cases below were decided prior to the 2001 amendment to this section, which deleted language relating to cancellation and notice thereof. See now §§ 58-36-105, 58-36-110.

Purpose of Notice. — The statutory requirement of 30 days' notice of intent to cancel was intended to assure an employer sufficient opportunity to procure other insurance. Moore v. Adams Elec. Co., 264 N.C. 667, 142 S.E.2d 659 (1965).

This section applies to all workers' compensation insurance. Moore v. Adams Elec. Co., 264 N.C. 667, 142 S.E.2d 659 (1965).

Evidence of Receipt of Notice. — In dispute between insurance companies where there was evidence that one insurer sent employer, by certified mail, a properly addressed, postage pre-paid notice of its intent to cancel the workers' compensation insurance policy, however, there was no evidence that employer's agent, his secretary whose duties included handling the mail, did not receive the letter, the inference created by the establishment of the prima facie case, that the letter was received, was not rebutted. Wilson v. Claude J. Welch Bldrs. Corp., 115 N.C. App. 384, 444 S.E.2d 628 (1994).

All relevant provisions of the Workers' Compensation Act become a part of each policy of insurance procured pursuant to the act. Hartsell v. Thermoid Co., 249 N.C. 527, 107 S.E.2d 115 (1959).

§ 97-100. Rates for insurance; carrier to make reports for determination of solvency; tax upon premium; wrongful or fraudulent representation of carrier punishable as misdemeanor; notices.

(a) The rates charged by all carriers of insurance, including the parties to any mutual insurance association writing insurance against the liability for compensation under this Article, shall be fair, reasonable, and adequate.

(b) Each insurance carrier shall report to the Commissioner of Insurance, in accordance with rules adopted by the Commissioner of Insurance, for the purpose of determining the solvency of the carrier and the adequacy of its rates; for this purpose the Commissioner of Insurance may inspect the books and records of any insurance carrier, and examine its agents, officers, and directors under oath.

(c) Every insurer under this Article, every employer carrying its own risk under G.S. 97-93, and every group of employers that has pooled the employers' liabilities under G.S. 97-93 is subject to the premiums tax levied in Article 8B of Chapter 105 of the General Statutes.

(d) through (f). Repealed by Session Laws 1995, c. 360, s. 1.

(g) Any person who acts or assumes to act as agent for any insurance carrier whose authority to do business in this State has been suspended, while the suspension remains in force, who neglects or refuses to comply with any of the provisions of this section, or who willfully makes a false or fraudulent statement of the business or condition of any insurance carrier, is guilty of a Class 2 misdemeanor.

(h) Whenever by this Article, or the terms of any policy contract, any officer is required to give any notice to an insurance carrier, the notice may be given by delivery, or by mailing by registered letter properly addressed and stamped, to the principal office or general agent of the insurance carrier within this State, or to its home office, or to the secretary, general agent, or chief officer of the carrier in the United States, or to the Commissioner of Insurance.

- (4) "Covered claim" means an unpaid claim against an insolvent self-insurer that relates to an injury that occurs while the self-insurer is a member of the Association and that is compensable under this Chapter.
- (5) "Fund" means the North Carolina Self-Insurance Guaranty Fund established by G.S. 97-133.
- (6) "Member self-insurer" or "member" means a self-insurer which is authorized by the Commissioner to self-insure pursuant to G.S. 97-93 and G.S. 97-94.
- (7) "Plan" means the Plan of Operation authorized by G.S. 97-134.
- (8) "Self-insurer" means either: (i) an individual employer who has demonstrated under G.S. 97-93 the financial ability to directly pay compensation in the amounts and manner and when due as provided in this Chapter or (ii) a group of two or more employers who have agreed to pool their liabilities under this Chapter pursuant to G.S. 97-93. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 1013, s. 1; 1987, c. 528, s. 1; 1997-362, s. 8.)

§ 97-131. Creation.

(a) There is created a nonprofit unincorporated legal entity to be known as the North Carolina Self-Insurance Guaranty Association. The Association is to provide mechanisms for the payment of covered claims under self-insurance coverage, to avoid excessive delay in payment, to avoid financial loss to claimants because of the insolvency of a self-insurer, and to assist, when called upon to do so by the Commissioner, in the detection of self-insurer insolvencies.

(b) All individual and group self-insurers shall be and remain members of the Association as a condition of authority to self-insure in this State under G.S. 97-93. The Association shall perform its functions under a Plan of Operation established or amended, or both, by the Board and approved by the Commissioner, and shall exercise its powers through the Board.

(1) A self-insurer shall be deemed to be a member of the Association for purposes of another self-insurer's insolvency, as defined in G.S. 97-135, when:

- a. The self-insurer is a member of the Association when an insolvency occurs, or
- b. The self-insurer has been a member of the Association at some point in time during the 12-month period immediately preceding the insolvency in question.

(2) A self-insurer shall be deemed to be a member of the Association for purposes of its own insolvency if it is a member when the compensable injury occurs.

(3) In determining the membership of the Association pursuant to subdivisions (1) and (2) of this subsection for any date after the effective date of this Article, no employer or group of employers claiming self-insurer status may be deemed to be a member of the Association on any date after the effective date of this Article, unless that employer or group of employers is at that time authorized as a self-insurer by the Commissioner pursuant to G.S. 97-93 and G.S. 97-94. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 1013, s. 1; 1987, c. 528, s. 2; 1997-362, s. 9.)

§ 97-132. Board of directors.

The Board shall consist of not less than nine persons serving terms as established in the Plan. The members of the Board shall be selected by the member self-insurers, subject to the approval of the Commissioner, and shall serve for terms which shall not exceed three years. If no members of the Board are selected within 60 days after the effective date of this Article, the Commissioner may appoint the initial members of the Board. In approving selections to the Board, the Commissioner shall consider, among other things, whether all member self-insurers are fairly represented. Members of the Board may be reimbursed from the assets of the Association for expenses incurred by them as members of the Board. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 1013, s. 1; 1987, c. 528, s. 3.)

§ 97-133. Powers and duties of the Association.

(a) The Association shall:

(1) Repealed by Session Laws 1999-219, s. 7.2, effective June 25, 1999.

(2) Assess each member of the Association as follows:

- a. Each individual member self-insurer shall be annually assessed an amount equal to one-quarter of one percent (0.25%) of the annual gross premiums, as determined under G.S. 105-228.5(b), (b1), and (c), that would have been paid by that member self-insurer for workers' compensation insurance during the prior calendar year; and payment to the Association shall be made no later than September 15 following the close of that calendar year. Where any such assessment is paid based in whole or in part upon estimates of annual gross premiums for the prior calendar year, there shall be made in the next year's assessment an adjustment of the assessment of such prior year based on actual audited annual gross premiums. Each group member self-insurer shall be annually assessed an amount equal to one-quarter of one percent (0.25%) of the annual gross premiums, as determined under G.S. 105-228.5(b), (b1), and (c), of the group member self-insurer during the prior calendar year; and payment to the Association shall be made no later than September 15 following the close of that calendar year. Regardless of the size of the Fund, during its first 12 months of membership, no member self-insurer may discount or reduce this one-quarter of one percent (0.25%) assessment. Assessments paid by members pursuant to this subdivision shall be credited toward the tax paid by self-insurers under Article 8B of Chapter 105 of the General Statutes. For the purpose of making the assessments authorized by this subsection and subsections (c) and (d) of this section, the Secretary of Revenue shall provide to the Association the self-insurer premium and payroll information as determined under G.S. 105-228.5(b), (b1) and (c), and the Commissioner shall provide to the Association the group self-insurer premium information reported to the Commissioner under G.S. 58-47-75 and G.S. 58-2-165.

- b. Each member self-insurer shall be notified of the assessment no later than 30 days before it is due.
  - c. If a self-insurer is a member of the Association for less than a full calendar year, the annual gross premiums shall be adjusted by that portion of the year the self-insurer is not a member of the Association.
  - d. If application of the contribution rates referenced in sub-subdivision a. of this subdivision would produce an amount in excess of the five million dollar ($5,000,000) limits of the fund, an equitable proration may be made; provided that every self-insurer that becomes a member of the Association shall pay an initial assessment, in an amount established by the Board, regardless of the size of the fund at the time the member joins the Association.
- (3) Administer a fund, to be known as the North Carolina Self-Insurance Guaranty Fund, which shall receive the assessments required in subdivision (2) of this subsection. Once the Fund reaches five million dollars ($5,000,000), no further assessments shall be made except initial assessments of new member self-insurers that are required to be made in subdivision (2)d. of this subsection. Assessments may be subsequently made only to maintain the Fund at a level of five million dollars ($5,000,000). In its discretion, the Board may determine that the assets of the Fund should be segregated, or, that a separate accounting shall be made, in order to identify that portion of the Fund which represents assessments paid by individual self-insurers and that portion of the Fund which represents assessments paid by group self-insurers. If the Board determines to segregate the Fund in this manner, the Association shall thereafter pay covered claims against individual member self-insurers from that portion of the Fund which represents assessments against individual self-insurers and shall thereafter pay covered claims against group member self-insurers from that portion of the Fund which represents assessments against group self-insurers. The cost of administration incurred by the Association shall be borne by the Fund and the Association is authorized to secure reinsurance and bonds and to otherwise invest the assets of the Fund to effectuate the purpose of the Association, subject to the approval of the Commissioner. All earnings from investment of Fund assets shall be placed in or credited to the Fund.

The Association may purchase primary excess insurance from an insurer licensed by the Commissioner for the appropriate lines of authority to defray its exposure to loss occasioned by the default of one of its members. The terms of any excess insurance so purchased shall be limited to providing coverage of liabilities which exceed the Fund's assets after the payment by member self-insurers of the maximum post-insolvency assessment provided in subdivision (c)(1) of this section herein and the Association shall fund any such purchase by levying a special assessment on its members for this purpose or by application of any unencumbered earnings of the Fund or any other available funds. The Association may obtain from each member any information the Association may reasonably require in order to facilitate the securing of this primary excess insurance. The Association shall establish reasonable safeguards designed to insure that information so received is used only for this purpose and is not otherwise disclosed;

- (4) Be obligated to the extent of covered claims occurring prior to the determination of the member self-insurer's insolvency, or occurring after such determination but prior to the obtaining by the self-insurer of workers' compensation insurance as otherwise required under this Chapter. The Association shall pay claims against a self-insurer that are not or have not been paid as a result of a determination of insolvency or the institution of bankruptcy or receivership proceedings that occurred prior to the effective date of this Article.
- (5) After paying any claim resulting from a self-insurer's insolvency, be subrogated to the rights of the injured employee and dependents and be entitled to enforce liability against the self-insurer by any appropriate action brought in its own name or in the name of the injured employee and dependents;
- (6) Assess the Fund in an amount necessary to pay only:
  - a. The obligations for the Association under this Article subsequent to an insolvency;
  - b. The expenses of handling covered claims subsequent to an insolvency;
  - c. The cost of examinations under G.S. 97-137; and
  - d. Other expenses authorized by this Article;
- (7) Investigate claims brought against the Association and adjust, compromise, settle, and pay covered claims to the extent of the Association's obligation; and deny all other claims. The Association may review settlements to which the insolvent self-insurer was a party to determine the extent to which such settlements may be properly contested;
- (8) Notify such persons as the Commissioner directs under G.S. 97-136;
- (9) Handle claims through its employees or through one or more self-insurers or other persons designated as servicing facilities. Designation of a servicing facility is subject to the approval of the Commissioner, but designation of a member self-insurer as a servicing facility may be declined by such self-insurer;
- (10) Reimburse each servicing facility for obligations of the Association paid by the facility and for expenses incurred by the facility while handling claims on behalf of the Association;

- (11) Pay the other expenses of the Association authorized by this section; and
  - (12) Establish in the Plan a mechanism to calculate the assessments required by subdivisions (2) and (3) of this subsection by a simple and equitable means to convert from policy or fund years that are different from a calendar year.
- (b) The Association may:
- (1) Employ or retain such persons as are necessary to handle claims and perform other duties of the Association;
  - (2) Borrow funds necessary to effect the purposes of this Article in accord with the Plan;
  - (3) Sue or be sued;
  - (4) Negotiate and become a party to such contracts as are necessary to carry out the purpose of this section; and
  - (5) Perform such other acts as are necessary or proper to effectuate the purpose of this section.
- (c) In the event that the assets of the Fund are not sufficient to pay the obligations of the Association, then the Association shall impose an additional assessment upon its members, which shall be known as a post-insolvency assessment which shall be imposed as follows:
- (1) Each individual member self-insurer shall be assessed in an amount not to exceed two percent (2%) each year of the annual gross premiums, as determined under G.S. 105-228.5(b), (b1), and (c), that would have been paid by that member self-insurer during the prior calendar year. The assessments of each individual member self-insurer shall be in the proportion that the annual gross premiums, as determined under G.S. 105-228.5(b), (b1), and (c), of the individual member self-insurer for the premium calendar year bears to the annual gross premiums of all individual member self-insurers for the preceding calendar year. For group member self-insurers, the assessment shall not exceed two percent (2%) each year the annual premium collected by that group member self-insurer during the prior calendar year. The assessments of each group member self-insurer shall be in the proportion that the annual gross premiums of the group member self-insurer for the premium calendar year bears to the annual gross premiums of all group member self-insurers for the preceding calendar year.
  - (2) Each member self-insurer shall be notified of the assessment no later than 30 days before it is due.
  - (3) The Association may exempt or defer, in whole or in part, the assessment of any member self-insurer, if the assessment would cause that member's financial statement to reflect liabilities in excess of assets.
  - (4) Delinquent assessments, except as provided in subdivision (3) of this subsection, shall bear interest at the rate to be established by the Board, but not to exceed the discount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank, Richmond, Virginia, on the due date of the assessment, plus four percent (4%) annually, computed from the due date of the assessment.
  - (5) The Association shall establish in the Plan a mechanism to calculate the assessments required by subdivision (1) of this subsection by a simple and equitable means to convert from policy or fund years that are different from a calendar year.
- (d) No individual member self-insurer may be assessed in any calendar year an amount greater than two and one-half percent (2.5%) of the annual gross premiums, as determined under G.S. 105-228.5(b), (b1), and (c), that would have been paid by that individual member self-insurer during the prior calendar year. No group member self-insurer may be assessed in any calendar year an amount greater than two and one-half percent (2.5%) of the annual gross premiums of that group member self-insurer during the prior calendar year. If the maximum assessment does not provide in any one year an amount sufficient to make all necessary payments, the funds available shall be prorated and the unpaid portion shall be paid as soon thereafter as funds become available. There shall be established in the Plan a mechanism to calculate the assessments required by this section by a simple and equitable means to convert from policy or fund years that are different from a calendar year. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 928, s. 1(a); 1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 1013, s. 1; 1987, c. 528, ss. 4-10; 1989, c. 485, s. 27; 1995, c. 533, s. 1; 1997-475, ss. 2.3, 2.4; 1999-219, s. 7.2.)

§ 97-134. Plan of Operation.

The Plan is as follows:

- (1) The Association shall submit to the Commissioner a Plan and any amendments necessary or suitable to assure the fair, reasonable, and equitable administration of the Association. The Plan and any amendments become effective upon approval in writing by the Commissioner. If the Association at any time fails to submit a Plan or suitable amendment to the Plan the Commissioner shall, after notice and hearing, adopt such reasonable rules as are necessary or advisable to effectuate this Article. Such rules shall continue in force until modified by the Commissioner or superseded by a Plan submitted by the Association and approved by the Commissioner.
- (2) All member self-insurers shall comply with the Plan.
- (3) The Plan shall:
  - a. Establish the procedures whereby all the powers and duties of the Association under G.S. 97-133 will be performed;
  - b. Establish procedures for handling assets of the Association;
  - c. Adopt a reasonable mechanism and procedure to achieve equity in assessing the funds required in G.S. 97-133. Consideration shall be given to adjustments for audited payroll, differential effects caused by rate changes, and other relevant factors;
  - d. Establish the amount and method of reimbursing members of the Board under G.S. 97-132;
  - e. Establish procedures by which claims may be filed with the Association and establish acceptable forms of proof of covered claims. A list of such claims shall be periodically submitted to the Association;
  - f. Establish regular places and times for meetings of the Board;
  - g. Establish procedures for records to be kept of all financial transactions of the Association, its agents, and the Board;
  - h. Provide that any member self-insurer aggrieved by any final action or decision of the Association may appeal to the Commissioner within 30 days after the action or decision;
  - i. Establish the procedures whereby selections for the Board shall be submitted to the Commissioner; and
  - j. Contain additional provisions necessary or proper for the execution of the powers and duties of the Association. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 1013, s. 1; 1987, c. 528, s. 11.)

§ 97-135. Insolvency.

A member self-insurer shall be insolvent for the purposes of this Article under the following circumstances:

- (1) Determination of insolvency by a court of competent jurisdiction; or
- (2) Institution of bankruptcy proceedings by or regarding the member self-insurer; or
- (3) The Board determines that the self-insurer's total liabilities exceed its total assets or the self-insurer is unable or ceases to pay its debts as they fall due or in the ordinary course of business. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 1013, s. 1; 1987, c. 528, s. 12.)

§ 97-136. Powers and duties of the Commissioner.

(a) The Commissioner shall notify the Association of the existence of an insolvent member self-insurer not later than 30 days after he receives notice of an insolvency pursuant to the standards set forth in G.S. 97-135.

(b) The Commissioner may:

- (1) Require that the Association notify the insureds of the insolvent member self-insurer and any other interested parties of the insolvency and of their rights under this Article. Such notifications shall be by mail at their last known addresses, where available; but if required information for notification is not available, notice by publication in a newspaper of general circulation in this State shall be sufficient; and
- (2) Revoke the designation of any servicing facility if he finds claims are being handled unsatisfactorily. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 1013, s. 1.)

§ 97-137. Examination of the Association.

The Association shall be subject to examination and regulation by the Commissioner. The Board shall submit, not later than March 30 of each year, a financial report for the preceding calendar year in a form approved by the Commissioner. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 1013, s. 1.)

§ 97-138. Tax exemption.

The Association shall be exempt from payment of all fees and all taxes levied by this State or any of its political subdivisions, except taxes levied on real or personal property. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 928, s. 1(b).)

§ 97-139. Immunity.

There shall be no liability on the part of and no cause of action of any nature may arise against any member self-insurer, the Association, or its agents or employees, the Board or its individual members, or the Commissioner or his representatives for any acts or omissions taken by them in the performance of their powers and duties under this Article. The immunity established by this section shall not extend to willful neglect or malfeasance that would otherwise be actionable. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 1013, s. 1.)

§ 97-140. Nonduplication of recovery.

Any person having a covered claim that may be recovered under more than one insurance or self-insurance guaranty association or its equivalent shall seek recovery first from the association of the place or residence of the claimant. Any recovery under this Article shall be reduced by the amount of recovery from any other insurance guaranty association or its equivalent. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 1013, s. 1.)

§ 97-141. Stay of proceedings.

All proceedings under this Chapter to which the insolvent member self-insurer is a party either before the Industrial Commission or a court in this State and the running of all time periods against either the insolvent member self-insurer or the Association under this Chapter shall be stayed for 60 days from the date of notice to the Association of the insolvency in order to permit the Association to investigate, prosecute, or defend properly any petition, claim, or appeal under this Chapter, provided that the payment of weekly compensation for incapacity is made whenever time periods or proceedings affecting the payment of weekly compensation are stayed. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 1013, s. 1.)

§ 97-142. Disposition of assets upon dissolution.

In the event of dissolution of the Association, all assets remaining after provision for satisfaction of all outstanding claims shall be distributed to the State Treasurer for establishment of a reserve to satisfy potential claims against the Association and, all such claims being satisfied, for inclusion in the general fund of the State. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 1013, s. 1.)

§ 97-143. Use of deposits made by insolvent member self-insurers.

After the Commissioner has notified the Association, under G.S. 97-136(a), that a member is insolvent, the Commissioner shall assign and deliver to the Association, and the Association is authorized to expend the deposit made by the insolvent member under G.S. 58-47-90 or G.S. 97-185, to the extent the deposit is needed by the Association to pay covered claims against the insolvent member as required by this Article, and to the extent the deposit is needed to pay expenses of the Association relating to covered claims against the insolvent member. The Association shall account to the Commissioner and the insolvent member or its successor for all deposits received from the Commissioner under this section. (1991, c. 644, s. 25; 1997-362, s. 6.)

§§ 97-144 through 97-164: Reserved for future codification purposes.

ARTICLE 5.

Individual Employers.

§ 97-165. Definitions.

As used in this Article:

- (1) “Act” means the Workers’ Compensation Act established in Article 1 of this Chapter.
- (2) “Certified audit” means an audit on which a certified public accountant expresses his or her professional opinion that the accompanying statements fairly present the financial position of the self-insurer, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.
- (3) “Certified public accountant” or “CPA” means a CPA who is in good standing with the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and in all states in which the CPA is licensed to practice. A CPA shall be recognized as independent as long as the CPA conforms to the standards of the profession, as contained in the Code of Professional Ethics of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and Rules and Regulations and Code of Ethics and Rules of Professional Conduct of the North Carolina State Board of Certified Public Accountant Examiners, or similar code. The Commissioner may hold a hearing to determine whether a CPA is independent and, considering the evidence presented, may rule that the CPA is not independent for purposes of expressing an opinion on the GAAP financial statement and require the individual to replace the CPA with another whose relationship with the individual is independent within the meaning of this definition.

- (4) "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of Insurance.
- (5) "Corporate surety" means an insurance company authorized by the Commissioner to write surety business in this State.
- (6) "GAAP financial statement" means a financial statement as defined by generally accepted accounting principles.
- (7) "Hazardous financial condition" means that, based on its present or reasonably anticipated financial condition, a self-insurer is insolvent or, although not yet financially impaired or insolvent, is unlikely to be able to meet obligations with respect to known claims and reasonably anticipated claims or to pay other obligations in the normal course of business.
- (8) "Management" means those persons who are authorized to direct or control the operations of a self-insurer.
- (9) "Qualified actuary" means a member in good standing of the Casualty Actuarial Society or a member in good standing of the American Academy of Actuaries, who has been approved as qualified for signing casualty loss reserve opinions by the Casualty Practice Council of the American Academy of Actuaries, and is in compliance with G.S. 58-2-171.
- (10) "Self-insurer" means a single employer who retains liability under the Act and is licensed under this Article. (1997-362, s. 4; 1999-132, s. 13.5.)

§ 97-170. License applications; required information.

(a) No employer shall self-insure its workers' compensation liabilities under the Act unless it is licensed by the Commissioner under this Article.

(b) An applicant for a license as a self-insurer shall file with the Commissioner the information required by subsection (d) of this section on a form prescribed by the Commissioner at least 90 days before the proposed licensing date. No application is complete until the Commissioner has received all required information.

(c) Only an applicant whose total fixed assets amount to five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000) or more may apply for a license. In judging the applicant's financial strength and liquidity relative to its ability to comply with the Act, the Commissioner shall consider the applicant's:

- (1) Organizational structure and management;
- (2) Financial strength;
- (3) Source and reliability of financial information;
- (4) Risks to be retained;
- (5) Workers' compensation loss history;
- (6) Number of employees;
- (7) Claims administration;

- (8) Excess insurance; and
- (9) Access to excess insurance.
- (d) The license application shall comprise the following information:
  - (1) Company name, organizational structure, location of principal office, contact person, organization date, type of operations within this State, management background, and addresses of all plants or offices in this State.
  - (2) Certified audited GAAP financial statements prepared by a CPA for the two most recent years. The financial statement formulation shall facilitate application of ratio and trend analysis.
  - (3) Evidence of the insurance required by G.S. 97-190.
  - (4) Repealed by Session Laws 1999-132, s. 13.7, effective June 4, 1999.
  - (5) For applicants with 20 or more full-time employees, a certificate or other evidence of safety inspection, satisfactory to the Commissioner, that certifies that all safety requirements of the Department of Labor have been met.
  - (6) Summary of workers' compensation benefits paid for the last three calendar years, as well as the total liability for all open claims within 30 days or some other period acceptable to the Commissioner not to exceed 90 days, before the filing of the application.
  - (7) Summary, by risk classification, of annual payroll and number of employees within the State.
  - (8) Book value of fixed assets located within the State.
  - (9) Proof of compliance with the claims administration provisions of Article 47 of Chapter 58 of the General Statutes.
  - (10) A letter of assent, stipulating the applicant's acceptance of membership status in the North Carolina Self-Insurance Guaranty Association under Article 4 of this Chapter.
- (e) Every applicant shall execute and file with the Commissioner an agreement, as part of the application, in which the applicant agrees to deposit with the Commissioner cash, acceptable securities, or a surety bond issued by a corporate surety that will guarantee the applicant's compliance with this Article and the Act pursuant to G.S. 97-185. (1997-362, s. 4; 1999-132, ss. 13.6, 13.7.)

Legal Periodicals. — For 1997 legislative survey, see 20 Campbell L. Rev. 487.

§ 97-175. License.

(a) After the review of the application and all supporting materials, the Commissioner shall either grant or deny a license. If a license is denied, the Commissioner shall notify the applicant of the denial and inform the applicant of the deficiencies that constitute the basis for denial.

(b) If the deficiencies are resolved within 60 days after the Commissioner's notice of denial, the applicant shall be granted a license. The applicant may be granted additional time to remedy the deficiencies in its application. A request for an extension of time shall be made in writing by the applicant within 30 days after notice of denial by the Commissioner. If the requirements of this Article have not been met, the application shall be withdrawn or denied. (1997-362, s. 4.)

§ 97-180. Reporting and records.

(a) Every self-insurer shall submit, within 120 days after the end of its fiscal year, a certified audited GAAP financial statement, prepared by a CPA, for that fiscal year. The financial statement formulation shall facilitate the application of ratio and trend analysis.

(b) Every self-insurer shall submit within 120 days after the end of its fiscal year a certification from a qualified actuary setting forth the actuary's opinion relating to loss and loss adjustment expense reserves for workers' compensation obligations for North Carolina. The certification shall show liabilities, excess insurance carrier and other qualifying credits, if any, and net retained workers' compensation liabilities. The qualified actuary shall present an annual report to the self-insurer on the items within the scope of and supporting the certification, within 90 days after the close of the self-insurer's fiscal year. Upon request, the report shall be submitted to the Commissioner.

(c) Every self-insurer shall submit within 120 days after the end of its fiscal year a report in the form of a sworn statement prescribed by the Commissioner, setting forth the total workers' compensation benefits paid in the previous fiscal year, as well as the total outstanding workers' compensation liabilities for each loss year, recorded at the close of its fiscal year for the net retained liability.

(d) Upon the request of the Commissioner, every self-insurer shall submit a report of its annual payroll information. The report shall summarize payroll, by annual amount paid, and the number of employees, by classification, using the rules, classifications, and rates in the most recently approved Workers' Compensation and Employers' Liability Insurance Manual governing the audits of payrolls and the adjustments of premiums. Every self-insurer shall maintain true and accurate payroll records. These payroll records shall be maintained to allow for verification of the completeness and accuracy of the annual payroll report.

(e) Every self-insurer shall report promptly to the Commissioner changes in the names and addresses of the businesses it self-insures or intends to self-insure, as well as significant changes in the financial condition, including bankruptcy filings, and changes in its business structure, including its divisions, subsidiaries, affiliates, and internal organization. Any change shall be reported in writing to the Commissioner within 10 days after the effective date of the change. (1997-362, s. 4; 1999-132, ss. 13.8, 13.9.)

§ 97-185. Deposits or surety bond.

(a) Every self-insurer shall deposit with the Commissioner an amount equal to twenty-five percent (25%) of the self-insurer's total undiscounted outstanding claim liability per the most recent certification from a qualified actuary as required by G.S. 97-180(b), but not less than five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000), or such other amount as the Commissioner prescribes based on, but not limited to, the financial condition of the self-insurer and the risk retained by the self-insurer.

(b) A self-insurer organized and authorized before the effective date of this section shall have 24 months from the effective date of this section to comply with this section.

(c) Deposits received, changes to existing deposits, or deposits exchanged after the effective date of this section, shall comprise one or more of the following:

- (1) Interest-bearing bonds of the United States of America.
- (2) Interest-bearing bonds of the State of North Carolina, or of its cities or counties.
- (3) Certificates of deposit issued by any solvent bank domesticated in the State of North Carolina that have a maturity of one year or greater.
- (4) Surety bonds in a form acceptable to the Commissioner and issued by a corporate surety.

(5) Any other investments that are approved by the Commissioner.

(d) All bonds or securities that are posted as a security deposit shall be valued annually at market value. If market value is less than face value, the Commissioner may require the self-insurer to post additional securities. In making this determination, the Commissioner shall consider the self-insurer's financial condition, the amount by which market value is less than face value, and the likelihood that the securities will be needed to provide benefits.

(e) Securities deposited under this section shall be assigned to the Commissioner, the Commissioner's successors, assigns, or trustees, on a form prescribed by the Commissioner in a manner that renders the securities negotiable by the Commissioner. If a self-insurer is deemed by the Commissioner to be in a hazardous financial condition, the Commissioner may sell or collect, or both, such amounts that will yield sufficient funds to meet the self-insurer's obligations under the Act. Interest accruing on any negotiable security deposited under this Article shall be collected and transmitted to the self-insurer if the self-insurer is not in a hazardous financial condition.

(f) No judgment creditor, other than a claimant entitled to benefits under the Act, may levy upon any deposits made under this section.

(g) Securities held by the Commissioner under this section may be exchanged or replaced by the self-insurer with other securities of like nature and amount as long as the self-insurer is not in a hazardous financial condition. No release shall be effectuated until replacement securities or bonds of an equal value have been substituted. Any surety bond may be exchanged or replaced with another surety bond that meets the requirements of this section if 90 days' advance written notice is given to the Commissioner. If a self-insurer ceases to self-insure or desires to replace securities with an acceptable surety bond or bonds, the self-insurer shall notify the Commissioner, and may recover all or a portion of the securities deposited with the Commissioner upon posting instead an acceptable special release bond issued by a corporate surety in an amount equal to the total value of the securities. The special release bond shall cover all existing liabilities under the Act plus an amount to cover future loss development and shall remain in force until all obligations under the Act have been discharged fully.

(h) If a self-insurer ceases to self-insure, no deposits shall be released by the Commissioner until the self-insurer has discharged fully all of the self-insurer's obligations under the Act.

(i) An endorsement to a surety bond shall be filed with the Commissioner within 90 days after the effective date of the endorsement. (1997-362, s. 4.)

§ 97-190. Excess insurance.

(a) Every self-insurer, as a prerequisite for licensure under this Article, shall maintain specific and aggregate excess loss coverage through an insurance policy. A self-insurer shall maintain limits and retentions commensurate with its risk. A self-insurer's retention shall be the lowest retention suitable for the self-insurer's exposures and level of annual premium. The Commissioner may require different levels, or waive the requirement, of specific and aggregate excess loss coverage consistent with the market availability of excess loss coverage, the self-insurer's claims experience, and the self-insurer's financial condition.

(b) An excess insurance policy required by this section shall be issued by either a licensed insurance company or an approved surplus lines insurance company and shall:

- (1) Provide for at least 30 days' written notice of cancellation by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, to the self-insurer and to the Commissioner.

- (2) Be renewable automatically at its expiration, except upon 30 days' written notice of nonrenewal by certified mail, return receipt requested, to the self-insurer and to the Commissioner.

(c) Every self-insurer shall provide to the Commissioner evidence of coverage and any amendments within 30 days after their effective dates. Every self-insurer shall, at the request of the Commissioner, furnish copies of its excess insurance policies and amendments. (1997-362, s. 4.)

§ 97-195. Revocation of license.

(a) The Commissioner summarily may revoke a license if there is satisfactory evidence for the revocation. In determining whether to revoke a license summarily, the Commissioner may consider any or all of the following:

- (1) Determination of insolvency by a court of competent jurisdiction.
- (2) Institution of bankruptcy proceedings.
- (3) If the self-insurer is in a hazardous financial condition.

(b) The Commissioner, upon at least 45 days' notice, may revoke a license if there is satisfactory evidence for the revocation. In determining whether to revoke a license under this subsection, the Commissioner may consider any or all of the following:

- (1) Whether the self-insurer has experienced a material loss or deteriorating operating trends, or reported a deficit financial position.
- (2) Whether any affiliate or subsidiary is insolvent, threatened with insolvency, or delinquent in payment of its monetary or any other obligation.
- (3) Whether the self-insurer has failed to pay premium taxes pursuant to Article 8B of Chapter 105 of the General Statutes.
- (4) Whether the self-insurer has failed to pay an assessment under G.S. 97-100.
- (5) Contingent liabilities, pledges, or guaranties that either individually or collectively involve a total amount that in the Commissioner's opinion may affect a self-insurer's solvency.
- (6) Whether the management of a self-insurer has failed to respond to the Commissioner's inquiries about the condition of the self-insurer or has furnished false and misleading information in response to an inquiry by the Commissioner.
- (7) Whether the management of a self-insurer has filed any false or misleading sworn financial statement, has released a false or misleading financial statement to a lending institution or to the general public, or has made a false or misleading entry or omitted an entry of material amount in the filed financial information.
- (8) Whether the self-insurer has experienced or will experience in the foreseeable future, cash flow or liquidity problems.
- (9) Whether the self-insurer has not complied with the other provisions of this Article or the Act.
- (10) Whether the self-insurer has failed to make proper and timely payment of claims as required by this Article.

(c) Any self-insurer subject to license revocation under subsection (a) or (b) of this section may request an administrative hearing before the Commissioner to review that order. If a hearing is requested, a notice of hearing shall be served, and the notice shall state the time and place of hearing and the conduct, condition, or ground on which the Commissioner based the order. Unless mutually agreed upon between the Commissioner and the self-insurer, the hearing shall occur not less than 10 days nor more than 30 days after notice is served and shall be either in Wake County or in some other place designated by the Commissioner. The Commissioner shall hold all hearings under this section privately unless the self-insurer requests a public hearing, in which case the hearing shall be public. The request for a hearing shall not stay the effect of the order. (1997-362, s. 4.)

§ 97-200. Claims administration.

(a) A self-insurer shall not utilize any claims adjuster unless the adjuster is licensed under G.S. 58-33-25.

(b) Every self-insurer shall comply with the provisions of Article 47 of Chapter 58 of the General Statutes that are related to claims administration. (1997-362, s. 4.)

Chapter 98.

Burnt and Lost Records.

Sec.	Sec.
98-1. Copy of destroyed record as evidence; may be recorded.	98-11. Replacing lost official conveyances.
98-2. Originals may be again recorded.	98-12. Court records as proof of destroyed instruments set out therein.
98-3. Establishing boundaries and interest, where conveyance and copy lost.	98-13. Copies contained in court records may be recorded.
98-4. Copy of lost will may be probated.	98-14. Rules for petitions and motions.
98-5. Copy of lost will as evidence; letters to issue.	98-15. Records allowed under this Chapter to have effect of original records.
98-6. Establishing contents of will, where original and copy destroyed.	98-16. Destroyed court records proved prima facie by recitals in conveyances executed before their destruction.
98-7. Perpetuating destroyed judgments and proceedings.	98-17. Conveyances reciting court records prima facie evidence thereof.
98-8. Color of title under destroyed instrument.	98-18. Court records and conveyances to which Chapter extends.
98-9. Action on destroyed bond.	98-19, 98-20. [Repealed.]
98-10. Destroyed witness tickets; duplicates may be filed.

§ 98-1. Copy of destroyed record as evidence; may be recorded.

When the office of any registry is destroyed by fire or other accident, and the records and other papers thereof are burnt or destroyed, the copies of all such proceedings, instruments and papers as are of record or registry, certified by the proper officer, though without the seal of office, shall be received in evidence whenever the original or duly certified exemplifications would be. Such copies, when the court is satisfied of their genuineness, may be ordered to be recorded or registered. (1865-6, c. 41, ss. 1, 2; Code, s. 55; Rev., s. 327; C.S., s. 365.)

CASE NOTES

Admissibility of Parol Evidence. — This Chapter is an enabling act and does not exclude oral evidence, admissible at common law, to prove the contents of a lost deed or record. Hughes v. Pritchard, 153 N.C. 23, 68 S.E. 906 (1910). See Mobley v. Watts, 98 N.C. 284, 3 S.E. 677 (1887); Varner v. Johnston, 112 N.C. 570, 17 S.E. 483 (1893).

When a deed is lost or destroyed, a copy must be produced if there is one, but if there is none, parol evidence may be admitted to prove its contents. Baker v. Webb, 2 N.C. 43 (1794); Dumas v. Powell, 14 N.C. 103 (1831); Cowles v. Hardin, 91 N.C. 231 (1884).

Parol Evidence Not Admissible to Change Certified Copy. — This section does not permit parol evidence to be introduced to show that the lost or destroyed original had a different description and thus correct a recorded certified copy of a deed. Hopper v. Justice, 111 N.C. 418, 16 S.E. 626 (1892).

§ 98-2. Originals may be again recorded.

All original papers, once admitted to record or registry, whereof the record or registry is destroyed, may, on motion, be again recorded or registered, on such proof as the court shall require. (1865-6, c. 41, s. 3; Code, s. 56; Rev., s. 328; C.S., s. 366.)

CASE NOTES

Jurisdiction. — Jurisdiction in the superior court sustained. McCormick v. Jernigan, 110 N.C. 406, 14 S.E. 971 (1892).

Jurisdiction in the superior court tacitly recognized. Tuttle v. Rainey, 98 N.C. 513, 4 S.E. 475 (1887).

Section Is Not Exclusive. — In an action to establish a lost deed, the record of which was also destroyed, a motion to dismiss upon the ground that the action should have been brought under § 56 of the Code (now this section) was properly refused, as the section is an enabling act giving an additional, but not an exclusive, remedy. Jones v. Ballou, 139 N.C. 526, 52 S.E. 254 (1905).

Use of Common Law to Establish Contents. — A party whose deed with its registration had been destroyed, instead of having it set up and recorded, could depend upon the rules of the common law to establish its contents whenever an occasion might arise, as in the course of a trial. Cowles v. Hardin, 91 N.C. 231 (1884); Mobley v. Watts, 98 N.C. 284, 3 S.E. 677 (1887); Hopper v. Justice, 111 N.C. 418, 16 S.E. 626 (1892).

Compliance with Statute. — When the proceeding is brought by virtue of § 56 of the Code (now this section), its requirements must be complied with. Cowles v. Hardin, 79 N.C. 577 (1878); Jones v. Ballou, 139 N.C. 526, 52 S.E. 254 (1905).

Original Recorded by Clerk upon Sufficient Evidence. — Where the registry of partition is destroyed and a paper purporting to be the original is presented to the clerk, it is his duty, after satisfying himself upon evidence that the paper is the original one, to record it. Hill v. Lane, 149 N.C. 267, 62 S.E. 1074 (1908).

Effect of Failure to Register Anew. — This statutory provision admonished all persons having such original papers to prove and register them anew in the way prescribed, and good faith required that they should do so. Moreover, it gave the public reason to expect that it would be faithfully observed by persons interested. Thus, where the plaintiff has been negligent in again registering or recording an original deed, such reregistration would not defeat the rights of bona fide purchasers. Waters v. Crabtree, 105 N.C. 394, 11 S.E. 240 (1890).

Cited in Harrelson v. Soles, 94 N.C. App. 557, 380 S.E.2d 528 (1989).

§ 98-3. Establishing boundaries and interest, where conveyance and copy lost.

When any conveyance of real estate, or of any right or interest therein, is lost, the registry thereof being also destroyed, any person claiming under the same may cause the boundaries thereof to be established in the manner provided in the Chapter entitled Boundaries, or he may proceed in the following manner to establish both the boundaries and the nature of his estate:

He shall file his petition before the clerk of the superior court, setting forth the whole substance of the conveyance as truly and specifically as he can, the location and boundaries of his land, whose land it adjoins, the estate claimed therein, and a prayer to have his own boundaries established and the nature of his estate declared.

All persons claiming any estate in the premises, and those whose lands adjoin, shall be notified of the proceedings. Unless they or some of them, by answer on oath, deny the truth of all or some of the matters alleged, the clerk shall order a surveyor to run and designate the boundaries of the petitioner's land, and return his survey, with a plot thereof, to the court. This, when confirmed, shall, with the declaration of the court as to the nature of the estate of the petitioner, be registered and have, as to the persons notified, the effect of a deed for the same, executed by the person possessed of the same next before the petitioner. But in all cases, however, wherein the process of surveying is disputed, and the surveyor is forbidden to proceed by any person interested, the same proceedings shall be had as under the Chapter entitled Boundaries.

If any of the persons notified deny by answer the truth of the conveyance, the clerk shall transfer the issues of fact to the superior court, to be tried as other issues of fact are required by law to be tried; and on the verdict and the pleadings the judge shall adjudge the rights of the parties, and declare the contents of the deed, if any deed is found by the jury, and allow the registration of such judgment and declaration, which shall have the force and effect of a deed. (1865-6, c. 41, s. 3; Code, s. 56; Rev., s. 328; C.S., s. 367; 1973, c. 108, s. 44.)

Cross References. — As to boundaries, see Chapter 38.

CASE NOTES

Remedy Additional and Not Exclusive. — This section is an enabling statute providing, not an exclusive remedy, but merely an additional one. Mobley v. Watts, 98 N.C. 284, 3 S.E. 677 (1887); Jones v. Ballou, 139 N.C. 526, 52 S.E. 254 (1905).

This section does not repeal but rather aids the common-law rules for establishing deeds, and a party may choose either mode. Cowles v. Hardin, 91 N.C. 231 (1884).

Evidence Must Show Existence, Nature and Loss. — Before the deed can be made, the plaintiff must clearly prove that a deed did exist, its legal operation, and the loss thereof.

Plummer v. Baskerville, 36 N.C. 252 (1840); Loftin v. Loftin, 96 N.C. 94, 1 S.E. 837 (1887).

Judgment Only Has Force of Original. — A judgment under this section has only such force as the original conveyance would have as evidence had it not been destroyed. McNeely v. Laxton, 149 N.C. 327, 63 S.E. 278 (1908).

Private Acts. — In a special proceeding under a private act, similar to this section, to restore certain records lost by fire or other casualty, it is necessary to conform exactly to all the terms prescribed by the statute. Cowles v. Hardin, 79 N.C. 577 (1878).

§ 98-4. Copy of lost will may be probated.

In counties where the original wills on file in the office of the clerk of superior court, and will books containing copies, are lost or destroyed, if the executor or any other person has preserved a copy of a will (the original being so lost or destroyed) with a certificate appended, signed by a clerk of the court in whose office the will was, or is required to be filed, stating that said copy is a correct one, this copy may be admitted to probate, under the same rules and in the same manner as now prescribed by law for proving wills. The proceedings in such cases shall be the same as though such copy was the original offered for the first time for probate, except that the clerk who signed such certificate shall, on oath, acknowledge his signature, or in case it appears that he has died or left the State, then his signature shall be proved by a competent witness; and the witness or witnesses to the original, who may be examined, shall be required to swear that he or they signed in the presence of the testator and by his direction a paper-writing purporting to be his last will and testament. (1868-69, c. 160, s. 1; Code, s. 57; Rev., s. 329; C.S., s. 368.)

Cross References. — As to probate of wills generally, see § 31-12 et seq.

CASE NOTES

Probate Before Clerk. — The probate of a lost will must be made before the clerk of the superior court, he alone having jurisdiction. McCormick v. Jernigan, 110 N.C. 406, 14 S.E. 971 (1892).

Statute of Limitation Does Not Apply. —

The statute of limitation does not apply to simply taking probate of a will; hence, it has no application to proceedings under this section. McCormick v. Jernigan, 110 N.C. 406, 14 S.E. 971 (1892).

§ 98-5. Copy of lost will as evidence; letters to issue.

In any action or proceeding at law, where it becomes necessary to introduce such will to establish title, or for any other purpose, a copy of the will and of the record of the probate, with a certificate signed by the clerk of the superior court for the county where the will may be recorded, stating that said record and copy are full and correct, shall be admitted as competent evidence; and when a copy of a will is admitted to probate, the clerk shall thereupon issue letters testamentary. (1868-69, c. 160, s. 2; Code, s. 58; Rev., s. 330; C.S., s. 369.)

§ 98-6. Establishing contents of will, where original and copy destroyed.

Any person desirous of establishing the contents of a will destroyed as aforesaid, there being no copy thereof, may file his petition in the office of the clerk of the superior court, setting forth the entire contents thereof, according to the best of his knowledge, information and belief. All persons having an interest under the same shall be made parties, and if the truth of such petition is denied, the issues of fact shall be transferred to the superior court for trial by a jury, whether the will was recorded, and if so recorded, the contents thereof, and the declarations of the judge shall be recorded as the will of the testator. Any devisee or legatee is a competent witness as to the contents of every part of said will, except such as may concern his own interest in the same. (1865-6, c. 41, s. 4; Code, s. 59; Rev., s. 331; C.S., s. 370; 1973, c. 108, s. 45.)

CASE NOTES

Parol Evidence. — Parol evidence may be introduced to show the contents of a will which has been lost or destroyed. Cox v. Beaufort County Lumber Co., 124 N.C. 78, 32 S.E. 381 (1899). See also Varner v. Johnston, 112 N.C.

570, 17 S.E. 483 (1893).

Parol evidence is also admissible to show the existence of such a will, its probate and its registration. Cox v. Beaufort County Lumber Co., 124 N.C. 78, 32 S.E. 381 (1899).

§ 98-7. Perpetuating destroyed judgments and proceedings.

Every person desirous of perpetuating the contents of destroyed judgments, orders or proceedings of court, or any paper admitted to record or registration, or directed to be filed for safekeeping, other than wills or conveyances of real estate, or some right or interest therein, or any deed or other instrument of writing, required to be recorded or registered, but not having been recorded or registered, it being competent to register or record said deed or other instrument at the time of its loss or destruction, may file his petition in the court having jurisdiction of like matters with the original proceeding, setting forth the substance of the whole record, deed, proceeding, or paper, which he desires to perpetuate. If, on the hearing, the court shall declare the existence of such record, deed, or proceeding, or paper at the time of the burning of the office wherein the same was lodged or kept, or other destruction thereof, and that the same was there destroyed, and shall declare the contents thereof, such declaration shall be recorded or registered, or filed, according to the nature of the paper destroyed. (1865-6, c. 41, s. 5; Code, s. 60; Rev., s. 332; C.S., s. 371.)

CASE NOTES

Restored Record Free from Collateral Attack. — Where the destroyed record has been restored, the record so restored cannot be collaterally attacked. Branch v. Griffin, 99 N.C. 173, 5 S.E. 393 (1888).

§ 98-8. Color of title under destroyed instrument.

Every person who has been in the continual, peaceable and quiet possession of land, tenements, or hereditaments, situated in the county, claiming, using and occupying them as his own, for the space of seven years, under known boundaries, the title thereto being out of the State, is deemed to have been lawfully possessed, under color of title, of such estate therein as has been claimed by him during his possession, although he may exhibit no conveyance therefor: Provided, that such possession commenced before the destruction of the registry office, or other destruction as aforesaid, and also that any such person, or any person claiming by, through or under him, makes affidavit and produces such proof as is satisfactory to the court that the possession was rightfully taken; and if taken under a written conveyance, that the registry thereof was destroyed by fire or other means, or was destroyed before registry as aforesaid, and that neither the original nor any copy thereof is in existence: Provided further, that such presumption shall not arise against infants, persons of nonsane memory, and persons residing out of the State, who were such at the time of possession taken, and were not therefore barred, nor were so barred at the time of the burning of the office or other destruction. (1865-6, c. 41, s. 6; Code, s. 61; Rev., s. 333; C.S., s. 372.)

Cross References. — As to title by adverse possession generally, see § 1-35 et seq.

CASE NOTES

In an action to recover land under this section, the plaintiff showed title out of the State by a 30 years' possession. It was held that this statute did not make it necessary to show seven years' adverse possession in addition to the 30 years. The lapse of seven years' adverse possession concurrently with the 30 years was sufficient. Hill v. Overton, 81 N.C. 393 (1879).

§ 98-9. Action on destroyed bond.

Actions on official or other bonds lodged in any office which are destroyed with the registry thereof may be prosecuted by petition against the principal and sureties thereto, and the proceedings shall be as in the former courts of equity. (1865-6, c. 41, s. 7; Code, s. 62; Rev., s. 334; C.S., s. 373.)

CASE NOTES

Nature of Proceedings Is Equitable. — The nature of the proceedings under this section is equitable. McCormick v. Jernigan, 110 N.C. 406, 14 S.E. 971 (1892).

§ 98-10. Destroyed witness tickets; duplicates may be filed.

The court having jurisdiction of the action may allow other witness tickets to be filed in place of such as may be destroyed, upon the oath of the witness or other satisfactory proof. (1865-6, c. 41, s. 8; Code, s. 63; Rev., s. 335; C.S., s. 374.)

§ 98-11. Replacing lost official conveyances.

Where any conveyance executed by any person, sheriff, clerk and master, or commissioner of court has been lost, and registry thereof destroyed as aforesaid, and there is no copy thereof, such persons, whether in or out of office, may execute another of like tenor and date, reciting therein that the same is a duplicate, and such deed shall be evidence of the facts therein recited, in all cases wherein the parties thereto are dead, or are incompetent witnesses to prove the same, to the extent as if it was the original conveyance. (1865-6, c. 41, s. 9; Code, s. 64; Rev., s. 336; C.S., s. 375.)

§ 98-12. Court records as proof of destroyed instruments set out therein.

The records of any court in or out of the State, and all transcripts of such records, and the exhibits filed therewith in any case, are admissible to prove the existence and contents of all deeds, wills, conveyances, depositions and other papers, copies whereof are therein set forth or exhibited, in all cases where the records and registry of such as were or ought to have been recorded and registered, or the originals of such as were not proper to be recorded or registered, have been destroyed as aforesaid, although such transcripts or exhibits have been informally certified; and when offered in evidence have the like effect as though the transcript or record was the record of the court whose records are destroyed, and the deeds, wills and conveyances, depositions and other papers therein copied or therewith exhibited were original. (1865-6, c. 41, s. 10; Code, s. 65; Rev., s. 337; C.S., s. 376.)

CASE NOTES

When papers have been lost and, under the plaintiff, the plaintiff prevails. Fain v. Gaddis, 144 N.C. 765, 57 S.E. 1111 (1907).
competent evidence and instructions, the jury has found their contents to be as contended by

§ 98-13. Copies contained in court records may be recorded.

The copies aforesaid of all such deeds, wills, conveyances and other instruments proper to be recorded or registered, as are mentioned in G.S. 98-12, may be recorded or registered on application to the clerk of the superior court and due proof that the original thereof was genuine. (1865-6, c. 41, s. 11; Code, s. 66; Rev., s. 338; C.S., s. 377.)

§ 98-14. Rules for petitions and motions.

The following rules shall be observed in petitions and motions under this Chapter:

- (1) The facts stated in every petition or motion shall be verified by affidavit of the petitioner that they are true according to the best of his knowledge, information, and belief.
- (2) The instrument or paper sought to be established by any petition shall be fully set forth in its substance, and its precise language shall be stated when the same is remembered.
- (3) All persons interested in the prayers of the petition or decree shall be made parties.
- (4) Petitions to establish a record of any court shall be filed in the superior court of the county where the record is sought to be established. Other petitions may be filed in the office of the clerk.

- (5) The costs shall be paid as the court may decree.
- (6) Appeals shall be allowed as in all other cases, and where the error alleged shall be a finding by the superior court of a matter of fact, the same may be removed on appeal to the appellate division, and the proper judgments directed to be entered below.
- (7) It shall be presumed that any order or record of the court of pleas and quarter sessions, which was made and has been lost or destroyed, was made by a legally constituted court, and the requisite number of justices, without naming said justices. (1865-6, c. 41, s. 12; 1874-5, c. 51; c. 254, s. 3; Code, s. 67; 1893, c. 295; Rev., s. 339; C.S., s. 378; 1969, c. 44, s. 64; 1973, c. 108, s. 46.)

CASE NOTES

Affidavit by Agent Held Insufficient. — In a proceeding under this section, an affidavit by the agent of the petitioner to the effect that the facts set forth in the complaint were “true to the best of his knowledge, information and belief” was an insufficient verification. Cowles v. Hardin, 79 N.C. 577 (1878).

Waiver of Verification. — The requirement that when one pleading in a court of record is verified, every subsequent pleading in the same proceeding, except a demurrer, must be verified also, is one which may be waived except in those cases where the form and substance of the verification is made an essential part of the pleading, as in an action for divorce in which a special form of affidavit is required under § 50-8, or in a proceeding to restore a lost record under this section. Calaway v. Harris, 229 N.C. 117, 47 S.E.2d 796 (1948).

Parties. — It seems that all persons whose estates may be affected by a proceeding to restore lost records should be made parties. Cowles v. Hardin, 79 N.C. 577 (1878).

§ 98-15. Records allowed under this Chapter to have effect of original records.

The records and registries allowed by the court in pursuance of this Chapter shall have the same force and effect as original records and registries. (1865-6, c. 41, s. 14; Code, s. 68; Rev., s. 340; C.S., s. 379.)

CASE NOTES

Copies Only Have Effect of Originals. — The copies have only the same force and effect as the lost or destroyed deeds would have had, if produced. McNeely v. Laxton, 149 N.C. 327, 63 S.E. 278 (1908).

Negligently Delayed Reregistration Held Not to Affect Rights of Bona Fide Purchasers. — When a deed, absolute on its face, but intended as a mortgage, was executed in 1859, and a defeasance was executed in pursuance of the intention of the parties in 1861, and recorded in 1862, and in 1864 the records were destroyed, subsequent purchasers for value, without actual notice, whose deeds were duly recorded, were not affected with notice of such registration. Nor could reregistration of the defeasance in 1886, after the registration of the mesne conveyances to the innocent purchasers, avail to defeat their rights. Waters v. Crabtree, 105 N.C. 394, 11 S.E. 240 (1890).

§ 98-16. Destroyed court records proved prima facie by recitals in conveyances executed before their destruction.

The recitals, reference to, or mention of any decree, order, judgment or other record of any court of record of any county in which the courthouse, or records of said courts, or both, have been destroyed by fire or otherwise, contained, recited or set forth in any deed of conveyance, paper-writing, or other bona fide written evidence of title, executed prior to the destruction of the courthouse and records of said county, by any executor or administrator with a will annexed, or by any clerk and master, superior court clerk, clerk of the court of pleas and quarter sessions, sheriff, or other officer, or commissioners appointed by either of said courts, and authorized by law to execute said deed or other paper-writing, are deemed, taken and recognized as true in fact, and are prima facie evidence of the existence, validity and binding force of said decree, order, judgment or other record so referred to or recited in said deed or paper-writing, and are to all intents and purposes binding and valid against all persons mentioned or described in said instrument of writing, deed, etc., as purporting to be parties thereto, and against all persons who were parties to said decree, judgment, order or other record so referred to or recited, and against all persons claiming by, through or under them or either of them. (1870-1, c. 86, s. 1; 1871-2, c. 64, s. 1; Code, s. 69; Rev., s. 341; C.S., s. 380.)

CASE NOTES

Constitutionality. — This section is constitutional. Barefoot v. Musselwhite, 153 N.C. 208, 69 S.E. 71 (1910).

Evidence Must Show Destruction of Records. — The fact of the destruction by fire or otherwise of the records must be shown before the recitals, reference to, or mention of any decree, judgement, or other record recited in a deed of conveyance, etc., shall have the effect of evidence under this section. Barefoot v. Musselwhite, 153 N.C. 208, 69 S.E. 71 (1910). See Dail v. Suggs, 85 N.C. 104 (1881).

Where the original papers of the judgment roll have been lost, the minute docket of the court may be introduced to prove the contents thereof. Hare v. Hollomon, 94 N.C. 14 (1886); Everett v. Newton, 118 N.C. 919, 23 S.E. 961 (1896).

This section was applied where a deed made in compliance to a decree of court was destroyed, the recitals in the decree being taken as prima facie evidence of facts and authority. Irvin v. Clark, 98 N.C. 437, 4 S.E. 30 (1887). See Isler v. Isler, 88 N.C. 576 (1883).

The recitals in a deed which refer to the decree, so as to identify it, are of themselves prima facie evidence of its binding force and validity as against all persons who were parties to said decree. Pinnell v. Burroughs, 172 N.C. 182, 90 S.E. 218 (1916). See also Hare v. Hollomon, 94 N.C. 14 (1886); Everett v. Newton, 118 N.C. 919, 23 S.E. 961 (1896); Pinnell v. Burroughs, 168 N.C. 315, 84 S.E. 364 (1915).

§ 98-17. Conveyances reciting court records prima facie evidence thereof.

Such deed of conveyance, or other paper-writing, executed as aforesaid, and registered according to law, may be read in any suit now pending or which may hereafter be instituted in any court of this State, as prima facie evidence of the existence and validity of the decree, judgment, order, or other record upon which the same purports to be founded, without any other or further restoration or reinstatement of said decree, order, judgment, or record than is contained in this Chapter. (1870-1, c. 86, s. 2; Code, s. 70; Rev., s. 342; C.S., s. 381.)

CASE NOTES

Constitutionality. — The constitutionality and validity of this section cannot now be open to dispute. Barefoot v. Musselwhite, 153 N.C. 208, 69 S.E. 71 (1910).

§ 98-18. Court records and conveyances to which Chapter extends.

This Chapter shall extend to records of any court which have been or may be destroyed by fire or otherwise, and to any deed of conveyance, paper-writing, or other bona fide evidence of title executed before the destruction of said records. (1871-2, c. 64, s. 2; 1874-5, c. 254, s. 2; Code, s. 71; Rev., s. 343; C.S., s. 382.)

Chapter 99.

Libel and Slander.

Sec.	Sec.
99-1. Libel against newspaper; defamation by or through radio or television station; notice before action.	99-4. [Repealed.]
99-2. Effect of publication or broadcast in good faith and retraction.	99-5. Negligence in permitting defamatory statements by others essential to liability of operator, etc., of broadcasting station.
99-3. Anonymous communications.

§ 99-1. Libel against newspaper; defamation by or through radio or television station; notice before action.

(a) Before any action, either civil or criminal, is brought for the publication, in a newspaper or periodical, of a libel, the plaintiff or prosecutor shall at least five days before instituting such action serve notice in writing on the defendant, specifying the article and the statements therein which he alleges to be false and defamatory.

(b) Before any action, either civil or criminal, is brought for the publishing, speaking, uttering, or conveying by words, acts or in any other manner of a libel or slander by or through any radio or television station, the plaintiff or prosecutor shall at least five days before instituting such action serve notice in writing on the defendant, specifying the time of and the words or acts which he or they allege to be false and defamatory. (1901, c. 557; Rev., s. 2012; C.S., s. 2429; 1943, c. 238, s. 1.)

CASE NOTES

Constitutionality. — Session Laws 1901, c. 557, known as the "London Libel Law" and subsequently appearing as §§ 2429, 2430 and 2431 of the Consolidated Statutes (now subsection (a) of this section, § 99-2(a), and § 99-3, respectively), was held constitutional in Osborn v. Leach, 135 N.C. 628, 47 S.E. 811 (1904). See also Pentuff v. Park, 194 N.C. 146, 138 S.E. 616, 53 A.L.R. 626 (1927).

Complaint Must Allege Notice. — Under this section, a complaint in an action for libel must allege the giving of five days' notice to the defendant in writing, specifying the article and the statements alleged to be false. Williams v. Smith, 134 N.C. 249, 46 S.E. 502 (1904).

Failure to Allege Notice. — In an action against a newspaper for libel, the failure of the complainant to allege the five days' notice rendered it demurrable. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N.C. 628, 47 S.E. 811 (1904).

Amendment Showing Notice. — Where a demurrer was sustained to a complaint for libel against a newspaper because it failed to appear that notice of the action had been given, the trial court could permit an amendment showing that fact. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N.C. 628, 47 S.E. 811 (1904).

Letter as Sufficient Notice. — A letter written by plaintiff and received by defendant, in which demand was made for a retraction and apology for a clearly specified article, and in which the alleged false and defamatory statements were plainly indicated, was a sufficient notice in writing as required by this section, the provisions of former § 1-585 (see now § 1A-1, Rule 5) relating to notice in judicial proceedings after suit has been instituted, not being applicable. Roth v. Greensboro News Co., 214 N.C. 23, 197 S.E. 569 (1938).

Failure to Give Notice. — In an action for libel against a newspaper, the failure to give notice of the action as required only relieves the paper of punitive damages. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N.C. 628, 47 S.E. 811 (1904).

When Notice Unnecessary. — In an action for libel, where the newspaper publishes a retraction, no notice need be given. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N.C. 628, 47 S.E. 811 (1904).

Whether the provisions of this Chapter as to notice to the defendant in an action for libel, looking to retraction and apology, apply to individuals having no connection with a newspaper publishing the libel, was questioned in Paul v. National Auction Co., 181 N.C. 1, 105 S.E. 881 (1921).

Compensatory Damages. — This section and § 99-2, relating to notice looking to a retraction and apology, having significance only on the question of punitive damages, do not include compensatory damages for “pecuniary loss, physical pain, mental suffering, and injury to reputation.” In Osborn v. Leach, 135 N.C. 628, 43 S.E. 811 (1904), it was held that an action for libel may proceed for the recovery of compensatory damages, whether the notice has been given or otherwise. Paul v. National Auction Co., 181 N.C. 1, 105 S.E. 881 (1921). See Kindley v. Privette, 241 N.C. 140, 84 S.E.2d 660 (1954).

For case in which service of notice under former § 1-585 was distinguished, see Roth v. Greensboro News Co., 214 N.C. 23, 197 S.E. 569 (1938).

Applied in Harrell v. Goerch, 209 N.C. 741, 184 S.E. 489 (1936).

Cited in Woody v. Catawba Valley Broadcasting Co., 272 N.C. 459, 158 S.E.2d 578 (1968); Cline v. Brown, 24 N.C. App. 209, 210 S.E.2d 446 (1974); Lamb v. Wedgewood S. Corp., 308 N.C. 419, 302 S.E.2d 868 (1983).

§ 99-2. Effect of publication or broadcast in good faith and retraction.

(a) If it appears upon the trial that said article was published in good faith, that its falsity was due to an honest mistake of the facts, and that there were reasonable grounds for believing that the statements in said article were true, and that within 10 days after the service of said notice a full and fair correction, apology and retraction was published in the same editions or corresponding issues of the newspaper or periodical in which said article appeared, and in as conspicuous place and type as was said original article, then the plaintiff in such case, if a civil action, shall recover only actual damages, and if, in a criminal proceeding, a verdict of “guilty” is rendered on such a state of facts, the defendant shall be fined a penny and the costs, and no more.

(b) If it appears upon the trial that such words or acts were conveyed and broadcast in good faith, that their falsity was due to an honest mistake of the facts, or without prior knowledge or approval of such station, and if with prior knowledge or approval that there were reasonable grounds for believing that the words or acts were true, and that within 10 days after the service of said notice a full and fair correction, apology and retraction was conveyed or broadcast by or over such radio or television station at approximately the same time of day and by the same sending power so as to be as visible and audible as the original acts or words complained of, then the plaintiff in such case, if a civil action, shall recover only actual damages, and if, in a criminal proceeding, a verdict of “guilty” is rendered on such state of facts, the defendant shall be fined a penny and costs, and no more. (1901, c. 557; Rev., s. 2013; C.S., s. 2430; 1943, c. 238, s. 2.)

CASE NOTES

Constitutionality. — Subsection (a) of this section, providing that a newspaper publishing a libel may avoid, under certain conditions, the payment of punitive damages, is not discriminatory, and is a constitutional enactment. Pentuff v. Park, 194 N.C. 146, 138 S.E. 616, 53

A.L.R. 626 (1927). See also Osborn v. Leach, 135 N.C. 628, 47 S.E. 811 (1904).

A recovery of actual damages does not abridge the freedom of the press. Pentuff v. Park, 194 N.C. 146, 138 S.E. 616, 53 A.L.R. 626 (1927).

Where a statute for libel applies equally to all newspapers and periodicals, it does not amount to unconstitutional discrimination. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N.C. 628, 47 S.E. 811 (1904).

Form of Retraction. — While this section does not prescribe any particular form of retraction, it does require a categorical retraction and apology. The mere statement that defendant had come into possession of information contrary to that theretofore published was insufficient to meet the requirements of this section, nor was it incumbent on plaintiff to approve or disapprove thereof, and this failure to do so did not exculpate defendant or preclude the submission of an issue of punitive damages. Roth v. Greensboro News Co., 217 N.C. 13, 6 S.E.2d 882 (1940).

“Actual Damages.” — The “actual damages” recoverable in a suit for libelous publication by a newspaper in the event of a retraction, allowed by the statute, is for pecuniary loss, direct or indirect, or for physical pain and inconvenience. Pentuff v. Park, 194 N.C. 146, 138 S.E. 616, 53 A.L.R. 626 (1927).

Actual damages also include mental suffering and injury to reputation. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N.C. 628, 47 S.E. 811 (1904).

Damages When Defendants Do Not Comply. — Where the defendants did not avail themselves of the privilege given them under this section, the damages that could be awarded would include punitive as well as actual damages. Pentuff v. Park, 194 N.C. 146, 138 S.E. 616, 53 A.L.R. 626 (1927).

Damages as “Property.” — The right to have punitive damages assessed is not property, but the right to recover actual or compensatory damages is property. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N.C. 628, 47 S.E. 811 (1904).

Only Actual Damages Recoverable Where Publication in Good Faith Is Followed by Correction. — Where plaintiff's evidence established a false publication, and defendant's evidence showed that the publication was made in good faith through error, and that a correction and retraction was published upon defendant ascertaining the facts, plaintiff was entitled to recover the actual damage sustained by him. Lay v. Gazette Publishing Co., 209 N.C. 134, 183 S.E. 416 (1936).

No Punitive Damages May Be Recovered in the Absence of Malice or Wantonness and Recklessness. See Lay v. Gazette Publishing Co., 209 N.C. 134, 183 S.E. 416 (1936).

For definition of actual malice, see Cline v. Brown, 24 N.C. App. 209, 210 S.E.2d 446 (1974), cert. denied, 286 N.C. 412, 211 S.E.2d 793 (1975).

When Malice May Not Be Inferred by Jury. — Malice may not be inferred by the jury from a false publication when defendant's uncontradicted evidence rebuts the presumption by showing that the publication was made in good faith through error, and that a correction and retraction was published upon defendant ascertaining the facts. Lay v. Gazette Publishing Co., 209 N.C. 134, 183 S.E. 416 (1936).

Defendant's Pleading. — In an action for libel against a newspaper, the paper having pleaded a retraction of the publication, it is necessary for the defendant to show that the publication was made in good faith, and with reasonable ground to believe it to be true, in order to relieve the paper from punitive damages. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N.C. 628, 47 S.E. 811 (1904).

Cited in Lamb v. Wedgewood S. Corp., 308 N.C. 419, 302 S.E.2d 868 (1983).

§ 99-3. Anonymous communications.

The two preceding sections [G.S. 99-1 and 99-2] shall not apply to anonymous communications and publications. (1901, c. 557, s. 3; Rev., s. 2014; C.S., s. 2431.)

CASE NOTES

An article signed “Smith” is not an anonymous publication under this section. Williams v. Smith, 134 N.C. 249, 46 S.E. 502 (1904).

§ 99-4: Repealed by Session Laws 1975, c. 402.

§ 99-5. Negligence in permitting defamatory statements by others essential to liability of operator, etc., of broadcasting station.

The owner, licensee or operator of a visual or sound radio broadcasting station or network of stations, and the agents or employees of any such owner, licensee or operator, shall not be liable for any damage for any defamatory statement published or uttered in or as a part of a visual or sound radio broadcast, by one other than such owner, licensee or operator, or agent or employee thereof, unless such owner, licensee or operator shall be guilty of negligence in permitting any such defamatory statement. (1949, c. 262.)

Legal Periodicals. — For brief comment on this section, see 27 N.C.L. Rev. 488 (1949).

Chapter 99A.

Civil Remedies for Criminal Actions.

Sec.

99A-1. Recovery of damages for interference with property rights.

§ 99A-1. Recovery of damages for interference with property rights.

Notwithstanding any other provisions of the General Statutes of North Carolina, when personal property is wrongfully taken and carried away from the owner or person in lawful possession of such property without his consent and with the intent to permanently deprive him of the use, possession and enjoyment of said property, a right of action arises for recovery of actual and punitive damages from any person who has or has had, possession of said property knowing the property to be stolen.

An agent having possession, actual or constructive, of property lawfully owned by his principal, shall have a right of action in behalf of his principal for any unlawful interference with that possession by a third person.

In cases of bailments where the possession is in the bailee, a trespass committed during the existence of the bailment shall give a right of action to the bailee for the interference with his special property and a concurrent right of action to the bailor for the interference with his general property.

Any abuse of, or damage done to, the personal property of another or one who is in possession thereof, unlawfully, is a trespass for which damages may be recovered. (1973, c. 809.)

CASE NOTES

Owner May Collect Actual and Punitive Damages from One Criminally Guilty of Receiving Stolen Property. — It is reasonably clear that the first paragraph of this section is fairly consistent with the title of the bill from which it was enacted, and that the owner of stolen property may collect actual and punitive damages from one who is criminally guilty of receiving the stolen property. Russell v. Taylor, 37 N.C. App. 520, 246 S.E.2d 569 (1978).

This section creates a right of action in the owner, his agent or a bailee of stolen property for recovery of damages from one who is criminally guilty of receiving stolen property. Noell v. Winston, 51 N.C. App. 455, 276 S.E.2d 766, cert. denied, 303 N.C. 315, 281 S.E.2d 652 (1981).

Finding of Knowledge by Defendant Required to Support Award Under First Paragraph. — No actual or punitive damages could be awarded pursuant to the first paragraph of this section in an action in which the plaintiff alleged that the defendant sold a mobile home to her and thereafter wrongfully took possession of and converted the mobile home and its contents, where there was no finding of fact that the defendant received the property knowing it to be stolen. Russell v. Taylor, 37

N.C. App. 520, 246 S.E.2d 569 (1978).

Paragraphs two and three of this section merely create rights of action in agents of the owners and bailees of the personal property the possession of which has been unlawfully interfered with. Russell v. Taylor, 37 N.C. App. 520, 246 S.E.2d 569 (1978).

Punitive Damages Not Authorized Under Last Paragraph. — Applying a strict construction to the last paragraph of this section, it does not authorize the recovery of punitive damages. Russell v. Taylor, 37 N.C. App. 520, 246 S.E.2d 569 (1978).

While the last paragraph of this section provides for the recovery of damages for an "unlawful" abuse of or damage to the personal property of another, it says nothing about punitive damages. Russell v. Taylor, 37 N.C. App. 520, 246 S.E.2d 569 (1978).

Deletion of Attorney's Name from Appointment Lists. — Plaintiff attorney's allegations that defendant members of a county bar association committee had deleted plaintiff's name from indigent defendant appointment lists and that the district bar had not adopted a plan authorizing defendants to formulate rules for appointment of counsel failed to state a claim for damages based on a denial of due process or trespass against plaintiff's property rights under this section. Noell v. Winston, 51 N.C. App. 455, 276 S.E.2d 766, cert. denied, 303 N.C. 315, 281 S.E.2d 652 (1981).

Chapter 99B.

Products Liability.

Sec.

99B-1. Definitions.

99B-1.1. Strict liability.

99B-1.2. Breach of warranty.

99B-2. Seller's opportunity to inspect; privity requirements for warranty claims.

99B-3. Alteration or modification of product.

99B-4. Knowledge or reasonable care.

99B-5. Claims based on inadequate warning or instruction.

Sec.

99B-6. Claims based on inadequate design or formulation.

99B-7 through 99B-9. [Reserved.]

99B-10. Immunity for donated food.

99B-11. Claims based on defective design of firearms.

§ 99B-1. Definitions.

When used in this Chapter, unless the context otherwise requires:

- (1) "Claimant" means a person or other entity asserting a claim and, if said claim is asserted on behalf of an estate, an incompetent or a minor, "claimant" includes plaintiff's decedent, guardian, or guardian ad litem.
- (2) "Manufacturer" means a person or entity who designs, assembles, fabricates, produces, constructs or otherwise prepares a product or component part of a product prior to its sale to a user or consumer, including a seller owned in whole or significant part by the manufacturer or a seller owning the manufacturer in whole or significant part.
- (3) "Product liability action" includes any action brought for or on account of personal injury, death or property damage caused by or resulting from the manufacture, construction, design, formulation, development of standards, preparation, processing, assembly, testing, listing, certifying, warning, instructing, marketing, selling, advertising, packaging, or labeling of any product.
- (4) "Seller" includes a retailer, wholesaler, or distributor, and means any individual or entity engaged in the business of selling a product, whether such sale is for resale or for use or consumption. "Seller" also includes a lessor or bailor engaged in the business of leasing or bailment of a product. (1979, c. 654, s. 1; 1995, c. 522, s. 1.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1979, c. 654, s. 6, provided: "The provisions of this act shall not be construed to amend or repeal the provisions of G.S. 1-17."

Session Laws 1995, c. 522, s. 3 provides that this act, which amended existing sections in this Chapter and enacted new ones, shall not apply to product liability actions for injury or death resulting from any silicone gel breast implant implanted prior to January 1, 1996.

CASE NOTES

Purpose. — This Chapter provides protection for merchants who merely sell products while allowing the purchaser of the product to proceed against the manufacturer of the product. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Chrysler Corp., 845 F. Supp. 1122 (M.D.N.C. 1994).

This Chapter does not adopt strict liability in product liability cases. Smith v. Fiber Controls Corp., 300 N.C. 669, 268 S.E.2d 504 (1980).

North Carolina expressly rejects strict liability in products liability actions. Bryant v. Adams, 116 N.C. App. 448, 448 S.E.2d 832 (1994), cert. denied, 339 N.C. 736, 454 S.E.2d 647 (1995).

The North Carolina legislature intended to establish a fixed cut-off date to bar actions brought after six years involving an injury caused by a manufactured good. A defendant escapes liability if the action is not brought within the six-year window provided by § 1-50(6) (now § 1-50(a)(6)). Lindsay v. Public Serv. Co., 725 F. Supp. 278 (W.D.N.C. 1989), appeal dismissed, 732 F. Supp. 623 (W.D.N.C. 1990).

With No Exception for Failure to Warn. — The statute of repose, § 1-50(6) (now § 1-50(a)(6)), as incorporated into this Chapter, the North Carolina products liability statute, anticipates that the statute includes any action brought for or on account of personal injury. Specifically, the statute includes those injuries caused by or resulting from a warning or lack thereof. Thus, the statute of repose contains no exception for failure to warn. Lindsay v. Public Serv. Co., 725 F. Supp. 278 (W.D.N.C. 1989), appeal dismissed, 732 F. Supp. 623 (W.D.N.C. 1990).

Period of Limitations. — Section 1-50(6) (now § 1-50(a)(6)) was enacted with this Chapter to provide a period of limitations for actions to which this Chapter applies. Bernick v. Jurden, 306 N.C. 435, 293 S.E.2d 405 (1982).

Statute of Repose. — This section does not completely eviscerate the statute of repose in the case of minors and others under disability. If a product is over six years old at the time of injury, which would be the time that the claim accrues, than the statute of repose operates as a total bar on that claim; however, if a claim accrues before the six year statute of repose has expired, this section simply operates to extend the time period within which a minor or other with disability may bring suit under Chapter 99B. Therefore, claims accruing after six years will still be barred. Bryant v. Adams, 116 N.C. App. 448, 448 S.E.2d 832 (1994), cert. denied, 339 N.C. 736, 454 S.E.2d 647 (1995).

Recovery for Economic Losses. — In the context of a products liability suit, purely economic losses cannot ordinarily be recovered in an action for negligence. Chicopee, Inc. v. Sims Metal Works, Inc., 98 N.C. App. 423, 391 S.E.2d 211, appeal withdrawn, 328 N.C. 329, 402 S.E.2d 826.

Recoverable Losses. — With respect to what losses are recoverable in a products liability suit, North Carolina follows the majority rule and does not allow recovery of purely economic losses in an action for negligence. AT & T Corp. v. Medical Review of N.C., Inc., 876 F. Supp. 91 (E.D.N.C. 1995).

Purely Economic Loss. — Purely economic loss is not recoverable under tort law in a products liability action in North Carolina. AT & T Corp. v. Medical Review of N.C., Inc., 876 F. Supp. 91 (E.D.N.C. 1995).

Where third party plaintiff claimed it was entitled to maintain an action under the Products Liability Act that would fall within the exception to the privity requirement in the context of breach or implied warranty, but did not allege that defects in the voice mail system resulted in any physical injury or property damage and only alleged economic loss, the general rule regarding privity remained intact and third party plaintiff could not maintain its breach of implied warranty claim. AT & T Corp. v. Medical Review of N.C., Inc., 876 F. Supp. 91 (E.D.N.C. 1995).

The imprinting of retailer's trademark in shoe was insufficient to bring retailer within the definition of manufacturer in subdivision (2) of this section. Morrison v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 80 N.C. App. 224, 341 S.E.2d 40, rev'd on other grounds, 319 N.C. 298, 354 S.E.2d 495 (1987).

"Selling" encompasses delivery of products. Champs Convenience Stores, Inc. v. United Chem. Co., 99 N.C. App. 275, 392 S.E.2d 761 (1990), rev'd on other grounds, 329 N.C. 446, 406 S.E.2d 856 (1991).

Action of Breach of Implied Warranty of Merchantability. — The implied warranty of merchantability arises under the UCC upon the sale of goods when the seller is a merchant with respect to goods of the kind sold. The term "product liability action" as used in the Products Liability Act includes "any action brought for or on account of personal injury, death or property damage caused by or resulting from . . . the selling . . . of any product.” Therefore, an action of breach of implied warranty of merchantability under the UCC is a “product liability action” within the meaning of the Products Liability Act if the action is for injury to person or property resulting from the sale of a product. Morrison v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 319 N.C. 298, 354 S.E.2d 495 (1987).

Negligence Action for Injuries Caused by the Warning or Instructing of Products.

— Although the legislature did not undertake to define what “products” are covered by Chapter 99B, subsection (3) of this section anticipates, that a products liability action may include an action for personal injuries caused by or resulting from the “warning or instructing” of any product. Driver v. Burlington Aviation, Inc., 110 N.C. App. 519, 430 S.E.2d 476 (1993).

Where plaintiff’s amended complaint alleged that aircraft manufacturer had a duty to the pilot and his passengers to provide complete and accurate instruction concerning various mechanical functions, and that the manual wrongfully instructed concerning these functions and that the negligence of the aircraft manufacturer actually and proximately caused the damages to the plaintiffs, the allegations were sufficient to state a claim for relief based on a theory of negligence against the aircraft manufacturer in the preparation and publication of the information manual. Driver v. Burlington Aviation, Inc., 110 N.C. App. 519, 430 S.E.2d 476 (1993).

Applied in Wilson Bros. v. Mobil Oil, 63 N.C. App. 334, 305 S.E.2d 40 (1983); Crews v. W.A. Brown & Son, 106 N.C. App. 324, 416 S.E.2d 924 (1992).

§ 99B-1.1. Strict liability.

There shall be no strict liability in tort in product liability actions. (1995, c. 522, s. 1.)

§ 99B-1.2. Breach of warranty.

Nothing in this act shall preclude a product liability action that otherwise exists against a manufacturer or seller for breach of warranty. The defenses provided for in this Chapter shall apply to claims for breach of warranty unless expressly excluded under this Chapter. (1995, c. 522, s. 1.)

§ 99B-2. Seller’s opportunity to inspect; privity requirements for warranty claims.

(a) No product liability action, except an action for breach of express warranty, shall be commenced or maintained against any seller when the product was acquired and sold by the seller in a sealed container or when the product was acquired and sold by the seller under circumstances in which the seller was afforded no reasonable opportunity to inspect the product in such a manner that would have or should have, in the exercise of reasonable care, revealed the existence of the condition complained of, unless the seller damaged or mishandled the product while in his possession; provided, that the provisions of this section shall not apply if the manufacturer of the product is not subject to the jurisdiction of the courts of this State or if such manufacturer has been judicially declared insolvent.

(b) A claimant who is a buyer, as defined in the Uniform Commercial Code, of the product involved, or who is a member or a guest of a member of the family of the buyer, a guest of the buyer, or an employee of the buyer may bring a product liability action directly against the manufacturer of the product involved for breach of implied warranty; and the lack of privity of contract shall not be grounds for the dismissal of such action. (1979, c. 654, s. 1; 1989, c. 420; 1995, c. 522, s. 1.)

CASE NOTES

Subsection (a) as Defense Under UCC. — The legislature intended that subsection (a) be available as a defense to actions for breach of an implied warranty of merchantability brought under the UCC. Morrison v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 319 N.C. 298, 354 S.E.2d 495 (1987).

Subsection (a) as Defense in Breach of Implied Warranty Actions. — In products liability actions arising from breaches of implied warranties, unlike those arising from breaches of express warranties, the defenses provided by subsection (a) are available to defendants. Morrison v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 319 N.C. 298, 354 S.E.2d 495 (1987).

Intent of Defenses. — The defenses established in this section were intended to limit the liability of merchants who merely sell products without any knowledge of any defect in the product. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Chrysler Corp., 845 F. Supp. 1122 (M.D.N.C. 1994).

Act Held Inapplicable to Purchaser's Employee. — The protections of the Products Liability Act would not extend to the employee of a purchaser where the employee was covered by workers' compensation insurance. Davis v. Siloo Inc., 47 N.C. App. 237, 267 S.E.2d 354, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 234, 283 S.E.2d 131 (1980).

Where it was undisputed that plaintiff's employer purchased potato whitener for use in store, plaintiff used the product in her work, and plaintiff was covered by the Worker's Compensation Act, this section prevented plaintiff from being a claimant on an implied warranty theory against the manufacturer; therefore, defendant's motion for summary judgment on the implied warranty was properly granted. Sutton v. Major Prods. Co., 91 N.C. App. 610, 372 S.E.2d 897 (1988).

Essential elements of an action for products liability based upon negligence include: (1) Evidence of a standard of care owed by the reasonably prudent person in similar circumstances; (2) breach of that standard of care; (3) injury caused directly or proximately by the breach, and; (4) loss because of the injury. McCollum v. Grove Mfg. Co., 58 N.C. App. 283, 293 S.E.2d 632, aff'd, 307 N.C. 695, 300 S.E.2d 374 (1983), decided under law applicable prior to effective date of this Chapter.

Purely Economic Loss. — Where third party plaintiff claimed it was entitled to maintain an action under the Products Liability Act that would fall within the exception to the privity requirement in the context of breach or implied warranty, but did not allege that defects in the voice mail system resulted in any physical injury or property damage and only alleged economic loss, the general rule regarding privity remained intact and third party plaintiff could not maintain its breach of implied warranty claim. AT & T Corp. v. Medical Review of N.C., Inc., 876 F. Supp. 91 (E.D.N.C. 1995).

Privity Requirement. — This Chapter (products liability) expressly abrogates privity requirement in certain claims based upon implied warranty. However, outside exceptions created by this Chapter, general rule is that privity is required to assert claim for breach of implied warranty involving only economic loss. Sharrard, McGee & Co. v. Suz's Software, Inc., 100 N.C. App. 428, 396 S.E.2d 815 (1990).

North Carolina's Products Liability Act relaxes the privity requirement with respect to a claim for breach of implied warranty. AT & T Corp. v. Medical Review of N.C., Inc., 876 F. Supp. 91 (E.D.N.C. 1995).

Privity Not Abolished for Employee. — A buyer's employee is barred from suit against a seller grounded upon breach of implied warranty in that neither the Act nor the U.C.C. provisions regarding implied warranties abolish the privity requirement in such instance. Nicholson v. American Safety Util. Corp., 124 N.C. App. 59, 476 S.E.2d 672 (1996), cert. granted, — N.C. —, 483 S.E.2d 173 (1997), cert. granted, — N.C. —, 483 S.E.2d 174 (1997), modified and aff'd, 346 N.C. 767, 488 S.E.2d 240 (1997).

Lack of Privity. — This section allows a buyer to bring a product liability action against a manufacturer of a product regardless of the lack of privity of contract. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Chrysler Corp., 845 F. Supp. 1122 (M.D.N.C. 1994).

Seller Representing Itself as Manufacturer Is Not Protected. — Trial court erred in granting summary judgment for seller because a genuine issue of material fact existed as to whether seller was the apparent manufacturer of the heaters; a seller who holds himself out to the public as the manufacturer of a product is not protected from products liability actions by subsection (a) of this section. Warzynski v. Empire Comfort Sys., 102 N.C. App. 222, 401 S.E.2d 801 (1991).

Principles of Negligence Govern. — In products liability cases, the duty of the manufacturer in tort must be determined by the principles of negligence. The doctrine of strict liability, except for a few exceptional situations, has not been adopted. McCollum v. Grove Mfg. Co., 58 N.C. App. 283, 293 S.E.2d 632, aff'd, 307 N.C. 695, 300 S.E.2d 374 (1983), decided under law applicable prior to effective date of this Chapter.

The failure of manufacturers and distributors to properly inform purchasers of a product's hazards, uses, and misuses is a basis for rendering them legally liable for injuries resulting therefrom under some circumstances. Millikan v. Guilford Mills, Inc., 70 N.C. App. 705, 320 S.E.2d 909 (1984), cert. denied, 312 N.C. 798, 325 S.E.2d 631 (1984).

Liability for Sale of Inherently Dangerous Product. — Liability may be imposed upon a manufacturer who sells a product that is inherently dangerous. McCollum v. Grove Mfg. Co., 58 N.C. App. 283, 293 S.E.2d 632, aff'd, 307

N.C. 695, 300 S.E.2d 374 (1983), decided under law applicable prior to effective date of this Chapter.

Manufacturer of a machine which is dangerous because of the way in which it functions, and patently so, owes to those who use it a duty merely to make it free from latent defects and concealed dangers. In a case against such a manufacturer, the plaintiff must prove the existence of a latent defect or of a danger not known to the plaintiff or other users. McCollum v. Grove Mfg. Co., 58 N.C. App. 283, 293 S.E.2d 632, aff'd, 307 N.C. 695, 300 S.E.2d 374 (1983), decided under law applicable prior to effective date of this Chapter.

Protection Against Obvious Defects Not Required. — A manufacturer has no duty to equip his product with safety devices to protect against defects and dangers that are obvious. In cases dealing with a manufacturer's liability for injuries to remote users, the courts have always stressed the duty of guarding against hidden defects and of giving notice of concealed dangers. McCollum v. Grove Mfg. Co., 58 N.C. App. 283, 293 S.E.2d 632, aff'd, 307 N.C. 695, 300 S.E.2d 374 (1983), decided under law applicable prior to effective date of this Chapter.

Standard of Care in Product Design. — As to the standard of care, a manufacturer is under a duty to those who use his product to exercise that degree of care in its design and manufacture that a reasonably prudent man would use in similar circumstances. McCollum v. Grove Mfg. Co., 58 N.C. App. 283, 293 S.E.2d 632, aff'd, 307 N.C. 695, 300 S.E.2d 374 (1983), decided under law applicable prior to effective date of this Chapter.

Liability Under Crashworthiness Theory. — Under the law of North Carolina, an automobile manufacturer would not be held liable for defects in the design and manufacture of a vehicle which neither caused nor contributed to the cause of a collision, but served to exacerbate injuries sustained thereafter. Wilson v. Ford Motor Co., 656 F.2d 960 (4th Cir. 1981).

Where 1964 Volkswagen occupied by decedents and designed, manufactured and distributed by VW, burst into flames due to an allegedly defective gas tank when it was struck by a 1972 Dodge being operated on the wrong side of the highway, and it was not alleged that the defective gas tank caused the collision, the district court erred in denying VW's motions for dismissal and for summary judgment in a suit to recover damages for the wrongful deaths of decedents as a result of the alleged failure of VW to design a crashworthy vehicle. Martin v. Volkswagen of Am., Inc., 707 F.2d 823 (4th Cir. 1983).

A cause of action for enhanced injuries is permissible under North Carolina law. Warren v. Colombo, 93 N.C. App. 92, 377 S.E.2d 249 (1989); Mumford v. Colombo, 93 N.C. App. 107, 377 S.E.2d 258 (1989); Corbitt v. Colombo, 93 N.C. App. 111, 377 S.E.2d 259 (1989); Holmes v. Colombo, 93 N.C. App. 117, 377 S.E.2d 261 (1989); Corbitt v. Colombo, 93 N.C. App. 113, 377 S.E.2d 262 (1989); Albritton v. Colombo, 93 N.C. App. 115, 377 S.E.2d 264 (1989); Mumford v. Colombo, 93 N.C. App. 109, 377 S.E.2d 265 (1989).

Under the negligence theory of enhanced injury, recovery may be allowed when defects in a vehicle enhance or increase plaintiff's injuries in an accident, although the defect did not cause the accident. Warren v. Colombo, 93 N.C. App. 92, 377 S.E.2d 249 (1989).

In action to recover for death of farm worker who died after drinking pesticide, trial court properly entered summary judgment for the seller of the pesticide where plaintiff did not present any specific facts tending to show that the seller knew or should have known that manufacturer's written warnings on the product's label were inadequate, nor did plaintiff demonstrate that seller should have known that purchaser would not appreciate the possible harm involved in using a toxic pesticide which was packaged in a clear plastic container and looked like water. Ziglar v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co., 53 N.C. App. 147, 280 S.E.2d 510, cert. denied, 304 N.C. 393, 285 S.E.2d 838 (1981), decided under law applicable prior to effective date of this Chapter.

In action to recover for wrongful death of a farm laborer who drank a toxic pesticide, trial court erred in entering summary judgment for the manufacturer of the pesticide where evidence raised questions for the jury as to whether the manufacturer exercised the required degree of due care in its general manufacture and packaging of the pesticide, whether the manufacturer failed to provide adequate warnings on the product's label to notify others of its toxicity, and whether the manufacturer's first aid instructions on the product's label were ambiguous and incomplete. Ziglar v. E.I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co., 53 N.C. App. 147, 280 S.E.2d 510, cert. denied, 304 N.C. 393, 285 S.E.2d 838 (1981), decided under law applicable prior to effective date of this Chapter.

Language in Seller's Ad Held "Puffing." — Seller's advertisement that it sold "America's most complete line of reliable, economical gas heating appliances" was, under the Uniform Commercial Code, "a statement purporting to be merely the seller's opinion or commendation of the goods does not create warranty." Seller's statement that the heater was "reliable" could not be regarded by the buyers to be part of the reason for their purchase; therefore, the language in seller's advertisement was mere puffing and not an express warranty. Warzynski v. Empire Comfort Sys., 102 N.C. App. 222, 401 S.E.2d 801 (1991).

Denial of Relief Held Proper. — Where defendant distributors acquired and sold potato whitener in sealed cartons, and defendant food service, plaintiff's employer, obtained the product in sealed jars, and there was no evidence that they damaged or altered the product, this section constituted a complete bar to recovery on plaintiff's implied warranty claims against both defendants. Sutton v. Major Prods. Co., 91 N.C. App. 610, 372 S.E.2d 897 (1988).

Applied in Bernick v. Jurden, 306 N.C. 435, 293 S.E.2d 405 (1982); Tetterton v. Long Mfg. Co., 314 N.C. 44, 332 S.E.2d 67 (1985); Cato Equip. Co. v. Matthews, 91 N.C. App. 546, 372 S.E.2d 872 (1988).

Supp. 91 (E.D.N.C. 1995).

§ 99B-3. Alteration or modification of product.

(a) No manufacturer or seller of a product shall be held liable in any product liability action where a proximate cause of the personal injury, death, or damage to property was either an alteration or modification of the product by a party other than the manufacturer or seller, which alteration or modification occurred after the product left the control of such manufacturer or such seller unless:

- (1) The alteration or modification was in accordance with the instructions or specifications of such manufacturer or such seller; or
- (2) The alteration or modification was made with the express consent of such manufacturer or such seller.

(b) For the purposes of this section, alteration or modification includes changes in the design, formula, function, or use of the product from that originally designed, tested, or intended by the manufacturer. It includes failure to observe routine care and maintenance, but does not include ordinary wear and tear. (1979, c. 654, s. 1; 1995, c. 522, s. 1.)

CASE NOTES

Recovery from Manufacturer Barred. — Where the forecast of evidence demonstrated that a proximate cause of plaintiff's injury was the modification or alteration of machine in question by a party other than the manufacturer after it left the control of the manufacturer, and that the alteration of the machine was contrary to the instructions of the manufacturer and done without its express consent, this section barred recovery from the manufacturer. Rich v. Shaw, 98 N.C. App. 489, 391 S.E.2d 220, cert. denied, 327 N.C. 432, 395 S.E.2d 689 (1990).

Product liability claim against a restaurant franchisor based on an employee's spitting into a customer's food was properly dismissed; even if the franchisor had manufactured the food, the food was altered in a manner not originally intended by the franchisor, at a time after it left the franchisor's control and without its express consent. Phillips v. Restaurant Mgt. of Carolina, L.P., — N.C. App. —, 552 S.E.2d 686, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 851 (2001).

Misuse of Product Must Be a Proximate Cause. — In order for this section to act as a bar to plaintiff's recovery, the minor plaintiff's misuse of the fence and gate must have been a proximate cause of her injury, and since issues of proximate cause and foreseeability are best left to a jury, summary judgment was improper. Hastings v. Seegars Fence Co., 128 N.C. App. 166, 493 S.E.2d 782 (1997).

Applied in Cato Equip. Co. v. Matthews, 91 N.C. App. 546, 372 S.E.2d 872 (1988); Westover Prods., Inc. v. Gateway Roofing Co., 94 N.C. App. 63, 380 S.E.2d 369 (1989).

Quoted in Goodman v. Wenco Foods, Inc., 331 N.C. 1, 423 S.E.2d 444 (1992).

§ 99B-4. Knowledge or reasonable care.

No manufacturer or seller shall be held liable in any product liability action if:

- (1) The use of the product giving rise to the product liability action was contrary to any express and adequate instructions or warnings delivered with, appearing on, or attached to the product or on its original container or wrapping, if the user knew or with the exercise of reasonable and diligent care should have known of such instructions or warnings; or
- (2) The user knew of or discovered a defect or dangerous condition of the product that was inconsistent with the safe use of the product, and then unreasonably and voluntarily exposed himself or herself to the danger, and was injured by or caused injury with that product; or
- (3) The claimant failed to exercise reasonable care under the circumstances in the use of the product, and such failure was a proximate cause of the occurrence that caused the injury or damage complained of. (1979, c. 654, s. 1; 1995, c. 522, s. 1.)

CASE NOTES

Subdivision (3) codifies the common law standard of contributory negligence and does not limit the defense to a plaintiff's misuse of the product. Nicholson v. American Safety

Util. Corp., 346 N.C. 767, 488 S.E.2d 240 (1997).

The manufacturer has a duty to warn of known dangers which can be encountered during foreseeable use of the product. Lee v. Crest Chem. Co., 583 F. Supp. 131 (M.D.N.C. 1984).

A manufacturer may be held liable for negligence if he sells a dangerous article likely to cause injury in its ordinary use and the manufacturer fails to guard against hidden defects and fails to give notice of the concealed danger. Smith v. Selco Prods., Inc., 96 N.C. App. 151, 385 S.E.2d 173 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 598, 393 S.E.2d 883 (1990).

Continuing Duty to Provide Post-Sale Warnings. — A manufacturer does not completely discharge its duty to warn simply by providing some warnings of some dangerous propensity of its product at the time of sale; a continuing duty exists to provide post-sale warnings of any deficiencies it learns exist in the product to users. Smith v. Selco Prods., Inc., 96 N.C. App. 151, 385 S.E.2d 173 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 598, 393 S.E.2d 883 (1990).

Failure to adequately warn of dangerous propensities of a product may underlie a claim of breach of the implied warranty of merchantability. Lee v. Crest Chem. Co., 583 F. Supp. 131 (M.D.N.C. 1984).

The failure of manufacturers and distributors to properly inform purchasers and other users of a product's hazards, uses, and misuses is a basis for rendering them legally liable for injuries resulting therefrom under some circumstances. Millikan v. Guilford Mills, Inc., 70 N.C. App. 705, 320 S.E.2d 909 (1984), cert. denied, 312 N.C. 798, 325 S.E.2d 631 (1985).

This section codifies a form of contributory negligence. Lee v. Crest Chem. Co., 583 F. Supp. 131 (M.D.N.C. 1984).

Subdivisions (1) and (3) merely codify the doctrine of contributory negligence as it applies in actions brought under this Chapter. Champs Convenience Stores v. United Chem. Co., 329 N.C. 446, 406 S.E.2d 856 (1991).

In addition to codifying the general doctrine of contributory negligence, this section sets out or explains more specialized fact patterns which would amount to contributory negligence in a products liability action. Champs Convenience Stores v. United Chem. Co., 329 N.C. 446, 406 S.E.2d 856 (1991).

Defense of Contributory Negligence Reaffirmed. — This section specifically reaffirms the applicability of contributory negligence as a defense in product liability actions. Smith v. Fiber Controls Corp., 300 N.C. 669, 268 S.E.2d 504 (1980); Wilson Bros. v. Mobile Oil, 63 N.C. App. 334, 305 S.E.2d 40, cert. denied, 309 N.C. 634, 308 S.E.2d 718, 308 S.E.2d 719 (1983).

What Constitutes Contributory Negligence. — Plaintiff may be contributorily negligent if his conduct ignores unreasonable risks or dangers which would have been apparent to a prudent person exercising ordinary care for his own safety. Smith v. Fiber Controls Corp., 300 N.C. 669, 268 S.E.2d 504 (1980).

People who acquire or use machines and devices usually read and follow the accompanying information, since the failure to do so is evidence of contributory negligence under some circumstances. Millikan v. Guilford Mills, Inc., 70 N.C. App. 705, 320 S.E.2d 909 (1984), cert. denied, 312 N.C. 798, 325 S.E.2d 631 (1985).

The defense of contributory negligence is not invariably barred by defendant's failure to warn of a danger, when the facts indicate that plaintiff, in the exercise of ordinary care, should have known of the danger of injury independent of any warning by defendant. Smith v. Fiber Controls Corp., 300 N.C. 669, 268 S.E.2d 504 (1980).

Contributory Negligence as No Defense in Contract Claim. — Where jury found that plaintiff used walnut finish contrary to expressed and adequate instructions which plaintiff knew or should have known in the exercise of reasonable and diligent care, and defendant claimed plaintiff's contributory negligence defeated plaintiff's claim, plaintiff's breach of contract claim did not fall within the purview or effect of the Products Liability Act; where a plaintiff is able to convince a trier of fact that he or she has suffered damages flowing from the failure of a defendant to meet direct and express contractual obligations, the defense of contributory negligence has no application to that claim. Steelcase, Inc. v. Lilly Co., 93 N.C. App. 697, 379 S.E.2d 40, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 276, 384 S.E.2d 530 (1989).

Failure to Follow Instructions. — Where plaintiff would not have been burned but for her failure to follow express instructions concerning a safety precaution, and the instructions on the product's label expressly warned of the burn potential, plaintiff's omission was the proximate cause of the very injury she suffered. Lee v. Crest Chem. Co., 583 F. Supp. 131 (M.D.N.C. 1984).

Warnings regarding surgical implant given in insert to physician were sufficient notice to plaintiff patient. Padgett v. Synthes, Ltd., 677 F. Supp. 1329 (W.D.N.C. 1988), aff'd, 872 F.2d 418 (4th Cir. 1989).

Latent Hazards in Machine Could Have Rendered Warning Inadequate. — Where an issue arose as to whether or not latent hazards existed in a cardboard box baler, so as to render attached warning label inadequate, trial court erred in finding plaintiff contributorily negligent as a matter of law for failing to heed the warning. Smith v. Selco Prods., Inc., 96 N.C. App. 151, 385 S.E.2d 173, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 276, 384 S.E.2d 530 (1989).

Summary Judgment on Issue of Contributory Negligence Held Improper. — Questions about the design of a cardboard box baler, its violation of OSHA industry standards, and the workplace practice this design provoked, created questions of whether the warning sticker attached to the machine was adequate and whether plaintiff's action in putting his arm inside the baler involved contributory negligence; therefore, summary judgment based on plaintiff's contributory negligence was not proper. Smith v. Selco Prods., Inc., 96 N.C. App. 151, 385 S.E.2d 173, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 276, 384 S.E.2d 530 (1989).

Evidence that plaintiffs failed to exercise reasonable care under the circumstances in their use of asbestos-containing products because they continued to smoke cigarettes after the hazards of cigarette smoking and the relationship between cigarette smoking and asbestos exposure became widely known, and their smoking, combined with their exposure to asbestos-containing products, was a proximate cause of their injuries and could support a finding of contributory negligence. The district court erroneously did not permit defendant to establish this defense at trial, by granting partial summary judgment on the issue of contributory negligence. Jones v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., 69 F.3d 712 (4th Cir. 1995).

Exercise of Reasonable Care. — The court could not conclude as a matter of law that decedent, killed when the vending machine fell on him, failed to exercise reasonable care under the circumstances, where several students, contemporaries of decedent, testified that it was well known that if the soft drink vending machine at issue was tilted, a canned drink would be dispensed and plaintiff presented evidence that decedent was attempting to retrieve the canned drink for which he had already paid. Morgan v. Cavalier Acquisition Corp., 111 N.C. App. 520, 432 S.E.2d 915 (1993).

Section Held Not Available as Defense.

— Roof manufacturer, who argued that roof was not properly installed by subcontractor and that, thus, under this Chapter, it was not liable, was not able to use this section as a defense, since it had contracted to instruct subcontractor on installation procedures, and since it had assisted subcontractor in the installation of the roof on the building. Westover Prods., Inc. v. Gateway Roofing Co., 94 N.C. App. 63, 380 S.E.2d 369 (1989).

Negligence of Plaintiff. — A manufacturer or seller can avoid liability under the Act if plaintiff was negligent in his use of the product, or if he used the product even after he discovered a defect or unreasonably dangerous condition. Nicholson v. American Safety Util. Corp., 124 N.C. App. 59, 476 S.E.2d 672 (1996), cert. granted, — N.C. —, 483 S.E.2d 173 (1997), cert. granted, — N.C. —, 483 S.E.2d 174 (1997), modified and aff'd, 346 N.C. 767, 488 S.E.2d 240 (1997).

§ 99B-5. Claims based on inadequate warning or instruction.

(a) No manufacturer or seller of a product shall be held liable in any product liability action for a claim based upon inadequate warning or instruction unless the claimant proves that the manufacturer or seller acted unreasonably in failing to provide such warning or instruction, that the failure to provide adequate warning or instruction was a proximate cause of the harm for which damages are sought, and also proves one of the following:

- (1) At the time the product left the control of the manufacturer or seller, the product, without an adequate warning or instruction, created an unreasonably dangerous condition that the manufacturer or seller knew, or in the exercise of ordinary care should have known, posed a substantial risk of harm to a reasonably foreseeable claimant.
- (2) After the product left the control of the manufacturer or seller, the manufacturer or seller became aware of or in the exercise of ordinary care should have known that the product posed a substantial risk of harm to a reasonably foreseeable user or consumer and failed to take reasonable steps to give adequate warning or instruction or to take other reasonable action under the circumstances.

(b) Notwithstanding subsection (a) of this section, no manufacturer or seller of a product shall be held liable in any product liability action for failing to warn about an open and obvious risk or a risk that is a matter of common knowledge.

(c) Notwithstanding subsection (a) of this section, no manufacturer or seller of a prescription drug shall be liable in a products liability action for failing to provide a warning or instruction directly to a consumer if an adequate warning or instruction has been provided to the physician or other legally authorized person who prescribes or dispenses that prescription drug for the claimant unless the United States Food and Drug Administration requires such direct consumer warning or instruction to accompany the product. ### § 99B-6. Claims based on inadequate design or formulation.

(a) No manufacturer of a product shall be held liable in any product liability action for the inadequate design or formulation of the product unless the claimant proves that at the time of its manufacture the manufacturer acted unreasonably in designing or formulating the product, that this conduct was a proximate cause of the harm for which damages are sought, and also proves one of the following:

- (1) At the time the product left the control of the manufacturer, the manufacturer unreasonably failed to adopt a safer, practical, feasible, and otherwise reasonable alternative design or formulation that could then have been reasonably adopted and that would have prevented or substantially reduced the risk of harm without substantially impairing the usefulness, practicality, or desirability of the product.
- (2) At the time the product left the control of the manufacturer, the design or formulation of the product was so unreasonable that a reasonable person, aware of the relevant facts, would not use or consume a product of this design.

(b) In determining whether the manufacturer acted unreasonably under subsection (a) of this section, the factors to be considered shall include, but are not limited to, the following:

- (1) The nature and magnitude of the risks of harm associated with the design or formulation in light of the intended and reasonably foreseeable uses, modifications, or alterations of the product.
- (2) The likely awareness of product users, whether based on warnings, general knowledge, or otherwise, of those risks of harm.
- (3) The extent to which the design or formulation conformed to any applicable government standard that was in effect when the product left the control of its manufacturer.
- (4) The extent to which the labeling for a prescription or nonprescription drug approved by the United States Food and Drug Administration conformed to any applicable government or private standard that was in effect when the product left the control of its manufacturer.
- (5) The utility of the product, including the performance, safety, and other advantages associated with that design or formulation.
- (6) The technical, economic, and practical feasibility of using an alternative design or formulation at the time of manufacture.

(7) The nature and magnitude of any foreseeable risks associated with the alternative design or formulation.

(c) No manufacturer of a product shall be held liable in any product liability action for a claim under this section to the extent that it is based upon an inherent characteristic of the product that cannot be eliminated without substantially compromising the product's usefulness or desirability and that is recognized by the ordinary person with the ordinary knowledge common to the community.

(d) No manufacturer of a prescription drug shall be liable in a product liability action on account of some aspect of the prescription drug that is unavoidably unsafe, if an adequate warning and instruction has been provided pursuant to G.S. 99B-5(c). As used in this subsection, "unavoidably unsafe" means that, in the state of technical, scientific, and medical knowledge generally prevailing at the time the product left the control of its manufacturer, an aspect of that product that caused the claimant's harm was not reasonably capable of being made safe.

(e) Nothing in this section precludes an action against a manufacturer in accordance with the provisions of G.S. 99B-5. (1995, c. 522, s. 1.)

§ 99B-10. Immunity for donated food.

(a) Notwithstanding the provisions of Article 12 of Chapter 106 of the General Statutes, or any other provision of law, any person, including but not limited to a seller, farmer, processor, distributor, wholesaler, or retailer of food, who donates an item of food for use or distribution by a nonprofit organization or nonprofit corporation shall not be liable for civil damages or criminal penalties resulting from the nature, age, condition, or packaging of the donated food, unless an injury is caused by the gross negligence, recklessness, or intentional misconduct of the donor.

(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any nonprofit organization or nonprofit corporation that uses or distributes food that has been donated to it for such use or distribution shall not be liable for civil damages or criminal penalties resulting from the nature, age, condition, or packaging of the donated food, unless an injury is caused by the gross negligence, recklessness, or intentional misconduct of the organization or corporation. (1979, 2nd Sess., c. 1188, s. 1; 1989, c. 365; 1991 (Reg. Sess., 1992), c. 935, s. 2; 1995, c. 522, s. 1.)

§ 99B-11. Claims based on defective design of firearms.

(a) In a products liability action involving firearms or ammunition, whether a firearm or ammunition shell is defective in design shall not be based on a comparison or weighing of the benefits of the product against the risk of injury, damage, or death posed by its potential to cause that injury, damage, or death when discharged.

(b) In a products liability action brought against a firearm or ammunition manufacturer, importer, distributor, or retailer that alleges a design defect, the burden is on the plaintiff to prove, in addition to any other elements required to be proved:

- (1) That the actual design of the firearm or ammunition was defective, causing it not to function in a manner reasonably expected by an ordinary consumer of firearms or ammunition; and
- (2) That any defective design was the proximate cause of the injury, damage, or death. (1987 (Reg. Sess., 1988), c. 1059, s. 1; 1995, c. 522, s. 1.)

Chapter 99C.

Actions Relating to Skier Safety and Skiing Accidents.

Sec.

99C-1. Definitions.

99C-2. Duties of ski operators and skiers.

99C-3. Violation constitutes negligence.

Sec.

99C-4. Competition.

99C-5. Operation of passenger tramway.

§ 99C-1. Definitions.

When used in this Chapter, unless the context otherwise requires:

- (1) "Competitor" means a skier actually engaged in competition or in practice therefor with the permission of the ski area operator on any slope or trail or portion thereof designated by the ski area operator for the purpose of competition.
- (2) "Passenger" means any person who is being transported or is awaiting transportation, or being conveyed on a passenger tramway or is moving from the disembarkation point of a passenger tramway or is in the act of embarking upon or disembarking from a passenger tramway.
- (3) "Passenger Tramway" shall mean any device used to transport passengers uphill on skis, or in cars on tracks, or suspended in the air, by the use of steel cables, chains, belts or ropes. Such definition shall include such devices as a chair lift, J Bar, or platter pull, rope tow, and wire tow.
- (4) "Ski Area" means all the ski slopes, ski trails, and passenger tramways, that are administered or operated as a ski area enterprise within this State.
- (5) "Ski Area Operator" means a person, corporation, or organization that is responsible for the safe operation and maintenance of the ski area.
- (6) "Skier" means any person who is wearing skis or any person who for the purpose of skiing is on a designated and clearly marked ski slope or ski trail that is located at a ski area, or any person who is a passenger or spectator at a ski area. (1981, c. 939, s. 1.)

Cross References. — As to regulation of aerial passenger tramways, chair lifts and similar devices, see § 95-116 et seq.

§ 99C-2. Duties of ski operators and skiers.

(a) A ski area operator shall be responsible for the maintenance and safe operation of any passenger tramway in his ski area and insure that such is in conformity with the rules and regulations prescribed and adopted by the North Carolina Department of Labor pursuant to G.S. 95-120(1) as such appear in the North Carolina Administrative Procedures Act. The North Carolina Department of Labor shall conduct certifications and inspections of passenger tramways.

A ski area operator's responsibility regarding passenger tramways shall include, but is not limited to, insuring operating personnel are adequately trained and are adequate in number; meeting all standards set forth for terminals, stations, line structures, and line equipment; meeting all rules and regulations regarding the safe operation and maintenance of all passenger lifts and tramways, including all necessary inspections and record keeping.

(b) A skier and/or a passenger shall have the following responsibilities:

- (1) To know the range of his own abilities to negotiate any ski slope or trail and to ski within the limits of such ability;
  - (2) To maintain control of his speed and course at all times when skiing and to maintain a proper lookout so as to be able to avoid other skiers and visible objects;
  - (3) To stay clear of snow grooming equipment, all vehicles, lift towers, signs, and any other equipment on the ski slopes and trails;
  - (4) To heed all posted information and other warnings and to refrain from acting in a manner which may cause or contribute to the injury of the skier or others;
  - (5) To wear retention straps, ski brakes, or other devices to prevent runaway skis;
  - (6) Before beginning to ski from a stationary position or before entering a ski slope or trail from the side, to avoid moving skiers already on the ski slope or trail;
  - (7) To not move uphill on any passenger tramway or use any ski slope or trail while such person's ability to do so is impaired by the consumption of alcohol or by the use of any narcotic or other drug or while such person is under the influence of alcohol or any narcotic or any drug;
  - (8) If involved in a collision with another skier or person, to not leave the vicinity of the collision before giving his name and current address to an employee of the ski area operator, a member of the ski patrol, or the other skier or person with whom the skier collided, except in those cases when medical treatment is required; in which case, said information shall be provided as soon as practical after the medical treatment has been obtained. If the other person involved in the collision is unknown, the skier shall leave the personal identification required by this subsection with the ski area operator;
  - (9) Not to embark upon or disembark from a passenger tramway except at an area that is designated for such purpose;
  - (10) Not to throw or expel any object from a passenger tramway;
  - (11) Not to perform any action that interferes with the operation or running of a passenger tramway;
  - (12) Not to use such tramway unless he has the ability to use it with reasonable safety;
  - (13) Not to engage willfully or negligently in any type conduct that contributes to or causes injury to another person or his properties;
  - (14) Not to embark upon a passenger tramway without the authority of the ski area operator.
- (c) A ski area operator shall have the following responsibilities:
- (1) To mark all trails and maintenance vehicles and to furnish such vehicles with flashing or rotating lights that shall be in operation whenever the vehicles are working or moving in the ski area;
  - (2) To mark with a visible sign or other warning implement the location of any hydrant or similar equipment that is used in snowmaking operations and located anywhere in the ski area;
  - (3) To indicate the relative degree of difficulty of a slope or trail by appropriate signs. Such signs are to be prominently displayed at the base of a slope where skiers embark on a passenger tramway serving the slope or trail, or at the top of a slope or trail. The signs must be of the type that have been approved by the National Ski Areas Association and are in current use by the industry;
  - (4) To post at or near the top of or entrance to, any designated slope or trail, signs giving reasonable notice of unusual conditions on the slope or trail;
  - (5) To provide adequate ski patrols;

- (6) To mark clearly any hidden rock, hidden stump, or any other hidden hazard known by the ski area operator to exist;
- (7) Not to engage willfully or negligently in any type conduct that contributes to or causes injury to another person or his properties. (1981, c. 939, s. 1.)

§ 99C-3. Violation constitutes negligence.

A violation of any responsibility placed on the skier, passenger or ski area operator as set forth in G.S. 99C-2, to the extent such violation proximately causes injury to any person or damage to any property, shall constitute negligence on the part of the person violating the provisions of that section. (1981, c. 939, s. 1.)

§ 99C-4. Competition.

The ski area operator shall, prior to the beginning of a competition, allow each competitor a reasonable visual inspection of the course or area where the competition is to be held. The competitor shall be held to assume risk of all course conditions including, but not limited to, weather and snow conditions, course construction or layout, and obstacles which a visual inspection should have revealed. No liability shall attach to a ski area operator for injury or death of any competitor proximately caused by such assumed risk. (1981, c. 939, s. 1.)

§ 99C-5. Operation of passenger tramway.

The operation of a passenger tramway shall not constitute the operation of a common carrier. (1981, c. 939, s. 1.)

Chapter 99D.

Civil Rights.

Sec.

99D-1. Interference with Civil Rights.

§ 99D-1. Interference with Civil Rights.

(a) It is a violation of this Chapter if:

- (1) Two or more persons, motivated by race, religion, ethnicity, or gender, but whether or not acting under color of law, conspire to interfere with the exercise or enjoyment by any other person or persons of a right secured by the Constitutions of the United States or North Carolina, or of a right secured by a law of the United States or North Carolina that enforces, interprets, or impacts on a constitutional right; and
- (2) One or more persons engaged in such a conspiracy use force, repeated harassment, violence, physical harm to persons or property, or direct or indirect threats of physical harm to persons or property to commit an act in furtherance of the object of the conspiracy; and
- (3) The commission of an act described in subdivision (2) interferes, or is an attempt to interfere, with the exercise or enjoyment of a right, described in subdivision (1), of another person.

(b) Any person whose exercise or enjoyment of a right described in subdivision (a)(1) has been interfered with, or against whom an attempt has been made to interfere with the exercise or enjoyment of such a right, by a violation of this Chapter may bring a civil action. The court may restrain and enjoin such future acts, and may award compensatory and punitive damages to the plaintiff. The court may award court costs and attorneys' fees to the prevailing party. However, a prevailing defendant may be awarded reasonable attorneys' fees only upon a showing that the case is frivolous, unreasonable, or without foundation.

(b1) The North Carolina Human Relations Commission may bring a civil action on behalf, and with the consent, of any person subjected to a violation of this Chapter. In any such action, the court may restrain and enjoin such future acts, and may award compensatory damages and punitive damages to the person on whose behalf the action was brought. Court costs may be awarded to the Commission or the defendant, whichever prevails. Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 114-2, the Commission shall be represented by the Commission's staff attorney.

(c) No civil action may be brought or maintained, and no liability may be imposed, under this Chapter against a governmental unit, a government official with respect to actions taken within the scope of his official governmental duties, or an employer or his agent with respect to actions taken concerning his employees within the scope of the employment relationship. (1987, c. 718, s. 1; 1991, c. 433, ss. 1, 2.)

CASE NOTES

Cause of Action Stated. — The plaintiff stated a cause of action for a violation of this chapter where she alleged (1) that the defendant was responsible for mixing drinks which rendered the plaintiff physically helpless and otherwise participated in an incident in which the plaintiff was stripped naked and video-taped, and (2) that the defendant later sought to conceal her involvement in the incident and acted on a scheme with other defendants to harass and discredit the plaintiff and to destroy evidence and obstruct justice. Zenobile v.

ARTICLE 1.

Equine Activity Liability.

§ 99E-1. Definitions.

As used in this Article, the term:

- (1) “Engage in an equine activity” means participate in an equine activity, assist a participant in an equine activity, or assist an equine activity sponsor or equine professional. The term “engage in an equine activity” does not include being a spectator at an equine activity, except in cases in which the spectator places himself in an unauthorized area and in immediate proximity to the equine activity.
- (2) “Equine” means a horse, pony, mule, donkey, or hinny.
- (3) “Equine activity” means any activity involving an equine.
- (4) “Equine activity sponsor” means an individual, group, club, partnership, or corporation, whether the sponsor is operating for profit or nonprofit, which sponsors, organizes, or provides the facilities for an equine activity. The term includes operators and promoters of equine facilities.
- (5) “Equine professional” means a person engaged for compensation in any one or more of the following:
  - a. Instructing a participant.
  - b. Renting an equine to a participant for the purpose of riding, driving, or being a passenger upon the equine.
  - c. Renting equipment or tack to a participant.
  - d. Examining or administering medical treatment to an equine.
  - e. Hooftrimming or placing or replacing horseshoes on an equine.
- (6) “Inherent risks of equine activities” means those dangers or conditions that are an integral part of engaging in an equine activity, including any of the following:
  - a. The possibility of an equine behaving in ways that may result in injury, harm, or death to persons on or around them.
  - b. The unpredictability of an equine’s reaction to such things as sounds, sudden movement, unfamiliar objects, persons, or other animals.

Inherent risks of equine activities does not include a collision or accident involving a motor vehicle.

- (7) “Participant” means any person, whether amateur or professional, who engages in an equine activity, whether or not a fee is paid to participate in the equine activity. (1997-376, s. 1.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1997-376, s. 3, made this Article effective January 1, 1998, and applicable to causes of action arising on or after that date.

This Article was enacted as Chapter 99E of the General Statutes by Session Laws 1997-376, s. 1. It has been set out as Article 1 of Chapter 99E at the direction of the Revisor of Statutes.

§ 99E-2. Liability.

(a) Except as provided in subsection (b) of this section, an equine activity sponsor, an equine professional, or any other person engaged in an equine activity, including a corporation or partnership, shall not be liable for an injury to or the death of a participant resulting from the inherent risks of equine activities and, except as provided in subsection (b) of this section, no participant or participant's representative shall maintain an action against or recover from an equine activity sponsor, an equine professional, or any other person engaged in an equine activity for injury, loss, damage, or death of the participant resulting exclusively from any of the inherent risks of equine activities.

(b) Nothing in subsection (a) of this section shall prevent or limit the liability of an equine activity sponsor, an equine professional, or any other person engaged in an equine activity if the equine activity sponsor, equine professional, or person engaged in an equine activity does any one or more of the following:

- (1) Provides the equipment or tack, and knew or should have known that the equipment or tack was faulty, and such faulty equipment or tack proximately caused the injury, damage, or death.
- (2) Provides the equine and failed to make reasonable and prudent efforts to determine the ability of the participant to engage safely in the equine activity or to safely manage the particular equine.
- (3) Commits an act or omission that constitutes willful or wanton disregard for the safety of the participant, and that act or omission proximately caused the injury, damage, or death.
- (4) Commits any other act of negligence or omission that proximately caused the injury, damage, or death.

(c) Nothing in subsection (a) of this section shall prevent or limit the liability of an equine activity sponsor, an equine professional, or any other person engaged in an equine activity under liability provisions as set forth in the products liability laws. (1997-376, s. 1.)

§ 99E-3. Warning required.

(a) Every equine professional and every equine activity sponsor shall post and maintain signs which contain the warning notice specified in subsection (b) of this section. The signs required by this section shall be placed in a clearly visible location on or near stables, corrals, or arenas where the equine professional or the equine activity sponsor conducts equine activities. The warning notice specified in subsection (b) of this section shall be designed by the Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services and shall consist of a sign in black letters, with each letter to be a minimum of one inch in height. Every written contract entered into by an equine professional or by an equine activity sponsor for the providing of professional services, instruction, or the rental of equipment or tack or an equine to a participant, whether or not the contract involves equine activities on or off the location or site of the equine professional's or the equine activity sponsor's business, shall contain in clearly readable print the warning notice specified in subsection (b) of this section.

(b) The signs and contracts described in subsection (a) of this section shall contain the following warning notice:

“WARNING

Under North Carolina law, an equine activity sponsor or equine professional is not liable for an injury to or the death of a participant in equine activities resulting exclusively from the inherent risks of equine activities. Chapter 99E of the North Carolina General Statutes.”

(c) Failure to comply with the requirements concerning warning signs and notices provided in this Article shall prevent an equine activity sponsor or equine professional from invoking the privileges of immunity provided by this Article. (1997-376, s. 1.)

§§ 99E-4 through 99E-9: Reserved for future codification purposes.

ARTICLE 2.

Roller Skating Rink Safety and Liability.

§ 99E-10. Definitions.

As used in this Article:

- (1) “Operator” means a person or entity who owns, manages, controls, or directs, or who has operational responsibility for a roller skating rink.
- (2) “Roller skater” means an individual wearing roller skates while in a roller skating rink for the purpose of recreational or competitive roller skating. “Roller skater” includes any individual in the roller skating rink who is an invitee, whether or not this individual pays consideration.
- (3) “Roller skating rink” means a building, facility, or premises that provide an area specifically designed to be used by the public for recreational or competitive roller skating.
- (4) “Spectator” means an individual who is present in a roller skating rink only for the purpose of observing recreational or competitive roller skating. (1997-376, s. 2.)

Editor’s Note. — This Article was enacted as Chapter 99F of the General Statutes by Session Laws 1997-376, s. 2. It has been set out as Article 2 of Chapter 99E at the direction of the Revisor of Statutes.

The number of this section was assigned by the Revisor of Statutes, the number in Session Laws 1997-376, s. 2, having been 99F-1.

§ 99E-11. Duties of an operator.

The operator, to the extent practicable, shall:

- (1) Post the duties of roller skaters and spectators and the duties, obligations, and liabilities of the operator as prescribed in this Article in conspicuous places in at least three locations in the roller skating rink.
- (2) Maintain the stability and legibility of all signs, symbols, and posted notices required under subdivision (1) of this section.
- (3) Comply with all roller skating rink safety standards published by the Roller Skating Rink Operators Association, including, but not limited to, the proper maintenance of roller skating equipment and roller skating surfaces.
- (4) When the rink is open for sessions, have at least one floor guard on duty for approximately every 200 skaters.
- (5) Maintain the skating surface in reasonably safe condition and clean and inspect the skating surface before each session.

- (6) Maintain in good condition the railings, kickboards, and walls surrounding the skating surface.
- (7) In rinks with step-up or step-down skating surfaces, ensure that the covering on the riser is securely fastened.
- (8) Install fire extinguishers and inspect fire extinguishers at recommended intervals.
- (9) Provide reasonable security in parking areas during operational hours.
- (10) Inspect emergency lighting units periodically to ensure the lights are in proper order.
- (11) Keep exit lights and lights in service areas on when skating surface lights are turned off during special numbers.
- (12) Check rental skates on a regular basis to ensure the skates are in good mechanical condition.
- (13) Prohibit the sale or use of alcoholic beverages on the premises.
- (14) Comply with all applicable State and local safety codes.
- (15) Not engage willfully or negligently in any conduct that may proximately cause injury, damage, or death to a roller skater or spectator. (1997-376, s. 2.)

Editor's Note. — The number of this section was assigned by the Revisor of Statutes, the number in Session Laws 1997-376, s. 2, having been 99F-2.

§ 99E-12. Duties of a roller skater.

Each roller skater shall, to the extent commensurate with the person's age:

- (1) Maintain reasonable control of his or her speed and course at all times.
- (2) Heed all posted signs and warnings.
- (3) Maintain a proper lookout to avoid other roller skaters and objects.
- (4) Accept the responsibility for knowing the range of his or her ability to negotiate the intended direction of travel while on roller skates and to skate within the limits of that ability.
- (5) Refrain from acting in a manner that may cause or contribute to the injury of himself, herself, or any other person. (1997-376, s. 2.)

Editor's Note. — The number of this section was assigned by the Revisor of Statutes, the number in Session Laws 1997-376, s. 2, having been 99F-3.

§ 99E-13. Assumption of risk.

Roller skaters and spectators are deemed to have knowledge of and to assume the inherent risks of roller skating, insofar as those risks are obvious and necessary. The obvious and necessary inherent risks include, but are not limited to, injury, damage, or death that:

- (1) Results from incidental contact with other roller skaters or spectators,
- (2) Results from falls caused by loss of balance, or
- (3) Involves objects or artificial structures properly within the intended path of travel of the roller skater, and that is not otherwise attributable to a rink operator's breach of the operator's duties as set forth in G.S. 99E-11. (1997-376, s. 2.)

Editor's Note. — The number of this section was assigned by the Revisor of Statutes, the number in Session Laws 1997-376, s. 2, having been 99F-4.

§ 99E-14. Defense to suit.

Assumption of risk pursuant to G.S. 99E-13 is a complete defense to a suit against an operator by a roller skater or a spectator for injuries resulting from any obvious and necessary inherent risks, unless the operator has violated the operator’s duties under G.S. 99E-11. (1997-376, s. 2.)

Editor’s Note. — The number of this section was assigned by the Revisor of Statutes, the number in Session Laws 1997-376, s. 2, having been 99F-5.

ARTICLE 1.

Approval of Memorials, Works of Art, etc.

§ 100-1: Repealed by Session Laws 1973, c. 476, s. 48.

Cross References. — As to the North Carolina Historical Commission, see §§ 143B-62 through 143B-65.

§ 100-2. Approval of memorials before acceptance by State; regulation of existing memorials, etc.; "work of art" defined; highway markers.

No memorial or work of art shall hereafter become the property of the State by purchase, gift or otherwise, unless such memorial or work of art or a design of the same, together with the proposed location of the same, shall first have been submitted to and approved by the North Carolina Historical Commission; nor shall any memorial or work of art, until so submitted and approved, be contracted for, placed in or upon or allowed to extend over any property belonging to the State. No existing memorial or work of art owned by the State shall be removed, relocated, or altered in any way without approval of the North Carolina Historical Commission. The term "work of art" as used in this section shall include any painting, portrait, mural decoration, stained glass, statue, bas-relief, sculpture, monument, tablet, fountain, or other article or structure of a permanent character intended for decoration or commemoration. This section, however, shall not apply to markers set up by the Board of Transportation in cooperation with the Department of Environment and Natural Resources and the Department of Cultural Resources as provided by Chapter 197 of the Public Laws of 1935. (1941, c. 341, s. 2; 1957, c. 65, s. 11; 1973, c. 476, s. 48; c. 507, s. 5; c. 1262, s. 86; 1977, c. 771, s. 4; 1979, 2nd Sess., c. 1306, ss. 3, 4; 1989, c. 727, s. 218(27); 1997-443, s. 11A.119(a).)

§ 100-3. Approval of design, etc., of certain bridges and other structures.

No bridge, arch, gate, fence or other structure intended primarily for ornamental or memorial purposes and which is paid for either wholly or in part by appropriation from the State treasury, or which is to be placed on or allowed to extend over any property belonging to the State, shall be begun unless the design and proposed location thereof shall have been submitted to the North Carolina Historical Commission and approved by it. Furthermore, no existing structures of the kind named and described in the preceding part of this section owned by the State, shall be removed or remodeled without submission of the plans therefor to the North Carolina Historical Commission and approval of said plans by the North Carolina Historical Commission. This section shall not be construed as amending or repealing Chapter 197 of the Public Laws of 1935. (1941, c. 341, s. 3; 1973, c. 476, s. 48; 1979, 2nd Sess., c. 1306, s. 3.)

§ 100-4. Governor to accept works of art approved by North Carolina Historical Commission.

The Governor of North Carolina is hereby authorized to accept, in the name of the State of North Carolina, gifts to the State of works of art as defined in G.S. 100-2. But no work of art shall be so accepted unless and until the same shall have been first submitted to the North Carolina Historical Commission and by it judged worthy of acceptance. (1941, c. 341, s. 4; 1973, c. 476, s. 48; 1979, 2nd Sess., c. 1306, s. 3.)

§ 100-5. Duties as to buildings erected or remodeled by State.

Upon request of the Governor and the Board of Public Buildings and Grounds, the North Carolina Historical Commission shall act in an advisory capacity relative to the artistic character of any building constructed, erected, or remodeled by the State. The term "building" as used in this section shall include structures intended for human occupation, and also bridges, arches, gates, walls, or other permanent structures of any character not intended primarily for purposes of decoration or commemoration. (1941, c. 341, s. 5; 1973, c. 476, s. 48; 1979, 2nd Sess., c. 1306, s. 3.)

§ 100-6. Disqualification to vote on work of art, etc.; vacancy.

Any member of the North Carolina Historical Commission who shall be employed by the State to execute a work of art or structure of any kind requiring submission to the North Carolina Historical Commission, or who shall take part in a competition for such work of art or structure, shall be disqualified from voting thereon, and the temporary vacancy thereby created may be filled by appointment by the Governor. (1941, c. 341, s. 6; 1973, c. 476, s. 48; 1979, 2nd Sess., c. 1306, s. 3.)

§ 100-7. Construction.

The provisions of this Article shall not be construed to include exhibits of an educational nature arranged by museums or art galleries administered by the State or any of its agencies or institutions, or to prevent the placing of portraits of officials, officers, or employees of the State in the offices or buildings of the departments, agencies, or institutions with which such officials, officers, or employees are or have been connected. But upon request of such museums or agencies, the North Carolina Historical Commission shall act in an advisory capacity as to the artistic qualities and appropriations of memorial exhibits or works of art submitted to it. (1941, c. 341, s. 7; 1973, c. 476, s. 48; 1979, 2nd Sess., c. 1306, s. 3.)

§ 100-8. Memorials to persons within 25 years of death; acceptance of commemorative funds for useful work.

No monument, statue, tablet, painting, or other article or structure of a permanent nature intended primarily to commemorate any person or persons shall be purchased from State funds or shall be placed in or upon or allowed to extend over State property within 25 years after the death of the person or persons so commemorated: Provided, nevertheless, that nothing in this Article shall be interpreted as prohibiting the acceptance of funds by State agencies or institutions from individuals or societies who wish to commemorate some person or persons by providing funds for educational, health, charitable, or other useful work. The agency or institution to which such funds are offered for memorial enterprises shall exercise its discretion as to the acceptance and expenditure of such funds. Nothing in this Article shall be interpreted as prohibiting the erection on the lands of the Cliffs of the Neuse State Park an appropriate tablet or plaque honoring the life and memory of the late Lionel Weil of Wayne County. Nothing in this Article shall be interpreted as prohibiting the erection on the lands of the Morrow Mountain State Park an appropriate tablet or plaque honoring the life and memory of the late James McKnight Morrow of Stanly County. Nothing in this Article shall be interpreted as prohibiting the erection on the lands of the Cliffs of the Neuse State Park an appropriate tablet or plaque, of such size and containing such language, as may be agreed upon by the donors and Director of State Parks, honoring the Whitfield heirs for their contributions to the establishment of the said park. (1941, c. 341, s. 8; 1957, c. 181; 1961, c. 976; 1963, c. 1128; 1979, 2nd Sess., c. 1306, s. 4.)

Memorials Financed by Counties and Cities.

§ 100-9. County commissioners may protect monuments.

When any monument has been or shall hereafter be erected to the memory of our Confederate dead or to perpetuate the memory and virtues of our distinguished dead, if such monument is erected by the voluntary subscription of the people and is placed on the courthouse square, the board of county commissioners of such county are permitted to expend from the public funds of the county an amount sufficient to erect a substantial iron fence around such monument in order that the same may be protected. (1905, c. 457; Rev., s. 3928; C.S., s. 6934.)

Cross References. — As to criminal liability for defacing or removing monuments, see § 14-148.

§ 100-10. Counties, cities, and towns may contribute toward erection of memorials.

Any county, city or town by resolution first adopted by its governing body may become a member of any memorial association or organization for perpetuating the memory of the soldiers and sailors of North Carolina who served the United States in the great World War, or in the global war known as World War II, or who fought in the War Between the States, and may subscribe and pay toward the cost of the erection of any memorial to the memory of such soldiers and sailors such sums of money as its governing body may determine, and may be represented in such association or organization by such persons as its governing body may select. Any contribution so made shall be paid out of the general fund of such county, city, or town making same, on such terms as may be agreed upon by its governing body, and the officers having the control and management of the association or organization to which subscription and contribution are made. (1919, c. 21, ss. 1, 2, 3; C.S., s. 6938; 1923, c. 200; 1945, c. 117.)

ARTICLE 3.

§ 100-11. Duties.

The Department of Environment and Natural Resources shall have complete control, care, protection and charge of that part of Mitchell's Park acquired by the State. (1915, c. 76; 1919, c. 316, s. 3; C.S., s. 6940; 1921, c. 222, s. 1; 1925, c. 122, s. 23; 1973, c. 1262, s. 28; 1977, c. 771, s. 4; 1989, c. 727, s. 218(28); 1997-443, s. 11A.119(a).)

§ 100-12. Roads, trails, and fences authorized; protection of property.

The Department of Environment and Natural Resources is authorized and empowered to enter upon the land hereinbefore referred to, and to build a fence or fences around the same, also roads, paths, and trails and protect the property against trespass and fire and injury of any and all kinds whatsoever; cut wood and timber upon the same, but only for the purpose of protecting the other timber thereon and improving the property generally. (1919, c. 316, s. 5; C.S., s. 6942; 1921, c. 222, s. 1; 1925, c. 122, s. 23; 1973, c. 1262, s. 28; 1977, c. 771, s. 4; 1989, c. 727, s. 218(29); 1997-443, s. 11A.119(a).)

§ 100-13. Fees for use of improvements; fees for other privileges; leases; rules.

The Department of Environment and Natural Resources is further authorized to charge and collect fees for the use of such improvements as have already been constructed, or may hereafter be constructed, on the park, and for other privileges connected with the full use of the park by the public; to lease sites for camps, houses, hotels, and places of amusement and business; and to make and enforce such necessary rules as may best tend to protect, preserve and increase the value and attractiveness of the park. (1921, c. 222, s. 2; C.S., s. 6942(a); 1925, c. 122, s. 23; 1973, c. 1262, s. 28; 1977, c. 771, s. 4; 1989, c. 727, s. 25; 1997-443, s. 11A.119(a).)

§ 100-14. Use of fees and other collections.

All fees and other money collected and received by the Department of Environment and Natural Resources in connection with its proper administration of the North Carolina State Parks System shall be used by said Department for the administration, protection, improvement, and maintenance of the State Parks System. (1921, c. 22, s. 3; C.S., s. 6942(b); 1925, c. 122, s. 23; 1973, c. 1262, s. 28; 1977, c. 771, s. 4; 1989, c. 727, s. 26; 1997-443, s. 11A.119(a).)

§ 100-15. Annual reports.

The Department shall make an annual report to the Governor of all money received and expended by it in the administration of the North Carolina State Parks System, and of such other items as may be called for by him or by the General Assembly. (1921, c. 222, s. 4; C.S., s. 6942(c); 1925, c. 122, s. 23; 1973, c. 1262, s. 28; 1977, c. 771, s. 4; 1989, c. 727, s. 27.)

ARTICLE 4.

Toll Roads or Bridges in Public Parks.

§ 100-16. Private operation of toll roads or bridges in public parks prohibited.

No person, firm or corporation shall have the right or privilege to privately operate any toll road or toll bridge in this State upon lands belonging to the State; set apart or designated as a public park.

In the event any such toll road or bridge is on March 17, 1939 being privately operated under any real or assumed right, privilege, or lease, the State institution or department having such state-owned property in charge or under its supervision shall immediately give notice to such person, firm or corporation so operating such toll road or toll bridge to discontinue the operation of the same.

Any person, firm or corporation who sustains any legal damage by reason of the exercise of the authority hereinbefore granted shall be entitled to just compensation therefor, and, in the event satisfactory settlement cannot be made with the department or State agency exercising the authority herein contained, the amount of just compensation may be determined by a special proceeding instituted by the claimant against the department or agency having such property in custody under the provisions of the Chapter on Eminent Domain, insofar as the same may be applicable hereto: Provided, such proceedings shall be instituted within six months from the time such notice is given. Any compensation awarded shall be a valid claim against the State of North Carolina, payable out of the funds of the department or State agency having such property in charge. (1939, c. 127.)

ARTICLE 5.

Flagpoles and Display of Flags in State Parks.

§ 100-17. Flagpole to be erected in each State park.

At each of the State parks of North Carolina an adequate flagpole shall be erected, in keeping with the construction of other structures thereupon, upon which flags of the United States of America and the State of North Carolina may be flown. (1963, c. 317, s. 1.)

§ 100-18. Display of flags.

Where personnel are available upon the State parks, the flags of the United States and of the State of North Carolina shall be flown on every Saturday and Sunday and on every State holiday from May 1 to October 1 of each year, in conformity with appropriate national and State policy and procedures concerning the display of the State and federal flag. (1963, c. 317, s. 2.)

§ 100-19. Donation of flagpoles.

Flagpoles at State parks may be donated by donors of the lands upon which State parks are situated, and if such donors express a desire to donate flagpoles, such donations shall be accepted in preference to that of any other individual or group. In the event that the donors of the lands upon which the State parks are situated shall not indicate a desire to donate flagpoles therefor within six months of the date of the passage of this Article, donations for flagpoles shall be accepted from individuals or groups who may desire to make such donations and erect the said flagpoles in keeping with the State park regulations. (1963, c. 317, s. 3.)

Chapter 101.

Names of Persons.

Sec.	Sec.
101-1. Legislature may regulate change by general but not private law.	101-5. Clerk to order change; certificate and record.
101-2. Procedure for changing name; petition; notice.	101-6. Effect of change; only one change, except as provided.
101-3. Contents of petition.	101-7. Recording name change.
101-4. Proof of good character to accompany petition.	101-8. Resumption of name by widow or widower.

§ 101-1. Legislature may regulate change by general but not private law.

The General Assembly shall not have power to pass any private law to alter the name of any person, but shall have power to pass general laws regulating the same. (Const., Art. II, s. 11; Rev., s. 2146; C.S., s. 2970.)

Cross References. — As to changing name of minor child upon adoption, see § 48-14. As to resumption of maiden name, etc., by a woman after divorce, see § 50-12. As to duty to disclose real name when trading as “company” or “agent,” see § 66-72. As to trademarks, etc., see Chapter 80, § 80-1 et seq.

CASE NOTES

Common Law. — General laws regulating the change of a person’s name, and prescribing a procedure therefor, do not abrogate the common-law rule which allows a person to change his name without resort to legal procedure or repeal it by implication or otherwise. They merely affirm and are in aid of the common-law rule and provide an additional method of effecting a change of name and, more importantly, provide a method for recording the change. In re Mohlman, 26 N.C. App. 220, 216 S.E.2d 147 (1975).

Under the common-law standard, a showing of fraud or misrepresentation akin to fraud is necessary to deny a change of name. In re Mohlman, 26 N.C. App. 220, 216 S.E.2d 147 (1975).

To provide a procedure whereby one can secure a change of name through legal procedure with a provision for proper recordation thereof among the public records is desirable and far less objectionable than the common-law provision. In re Mohlman, 26 N.C. App. 220, 216 S.E.2d 147 (1975).

Married Women. — Nothing in the law states that by marriage a woman gives up her right as a person to change her name as anyone else might change his or hers. In re Mohlman, 26 N.C. App. 220, 216 S.E.2d 147 (1975).

OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

The Division of Motor Vehicles does not have the authority to establish a policy to require documented proof from the Register of Deeds or official court documents for a name change on driver licenses and identification cards as the only method of establishing a name change. See opinion of Attorney General to Mr. William S. Hiatt, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, 58 N.C.A.G. 4 (1988).

§ 101-2. Procedure for changing name; petition; notice.

A person who wishes, for good cause shown, to change his or her name must file an application before the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the person lives, after giving 10 days’ notice of the application by publication at the courthouse door.

An application to change the name of a minor child may be filed by the child's parent or parents, guardian, or guardian ad litem, and this application may be joined in the application for a change of name filed by the parent or parents. Nothing in this section shall be construed to permit one parent to make an application on behalf of a minor child without the consent of the other parent if both parents are living; except that a minor who has reached the age of 16 years, upon proper application to the clerk, may change his or her name with the consent of the parent who has custody of the minor and has supported the minor, without the necessity of obtaining the consent of the other parent, when the clerk of court is satisfied that the other parent has abandoned the minor. A change of parentage or the addition of information relating to parentage on the birth certificate of any person is governed by G.S. 130A-118.

The consent of a parent who has abandoned a minor child is not required if a copy of an order of a court of competent jurisdiction adjudicating that parent's abandonment of the minor is filed with the clerk. If a court of competent jurisdiction has not declared the minor to be an abandoned child, the clerk, on 10 days' written notice by registered or certified mail, directed to the last known address of the parent alleged to have abandoned the child, may determine whether the parent has abandoned the child. If the parent denies that the parent abandoned the child, this issue of fact shall be transferred and determined as provided in G.S. 1-301.2. If abandonment is determined, the consent of the parent is not required. Upon final determination of this issue of fact the proceeding shall be transferred back to the special proceedings docket for further action by the clerk. Cross References. — As to amendment of birth and death certificates, see § 130A-118.

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 1999-216, s. 13, effective January 1, 2000, and applicable to all orders or judgments subject to Session Laws 1999-216 that are entered on or after that date, rewrote the section.

CASE NOTES

The words "for good cause shown" and "good and sufficient reason" mean more than merely the absence of fraud. In re Mohlman, 26 N.C. App. 220, 216 S.E.2d 147 (1975).

Burden on Petitioner at Hearing. — This procedure contemplates a hearing, and petitioner has the burden of establishing that it is just and reasonable that the petition be granted, not merely that petitioner desires it and that the request is without fraud. In re Mohlman, 26 N.C. App. 220, 216 S.E.2d 147 (1975).

Inquiry into Child's Best Interests Not Appropriate. — The fact that the General Assembly specifically required a "best interests of the child" inquiry in contexts such as termination of parental rights, child custody and placement, parental visitation rights, and even in the change in surname on a birth certificate following legitimization, yet failed to require such inquiry in connection with name changes under this section and § 130A-101(f)(4), was taken as clear evidence of its intent that no such inquiry was required in these contexts. In re Crawford, 134 N.C. App. 137, 517 S.E.2d 161 (1999).

Consent Required for Change of Name of Minor Child. — The name of a minor child may not be changed without the consent of both parents, if both be living, unless one of the parents has abandoned the minor child. In re Dunston, 18 N.C. App. 647, 197 S.E.2d 560 (1973).

Determination of Abandonment by Clerk of Superior Court. — In the event that a court of competent jurisdiction has not previously declared child to be an abandoned child, the clerk of the superior court is authorized to determine whether an abandonment has taken place. In re Dunston, 18 N.C. App. 647, 197 S.E.2d 560 (1973).

This section contemplates only the situation where one natural or adoptive parent petitions for the change of name of a child, and the other parent stands to lose his name with respect to that child. In re Dunston, 18 N.C. App. 647, 197 S.E.2d 560 (1973).

It has no application to a stepfather. In re Dunston, 18 N.C. App. 647, 197 S.E.2d 560 (1973).

Neither the consent of a child's stepfather, nor a finding that the stepfather has abandoned the child is necessary in a petition by the natural mother of that child to have the child's name changed. In re Dunston, 18 N.C. App. 647, 197 S.E.2d 560 (1973).

Nor to Natural Father of Child Born Out of Wedlock. — This section was not designed to require the consent of the natural father to a name change where the child was born out of wedlock. In re Dunston, 18 N.C. App. 647, 197 S.E.2d 560 (1973).

Unless His Name Appears on Birth Certificate After Both Parents Execute Affidavit of Paternity. — Where unmarried parents executed an Affidavit of Paternity and entered respondent's name on the birth certificate as the father, court held that there was no authority, statutory or decisional, permitting petitioner to unilaterally change the name of her son, born out of wedlock and not yet legitimated, absent the father's consent. In re Crawford, 134 N.C. App. 137, 517 S.E.2d 161 (1999), distinguishing In re Dunston, 18 N.C. App. 647, 197 S.E.2d 560 (1973).

§ 101-3. Contents of petition.

The applicant shall state in the application his true name, county of birth, date of birth, the full name of parents as shown on birth certificate, the name he desires to adopt, his reasons for desiring such change, and whether his name has ever before been changed by law, and, if so, the facts with respect thereto. (1891, c. 145; Rev., s. 2147; C.S., s. 2972; 1945, c. 37, s. 1; 1957, c. 1233, s. 1.)

CASE NOTES

Stated in In re Mohlman, 26 N.C. App. 220, 216 S.E.2d 147 (1975).

§ 101-4. Proof of good character to accompany petition.

The applicant shall also file with said petition proof of his good character, which proof must be made by at least two citizens of the county who know his standing: Provided, however, proof of good character shall not be required when the application is for the change of name of a child under 16 years of age. (1891, c. 145; Rev., s. 2148; C.S., s. 2973; 1963, c. 206.)

CASE NOTES

Quoted in In re Mohlman, 26 N.C. App. 220, 216 S.E.2d 147 (1975).

§ 101-5. Clerk to order change; certificate and record.

If the clerk thinks that good and sufficient reason exists for the change of name, it shall be his duty to issue an order changing the name of the applicant from his true name to the name sought to be adopted. Such order shall contain the true name, the county of birth, the date of birth, the full name of parents as shown on birth certificate, and the name sought to be adopted. He shall issue to the applicant a certificate under his hand and seal of office, stating the change made in the applicant's name, and shall also record said application and order on the docket of special proceedings in his court. He shall forward the order to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics on a form provided by him. If the applicant was born in North Carolina, the State Registrar shall note the change of name of the individual or individuals specified in the order on the birth certificate of that individual or those individuals and shall notify the register of deeds in the county of birth. If the applicant was born in another state of the United States, the State Registrar shall forward the notice of change of name to the registration office of the state of birth. (1891, c. 145; Rev., ss. 2149, 2150; C.S., s. 2974; 1955, c. 951, s. 4; 1957, c. 1233, s. 2; 1971, c. 444, s. 2.)

CASE NOTES

Discretion of Court. — The statutes providing a procedure for change of name are not absolute in granting privileges, but are usually so phrased as to leave it in the reasonable discretion of the court hearing the petition either to grant or deny it. In re Mohlman, 26

N.C. App. 220, 216 S.E.2d 147 (1975).

The court is not subject to the whim or capricious desire of a petitioner to change his name. In re Mohlman, 26 N.C. App. 220, 216 S.E.2d 147 (1975).

OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

The Division of Motor Vehicles does not have the authority to establish a policy to require documented proof from the Register of Deeds or official court documents for a name change on driver licenses and identification cards as the only method of establishing a name change. See opinion of Attorney General to Mr. William S. Hiatt, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, 58 N.C.A.G. 4 (1988).

§ 101-6. Effect of change; only one change, except as provided.

(a) When the order is made and the applicant's name changed, he is entitled to all the privileges and protection under his new name as he would have been under the old name. No person shall be allowed to change his name under this Chapter but once, except that he shall be permitted to resume his former name upon compliance with the requirements and procedure set forth in this Chapter for change of name, and except as provided in subsection (b) of this section.

(b) For good cause shown, and upon compliance with the requirements and procedure set forth in this Chapter for change of name, the name of a minor child may be changed not more than two times under this Chapter. (1891, c. 145; Rev., ss. 2147, 2149; C.S., s. 2975; 1945, c. 37, s. 2; 1991, c. 333, s. 1.)

§ 101-7. Recording name change.

When the name of any individual, corporation, partnership, or association has been changed in a manner provided by law, any attorney licensed to practice law in this State may file an affidavit with the clerk of superior court stating facts concerning the change of name. The clerk shall cause the affidavit to be filed and indexed among the records of his office, pursuant to G.S. 7A-180(3) and G.S. 7A-343(3). The clerk shall also forward a copy of the affidavit under the seal of his office to the clerk of superior court of any other county named in the affidavit where it shall also be filed and indexed in accordance with this section. Affidavits filed and indexed under this section are for informational purposes only and neither the affidavit nor the manner of its filing and indexing shall in any manner affect the rights or liabilities of any person. (1971, c. 592, s. 1.)

Legal Periodicals. — For an article dealing with marriage contracts as related to North Carolina law, see 13 Wake Forest L. Rev. 85 (1977).

§ 101-8. Resumption of name by widow or widower.

A person at any time after the person is widowed may, upon application to the clerk of court of the county in which the person resides setting forth the person's intention to do so, resume the use of her maiden name or the name of a prior deceased husband or of a previously divorced husband in the case of a widow, or his premarriage surname in the case of a widower. The application shall set forth the full name of the last spouse of the applicant, shall include a copy of the spouse's death certificate, and shall be signed by the applicant in the applicant's full name. The clerks of court of the several counties of this State shall record and index such applications in the manner required by the Administrative Office of the Courts. (1979, c. 768; 1981, c. 564, s. 2; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 565, s. 2.)

	102-17. County projects eligible for assistance.

§ 102-1. Name and description.

The official survey base for the State of North Carolina shall be a system of plane coordinates to be known as the "North Carolina Coordinate System," said system being defined as a Lambert conformal projection of Clarke's spheroid of 1866, having a central meridian of  $79^{\circ} - 00'$  west from Greenwich and standard parallels of latitude of  $34^{\circ} - 20'$  and  $36^{\circ} - 10'$  north of the equator, along which parallels the scale shall be exact. All coordinates of the system are expressed in feet, the x coordinate being measured easterly along the grid and the y coordinate being measured northerly along the grid. The origin of the coordinates is hereby established on the meridian  $79^{\circ} - 00'$  west from Greenwich at the intersection of the parallels  $33^{\circ} - 45'$  north latitude, such origin being given the coordinates  $x = 2,000,000$  feet,  $y = 0$  feet. The precise position of said system shall be as marked on the ground by triangulation or traverse stations or monuments established in conformity with the standards adopted by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey for first- and second-order work, whose geodetic positions have been rigidly on the North American datum of 1927, and whose plane coordinates have been computed on the system defined. (1939, c. 163, s. 1.)

Legal Periodicals. — For article on rules, ethics and reform in connection with transferring North Carolina real estate, see 49 N.C.L. Rev. 593 (1971).

§ 102-1.1. Name and description in relation to 1983 North American Datum.

From and after the date and time the North Carolina Geodetic Survey Section in the Land Resources Division of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources receives from the National Geodetic Survey, official notice of a complete, published definition of the North American Datum of 1983 including the State plane coordinate constants applicable to North Carolina, the official survey base for North Carolina shall be a system of plane coordinates to be known as the "North Carolina Coordinate System of 1983," said system being defined as a Lambert conformal projection of the "Geodetic Reference System (GRS 80 Ellipsoid)" having a central meridian of  $79^{\circ} - 00'$  west from Greenwich and standard parallels of latitude of  $34^{\circ} - 20'$  and  $36^{\circ} - 10'$  north of the equator, along which parallels the scale shall be exact. All coordinates of the system are expressed in metres, the x coordinate being measured easterly along the grid and the y coordinate being measured northerly along the grid. The U.S. Survey Foot, 1 meter = 39.37 inches or 3.2808333333 feet, shall be used as a conversion factor. The origin of the coordinates is hereby established on the meridian  $79^{\circ} - 00'$  west from Greenwich at the intersection of the parallels  $33^{\circ} - 45'$  north latitude, such origin being given the coordinates  $x = 609,601.22$  metres,  $y = 0$  metres. The precise position of said system shall be as marked on the ground by triangulation or traverse stations or monuments established in conformity with the standards adopted by the National Geodetic Survey for first- and second-order work, whose geodetic positions have been rigidly adjusted on the North American Datum of 1983, and whose plane coordinates have been computed on the system defined. Whenever plane coordinates are used in the description or identification of surface area or location within this State, the coordinates shall be identified as "NAD 83", indicating North American Datum of 1983, or as "NAD 27", indicating North American Datum of 1927. (1979, c. 4; 1987, c. 148; 1989, c. 727, s. 218(33); 1997-443, s. 11A.119(a).)

§ 102-2. Physical control.

Any triangulation or traverse station or monument established as described in G.S. 102-1 may be used in establishing a connection between any survey and the above-mentioned system of rectangular coordinates. (1939, c. 163, s. 2.)

§ 102-3. Use of name.

The use of the term "North Carolina Coordinate System" on any map, report, or survey, or other document, shall be limited to coordinates based on the North Carolina Coordinate System as defined in this Chapter. (1939, c. 163, s. 3.)

§ 102-4. Damaging, defacing, or destroying monuments.

If any person shall willfully damage, deface, destroy, or otherwise injure a station, monument or permanent mark of the North Carolina Coordinate System, or shall oppose any obstacles to the proper, reasonable, and legal use of any such station or monument, such person shall be guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor. (1939, c. 163, s. 4; 1993, c. 539, s. 683; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 24, s. 14(c).)

§ 102-5: Repealed by Session Laws 1963, c. 783.

§ 102-6. Legality of use in descriptions.

For the purpose of describing the location of any survey station or land boundary corner in the State of North Carolina, it shall be considered a complete, legal, and satisfactory description to define the location of such point or points by means of coordinates of the North Carolina Coordinate System as described herein. (1963, c. 163, s. 6; c. 783.)

§ 102-7. Use not compulsory.

Nothing contained in this Chapter shall be interpreted as requiring any purchaser or mortgagee to rely wholly on a description based upon the North Carolina Coordinate System. (1939, c. 163, s. 7.)

§ 102-8. Administrative agency.

The administrative agency of the North Carolina Coordinate System shall be the Department of Environment and Natural Resources through its appropriate division hereinafter called the “agency.” (1939, c. 163, s. 8; 1973, c. 1262, s. 86; 1977, c. 771, s. 4; 1989, c. 727, s. 218(34); 1997-443, s. 11A.119(a).)

§ 102-9. Duties and powers of the agency.

It shall be the duty of the agency to make or cause to be made from time to time such surveys and computations as are necessary to further or complete the North Carolina Coordinate System. The agency shall endeavor to carry to completion as soon as practicable the field monumentation and office computations of the coordinate system. For the purpose of this work the agency shall have the power to accept grants for the specific purpose of carrying on the work; to coordinate, organize, and direct any federal or other assistance which may be offered to further the work; to cooperate with any individual, firm, company, public or private agency, State or federal agencies, in the prosecution of the work; to enter into contracts or cooperative agreements with other state or federal agencies in promoting the work of the coordinating system. The agency shall further have the power to adopt necessary rules, regulations, and specifications relating to the establishment and use of the coordinate system as defined in this Chapter, consistent with the standards and practice of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. (1939, c. 163, s. 9; 1997-443, s. 11A.119(a).)

Editor’s Note. — Session Laws 1997-443, s. 11A.119(a), provided that the phrase “Environment, Health, and Natural Resources” was to be deleted and replaced by the phrase “Environment and Natural Resources” in this section. However, this section does not contain that phrase.

§ 102-10. Prior work.

The system of stations, monuments, traverses, computations, and other work which has been done or is under way in North Carolina by the so-called North Carolina Geodetic Survey, under the supervision of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, is, where consistent with the provisions of this Chapter, hereby made a part of the North Carolina Coordinate System. The surveys, notes, computations, monuments, stations, and all other work relating to the coordinate system, which has been done by said North Carolina Geodetic Survey, under the supervision of and in cooperation with the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey and federal relief agencies, hereby are placed under the direction of, and shall become the property of, the administrative agency. All persons or agencies having in their possession any surveys, notes, computations, or other data pertaining to the aforementioned coordinate system, shall turn over to the Department of Environment and Natural Resources such data upon request. (1939, c. 163, s. 10; 1959, c. 1315, s. 1; 1973, c. 1262, s. 86; 1977, c. 771, s. 4; 1989, c. 727, s. 218(35); 1997-443, s. 11A.119(a).)

§ 102-11. Vertical control.

Whereas the foregoing provisions of this Chapter heretofore are related to horizontal control only, the administrative agency may adopt standards for vertical control or levying surveys consistent with those recommended by and used by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, and make or cause to be made such surveys as are necessary to complete the vertical control of North Carolina, in accordance with the provisions for horizontal control surveys as defined in this Chapter. (1939, c. 163, s. 11.)

§ 102-12. Control system map.

The agency shall prepare for publication and cause to be published before July 1, 1962, a map or maps setting forth the location of monuments for both horizontal and vertical control, together with such other pertinent data as the agency may direct for implementation of the North Carolina Coordinate System. The agency shall furnish such map or maps to any person or may make such charge as will defray the expense of printing and distribution. It shall be the responsibility of the agency to maintain this map, make revisions as often as necessary to provide up-to-date information and furnish up-to-date copies to the register of deeds of each county in the State. (1959, c. 1315, s. 2.)

§ 102-13: Repealed by Session Laws 1975, c. 183, s. 1.

§ 102-14: Repealed by Session Laws 1973, c. 1262, s. 86.

§ 102-15. Improvement of land records.

There is hereby established a statewide program for improvement of county land records to be administered by the Secretary of State (hereafter called the Secretary). First emphasis shall be given to the completion of countywide base maps. Counties with a base map system prepared to acceptable standards will be encouraged to undertake subsequent logical improvements in their respective land records systems. Work undertaken by any county under this program will be eligible for financial assistance out of funds appropriated for this purpose to the Department of the Secretary of State. The amount allotted to each project is to be determined by the Secretary, but in no case shall such allotments exceed one dollar for every dollar of local tax funds expended on the project by the county. Federal or other State funds available to the project will not be eligible as matching money under the State program. (1977, c. 1099, s. 1; 1985, c. 479, s. 165(b); 1989, c. 727, s. 218(36); 1989 (Reg. Sess., 1990), c. 1004, s. 19(b); 1997-443, s. 11A.119(a); 1999-119, s. 1.)

§ 102-16. Board of county commissioners to apply for assistance.

The board of county commissioners of each county may apply to the Secretary, upon forms provided by him and in accordance with directives and requirements outlined in G.S. 102-17, for assistance in completing one or more projects. Such project or projects shall constitute one or more phases of a plan for the improvement of the county's land records. The work to be undertaken shall be described in relation to the county's revaluation schedule, and it shall be shown to be a part of a larger undertaking for achieving ultimate long-term improvements in the land records maintained by the county register of deeds, the county tax supervisor, or other county office. (1977, c. 1099, s. 1.)

§ 102-17. County projects eligible for assistance.

All projects funded under this assistance program shall be described as conforming to one or more of the project outlines defined herein. All projects shall achieve a substantial measure of conformity with the objectives set forth in these project outlines such that a greater degree of statewide standardization of land records will result. The Secretary shall prepare and make available to all counties administrative regulations designed to assist the counties in preparing project plans and applications for assistance, and to assure compliance with the objectives and other requirements of G.S. 102-15, 102-16, and this section. County projects shall be eligible for assistance subject to availability of funds, compliance with administrative regulations, and conformity with one or more of the project outlines as follows:

- (1) Base Maps. — Preparation of accurate planimetric or orthophoto maps with countywide coverage at one or more scale ratios suitable as a base for the development and maintenance of current cadastral maps. These maps shall have additional information included where appropriate to increase their utility for other purposes. The formulation of technical standards and detailed specifications and the coordination of all such mapping projects with other State mapping programs shall be the responsibility of the Department of the Secretary of State. Insofar as possible mapping projects funded under this assistance program shall utilize existing photography, geodetic control surveys, and previously mapped information, and be coordinated or combined with adjacent or related mapping projects to achieve the best efficiency and economy consistent with the maintenance of high quality map production.
- (2) Cadastral Maps. — Preparation of accurate maps of all property boundaries together with other supporting information and based on up-to-date planimetric or orthophoto maps conforming to the specifications for base maps outlined in subdivision (1) of this section. The formulation of specifications and standards for these cadastral maps shall be the responsibility of the Department of the Secretary of State. These specifications and standards shall be designed to conform to the best acceptable practice for county land records in North Carolina. The cadastral maps shall be scheduled as nearly as possible to be completed and made available for the next revaluation cycle to be undertaken by each county and the maps shall include references to subdivision plat numbers, property codes, and other related information considered useful to the appraisal process or to the public generally.
- (3) Standardized Parcel Identifiers. — Adoption of a system of parcel identifiers which will serve to provide unique identification of each parcel of land, a permanent historical record of change and the chain of title, and any necessary cross-reference to other preexisting parcel identifiers. The proposed system of parcel identifiers shall conform to such minimum specifications and standards as may be promulgated by the Secretary for the purpose of achieving consistency and compatibility among all counties throughout the State. Said minimum specifications and standards for parcel identifier systems shall be adopted and administered by the Secretary only after consultation with the recommendation from an advisory committee on land records with a membership representative of professional organizations concerned with public land records and map making.
- (4) Automated Processing of Land Parcel Records. — Preparation and implementation of a system of automated record keeping and processing which will expedite the maintenance of accurate up-to-date files, improve the appraisal process, and facilitate analytical operations needed to respond to requirements for current information. Technical standards and minimum specifications shall be the joint responsibility of the Department of the Secretary of State, the Department of Revenue, and the Department of Cultural Resources. (1977, c. 771, s. 4; c. 1099, s. 1; 1985, c. 479, s. 165(c); 1989, c. 727, s. 218(37); 1997-443, s. 11A.119(a); 1999-119, s. 2.)

Sundays, Holidays and Special Days.

Sec.

- 103-1. [Repealed.]
- 103-2. Hunting on Sunday.
- 103-3. Execution of process on Sunday.
- 103-4. Dates of public holidays.
- 103-5. Acts to be done on Sunday or holidays.

Sec.

- 103-6. Arbor Week.
- 103-7. American Family Day.
- 103-8. Indian solidarity week.
- 103-9. Prisoner of War Day.
- 103-10. Pearl Harbor Remembrance Day.

§ 103-1: Repealed by Session Laws 1951, c. 73.

§ 103-2. Hunting on Sunday.

If any person shall, except in defense of his own property, hunt on Sunday, having with him a shotgun, rifle, or pistol, he shall be guilty of a Class 3 misdemeanor. Provided, that the provisions hereof shall not be applicable to military reservations, the jurisdiction of which is exclusively in the federal government, or to field trials authorized by the Wildlife Resources Commission. Wildlife protectors are granted authority to enforce the provisions of this section. (1868-9, c. 18, ss. 1, 2; Code, s. 3783; Rev., s. 3842; C.S., s. 3956; 1945, c. 1047; 1967, c. 1003; 1979, c. 830, s. 13; 1989, c. 642, s. 3; 1993, c. 539, s. 684; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 24, s. 14(c).)

Local Modification. — Perquimans: 1935, c. 145.

CASE NOTES

Indictment Must State That Act Was Committed on Sunday. — An indictment for an act which is criminal when committed on a Sunday must state that the act in question was committed on a Sunday; but if it does so, no exception can be taken to it for reference to the same day by a wrong day of the month. State v. Drake, 64 N.C. 589 (1870).

Sufficiency of Indictment. — Under the former reading of the section, a conviction was sustainable under an indictment charging the defendant with being “found off his premises on the Sabbath day, having with him a shotgun, contrary to the form of the statute,” etc. State v. Howard, 67 N.C. 24 (1872).

Reference to “Sabbath” in Indictment. — It was immaterial that the indictment used the expression “the Sabbath” instead of “Sunday.” State v. Drake, 64 N.C. 589 (1870).

§ 103-3. Execution of process on Sunday.

It shall be lawful for any sheriff or other lawful officer to execute any summons, capias, or other process on Sunday. (1957, c. 1052; 1973, c. 108, s. 47.)

CASE NOTES

Sunday is not a judicial day; hence an adjournment of the court from Saturday night to Monday morning during the progress of a trial for murder is not violative of the act requiring the adjournment to be “from day to day.” State v. Howard, 82 N.C. 623 (1880).

When Court May Sit on Sunday. — There have been some instances in the judicial proceedings in this State where the courts have held their sessions on Sunday, but the cases are rare, and whenever it has been done, exception has generally been taken to the course of the court, upon the ground that it could not legally sit on that day. But the Supreme Court has held that in special cases ex necessitate the court might sit on Sunday. State v. Ricketts, 74 N.C.

187 (1876); State v. McGimsey, 80 N.C. 377 (1879); State v. Howard, 82 N.C. 623 (1880).

Term of Court Embraces Sunday. — When a term of court is set by statute to begin on a certain Monday, and to last for “one week” (or two or three weeks, as the case may be), it embraces the Sunday of each week (unless sooner adjourned), and the term expires by limitation at midnight of that day. Taylor v. Ervin, 119 N.C. 274, 25 S.E. 875 (1896).

Verdict of Jury and Judgment. — The rendition by the jury of a verdict on Sunday is not invalid for that cause. Tuttle v. Tuttle, 146 N.C. 484, 59 S.E. 1008 (1907).

A verdict entered on the Sunday of a week set for the duration of a court, in the absence of an earlier adjournment, is legally entered. Taylor v. Ervin, 119 N.C. 274, 25 S.E. 875 (1896).

There being no inhibition of a verdict rendered on Sunday, either at common law or by statute, a judgment entered on that day (by virtue of the statute, that it shall be entered up at once on the verdict) is valid. Taylor v. Ervin, 119 N.C. 274, 25 S.E. 875 (1896).

§ 103-4. Dates of public holidays.

(a) The following are declared to be legal public holidays:

(1) New Year’s Day, January 1.

(1a) Martin Luther King, Jr.’s, Birthday, the third Monday in January.

(2) Robert E. Lee’s Birthday, January 19.

(3) Washington’s Birthday, the third Monday in February.

(3a) Greek Independence Day, March 25.

(4) Anniversary of signing of Halifax Resolves, April 12.

(5) Confederate Memorial Day, May 10.

(6) Anniversary of Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, May 20.

(7) Memorial Day, the last Monday in May.

(8) Good Friday.

(9) Independence Day, July 4.

(10) Labor Day, the first Monday in September.

(11) Columbus Day, the second Monday in October.

(11a) Yom Kippur.

(12) Veterans Day, November 11.

(13) Tuesday after the first Monday in November in years in which a general election is to be held.

(14) Thanksgiving Day, the fourth Thursday in November.

(15) Christmas Day, December 25.

(b) Whenever any public holiday shall fall upon Sunday, the Monday following shall be a public holiday. (1881, c. 294; Code, s. 3784; 1891, c. 58; 1899, c. 410; 1901, c. 25; Rev., s. 2838; 1907, c. 996; 1909, c. 888; 1919, c. 287; C.S., s. 2959; 1935, c. 212; 1959, c. 1011; 1969, c. 521; 1973, c. 53; 1979, c. 84; 1981, c. 135; 1983, c. 1; 1987, c. 25, s. 1; c. 851, ss. 1, 2; c. 853, s. 2.)

CASE NOTES

This section relates to statewide public holidays. Hardbarger v. Deal, 258 N.C. 31, 127 S.E.2d 771 (1962).

Effect of Legal Holiday Generally. — The statute declaring certain days public holidays does not prohibit the pursuit of the usual avocations of citizens, nor keep public officers or the courts from exercising their respective functions on those days. While it might be that the attendance of jurors, witnesses and suitors will not be enforced, and the courts will not sue out or enforce process on such days, yet the courts may lawfully proceed with the business before them. State v. Moore, 104 N.C. 743, 10 S.E. 183 (1889).

The section simply declares that certain days therein specified, in each year, shall be public holidays, and the following section prescribes when papers coming due on such days, or on Sunday, shall be payable. It does not purport, in terms or effect, to prohibit persons from pursuing their usual avocations on such days, nor is there any inhibition upon public officers to exercise their offices, respectively, or upon the courts to sit on such days and exercise their functions and authority. There is no such statutory inhibition; nor, indeed, is there any, except such as may arise in the application of general principles of law. It has never been understood to be the law in this State that a public holiday is dies non juridicus, except perhaps to a limited extent; it is very certainly not wholly so. The courts, particularly the superior courts, very frequently sit on such days and hear and try causes and dispatch the business that ordinarily comes before them, especially when there is no objection. State v. Moore, 104 N.C. 743, 10 S.E. 183 (1889).

Closing of County Clerk's Office on Easter Monday. — Where a county clerk's office was closed on Easter Monday, pursuant to resolution by the board of county commissioners in which Easter Monday was designated a holiday, a plaintiff, if otherwise entitled to commence an action on Easter Monday was entitled to commence the action on the next day the courthouse was open for business. Hardbarger v. Deal, 258 N.C. 31, 127 S.E.2d 771 (1962).

Judicial Notice That Certain Days Were Sundays or Public Holidays. — The court would take judicial notice of the fact that September 2, 1962, the last day of the two-year period beginning with the death of the plaintiff's intestate, was Sunday and that the following day was the first Monday in September, a public holiday. The action was instituted on September 4, 1962, by the issuance of summons and, therefore, was instituted within the time allowed by law. Kinlaw v. Norfolk S. Ry., 269 N.C. 110, 152 S.E.2d 329 (1967).

Deposition Opened on Holiday. — A legal holiday has not the same status in respect to legal proceedings as a Sunday; and while depositions opened on the latter day are void, they are not so when they are opened on a legal holiday. Latta v. Catawba Elec. Co., 146 N.C. 285, 59 S.E. 1028 (1907).

Stated in Robbins v. Borman, 9 N.C. App. 416, 176 S.E.2d 346 (1970); Kirby v. GE Co., — F. Supp. 2d —, 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3289 (W.D.N.C. Feb. 9, 2000).

§ 103-5. Acts to be done on Sunday or holidays.

(a) Where the day or the last day for doing an act required or permitted by law to be done falls on Sunday or a holiday the act may be done on the next succeeding secular or business day and where the courthouse in any county is closed on Saturday or any other day by order of the board of county commissioners of said county and the day or the last day required for filing an advance bid or the filing of any pleading or written instrument of any kind with any officer having an office in the courthouse, or the performance of any act required or permitted to be done in said courthouse falls on Saturday or other day during which said courthouse is closed as aforesaid, then said Saturday or other day during which said courthouse is closed as aforesaid shall be deemed a holiday; and said advance bid, pleading or other written instrument may be filed, and any act required or permitted to be done in the courthouse may be done on the next day during which the courthouse is open for business.

(b) This section does not apply where the act required or permitted by law to be done is prescribed by Section 22 of Article II, or Section 5(11) of Article III, of the Constitution of North Carolina. (Code, ss. 3784, 3785, 3786; 1899, c. 733, s. 194; Rev., s. 2839; C.S., s. 3960; 1951, c. 1176, s. 1; 1995, c. 20, s. 16.)

Cross References. — As to computing time when last day falls on Sunday, see § 1-593 and § 1A-1, Rule 6(a). As to closing county clerk's office on Easter Monday, see note to § 103-4.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 20, s. 16, became effective with respect to bills and joint resolutions passed in either house of the General Assembly on or after January 1, 1997, if constitutional amendments proposed by Session Laws 1995, c. 5, ss. 1 and 2 were approved. These amendments were approved.

CASE NOTES

The institution of a suit is an act "required or permitted to be done in the courthouse" within the meaning of this section. Hardbarger v. Deal, 258 N.C. 31, 127 S.E.2d 771 (1962).

Quoted in Asheville Showcase & Fixture Co. v. Restaurant Assocs., 3 N.C. App. 74, 164 S.E.2d 63 (1968); Pearson v. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 325 N.C. 246, 382 S.E.2d 745 (1989).

§ 103-6. Arbor Week.

The week in March of each year containing March 15 is hereby designated as Arbor Week in North Carolina. (1967, c. 39.)

§ 103-7. American Family Day.

The first Sunday in August of each year is designated as American Family Day in North Carolina. (1979, c. 457.)

§ 103-8. Indian solidarity week.

The last full week in September of each year is designated as Indian solidarity week in North Carolina. (1981, c. 769.)

§ 103-9. Prisoner of War Day.

The ninth of April of each year is designated as Prisoner of War Recognition Day. (1989, c. 428, s. 1.)

§ 103-10. Pearl Harbor Remembrance Day.

The seventh of December of each year is designated as Pearl Harbor Remembrance Day in North Carolina. (1991, c. 175, s. 1.)

Jurisdiction over National Park System Lands.

- 104-31. Governor authorized to cede jurisdiction.
- 104-32. Jurisdiction reserved.
- 104-33. Applicability of Article.

ARTICLE 1.

Authority for Acquisition.

§ 104-1. Acquisition of lands for specified purposes authorized; concurrent jurisdiction reserved.

The United States is authorized, by purchase or otherwise, to acquire title to any tract or parcel of land in the State of North Carolina, not exceeding 25 acres, for the purpose of erecting thereon any customhouse, courthouse, post office, or other building, including lighthouses, lightkeepers' dwellings, lifesaving stations, buoys and local depots and buildings connected therewith, or for the establishment of a fish-cultural station and the erection thereon of such buildings and improvements as may be necessary for the successful operations of such fish-cultural station. The consent to acquisition by the United States is upon the express condition that the State of North Carolina shall so far retain a concurrent jurisdiction with the United States over such lands as that all civil and criminal process issued from the courts of the State of North Carolina may be executed thereon in like manner as if this authority had not been given, and that the State of North Carolina also retains authority to punish all violations of its criminal laws committed on any such tract of land. (1870-1, c. 44, s. 5; Code, ss. 3080, 3083; 1887, c. 136; 1899, c. 10; Rev., s. 5426; C.S., s. 8053.)

Legal Periodicals. — As to note on jurisdiction relative to lands acquired by the federal government, see 23 N.C.L. Rev. 258 (1945).

CASE NOTES

Exclusive Jurisdiction. — Jurisdiction of the United States is exclusive over property in this State acquired in 1899 with the State's legislative consent, and such exclusive jurisdiction is not affected by the restrictive provisions of this section and § 104-7 subsequently enacted, which are prospective only. State v. DeBerry, 224 N.C. 834, 32 S.E.2d 617 (1945).

Cited in State v. Burell, 256 N.C. 288, 123 S.E.2d 795 (1962).

§ 104-2. Unused lands to revert to State.

The consent given in G.S. 104-1 is upon consideration of the United States building lighthouses, lighthouse keepers' dwellings, lifesaving stations, buoys, coal depots, fish stations, post offices, customhouses, and other buildings connected therewith, on the tracts or parcels of land so purchased, or that may be purchased; and that the title to land so conveyed to the United States shall revert to the State unless the construction of the aforementioned buildings be completed thereon within 10 years from the date of the conveyance from the grantor. (1870-1, c. 44, s. 5; Code, ss. 3080, 3083; 1887, c. 136; 1899, c. 10; Rev., s. 5426; C.S., s. 8054.)

§ 104-3. Exemption of such lands from taxation.

The lots, parcels, or tracts of land acquired under this Chapter, together with the tenements and appurtenances for the purpose mentioned in this Chapter, shall be exempt from taxation. (1870-1, c. 44, s. 3; Code, s. 3082; Rev., s. 5428; C.S., s. 8055.)

CASE NOTES

When Exemption Begins. — A contract to convey lands to the United States government reservation, under the federal statute, does not vest the title in the government until survey is made, acreage is determined, purchase price is paid, or conveyance is made and title is approved by the Attorney General, and until then the land is subject to state taxes under the state statutes. Caldwell Land & Lumber Co. v. Commissioners of Caldwell County, 174 N.C. 634, 94 S.E. 406 (1917).

§ 104-4. Conveyances of such lands to be recorded.

All deeds, conveyances, or other title papers for the same shall be recorded, as in other cases, in the office of the register of deeds of the county in which the lands so conveyed may lie, in the same manner and under the same regulations as other deeds and conveyances are now recorded, and in like manner may be recorded a sufficient description by metes and bounds, courses and distances, of any tract or legal division of any public land belonging to the United States, which may be set apart by the general government for the purpose before mentioned, by an order, patent, or other official document or paper so describing such land. (1870-1, c. 44, s. 2; 1872-3, c. 201; Code, s. 3081; Rev., s. 5429; C.S., s. 8056.)

§ 104-5. Forest reserve in North Carolina authorized; powers conferred.

The United States is authorized to acquire by purchase, or by condemnation with adequate compensation, except as hereinafter provided, such lands in North Carolina as in the opinion of the federal government may be needed for the establishment of a national forest reserve in that region. This consent is given upon condition that the State of North Carolina shall retain a concurrent jurisdiction with the United States in and over such lands so far that civil process in all cases, and such criminal process as may issue under the authority of the State of North Carolina against any person charged with the commission of any crime without or within said jurisdiction, may be executed thereon in like manner as if this consent had not been given. Power is hereby conferred upon the Congress of the United States to pass such laws as it may deem necessary to the acquisition as hereinbefore provided, for incorporation in such national forest reserve such forest-covered lands lying in North Carolina as in the opinion of the federal government may be needed for this purpose, but as much as 200 acres of any tract of land occupied as a home by bona fide residents in this State on the eighteenth day of January, 1901, shall be exempt from the provisions of this section. Power is hereby conferred upon Congress to pass such laws and to make or provide for the making of such rules and regulations, of both civil and criminal nature, and to provide punishment therefor, as in its judgment may be necessary for the management, control, and protection of such lands as may be from time to time acquired by the United States under the provisions of this section. (1901, c. 17; Rev., s. 5430; C.S., s. 8057; 1929, c. 67, s. 1.)

CASE NOTES

Concurrent Jurisdiction. — This section and 16 U.S.C. § 551 grant the United States concurrent jurisdiction over national forest lands located within North Carolina. United States v. Raffield, 82 F.3d 611 (4th Cir. 1996), cert. denied, 519 U.S. 933, 117 S. Ct. 306, 136 L. Ed. 2d 223 (1996).

Where defendant was pulled over inside Pisgah National Forest, North Carolina,

United States had jurisdiction to prosecute defendant for driving under the influence of intoxicating beverage and refusing to submit to a chemical breath analysis under the Assimilative Crimes Act; state crimes become federal offenses when committed on federal lands within the state. United States v. Raffield, 82 F.3d 611 (4th Cir. 1996), cert. denied, 519 U.S. 933, 117 S. Ct. 306, 136 L. Ed. 2d 223 (1996).

§ 104-6. Acquisition of lands for river and harbor improvement; reservation of right to serve process.

The consent of the legislature of the State is hereby given to the acquisition by the United States of any tracts, pieces, or parcels of land within the limits of the State, by purchase or condemnation, for use as sites for locks and dams, or for any other purpose in connection with the improvement of rivers and harbors within and on the borders of the State. The consent hereby given is in accordance with the seventeenth clause of the eighth section of the first article of the Constitution of the United States, and with the acts of Congress in such cases made and provided; and this State retains concurrent jurisdiction with the United States over any lands acquired and held in pursuance of the provisions of this section, so far as that all civil and criminal process issued under authority of any law of this State may be executed in any part of the premises so acquired, or the buildings or structures thereon erected. (1907, c. 681; C.S., s. 8058.)

§ 104-7. Acquisition of lands for public buildings; cession of jurisdiction; exemption from taxation.

The consent of the State is hereby given, in accordance with the seventeenth clause, eighth section, of the first article of the Constitution of the United States, to the acquisition by the United States, by purchase, condemnation, or otherwise, of any land in the State required for the sites for customhouses, courthouses, post offices, arsenals, or other public buildings whatever, or for any other purposes of the government.

Exclusive jurisdiction in and over any land so acquired by the United States shall be and the same is hereby ceded to the United States for all purposes except the service upon such sites of all civil and criminal process of the courts of this State; but the jurisdiction so ceded shall continue no longer than the said United States shall own such lands. The jurisdiction ceded shall not vest until the United States shall have acquired title to said lands by purchase, condemnation, or otherwise.

So long as the said lands shall remain the property of the United States when acquired as aforesaid, and no longer, the same shall be and continue exempt and exonerated from all State, county, and municipal taxation, assessment, or other charges which may be levied or imposed under the authority of this State. (1907, c. 25; C.S., s. 8059.)

Legal Periodicals. — As to note on jurisdiction relative to lands acquired by federal government, see 23 N.C.L. Rev. 258 (1945).

For case law survey on jurisdiction over federal enclave, see 41 N.C.L. Rev. 451 (1963).

CASE NOTES

Jurisdiction Is a Federal Question. — Whether the United States has acquired jurisdiction over land it owns is a federal question. State v. Smith, 328 N.C. 161, 400 S.E.2d 405, cert. denied, 502 U.S. 956, 112 S. Ct. 414, 116 L. Ed. 2d 435 (1991).

Federal Acquisition of Jurisdiction Over Territory. — The federal government must acquire state land by condemnation or otherwise. If the state in which the land is situated cedes jurisdiction to the federal government, and if the government accepts jurisdiction, the state no longer has jurisdiction over this territory. State v. Smith, 328 N.C. 161, 400 S.E.2d 405, cert. denied, 502 U.S. 956, 112 S. Ct. 414, 116 L. Ed. 2d 435 (1991).

Necessity for Acceptance of Jurisdiction by United States. — This section cedes exclusive jurisdiction to the United States over the land acquired, but this section and the State of North Carolina cannot compel the United States to accept such jurisdiction over an area. State v. Burell, 256 N.C. 288, 123 S.E.2d 795, cert. denied, 370 U.S. 961, 82 S. Ct. 1621, 8 L. Ed. 2d 827 (1962).

When the United States government has not accepted the exclusive jurisdiction over the area ceded by the section, this section is not applicable and the State retains its territorial jurisdiction over the area in question so far as its exercise involves no interference with the carrying out of the federal project. The trial, conviction and judgment imposed upon a defendant by the state court for the felony of assault with intent to commit rape committed in the ceded area is not such interference. State v. Burell, 256 N.C. 288, 123 S.E.2d 795, cert. denied, 370 U.S. 961, 82 S. Ct. 1621, 8 L. Ed. 2d 827 (1962).

Jurisdiction on Camp Lejeune Reservation. — It appears that the State ceded all jurisdiction on the Camp Lejeune reservation that it could, except for the service of process. State v. Smith, 328 N.C. 161, 400 S.E.2d 405, cert. denied, 502 U.S. 956, 112 S. Ct. 414, 116 L. Ed. 2d 435 (1991).

North Carolina lacked jurisdiction to try a person as an adult for murders he allegedly committed as a juvenile on the Camp Lejeune military reservation. State v. Smith, 328 N.C.

161, 400 S.E.2d 405, cert. denied, 502 U.S. 956, 112 S. Ct. 414, 116 L. Ed. 2d 435 (1991).

1 Fixtures and improvements placed upon lands in a military reservation leased from the federal government, as well as the value of the leasehold estate, are subject to taxation in this State, Congress having waived any immunity of such property from taxation. Bragg Inv. Co. v. Cumberland County, 245 N.C. 492, 96 S.E.2d 341 (1957).

Applied in State v. Graham, 47 N.C. App. 303, 267 S.E.2d 56 (1980).

§ 104-8. Further authorization of acquisition of land.

The United States is hereby authorized to acquire lands by condemnation or otherwise in this State for the purpose of preserving the navigability of navigable streams and for holding and administering such lands for national park purposes: Provided, that this section and G.S. 104-9 shall in nowise affect the authority conferred upon the United States and reserved to the State in G.S. 104-5 and 104-6. (1925, c. 152, s. 1.)

§ 104-9. Condition of consent granted in preceding section.

This consent is given upon condition that the State of North Carolina shall retain a concurrent jurisdiction with the United States in and over such lands so far that civil process in all cases, and such criminal process as may issue under the authority of the State of North Carolina against any person charged with the commission of any crime, without or within said jurisdiction, may be executed thereon in like manner as if this consent had not been given. (1925, c. 152, s. 2.)

§ 104-10. Migratory bird sanctuaries or other wildlife refuges.

The United States is authorized to acquire by purchase, or by condemnation with adequate compensation, such lands in North Carolina as in the opinion of the federal government may be needed for the establishment of one or more migratory bird sanctuaries or other wildlife refuges. This consent is given upon condition that the State of North Carolina shall retain a concurrent jurisdiction with the United States in and over such lands so far that civil process in all cases, and such criminal process as may issue under the authority of the State of North Carolina against any person charged with the commission of any crime without or within said jurisdiction, may be executed therein in like manner as if this consent had not been given. Power is hereby conferred upon the Congress of the United States to pass such laws as it may deem necessary to the acquisition as hereinbefore provided, for incorporation in such sanctuaries or refuges such lands lying in North Carolina as in the opinion of the federal government may be suitable and needed for this purpose. Power is hereby conferred upon Congress to pass such laws and to make or provide for the making of such rules and regulations, of both civil and criminal nature, and to provide punishment therefor, as in its judgment may be necessary for the management, control and protection of such lands as may be from time to time acquired by the United States under the provisions of this section. (1929, c. 163, s. 1.)

§ 104-11. Utilities Commission to secure rights-of-way, etc., for waterway improvements by use of federal funds.

Hereafter whenever any waterway improvement in North Carolina by the use of federal funds is provided for upon condition that the State or locality shall furnish rights-of-way, permits for the dumping of dredged material, or furnish or do any other thing in connection with the proposed waterway improvement, the Utilities Commission is authorized and empowered to represent the State or locality in such matter of securing the rights-of-way, permits for the dumping of dredged material, or other things so required in connection with such waterway improvement; and in prosecuting such undertaking, the Utilities Commission may follow the same procedure provided in Article 2 for the acquisition of rights-of-way for the intercoastal waterway from the Cape Fear River to the South Carolina line: Provided, however, that said Utilities Commission is not hereby authorized to enter into obligation or contract for the payment of any money or proceeds through condemnation or otherwise without the express approval of the Governor and Council of State. (1935, c. 240; 1937, c. 434.)

§ 104-11.1. Governor may accept a retrocession of jurisdiction over federal areas.

Whenever a duly authorized official or agent of the United States, acting pursuant to authority conferred by the Congress, notifies the Governor or any other State official, department or agency, that the United States desires or is willing to relinquish to the State the jurisdiction, or a portion thereof, held by the United States over the lands designated in such notice, the Governor may, in his discretion, accept such relinquishment. Such acceptance may be made by sending a notice of acceptance to the official or agent designated by the United States to receive such notice of acceptance. The Governor shall send a signed copy of the notice of acceptance, together with the notice of relinquishment received from the United States, to the Secretary of State, who shall maintain a permanent file of said notices.

Upon the sending of said notice of acceptance to the designated official or agent of the United States, the State shall immediately have such jurisdiction over the lands designated in the notice of relinquishment as said notice shall specify.

The provisions of this section shall apply to the relinquishment of jurisdiction acquired by the United States under the provisions of this Chapter or any other provision of law. (1957, c. 1202.)

ARTICLE 2.

Inland Waterways.

§ 104-12. Acquisition of land for inland waterway from Cape Fear River; grant of State lands.

For the purpose of aiding in the construction of the proposed inland waterway by the United States from the Cape Fear River at Southport to the North Carolina-South Carolina State line, the Secretary of State is hereby authorized to issue to the United States of America a grant to the land located within said inland waterway, right-of-way, which is to be 1,000 feet to 1,750 feet wide insofar as such land is subject to grant by the State of North Carolina, the said grant to issue upon a certificate furnished to the Secretary of State by the Secretary of War, or by any authorized officer of the corps of engineers of the United States army, or by any other authorized official, exercising control over the construction of the said waterway. Whenever in the construction of such inland waterway within this State, lands theretofore submerged shall be raised above the water by the deposit of excavated material, the land so formed shall become the property of the United States if within the limits of said inland waterway, right-of-way, herein set out 1,000 feet to 1,750 feet and the Secretary of State is hereby authorized to issue to the United States a grant to the land so formed within the limits above specified, the grant to issue upon a certificate furnished to the Secretary of State by some authorized official of the United States, as above provided. If said lands so required for the inland waterway right-of-way shall be marshlands, or sound lands, the title to which has heretofore been vested in the State Board of Education, the Governor of the State, as President thereof, and the Superintendent of Public Instruction as Secretary, are hereby authorized and required to execute proper conveyance to the United States of America for said marshlands or sound lands, free of cost, both to the State and to the United States government, upon a certificate furnished to said Board of Education by the Secretary of War, or by any authorized officer of the corps of engineers of the United States army, or by any other authorized official exercising control over the construction of the said inland waterway. (1931, c. 2, s. 1.)

§ 104-13. Utilities Commission to secure right-of-way over private lands; condemnation by United States.

If the title to any part of the lands acquired by the United States government for the construction of such inland waterway from the Cape Fear River at Southport to the North Carolina-South Carolina State line shall be in any private person, company or corporation, railroad company, street railway company, telephone or telegraph company, or other public service corporation or shall have been donated or condemned or any public use by any political subdivision of the State, or if it may be necessary, for the purpose of obtaining the proper title to any lands, the title to which has heretofore been vested in the State Board of Education, then the Utilities Commission, in the name of the State of North Carolina, is hereby authorized and empowered, acting for and in behalf of the State of North Carolina, to secure a right-of-way 1,000 to 1,750 feet wide for said inland waterway across and through such lands or any part thereof, by purchase, donation or otherwise, through agreement with the owner or owners where possible, and when any such property is thus acquired, the Governor and Secretary of State shall execute a deed for the same to the United States; and if for any reason the said Commission shall be unable to secure such right-of-way across any such property by voluntary donation by and/or with the owner or owners, the said Commission acting for and in behalf of the State of North Carolina is hereby vested with the power to condemn the same, and in so doing, the ways, means, methods and procedure of the Chapter of the General Statutes of North Carolina, entitled "Eminent Domain," shall be used by it as near as the same is suitable for the purposes of this Article, and in all instances, the general and special benefits to the owner thereof shall be assessed as offsets against the damages to such property or lands.

As such condemnation proceedings might result in delay in the acquiring of title to all parts of the right-of-way and in the construction of the said inland waterway by the United States, said Utilities Commission is authorized to enter any of said lands and property and take possession of the same at the time hereinafter provided as needed for this use in behalf of the State or the United States government for the purposes herein set out, prior to the bringing of the proceeding for condemnation and prior to the payment of the money for such land or property under any judgment in condemnation. In the event the owner or owners shall appeal from the report of the commissioners appointed in any condemnation proceeding hereunder, it shall not be necessary for said Commission, acting in behalf of the State of North Carolina, or the United States government, to deposit the money assessed by said commissioners with the clerk.

Whenever proceedings in condemnation are instituted in pursuance of the provisions of this section, the said Commission upon the filing of the petition or petitions in such proceedings, shall have the right to take immediate possession, on behalf of the State, of such lands or property to the extent of the interest to be acquired and the order of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the action is instituted, shall be sufficient to vest the title and possession in the State through the Utilities Commission. The Governor and Secretary of State shall, upon vesting of the title and possession, execute a deed to the United States and said lands or property may then be appropriated and used by the United States for the purposes aforesaid: Provided, that in every case the proceedings in condemnation shall be diligently prosecuted to final judgment in order that the just compensation, if any, to which the owners of the property are entitled may be ascertained and when so ascertained and determined, such compensation, if any, shall be promptly paid as hereinafter in this Article provided.

If the United States government shall so determine, it is hereby authorized to condemn and use all lands and property which may be needed for the purposes herein set out and which is specifically described and set out in the paragraph next preceding, under the authority of said United States government, and according to the provisions existing in the federal statutes for condemning lands and property for the use of the United States government. In case the United States government shall so condemn said land and property, the said Utilities Commission is hereby authorized to pay all expenses of the condemnation proceedings and any award that may be made thereunder, out of the money which may be appropriated for said purposes.

All sums which may be agreed upon between the said Utilities Commission and the owner of any property needed by the United States government for said inland waterway and all sums which may be assessed in favor of the owner of any property condemned hereunder, shall constitute and remain a fixed and valid claim against the State of North Carolina until paid and satisfied in full, but the order of the clerk when entered in any condemnation proceeding shall divest the owner of the land condemned of all right, title, interest and possession in and to such land and property. (1931, c. 2, s. 2; 1937, c. 434.)

§ 104-14. Use declared paramount public purpose.

In such condemnation proceedings the uses for which such land or property is condemned are hereby declared to be for a purpose paramount to all other public uses, and the fact that any portion of it has heretofore been condemned by a railroad company, a street railway company, telephone or telegraph company, or other public service corporation, or by any political subdivision of the State of North Carolina, for public uses, or has been conveyed by any person or corporation for any such public uses, or vested in the State Board of Education, or by any other act dedicated to any public use, shall in no way affect the right of the State of North Carolina, or the United States government, to proceed and condemn such land and property as hereinbefore provided. (1931, c. 2, s. 3.)

§ 104-15. Method of payment of expenses and awards.

Whenever said Commission has agreed with the owner of any such land or property as to the purchase price thereof, or the damage for the construction of the inland waterway has finally been determined in any condemnation proceeding necessary to secure such land or property, the said Commission is hereby authorized and directed to pay all of said sums and other expenses incident thereto by proper warrant upon the sum which may be appropriated for said purpose, and all such sums shall constitute and remain a fixed and valid claim against the State of North Carolina until paid and satisfied in full. (1931, c. 2, s. 4.)

§ 104-16. State and United States may enter upon lands for survey, etc.

For the purpose of determining the lands necessary for the uses herein set out, the Utilities Commission or the United States government, or the agents of either, shall have the right to enter upon any lands along the general line of the right-of-way in this Article specified, and make such surveys, and do such other acts as in their judgment may be necessary for the purpose of definitely locating the specific lines of said right-of-way and the lands required for said purposes, and there shall be no claim against the State of North Carolina or the United States for such acts as may be done in making said surveys. (1931, c. 2, s. 5; 1937, c. 434.)

§ 104-17. Construction, maintenance, etc., of bridges over waterway.

The Board of Transportation or the road governing body of any political subdivision of the State of North Carolina is hereby authorized and directed to construct, maintain and operate in perpetuity, all bridges over the waterway without cost to the United States. (1931, c. 2, s. 7; 1933, c. 172, s. 17; 1957, c. 65, s. 11; 1973, c. 507, s. 5.)

§ 104-18. Concurrent jurisdiction over waterway.

The State of North Carolina retains concurrent jurisdiction with the United States over any lands acquired and held in pursuance of the provisions of this Chapter, so far as that all civil and criminal process issued under authority of any law of this State may be executed in any part of the premises so acquired for such inland waterway, or for the buildings or constructions thereon erected for the purposes of such inland waterway. (1931, c. 2, s. 8.)

§ 104-19. Acquisition of land for inland waterway from Beaufort Inlet; grant of State lands.

For the purpose of aiding in the construction of the proposed inland waterway by the United States from Beaufort Inlet in the State of North Carolina to the Cape Fear River, the Secretary of State is hereby authorized to issue to the United States of America a grant to the land located within said inland waterway, right-of-way, which is to be 1,000 feet wide, insofar as such land is subject to grant by the State of North Carolina, the said grant to issue upon a certificate furnished to the Secretary of State by the Secretary of War, or by any authorized officer of the corps of engineers of the United States army, or by any other authorized official, exercising control over the construction of the said waterway. Whenever in the construction of such inland waterway within this State, lands theretofore submerged shall be raised above the water by the deposit of excavated material, the land so formed shall become the property of the United States if within the limits of said inland waterway, right-of-way, herein set out 1,000 feet, and the Secretary of State is hereby authorized to issue to the United States a grant to the land so formed within the limits above specified, the grant to issue upon a certificate furnished to the Secretary of State by some authorized official of the United States, as above provided. If said lands so required for the inland waterway right-of-way shall be marshlands, the title to which has heretofore been vested in the State Board of Education, the Governor of the State, as President thereof, and the Superintendent of Public Instruction as Secretary, are hereby authorized and required to execute a proper conveyance to the United States of America for said marshlands, free of cost, both to the State and to the United States government, upon a certificate furnished, to said Board of Education by the Secretary of War, or by any authorized officer of the corps of engineers of the United States army, or by any other authorized official exercising control over the construction of the said inland waterway. (1927, c. 44, s. 1.)
